Old library hours to be reinstituted

Widespread student demand has been acknowledged

by Chad Briggs
News writer

Due to the dismay expressed by Clarion University students, Carlson Library study hours will be returned to normal in the near future. The decision was made late Tuesday night by President Diane Reinhard, university librarians and Provost John Kuhn after hearing complaints earlier in the evening, concerning the reduction of hours, from student leaders gathered at an unofficial meeting hosted by Student Senate.

Jason Renda, a student senator, told the Call Wednesday afternoon, "I'm pleased to see that the administration has seen a problem with the library hours and has changed it back to the original hours this quick."

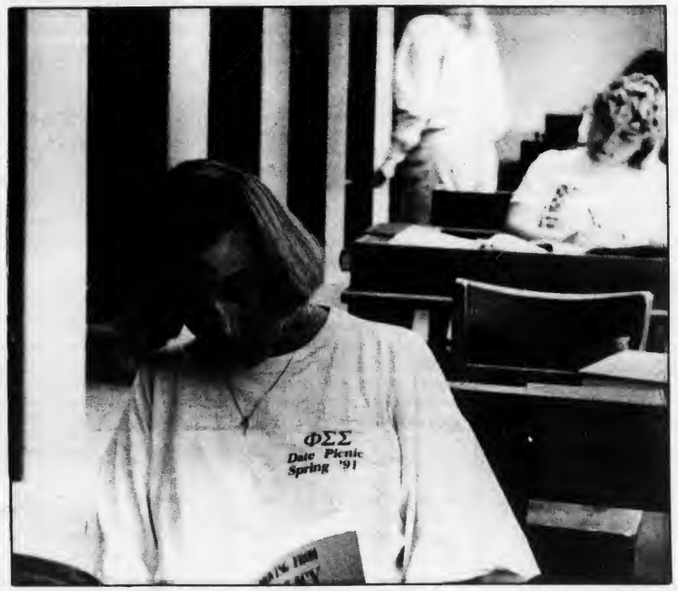

The outcry over Carlson Library's hours began last week when returning students discovered the operating schedule had been cut by 15 hours per week.

The proposal to reduce the hours came from the library staff at the end of last school year and was approved by Provost Kuhn over the summer.

In a memo to the Call, Deon Knickerbocker, chair of library faculty, cites that one of the reasons for the proposed cut in hours was the decrease in the number of people using the library after 9 p.m.

On the average, she said, 45 to 50 persons were counted exiting the library during late night hours last year. She added, however, that most of those people were either staff members or people looking for friends. Therefore, the library staff were often left "house sitting" an empty facility.

She also said that the university did try to stretch hours despite staff shortages last term which, however, resulted in frequent acts of vandalism such as the loss of library materials.

Chad Briggs/Clarion Call

Senior Tammie Snyder spends her off hours studying in Carlson Library. Plans to scale back library hours have recently been reconsidered due to heavy student input.

Financial reasons also played a large part in the proposal and final decision, stated Knickerbocker in the memo. "In times of budgetary exigencies and deficient staffing, it simply is not economical to spend money monitoring a contingency study hall. It seems far more responsible to concentrate revenues to ensure that services and resources are available when needed during the day and early evening hours."

Students slapped with tuition hike... again

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

Again this year, students in the State System of Higher Education had to dig a little deeper into their pockets to attend classes this fall.

Graduate and undergraduate tuition for Pennsylvania residents rose $126 this year to $2,954. Non-resident undergraduate tuition jumped $1,230 (20.09%) to $7,352 per year, while out of state graduate tuition rose $1,000 (23.83%) to a total of $5,196 per year.

The 4.4 percent raise for Pennsylvania residents was just low enough to squeak under the 4.5% limit on in-state tuition hikes in order to release another $13.99 million dollars into SSHE, through the tuition challenge program, on top of the $357.9 million already allocated. The money will be divided between the 14 SSHE institutions using the same formula used to divide up the base allocation. Variables include institution enrollment, historic cost of operation and other factors.

The raise in out-of-state tuition is part of a phase-in plan that will eventually have out of state students pay the entirety of their academic costs, according to Scott Shewell, press secretary for SSHE.

"Charges for non-resident tuition reflect more of the actual instructional and academic support costs for undergraduate and graduate students," said

We begin again

Yet another new semester breaks in upon our summer lives interrupting so many wonderful moments of recreation.

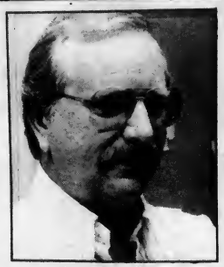

Now it's time for a little creation; work, writing, study, research.

I certainly hope this is a good year for all concerned. There are cautious notes of optimism being sounded. Perhaps the university will be in a better financial situation; perhaps last year was our time of maximum constraint; perhaps we can get back to university life as we used to live it: simple restraint.

One clear and strong ray of light is the reaffirmation of accreditation given CUP by Middle States. This success completes a ten year cycle for the university and signifies that the university is, indeed, doing its job and in several cited areas is doing it admirably. It's almost non-news now that the site visit is over and the report is in, but the work consumed thousands of hours of effort, involved many, many, members of the total university community and the outcome was never guaranteed. Middle States Accreditation is a seal of approval not a rubber stamp.

The easing of the budget crisis and the success signaled by the Middle States reaccreditation clears the way for more attention to our central tasks: teaching, learning -- somewhat refreshing, eh?

Now, a few words about Hide Park -- the column has run uninterrupted since its inception on October 24, 1984. As promised there have been many speakers and many points of view. Occasionally there has been rebuttal, but mostly it has been a place where one can speak and be heard. Forum or safety valve, Hide Park has afforded the opportunity for all members of this university community to exercise their right of Free Speech. I, as 'self-appointed Groundskeeper' have been satisfied that the Park has served this vital purpose, and I have been particularly pleased that the student editors have seen fit to continue this column.

So why does this column seem so eulogistic? Well, I'm setting it fully free. When I can sustain the claim that the Column has run unbroken, lo, these nine years; I should also note some instances

THE WAY I SEE IT

Michelle Sporer
Editor-in-Chief

Greetings and salutations! Yes, I came back for one final year at the Call (I couldn't pass up the late evenings -- or very early mornings four days a week-- whichever way you look at it).

I would like to extend a warm welcome to all new students especially freshmen. As I mentioned in last year's welcome back editorial, the weather here is as unpredictable as the next LCB raid; so, take an umbrella when the sun shines and snow boots when it calls for rain.

But, I digress. This year, by all indications, promises to be a good one for the Call. Many of our assistant editors last year are now fulfilling the roles of their peers.

Along with new people, we have some new features like syndicated columnist Dave Barry and the cartoon, In the Bleachers. In addition, we have brought back some of last year's favorites such as News of the Weird and the TV Guide.

And, staff members will once again contribute to this column.

If there is anything that you would like changed or added in the Call, please let us know. Your input is invaluable to us.

Invaluable to the rest of the campus as well. Due to student protest, the former library hours will be reinstated sometime in the near future. It's good to know that administration considers student input important enough to actually change something. Could this be the beginning of a beautiful friendship between students and administration? We'll see.

Needless to say I welcome this amiability but view it with some hesitation. The idea of the beaurocrats turning over a new leaf just for us is a little hard to fathom.

But, I'm not willing to look a gift horse in the mouth. I'll wait till the year progresses before I declare my hesitation unfounded.

But along these same lines it should be clear that you, as students, can make a difference if you really want to. Write letters to the Call expressing your discontent about any issue you see is a problem.

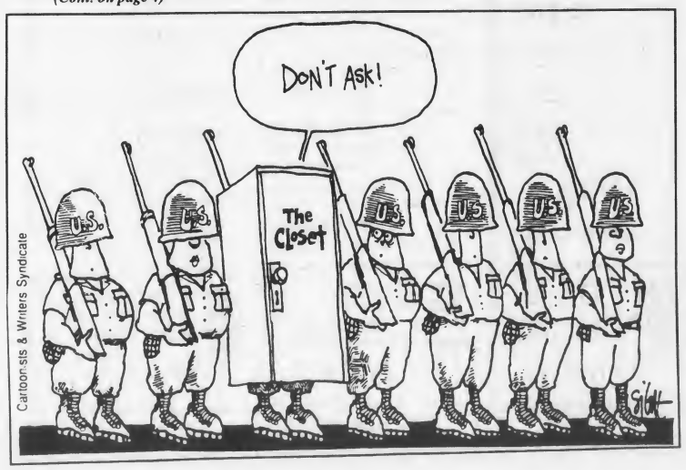

Keeping silent and assuming someone else will shoulder the responsibility will solve nothing.

Only by speaking out can you make things happen.

Hopefully, we haven't heard the last of the voices raised in protest.

How about that tuition increase?

Until next week. . .

READER RESPONSES

Protesting library hours

Dear Fellow Students:

Welcome back to Clarion. During the past summer the University decided to reduce Carlson Library's operating time by 15 hours per week for the fall 1993 semester. This indicated the University's lack of responsibility to its students. Throughout the last week-and-a-half you, as a Clarion University student, have had no access to resource materials or study hall hours after 9:00 p.m., Sunday through Thursday at Carlson Library. The reason for the reduction (the University stated) was due to Gemmell Complex providing study hall service (which it doesn't) and reduced Carlson staffing.

On Tuesday, September 7th, Student Senate hosted an informal gathering of C.U.P. administrative leaders and C.U.P. student leaders. During the discussion, President Reinhard and Provost Kuhn agreed to negotiate a compromise with the student body concerning the library hours. Carlson Library will be open Sunday through Thursday until midnight but the study hall hours will be from 9:00 p.m. till midnight.

The main reasons for the reconsideration of the library hours is due to the great amount of student disapproval; it is because of you, the students who voiced your concerns and took the initiative to write and call President Reinhard. I am very proud of the student body here at Clarion. I only hope that this enthusiasm continues throughout the semester and year. Students, please do not hesitate about speaking out for what you believe is right.

As I stated above, the University will be making its formal announcement regarding the library later this week. Please continue to write or call President Reinhard, 202 Carrier Hall, ext. 2220 and demand to have Carlson Library hours changed back to 92 hours per week instead of the 77 hours per week. Again, your prompt assistance is crucial to the outcome. If you have any questions, I can be contacted at the Student Senate office, ext. 2318. Thanks again for your support.

Sincerely,
Gara L. Smith
President, Student Senate

Dear Editor:

As I walked down the sidewalk behind Carlson Library, I noticed there were words written in chalk on the cement below my feet.

On closer inspection, I realized this was not mere graffiti from some overly bored vandal. These words were in protest of the new policy that Carlson Library closes at nine o'clock. "What's next? No breakfast?"

As a transfer student, I had not even been thinking about computer or book accessibility. It was my second day of classes, and I was more worried that I couldn't find the cafeteria. Once I figured out the basic dimensions of the campus, my mind wandered back to the chalk words that the rain had washed away. I questioned myself, "Why did I choose Clarion University?" Several things popped into my head, and one of them was the tour a now graduated student had given me on the day I came to visit the campus. One thing we both had in common is that we are both English majors. Any English major knows that half of all your free time is spent reading and researching, and the other half of your time is spent writing papers on a computer. One of the specific points she made to me was the long and great hours of the library and how easy it was to get accessibility to a computer.

I have no spirit for protest. I was born in the 70's, not the 60's. I am glad someone else does. In one of my English classes a petition was passed around that was started by Student Senate asking that the library be open until midnight. I signed it of course, and along with this letter I'll express my dissent.

I wonder why a student can play pool or video games until eleven, but can only borrow a book from the library until nine. I think Student Senate should fight and get petitions signed until justice . . .well, let's say fairness, is served.

And if they cancel breakfast, then I'll protest.

Christy Williams is a sophomore english secondary education and special education dual major

Knickerbocker added that the library is feeling the financial crunch with the rest of the university which has resulted in the decline in the number of employees.

As a result of the change in hours, Dr. Reinhard's office received over 100 letters, several petitions and approximately 50 phone calls from angry students expressing their discontent with the decision.

During Tuesday night's meeting with student leaders, Dr. Reinhard said, "Students are more interested in having a facility open for study purposes rather than for actual library purposes."

Provost Kuhn told the Call, "I'm glad the students have spoken forcefully on behalf of the library."

He also said that the university had budgeted $347,973 in base support for materials for the 1993-94 school year.

In addition to the budgeted amount, added the Provost, the library had received an extra $50,000 for base support. The 1993-94 library staff budget is estimated at $1.25 million.

Carlson Library's hours for the fall semester are as follows:
Sunday: 1:00 p.m. to midnight
Monday through Thursday: 8:00 a.m. to midnight
Friday: 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Saturday: Noon to 5:00 p.m.

Tuition hike. . .

SSHE Vice-Chancellor for Finance and Administration Wayne G. Failor.

Still, that fails to set well with some out-of-state undergraduate students who have already completed a sizable portion of their education at SSHE schools.

"It makes me very upset when my tuition increases, but at the same time my quality of education decreases," said Sarah Cunningham, a senior English major from Hilo, Hawaii. "I went to Clarion because it was cheaper than private institutions, but now it's almost the same." If she were deciding where to attend college now, she said, she "definitely" would choose to go elsewhere.

Ron Wilshire, director of University Relations said, "We were pleased that the tuition increase was held to under 4.5 percent, but also said that the university is "concerned with the size of the tuition increase for out of state students and its impact on enrollment."

According to Wilshire, preliminary enrollment figures show a 21 percent drop in out of state students and a 31 percent decrease in international students. It is not known if the rise in tuition affected these enrollments.

Out of state students decreased from 310 to 243 and international from 125 to 86.

of arm-twisting that bordered on pain, and one late night salvation of looming deadline and white space by a clever editor who reran an earlier Hide Park Column under the heading, reprinted by popular demand.

In any event the column will continue, but only on demand. It's still an open invitation: come one -- come all.

The frequency of the column will be an indication of the vitality of debate on this campus, of the need for such a forum.

Eventually everybody has to die, except Elvis. You never know when your time will come. One minute you could be as healthy as a horse, and the next minute you could be killed by exploding bat dung.

This is what nearly happened to rangers at Tahquamenon Falls State Park in Michigan, where, according to news articles sent in by many alert readers, a building was leveled by a monster blast -- audible 14 miles away -- that resulted when a sump pump spark ignited methane gas that had been generated by large quantities of bat dung. Fortunately nobody was in the building at the time except bats, whose names are being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

But even if you do not set foot in Tahquamenon Falls State Park -- and that is certainly my recommendation, at least until after the funeral services -- death can come at any time. In the words of the Old Testament prophet Abner, speaking in the Book of Longitudes, Chapter Nine, Verse Four, Sector Seven: "For whom amongst ye can know the exact day, nor hour, nor minute, nor GAAAACCCK (thud)."

You want to spare your loved ones the pain and agony of having to make funeral arrangements for you later, at a time when, for example, they might have tickets to the playoffs.

Now before I get a lot of irate mail from the funeral industry, let me stress that your modern bereavement counselor is NOT just out to make money. He is a highly trained professional who is interested only in servicing the family of the deceased at a very reasonable cost, if necessary ("Well, Mrs. Deegle, if you're looking to save a few dollars, we offer a 'Basic' package that includes this durable, high-quality, four-ply 'Hefty' bag with a sturdy twist tie to . . .").

So make those arrangements NOW. And be sure to leave explicit written instructions with your next of kin stating what kind of funeral service you want, ESPECIALLY what kind of music. I say this in light of an alarming article from The Star, sent in by Katherine Runyan, listing the most popular recorded songs played at funerals. These include "My Way," sung by Frank Sinatra ("Regrets, I've had a few, but then again, too few to mention"); and "Ben," sung by Michael Jackson. Correct me if I/m wrong here, bit isn't the song "Ben," from the movie "Ben," which is about a rat? Do you want Michael Jackson singing a love song to a RAT at your funeral?

Of course not. You want something more suitable, such as -- this would be my selection-- "Mony Mony," by Tommy James and the Shondells.

Another thing you definitely should do prior to dying is make sure you have a proper will. According to our nation's largest lawyer organization, the American Association of Aforementioned Legal Professionals, the best way to get a will is to copy down the following paragraph and sign it:

"I, (YOUR NAME), being of sound mind and reasonable body do heretofore set forth the following (hereinafter 'the mortgages'), and do thereby attest and affirm thereto etc. blah blah blah there is no need to read this too carefully it's all just standard legal "boilerplate" blah blah blah and therefore I bequeath and bestow and begive all my money and everything to Dave Barry blah blah blah so I'll just sign this right now here I go I'm signing it (SIGN HERE).

There! That pesky chore has been taken care of! Now you can forget about this morbid topic and get on with the rest of your life. Speaking purely as your friend, I recommend some place with bats.

NEWS

Summer events affect students and staff

by Rodney K. Sherman
News Editor

Numerous events affecting Clarion University students happened over the summer months. Some affect the entire student population, some affected individual students.

• Former Clarion University student John Avery Coy, 42, of Shippenville, pleaded guilty but mentally ill to a felony charge of aggravated assault, a felony charge of robbery and a misdemeanor charge of unlawful restraint. Coy was sentenced to serve 6 to 12 years in a state penitentiary for his actions during a Nov. 12, 1992 incident at the Cranberry Mall near Oil City.

Police said Coy attacked Karen Winger as she was leaving the Mall and forced her into her car where she was beaten with a ten inch cresent wrench before she escaped.

Coy testified that he was under the care of a psychiatrist for bi-polar disorder and had stopped taking his prescribed medications at the time of the attack. The psychiatrist, Dr. Donald Hazlett of Franklin, said that Coy was in a manic state at the time of the attack and was close to becoming psychotic. Coy's decision to stop taking the medications was a key issue in the case.

Julie Warnick, an Assistant Public Defender representing Coy, presented several letters sent to the court on behalf of Coy from several Clarion University professors where Coy was a student at the time of the attack.

• A case involving Clarion University Student Senate Vice-President Michele J. Piccirillo has lead to a ruling by Judge Charles R. Alexander stating it is not necessary for police to advise individuals stopped for routine traffic stops that they have the right to remain silent.

It is also not necessary for the police to have a chemical analysis performed on the beverage consumed by individuals suspected of underage drinking, according to the same ruling.

Piccirillo was cited for underage consumption of alcohol on July 17, 1992. Piccirillo alledgedly admitted to drinking four "Bud Lights" and agreed to take a Portable Breath Test which showed her blood alcohol leve at .29. Pennsylvania's intoxication standard is .10.

According to a Clarion News story, Piccirillo was found guilty at a summary trail Aug. 27, 1992 and appealed the verdict to the Clarion County Court of Common Pleas on the grounds that her admission to drinking the four beers was given without her being advised of her right to remain silent. Piccirillo also claimed there was insufficent evidence to prove she had consumed beer.

Alexander ruled against Piccirillo on both issues. Piccirillo did not appeal Alexander's decision and was fined.

The decision could affect future arrest procedures in the borough involving under-age drinking.

• George Vargo, of Pittsburgh's North Side, was convicted of first degree murder in the shooting of former Clarion University student Michael Taylor. The shooting took place Sept. 5, 1992 near the Allegheny County Observatory. Taylor was chaplain of the Tau Kappa Epsilion fraternity here.

• Clarion University's Board of Trustees welcomed two new members, Michael Keefer, of Summerville, and Kim Kesner, of Clearfield. (See related story on page seven)

Dr. Syed Ali-Zaidi was re-elected to a one year term as the chair of the Council of Trustees.

• Clarion University received accreditation from the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. Strong points cited at CUP included strong academic support services, committment to global education and good academic equipment.

The reaccreditation committee described Venango campus as a "gem" with potential, but as yet unrealized, strength. Clarion campus was described as lovely and well maintained.

The on-line student information system and telephone registration system were also very well received.

• CUP Trustees approved an increase in rates at the Siler Children's Center for the child care program and the Child Development Program. New fees will range from $1.50 to $2.50 per hour for the child care program. The fee for the Child Development Program will rise to $280 a semester for 1993-94, and to $330 for 1994-95. Family income will determine the child care rates.

• U.S. Rep. William Clinger Jr., (R-5, which includes Clarion County) considered a bid for the U.S. Senate but decided not to run for the seat now held by Democrat Harris Wofford. Clinger feels he can better serve his district in the House of Representatives.

• University president Dr. Diane L. Reinhard has been elected treasurer of the State System of Higher Education Commission of Presidents. In this capacity she also serves on the Executive Committee of the Chancellor's Executive Council. The two year term began July 1, 1993.

• Kenneth Grugel, director of financial aid at CUP, has been selected by the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) to serve a three-year term on the Pennsylvania Aid Adminstrators Training Program, Planning and Program Development Committee. He was nominated for the position by the PASFAA executive council.

In making the announcement of Grugel's selection, Barbara Williams, vice president for PHEAA Regional and Special Programs, acknowledged the many years of service Grugel has provided to PHEAA and state training efforts.

• Dr. John Head, associate professor of library science, and Gerard McCabe, director of libraries at CUP, are the editors of a newly published book.

"Insider's Guide to Library Automation, Essays of Practical Experience" was published by Greenwood Publishing Group Inc., of Westport, CT.

The book, which took 18 months from conception to publication, is a series of essays dealing with automation of libraries, automatic functions for acquistions, serial control, circulation and perhaps the most difficult to use well- automated cataloging.

• An increase in the late payment for all parking ticket violations issued by the Borough of Clarion Police is now in effect.

While original ticket fines remain unchanged, tickets not paid on the eighth day after receipt have been increased by an additional five dollars.

After 12 days a citation will be issued. No extension will be granted.

• Thomas E. Gusler was named associate provost for administration. The change in title from assistant academic vice president was announced by Provost John F. Kuhn.

Gusler will continue in his current role managing computing services and institutional research, but his duties in budgeting and planning for both academic affairs and the university have been expanded.

Gusler will also represent academic affairs concerning campus facilities.

• Dr. Stephen Johnson has been named the new director for bands at CUP. Johnson earned his Ph.D in instrumental music education from the University of Maryland, College Park, MD.

Clarion should "Get on with it"

President Reinhard welcomes new year and new challenges

compiled from speech text

Clarion University president Dr. Diane L. Reinhard welcomed students and staff at the beginning of a new academic year August 31, 1993.

In her address at Hart chapel Reinhard mentioned last year's cost reduction efforts and this year's on-going search for additional cost cutting measures. The university anticipated a $2.7 million shortfall in reaching a balanced budget for 1993-94.

"I appreciated the genuine interest of faculty in helping to meet these (budgeting) challenges. Your willingness to be flexible in providing courses and a few extra seats for students, agreeing to postpone sabbatical leaves and working with the Deans to examine issues of non-contractual release time was commendable," said Reinhard.

Reinhard announced her thanks to all the members of the committees involved in gaining Middle States reaccreditation. A special mention of thanks went to Professors Bill Sharpe and Ron Shumaker for their roles in the effort.

Reinhard also complimented Dean Charles Duke, Professor Liz Brown and all the individual faculty members who participated in the work on behalf of Clarion's reaccreditation by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education and the Pennsylvania Department of Education. Both organizations gave Clarion very positive comments. Reaccreditation is expected early this fall.

During the past year, Clarion University made significant progress in meeting complex and demanding computer needs and services.

The addition of Internet, for faculty and staff only, is now available at CUP, announced Reinhard. Internet is a world-wide computerized communication system. Reinhard feels the addition will enhance the university's potential to personalize contacts with prospective students.

Addressing the future of CUP, Reinhard said "Clarion University can no longer afford to linger at the stage of discussion and analysis about how it will address its challenges or wait for better times, hoping certain issues go away." Reinhard stressed a need for the university to "get on with it," in four critical areas: enrollment management, the future of Venango Campus, general education reform and financial planning.

"As we address these significant issues, and, indeed, as we pursue all areas of endeavor, I invite you to join me in making 1993-94 a year of 'Focusing our Vision and Achieving our Goals,'" offered Reinhard.

Reinhard announced searches will commence soon to fill the positions of Vice President for Financial and Administration and Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Committees have been formed for both and organizational meetings for both are be planned for this week.

CUP new Vice President For University Advancement Mr. Harry Tripp was introduced by Reinhard, who said Tripp brings an "extensive background in development to his new role." Tripp assumed his duties July 1, 1993.

Closing, Reinhard said, "The extent to which we are able to focus this year on the priorities I have discussed and get on with their achievement will determine our ability to shape our own future.

"It will require teamwork, within and across divisions and between management and faculty.

"It will also require an understanding that continued conversation or marginal changes in policies and procedures are simply not enough if we are to position Clarion University to grow in its ability to provide a quality education for those it serves. Thank you."

Loan default rate threatens colleges and trade schools

CPS- A new report by the Department of Education has students concerned over whether their school is on the list of 900 colleges and trade schools that may lose federal loan funding due to high student loan default rates.

For some of the threatened institutions, most of which are two-year, for-profit career schools, it could mean closing their doors, according to Stephanie Babyak, a spokesperson for the Department of Education.

Kenneth Grugel, director of financial aid at Clarion University, said CUP is not affected by the default problem.

The national default rate for federal student loans was 17.5 percent in 1991, the latest year figures were available, a decline from 22.4 percent in 1990.

"Defaults are one important measure of a school's performance," said U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley. "This year's overall rate drop shows most schools are taking their jobs seriously, but many others must do better."

A law enacted in 1989 makes it possible for the Department of Education to eliminate funding to any school with a default rate of at least 30 percent over three consecutive years. The new report reflects figures from 1989, 1990 and 1991.

"We want students to know if they have a loan, and their school is out, they can continue to use that loan," Babyak said, noting that there are also special programs being set up that allow a student to continue his or her education at a neighboring school should a school close down.

The schools can appeal and continue to receive funding until the appeal is exhausted, Babyak said.

"Schools must offer financial counseling. People need to understand their obligations to repay, their rights and responsibilities as borrowers," Babyak said, noting that in certain cases, students have not realized that a loan is not a grant, and that they had to pay back the money.

It is also necessary for schools receiving funding to offer education and training to help students pay off their loans, Babyak said. "Some schools aren't doing this. They rush kids in the door, then out of the door," she said.

Officials are concerned that many of the schools are not making certain that the students gets the training necessary to hold a job to pay back the loan when they graduate, Babyak said.

In addition, colleges and trade schools must also make certain the student will benefit from the education. "For example, if a student doesn't speak English well, they need to take English language classes," she said. The department estimates that defaulted student loans will cost taxpayers $2.5 billion in the current fiscal year, down more than $1 billion from the 1991 total of $3.6 billion.

"By working closely with state agencies, we can better protect the taxpayers' and students' investment in education," said David Longanecker, assistant secretary for postsecondary education.

Besides identifying the schools that may be disqualified from aid programs, the department released lender, guaranty agency, and state-by-state default rates for the first time.

CUP Board of Trustees names new members

by Christy Williams
Newswriter

After being nominated by Pennsylvania Governor Robert Casey and confirmed by the state senate, Mr. Micheal Keefer and Mr. Kim C. Kesner have been named as the newest members of the Clarion University Board of Trustees.

Kesner is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L.E. Corbett, of Shippenville and the late Jay F. Kesner.

After graduating with honors from Keystone Oaks High School, Kesner was graduated Magna Cum Laude from Clarion State College in 1975 with a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

Kesner received his Juris Doctorate from Duquesne University School of Law in 1977. He was a member of the Duquesne Law review and served a clerkship with the Honorable Joseph F. Weis Jr. of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Kesner is currently a member of the bar of the U S. Supreme Court, U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, the U. S. District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania and all Pennsylvania State Courts.

"I look forward to my service with Clarion University," said Kesner. "I view the service as a reinvestment for those things my family, friends and I received through our education at Clarion." Kesner's family has a tradition of earning a Clarion education, dating back to his grandmother, Elva Fraser, who graduated from Clarion Normal School.

Although Michael Keefer, of Summerville, did not graduate from Clarion University, his wife, Cathy Rhoades Keefer, received her bachelor's degree in nursing from Clarion recently.

"I have been in town seven years now, and I have been particularly impressed by Clarion," said Keefer, "I am pleased with my appointment and look forward to being an active member of the Council of Trustees."

Keefer currently serves as administrator and CEO of Clarion Psychiatric Center.

HIV/AIDS services available locally

by Christin A. Mihon
Newswriter

Are you or someone you know directly affected by HIV or AIDS? The Western Pennsylvania Rural AIDS Alliance office, 202 Egbert, offers information and services to people in the 13 counties of Northwest Pennsylvania, (Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Forest, Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer, Venango, and Warren).

The Alliance Hotline, 1-800-359-AIDS, is available to answer most questions from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm, Monday through Friday. All contacts are confidential. Individuals with questions or concerns are encouraged to contact the Alliance. Education and awareness continue to be the biggest factors in halting the spread of the disease.

The hotline operators are able to supply contact information for local HIV/AIDS Networks and Task Forces, answer questions about case management, give information about AIDS conferences and seminars, and access the caller with library materials available through the office.

Jeanne Caldwell, Debbie Miller, and Tami Schilling are the three trained case managers employed by the alliance to provide assistance to individuals in obtaining financial support, housing, transportation, medical and dental care, pharmaceuticals and emotional support. Kim Schwab is the Administrator.

The Western Pennsylvania HIV/AIDS Alliance is funded through the Department of Health via the Ryan White Title II Health Resources and Service Administration fund. The Alliance also has money available for pharmaceutical, physician and dental care. The Clarion University campus location was chosen for it's central locality and the public service offered.

While speaking with Jeanne Caldwell I was surprized to learn that while HIV/AIDS resources and support remain lower in rural areas, it is exactly there that the percentage of people affected by HIV/AIDS continues to grow faster than that of urban areas.

Ms. Caldwell also told me that most of the patients she is in contact with can trace the contraction of their disease back to their late teens or early twenties.

Think about it.

University of Florida Student Government Association insurance will cover abortion

CPS, GAINSVILLE, Fla. - Abortion is now covered under a student health insurance plan offered by the University of Florida Student Government Association beginning this fall, a move that angered anti-abortionists but won praise for those who support abortion.

Dean of Student Affairs Art Sandeen said that of the 35,000 students who attend Florida, the student government sells between 3,000 and 4,000 health insurance policies a year. Many of the policies are sold to older students who aren't financially dependent on their parents, he said.

The student government voted in April to have a new company sell insurance on campus, and chose Scarborough Company Insurance. The company now provides students with two options of health insurance. Plan A, which costs $96 a year, doesn't cover abortion.

However, Plan B, which costs $507 annually, includes up to $300 coverage for abortion. "I think that it is very unfortunate that the medical facilities at the University of Florida consider killing an unborn child as health related," said Lois Anne O'Malley, director of Gainesville Right to Life. "Pregnancy is not a disease, so there is no reason from a medical point of view, for the health of a woman, that all of a sudden this health coverage is available."

Campus National Organization for Women co-president Pennie Foster told the Independent Florida Alligator that her organization is working to have abortion covered under the less-expensive policy. "It's only right that they include abortion on the policy," she told the campus newspaper. "No other medical procedure is discriminated against as much as abortion."

Sandeen said that university officials have not had any complaints from parents or students yet. "There has been no fallout to my knowledge," he said. Abortions on these policies are usually classified as "any other sickness," Sandeen said.

O'Malley said her organization has no plans to protest the inclusion of abortion, but will continue to lecture against abortion on campus or wherever else they are invited to speak.

"It's a real lack of moral commitment, a lack of self-esteem, that women seem to feel that they have to acquiesce to sexual pressures of society to prove themselves," she said. "In the end, the women are hit hardest with it, men don't have to go out and have abortions."

Foster told the Alligator she is pleased with the abortion coverage. "This is a positive, especially for students, because younger women are affected more than any other group," she said.

Clarion borough police seek public assistance in assault case

Clarion Borough police are investigating a possible assault on a Clarion University student. The incident happened August 31, at approximately 1:24 a.m. The student received only minor injuries, suffering an abrasion on her left elbow.

According to a news release from the borough police, Public Safety officers from Clarion University contacted Clarion Borough police to respond to an assault on Wilson Ave., adjacent to the CUP campus.

An investigation revealed that the Public Safety officers had heard screams in the area and responded. They reportedly found a 21-year-old female between Payne and Corbett streets.

The alleged victim reported she was assaulted by a white male suspect near a residence in the area.

The alleged victim said she was approached by the suspect, who asked for assistance. The suspect then allegedly spun the student around, placed her in a chokehold then placed a metal object to her throat and told her to be quiet.

The alleged victim struggled and screamed before falling to the concrete. At this point the suspect fled the scene.

A passing motorist, driving what may have been a 1988-90 dark colored Ford Mustang, stopped to speak to the alleged victim as the assault concluded. The driver was described as a white male in his early twenties.

Clarion police are asking this person to contact borough police immediately. His information may be valuable in the on-going investigation.

Police are looking for a suspect, described as:

White male, late teens to early thirties in age. Tall and heavy set (not fat, but chubby), baby faced (roundish face), dark hair and dark eyes.

Last seen wearing a dark tee-shirt and lighter colored shorts.

The suspect fled on foot in the direction of Grand Ave.

Anyone with information should call borough police at 226-9140.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of August 30,1993 through September 5, 1993.

On August 30, at approximately 12:15 a.m., a female student was cited for Public Drunkenness after she was observed urinating between Chandler Dining Hall and Parking Lot "D". The student was then escorted to her room.

A theft was reported to have occurred at the stadium training room when two Gott brand 106 quart coolers were reported missing. The coolers were last seen during the spring football program. The value of the coolers is approximately $175 each.

At approximately 12:25 a.m., on September 3, an unknown person activated a smoke alarm on the first floor of Wilkinson Hall. The incident is currently under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Clinton backs Gore's reforms

Seizing on public dissatisfaction with the government, President Clinton unvieled a plan engineered by Vice President Al Gore designed to shrink the federal workforce by as many as 252,000 people and save taxpayers an estimated $108 billion.

"The government is broken, and we need to fix it," explained Clinton.

The overhaul plan was developed by Gore over a six-month study period. More than half of the proposals would require congressional approval.

Elders named Surgeon General

Dr. Joycelyn Elders, President Clinton's choice for surgeon general was confirmed by the United States Senate Tuesday night.

Her nomination was debated six hours on the senate floor. Elders was not present for the final 65-34 vote.

Elders had come under fire for some of her controversial decisions made while serving as the head of the Arkansas Health Department.

Kansas abortion doctor shot

An anti-abortion activist charged with wounding a doctor outside his abortion clinic was ordered Tuesday to stand trial on attempted murder and assault charges.

During a preliminary hearing, two workers at Dr. George Tiller's clinic identified Rachelle "Shelly" Shannon, 37, of Grants Pass, Ore., as the woman who shot Tiller on Aug. 19 and pointed a gun at them.

Judge Michael Corrigan ordered Shannon held in lieu of $1 million bail and scheduled trial for Nov. 15 on one count of attempted first degree murder and two counts of aggravated assault.

Tiller described being shot as he pulled out of the driveway of his Women's Health Care Services clinic.

He testified he was "absolutely, unequivocally terrified" as he chased a woman who had fired five shots and wounded him in both arms.

Tiller said he drove after his attacker as she ran from the clinic, pulling into a driveway ahead of her to cut her off. He recalled realizing that he was putting himself in danger. "She's already shot me a couple of times. She could shoot me again. What am I doing here?"

Shannon has been protesting abortions since 1988.

Baker, during a news conference, said he advocates a string of business tax cuts, paid for by cuts in government spending cuts and a reduction in bureaucratic red tape.

Casey visits hometown over Labor Day weekend

Gov. Robert Casey spent the Labor day weekend back at his old hometown in Scranton, his first there since his June heart-liver transplant.

Casey and his wife, Ellen, were driven to Scranton on Saturday. They spent the weekend with family and returned to Harrisburg by car on Monday. Casey said he felt fine following the trip.

Casey was discharged from a Pittsburgh hospital July 27.

Women's group in court

Women's right's lawyers asked a federal judge in Philadelphia Tuesday to hold the nationwide Operation Rescue and four other of its anti-abortion organizers in contempt of court for violating an injuction restraining them from blocking abortion clinics.

"It is time their mob rule tactics were stopped," said Linda Wharton, an attorney for the Women's Law Project, which filed the notion with U.S. District Judge Clarence Newcomer.

Harvard tests male contraceptive

A male contraceptive that blocks the production of sperm while preserving the libido has been tested and found successful by Harvard medical researchers.

The contraceptive, which is given by injection, surpressed sperm production in over a dozen volunteers who reported no loss in sexual desire. When the injections were terminated, sperm counts returned to normal within approximately 90 days, the Harvard Gazette reported.

At this point in the testing, volunteers had to submit to a daily injection, which chief researcher Syros Pavlou termed "not practical." He said, however, that several laboratories were attempting to create a longer-lived injection, a birth-control nasal spray or an underskin implant.

Employment outlook brightens

The hiring outlook is improving for the fourth quarter and should exceed hiring patterns from a year ago, said the Employment Outlook Survey conducted by Manpower.

In a survey of nearly 15,000 U.S. firms, Manpower found that 22 percent of the businesses surveyed are planning to hire, compared to 21 percent last year.

Employers in the Northeast and West will be hiring below the national level, the Midwest at about 22 percent, and the South above the average.

Service with a smile

Texans apparently have a different style of helping new and returning students move into their dorms - at least at the University of Texas at Austin.

President Robert Berdahl and about 300 other faculty and staff members participated in the "Mooov In" event in late August, officials said.

The volunteers were stationed at four residence sites. As students and their parents drove up to move in, the volunteers assisted by carrying boxes, luggage, stereos and other items into dorm rooms. A campus news release said the first ever event was designed to give the students an informal "Texas style" howdy.

You may be wondering just why it was called a "Mooov In." The University of Texas teams are called the Longhorns, that's why.

Students support speech code

Just over half of Stanford University seniors questioned in a recent poll said they support the university's policy on free expression, and 80 percent said they do not feel that it hindered bringing up sensitive subjects in the classroom.

Stanford adopted a policy entitled "Fundamental Standard Interpretation: Free Expression and Discriminatory Harassment" after concern mounted over racially-motivated incidents which occurred on the campus.

Elders named Surgeon General

Dr. Joycelyn Elders, President Clinton's choice for surgeon general was confirmed by the United States Senate Tuesday night.

Her nomination was debated six hours on the senate floor. Elders was not present for the final 65-34 vote.

Elders had come under fire for some of her controversial decisions made while serving as the head of the Arkansas Health Department.

Kansas abortion doctor shot

An anti-abortion activist charged with wounding a doctor outside his abortion clinic was ordered Tuesday to stand trial on attempted murder and assault charges.

During a preliminary hearing, two workers at Dr. George Tiller's clinic identified Rachelle "Shelly" Shannon, 37, of Grants Pass, Ore., as the woman who shot Tiller on Aug. 19 and pointed a gun at them.

Judge Michael Corrigan ordered Shannon held in lieu of $1 million bail and scheduled trial for Nov. 15 on one count of attempted first degree murder and two counts of aggravated assault.

Tiller described being shot as he pulled out of the driveway of his Women's Health Care Services clinic.

He testified he was "absolutely, unequivocally terrified" as he chased a woman who had fired five shots and wounded him in both arms.

Tiller said he drove after his attacker as she ran from the clinic, pulling into a driveway ahead of her to cut her off. He recalled realizing that he was putting himself in danger. "She's already shot me a couple of times. She could shoot me again. What am I doing here?"

Shannon has been protesting abortions since 1988.

State

Another entrant for governor race

Earl Baker, a state senator from the Philadelphia area, is the latest candidate to announce his intention to run for Pennsylvania governor.

Baker, during a news conference, said he advocates a string of business tax cuts, paid for by cuts in government spending cuts and a reduction in bureaucratic red tape.

Casey visits hometown over Labor Day weekend

Gov. Robert Casey spent the Labor day weekend back at his old hometown in Scranton, his first there since his June heart-liver transplant.

Casey and his wife, Ellen, were driven to Scranton on Saturday. They spent the weekend with family and returned to Harrisburg by car on Monday. Casey said he felt fine following the trip.

Casey was discharged from a Pittsburgh hospital July 27.

Women's group in court

Women's right's lawyers asked a federal judge in Philadelphia Tuesday to hold the nationwide Operation Rescue and four other of its anti-abortion organizers in contempt of court for violating an injuction restraining them from blocking abortion clinics.

"It is time their mob rule tactics were stopped," said Linda Wharton, an attorney for the Women's Law Project, which filed the notion with U.S. District Judge Clarence Newcomer.

Woman can't enroll at the Citadel

A federal judge has ruled against Shannon R. Faulkner, 18, of South Carolina, in her bid to become the first female to attend the state-run, all-male military institution.

Faulkner deleted references to her gender on her application form and was originally accepted.

Harvard tests male contraceptive

A male contraceptive that blocks the production of sperm while preserving the libido has been tested and found successful by Harvard medical researchers.

The contraceptive, which is given by injection, surpressed sperm production in over a dozen volunteers who reported no loss in sexual desire. When the injections were terminated, sperm counts returned to normal within approximately 90 days, the Harvard Gazette reported.

At this point in the testing, volunteers had to submit to a daily injection, which chief researcher Syros Pavlou termed "not practical." He said, however, that several laboratories were attempting to create a longer-lived injection, a birth-control nasal spray or an underskin implant.

Employment outlook brightens

The hiring outlook is improving for the fourth quarter and should exceed hiring patterns from a year ago, said the Employment Outlook Survey conducted by Manpower.

In a survey of nearly 15,000 U.S. firms, Manpower found that 22 percent of the businesses surveyed are planning to hire, compared to 21 percent last year.

Employers in the Northeast and West will be hiring below the national level, the Midwest at about 22 percent, and the South above the average.

Service with a smile

Texans apparently have a different style of helping new and returning students move into their dorms - at least at the University of Texas at Austin.

President Robert Berdahl and about 300 other faculty and staff members participated in the "Mooov In" event in late August, officials said.

The volunteers were stationed at four residence sites. As students and their parents drove up to move in, the volunteers assisted by carrying boxes, luggage, stereos and other items into dorm rooms. A campus news release said the first ever event was designed to give the students an informal "Texas style" howdy.

You may be wondering just why it was called a "Mooov In." The University of Texas teams are called the Longhorns, that's why.

Students support speech code

Just over half of Stanford University seniors questioned in a recent poll said they support the university's policy on free expression, and 80 percent said they do not feel that it hindered bringing up sensitive subjects in the classroom.

Stanford adopted a policy entitled "Fundamental Standard Interpretation: Free Expression and Discriminatory Harassment" after concern mounted over racially-motivated incidents which occurred on the campus.

Young actor shares personal struggle

by Suzanne Hildebrandt
Features Writer

Television and movie actor Corey Feldman was the first speaker in the Clarion University Activities Board lecture series for 1993-94.

His presentation on September 7th at 8:00 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium was titled "Alcohol and drug abuse: A personal struggle," which, as the title indicates, touched on the far too common problem of drug addiction.

Of the 700 seats in the auditorium, 697 of them were reserved by university students alone. Many came just to have something to do or to see the "movie star" Corey Feldman, but they came out both entertained and, if not informed on new things, then at least reminded how bad addiction can really get.

In words that anyone could relate to, Corey recounted his own struggles in life from his abusive home life and nightly attempts of suicide to his escape into the fantasy world of acting. His escape, however, led to his capture into the imprisoning world of addiction. At 14, he was introduced to alcohol and marijuana in the town hosting the filming of "Stand By Me", and in a matter of only two years he had moved on to bigger and "better" drugs, known as cocaine and heroin.

He went from hanging out with his Hollywood friends doing drugs in his Beverly Hills apartment, to hanging out on the streets of downtown Los Angeles making deals with ganglords to keep his $250 a day habit in supply. He managed to survive three more years of this slow suicide with drugs until finally getting arrested and waking up to a little bit of reality.

When the media slammed his face all over every TV screen in America and brought his problems to public, Corey woke up to a little bit of reality, but not enough to quit drugs. Instead he entered into a rehabilitation program on the court's order, only to leave in 35 days--not much better off than when he began.

Before his next arrest he met Vanessa Marcil who, after a romantic get-away to Las Vegas, became his new wife. Even with a family in the making, he continued his drug abuse, eventually resulting in another arrest and another rehabilitation program mandated by the court. This time he was out by the next day and arrested again facing federal penitention time if he didn't give the program a chance.

In debt $150,000, his career at a stand-still and a marriage on the rocks, he finally made a decision to change. With a will to do things differently, Feldman stayed in the facilities for nine months, and this time facing his past for the first time instead of hiding it in the dark corners of his mind.

Feldman now has three years of sobriety behind him and has found a new purpose in life. For the past two years he has been lecturing for different organizations and schools and donating much of his time to various foundations. Feldman will "continue to do this for as long as there is a need," in order to fulfill what he calls his "role in the universe." "Addicts are not bad people trying to get good but sick people trying to get better and if I can help even one person then I've done my job."

Feldman's first priority is spiritually driven now instead of confusion's desperation. He hopes that people can learn that communication is the first step in the whole spectrum of prevention.

"Addiction lies in the barriers we place within ourselves, and communication allows us to not build up the pain within ourselves that creates the walls."

For those that are already caught up in the "escape" of drugs Corey Feldman just warns, "Stop now; it only gets worse, it never gets better."

Feldman's life is moving on in a positive direction now. Corey wrote and produced all of the soundtrack of "Rock and Roll High School Forever," and has now formed his own music publishing company, Coreyography Music, and is in the process of starting his own publishing company, Coreyography Film. Soon to be released is National Lampoon's movie "Last Resort," which pairs up Feldman with his long time co-star Corey Haim, whom he could also be seen with in an upcoming TV series. Also in the makes is a kickboxing film "A Dangerous Place." Back on track and putting out some great stuff, Corey Feldman is

Find your pot of gold at Pittsburgh's Irish Festival

by Ron Santillo
Features Writer

All are welcome to join in on the fun as the Pittsburgh Brewing Company brings "Halfway to St. Patrick's Day" to the I.C. Light Amphitheatre and tent, Station Square, September 10-12.

Traditional and contemporary entertainment, Irish foods and refreshments, children's activities, Irish dance lessons, Irish musical intruments demonstrations and many other activities will highlight the weekend of Irish food, fun and customs. Those schedulded to appear and entertain include Dermot O'Brien, Cahal Dunne, Celtic Rocker Sean Fleming, Mary O'Dowd, Tip Splinter, Sean O'Neill and many more.

Enter the I.C. Light Amphitheatre and tent and feel yourself being carried off to the Emerald Isles as the sweet aromas of Irish soda bread, thick hearty stew, and buttery new potatoes fill the air. While you stuff yourself with the delicious Irish foods, enjoy the sounds of traditional and contemporary minstrels and musicians playing Irish ballads and rousing folksongs.

More highlights include Pittsburgh's Irish organizations, leprechauns, "pots of gold," shamrocks, shillelaghs, and a wealth of Irish customs.

Children are also sure to enjoy themselves with a variety of Celtic entertainment, including sing-a-longs, Irish storytellers, performances and Irish musical instruments demonstrations. The Irish Dog Display tent will give the children a firsthand and up-close look at six different Irish dogs like the Irish Wolf Hound, Irish Setter, the Terrier, and more.

The fun begins on Friday 4 p.m.-midnight, Saturday 11 a.m.-midnight, and Sunday 9:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Highlighting Sunday's entertainment will be a Gaelic mass at 10 a.m. The mass will be led in the Gaelic language by Father Michael Cahill.

Use your own "pot-of-gold" to take home a bit of Ireland when you visit the Irish marketplace. Authentic merchandise such as Aran knit sweaters, Irish sweets, tapes and CD's, books, monogrammed crystal, and little knick-knacks will be available for purchase from the nation's leading Irish import stores.

Admission is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children twelve and under. Children under three are admitted free. Admission is also free for the first hour of each day of the festival.

Volunteers are also needed for a variety of jobs and shifts. Admission is free for all volunteers and no experience is necessary. Those interested in volunteering are invited to a Volunteer Kick-Off party on Thursday, September 9 at 7 p.m. at Mullaney's Harp and Fiddle Irish Pub on 24th and Penn Avenue in the Strip District. Free refreshments will be served and all volunteers will have a chance to become more acquainted with each other and enjoy the company of old friends.

For more information, schedule of events, future mailings or involvement, please contact Nan Krushinski at (412) 422-5642 or (412) 422-6630.

Simon says 'What's so funny about magic?'

by Katie Zaikoski
Features Writer

Catching him on the rebound after his five day tour in Instanbul, Turkey, magician extraordinaire Sam Simon will dazzle the minds of his audience with his dynamic new illusions and comical one-man stage show on Saturday, September 11, at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

The 60-minute performance will be the first time that Clarion University has been introduced to the three spectacular illusions that Simon has inserted into his program. Saturday's show will consist of a combination of both the new illusions and his original one-man stage show that he is best noted for.

Simon's wife and now business partner, Rhea, has been assisting Simon in the shows for over a year, and will be featured in all three spellbinding illusions which she says "can be compared to David Copperfield-type stunts."

UAB presents comic-magician Sam Simon this Saturday at 8 p.m.

Rhea Simon says, " I will actually participate in the Twister, Houdinni's Metamorphosis and the Zig Zag illusions." She also added that during the Zig Zag illusion she will be pulled apart by her entertaining spouse.

Simon has been in the art of magic for fifteen years and has presented his show to over 200 colleges and universities since 1986. Other areas that he has debuted in are Tampa, California and Paris. In addition to the performing business, the Simons operate the Concert and Event Productions which promotes and books headline entertainers.

"We are looking to get involved with the music for upcoming Clarion University events this year," Rhea Simon adds.

Simon is very big on audience participation and will be performing favorite tricks and acts such as the "restored newspaper," the "pom pom pull," and, of course, the three thrilling illusions that look to provide an enjoyable evening for all who attend this performance.

Sam Simon's show is free and everyone is welcome to attend. This Special Comic Event is sponsored by the Clarion University Activities Board, and is the special feature for Saturday's Family Day.

Recognitions to be awarded to outstanding individuals/groups

by Amy Gerkin
Features Editor

With close to six thousand students roaming this campus, it is difficult for some students to be recognized when it is deserved. Therefore, beginning this month Student Senate will be implementing three kinds of monthly awards to those outstanding students, organizations, and organization advisors.

According to the guidelines, in order to be awarded Clarion Students' Association Student of the Month, the recipient must be a full-time student with good academic standing (2.0 or above). The recipient must have displayed outstanding service and made positive contributions through involvement in campus activities during the month of recognition.

The Organization of the Month goes to any Clarion Students' Association recognized or approved organization that must have displayed outstanding service and made positive contributions to the university and/or the surrounding community during the month of recognition.

Lastly, the Organization Advisor of the Month is given to any organization advisor of an approved or recognized Clarion Students' Association. Like the recipients of Student and Organization of the Month, the organization advisor must have displayed outstanding service and made positive contributions to the organization during the month of recognition.

The intention of these awards is to distinguish those individuals and organizations with selection based on involvement in campus activities, positive contributions and service to Clarion University. The students, organizations, and organization advisors may be nominated by any member of the Clarion Students' Association, or Clarion University's administration, faculty or staff.

The recognition panel who will be evaluating the nominees consists of Dr. Diane Reinhard, President of Clarion University; Dr. George Curtis, Vice-President for Student Affairs; Dr. Colleen McAleer, Professor of Speech Pathology and Audiology; Mr. Hal Wassink, Coordinator of Student Activities; Michelle Sporer, Editor for The Clarion Call; and Gara Smith, President of Student Senate.

Applications for these awards will be at the Student Senate office (269 Gemmell) and are due no later than the first day of the following month of recognition. The recipients of these awards will be announced in The Clarion Call each month.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-In a June profile, The New York Times reported that New York City Sanitation Department's "artist-in-residence," Mierle Laderman Ukeles, has accomplished the following: built an archway made of gloves discarded by city employees and a structure made of piled steel shavings from subway car wheels; choreographed a dance of street-sweeping machines; and conducted a performance art piece in which she shook hands with all 8,500 employees of the department. On the side, the self-described "maintenance artist" conducted a ballet of garbage barges in Pittsburgh.

-Police in Gonzalez, Louisiana, arrested Garrick "Lucky" Lewis, 20, in April on the complaint of a 21-year-old woman. The woman said Lewis broke into her apartment, lectured her about the need to lock her windows and doors, and left. A half-hour later, Lewis broke in again and allegedly tried to rape her.

-Former Hemet, California, high school quarterback A.T. Page, who had sex more than a hundred times with the wife of his coach, Randy Brown, in Brown's presence, said Brown called the adventures "astronaut training" and said they would make Page a better football player. Said Page, "Just as (sex) would be going on with (Mrs. Brown), (the coach) would plug in a videotape of a scrimmage or a practice and say, 'Now this is what you're doing wrong, A.T.'"

-In December, at the University of Colorado, three-hour final exams in French classes were cancelled halfway through when women's basketball coach Ceal Barry commandeered the gym where the exam was being held for a team practice. All 580 test takers received an A because of the inconvenience.

-The Syracuse Herald-Journal reported in January that its telephone hotline, featuring excerpts of presidential debates last fall, was successful except for one glitch: Ross Perot's voice sometimes hit a pitch that mimicked a certain telephone tone that automatically shut down the system.

-In July, Donald Wyman, 37, gained national notoriety when he rescued himself from underneath a fallen tree near Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, by amputating his own leg at the knee with a small pocket knife and then driving for help. A few days earlier, a 31-year-old Tacoma, Washington man cut off his arm and nose with a bread knife because he was depressed. And the family of a 15-year-old boy in Elkton, Maryland, is suing the county board of education for $3 million because a dog stepped on the boy's groin before school one day, resulting in the need to amputate a testicle.

-According to several news reports, the latest synthetic drug craze in some U.S. cities is methcathinone, or "Cat," which is manufactured with various industrial chemicals, including battery acid and Drano — thus requiring police to treat all manufacturing and sales sites they raid as toxic waste dumps. Symptoms of use include: sweating, quivering, shaking, experiencing long periods of stupor and paranoid hallucinations, and, said Wausau, Wisconsin sheriff's deputy Tom Kujawa, smelling bad. Said Kujawa, "The people who use it stink."

-The class president of third-year graduate students at Duke University Divinity School was expelled in April for a scheme in which, in words and deeds, he faked a case of terminal cancer, to the point of keeping his head shaved to mimic the effect of chemotherapy.

-In January, a Dallas recording company mistakenly sent the wrong compact discs to about three dozen of the 1,000 radio stations that were to receive religious programming sponsored by the Southern Baptist Radio-TV Commission. Instead, the company had sent the alternative music band Dead Kennedys' album "Fresh Fruit for Rotting Vegetables," which includes the song "I Kill Children."

-The Associated Press reported in April that the Red Belle Saloon in Salt Lake City is prospering under its new owners. Last year, bikers in a motorcycle gang called the Barons, whose clubhouse is near the bar, became angry at seeing the drug dealing, prostitution and violent crimes taking place at the bar, so they bought it, rehabilitated it and set the clientele straight.

-In March in Port St. Lucie, Florida, four Christian pastors and two parishioners performed an exorcism of an oak tree just off Interstate 95. It has long been known in the community that two victims of a mass murderer were hanged from the tree in 1977, but things became more urgent recently when two kids reported being chased away from the tree by people in hoods shouting, "We want your blood." Instead of razing the tree, the property owner elected the exorcism and the erection of a cross nearby.

-Seattle, Washington police arrested a 27-year-old man in April after he attempted to deposit a check into his account at a Washington Mutual Bank office. According to a teller, he is the same man who robbed the branch two days earlier.

Welcome to the real world: Jeff Powell speaks 'Straight from the Hood'

by Melissa Caraway
Features Writer

Tonight the Minority Student Services Speaker Committee of Clarion University will introduce student activist and poet Kevin Powell. The topic of Powell's lecture will be "Student Activism and Campus Racism."

Although Powell has lectured at such prestigious universities as Princeton, New York and Rutgers, the New Jersey native is best known to this MTV generation as one of "seven strangers picked to live in a loft and have their lives taped" on MTV's docu-soap "The Real World." He was also the host and writer of the music channel's documentary "Straight From the Hood."

Before lecturing at universities around the country on black male-female relationships, hip-hop culture and other topics affecting young black men, Powell was a student at Rutgers University. There the outspoken scholar acted as chair of the African Student Congress, leader of the 100 Black Men of Rutgers University and concentrated on speaking out against campus racism and tuition increases. He is also an advocate of multiculturalism on our country's campuses. Powell has also spent time as a social worker and a New York University English instructor.

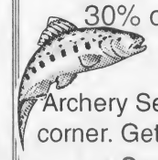

Powell's poetry and journalistic works have appeared in "Essence", "Emerge", and "Rolling Stone" magazines as well as being recognized by the African Poetry Theatre's Annual Poetry Contest and the Nuyorican Poets Cafe Grand Slam Contest for their powerfully honest and timely content. His first volume of poetry, entitled "don't feel no way," was published last spring.

Kevin Powell's lecture, which will be held at 7:30 in the Hart Chapel, is free and all are welcome to attend.

Have dinner and a movie... in downtown Pittsburgh

by Crystal Janis
Features Writer

Wanna catch a movie? Even with the Orpheum's newly remodeled neon glow, where else would be a cool environment to go see a movie? Were you thinking Pittsburgh? Good answer. The pink and blue neon on Main Street really doesn't come close in comparison to the numerous mystical lights shining from downtown Pittsburgh.

You could take a roadtrip to this happenin' city and watch a movie at Pittsburgh's Playhouse. With so many neat pubs, bar and grills, and restaurants all around the area, treating yourself to something tasty could also work into your trip.

Here is a listing as to what will be playing at the Rockwell and Hamlet Street Theaters during the month of September: "Much Ado About Nothing," starring Micheal Keaton, Kenneth Branagh, Emma Thompson, and Denzel Washington, is a rousing, wonderfully entertaining and funny film version of Shakespeare's play about people falling in love. This film runs until September 9.

"Un Coeur En Hiver" (A Heart in Winter) is highlighted September 10-30. Starring Daniel Auteuil, Emmanuelle Beart, Maurice Garel, and Andre Dussollier, this film is about two men whose friendship is disrupted when they both fall for the same young, beautiful violinist.

Also featured by the Playhouse Film repertory are favorites such as "The Lover" (Sept. 1), "Strictly Ballroom" (Sept. 3), "Dave" (Sept. 4), "Lost in Yonkers" (Sept. 10), "The Crying Game" (Sept. 11), "Malcolm X" (Sept. 17), "Othello" (Sept. 20), and "Spike and Mikes All Sick and Twisted Festival of Animation" (Sept. 24-30) which includes over eighteen underground animation hits including "Beevis and Butthead."

So, grab some friends and jump into your car and enjoy the sites of Pittsburgh. Tickets range in price from $3-$5. For more information, location and film times, the Film Line can give you all the necessary details at 621-6601.

Civil Rights: Then and Now

by Toni Ross
Features Writer

The issue of Civil Rights will be discussed in a lecture given by Julian Bond, a civil rights activist, politician, writer and teacher. The lecture, "Civil Rights: Then and Now," will be presented on Wednesday, September 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Gemmell Complex.

Bond has dedicated his life to the struggle for equality in this country. He has taught at many universities and has received 14 honorary degrees including Lincoln University. Bond also served on the Georgia State Senate and has been elected to public office more times than any black Georgian.

Today, Bond is the host of "America's Black Forum," and has published many books on the subject of Civil Equality. He has also been a commentator on the "Today" show and was the author of a nationally syndicated newspaper column called "Viewpoint."

The lecture is part of the Clarion University Visiting Scholars Series and is free and open to the public. Following Bond's lecture, there will be a reception hosted by President Reinhard at Moore Hall.

'Eracism' speaker celebrates loyalty to planet

by John Martinec
Features Writer

Clarion University will play host to Eracismist, song writer and essayist Michael Kessler on September 13 at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

The basis of Kessler's work is called Eracism (AIR-uh-cism). Eracism is a word coined by Kessler and calls for loyalty to the planet that is equal to the loyalty one feels for their country. He also envisions the world on the verge of a new historical era which will begin with making a country out of the planet.

Kessler has personally composed one hundred songs and sixty more in collaboration with others. The basic theme of his songs stress his desire for world peace. His music has been performed in the United States and in the former Soviet Union with his group, "The Working Class" who performed on national Soviet television for an audience of 100 million.

Eracism speaker Michael Kesssler signifies loyalty to our planet.

Michael Kessler spreads his message of world peace and the creating of a constitutional, global society in other ways besides music. He is a globally published essayist. He is also a public speaker who presents his work via a slide/lecture program called the "Einstein Express." Kessler has been the guest of many television and radio shows both here in the United States and in the U.S.S.R., and hosted his own television series called "Archimedes' Lever."

Kessler also co-delivered a presentation to the USSR Academy of Sciences and a follow-up article.

Leaving his teaching career in 1977, Louisville, Kentucky native Kessler decided to reach out to a planetary audience with the opportunities promised in this new knowledge. He now has the ear of people like R. Buckminster Fuller, Harry Chapin, John Denver, Carl Sagen, and Muhammed Ali.

Kessler's quest can be summarized when he says "Once the average citizens of the world have a working understanding of this new information and the awesome possibilities it offers, the call for a global society of peace and prosperity will be made."

Admission to this University Activities Arts Series presentation is free and everyone is welcome to attend and enjoy, as well as learn how to be more loyal to the preservation of the Earth, our only home.

The 'Fire' will be burning at Carnegie

by Sherry Dickerson
Features Writer

Attention artists and art lovers! If you love art in any form, come witness Formed By Fire at the Carnegie Museum of Art in Pittsburgh before the fire goes out.

Formed By Fire is a creative display of works by seven glass and metal artists that can be observed September 11 through November 7. For the anxious artists and art lovers, a special preview of the crafts will be on display Friday, September 10 from 5-10 p.m.

The exhibition Formed By Fire includes a select group of artists, such as Jonathan Bonner, Michele Oka Doner, Joey Kirkpatrick, Flora C. Mace, Dante Marioni, William Morris, and Albert Paley, who will expose their works of art.

"Formed By Fire demonstrates the diversity of approaches among contemporary artists working in the traditional craft media of metal and glass," says Sarah Nichols, curator of antiquities, oriental and decorative arts.

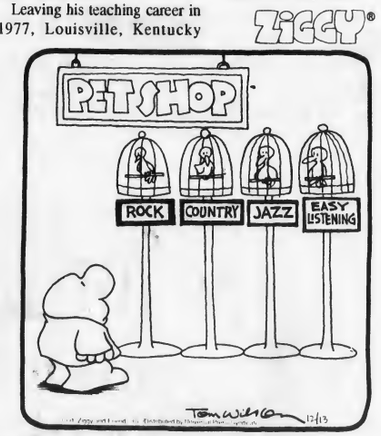

"For these artists, technical mastery of glass and metal is merely the starting point for their own creative and personal exploration of the media. They have chosen media that excites and inspires them," Nichols adds.

Catch a glimpse of the transformation of raw glass and metal changing into creative art formations with the use of fire. This spectacle will include various processes such as forging, hand forming, casting and blowing, which results in brilliant colors, a sense of motion and an awe-inspiring scale.

In Formed By Fire, these contemporary artists will demonstrate different approaches of transforming glass and metal into their own decorative arts. This art diversity, Formed By Fire, can be viewed in the Forum Gallery and the Hall of Sculpture at the Carnegie Museum of Art. Tours of the displays will be available. For tour information, call (412) 622-3218.

Formed By Fire is part of a nation-wide commemoration of "The Year of American Craft: A Celebration of the Creative Work of the Hand." In cooperation with Formed By Fire, a city-wide celebration that will be held by the Pittsburgh Craft Consortium begins on September 10 in fifteen areas throughout the city.

Also, as a part of the observance, the Carnegie Museum of Art will hold its annual decorative arts symposium on October 25. Many presentations are planned for this annual symposium. For more information concerning the symposium, call (412) 622-3208.

PSAC-West Champs ready to defend title

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

If a title were placed on the Clarion football story of 1992, it would most likely read "A Tale of Two Seasons." After a dismal 0-4 start, the Golden Eagles rallied for six straight wins, including a 35-26 thriller over IUP to capture the PSAC-West championship. Last season's magical conclusion coupled with the fact that the nucleus of the '92 squad still remains, has Clarion seeking "Great Expectations" for the year to follow.

The Eagles certainly did not appear headed for a championship at season's start. The Eagles' defense surrendered 48 points in each of their first two games, and early signs indicated that they were easier to run against than Michael Dukakis. Two more setbacks had the Eagles wallowing at 0-4, but before Cathy Ireland would have a shot to become the team's kicker, Clarion began showing signs of brilliance, both on offense and on defense.

A 42-14 pounding of Lock Haven was wedged in between three point wins at Bloomsburg and at Shipp. A hard-fought 23-18 victory vs. Cal in blizzard-like conditions placed the Eagles at 4-4, 4-1 in the PSAC, and set up a surprisingly meaningful showdown with third place Slippery Rock.

In a game that featured more offense than Howard Stern, the Eagles exploded for 34 second half points and earned a showdown with perennial powerhouse IUP for the PSAC Western Division Championship.

Trailing the Indians late in quarter number four, the Clarion offense rallied for two touchdowns and claimed their first PSAC-West crown in nine years. As the final seconds ticked away, and hundreds of fans poured onto the field, Clarion linebacker Frank Andrews bellowed the prophetic phrase, "There's a new team in town!"

That "new team in town" is ranked 19th in the country for Division II according to College Football Review, and have yet another brutal schedule to withstand in 1993. Last year the Eagles played the toughest schedule in all of Division II. Eagle opponents had a winning percentage of 60.7%, and the combined record of the teams that handed Clarion its first four losses was 36-2-2. The task is no easier this year as five of the ten Eagle opponents are nationally ranked.

File Photo

Headed in the right direction: Eldridge Ponder (2) and the Golden Eagle defense improved every game in '93, and over the final six weeks, allowed only 57.2 rushing yards per game, intercepted 12 passes, and forced 25 fumbles.

Head coach Gene Sobolewski enters his 11th season as skipper of the Eagles and brings with him a career mark of 55-46. "Being the defending champions, we know everyone will be gunning for us," Sobolewski explained, "Our number one priority is to build on 1992, not live on its laurels."

The 1993 squad will return 15 starters and 32 lettermen from last year's title team, including five pre-season All-America selections.

On offense, where the Eagles averaged over 400 yards per game one year ago, a battle for the starting quarterback position has been waged between incumbent Chris Zak and newcomer Craig Ray. Zak was 9 of 24 for 107 yards before suffering a season-ending injury in the second game of the year, while Ray, a transfer from New Haven, is having a magnificent camp.

The Clarion backfield consists of four letterwinners, and tailbacks Damien Henry, Art Gregory and Steve Witte will each get their share of work in '93. Henry rushed for 396 yards and scored five times last year, but nagging injuries have been known to reduce his effectiveness. Gregory, a hard-nosed runner and blocker, may move to fullback to accompany Tom Lumadue and Chad Speakman at that position. Witte scored a touchdown on his first collegiate carry and is having an impressive pre-season.

The receiving corps may be the best in Division II. Senior tight end Tim Brown caught 60 balls last year for 614 yards and four touchdowns. Both Brown and junior wideout Marlon Worthy are pre-season, first team All-America selections going into '93. Worthy caught 32 bombs for 607 yards seven touchdowns, while returning 21 punts for 254 yards and one score. Jess Quinn and Kevin Harper round out the vertically challenged but explosive wide receiver unit of the Eagles. Senior tight end Ryan Alleman will also see plenty of time in the Clarion offensive line-up.

The "O" line features three returners including second team PSAC-West selection Leonard Kirby. Kirby earned that honor as a guard but will move to right tackle in '93. Sophomore center John Smith, guard Ed Gillespie and freshman guard sensation Chris Martin appear to be the odds on favorites to start, while Jason Fazekas and Derek MacKay will battle for the final line spot. Red-shirt freshmen Joe Lemley and Chris Kiker have had good camps and are more than ready to fill in when necessary. The starting line will average nearly 6'2" and 267 pounds.

The defensive unit rebounded from a rocky start in '92, and in the last six contests, it allowed an average of just 57.2 rushing yards per game.

Up front, the Eagles expect a big year from senior Eric Acord. Acord has compiled 119 tackles and six sacks in the last two seasons. Brent Lehmann, Chris Coleman, Gary Fallings, and Ed Mariano, fresh off his Hill Street Blues project, will spend time grueling in the trenches.

The linebacking trio is a who's who of All-America's. Damon Mazoff has led the "D" in tackles the last two seasons with a combined 330; Frank Andrews collected 103 sticks and nine sacks last year; and Clint Terza, who quietly blasted 114 ball carriers and recorded four sacks.

Clarion's defensive secondary plans to deliver even more punishment than it did in 1992, if that is possible. Free safety Sean Spencer, who makes Ronnie Lott look like Pee Wee Herman, may be the hardest hitter in Division II. At the corners, Eldridge Ponder, who thwarted 11 passes in '92, and makes up ground faster than the Atlanta Braves, and Ric Giles, who recorded 34 tackles in limited playing time, return for the Eagles. Pat Span, Damon Bratton, Dan Veney and Shawn Kimple round out the talented pool of defensive backs.

Paul Cramer returns for the kicking chores, and Rich Ruperto will do the punting.

The season opener is Saturday, Sept. 11 against defending PSAC-East champion West Chester. Kickoff at Clarion's Memorial Stadium is set for 2 PM.

Eagles land big name recruits

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Men's Basketball

Head coach Ron Righter and his coaching staff have added four dynamic players to their 1993 roster in an attempt to improve their 17-9 record of a year ago. "It's a well balanced group that come from highly successful programs," commented Righter. "We wanted to get some quality freshmen this year to establish a foundation for our future, especially since we have six seniors returning in 1993-94."

One of those quality freshmen is guard Orronn Brown. Brown, a talented 6'2", 175-pound point or shooting guard, averaged 18.5 points, eight rebounds, five assists and four steals per contest. Brown was a second team All-Public League and first team All-Brooklyn selection for New Utrecht High, and was considered the 27th best player in New York City by "Hoop Scoop" magazine. "Orronn is a future star in the PSAC", Righter said, "An extremely athletic player, Orronn does everything well and will follow in the footsteps of another Brooklyn player here, Kwame Morton."

Guard Jamie Polak comes to Clarion after an exceptional senior season at Steel Valley High School. A first team WPIAL selection and Section 10 MVP choice, Polak averaged 23.5 ppg, 7.2 rpg and 6.5 assists per game. "Jamie should provide excellent depth to our backcourt," explained Righter. "A quality scorer, he also possesses excellent passing skills and will be a very good future player in the PSAC."

The Eagles added some size to their front court as well by recruiting 6'7" Scott Cronk. Cronk, who averaged 12 points and 11 boards per game for McDowell High School in Erie, led his team to the Metro League title and a second place finish in District 10. "Scott is a solid, fundamentally sound player who has a bright future at Clarion," noted Righter. "We expect to red-shirt Scott this season and use the year to build overall strength. He's a hard worker and we look forward to having him in our program."

Bill Chwalik is a 6'7", 220-pound forward from Farmington Hills, Michigan. Chwalik, a junior college transfer out of McComb Community College, was not signed by the Eagles until August 18. "He should be able to help us right away," stated Clarion assistant coach Al Modrejewski, "He's a strong, aggressive player in the mold of a Mark McCarthy."

Women's squad improves

Clarion's 1992-93 women's basketball team posted a 24-6 record last year and advanced to the round of sixteen in the NCAA playoffs. In the off-season, head coach Margaret "Gic" Parsons and her staff made great strides in solidifying their stay at the top.

April Thompson, a 5'11" center from Beaver Falls scored 856 career points and gathered 757 rebounds while being named MVP of her section.

Joy Brown, a 5'9" guard/forward from Warren Western Reserve in Warren, Ohio, was injured for her senior year, but still accumulated 776 points, 421 rebounds and 231 assists for her career.

Janette Bolze a 5'9" guard/forward from West Perry High, was a three year starter and averaged 15.3 points her senior year.

Tina Skelley and Wendy Lechner are both from the Altoona team that posted a 25-5 record and advanced to the western final before losing to Oakland Catholic. Skelley averaged 3.2 ppg and Lechner averaged close to six per contest.

"We're really excited about these five ladies who will be an integral part of our 1993-94 season," Parsons explained. "We're looking forward to their contributions."

Wrestling team adds bulk

Jack Davis enters his second year as Clarion's head wrestling coach hoping to improve the 9-13-1 mark of last season. "We are very pleased with our signings for the 1993-94 season," Davis said. The signings include two PIAA state champions, a runner-up, a fourth place finisher, and a pair of two-time PIAA qualifiers.

Bob Crawford, a 125-pounder from Milton High School, was ranked number one in the nation at 125 pounds by Amateur Wrestling News. A four-time PIAA Champion, Crawford had a career record of 138-2, and became only the eighth wrestler in PIAA history to win four state crowns. Oh, by the way, he graduated in the top five percent of his class.

Tom Tomeo, a 130-pounder from Grove City High School, finished 1992 ranked number two in the nation by Amateur Wrestling News at 130-pounds. A two-time PIAA Champion, Tomeo finished with a career record of 143-8 and won his final 79 matches. His greatest moment may have been his victory over University of Iowa recruit Jeff McGinness. McGinness came into the match as the number one ranked wrestler in the country and sporting a career record of 172-0 before bowing to Tomeo 6-4 in overtime. Tomeo also graduated in the top five percent of his class.

Charley Carbaugh, a 135-pounder, had a career record of 100-29 and was a two-time District 10 champion.

Joe Stofko, a transfer from Drake University, is projected at 150 pounds. He was 15-10 at Drake last year and placed fourth at PIAA's when attending Catasauqua High.

Chris Bugosh, projected at 150 pounds, had a mark of 19-9 at Mount Pleasant High, and Matt Perneskey posted a 23-4 record at 135 pounds for DuBois High.

Clarion vs. West Chester on Sat.

by B. Vessa
Sports Editor

In a game that probably should have been played last year, the PSAC-West champion Clarion Golden Eagles will face the PSAC-East champion West Chester Rams at Memorial Stadium on Saturday.

West Chester went 9-2 a year ago and last week played New Haven, the team that knocked them from the playoffs last season. After leading 20-17 at the half, the Rams defense could not contain the potent New Haven offense, and West Chester fell 45-33.

The Rams possess an explosive offense that averaged 428 yards and 29.4 points per game last year. Junior quarterback Dave MacDonald, who hit on 20 of 47 for 362 yards on Saturday, was the PSAC-East "Player of the Year" last season.

MacDonald will look for PSAC-East "Rookie of the Year" Jarmin Culbreth, who grabbed 48 passes for 671 yards last year, and Rich Neel, who took home the "PSAC-East "Player of the Week" award with a 10 reception, 222 yard day against New Haven last week.

The Rams can run the ball as well. Scott Eberly and Shawn Little gained 722 and 656 yards respectively last year.

The Rams' defense is anchored by All-American linebacker Lee Woodall.

Kickoff is set for 2 PM on Saturday.

Excellence is synonymous with Clarion tennis

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

In the last seven years, the Clarion University tennis team has compiled an absurd 85-6 dual meet record, by far the best in the East. However, 1993 may turn out to be a year of transition, as the Lady Eagles welcome seven newcomers to their outstanding program.

Head Coach Terry Acker, who begins his fourth season as the Eagle's chief, has banged out a 28-5 career slate. "We're expecting a solid season from our four returning veterans," Acker said, "but we also have seven first year players who will be using the dual meet season to mature into the collegiate game."

Leading the way for the Eagles in 1993 will be four-year starter Shara Wolkimir. Wolkimir, last season's number one singles player, finished the year with a 7-5 singles record and a doubles ledger of 10-4. "Shara is technically the best hitter on the team and is in the best shape of her life." Acker explained, "Mentally, she is one of the toughest individuals I've ever coached."

Roxann Milton, a three-year letterwinner, compiled a 5-4 singles record and a 5-2 doubles mark in '93. Milton has a career record of 19-9 in singles competition. "Roxann is probably our most consistent player as well as being one of our best conditioned athletes," Acker said. Milton and Wolkimir will share duties as co-captains for 1993.

Melodi Dess will challenge Milton for the number two singles spot this year. Dess had a superlative freshman campaign compiling an 8-5 singles record as well as 8-5 doubles slate. "Melodi's pure athletic ability alone will keep her in matches," quothed Acker.

Six newcomers will inherit a significant responsibility on this season's squad including Kirsten McKinley from Baldwin, Morgan Mulvahill of Mt. Lebanon, Kim Turowski from Highlands, Stephanie Pond from Mechanicsburg and Sarah Unkefer out of Marlington, Ohio.

The Clarion University tennis team opens its season today (Thursday) at Westminster and then travels to Geneva on Saturday before returning home to face Gannon on Sunday, September 12. Sunday's match will take place at the Campbell Hall courts starting at 1 PM.

Kelly and Condo lead the way for new look Eagles

by Debbie Adams
Sports Writer

With juniors Meghan Kelly and Gerri Condo leading the team, the 1993 Clarion Women's Volleyball team should start right where they left off in '92.

Kelly and Condo were named co-captains for the team that won 13 of its last 19 games and finished the year with an impressive 24-15 record.

Kelly, a defensive specialist, was second on the squad in digs and third in service aces last year.

Condo, primarily used as an outside hitter, is a leader by example according to fourth-year head coach Sue Flaherty. "Gerri is a hard worker with a great attitude," said Flaherty. "She will have her best season in 1993."

Other returning players looking to better their 1992 numbers are sophomores Bobbi Simpson, Jennifer Betters and Nicole Flambard. "Bobbie, Jennifer and Nicole will be leaders in the starting lineup," stated Flaherty.

Two freshmen are expected to vault into the starting lineup in 1993, Lisa Flynn and Kathleen Rhodes.

Flynn, an All-State selection from Norwin High, will be a left side hitter for the Eagles.

Rhodes, a setter , was captain and Most Valuable Player of Freemont Ross High School.

Other newcomers include outside hitter Michelle Graham, middle/outside hitter Kelly Kolarich, left-side hitter Lisa Pusztay, setter and defensive specialist Beth Tress, outside hitter Melissa Brooks, and defensive specialist Dawn Fredick.

The Eagles began their season on Friday at the Fairmont State Tournament. The Eagles finished the two-day event with a 2-3 record. They were 2-2 on Friday, beating Point Park and IUP and losing to William Jesuit and Fairmont State.

In Saturday's semi-finals, Clarion was defeated by Charleston in five games, 15-13 in the last one. Bobbi Simpson had 25 kills and Lisa Flynn added 18 in Saturday's loss. Kathleen Rhodes recorded 53 set assists in the finale.

The Eagles will next be in action at the Wayne State Tournament Friday and Saturday before their PSAC schedule kicks off at Edinboro on Tuesday.

The Eagles first home match will be next Thursday, September 16, against Robert Morris. First serve is set for 7:30.

Sports Opinion:

If Montana keeps this up, they might just name a state after him

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

Finally! Pigskin season is here. After an eternal summer of Basebrawl, its time to turn our utmost attention to a sport where hitting and clubbing is a must. Ah, yes. That frosty bite in the air combined with that colorful foliage makes a traditional setting for what I think is America's national past time.

As the 74th season of the National Football League begins, the AFC is still seeking a Super Bowl title after Buffalo got shellacked by Doomsday Defense II 52-17. How could you forget? It was just another Super Bowl where the game was over at the half! I've got this burning feeling in my innards that has me thinking the AFC will reign supreme this year.

Maybe a ring for Joe Montana's thumb or an MVP named Seau. Or how about the blast furnace or Shula's Fish or maybe even a Moon over the AFC is due.

The NFC continues to shower the best teams in the league. Dallas, San Francisco and Washington along with up and coming Green Bay and Minnesota are all favorites to go to the show in late January.

But all of a sudden, the league sticks a crowbar in the spokes of the NFC machine. Free Agency. With so many players changing teams, it will be extremely difficult for a team to stay in the playoffs year after year. You definitely need a program to know who's where this year!

Besides Free Agency, there were some big name trades that got the sports world stirring. Probably the biggest being Joe Montana to Kansas City. Ringgold, Pennsylvania's most famous athlete is hoping to pick up that mythical fifth Superbowl ring, and, after a impressive opening day win against the Buccaneers, Montana might be the missing piece in the Chiefs championship puzzle.

Another big quarterback swap was Boomer Esiason from Cincy to the Jets. Boomer returns to his roots in New York under good friend and former coach Bruce Coslet. The Jets were also able to pick up All-Pro hitter Ronnie Lott. Lott takes his four rings to the Meadowlands in hopes of adding a fifth, but must work with a young, inexperienced defense that has a lot to prove.

After "team shopping" all spring, sack-man Reggie White ends up in Titletown, USA. The pro-bowl defensive end hopes to become another legend in Green Bay Packer history. Yeah. I can see it: Lombardi, Nitchke, Starr, White. It fits.

Jeff Hostetler left the NY Giants and headed west to the Silver and Black of the Raiders. Al Davis saw a need for a good quarterback and got it with Superbowl XXV champion Hostetler. OK, I could write a book on this year's player moves-but what's the sense? By Mid-December you'll know them all anyhow-that is, if you even care!

I'm not one to predict, or should I say, predict correctly, but why not? Everyone else does. After analyzing week one's NFL action, I do see some definite Superbowl possibilities. In the AFC, teams like Miami, Houston, San Diego and Pittsburgh should make Paul's Post Season Party. In the NFC, I like Detroit, Washington, San Francisco and New Orleans. But overall, my picks for the big dance are Kansas City and Green Bay.

Yes football fanatics, a rematch of Superbowl I. Mike Holmgren has his Packers rolling, on both sides of the ball! What a find Brett Favre was last year at quarterback. Every week I'm more impressed with this Southern Mississippi graduate and one-time Atlanta Falcon. His targets are quite impressive with Pro Bowler Sterling Sharpe, tight end Jackie Harris and former Dan Marino target Mark Clayton. On the defensive side of the ball, I've already mentioned Reggie White, but don't forget names like Terrell Buckley, Johnny Holland and Brian Noble. Maybe no-names, but not for long!

In Kansas City, Derrick Thomas leads a very opportunistic defensive squad that lights up the scoreboard themselves. Don't forget AFC defensive rookie of the year Dale Carter who also excels on kick returns. But the presence of Montana behind center has KC fans booking flights to Atlanta in January. Montana makes average receivers like JJ Birden, Willie Davis and Tony Hargain look like ProBowlers. This just might be the year in Kansas City.

Clarion on schedule with plans to renovate Founders Hall

by Michelle Sporer
Editor-in-Chief

John Thiem/Clarion Call

If all goes as expected, renovation on Founders Hall could begin as early as next summer. Some of the plans for the building include air conditioning and an elevator.

Clarion University is on schedule with its plans to renovate Founders Hall, said Clare Heidler, Director of Facilities Management, and if all goes well construction is expected to begin next summer.

Harvey Hall and Montgomery Hall, at Venango Campus, will also eventually receive facelifts, he added, although those two projects are several years down the road.

Funding for the three projects has resulted from Governor Casey's Higher Education Capital Construction Program which is a segment of his Operation Jump Start project. The Capital Construction Program is designed to release state funds for capital construction projects for the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) and state-related universities.

According to Ron Wilshire, director of university relations, the projects were orignally capital requests in the late 1980's with funding authorized last fall when Governor Casey announced the university allotment of the Jump Start project.

The state is providing 75 percent of the funding for construction costs with Clarion contributing the remaining 25 percent.

Total authorization for Founders Hall, said Heidler who is serving as the university's representative to the Jump Start program, is set at approximately $2.1 million. Of that amount, about $1.8 million is alloted for the base construction costs. The difference, picked up by the state, is going towards design costs.

Clarion University's share, or 25 percent of the $1.8 million, is approximately $456,000 which will be raised through a capital fund raising campaign and is still in the development stage.

"While any capital campaign presents challenges, we feel the constituents of Clarion will respond to a campaign that clearly states our needs and how we intend to address them," said Harry Tripp, vice president for university advancement. "As Clarion faces many funding challenges in the future, a tradition of giving will serve as the foundation for our success."

Students report another morning incident

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

For the second time in less than three weeks, university students have been the victims of crimes occuring in the early morning hours in areas close to campus.

The most recent incident took place between 3:30 and 4:00 a.m., when an unidentified individual broke into the Alpha Sigma Tau Sorority house on Route 68.

The individual, described to be wearing a navy blue t-shirt with beige or khaki colored horizontal stripes, khaki shorts and brown hiking boots, entered the dwelling through a basement window. The individual pushed out a screen to get in, according to Missy Fox, Alpha Sigma Tau president.

Fox would not comment on what happened once the suspect was inside the house. Pennsylvania State Police in Shippenville acknowledged that they were called to the scene, but the investigating officer could not be reached before press time.

Fox said approximately 16 members of the sorority were in the house at the time, but only one managed to get a description. The doors of the house were locked at the time.

The last incident took place at about 1:24 a.m. on August 21 when a student reported being assaulted on Wilson Avenue, adjacent to Campus. The victim said a white male approached her and held a metal object to her throat. No arrests have been made.

Silk Flowers

Christy Williams

I began working at a nursing home in December of 1988. I anticipated it would be a great job; it paid nearly six dollars an hour. I pictured hundreds of grandmothers knitting by fireplaces, baking cookies, drinking hot cocoa and giggling at the grandfathers who told stories of World War One and of the Great Depression. My grandmother had died four years earlier, when I was fifteen, and I regretted the fact that we were never as close as I thought we should have been. She was always complaining about something, and I just got tired of hearing her gripes after a while. She spent the last year of her life in a nursing home. I never went to visit her.

On the first day of my new job I was given a grand tour of the home facilities. At first glance, it reminded me of my old high school -- the tile floors, unadorned white walls, and the deceiving carpeted lobby with expensive looking furniture that made it look cozy. Every floor had only one entrance from the elevator, and a nurse had to press the buzzer before the door would open. I later learned these were not nurses. They were prison guards. Each resident had their own room. Some rooms were plain like an average hospital room; others were fancied up with family photographs, yellowing oriental rugs, religious statues, television sets, and silk flowers.

My job was to deliver the trays of food to the resident's room at five o'clock in the evening and to pick them up again at seven. The first week I worked there, I was introduced to several older people, but none sparked my interest as much as Mrs. Andrews. When I entered her room, the smell of perfume overwhelmed my senses. Stuffed in that small square box of a room was a bed in one corner and a recliner in another. A stunning, beautifully polished white baby grand piano occupied the rest of the limited space. Most of the women who lived there wore jogging suits, night clothes or muu-muus. When Mrs. Andrews emerged from the bathroom her face make-up was flawless, and she was wearing a fashionable designer dress. Her stockings and shoes matched the outfit perfectly. She was carrying a purse, color-coordinated of

Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

The Berlin Wall fell. The eastern bloc crumbled. Yasir Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin shook hands at the White House?

It has been a truly magical few years, and with all indications, it proves to be a hopeful and promising future, but not without hard and grueling work.

The Israelis and the Palestinians have taken their first stumbling, halting steps toward a new peace in the Middle East. It is only the first step, but as with any journey, that is where the start lies.

Former mortal enemies have proven that a compromise is better than a conflict, that treaties are better than troops and that negotiations are better than confrontations.

The next test for the two peoples is perhaps a more difficult one than they have already achieved. For now they have merely recognized each other as actual people, as individuals rather than as soldiers of an enemy empire.

Now the two peoples have to learn to live with each other. The Israelis must learn to grant land and rights and to harbor no ill will towards those they have considered terrorists and trespassers on their land. It is no small feat for a nation as security conscious as Israel to allow self-government and land to a people under a leader that they didn't even recognize until this week.

It is no small feat for the PLO to compromise on what it considers an ideological and holy fight. It is no tiny accomplishment for intifada to compromise with the infidels.

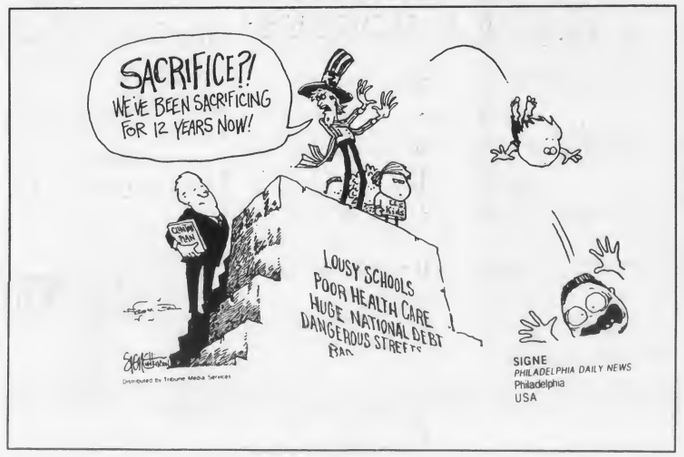

Arafat, in an unusual switch, has changed roles from rebel leader to elder statesman, taking his place along side other world leaders in working for peace for his people.

Still, Arafat said he will not turn in his fatigues for a suit and tie.

"I am not a chameleon. I am commander and chief of our army and I am proud to have this dress," Arafat said.

Khakis or not, Arafat has added to his role as leader of his people and proven that maybe, just maybe, with some diligence and with some perserverence, the trouble and the polarization in a long turbulent area of the world can have a tranquil end.

Let us get our hopes up high and support wholeheartedly these two peoples in their quest for a settlement that is acceptable for all. Then let us turn our attention to other troubled areas of the world and use the first, cautious steps of Israel and the PLO as examples.

READER RESPONSES

Apologies from a fan

Dear Editor:

I witnessed a grave injustice to a Clarion University Coed (whose hometown is Erie) at Penn State's Beaver Stadium on Saturday afternoon, September 11, and would like to extend to her a humble apology on behalf of the fans in Row 14 of Section WA.

In spite of having a legitimate ticket stub for Section WA, Row 14, Seat 20, the usher did nothing to remove the child who had been "smuggled" in by her parents and was sitting in that seat. Amidst the confusion, I was not able to go to the aid of the Clarion Coed as she left the section in tears.

I would like her to know that I personally contacted the office of Mr. Herb Schmidt, Assistant Athletic Director at Penn State this morning and reported the two ushers who mishandled her problem in such an unfair way.

I do hope you had a good weekend with your Penn State friends and will be able to come back again for another football weekend without any hassle from the Stadium Usher.

Sincerely,
An Old Penn Stater

course, and I asked her if she was going anywhere. She replied that she was only waiting for me. It was then that I realized where the strong fragrance was coming from. Her room was filled with silk flowers. Probably a hundred different arrangements of silk flowers were placed methodically around the narrow room.

I complimented her on the beautiful piano she owned. I didn't mention how out of place it seemed.

She began telling me a story of how her mother taught her to play the piano when she was only six.

After her first three or four sentences I glanced at my watch. I still had at least twenty trays to deliver and it was almost six o'clock. I said, "Uh-huh" a few times, and then told her I had to go. She inquired if I would be returning later that evening for her tray, and when I told her I would she grinned like a child.

I decided to retrieve all of the other resident's trays quickly, so when I finally picked up Mrs. Andrews' room fifteen minutes before I was finished working for the day. As I entered the room I saw that she was still dressed in her stockings and high heels. The back of her dress was wrinkled. She sat in the recliner, and I sat on the floor. She immediately began telling me about her piano and her mother. It was quite an interesting story, but she elaborated on many details and sort of drifted off the subject.

Realizing that I only had five minutes left, I asked her if she would play something for me before I left. She did; I complimented her on her performance, and I left.

The next day as I was delivering the trays on Mrs. Andrews' floor, I heard the sound of a piano. She played all the way up until the minute I walked in. I didn't realize it at the time, but she was playing for me. She appeared to be in severe pain as I entered. I asked her if she felt okay and she answered that she had "a touch of arthritis."

She began showing me her silk flower arrangements, but I had to leave and continue my job. Every day I took a few minutes out of my day to talk to Mrs. Andrews about her mother, her flowers, her piano, her grandchildren (who I don't think ever visited her), or anything we could discuss briefly. Every day she must have known when I was coming because she filled the hallways with her music. Every day she was formally dressed as if she would be dining at a four star restaurant.

At the beginning of February, Mrs. Andrews informed me that the administrator of the nursing home had forbidden her to continue playing the piano. She said it disturbed the other residents.

The next day when I entered her room, Mrs. Andrews was dressed in her night clothes. She was pale. Over the next two weeks her silk flowers began to collect dust.

Valentines Day was fast approaching, and I had planned to take the holiday off to spend with my boyfriend. The day before Valentines Day I was in quite a hurry. I collected Mrs. Andrews' tray last, as usual, but when she greeted me at the door and began showing me, once again, her silk flowers, I said something I will regret for the rest of my life.

"Why do you keep these old silk flowers anyway?"

She looked sad. She didn't answer me. I told her of my hurry, and she showed me to the door.

I had a wonderful Valentines Day with my boyfriend. I got dressed up, and we went to an expensive restaurant. We danced and laughed and kissed.

The next day when I returned to work, I was anxious to tell Mrs. Andrews what a great time I had the evening before. When I burst into her room it was totally empty. The piano was gone. The music was gone. The silk flowers were gone. A nurse informed me that Mrs. Andrews died at seven o'clock the previous night.

She gave me a package Mrs. Andrews had left for me. I opened the box to find a silk flower arrangement and a note.

"Silk flowers never die."

The renovation design should be finished by January or February, said Heidler, and until then, final estimates of construction costs will not be known. "We just know we're going to be tight on the budget right now," he said.

At this point, said Heidler, most of the renovation will concentrate on the inside of the building. Presently the architectural plans include, among other things, an upgrade of classrooms and art studios; the installation of air conditioning and a sprinkler system; an enclosed elevator with both indoor and outdoor entrances; two stairwells which will replace the fire escapes behind the building; and carpeting for the entire building except the lobby.

Larger goals include the possible removal of the main staircase with the addition of rest rooms where the landing is now. Heidler said they are also discussing removing the stained glass window within Founders and displaying it on the first floor, with back lighting, where the main staircase is presently placed. If it's remounted, said Heidler, artwork will be placed around it to enhance its features.

Heidler said the renovation is estimated to last a year, which means most students and faculty who use the building will be rerouted elsewhere, such as Carlson Library's and Pierce Science Center's classrooms. At this point, said Heidler, no decisions have been made as to faculty relocation.

Ads deny the Holocaust

by John Williams
College Press Service

Campus newspapers will be forced again to face the explosive issue of running ads that question the historical accuracy of the Holocaust, reopening the debate at schools as to whether such advertisements should be printed.

Several campus newspapers in the past two years have printed such ads from the Committee on Open Debate on the Holocaust, a California-based organization that believes the facts about the slaughter of millions of European Jews during World War II were distorted.

Student editors were forced into a debate on an issue where no debate should ever be held, opponents to the ads say, adding that free speech is not protected when it involves printing outright lies.

However, Bradley Smith, director of the committee, said he is going to try to place ads in campus newspapers this fall, except this time the ads are for 21 videotapes that he says give proof the Holocaust never occurred. And since he is offering an item for sale, and not just printing his opinion in an ad, Smith said college newspapers will have to judge the ads on their "merits" and not their messages.

But for many student editors, the issue is one of freedom of expression and open debate. Ads, however, don't necessarily have to be run and there are "no legal consequences" if a newspaper rejects an ad, said Mark Goodman, director of the Washington-based Student Press Law Center.

"The bottom line is that newspapers can do either. They can legally run the ad or not. Editors have the right to choose and to include what ads they can run or not," Goodman said. "Nobody can force an advertisement on them."

In recent years the issue has been heated regardless of whether the ads were printed. The advertisement, titled "The Holocaust Story: How Much Is False? The Case for open Debate," has been placed in a number of campus newspapers nationwide, but other student newspapers have rejected it.

The subject is growing in scope-- there are now books written on the denial of the Holocaust, two of which were featured in the Sunday New York Times book review section this summer.

"I was blown away by their success in fooling some very smart people that they should be taken seriously," said Deborah Lipstadt, a religion professor at Emory University in Atlanta and author of "Denying the Holocaust. The Growing Assault on Truth and Memory."

Lipstadt describes Holocaust deniers as "white supremacists," who shouldn't get a forum.

©1993 Miami Herald

If you're looking for a family vacation that involves watching enormous quantities of water go off a cliff, you can't beat Niagara Falls.

We went there recently with several other families, and our feeling of awe and wonderment can best be summed up by the words of my friend Libby Burger, who, when we first beheld the heart-stopping spectacle of millions of gallons of water per second hurtling over the precipice and thundering into the mist-enshrouded gorge below, said: "I have to tinkle."

The Falls have been casting this magical spell ever since they were discovered thousands of years ago by Native Americans, who gave them the name "Niagara," which means "Place Where There Will Eventually Be Museums Dedicated, for No Apparent Reason, to Frankenstein, John F. Kennedy, Harry Houdini and Elvis." And this has certainly proved to be true, as today the area around the falls features an extremely dense wad of tourist attractions. In addition to the museums (both wax and regular), there was a place where you could see tiny scale models of many world-famous buildings such as the Vatican; plus one of the world's largest floral clocks; plus, of course, miniature golf courses, houses of horror and countless stores selling souvenir plates, cups, clocks, knives, spoons, refrigerator magnets, thermometers, folding combs, toothbrushes, toenail clippers, hats, T-shirts, towels, boxer shorts and random slabs of wood, all imprinted with what appears to be the same blurred, heavily colorized picture, taken in about 1948, depicting some object that could be Niagara Falls, or could also be hamsters mating.

Of course the big tourism attraction is Niagara Falls, a geological formation caused by the Great Lakes being attracted toward gravity.

Also limestone is involved. We learned these facts from a giant-screen movie about the Falls that we paid to get into after the children became bored with looking at the actual Falls, a process that took them perhaps four minutes. They are modern children. They have Nintendo. They have seen what appears to be a real dinosaur eat what appears to be a real lawyer in the movie "Jurassic Park." They are not about to be impressed by mere water.

The movie featured a dramatic re-enactment of the ancient Falls legend of "The Maid of the Mist." This was an Indian maiden whose father wanted her to marry a fat, toothless old man who, in the movie, looks a lot like U.S. House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee Chairman and noted stamp collector Dan Rostenkowski wearing a bad wig.

The maiden was so upset about this that she paddled a canoe over the Falls, thus becoming one with the Thunder God, the Mist God, the God of Canoe Repair, etc. At least that is the legend. Some of us were skeptical. As my friend Gene Weingarten put it: "I think she became one with the rocks."

Since that time, a number of people have gone over the Falls in barrels, not always with positive health results.

What would motivate people to take such a terrible risk? My theory is that they were tourists. They probably paid ADMISSION to get into the barrels. I bet that, even as they were going over the brink, they were videotaping the barrel interiors.

Of course now it's illegal to go over the Falls, which -- and here I speak strictly from a tourism-promotion standpoint -- is too bad. I think they'd get bigger crowds up there, and definitely hold the attention of youngsters longer, if there was a chance that, while you were watching, something other than water would go over the brink, such as -- these are just suggestions -- one of the world's largest floral clocks, or the House Ways and Means Committee, or a 30-foot Winnebago motor home. ("Roger, I TOLD you we shouldn't have turned left back there."

"Shut up, Marge! THIS IS A SHORTCUT!"

"OH NOOOOO. . ."

"SAVE THE VIDEO CAMERA, MARGE!")

Greeks will self-police alcohol policy

by Chad Briggs
News Writer

Clarion Fraternities can no longer roll out the barrel, as the new IFC alcohol policy sets down new regulations to cover fraternity partying.

Under the Greek Alcohol Related Events Policy, fraternities hosting an alcohol related event, defined as any event in which alcohol is present and also under the names "mixer, invite party, formal, date party, picnic, exchange, founder's day," or others, must adhere to certain strict, new guidelines. The Panhellenic Council, which governs the university sororities, has not yet passed the policy.

Fraternities hosting an alcohol related event may either contract with a private facility with a liquor license to hold the event or require guests to Bring Your Own Beverage (BYOB). In addition to this requirement, fraternities may not openly solicit or encourage alcohol consumption by any contests or promotions, such as drinking games. They may not co-sponsor an event with any organization, such as a bar, that sells or gives away alcohol to those present.

"I believe that this policy is part of the natural evolution of the Greek system. The days of the Animal House parties are done," said IFC Vice President Ron Berry.

Under the BYOB guidelines, a fraternity can not have an open party. Guest lists are required for each event, with any persons not on the list not admitted. Each guest must present positive proof of his or her age and persons under 21 must be marked as such. The policy suggests ink hand stamps or wrist bracelets to distinguish underage persons from those over 21.

Each guest of drinking age may bring no more than two alcoholic beverages for each hour of the party, with the maximum number of beverages not to exceed six. Common sources of alcoholic beverages, such as kegs, party balls and punch bowls, are prohibited. Hard liquor is prohibited, and devices that encourage rapid consumption of alcohol (beer bongs) are also not permitted.

Each chapter also must designate members, who are not drinking, to dispense the alcohol brought by members, with one server for every 30 guests. Guests may be dispensed only one beverage at a time, and must return the empty beverage container to receive a new one.

Permitted days and times for the policy are also established. Fraternities may hold alcohol related events Thursdays, from 4:00 p.m. to midnight; Fridays from 4:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.; Saturdays from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 a.m. and Sundays from 1:00 p.m. to midnight. No alcohol related events may be held from Monday to Wednesday, with the exception of certain holidays and the weeknight before the start of a long weekend created by a holiday.

Bo Wilson / Clarion Call

Cases of beer won't move as freely as they did during the wild days of the gang at "Animal House" under the new alcohol policies being adopted by greek organizations.

Infractions of the policy will be referred to the appointed Greek Council, which will be comprised of students, faculty and administrators, for investigation within five academic days or seven calander days of the incident. All monitors of Greek alcohol related events will be members of the campus Greek organizations and will travel in groups of five or more to ensure compliance with the policy.

The main concerns of the monitors will be to make sure that fraternities hosting the parties will be checking identification, marking hands to distinguish those underage from those over 21, making sure that underage individuals are not being served, that there are no common sources of alcohol and that party guests are not out of control, according to the plan.

"I think it will work. It will cut down on a lot of problems. It works at other schools," said Jason Fularz, president of IFC.

The policy was originally passed on May 4 and scheduled to take effect this semester. Panhellenic council may vote on the measure later this semester.

The conception for the policy orginated in March 1991, through the efforts of the Greek Alcohol Task Force, IFC, Panhel, and the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Enforcement agency.

Since that time, four separate drafts have been generated, with this final one passing earlier this year.

The policy was adopted in order to set a specific list of regulations that all Greek organizations could follow and still be in accordance with each individual organization's national guidelines concerning alcohol.

"I feel fraternities are showing a lot of responsibility by undertaking such a task," said John Postlewaite, IFC advisor.

Reaction from Greeks on campus was mostly positive.

"After two years of hard work by the students, it's great to see a workable policy emerging. Hopefully, by the end of the semester, Clarion University will see an all Greek alcohol policy," said Amy Donahue, a member of Phi Sigma Sigma.

Patrick Cihonski, a member of Sigma Tau Gamma, said, "This policy is a great thing for Greek life here at Clarion. It shows others that parties are not what it is all about."

Still, some were less than totally pleased with the result.

"Being part of the alcohol task force, I believe that this will help in maintaining order and safety as far as parties and alcohol, but I believe that we were not given the voice that we should have been given," said Sara Raught, a Delta Phi Epsilon. "I sat through meetings revising and compromising only to have the final draft and vote passed without a final meeting and open forum that we were promised."

President of Phi Sigma Kappa, Scott Dillon, said, "The alcohol policy will only work as well as the Greek system wants it to. I see a lot of animosity towards this policy by the Greek system as a whole. It will be very interesting to see where we all stand in terms of compliance later on in the year."

A possible scenario in the new system could have the LCE observing a party held under the policy.

The agents would not issue citations, but would offer advice and recommendations on how to improve the smooth implementation of the new guidelines.

The proposal is being considered and a final decision is pending.

IFC to offer free weekend taxi service

Begining Thursday, September 16, the Interfraternity Council will offer all University students an alternative to walking home alone or driving under the influence of alcohol. The I.F.C. will pay for any student who needs a ride between the hours of 9 P.M. and 2 A.M. Thursday through Saturday. They have chartered the Clarion Taxi service.

The idea of the taxi service was brought about by Ron Berry, vice - president of the I.F.C. and member of Sigma Chi. "I did this so students, especially girls, could feel safer at night, and I wanted to cut down on drunk driving in Clarion."

The Interfraternity Council advisor, John Postlewait, will oversee this activity.

Any student can use this serice, as long as they have their student identification to verify that they are a student.

The taxi number is 745-2346 or 1-800-440-TAXI.

Fire prevention campaign kicks off this week at CUP

by Kim Modis
News Writer

Between May of 1992 and May of 1993, there were five structure fires in Clarion, which affected 20 Clarion University students. Nobody is immune from the danger of fire, but with common sense and taking a few precautions many fires can be prevented.

Dr. Louis Tripodi, a fireman at the Clarion Fire Department, has some advice for students on how to prevent fires. The most important piece of advice he had for students is to simply use common sense. Dr. Tripodi suggests that all residences have smoke detectors and fire extinguishers. If you do not have smoke detectors and/or fire extinguishers in your house or apartment, this is something to discuss with your landlord.

Tripodi suggests smoke dectectors should be located in sleeping areas and at the base of stairwells. There should be one for each level in a home, and you should never take the batteries out of a smoke detector. Fire extinguishers should be checked to make sure they are properly pressurized, and they should be located in kitchen and furnace areas.

Some other common sense tips Dr. Tripodi offers are: do not put space heaters near drapes or by beds where blankets can fall into them, do not cover heat registers, do not overload sockets with electrical outlets, and do not smoke in bed. If you burn candles, always burn them in an enclosed container. Dr. Tripodi also cautions students not to put gasoline in kerosene heaters, and if your furnance goes out, call your landlord or your landlord's plumbing contractor, do not use your oven as a heat source. It would also be a good idea to get your Christmas tree fireproofed.

In the event of a fire, you should call 911, but get out of your house or apartment first if there is any immediate danger. You should know your escape routes in advance should a fire occur.

If you live in the residence halls remember to always vacate the building immediately when a fire alarm goes off. You must never assume that it is a false alarm. Although the construction, fire alarm systems, availability of fire fighting equipment, and supervision in a dorm may make you feel safe, you must remember that no structure is immune from fire and smoke.

All students living both on and off campus must remember to exercise common sense and take necessary precautions.

Fraternity hijinks linked to high testosterone levels

CPS- Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln leaders doubt a recent study that blames testosterone levels for rambunctious fraternity members' behavior.

Members of three "rowdy" franternities at an unidentified university had higher testosterone levels than members of two "responsible" ones, according to a study by James Dabbs Jr., professor of psychology at Georgia State University in Atlanta.

The testosterone levels in the rambunctious fraternities measured in the higher end of the normal range, the study said.

Ninety-eight fraternity members were tested for the study.

Scott Bunz, Interfraternity Council president and a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma fraternity at UNL, said the study was ludicrous.

Dr. Russell F. LaBeau, the medical director of student health services at Nebraska, also questioned the validity of the study's results.

Saliva, which was used in the study, is a less accurate medium than blood for testing testosterone, LaBeau said.

"The author would agree with me that not enough research has been done to make heads or tails of this," he said.

But LaBeau said the study could have a shred of validity because testosterone was related to anabolic steroids.

Steroids, which are used for body bulking, are known to cause aggressive behavior when used in high doses, he said, it was not known if the men had used steroids or not.

Labeau said the study indicated that the testosterone levels were still in the normal range, and thus really shouldn't cause much difference in behavior.

LaBeau and Benz said they blamed rambunctious behavior on factors other than testosterone levels, usually the examples set by friends and fraternity brothers determine behavior by new members.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Sept. 6 through Sept. 12, 1993.

At approximately 12:50 a.m., Sept 9, several students were involved in a fist fight in the area of parking lot "E." Two actors fled the scene while the other two continued to fight. Both actors who continued to fight were placed in custody and cited for disorderly conduct. Both individuals were transported to Clarion Hospital for treatment. This incident was reported to Student Affairs. An investigation is continuing.

A female student was cited for public drunkness Sept. 10, at 2:35 a.m. when observed to be very intoxicated. This incident took place in the area of parking lot "Y."

Sept. 11, at approimately 1:00 a.m., a male student was assaulted between Nair and Wilkinson Hall. The victim reported two males were walking toward him when one of the individuals tripped on the steps. The other male asked the victim, "Why did you trip my friend?" The victim answered, "I did not trip him." Turning away from the actor, the victim received a punch to the back of the head, knocking him to the ground. The incident is under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Student senate opens the year

by Christin Mihon
News Writer

The Clarion University Student Senate held its first official meeting of the new academic year at 7:30 Monday evening in 246 Gemmell.

President Gara Smith opened the meeting and welcomed the return of the 1993 student senators and officers.

All but one senator attended the meeting, and Jenny Ebersole, the newly hired senate secretary, attended her first meeting in that capacity.

Topics discussed included the cash allowance policy at the Gemmell Snack Bar, the 1995-96 academic calendar, voter registration, the re-installment of acceptable library hours and the issue of campus safety.

Recent assaults around the campus have caused reasonable concern to students about the safety of traveling on or near campus.

Student senate brought up the issue that Clarion University remains the only state school without a campus escort policy, due partially to the lack of student interest and participation.

Other safety issues included comments on poorly lit and potentially dangerous areas on campus, a possible night-time shuttle for students, and the pros and cons of implementing a key-card system in the dormitories.

Smith and the student senate made a verbal commitment to help improve safety conditions at Clarion University.

Still feeling the pressure of unchanged library hours, the student senate will take action on re-instating the extended hours if personnel are not hired to work the additional shifts by the end of the week.

The 1995-96 academic calendar was reviewed, and the senate will soon seek student opinion concerning the possibility of fall-break co-inciding with Clarion's Autumn Leaf Festival and having winter-break at the same time as the majority of other colleges and universities across the state.

Student opinion would be gathered during this fall's student senate elections. The vote would be non-binding and used to determine if the issue should be taken before the president's executive council.

Dr. Curtis, vice president for student affairs, took responsibility for a computer error that allowed students to apply their cash allowance to the same meal several times. This problem has since been corrected and due to the misunderstanding that may have occurred, any student who chose an optimum plan can now change to a standard plan with a refund of the difference and unused flex dollars.

Students who wish to change plans must notify the Office of Student Affairs by Sept. 22, 1993.

Student senate will begin its annual voter registration drive on Activities Day, Sunday, Sept. 19.

According to Smith, the senate is currently evaluating the operations of the Clarion Students Association and will issue a report later in the semester.

Smith read a letter she received from Diane Reinhard, university president, which listed several important items which occurred over the summer months.

Smith, reading from the letter, said, "First, we have received formal notice of reaccreditation from the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

"Reaccreditation for Clarion University is the culmination of a two-year process that involved a comprehensive self-study of our educational programs and a campus visit this spring by Middle States evaluators.

"We have also received positive comment from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and expect formal notice of reaccreditation soon. Both the Middle states and the NCATE accreditations are important to Clarion because they provide public assurances that our programs have met those standards set by professionals in the field."

Student senate meets every Monday evening at 7:30, 246 Gemmell. Students are encouraged to attend.

Work experience benefits CUP students

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

With the help of his student employees, Clarion Express manager Kelly Best is successfully operating the convenience store that provides handy snacks and necessities while also giving students a hands on experience and vital training in the business field.

Best has been operating the Express since it first opened in May of 1992. Under his managerial expertise are seven Clarion students and three permanent part-time clerks. The students are paid minimum wage and average between 10 and 15 hours a week, depending on their schedule. On the weekends the adult part-time help is responsible for operating the Express so the students have access to needed sundries and quick food supplies. "The main reason that we wanted to hire an adult part-time is because they have to deal with the security system and there is a lot more responsibility involved."

Patty Shaw, a non-student, said she enjoys being a part-time clerk and working with the student employees. "I like working with the public. It's the kind of work I've always done and I also like all my responsibilities," she added.

A managerial position is sometimes difficult regardless of where it might be. There are many jobs that must be completed in addition to waiting on customers and running the cash register. Best says he tries to prepare his employees as much as possible in case he might be called away from the store. "I try to get everyone trained because the students are responsible to run the store while I'm gone, I depend on them a lot," Best said.

According to freshman Mike Haft, working for the Express has taught him how to work with money and give change. "It helps me meet new people since I am a freshman and it's also beneficial because I get to work with and learn more about the public."

Because the student employees assist with the management of a successful business, the selection process can be sometimes difficult. "The job is open to everyone who applies. If you get them as a freshman then you get them for four years. I look for someone who is qualified and is going to be friendly and pleasant to customers. On the average I receive 70 applicants and can only choose seven or eight," Best said.

Scott Dillon / Clarion Call

The Clarion Express store, located in the Gemmell complex, helps students two ways. It serves as a convenience store as well as a part-time place of employment.

Express Shop employees are responsible for receiving goods, putting food on to heat, running the register, checking in vendor's deliveries and maintaining the facilities. Managing the Express is a full time job for Best and he works approximately 37 hours per week. Best said "whenever I'm here I consider them all equal employees and try to work with them instead of them working for me. It's a team effort."

In addition to providing students with weekly wages, Best also is opening the gateway to future life in the business world. Today's experience will pay off later, after school.

"I think it's very beneficial to the student to work here because they get to learn about how a real business works. The students don't know where they're going to end up someday.

They might graduate with an arts degree, but maybe they'll have to manage a convenience store until they find additional work. It teaches them quite a bit about everything," he said.

Disabilities handbook to be distributed on campus

by Christy Willams
News Writer

A University Handbook on Disabilities is in the process of being distributed to all Clarion University faculty.

This is the fourth edition of the handbook, which is edited by Pamela Gent, Chair of the President's Commission on Disabilities.

Gent also wrote and distributed the handbook. She refers to the handbook as, " A way to help University faculty meet their legal obligations."

" The University Handbook on Disabilities has been prepared as a guide for faculty, staff and students in deepening their understanding of disabilities and in facilitating their efforts to determine appropriate accommodations, said University President Diane L. Reinhard.

The publication includes twelve general recommendations for faculty and staff to remember when working with students who are disabled.

One of the main points the handbook stresses is that you should deal with the person, not their disability.

Remember that they are students and people, not just a disability. The handbook describes the types of disabilities frequently encountered in a classroom, and it gives faculty new insight into ways to accommodate disabled students.

The handbook received honorable mention from the Association of Higher Education and Disabilities.

If any disabled student has a problem with their accommodations, they should contact the Office of Social Equity, in Carrier Hall.

Historic peace pact signed

In a moment of hope and history, Yasser Arafat and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin exchanged handshakes of peace before a cheering White House audience Monday after signing a PLO-Israeli pact that once seemed unimaginable.

Arafat, wearing his trademark headdress draped in the shape of a map of Palestine, said the agreement should mark "the end of a chapter of pain and suffering which has lasted throughout this century."

"Enough of blood and tears. Enough," said a gravelly voiced Rabin. "We wish to open a new chapter in the sad book of our lives together, a chapter of mutual recognition, of good neighborliness, of mutual respect, of understanding."

The two men, mortal enemies for a generation, watched from several yards apart as aides signed the historic agreements that will bring Palestinian rule to the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

After the signing, drawn to Rabin by President Clinton, a grinning Arafat extended his hand.

After a moment's hesitation, Rabin reached out for a businesslike handshake. Rabin, who as an Israeli general captured the West Bank and Gaza, was stony faced.

American soldiers wounded in Somalia

U.S. soldiers came under what they called heavy sniper fire Monday and responded by calling in helicopter gunships, returning far more than thet got in an intense, two-hour firefight.

Three Americans were wounded, none seriously. A spokesman for fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid said at least 25 Somalis were killed and many more were wounded, including civilians.

Maj. David Stockwell, the chief U.N. military spokesman, refuted a claim by Aidid's supporters that 12 Americans were killed. "Absolutely not, without a doubt," he said.

Crackdown on neo-Nazis in Berlin

In a speech marking the unofficial start of the national election campaign, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl Monday, promised a crackdown on neo-Nazis and said Germans would have to work harder and longer.

In October 1994, the 63-year-old Kohl will stake his dozen years in the chancellor's office against a challenge from Rudolf Scharping, the opposition Social Democrats' 45-year-old candidate.

Critics say Kohl has bungled parts of German re-unification, and blame him for persistant neo-Nazi violence that has occurred over the recent months.

Trade center bombing trial starts

Just one day after the historic signing of a Mid-East peace treaty, jury selection began Tuesday in the case that brought fears of Middle East terror to American shores.

The impact of those fears on potential jurors could be a huge obstacle to the defense, and lawyers say jury selection could be the most important part of the trial.

Close to 5,000 potential jurors have to be interviewed. That process could take weeks and the trial proceedings might last the rest of the year.

Clinton approves limited deals with Vietnam

In a gesture to Vietnam, President Clinton Monday agreed to allow American firms, for the first time, to compete for development projects funded by international lending institutions in that country.

In a statement, White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said the limited role Clinton is allowing U.S. businesses in Vietnam was in recognition of recent steps taken by Vietnam to provide an accounting of American POW's and MIA's and to encourage further progress.

While allowing new limited deals, Clinton extended the trade embrago in effect since 1975.

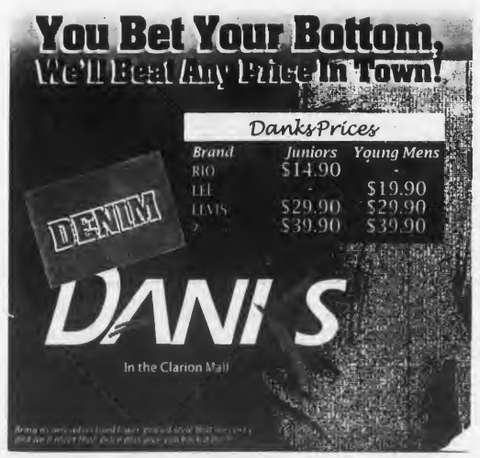

Warm winter predicted

The 1994 Old Farmer's Almanac, released on Tuesday, predicts a warm winter and a cool spring. From the Great Lakes down the Ohio River Valley, it should be warmer than normal, it says.

Spring should be significantly cooler just about everywhere. The eastern third of the country and the Northwest should be relatively dry.

The almanac makes no apologies for missing the call on this year's flood in the Midwest.

"If anyone had handed you a forecast that predicted a once-in-500-years flood, would you have believed that?" asked John Pierce, publisher of the almanac.

Workshop teaches thinking skills

While most of the country's college freshmen were still on summer break, 290 members of the imcoming class at Bard College, located at Annadale on Hudson, New York, had met roommates, settled into dorms, and were steeped in an unusal three-week workshop that plunged them into academia before the semester offically started.

The Language and Thinking Workshop, known as L&T, is a series of intensive classes designed to teach students how to compose, read and interpret texts as well as how to edit their own writing.

Bard invited professors from universities all over the country; artists, economists, anthropologists, mathematicians and jouralists, to teach groups of a dozen students about how to interpret text and how to write.

"As a jumping off point, students read from an anthology, which this year included writings by such authors as Sappho, Carl Jung , W.H. Auden and experts at the Harvard Medical School," said Paul Connolly, director of Bard's Institute for Writing and Thinking.

Flood survivors will feel stress

John F. Snyder, a psychologist from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, Il., predicts that Midwest flood victims will have tough time readjusting when the glare of the media dims, support dwindles and relief money and goods stop flowing in.

"Emotional stress comes as part of being involved in an event," said Snyder, "But afterward, when nothing can be done anymore, you start to see physiological problems."

Snyder heads SIUC's "Go-out Team," a group of psychology students who experience what disaster victims are going through by becoming part of it.

Snyder suggested that flood victims express their feelings and not lose their connections that come from family, friends and churchs.

Average textbook price climbs

Sticker shock isn't just confined to automobiles. New and returning college students can expect to see higher prices for textbooks in their campus bookstores, reports Campus Marketplace, the newsletter for The National Association of College Stores.

The study said prices rose nearly 91.5 percent from 1983 to 1993. There was a 4.8 percent increase from 1992 to 1993.

Seminar looks at the downside to law

A course at the Widener University College of Law is designed to teach law students how to avoid the perils of a legal practice outside the courtroom or office.

Nearly one-third of the nation's attorneys suffer from depression, alcohol or drug abuse. The class, "Mastering the Non-legal Challenges of Practicing Law," will be offered for the fall term. This course doesn't deal with how to handle computers or find parking places, but delves into the reality that many lawyers don't like the profession and how they don't know how to deal with the stress.

"It appears a very large portion of lawyers are either very dissatisfied with their careers, suffer from some form of mental illness, or have become problem drinkers," said Amiram Elwork, director of the law-psychology graduate program at Widener University in Chester, Pa.

Studies show that lawyers are more likely to suffer from depression than other occupational groups in the United States. Billable hour expectations have nearly doubled in the past 15 years, to about 2,000 to 2,500 hours a year. The number of attorneys in the nation are expected to be around one million by the year 2000.

Activities Day is full of events, exhibits and concerts

Pittsburgh group 'The Clarks' and alternative group 'Stinging Rain' make special appearance

by John Martinez
Features Writer

The University Activities Board will bring the rock-n-roll sounds of The Clarks and the alternative music of Stinging Rain to Clarion as part of Activities Day. This outdoor concert will be held on Sunday, September 19 on the Gemmell Complex stage from 2-4 p.m.

The Clarks are one of Pittsburgh's major bands and can be heard on Pittsburgh radio station WDVE on a regular basis. The four-member band includes Scott Blasey on vocals and guitar, Robert James on guitar and vocals, Greg Joseph on brass and the mandolin, and Dave Minarik on drums and vocals.

During their six years together, The Clarks have produced two full-length releases. The first, "I'll Tell You What Man. . ." sold over 2,100 CDs, cassettes, and albums. Other singles charted on college radio from Vermont to California.

The Clarks, a famous band from the heart of Pittsburgh, will make their appearance during Activities Day on Sunday, September 19 at 2 p.m. on the Gemmell Complex outdoor stage.

Stinging Rain is on tour to promote the release of its third album "Burning Light." Stinging Rain has a large regional following in the northeast United States. Their original sound and insightful lyrics have been given rave reviews and can be heard at many colleges, nightclubs, and over radio airwaves.

This concert is a must to see, especially since it is free and open to the public. So come and enjoy!

It's time to 'Meet the Greeks'

by Toni Ross
Features Writer

The Clarion University Greeks will be kicking off the rush season once again at "Meet the Greeks" during Activities Day on Sunday, September 19 from 2-4 p.m. outside Gemmell Complex.

"Meet the Greeks" gives all interested men and women on campus the opportunity to meet members from all of the Greek organizations.

For the sororities, the day marks the beginning of informal rush. Women interested in joining one of the ten national sororities will be able to get information on each sorority rush party schedule. This year, a "Round Robin" time schedule will be in effect so rushees may attend more than one party.

To be eligible to rush a sorority, women must have received at least a 2.0 the previous semester and be in good academic standing with the university. First semester freshmen are not allowed to pledge, however, they are welcome to go through rush to find out about sororities they would like to pledge in future semesters.

The Panhellenic Council, governing body of the sororities, will hold an informational workshop tonight at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room. Members of Panhel will be on hand to answer any questions about informal sorority rush.

Fraternity rush also begins the week of Activities Day. All men interested in pledging one of the national fraternities will also be able to get information from the fraternities during "Meet the Greeks," or from signs around campus.

Requirements for fraternities include at least a 2.0 G.P.A from the previous semester and in good standing with the university. First semester freshmen are not allowed to pledge.

Being a member of a Greek organization can be a fun and exciting experience. If you are interested, "Meet the Greeks" on Sunday and good luck through Fall Rush 1993.

Alternative music group Stinging Rain will entertain the students at Clarion University with their original sound and insightful lyrics during Activities Day this Sunday. This group has just released its third album and is currently on tour in the northeastern United States.

President Reinhard now serving on "top" NCAA council

by Ron Santillo
Features Writer

Clarion University President Diane L. Reinhard is currently serving as a Division II representative for the very prestigious National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) council.

The NCAA Council is comprised of 44 elected members and an ex-officio president and secretary. Council members include 22 from NCAA Division I, 11 from NCAA Division II, and 11 from NCAA Division III. Reinhard was elected for a four year term from a slate of candidates at January's annual convention. Only six college and university presidents currently serve on the board.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
President Reinhard now serves for the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The council is the top elected body of the NCAA and is charged with deciding NCAA policy between annual conventions, including interpretation of rules and necessary decisions on policy matters. Annual conventions take place the second full week of January and rules are discussed on all recognized Olympic level sports on the Division I, II and III level.

"Representation on this important committee will allow me to contribute in efforts to improve the overall quality of intercollegiate athletic programs and enhance my knowledge of issues such as cost containment and social equity questions facing the NCAA and the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC), where I also serve on the executive committee of the board of directors," said Reinhard.

The three main priorities on the council's agenda are academic progress, gender equity and cost containment. Academic progress, which is indeed the first priority of the council, deals with the fact that the athletes must have ample time for accomplishments as students. Gender equity deals with the equal opportunity for men and women in college, including equal scholarship opportunity and enough interest in the sport to have constant participation. Cost containment, the third main issue discussed by the council, deals with the expenses of each athletic program. Cost containment issues deal with what is being spent and what expenses can be reduced.

In addition to the rules committee, the NCAA has various other committees in order to control the flow of intercollegiate sports. Such committees include the infractions committee, who deal mainly with disciplinary actions, and the President's committee, who work closely with the council in voting on rules and regulations.

Besides serving on the NCAA and PSAC executive committees, Reinhard is a member of the PSAC's Gender Equity Task Force.

Sexual Assault: Now is the time to become aware of the dangers

by Melissa J. Caraway
Features Writer

As our third week of classes comes to an end, the students of Clarion University begin to think about the important topics of collegiate life, such as grades, ALF week and, for some of us, graduation. One subject that is rarely thought of (or at least not as much as it should be) is campus safety. In the light of recent events occurring on campus, there is no better time than now to be aware.

Sunday, September 19, begins Sexual Assault Awareness Week. I know from listening to female students talk about what a shame it is that a young woman was attacked on campus only two weeks ago, (and then watching those students walk home in the dark from the library or a party), that being assaulted is the last thing on their minds.

I don't know if the choice to walk around alone on a fairly lit campus with only one emergency phone located in Harvey Hall, is based on courage or stupidity. One fact I do know is that you and I were not the chosen victim. That night was simply a matter of fate. I'm not so comfortable with these odds.

All next week, Students Together Against Rape (STAR) is sponsoring a series of programs and educational activities designed to take an honest approach to subjects such as date rape and the portrayal of women in the media.

On September 21, the Bloomsburg Players will give a dramatic performance inviting the audience to participate by asking questions, followed by a workshop focusing on sexual assault through role playing.

Wednesday, September 22, is highlighted by the date rape video, "Playing the Game," and a discussion led by Dr. Janice Grigsby, the assistant professor of counseling services, and Holly Johnson, the president of STAR. This event will be held in 248 Gemmell.

Another discussion and video, "Dreamworlds," will be shown in 250 Gemmell on Thursday, September 23. The follow-up discussion, led by Dr. Mary Jo Reef, will address the negative and damaging representations of women in music videos.

All of the activities, which include an organizational booth at Activities Day, are coordinated by STAR's secretary Rhonda Wirfel, and under the direction of vice president and treasurer of STAR, Cindy Hultz.

According to Deb King, STAR's advisor and operator of the Women's Study Center in Harvey Hall, "I would like to see students empowering themselves to change their environment for reasons of safety, and to be able to use the student voice for things other than just changing the library hours."

If there are any questions about next week's activities or STAR, you are urged to call the Women's Studies Center at 226-2720, or stop by its location on the second floor in Harvey Hall.

There will also be an Acquaintance Rape Dramatics program in the Chapel on Tuesday, Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-Mark Wiegel, 33, was arrested in Salem, New Hampshire, in May after mall security guards confiscated a video camera hidden in a shoe box in his bag. Wiegel allegedly would set the bag down at a woman's feet with the lens pointed upward so that he could videotape up the woman's dress.

-A well-dressed man in his 40s fled after an incident in February at a western wear store in Omaha, Nebraska. According to a clerk, the man asked for a horse harness for a costume party and went into a dressing room to put it on. He emerged a short time later, flung the door open and ran around the store wearing only his undershorts and the harness. After a few minutes, he quietly changed back into his business suit, told the clerk he would be back with his wife to buy the harness, and left.

-In May, Minneapolis judge Richard Solum dropped prostitution charges against Jacqueline Reina, aka "Mistress Ayesha," who was discovered by police during a raid on her chambers standing beside a naked client who was strapped to a sawhorse and on whose genitals she had placed 16 clothespins. Reasoned Judge Solum, Reina herself was not responding to a sexual impulse from the act and therefore could not be guilty of prostitution. (She was found guilty of running a disorderly house.)

-State police in East St. Louis, Illinois, arrested Eddie Givens, 36, during a routine traffic stop and charged him with impersonating a police officer after he tried to avoid charges by presenting a badge. They also announced that Givens was a suspect in several area incidents in which a man claiming to be a police officer stopped female motorists and asked to suck their toes.

-Three weeks apart in March, a High Point, North Carolina, couple and a Clyde, Ohio couple reported that someone had stolen approximately 50 recently used cloth diapers from their front porch and garage, respectively, before the diaper service showed up. No other items were taken.

-On Good Friday this year on his way from Hillsdale, Michigan, to Clinton, Michigan, Christopher Ray Tirb drove off the road into a signpost, then a while later swerved across the center line and sideswiped another car, then a while later rear-ended a truck, which necessitated a call for an ambulance for him. En route to the hospital, the ambulance carrying Tirb was hit by another car.

-Robert Lord, 42, was rescued after eight hours afloat without a life jacket in the chilly and turbulent Strait of Georgia, between Vancouver Island and the Canada mainland in July. He had fallen off a ferry boat when he leaned too far out a window while vomiting.

-Two California physicians, co-authoring a piece in the March 1993 issue of the Journal of Forensic Sciences, reported on the deaths of two men who suffered mishaps while suspended naked on construction vehicles' hydraulic shovels. The doctors reported both men were attempting to heighten sexual gratification, but that one went a little too far and asphyxiated, and the other was accidentally fatally pinned to the ground by the shovel while dressed in women's clothes.

-David Richardson, 19, arrested in a Gadsden, Alabama, convenience store in August and charged with robbery, told police that he had made no holdup demand and in fact was only there to buy a few things. Police entered the store to find Richardson standing in the back, having just put a pair of pantyhose over his face and socks over his hands and carrying a butcher knife in his pocket. At the first sign of the police, Richardson, still in pantyhose, grabbed an item off the shelf and acted as if he were shopping.

Volunteers needed to help conserve the environment

by Anji Brown
Features Writer

The word "conservation" means different things to different people. Some simply make it part of their daily routine and others consider it their lifetime job.

Sonya Hafer, a freshman here at Clarion University, believes if we do everyday chores such as recycling and disposing of waste properly, we are conserving the earth's resources.

Dr. Konitzky, Professor of Anthropology, defines conservation as a preserving of the environment. "Essentially most people try to conserve the environment," Konitzky believes.

It is true that people of the 1990s are starting to wake up and realize that the earth's resources are slowly dwindling, and we must make an effort to help conserve what we have left. This year at Clarion University, an organization called the Student Conservation Association (SCA) is asking for our help to save our earth.

The SCA is the nation's oldest and largest provider of volunteers for full-time conservation work. It has been recruiting college students, adults, and high school students for public service projects since 1957.

Last year over 1000 college students and other adults participated in the Resource Assistant Program. This expense-paid internship allows participants to live and work with professionals in the conservation field and enhances their future employment in the natural resource management fields.

Student Conservation Association volunteers travel to national parks, forests, wildlife refuges, and other sites throughout the country for a Resource Association program. This lasts twelve weeks and includes on-the-job training, housing, living, and travel expenses. Students also have the potential to receive academic credit.

The SCA is currently accepting applications for positions offered in the winter/spring season, but offers programs throughout the year. If the SCA receives an application by the following dates, it will increase the chance of acceptance for a position in their program:

Sept. 15-positions for Nov/Dec 1993; Nov. 15-positions for Jan/Feb 1994; and Jan. 15-positions for Mar/Apr 1994.

If you miss these dates this year, applications will be available during the summer and fall of 1994. Conservation is a year-round commitment, and the SCA proves this each year.

If you are interested in conservation and have strong convictions about saving the earth and its creatures, take advantage of this wonderful opportunity. Conserving the earth is a challenging but rewarding job.

To learn more about participating in Student Conservation Association programs, contact: SCA, P.O. Box 550, Charlestown, NH 03603, or call (603) 543-1700, or fax (603) 543-1828.

UAB provides its own version of Vegas

by Sherry Dickerson
Features Writer

Come one, come all! It's Monte Carlo Night at Clarion University. Come try your luck on Friday, September 17 at 7 p.m. as UAB presents Monte Carlo Casino Night. The admission is free, so what's there to lose?

The night includes gambling, prizes, and Kassandra-Magik of Tarot, in a Las Vegas-style setting. There will also be a spot-light cafe and union activities.

Upon entering Monte Carlo Night, the student gamblers will be given "play money" to gamble with. Some may win, others may lose. So if you want to gamble and not lose "real" money, come to the Multi-Purpose Room in the Gemmell Student Center.

Even if you are not a gambler, come to Monte Carlo Night anyway. Your future is just waiting to be told -- either through the palm of your hand or through the cards of the tarot.

Come take a gamble at this year's Monte Carlo Night. It's like having Las Vegas just down the street.

Student Senator Profiles: Jewart and Donahue strive to make a difference for Clarion University students

by Amy Gerkin
Features Editor

One of the most important campus organizations at Clarion University is the Student Senate, which is the representative legislative assembly of the Clarion Students Association. Acting as the Board of Directors of the C.S.A., the Student Senate is vested with all powers of the C.S.A..

This certainly sounds important, and one of the senators with enough ambition to take office is Michael Jewart. A senior history major, Jewart ran for Student Senate because "I felt I could make a difference on the Senate. I felt I could bring a variety of opinions from the student body to the Senate, and then work to make Clarion a better place."

Jewart works on the Social Equities and Student Centers committees. The Social Equity Committee works for campus cultural diversity, promotes multi-cultural activities, and considers issues and concerns relative to social equity. Jewart plans to work closely with Minority Affairs and complete a program.

The Student Centers Committee represents the voice of the students when acting on issues dealing with Gemmell Student Center. Jewart plans to complete a Center survey, and hopes to have Clarion University's TV-5 tape a special on the Gemmell Center.

Michael Jewart is also busy outside of the Student Senate office. He is a writer for the Clarion Call, the president of the History Honor Society, and a resident assistant in Ralston. Jewart is also part of the Student Senate Conduct Board.

Jewart considers Clarion University's size to be the best asset of the campus. "Because of Clarion's small size, it is quite easy to develop personal relationships with students and faculty on campus," he comments. However, Jewart feels that "the lack of interest of some students" is the worst detriment of C.U.P. "Not only are they hurting their education, they are taking away from the learning experience of other students," says Jewart.

What needs to be changed at C.U.P.? Communication is a major factor involved with some campus problems. "I think there has to be better communication between the students and the administration. There are just too many students who feel they do not have a voice in policy making on this campus," Jewart claims.

Michael Jewart just has one more thing to say to the entire student body of Clarion University, "Your four years at Clarion will go by very fast. Enjoy your time spent in Clarion but also hit the books, for that is what we are really here for. One more thing, don't just sit around. If you are bored, that is your fault. Get involved and have fun!"

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

"To Be Your Voice, We Must Hear Your Voice," is the motto of Student Senators Michael Jewart and Amy Donahue, each who are willing to represent the opinions of the Clarion student body.

Amy Donahue, Senator

"I simply wanted to make a difference at Clarion University," is the reason why Student Senator Amy Donahue ran for office.

A sophomore communications major, Donahue is an important part of the Student Senate. She is on the Personnel committee, which deals with personnel matters including those described in the collective bargaining agreement, and developing and monitoring ethics guidelines for the Student Senate.

Donahue is also a part of the Legislative Affairs committee, which keeps the student body aware of political situations on the local, state, and federal levels which will directly or indirectly affect the students of Clarion University. "Legislative Affairs worked on a time capsule yet to be buried as well as organized letter writing campaigns and voter registration," said Donahue.

Not only is Donahue a part of the previous committees, but she is also the chair of the Public Relations committee. This committee presents Student Senate and all of its committees to the general public through the use of various forms of media. Donahue mentioned that the PR committee is creating a yearbook for the 1993 Senate. They are also compiling a scrapbook to be placed in the Senate office.

Donahue may seem to be extremely busy in the Student Senate office, but she also holds executive offices outside the Senate. She is Corresponding Secretary of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority, and is also the president of the University Activities Board.

Amy Donahue considers the people of Clarion to be the best asset of C.U.P. "This is a community of not just faculty and students, but friends as well," she comments.

However, Donahue feels that communication is a setback of Clarion University, "Although this is a smaller community, I have found the lack of communication within the college community has been one wall that is difficult to break down."

When asked what changes need to be instituted at Clarion, Donahue replies, "On a social level, I would love to see more students become involved in our recognized organizations or at least take advantage of the programs the organizations have to offer. . .There are other concerns about administrations, educational programs and facilities that students need to address."

As a message to the entire student body, Amy Donahue adds, "Please remember our (Student Senate) motto: 'To Be Your Voice, We Must Hear Your Voice.' Student Senate is to serve the students, and in order to represent the student body, we need to know (your) needs. We are the governing body of Clarion Student Association, and we want to make life better for all students. Remember your Senators!"

"Box him, you fool! He's drawing you into his kind of fight!!"

The Psychology behind the Citibank Classic Visa card, and the emotional security of the Photocard. The Citibank Classic Visa® instills in students feelings of safety, security, and general wellness not unlike those experienced in the womb. Therefore, it is the mother of all credit cards.

Some experts attribute these feelings to the Citibank Photocard, the only credit card with your photo on it. A voice inside says, "This is me, really me." (As opposed to, "Who the heck is that?" - a common response to the photo on one's driver's license.) It's an immediate form of ID, a boost to your self-image.

Subject suffering from Credit Card Theft Nervosa.

Subject after receiving Citibank Classic Visa Photocard.

Of course if your card is ever lost or stolen and a stranger is prevented form using it, you'll feel exceptionally good (showing no signs of Credit Card Theft Nervosa).

Other experts point to specific services, such as The Lost Walletsm Service that can replace your card usually within 24 hours. Or the 24-Hour Customer Service line, your hotline, if you will, for any card-related anxiety whatsoever.

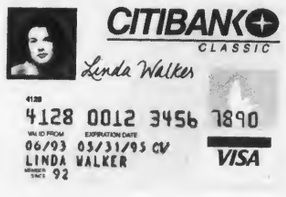

Further analysis reveals three services that protect the purchases you make on the Citibank Classic Visa card, at no additional cost.. 1. Buyers Securitysm can cover them against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase[1] (preventing, of course, Insecurity). 2. Citibank Lifetime Warrantysm allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years.[2]

3. And Citibank Price Protection assures you of the best price. You need only see the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[1] (hence no Post Purchase Depression).

Special student savings are particularly therapeutic. There's the free Citibank Calling Servicesm from MCI to save up to 26% on long distance calls versus AT&T.[3] (You're encouraged to call Mom and Dad regularly preventing Parenta Non-Supportus.) And a $20 Airfare Discount[4] on any domestic flight. (Case studies indicate that a Fear of Flying is overcome when Spring Break in sunny Florida is a possibility.) Not to mention the low variable interest rate of 15.4%[5] and no annual fee for college students.

Suffice it to say, you'll have a credit card you can depend on while building a credit history. So call 1-800- CITIBANK, extension 19, to apply over the phone (student's don't need a job or a cosigner) or to have your photo added to your Citibank Classic Visa card.

If we say that a sense of Identity is the first component of Citibank Classic Visa card, a sense of Security the second, and a sense of Autonomous Will from your newfound financial independence the third, don't be crazy. . . Call.

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

Eagles let one slip away, 19-17

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

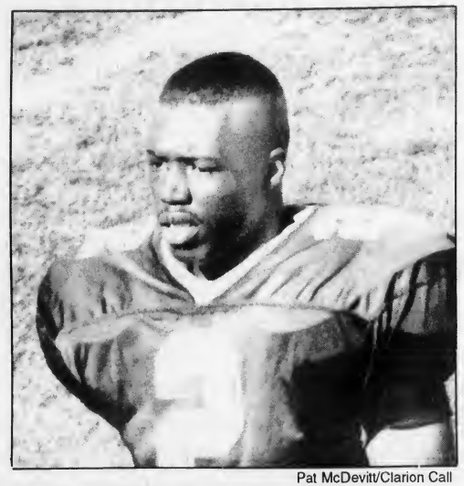

After watching Dave MacDonald pass for 362 yards in West Chester's opening game, and knowing the explosiveness of the Golden Eagle offense, one would have expected a high scoring affair last Saturday. Instead, the MVP's were Keith O'Connor and Bill Pryor? The respective punters for the Eagles and Rams combined for 20 punts for 710 yards as West Chester held off Clarion 19-17.

"Family Day" at Memorial Stadium started off on a high note for Eagle fans. After stalling on their opening drive, Frank Andrews recovered an Scott Eberly fumble on the 28 yard line. Not only did this give Clarion possession of the ball, but it also took the dangerous Pryor out of position to kick. After a short Art Gregory run and a pass to Jess Quinn, Chris Zak hit pre-season All-American Marlon Worthy on a 16 yard out pattern to take an early 6 point lead. Paul Cramer, diagnosed with Scott Norwood disease, missed the extra point wide right.

Midway through the first quarter, El Ponder, who had a fantastic day in Clarion's secondary and on special teams, stormed downfield on an O'Connor punt and delivered a vicious hit to Ben Lindsey a split second after Lindsey caught the ball. As quickly as Lindsey caught the ball, he was separated from it, and Shawn Kimple recovered at the West Chester 28. Lindsey laid immobile on the field for several moments after the hit. The result was a 27 yard field goal to extend Clarion's lead to 9-0.

With about eight minutes left in the half, West Chester was finally able to get on the scoreboard. Starting with good field position at about the 50, MacDonald hit Jarmin Culbreth and Rich Neal to move the Rams down to the Clarion ten. After Scott Eberly was stuffed on a run up the middle, MacDonald hit Neal in the end zone. The extra point was blocked by Eric Acord.

Near the end of the first half Clarion worked its way down into scoring position with Zak hitting Tim Brown with a couple of passes. Brown avenged an earlier dropped pass by getting open over the middle for a 16 yard first down placing Clarion in West chester territory. The Eagles got close enough for Cramer to try a 46 yard field goal. Now, this is the type of moment that we so often run across in sports where on a given day next month, next week, or even tomorrow this kick would have gone through. But on Saturday, September 11th, Cramer's kick hit the crossbar and bounced ever so agonizingly back into the field of play. The score remained 9-6.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call

Omnipresent: Clarion cornerback Eldridge Ponder (2) made seven takles, broke up five passes and forced a fumble Saturday.

Pat McDevitt/ Clarion Call

Searching for a hole: Clarion tailback Damien Henry (1) found enough running room to gain 109 yards on the day.

The disappointment didn't last long, however. MacDonald tried to engineer his team for a score before the half and was picked off by Frank Andrews, who returned the ball to the 39 yard line. After a penalty moved Clarion back to the 50, passes to Brown and Quinn placed the ball on the 18. With just six seconds remaining in the half, Zak found Kevin Harper in the left corner of the end zone. Zak hit Quinn for the two point conversion, and Clarion went into halftime with a comfortable 17-6 lead.

To begin the second half, Clarion came out running rather unsuccessfully. This gave West Chester good field position, and on two consecutive possessions, the Rams drove into field goal range and closed the score to 17-12.

With ten minutes to go, West Chester once again started at midfield. On the second play from scrimmage Shawn Little ran 43 yards on a draw play for a touchdown. All of a sudden Clarion was down 19-17.

The Eagles sustained a solid drive on their next possession and were creeping into field goal range at the West Chester 28. But, Zak was sacked for a loss of five yards, and on fourth down, was sacked for a loss of nine.

The defense stuffed West Chester and forced them to punt. The Golden Eagles were resting on their own 15 yard line with about six minutes to play. Anyone who has ever seen John Elway orchestrate a drive at the end of a game can tell you that this can be done. The Eagles made it to the Chester 39, but again faced a fourth down, this one a fourth-and-five situation with 3:50 remaining. In an attempt to pin the Rams deep in their own territory, the Eagle braintrust opted to punt and hoped that the offense would have just one last shot. The strategy backfired.

West Chester gave the ball to Little eight consecutive times for a total of 55 yards. By the time the Rams had punted, Clarion was stuck on their own 10 with 20 seconds left. Anyone who has ever seen....no, John Elway couldn't even do this.

The Eagles travel to New Haven, Connecticut to battle the number two Division II team in the country on Saturday. The Eagles lost a 48-47 heartbreaker to the Chargers last season.

Eagles drop Gannon 6-3

Tennis team sets sights on PSAC

by Tondelaya Carey
Sportswriter

The Clarion women's tennis team compiled a 1-2 record over the past week and took a well deserved five-day break in preparation for the start of the PSAC schedule.

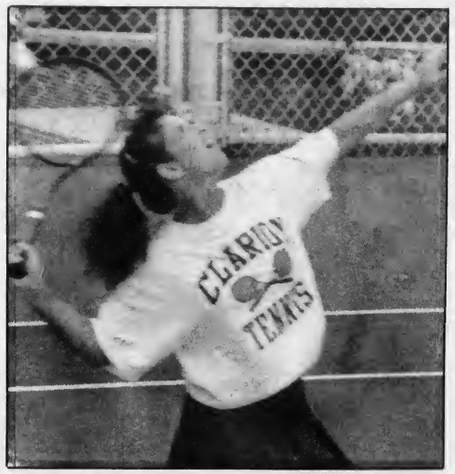

The Lady Eagles, led by coach Terry Acker, began their 1993 campaign on the road at Westminster in which they lost a tough match 5-4. Shara Wolkimir led the way by defeating Jen Riznick in straight sets 6-1, 6-4. Sarah Unkefer powered her way to victory in a tough three set match 2-6, 7-5, 6-2 and freshman Kristen McKinley, in her career debut, won in straight sets 6-2, 7-5.

The Lady Eagles then travelled to face a very powerful and experienced Geneva team. The match was tied 3-3 after the singles were completed, but Geneva swept the double matches guiding them to a 6-3 win. Wolkimir once again led the way with a straight set victory 7-6, 6-4. Melodi Dess and McKinley were also victorious. Dess won 7-6(8-6), 6-4, and McKinley came away with a straight set 6-1, 6-3 victory.

Coming off of two tough losses on the road, and playing their third match in four days, the Lady Eagles returned home and destroyed Gannon 6-3. Wolkimir opened the match with a tough three set loss, but her teammates came to her aid taking the next four matches. Freshman sensation Kristin McKinley extended her record to 3-0 with a 6-2, 6-4 straight set victory. The dynamic duo of Wolkimir and Dess extended their doubles mark to 2-1, winning by default.

The Lady Eagles travel to California on Friday to face the Lady Vulcans, then travel to Mercyhurst on Saturday, before returning home for matches against Pitt on Monday and Slippery Rock on Wednesday. Both home matches are scheduled for 3:30 starts.

Clarion has finished first in the PSAC five of the last seven years, compiling an 85-6 record over that stretch. "This is a very aggressive and spirited team," Acker stated, "We believe we'll be competitive in the PSAC, but the rest we'll just have to wait and see."

Christin Mihan/Clarion Call

Serving it up: Clarion's Shara Wolkimir captured straight set victories in her first two matches, but was humbled Sunday by Gannon's Talley Sjoberg.

PSAC schedule begins

Eagles fall to Scots, drop to 2-8

by Debbie Adams
Sportswriter

The Clarion volleyball team is ten games into the 1993 season and has yet to play in the friendly confines of Tippin Gymnasium. The Golden Eagles lost for the eighth time in its last ten games Tuesday night as the Edinboro Fighting Scots defeated the Eagles, three games to one.

Clarion dropped the first two sets 12-15 and 5-15 before rebounding for a 16-14 victory in game three. The Scots put the Eagles away in game four by outscoring them 15-8.

Bobbie Simpson led Clarion with 12 kills, and Lisa Flynn added seven. Co-captain Meghan Kelly furnished 13 assists and 11 digs in the losing cause.

A four set loss at Slippery Rock preceded an 0-3 performance at the Wayne State Tournament by the Eagles.

Clarion drew the hosts in the first round and were beaten 15-13, 12-15, 14-16, 9-15. The Eagles could fare no better against Cal (10-15, 4-15, 0-15) or against Ashland (10-15, 10-15, 6-15).

The Eagles will finally play their first home match tonight (Thursday) against Robert Morris, and then complete their elongated two game homestand with a match against Lock Haven.

The Golden Eagles will then embark on a four stop road trip which will eventually land them in Colorado, September 30 through October 2.

Sports Commentary:

Like him or not, Jimmy Mac just keeps winning

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

If you're as big a fan of the NFL as I am, then you shouldn't have any fingernails left! There were definitely some nailbiters in week two of the NFL. Five, count'em, five games were decided by a field goal; four in the closing seconds. So, if you're guilty of turning the television dial early, you missed some exciting moments this past Sunday.

The most exciting ending came when 12 year NFL veteran Morten Anderson kicked a 44 yard field goal as time expired to beat the Falcons in a wild 34-31 decision. What makes this a little sweeter for Anderson is the fact that earlier in the game he nailed a 27 yarder to set an NFL record of 25 consecutive field goals. Next stop for Anderson: Canton, OH.

In Green Bay, a struggling Roger Ruzek mustered enough boot to kick a 30 yarder with only seconds left, and Philadelphia knocked off the hometown Packers 20-17. Want more? Dean Biasucci was the hero for Indianapolis as he pegged a 42 yarder with three seconds left to lift his Colts to a "wild" 9-6 victory over the Bengals. And, don't forget Jason Hansen, whose fourth field goal of the day gave his Lions a 19-16 overtime win against the Patriots.

Also, in Minnesota, the Vikes slipped by the Bears 10-7, thanks to a late TD pass from McMahon. No field goal at the gun, but still a three point decision. Regardless, if you're a lover of close ones, this past week was your blue heaven!

Besides some exciting conclusions, this past week's games were a showcase for many homecomings. Numerous players either came home to play on their former playground or went head-to-head with their former team.

AP Photo

Screaming Viking: Minnesota's Jim McMahon may be outrageous, but he could just be the man to vault the Vikes.

Packer Reggie White was impressive in his reunion with the Eagles, collecting four tackles and two sacks, but the minister of defense ended up losing a heartbreaker, 20-17. Tim Harris, another defensive standout, traveled with the Eagles to his old home, Titletown, USA. Wide receiver standout Gary Clark, a former member of the Redskins' "Posse" returned to the teepee, only this time as a Phoenix Cardinal. Clark racked up 93 yards through the air to upset the mighty 'Skins 17-10.

Former Chicago Bear and Super Bowl XX QB, Jim McMahon, got his first start against his old team, as the Vikings squaked by 10-7. McMahon won the game in the 4th quarter on a 16 yard TD pass to Cris Carter, a bitter sweet victory for old headband McMahon.

And how about former New Orleans Saint QB Bobby Hebert? The now-Atlanta QB threw three 4th quarter TD passes to rally his team from 21 points down to a 31-31 deadlock with the Saints. New Orleans was eventually able to pull off the victory, but what a show by Hebert! Maybe the Saints should second-guess that move.

In Denver, one-time Charger Rod Bernstine took the flash out of the Chargers bolt by scoring a touchdown in the Broncos 34-17 drubbing of San Diego. Bernstine, a power back, has given the Orange Crush some punch out of the backfield, and has a nose for the goal line.

The least successful homecoming this week was former Ram Kevin Greene who returned to the city of angels, only this time as a Steeler. The sack-happy Greene had the unenviable task of going up against ProBowl Tackle Jackie Slater who resembles a housing project more than a lineman. Greene's results? Forget it! A brick wall couldn't have done better than Slater!

Well folks, week three is creeping ever closer, as the NFL homecoming is now history. The excitement never ends, but there is one echoing question: Where's C_wher P_wer? Still searching for that "mythical" O!

Chargers #2 ranked

Clarion vs. New Haven on Sat.

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

It doesn't get any easier for the Clarion Golden Eagles. After bowing to defending PSAC-East champion West Chester 19-17 last week, the Eagles will travel to New Haven, Connecticut to face the second highest ranked team in Division II, the New Haven Chargers.

The Chargers are already 2-0, having posted a 45-33 win over West Chester and a 38-6 victory over Buffalo last week. They were ranked number one in the east last season, won the East Region Title, and advanced to the NCAA Division II semifinals before losing to eventual champion Jacksonville State.

New Haven, who had the number one offense in the land last year averaging 38.8 points per game, are at a 41.5 clip this year, averaging 224 yards on the ground and 231 through the air.

Quarterback James Weir directs the offense, and has completed 26 of 53 for 323 yards and three scores this year.

Tony Willis leads an excellent corps of Charger receivers. Willis has already hauled in 13 passes and has scored three times in 1993.

Roger Graham, who rushed for 1,717 yards and 22 touchdowns last year, already has gained 317 yards on just 35 carries through the first two weeks. A.J. Livingston scored 17 times last year and picked up 898 yards on the ground.

The defense is susceptable to the pass, where it has given up an average of 293 aerial yards per contest.

Clarion is averaging 347 yards of total offense, and is allowing 313 yards on defense.

Sports Commentary:

As hoops and hockey near, baseball has center stage

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

It used to be so simple. A cap was something to buy your kid at the ballpark, not a lid for player's salaries. A race was a battle to the wire between two clubs, not a criteria for hiring or firing. It used to be a game of inches, not grinches. But, just when it appeared that baseball was sealing its own doom, the summer of 1993 comes along to prove its invincibility.

It started in the summer when the San Francisco Giants, wallowing in poverty and on the brink of relocating to St. Petersburg, Florida, magically pulled $44 million from their grungy cardboard box to purchase Barry Bonds.

The season was less than 30 games old when Tony Perez was fired from his managerial job in Cincinnati. Later it was realized that Perez was not the man the Reds wanted in the first place, that man was Davey Johnson. Perez was hired to silence critics who believed the Reds' front office showed prejudices toward minorities. Then, in a display of loyalty not often witnessed in baseball, hitting coach Ron Oester resigned his position after hearing of Perez's release.

In Colorado, fans came out in the billions to witness professional baseball. Montreal was the first team to visit Mile High and soon realized that this was no ordinary park. The Expos had to conclude batting practice 35 minutes early because they blasted all of their batting practice balls into the outfield seats.

The Philadelphia Phillies, who look more like a Thursday night bowling league than a group of professional athletes, hustled into the east lead, while the Giants coasted in the west.

When asked about the onslaughts, manager Sparky Anderson simply put it, "We kill mediocre pitching."

Pitching could not have gotten any more mediocre than Jose Canseco's debut in Fenway. After giving up three runs and throwing behind several batters, Canseco was diagnosed with a career-threatening injury in his throwing arm.

AP Photo

Silent but deadly: Toronto's John Olerud suffered an aneurism as a kid, causing him to wear a helmet even when playing the field. His gentle demeanor, and quiet "just doing my job" attitude still has people wondering who he is.

The American League took it upon themselves to make 1993 a year to cherish. First, it was the Detroit Tigers, who made 20 runs a game look effortless.

While the Tigers were scoring and Canseco was injuring, John Olerud just kept on hitting. Olerud hovered around the .400 mark until early September, and, it weren't for the fact that Frank Thomas is actually bigger than a train, he would be a lock for the American League MVP.

Thomas hoisted the White Sox on his broad shoulders and carried them into first place in the west. While Olerud is the most outstanding player in 93, Thomas is certainly the most valuable.

An off-season trade of Craig Lefferts from the Padres to the Rangers went fairly unnoticed, but soon players like Fernandez, Sheffield and McGriff would follow. San Diego had realized that the Giants and Braves were better teams, so instead of attempting to compete, they were financially insuring their existence.

In Colorado, a guy named Galarraga was putting on an Olerud display. In New York, the Mets players were putting on a fireworks display, and in Chicago, the Pirates and Cubs were putting on a boxing display.

A boxing display is the furthest from what Robin Ventura performed in Texas in late July. After Nolan Ryan planted a 93 mph fastball in his back, Ventura charged the mound and received a barrage of nuggies that would have knocked Evander Holyfield down... well... maybe Gerry Cooney.

Even though Jim Leyland is as old and as physically fit as Gerry Cooney, it didn't stop the Bucco skipper from going after Dodger Kevin Gross last month. Leyland's antics marked the apex of a long hot summer of hostility, where hitters charged after pitchers, hitters charged after managers, and Mo Vaughn was charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Despite all these shenanigans, despite all of the free agent contracts, despite all the fire sales and fire-filled press boxes, baseball still reigns supreme. Three out of four pennant races are within three games with the American East having five applicants, and the best is yet to come.

So, as we move into football, and as we await hoops and hockey, we always must realize that baseball is the most indestructible game of all... and the best.

If Abbott and Costello had to do their act today

by Rodney Sherman
Disgruntled Baseball Fan

"Hey Abbott, since you're the manager of this baseball team, how about introducing me to some of the players?"

"Certainly I'll introduce you to the boys, Let's see, on the bases we have Jones on first-"

"You mean Who, what's a matter, can't you remember the routine?"

"Well the team changed over the off-season, Who got tied up in a palimony suit in San Diego. They figure the trial will last all summer. We called up Jones from triple A."

"Ahhh, I see, well just pick it up at second base."

"Second base? That would be Smith."

"Smith? What happen to What, you remember, I'd say Who's on second and you'd say 'No, What's on second.'"

"What's gone. He hit .324 with 26 homers and 103 RBI's last year. Became a free agent and signed with a west coast team for millions, we couldn't afford to keep him."

"How 'bout third, is I Don't Know still on third?'

"I Don't Know, didn't you hear? He was at home somewhere in Latin America and the government there was overthrown. He's the dictator there now. We picked up old man Walker off waivers to cover third until I Don't know gets overthrown."

"You have to have those outfielders, Why and Because."

"Why is serving time for his fourth DUI conviction, then it's off to the Betty Ford clinic for his other problems."

"Because?"

"Expansion draft."

"The pitcher, Tomorrow, is he here?"

"On the disabled list, shut his throwing hand in the door of a taxi cab. At least that's what we're telling the press."

"The catcher, Today, he was always a solid player, what's the deal with him?"

"Holding out for a new contract, won't play unless we up the money."

" Why and Because gone, Who in court, What in California, Today pouting about money, I Don't Know lost in central America, this team is a bunch of strangers, and you know what, I DON'T GIVE A DARN!"

"What was that?"

"I said I don't give a darn."

"Oh yeah, our former shortstop. He's in charge of fan relations now."

Recent incidents do not show an upward trend in crime, some say

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Despite recent incidents, both on and near campus, local officials say it is too early to determine if this is a trend. This police car responded to a call on Wilson Ave.

An incident at Campbell Hall last Wednesday, Sept. 15, led to the arrest of Robert Eric Kearney, of Altoona, on charges of resisting arrest, a second-degree misdemeanor; disorderly conduct, a third degree misdemeanor; criminal mischief, a summary offense; and underage consumption, also a summary offense.

According to Ben Vessa, a resident assistant in Campbell, a report was received at the front desk of the residence hall that an argument was in progress between a female and a male on the seventh floor of the building.

A resident on the floor said she observed Kearney, a non-student, displaying drunken and boisterous behavior, yelling obscenities and arguing with a female friend.

It took several residents and approximately half an hour to coax the victim outside the dorm.

According to Vessa, Kearney continued badgering the residents and threw one girl to the pavement. Public Safety was immediately called.

When the officer arrived at the scene, said Vessa, Kearney and the girl were sitting in a car in the parking lot. The officer asked the girl to step out of the car and questioned her.

As the officer was questioning her, Kearney also got out of the car. The officer asked him to get back in, but Kearney refused and began to walk away. The officer attempted to grab the suspect's arm but the suspect began flailing his arms and screaming vulgarities at the officer, said Vessa.

At one point, Kearney hit officer Keith A. Kaschalk in the eye. The officer placed him under arrest, but had difficulty restraining him.

By this time, another officer had arrived on the scene, and together they managed to handcuff him and put the suspect in the Public Safety car. Kearney then began kicking at the rear passenger window of the car, said Vessa.

Kearney also called officers racists and referred to a female Public Safety officer in vulgar terms, Vessa said. Kearney later told police he had drank 10 shots of tequila and three beers before the incident.

Kearney was held overnight in Clarion county jail and released on his own recognizance. He failed to show up for a preliminary hearing and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Despite many recent incidents, including this one, crime hasn't really increased on campus, according to students and officials.

"Crime always increases when school starts because the population doubles, but I don't see any significant trend starting this year," Chief R. Eric Shaeffer of the Clarion Borough Police said. According to criminal statistics, the particular age bracket from 17-24 has the highest number of victims and criminals, said Shaeffer.

The director of University Relations, Ron Wilshire, said that "although there may be a slight increase in the number of incidents over last year, it is still early to determine if this is a trend. As witnessed by recent national news reports, we are living in an increasingly violent society."

Wilshire urges everyone to, "take common sense precautionary measures when they walk at night, including walking in pairs, traveling with friends and staying in well-lighted areas."

Even with Public Safety officers maintaining patrols throughout campus and the state and borough police patrolling the surrounding areas, many students have trouble feeling secure.

In the wake of several these recent incidents, students, especially those living off campus, are changing their behavior.

"I used to go out at night by myself, but now I make sure I get everything I need to get done during the day. That way I don't need to go out at night," said senior Selina Ahmed.

If Abbott and Costello had to do their act today

by Rodney Sherman
Disgruntled Baseball Fan

"Hey Abbott, since you're the manager of this baseball team, how about introducing me to some of the players?"

"Certainly I'll introduce you to the boys. Let's see, on the bases we have Jones on first-"

"You mean Who, what's a matter, can't you remember the routine?"

"Well the team changed over the off-season. Who got tied up in a palimony suit in San Diego. They figure the trial will last all summer. We called up Jones from triple A."

"Ahhh, I see, well just pick it up at second base."

"Second base? That would be Smith."

"Smith? What happen to What, you remember, I'd say Who's on second and you'd say 'No, What's on second.'"

"What's gone. He hit .324 with 26 homers and 103 RBI's last year. Became a free agent and signed with a west coast team for millions, we couldn't afford to keep him."

"How 'bout third, is I Don't Know still on third?"

"I Don't Know, didn't you hear? He was at home somewhere in Latin America and the government there was overthrown. He's the dictator there now. We picked up old man Walker off waivers to cover third until I Don't know gets overthrown."

"You have to have those outfielders, Why and Because."

"Why is serving time for his fourth DUI conviction, then it's off to the Betty Ford clinic for his other problems."

"Because?"

"Expansion draft."

"The pitcher, Tomorrow, is he here?"

"On the disabled list, shut his throwing hand in the door of a taxi cab. At least that's what we're telling the press."

"The catcher, Today, he was always a solid player, what's the deal with him?"

"Holding out for a new contract, won't play unless we up the money."

"Why and Because gone, Who in court, What in California, Today pouting about money, I Don't Know lost in central America, this team is a bunch of strangers, and you know what, I DON'T GIVE A DARN!"

"What was that?"

"I said I don't give a darn."

"Oh yeah, our former shortstop. He's in charge of fan relations now."

The one my mother warned me about

I have a simple philosophy about life: to enjoy life to the fullest potential without hurting others. I believe that in life, each person must face a series of obstacles that brings us to a better appreciation and understanding of life. By conquering these obstacles, we mature and learn from our experiences. The ones most important are the painful experiences. If we do not learn, then we are doomed to repeat our mistakes.

I learned many of my lessons during my college years. I graduated in May and take with me more than what I learned in the classrooms of Clarion University. I was very innocent when I arrived here, four years ago. I still see my friends that I made the first semester of my freshman year while living at Givan Hall. They are amazed when they realize how much I have changed. So many things have happened to change me, good and bad. I have crossed many bridges to become the person that I am now, mature and strong. But when I look back, I remember the one lesson that almost killed me, physically, mentally and emotionally.

One year and ten months ago, I was raped in Wilkinson Hall after a fraternity party. This is my side of the story, although I am sure his is very different.

I went to the party with two of my closest female friends. The one friend dates a brother of the fraternity, whom I also considered to be a close friend. I had a great time at the party. Unfortunately, I had too much to drink. My friends wanted to go to CABS, but I was too drunk to go. I was only 19 years old at the time and my condition was terrible. I could hardly walk, let alone dance. Since I lived so far off campus, I wanted to walk home as soon as possible (I never drink and drive). My friends left me behind, figuring I would catch up later. I never made it. I was raw meat in a shark tank and too innocent to realize it. I stood in the doorway, blurry-eyed, looking for someone I knew to walk me home. I did not think it was safe for me to walk home alone.

Finally, I saw a familiar face in the crowd. I asked him if he would mind walking me home. I wanted a gentleman to walk with me, not touching me, to my door. I emphasized the point that he was not welcome inside, but I would appreciate his assistance in getting me there. He agreed to the terms and promised not to touch me.

Off we went, trodding slowly down the street. He was getting hungry and suggested we stop for a bite to eat. While we were waiting, he decided that he would rather go to CABS. He

The Way I See It

Ray Henderson
Photography Editor

Wow, what a week! The NAFTA debate is coming to a head, the president unveiling the national health care plan on national TV, Russian power struggles between Boris Yeltsin's reformers and Alexander Rutskoi's legislature. It was a really great week for news.

Such a shame that the members of the Clarion academic community are too busy to worry about these important world-shaping events. (No, I'm not going to rail about student apathy. That subject could make up 15 or 20 editorials in and of itself.) The reason that Clarionites can't be worried about the news is because recently they have had to be extremely worried about their own personal safety.

The number of violent acts which have occurred on or near campus to date this semester is very disturbing. Physical assaults, sexual assaults, plain old nastiness and violence. What happened to the relatively peaceful and friendly Clarion of years past? One of the reasons I (and many others) came to Clarion was because of the peaceful atmosphere. People always figured that things like these only happened in the city. What happened?

Where Clarion got this recent mean streak from I do not know. What I do know is that we've got to start watching out for ourselves. What can we as citizens do to curtail these acts of violence? We can learn to protect ourselves. Public Safety and local police do an admirable job, but unfortunately they can't be all places at all times. We must therefore learn to do for ourselves.

Buy Mace or an equivalent, such as CS gas. These may be purchased at most department stores in the home security section. The best ones to buy are those which contain an indelible dye. It makes it easier for the police to find your attacker.

Another suggestion: with your keys in your hand, make a fist, with the keys sticking out between your fingers. Even the smallest victim can do some real damage to an attacker with this ersatz brass knuckle.

If these methods of self-defense don't seem right for you, get a pocket-sized airhorn or a dye gun. These cause no physical damage to your attacker, but they will definitely scare him (or her) off.

Last and most important, never go out at night alone. It doesn't matter if you're a big, strapping football player or if you're 5-foot-one and 125 pounds soaking wet, there is safety in numbers.

If we try hard enough and take the proper precautions, we can make ourselves safe. If we can all work together to combat violence both on and off campus, we can make everyone safe.

Have a good (and safe) autumn.

The real world

Dear Editor:

The mission of colleges and universities is to prepare young people for the "real world", yet we require little, if any, contact with it during a student's four-year tenure. In the classroom we talk about the "real world", we analyze the "real world", we put it in a petri dish and look at it from under a microscope, and yet when the time comes to live in it, many students know how to take care of themselves but do not know how to take care of each other.

Being aware of the needs of the community in which one lives contributes as much to a person's well-being as physical health, social acceptance, and financial stability. As Bill Clinton said in his inaugural speech, "In serving we recognize a simple but powerful truth: we need each other. And we must care for one another." If we don't take care of each other, who will? At a time when we want to cut spending in welfare and social programs, and are demanding less government control, who else can take care of us better than ourselves?

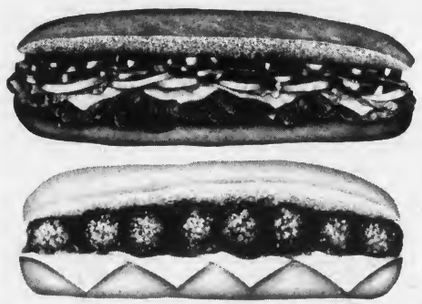

By participating in community service projects, either in a group or individually, students learn first-hand the lessons in life that cannot be taught in a classroom. For example, two Clarion students work with children whose parents participate in a weekly support group to help them deal with abusive tendencies. All over our campus there are examples of how students change the lives of not only those whom they work with, but their own lives as well. It's not something they brag about and most of the time it's not something they get credit for, either in class or out, but it's enough for them that they know they have helped to make this world a better place for someone else.

It is time for Clarion University to recognize the importance of community service, and to do more than urge its students to discover and participate in their particular field of interest. It's time to do more than just tell them how wonderful it will make them feel, or that it will look good on a resume. It's time to give them real credit for it. Very few classes implement any form of community service into the criteria. CUP should make a commitment to the importance of community service by supporting cooperative classroom teaching and service-learning. Then we'll actually be preparing students for the "real world" that we are always lecturing them about.

What about non-smokers

Dear Editor:

It is disturbing to me that I must write to the school newspaper because the school will not move forward and face reality. Within the past decade, research has documented finding after finding that cigarette smoking is harmful to your health. But, if you want to smoke just pay this cigarette tax and you can feed your addiction. What about me! I don't smoke! But I am forced to breath more toxins everyday than the average smoker because smokers have more rights to the air than me. When a smoker is smoking a cigarette they exhale more than they inhale. As a result, the person who is not smoking is passively inhaling more carcinogenic toxins than the person who is smoking. Ralston Hall is one of many residence halls on Clarion University's campus that permits smoking. Why haven't the people running this university been subjected to the same alarming truth as the students about smoke and most importantly, second hand smoke? They say, "You can smoke in your room if your roommate doesn't mind." Statements such as this one ring mere ignorance or is it apathy? Anyone who has been through any basic science class knows that the only time air is confined to one space is in a vacuum.

All published results from tobacco studies have demonstrated a high risk for health problems by being exposed to second hand smoke. This information is being circulated and lectured in our very own classrooms here on campus. Why doesn't Clarion University practice what it preaches?

Here at Clarion University we do have some restrictions on smoking. You are not permitted to smoke in any of the buildings. But, I can tell you that most of the time you can walk into any building and the stench of cigarettes is in the air. Our professors smoke in their offices, and some while you are standing there. If you report an incident like this you will see little signs put up. But, the most important ingredient is missing. We need to educate our superiors. Smoking is an addiction. If you are going to have this policy you must enforce it.

Leave me my dreams

Dear editor:

I would like to thank Mr. Barlow for his positive comments regarding the accreditation of our alma-mater. The Middle States reaccreditation is indeed a "ray of hope" despite the pervasive attitude among many other professors at CUP.

I am a returning adult student and a senior majoring in communication. And, I am starting to dream of the possibilities of my future. But, sometimes it is difficult when semester after semester I hear my professors criticizing the university and its faculty.

One professor recently stated in front of our class that he felt like wearing black until all faculty members from the dean on up are replaced. I have also heard many other negative comments pertaining to CUP faculty from other professors. Perhaps they have a valid point. But, I don't feel that the classroom is the place for them to vent their anger.

As I said before, I have begun to dream about my future, based on the potential of the education I have received here at CUP. By discrediting our university and the value of its degree certain faculty are making it difficult for students to dream. It is hard to take pride in our school and our education when the very professors we receive our education from are undermining the value of our education. Maybe it is time for faculty to work out its differences with other faculty and leave these problems out of the classroom. And afterall, doesn't the quality of education depend more upon the quality of instruction given by our instructors than on past budget blunders of our administration?

Hopefully everyone will share the sentiments of Mr. Barlow that with the budget problems hopefully behind us and the Middle States reaccreditation, now is the time for more attention to be spent on teaching and learning. And if I may, I would like to add dreaming to the agenda.

tried to talk me into going, but I was too tired. My condition was getting worse as time passed. I knew that in 10 minutes or so I would be ready to pass out, either at my place or in someone's yard. He suggested that I go back to his room and rest while he went to CABS. That way I would be more sober to walk home. Since I had just met him that night, I refused, even though he seemed like a nice guy. I did not want to send any mixed signals, only wanting an escort home. He swore up and down that I would be safe there. He told me that his roommate was gone. No one would be there to hurt or bother me. He was going to leave and lock the door behind him. He offered me a safe haven. Whether or not, at this point, he had decided to have sex with me, I do not know. Unfortunately, I put my trust in him. My life and safety were in his hands.

We stumbled on to his dorm room. Upon entering the room, I realized my dreadful mistake. He did not warrant my blind faith. He was immediately all over me. All I can remember screaming is "No, No! Stop! Please. . .just stop!" I did not know what to do. I was too weak from the alcohol to stop him physically, even though he is not a large person. At one point, before the actual rape occurred, I had an opportunity to escape. I was not quick enough to make it to the door. I lost my last hope. No one was going to save me. My cries meant nothing to him. Then he raped me. I was hysterical, thrashing wildly at him. I truly believe that his mind was flying on automatic pilot until this point. He pulled away, gazing in horror at what he had done to me.

He left the room. I think he went to the bathroom. At that moment in time, I did not care. My only concern was getting the hell out of there. . .and fast!

The reality of what had happened sobered me up enough to get dressed, go downstairs and call my neighbor to come and get me. He immediately came to pick me up. He and I have never discussed that night since, even though I owe him my life. The rapist had followed me downstairs but saw me crying on the phone. Thankfully, he ran away, leaving me alone in a state of uncontrolled sobbing.

After that night, I experienced a series of mental hardships in my personal life. I lost my best friend and my relationships with men were terrible. Consequently, my grades suffered from my lack of concentration. My junior year at Clarion was the hardest year of my life. As if that was not bad enough, others who knew about the rape questioned me about the validity of my accusations. They did not want to believe anything so terrible could have happened. I still do not know if they believe me or not. It no longer matters. It is over for everyone in this world but me. I re-lived the experience every time I saw him on campus or when I walked into Wilkinson Hall.

He did not just have sex with me, he was a thief. He stole the autonomy I have over my body. He stole my self-confidence and self-worth. With that, he stole my feeling of security. Above all else, he stole my desire and happiness of life. He has not only violated me once, but will affect all my future decisions in life: Who will I go out with? Who are my friends? Can I protect myself? Can I feel anything but pain again?

Through counseling at the Rape Crisis Center, I have overcome many of my fears. I am no longer afraid to go to parties or walk on campus. He did not win. I took back my spirit for life. I survived.

One year after my rape, I was invited to Slippery Rock University to give a presentation. I was invited by a friend of mine who is an RA at North Hall, an all female residence hall. She was presenting an alcohol awareness meeting. The topic also included rape, therefore I was the guest speaker. I told my story to approximately 50 women. They all gazed at me, spellbound and awestruck, their mouths gaping open. Some of the women even cried.

At the end of my speech, I answered their questions. The main question was why I did not press charges against my rapist. One reason was my age. I was 19 years-old and had been drinking. I was afraid the police would fine me for underage drinking. That is not true. It does not matter what condition I was in at the time of the rape. Just the fact that I had been drinking enough beer for the slightest buzz constitutes rape since I was not capable of making rational decisions while under the influence. I was also afraid of pressing charges, not knowing what he ...would say. I chose not to involve campus security because I had no real evidence. It was his word against mine.

The women at Slippery Rock gave me back my self-respect. I felt courageous for going and telling them my story. They supported me in that they all believed I was a victim. They cared. This is my story. After my "lesson in life," I learned that I am not alone. One out of every four women will be raped sometime during their life. Everyone knows someone who has been victimized, male or female, but may not know about the rape. The only way to stop rape is to bring it out into the open. We all need to learn that when someone says "no" to sex, it is "no," not "maybe, I think I need to be convinced."

I encourage anyone who has been raped to seek help. You have one year to file charges. Once you do file charges, you remain anonymous during the investigation. You can contact the State or Borough Police, Campus Security, the Rape Crisis Center, the Clarion Hospital or the University Infirmary. You need to get medical assistance in case the rapist had any sexually transmitted diseases.

Do not be scared to go seek help. They are there to help you. Please remember you are not alone. tell a friend what happened; they could have been in a similar situation.

The longer you wait to deal with your emotions of anger, betrayal, hatred, regret and self-blame, the closer you come to denying the rape ever took place. If you deny it, the rapist won. You are a victim.

The federal government is looking out for us in truly remarkable ways

There are time when, as a taxpayer, I just have to put my head between my legs and weep with joy at the benefits I am receiving from the federal government ("Official Motto: This Motto Alone Cost $13.2 Billion").

You'll feel the same way when I share some news items sent in by alert readers concerning government agencies servicing the public in ways that the public could never have thought of itself without the aid of powerful narcotics. (As is often the case when discussing the government, I need to stress that I am not making any of these item up.)

Our first item concerns: EAR CANDLES. You may recall that a few months back I wrote a column about ear candles, an old home remedy consisting of wax-covered cotton cones that you insert into your ears, after which you set them (the cones) on fire. This is supposed to create a draft that sucks the wax out of your ears. I got a lot of letters in response to that column; many people claimed they've used ear candles for years with great results; some people claimed the whole thing is a fraud, and all the "earwax" is actually produced by the candles.

Then several alert readers sent me an article from the July 29 Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, written by Graydon Hambrick and headlined: Federal Agents Seize Ear Candles in Raid. The article states that on July 28, U.S. Marshals and agents of the Food and Drug Administration "swooped in" to a Columbus health store and "seized about 100 candles." An FDA spokesperson said the candles were seized because they did not have FDA approval, which is required for " anything used for treatment of prevention of disease in humans or animals." An official said that the raid was part of a wider ear-candle crackdown.

I, personally, am sleeping better, knowing something is being done about this menace. I'd like to see the FDA program dramatized in a TV series, "Ear Candle Patrol," wherein each week federal agents would confront dangerous, law-violation health-store clerks (Look out, Matt! She's got a ginseng root!").

But before we do anything, let's salute the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) office in Idaho for its prompt action regarding: Improperly Attired Rescue Personnel. Here's what happened, according to an article in The Idaho Statesman written by Martin S. Johncox and sent in by Joe Auvil:

On May 11, two employees of DeBest Inc., a plumbing company, were working at a construction site in Garden City, Idaho, when they heard a backhoe operator yell for help. They ran over, and found that the wall of a trench — which was NOT dug by DeBest — had collapsed on a worker, pinning him under dirt and covering his head.

"We could hear muffled screams," said one of the DeBest employees.

So the men jumped into the trench and dug the victim out, quite possibly saving his life.

What do you think OSHA did about this? Do you think it gave the rescuers a medal? If so, I can see why you are a mere lowlife taxpayer, as opposed to an OSHA executive. What OSHA did - - remember, I am not making this up — was FINE DEBEST INC. $7,875. Yes. OSHA said that the two men should not have gone into the trench without 1) putting on approved hard hats, and 2) taking steps to insure that other trench walls did not collapse, and water did not seep in. Of course this might have resulted in some discomfort for the suffocating victim ("Hang in There! We should have the OSHA trench-seepage-prevention guidelines here within hours!"). But that is the price you pay for occupational health and safety.

Unfortunately, after DeBest Inc. complained to Idaho Sen. Dirk Kempthorne, OSHA backed off on the fines. Nevertheless this incident should serve as a warning to would-be rescuers out there to comply with ALL federal regulations, including those that are not yet in existence before attempting to rescue people. Especially if these people are in, say, a burning OSHA office.

Student parking woes continue

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

Aggravating and frustrating, that is how Clarion students describe the university's current parking situation. With the increase of freshman enrollment, the number of drivers on campus has grown, according to enrollment and car registation records, making the number of available parking spots decline steadily.

Driving students must endure a vicious battle of finding a spot to park their vehicle during the busy school week.

Parking lot W, which was designed strictly for freshman parking, was added last year to eliminate some of the havoc that parking on a small campus arouses.

However, in order for the parking congestion to decrease, freshman must be willing to park their cars in the designated lot, and walk. "I think that most of the parking problems are due to the fact that students don't park where they are supposed to. Students want to park where they want to park and if they don't get the spot right in front of their class, then there is a parking problem," said Charles Duke, Dean of the College of Education. Duke also said that he too, is a victim of parking tickets and has received three in five years. "If you don't get here early and try to park after 8:30, it's very difficult to park your car and find a place that you want," he added.

According to Public Safety Parking Enforcement chief Eric Grafton, in previous years there was ample parking for all students, he said, adding "Actually, there is enough parking if students would park properly, and if they would schedule properly." Grafton pointed out that public safety is not in charge of providing parking, they only enforce the laws that the Parking Committee establishes.

Chair of the Parking Committee Lori Norris said that the committee realizes the complaints of student drivers and they are currently trying to upgrade the situation. "We are in the process of getting one or two student senate representatives because they have a right to be a part of this process. We need to juggle around parking spots and make some of the unused staff parking available to students."

Presently, there are 23 parking lots with the majority of those lots being for employees. Students are alloted six of those 23 and there is also one special permit lot.

Clarion students feel that there is definitely a need for some parking revisions and solutions.

"They need to build more parking lots. You go to class and move your car and you come back and your spot's gone. It's a lot easier to park at night. Employees have a lot more spaces and when there's no where to park you park in their spot and then you get ticketed," says freshman Heath Coppenhager.

Students have resorted to desperate measures in order to park their vehicle, including parking illegally and paying heavy fines. Larry Brosius, manager at Wendy's, said on the average, they ticket at least 8 people per week for parking in their customer only lot. Brosius said about 75% of those tickets are given to Clarion students with the fine set at $15.00.

"People park in our lot before we're even open. If we're not open, they're not our customers so we call public safety. They take their chances, but a $15.00 chance is pretty steep to me," he said.

While not all students resort to illegal parking, their frustrations still run deep. "I'm a freshmen transfer student and they made me get a freshmen parking ticket. So now I have to park far away. I don't understand why there is meter parking. Most of them are not being used at all. If they would take away the meters, then I'd park there," said freshman elementary art education major Stacy Meyers.

However, on-campus students are not the only ones who are having trouble parking. The commuter students are also having a great difficulty getting a space to park also. Senior music-education major Robyn Young said that it's very hard for her to park this semester. "I've been here for seven years and I've never had this much trouble. They should limit the number of people who use cars to only upperclassmen and freshmen commuter students. I arrive one and a half hours early for my class, just so I can find a space.

"Teachers should be assigned a number and be expected to park in the same spot all year, then open the unused spaces to students," Young said.

Dianna Maier, a med/tech biology major who commutes daily from Oil City, said, "If you get here any later than 8:05, you spend a half hour driving around, looking for a space, and it really sucks."

Suggestions for more parking spaces have been circulating around the campus for years. Junior psychology major Aaron Dunbar proposed a better parking lot for a project in his English class. "We proposed a six to eight story parking garage over parking lot C.

"We even went as far as to consult construction companies about it. They estimated about 1.2 million per story to park roughly 150 cars per level, said Dunbar.

While suggestions are still being brought to attention, and everyone thinks they have a solution, the parking situation is still chaotic, filled with $5.00 fines and unhappy students.

Possiblity of re-charter within five years

CUP chapter of Delta Chi to disband

by Chad Briggs
News Writer

The Clarion University chapter of Delta Chi national fraternity which was formed in 1983 and formally chartered in 1986, recently dispanded their national charter. The chapter had run into debt problems after a fire which destroyed their original Fraternity House in the spring of 1991.

It was decided the house be immediately rebuilt. It was then that the chapter started to run into debt. The chapter was having difficulty keeping up with their national dues, but a last ditch effort was still made to keep the charter by having the chapter put on a payment plan for a year and a half but it failed.

So it was decided by the chapter, that having no other alternatives, to dispand the charter, fraternity president Eric Feigel said.

Feigel went on to say if the debt is payed off within five years, they will be able to recolonize at Clarion, and in turn, would have their charter returned.

"It was an unfortunate situation that was brought upon us. No one at the chapter wanted this to happen, but we felt that it was inevitable," said Feigel.

"We will not, however, fit the reputation that comes along with a local fraternity. We will continue to run community service programs and try to keep our reputation on good terms with the university," Feigel explained.

Dave Crawford, a member of the fraternity, said, "We had no alternatives. The options were very limited, despite the efforts made by our national to work out our situation. It was a very unfortunate outcome."

With the chapter disbanding from their national sponsership they will no longer be recognized by the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC), or by Clarion University.

Maggie Collarini / Clarion Call

The Delta Chi house, located on RD#1 Clarion. Members of the fraternity have decided to disband the local chapter due to financial difficlties.

It is university policy not to recognize greek organizations which are not recognized by their national chapters. Such situations usually prevent the unrecognized organization from using university falicities and equipment.

John Postlewait, advisor to IFC, said, "I was pleased with what they did last semester, they had the highest grade point average of any fraternity on campus, and they also did a lot of philanthropic work, and IFC had nothing to do with the charter being disbanded."

Patrick Alderdice, director of Chapter Services for Delta Chi's national office, could not be reached for comment on the local chapter's recent difficlties.

The Clarion Delta Chi chapter has 26 active members.

Three new security officers hired for library duty

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Clarion University has hired three new, part-time, temporary security officers to patrol Carlson Library during the re-instated hours of 9 p.m. to midnight, Sunday through Thursday.

The new officers are Walter Minich, Christine Eaker and Eugena Radaker.

Radaker and Eaker are graduates of CUP.

According to Dr. Ron Martinazzi, director of public safety, the new hirees will work in the library only. One officer will be on the second floor entrance, watching the entrance and exit. The other officers will be stationed on the third and fourth floors. The officers are expected to be working until the end of the semester at which a time the new arrangement will be evaluated.

"They will be watching for vandalism, rowdiness, or anything of that sort," explained Martinazzi.

According to a statement issued to the Call by Ron Wilshire, of university relations, "The student meetings and opinions voiced concerning the change in library hours persuaded the administration that a number of students wanted additional study time in the library. The additional study hours do not require regular library personnel, but the director of the library and the chair of the library faculty felt supervision of the library facility was required.

"Along with the need for supervision, a policy that campus buildings cannot remain open without university employees and a desire to deter possible vandalism, three temporary, part-time security officers were hired to keep the building open."

According to the statement, "The decision was made by the administration, including Library Director Gerald McCabe, Chair of Library Faculty Deon Knickerbocker, President Diane Reinhard, Provost John Kuhn, Interim Vice President Wayne Key and Interim Assistant Vice President Tim Fogarty."

The new security officers will be paid an hourly rate of $8.21.

Student senate President Gara L. Smith, who lead the fight to have the hours re-instated, was satisfied with the decision.

"I have been told by university officials that three security guards have been hired solely for the purpose of safety and protection of those utilizing the library facilities.

"By having security guards, the issue of campus safety is also being addressed. The university and student senate is conjunctively working together to make this campus as well as Venango campus a safe environment.

"The university community will receive further notification reguarding campus safety."

Any suggestions should be forwarded to student senate, room 269, Gemmell Complex.

CUP professor studies memory skills in older adults

by H. A. Dovenspike
Copy and Design Editor

"I don't believe that one grows older. I think that what happens early on in life is that at a certain age one stands still and stagnates." This was the attitude expressed by T.S.Eliot in 1958, an attitude that has been changing during the past forty years. Changing, that is, with the help of people like Dr. Iseli Krauss of Clarion's Psychology Department. She has been interested during the last ten years in researching the affect of game expertise on older adults. Her research is based soley on the game of Bingo.

In previous research and observations, Dr. Krauss has noted that older adults have an uncanny ability to perform the complex cognitive tasks involved in the playing of bingo, and that these skills are maintianed even after debilitating illnesses and cognitive degression. The game needs strong sorting and organizational skills, good memory storage and recall, as well as hand-eye coordination in the marking of the cards.

Dr. Krauss' interest peaked when she realized how huge of a phenomenon the game of bingo was. The game draws seven billion players a week in the United States and is just as popular internationally. Chronic players participate five to seven nights-a-week, many spending upwards of fifty dollars per day. There are many reasons for playing bingo besides simple enjoyment such as relief from boredom and a need to play from an addictive point of view.

Experts play using from twenty-four cards to as many as one hundred, according to Dr. Krauss; these people can keep track of all one hundred game cards(memorizing or knowing the whereabouts of 2400 numbers) as easily as a novice can play three. The main drawing question for Dr. Krauss was this: If memory declines through aging, how is such expertise maintained?

For those unfamiliar with the game of bingo, it involves a group of individuals ranging in size from 3 to 70,000. The actual game is played on cards with a grid of twenty-four numbers and one center "free" space. Numbers are called at random and if the player has the given number on their card, the number must be covered up with a marker. In the basic game, the first player in the group to cover a row of numbers vertically or horizontally wins—there are hundreds of other variations to winning. In most bingo playing establishments, the winners will receive either a small prize or a sum of money. At some locations the winnings are in the thousands of dollars.

For her first research project on bingo, Dr. Krauss and student assistant Lisa Henry presented the paper, "But They Keep on Playing: Errors of Omission in Bingo Playing in Old Age," at the Fourth Biennial Cognitive Aging Conference in Atlanta in 1992.

That study focused on players between the ages of 19 and 85 (average age of 48.5). This study found no significant correlation between age and amount of errors made. They did find that the more education an individual had, the fewer errors they would be likely to make. Errors were defined as omission(missing a number), comission(marking the wrong numbers), and missing a "bingo"(a winning card). There were very few errors overall found in this study. According to Dr. Krauss these findings are counter to current theories in cognitive age research.

In the second study (part of which was presented at the International Society for Behavioral Research in Recife, Brazil), a much more complicated design was enacted. Twenty older adults from the age of fifty were recruited as being experienced bingo players.

Twenty-one younger adults were also recruited for the study. The subjects played five games on twelve cards at a time, each with increasing difficulty in the pattern required for winning (a sample of a complex pattern is pictured with Dr. Krauss).

The study revealed through further testing that the younger participants were more likely to miss numbers on the most complex patterns than were the older adults. Both groups performed about the same on the simpler diagonal-horizontal-vertical patterned games. Other testing included the performing of other various cognitive tasks; such as memorizing and writing digits backward, figure-matching exercises, and the memorization and copying of complete bingo cards.

In the last test only the older adults were able to get all twenty-four numbers correct. However, they performed poorly on the other tasks.

H. A. Dovenspike / Clarion Call

Dr. Iseli Krauss, of CUP's psychology department, is conducting research studies that investigate the abilities of some older adults to simultaneously play 100 bingo cards. An enlarged card is pictured to Krauss' left.

Some other findings are that more errors are committed when playing fewer cards and that the older individuals usually had less education, are more likely to play the game than the youngers, and were able to maintain many more cards. Dr. Krauss says that experience plays a larger role in this than cognitive abilities.

All of the studies so far have been funded out of Dr. Krauss' own pocket. She credits much assistance for the last study to Paulo Ghisletta, Jennifer Landis, Jill Frenelli, and Thom Osterhout.

Dr. Krauss worries a bit about the addictive affects of bingo as well as the fact that many people who can't afford it are going into debt because of it. Some jackpots do grow to very rewarding levels though.

When her findings were presented at a recent gathering, strong interest was shown from other psychologists. A psychologist from Canada and one from New Orleans have approached her about setting up their own studies.

For her next study, Dr. Krauss plans to use non-traditional, randomly generated number cards.

These cards will cause the most experienced player to lose their edge over lesser players, she believes. She is still searching for expert bingo players.

If you know of an expert or "super" bingo player that is interested in participating in this study, please contact Dr. Krauss' office in Harvey Hall, at 226-2295 (226-1991 answering machine). Both younger and older adults are needed for the study.

Hoover named to student seat on Board of Trustees

by Christy Williams
News Writer

Brian Hoover has been named the new student member of CUP's Board of Trustees. He is the son of Timothy and Linda Hoover of Hadly, Pa.

During the 1993 spring semester, Hoover filled out an application, and after a campus interview by his peers, he was chosen along with two other students to go to Harrisburg. Governor Robert Casey ultimately appointed Hoover the new member.

"I have done a lot on campus, and those expierences have been invaluable to me. This is my chance to give back to Clarion." said Hoover. " I hope to serve the interest of the student body and always communicate with them."

Ray Henderson / Clarion Call
New student trustee, Brian Hoover

Hoover holds the only student seat on the eleven seat council.

He is involved in several activities on campus including Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Eta Sigma and the orientation committee. He is also president of the Interhall Council.

Hoover, a Political Science major, said, "This will be a perfect learning opportunity and it will help me in the future. If anyone has any concerns they care to share with me, I can be reached at 122 Ralston or 226-3771."

Other members of Clarion's Board of Ttrustees include: Dr. Dana Still, Paul A. Weaver, Michael Keefer, Kim C. Kesner, Fred McIlhattan, Lucy Tabler, Dr. SyedAli-Zaidi, Raleigh Robertson, Kenneth Gaudi and Joseph Harvey.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Sept. 13, through Sept. 19, 1993.

At approximately 11:20 p.m. on Sept. 16, a non-student was cited for disorderly conduct and under-age drinking after Public Safety was called to a possible assault which involved the non-student and his girlfriend. The alleged victim is a student at Clarion University. The suspect was lodged at the Clarion County Jail until the following morning when he was arraigned by District Justice LaPinto.

An individual was stopped for operating his motor vehicle in an unsafe manner on Sept. 17, at approximately 1:10 a.m. The individual was cited for a stop sign violation and minors comsuption. The individual registered .08 on the BAC.

On Sept. 17, at approximately 9:15 p.m., unknown persons smashed a large window at the end of the hallway (Northwest stairwell enterance) in Nair Hall. The incident is under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Alcohol prevention effective if gender specific

CPS- In some of the women's restrooms at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, bright, highly visual posters can be found that tout the effects of alcohol on female sexual satisfaction, skin conditions, professional success, weight gain, self-esteem and pregnancy.

The powerful graphics, which were created to target women, are part of a research project by Michael Kalsher, associate professor of psychology at Rensselaer, who studies the effects of alcohol on male and female college students.

The posters, which also hang in sorority houses and dormitories, also note, for example, that a daily glass of wine can boost your weight 10 pounds a year, frequent heavy drinking can lead to bulimia, and that even moderate drinking can increase the risk of breast cancer.

"Our research has shown that posters with information that is optimally relevant to the needs and interests of specific target groups are more likely to attract attention and increase knowledge," said Kalsher. "By doing so, they can set the occasion for making wiser alcohol-related decisions."

The research team found that women exposed to the posters scored significantly higher on alcohol education tests than control groups that did not see the posters. The women rated the posters as "very helpful" for making choices about whether to drink alcohol or not.

There has been an attempt to raise awareness of the dangers of alcohol on college campuses across the nation.

WCUC back on the air after four day shut-down

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Clarion University's FM radio station, WCUC, powered back up last Thursday, following a four day shut down. Paul Levy, program director at the student run station, said the station is back to stay.

The shut-down was used to get together with the staff and set up a definite schedule of D.J.'s and show hosts.

"I thought it would be better to correct the situation now, rather than later," said Levy, explaining that a major loss of personnel forced him to pull the plug after only four days of operation. "We had a total of about eight people who quit [after signing on as D.J.'s] or didn't come back, and that really put us in a bind," said Levy.

Levy said his concern focused on maintaining a high degree of professionalism at the station. Levy said the station currently has 32 of 43 shifts filled by students with less than one year of radio experience. The station lost 17 D.J.'s to graduation and drop outs, resulting in a largely inexperienced staff.

The budget crunch has hit all university organizations, and WCUC is no exception according to Levy. A reduction in funding has forced the station to seek underwriting from area businesses and organizations.

Levy said the station's underwriters were first in mind when the decision to shut down was made. "I didn't want to lose underwriters," explained Levy, "If we were powering up and down at different times every day, we just don't look professional."

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) requires that stations follow a set schedule of broadcast hours. The loss of personnel was affecting those requirements also said Levy.

"We're more of a public station than a college station," claimed Levy, "that made it even more frustrating to shut down, but we're up and running now, and we won't be down the rest of the year."

"It will be a different sounding station this year," vowed Levy.

Congress closes military bases

The United States Congress sealed the fate of dozens of military bases across the country Monday, approving recommendations to close 130 facilities and scale back 45 others in a money-saving effort that will cost tens of thousands of jobs.

By a vote of 83-12, the Senate rejected a motion to disapprove the work of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. By law, the entire package takes effect unless both the House and Senate overturn the panel's proposals in their entirety.

The decision marked the third round of base closures in five years, and another try at reducing the military's infrastructure is planned for 1995.

The bulk of the direct job losses will be concentrated in three states: Florida, South Carolina and California will be the hardest hit. A total loss of 74,700 jobs could be lost in those states.

Senate Armed Forces Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., expressed his sympathy for the affected communities, but argued that if the bases weren't closed, the military will have to reduce the size of its force.

"One way or another, people are going to lose jobs," said Nunn.

The senator warned that failure to shut down installations would return the military to the hallow armed services of the 1970's when the United States "kept the bases and eroded readiness of forces to fight."

Trade Center trial

Formal questioning began of potential jurors in the New York World Trade Center bombing Monday. The trial could start as early as today.

During open questioning on Monday, the judge asked the first 12 potential jurors about their religious preferences and whether they had ever experienced any racial problems.

The judge again questioned the jurors Tuesday in a private session.

Aspin trip costly

Defense Secretary Les Aspin's five-day personal vacation trip to Venice during an official trip to Italy may have cost U.S. taxpayers over $30,000, according to Pentagon records released Monday.

The expense vouchers showed costs of at least $29,575 for bodyguards, 22 crewmembers of Aspin's government jet, communications specialists and other staff while Aspin stayed at a five-star hotel.

Pot crop flooded out

The Midwest flooding that drowned so many acres of corn, soybeans and wheat this summer also washed out another major cash crop: marijuana.

Authorities say both cultivated plots and wild fields of the illegal weed got socked by the record rainfall and flooding.

The amount of marijuana destroyed by law officers in Kansas this year is one-fifth as much as in 1992.

Crops also are down throughout Missouri, based on searches by airplanes and other tips, said Lt. Jim Watson of the Missouri Highway Patrol. Police estimated that the size of the marijuana crop and arrests of pot harvesters in the county dropped by about half this year.

West coast earthquake hits Oregon and California

It turns out that Monday night's earthquake in southern Oregon and northern California was stronger than first thought.

The U.S. Geological Survey revised the Richter scale reading on the quake up to 5.2 to 5.4. The experts also increased the strength of the first of two aftershocks up to 5.5 from 5.2.

Demjanjuk's family goes to Israel

John Demjanjuk's relatives flew to Israel for what they hope is the last time, early Tuesday morning, to bring home the man acquitted of Nazi war crimes.

Demjanjuk was free to leave Israel last Sunday after the Israeli Supreme Court lifted restrainting orders against his deportation.

Demjanjuk denies any crimes.

Shake-up at Erie insurance

There has been a shake-up at the top of one of the state's largest insurance companies.

The chairman and the executive vice president of Erie Insurance Group abruptly left their posts last week. Employees at the firm learned of the changes Monday at company headquarters.

A company spokesman gave no reasons for the departures of Thomas Hagen and Maureen Dwyer.

Besides being chairman, Hagen was also the chief executive officer of Erie Insurance.

Hagen's wife was a member of the Hirt family, which founded the insurance company 68 years ago.

Transplant patient remains critical

An English girl who received a new set of abdominal organs last week in Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital, remains in critical condition.

Doctors said Laura Davies is now considered to be stable, and she is breathing on her own. The five-year-old girl received a new liver, stomach, pancreas, small intestine, large intestine and kidneys.

Westinghouse to pay new executive one million dollars

Michael Jordan, a former Pepsi executive, will try to lead Westinghouse out of a billion dollar debt. The Pittsburgh firm will pay Jordan one million dollars this year and offer another million in bonuses.

Patriot Party focuses on Pennsylvania's courts

In an unusual move, the Patriot Party and its candidate for the state Supreme Court have adopted a platform calling for fundamental changes to Pennsylvania's judicial system.

Robert Surrick, the West Chester lawyer running as a third party candidate, said Monday that anything short of a complete overhaul would mean "business as usual."

Surrick said lawmakers have been avoiding true judicial reforms because the current system allows them to "control cases."

Surrick, whose party grew out of Ross Perot's failed presidential bid last year, faces Democrat Russell Nigro and Republican Ronald Castille in the November election.

Law school aids the indigent

DAVIS, Calif. - A new program at the University of California - Davis law school provides legal representation for indigent people who cannot afford counsel in civil rights claims against the federal government.

The plaintiffs, most of whom are prisoners unable to afford an attorney, will be referred to law students in the clinic by federal judges in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of California.

Margaret Johns, a law school professor who developed the concept, said the clinic will provide students with litigation experience and provide clients with representation.

The clinic will "relieve the court of the burden of people representing and trying cases themselves," Johns said.

The UC Davis students will work on every aspect of litigating civil rights cases, and will be supervised by a practicing civil rights attorney.

African spirituality course at Duquesne

The spirituality practiced in Africa is the subject of a new course at Duquesne University taught by a Catholic priest who made his home in Kenya.

The class is being taught by the Rev. Raymond Mosha, head of the Spirituality Department from the Catholic Higher Education Institute of Africa in Kenya.

The goal of the newly formed class, according to the Rev. Clyde A. Bonar, director of the Institute of Formative Spirituality, is to teach about the world views that mold African spirituality.

Women dancing with women a no-no?

A country and western dance class instructor created a brouhaha by telling a University of New Mexico student that the school had a policy that women can't dance with other women in the class.

The class was offered for one credit.

"I have no problem with ladies dancing with ladies," said instructor Jim Calvert, "but to avoid confusion, I'd rather have a leader stay a leader through the whole class. It gets really confusing switching back and forth."

Students have chance to study abroad in Malta

by Suzanne Hildebrandt
Features Writer

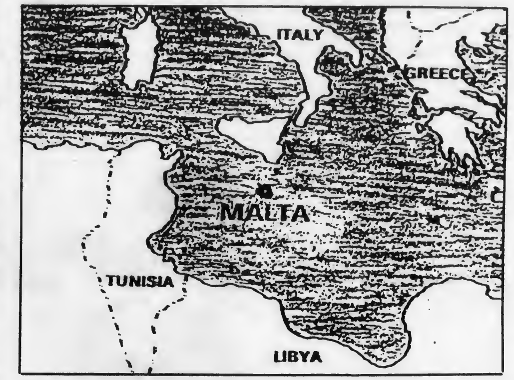

Come be all you can be! See exotic places and encounter exciting cultures! No, this is not the military, but university life.

Clarion University does not stop at the city limits. It extends far beyond that to lands overseas such as Europe and Africa as well as many others. Other than the university's International Programs, there are ample opportunities to study abroad, including the tropical paradise of Malta.

This spring, 20 Clarion students will be venturing off to the University of Malta for a semester they will never forget, and you could be one of them. The university is located near the capital of the island of Malta, which is a Mediterranean Island 19 miles long and nine miles wide. The island itself is located within the Mediterranean Sea for easy access to Italy, Greece, Spain and other European countries. Some average flying times to different destinations are: London-three hours, Rome-one hour, and Frankfurt-two hours. There are other forms of transportation also that won't take too long.

Imagine spending your weekends in a different country each day or even just new and different towns. English is the main language of Malta (along with Maltese), so getting where you want is no problem. Having one of the lowest cost of living standards in Europe helps our starving students, too.

Speaking of expenses, studying in exotic Malta will cost you the same as staying here in Clarion. The only added expenses will be airfare and passport fees. Of course you'll want that extra cash for munchies or a quick trip to Rome (instead of the usual venture to Pittsburgh or Erie). The amount you spend on trying to keep yourself from total boredom here could get you more fun on the relaxed, hospitable island.

Malta is a beautiful sunny island off the coast of Sicily where some students may have the opportunity to spend a semester studying at the University of Malta.

Not only are there opportunities for recreation, but the University of Malta also has an excellent academic reputation. They are involved in innovative aquaculture research projects, techniques of lateral thinking and the Department of Biochemistry has an international reputation in molecular biology and geriatrics. This is in collaboration with the International Institute of the Aging set up by the United Nations in Malta.

For the historians and social scientists among us, Malta is one huge museum or laboratory not bound by the university walls. All students will return with a greater degree of cross-cultural understanding and a fulfillment in themselves they could never experience any other way.

If all of this sounds good to you, then go to the Office of International Programs in 212 Founders Hall to pick up an application. On September 27, there will be an open-campus meeting in Pierce Auditorium where a video on Malta will be shown and financial aid information will be available.

This is a chance of a lifetime to study abroad this coming spring semester. Right now there is still space available, but that space, like classes, goes quickly. If you are going, there is a $200 non-refundable deposit due by October 12.

International students get firsthand view of Clarion lifestyle

by Crystal Janis
Features Writer

Every fall semester, Clarion University is inundated with new faces. These students are either freshmen or transfer students from all over the country. Among this wave of fresh faces there are always some international students, but due to their proportionately small number, they may seem a little bit harder to meet. That is why the Office of International Programs would like to take this opportunity to introduce some of these students.

Luis Almeida works at the Office of International Programs. He is a junior finance major from Brazil and is the Student Coordinator of the Community Outreach Program. This program is a two-way involvement between international students and the community.

International students have the opportunity to go to local schools, church groups and other different community organizations and share a little bit about their culture. They might give a speech about their nation or put on a performance (possibly a fashion show or share the writing techniques of their language.) Almeida will introduce some of these students.

One of the first international students Almeida had the pleasure of meeting was Dirk Broeder. Broeder is from Wolfenbuettel, a city of 50,000 people about 70 k.m. from Hanover, Germany. Broeder explained to Almeida that Germany is split up into 15 countries, and that his hometown is located in Niedersachsen County.

Broeder is on an exchange program and will be at Clarion until the end of this semester. The reason he came to the United States was to perfect his English. In Almeida's opinion, Broeder is a die hard perfectionist because his English sounds close to perfect. Broeder likes the people he has met, but says he will miss his girlfriend. Sorry ladies.

Broeder is one of the few international students who come to Clarion knowing that they will see a familiar face when they arrive. This is because he came over with another German national, Oliver Hahn. Hahn is from Kassel, which is about a two-hour car ride north of Frankfort. Kassel is a university town of about 16,000 people. Hahn and Broeder met each other at the university where they both acquired an undergraduate business degree.

Hahn feels that Americans are very friendly and are not nearly as "stiff" as his own countrymen. To Hahn, Clarion's rural setting is beautiful. The only thing Hahn is having a hard times adjusting to culturally are the low alcohol content and something called "last call."

After being involved for three years in the international program, Almeida has become very accustomed to exotic sounding names. When he saw a Smith listed in the International Program's Directory he was very curious. It turns out that Denyse Smith is a speech pathology major from Canada. Smith has a degree from Toronto University, but decided to come to the United States because of some advantages in the American system.

Smith feels that university admissions in Canada are too competitive, and that at Clarion she gets a much less restrictive approach to her coursework. She was extremely happy that all of her professors knew her name after one day of class. Smith likes the small class size and is extremely glad to be bere.

One day sitting in the International Office, Almeida got to meet two African students talking excitedly in English. Pius Boachie is from Accra, the capital of Ghana, and Bryant Messiah is from South Africa. Both are first-year undergraduate students.

Boachie wants a real estate degree, and Messiah is hoping to become an accountant. Both attended universities in their countries two years prior to coming to Clarion. They mentioned feelings of isolation due to Clarion's size and lack of transportation. Almeida told them that this was natural, and that eventually one will become quite happy to just stay here and relax, Clarion-style.

Balbindaur Kaur is a very nice young lady from a small island state located off the southern tip of Malaysia, called Singapore. Having lived for six years in Singapore, Almeida was excited to talk to someone with whom he had mutual experiences.

Kaur came directly to Clarion, and was surprised that some parts of the United States are not quite like what Hollywood would want us to believe. She told Almeida that she will miss her family, friends and food, but is looking forward to new experiences in store for her.

Almeida added his own comments on Clarion, "I enjoy Clarion thoroughly and cannot think of any place I would rather be. Wait a minute, I guess I can think of a few, but those places do not offer a finance degree."

Koinonia Christian Fellowship united students 'at the pole'

by Debra J. Weinheimer
Contributing Writer

On Wednesday September 15 at 7 a.m., approximately 50 students met at the flagpole next to Founders Hall to pray for the students, faculty, and administration of Clarion University.

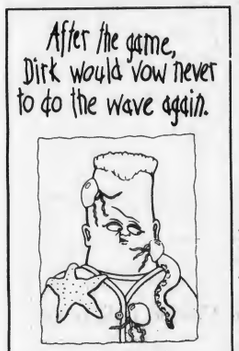

The students were participating in a world-wide day of student prayer called "See You at the Pole." This event began in 1989 as a vision of a few students in Texas to pray for their friends, school and country. Their vision has become a powerful movement of prayer that has united high school and college students from almost every city, denomination and ethnic group. Last year it is estimated that more than one million students participated in "See You at the Pole."

Here at Clarion, the students represented two Christian Fellowship groups on campus--Intervarsity Christian Fellowship and Koinonia Christian Fellowship. The groups meet regularly for fellowship, prayer, small group Bible studies, retreats and conferences.

Koinonia meets on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. in room 252 Gemmell Student Center for "Monday Night Live." Intervarsity's large group meeting is on Tuesday nights at 7:30 pm in the RACS lounge in Gemmell. Both groups invite you to check their organization out.

Phi Sigma Sigma sorority receives national awards

by Anji Brown
Features Writer

"Aim high," states Phi Sigma Sigma president Tanya Schmidt. Phi Sigma Sigma is by no means an ordinary sorority; they go above and beyond the call of duty.

Clarion University's Gamma Gamma chapter of Phi Sigma Sigma made an outstanding achievement at the Leadership Training School, King of Prussia, where they received five awards out of the forty-five given. About 105 Phi Sigma Sigma chapters attended this event, and yet none of them bested Clarion University's own Phi Sigma Sigmas.

The five awards received were the Individual Scholarship given to Jen Horner, Undergraduate of the Year given to Leslie Cathcart, the National Ritual Award, the 100% Initiation Award and having the Best Understanding of Sorority Pledges Award given to the chapter. Schmidt states, "We proved ourselves by coming back with (these) five national awards.

Phi Sigma Sigma's services range from helping the elderly set up for bingo to raising money for the National Kidney Foundation. This sorority is also active in helping the Junior Olympics, and have been known to put in 326 service hours in one semester.

This year, to raise money for the National Kidney Foundation, Phi Sigma Sigma is putting together a Rock-a-thon with the Kappa Delta Rho fraternity. Phi Sigma Sigma has many other charities planned for this year.

Phi Sigma Sigma has been very successful since they came to Clarion in 1971. Their pledge program lasts eight weeks, but while pledging, they consider the pledge to be a sister instead of just an associate member.

Tanya Schmidt joined the organization in the spring of 1991. She says she instantly felt at home with her sisters and did not feel the pressure to conform to any image. Schmidt states, "The sisters accepted me for who I was."

Study hours are highly stressed in Phi Sigma Sigma. Because of this, they were number one for receiving scholarships. Every year, Phi Sigma Sigma must have a quota of 60 women to join, and they have never fallen under that quota.

-A suspect said to be in his 20s escaped after robbing a First American Bank branch in Nashville, Tennessee in August, but not before leaving some of the money behind during the getaway. The teller had managed to give the man a bag of "bait" money containing an explodable device that would coat the money with a dye soon after he left the bank. Apparently, the man wanted to free his hands during the getaway and so he stuffed the bag into his sweatpants. Said a Nashville detective, "We believe he may have (dropped the money when he) suffered severe burns to his groin area.

-In April, police in Chandler, Arizona arrested Arturo Ortiz, 33, who weighed 135 pounds, after he had allegedly broken into a home and begun fondling a woman as she slept. The woman weighed 260 pounds and easily subdued Ortiz by twisting his wrist behind his back and holding him until police arrived. Said the woman, "I'm large, and he happens to be small."

-The New York Times reported in April that Kansas lawyers Michael Harris and Fletcher Bell were successful in filing worker compensation claims for back injuries suffered at work: Harris got almost $35,000 for the strain of reaching into the backseat of his car, and Bell got $95,000 for his injury lifting his briefcase from the trunk of his car.

-During a nationally televised August pre-season game, Denver Bronco defensive tackle Darren Drozdov, who was in his stance opposite the offensive center awaiting the snap, vomited on the ball. Afterward, he told reporters, "I get sick a lot. I was a quarterback in high school, and I'd start throwing up on my center's back. I don't have a lot of control out there."

-In April Associated Press profile of North Carolina State University veterinarian Greg Lewbart reported that he is one of the few in the country who treat pet fish. Dr. Lewbart's fees range from $100 for a checkup, including X-rays, to $250 for surgery. He said business is good because it is so difficult to keep tropical fish alive in a home fish tank.

-In April in the Republic of the Congo, Bernadette Obelebouli, 34, gave birth to triplets, but at the rate of one per day for three days during a 60-mile journey on foot. She assumed she was through birthing after she delivered the first one, but they kept coming. And in Vancouver, British Columbia, Joanne March, 29, gave birth prematurely to the first of her triplets on April 30, but doctors decided to leave the other two until they were healthier, and they were born on June 14.

-In April, The Sun newspaper in London reported that machinist Craig Eames, who had recently experienced constant, painful earaches, was completely cured when doctors removed a pregnant spider that had been nesting in the ear. Eames reportedly now wears earplugs when he sleeps, to prevent another incident, and has grown fond of the spider, which he retained as a pet.

-The Los Angeles Times reported in May that Billy Davis has upset his neighbors with excessive security precautions for his modest home in a middle-class neighborhood in Los Angeles County. To protect him and his wife, Fyrn, Davis has outfitted the unpretentious house with barred windows, video monitors, infrared alarms, razor wire, 26 outdoor 500-watt lights that flood into neighbors' homes at night, various "hair-trigger" alarm bells and sirens, and a Doberman. Local police say the Davises stay up all night because of fear of intruders and call police for help as much as 60 times a month.

-A Cincinnati woman charged recently that a 42-year-old man sexually assaulted her after taking advantage of a medical condition which usually causes her to faint when she hears the word "sex." Allegedly, the man accosted her in her apartment building, uttered the magic word, and then assaulted her after she fell to the floor. In a court appearance in July, the woman fainted twice when prosecutors used the word "sex" in descriptions of her condition.

-Lars Christiansen, 19, and Michael Peters, 25, charged in a German court in May with killing three men last year in a right-wing political firebombing, admitted they had joined the neo-Nazi movement in Germany. Peters had even left a "Hail, Hitler" phone message to the police after the firebombing. However, both men said they didn't hate anyone and had joined the movement only because of the friendship and "free beer."

Take the Intervarsity Teen Challenge and 'live in the light'

by John Martinec
Features Writer

Clarion University's Intervarsity will sponsor Teen Challenge on Friday, September 24, 1993. This special presentation will be held on the Gemmell outdoor stage, weather permitting. If weather is bad, it will be in the Multi-Purpose room in Gemmell.

Teen Challenge is a Christian organization who opens its doors to young men and women who have substance abuse problems. The main focus of the group is to help these people by introducing the Lord to them and letting Him heal the sickness which plagues their lives.

Teen Challenge was started by Assemblies of God Pastor David Wilkerson in 1958 who, after selling the family television, filled his evenings with prayer. One night Wilkerson felt the need to pray for some Brooklyn street gang members who were charged and put on trial for murder. The more he prayed for them the more he felt the urge to venture to New York to help them as much as he could. He arrived too late to be much help to the gang members on trial. However, the other members of the gang saw that his intentions were good and that he really wanted to help their friends. That good deed made the others in the gang want to listen to Wilkerson as he reached out to others on the streets.

Men and women who have substance abuse problems can be helped in one of two ways. The first is to change a person's environment. This method is followed by most secular treatment centers. Teen Challenge uses the second, which changes a person's outlook toward that environment.

Teen Challenge's methods seem to be working. Their nine-month residential program in rural Pennsylvania boasts a seventy percent cure rate. Compared with the ten to fifteen percent cure rate achieved by psychosociological clinics, Teen Challenge seems to be doing something right. Exactly what that something is is hard to explain, but some secular counterparts to Teen Challenge call it the "Jesus Factor".

The "Jesus Factor" is a very difficult thing to calculate. Other methods used by Teen Challenge are easier to explain. Teen Challenge uses a more intense definition for drug-free. Many places declare a person drug and alcohol-free if he consumes no more than a six-pack of beer, one bottle of wine or seven ounces of hard liquor a week. A person can even use marijuana a maximum of three times a month and still be considered drug-free.

Teen Challenge considers a person drug-free only when they use no drugs or alcohol at all- this includes nicotine. This could explain the fact that 86 percent of Teen Challenge graduates are still drug-free seven years after coming out of the program. Many graduates of Teen Challenge go on to college and some start their own businesses.

Teen Challenge also urges people to be tested for the life-threatening disease AIDS. They give people in high risk groups the confidence they need to want to get tested.

If you wonder what would make a group of people who usually hide from AIDS testing suddenly want to find out if they have the dreaded disease, the answer could be found in one man's remarks. He stated that his life of immorality, drugs and sex made him a target for AIDS. Teen Challenge helped him study the Bible and find the Lord. This made him want to change the things he wanted to do.

Reality taught the people who started Teen Challenge that they cannot change a murder, rapist or thief by themselves, only Jesus could do it. People who go through the program are taught to "live in the light" or live in group harmony through truth.

At present, there are 107 centers. Seventy-four offer residential care. Twenty-five are long term training centers. Enrollment to these centers is strictly voluntary. Anyone may leave at any time. The people who enter Teen Challenge do not need to be teenagers. Many people are past their teenage years. The type of person who joins has also changed. They are no longer just inner-city youths. Many come from middle to upper-class families.

Diane Geyer, president of Intervarsity, says Teen Challenge is "on fire for God" and she recommends that everyone come out to see them. She also invites anyone interested in Intervarsity to come join them for their weekly meetings. They are on Tuesday nights at 7:30 in the Gemmell Center, RACS room.

Teen Challenge promises to be a night of good Christian fellowship mixed with a frenzy of learning for everyone. This presentation is free and open to anyone ready to learn what God has done through Teen Challenge. There will also be a bonfire following at the Nair/Wilkinson fire rings.

German artist exhibit at Sanford Gallery

by Ron Santillo
Features Writer

The drypoint etchings of Bert Van Bork is the first exhibit of the year at the Sanford Gallery in Marwick-Boyd. The free exhibit is open to the public and continues until September 23. The Sanford Gallery is open from noon-5 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and noon-8 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

Born in Augustberg, Germany in 1928, Van Bork studied painting and graphic art at the Hochshcule/fur Bildrende Kunste, Berlin, and the Hochschule/fur Graphik and Buchkunst, Leipzig. The art of Van Bork is not only displayed in Germany, but internationally as well in London, Hawaii, Evanston and Chicago, Illinois, where he has lived and worked since 1954.

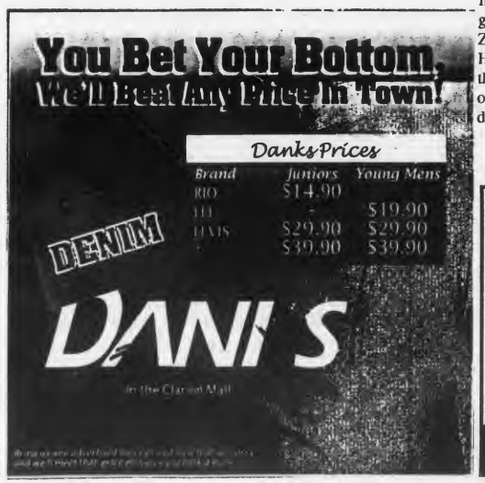

Van Bork has always shown a love for American cities, most notably the New York City skyline. For him the skyscraper is a symbol of aspiration and faith. He feels the skyline is not only a physical representation of its facts of life, but a potential work of art.

As for many artists, Van Bork has always had an interest in foreign cultures, especially that of the North American Indians. Van Bork first got a sense for the Indian cultures through the novels by Karl May.

Although he has shown great interest in the North American Indians, Van Bork admits that his greatest love is in the Hopi and Zuni cultures of the Southwest. He puts to use other objects in the city in a way similar to that of various painted Indian pottery designs.

Student Senator Profiles: Schaub and Thompson are one-hundred percent behind the student body

by Amy Gerkin
Features Editor

A common goal is pursued by two ambitious young senators: to make positive improvements for the students of Clarion University.

Amy Schaub, junior communication/ political science major, and Kelly Thompson, sophomore finance major, are two members of our Student Senate who are willing to represent the voices of the entire student body.

As chairperson of the Legislative Affairs Committee, Schaub hopes to convince more students to write letters to the State System of Higher Education. This committee keeps the student body aware of political situations on the local, state and federal levels which will affect the students.

Schaub is also a member of the Senate's Public Relations Committee and is a student representative of the Foundation Advisory Board. Other projects she and her fellow senators are working on include a time capsule to be buried during ALF, and getting a higher number of students to register to vote on campus.

The size of the university and the classes are what Schaub considers Clarion's best asset. "I am a person and not a number. If a professor sees me on campus, he or she knows that I'm in that class." She feels that "The extra-curricular activities Clarion offers so all students, no matter what they are interested in, can get involved," is also a plus.

However, as a senator, Schaub sees some apathy among the students. "More students need to get involved. It seems there are only a small majority who get involved and participate, not only in organizations, but also in campus issues."

Amy Schaub also feels that the students' needs should be taken more seriously. "The administration needs to remember first and foremost that we are students. Our education is important to us. Class sizes need to be kept small, class meeting times and services on campus should not be cut."

Besides being a student senator, Schaub is also a member of the Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, and is a resident assistant in Campbell Hall.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Amy Schaub and Kelly Thompson's goals are to make CUP an even better place to experience collegiate life.

Amy Schaub would like to address the student body by saying, "Many students feel the Student Senate does not do anything. However, after working on the Senate for four semesters, I can prove that is wrong. I just want everyone to know that we are here for you. We were elected to represent you."

Kelly Thompson, Senator

One of the primary reasons why Kelly Thompson chose to come to Clarion University was the friendly atmosphere created by the students and staff. But Thompson decided to run for Student Senate to try to improve even that.

Thompson feels that, "Clarion needs to be more responsive to the students' needs. The university does some things, but I feel that more attention should be focused on student concerns." Thompson also says that Clarion University is facing several problems, especially campus safety and cultural diversity.

Kelly Thompson is the chairperson for Student Senate's Appropriations Committee, which recommends to the Senate the allocation and distribution of any and/or all CSA (Clarion Students Association) funds. They also recommend to the Senate that, if necessary, audits be done for the financial needs of any or all student organizations, departments, or persons requesting or receiving allocations.

Thompson's goal for the Appropriations Committee is to affectively budget for all CSA organizations and to decide upon supplemental and capital requests made by those organizations. Her goal as a member of the Legislative Affairs Committee is to make the students aware of the legislation that affects them.

Other than being a student senator, Kelly Thompson is a member of the Financial Management Association, the Pre-Law Club, and Phi Eta Sigma honorary fraternity.

Creating the best possible collegiate experience for the students is one of Thompson's personal goals of being a senator. She would like to tell the students to "utilize the university resources, to go to the activities that are offered, and to get involved in some campus organizations."

Both Kelly Thompson and Amy Schaub are just two of the 20 student senators who will make sure that all students' issues, complaints, concerns or recognitions will be taken care of.

English Dept. honors student authors

by Philip DiFrancesco
Features Writer

It was time for the English Department and last year's students of English 105 and 111 to shine and shine they did.

The English Department honored its student authors on Tuesday, September 21 at the Gemmell Student Center. On hand to present the awards was Dr. Larry Dennis, Head of the English Department. Also on hand was Vince Straub representing Harper-Collins Publishers, which publishes the English textbooks.

The essays of the 37 students who were honored were selected on the basis of organization, content and voice. They were published in two separate books, Clarion Voices: English 105, and Clarion Voices: English 111. These books will then be used for next year's students taking these respective classes.

Others in the audience were the beaming professors. Each professor who was recognized by a student couldn't help themselves from having a huge smile appear on his or her face. Nor should they have to; it was a proud day. This was definitely a time for the English Department to pat itself on the back. Dr. Dennis summed it up by saying, "I believe writing is the backbone of the English Department."

Since many of the essays weren't able to be published in this year's editions, they were saved for next year, which will bring many of these same students back for another award.

This year's award winners were in English 105: James Alcorn, Jennifer Alcott, Jill Brady, Kyle Burgess, Kara DeFassio, Patricia Deibler, Patricia Geiger, Eric Hale, Tina Hartle, Erick Hecksher, Paul Hite, Mike Hodil, Wendy McKain, Sarmed Mirza, Sheila Morris, DeAnna Niedbala, Melissa Porter, Donna Reinsel, Brian Rowan, Mark Schmitt, and Thomas Terza.

The winners of English 111 were: Amy M. Banner, Marcus P. Bingham (2), Debbie FitzGerald, Melissa Gruver-Crawford, Erin Hawk, Rebecca Hetrick, Christine Hunt, Theresa Kinsinger, Kathleen Lippert, Jay Marshall, Kristen Molek, Malcolm X. Mosely, Brenna Phillips, Evan S. Pippen, Becky Shirey (2), and Thomas L. Terza.

Congratulations to all the students who were honored at this event.

Eagles drop to 0-2

Clarion comeback falls short, 35-23

By Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

28-0. That was the score before the Golden Eagles managed to put a single point on the board against New Haven on Saturday; not a very good beginning when you're trying to beat the number two ranked team in the country.

By that time, New Haven running back Roger Graham had amassed the majority of his 223 rushing yards, and had scored three of the four New Haven TD's.

Clarion wasn't without opportunities, however. The Eagles' Paul Cramer missed two long field goals of 47 and 42 yards, and his 46 yarder at the end of the half was partially blocked. This, along with four turnovers in the first half, gave the dangerous New Haven offense the position to strike quickly.

The wet field, which coach Gene Sobolewski described as a "quagmire," may have hindered Clarion's game. Sobolewski felt that, although the defense played well, New Haven's offense could better handle the slippery field conditions; especially the explosive Graham, who finished with 310 all-purpose yards on the day. "He's one of the best tailbacks I've ever seen," Sobolewski said.

Despite the lopsided score, the Eagles played well offensively. They rolled up 398 total yards with quarterbacks Chris Zak and Craig Ray combining for 255 yards and back Damien Henry rushing for 122.

When the Eagle's finally did score, they did it in an impressive fashion. Starting at their own 35 with seven minutes left in the third quarter, fullback Art Gregory rushed for nine yards. On the next play Zak hit Marlon Worthy for a 49 yard gain to the New Haven seven yard line, and Henry ran around the right side on the ensuing play to erase the goose egg on the score board under VISITOR.

Zak hit tight end Tim Brown for the two point conversion.

Clarion cut the point differential to 13 early in the 4th quarter. The Eagles ran the ball five times to get down to the New Haven two where Gregory punched it in. After the extra point the score was 28-15.

The Clarion defense was stifling the powerful Charger offense, and after pinning New Haven deep in their own territory, the Eagles had forced them to punt. Great field position was almost certain for the Eagles, and slowly but surely, the momentum was swaying Clarion's way. Then, disaster struck.

The New Haven punt was short, and return specialist Marlon Worthy opted to let it drop. After a short discussion, The officials ruled that the ball had hit Worthy on the leg. The Clarion sideline vehemently argued that the ball did not touch Worthy, but to no avail. "It was one of the worst calls I've ever seen," Sobolewski said later. New Haven recovered. Clarion never would.

With field position on the Clarion 17, New Haven soon extended their lead to 35-17.

Zak organized a well- designed two minute drill, hitting Jess Quinn three times while marching down the field. With six seconds left in the game, he found Quinn again, this time for a touchdown, but it was too little too late. The clock ran out on the Eagles with the final score standing at 35-23.

Although they fell behind early, the Eagles played well, and thoroughly outplayed the number two ranked Chargers over the final quarter and a half.

A few early mistakes hurt the Eagles' chances, but their late surge may be the spark that ignites an Eagle winning streak.

Next week, the Eagles will visit Westminster, a team that beat Clarion 21-11 last year. The Titans entered last week's action as the number one ranked team in the NAIA, but lost 21-15 on Saturday to last year's NAIA champion and third ranked Findlay.

"Westminster once again has an outstanding football team," Sobolewski said. "They are an extremely well coached football team that has established a great tradition. If you're going to beat a Westminster team, you have to go out and win it, because they don't beat themselves. We'll have to play an error free game to win."

The Titans are led by quarterback Sean O'Shea, who has completed 28 of 46 for 382 yards thus far.

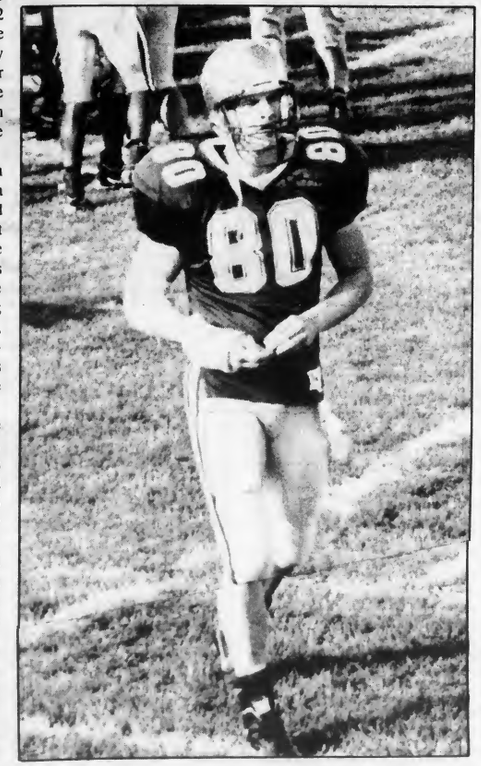

His top receivers are Matt Sofran and Tim [illegible], each [illegible] receptions in 1993.

The running game is solid with tailback Andy Blatt and fullback Matt Buggey accumulating 141 and 109 yards respectively.

Westminster, as usual, thrives on their defense. The "D" is averaging a stingy 96.5 passing yards allowed per game, while surrendering 206.5 on the ground.

Clarion's "D" is allowing 147.5 through the air and 235 on the ground.

Kickoff is set for 1 PM.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call

Tight end Ryan Alleman (80) and the Clarion Golden Eagles will trot into Westminster on Saturday , desperately seeking a win for a chance at the Div. II playoffs in December.

Eagles drop to 1-5

By Tondelaya Carey
Sportswriter

One year ago, the Clarion University tennis team was 4-1 at this time in the year and coasting to another stellar season. 1993 is taking a different shape for the Eagles, as Clarion lost its third in a row on Monday and has now lost five of its last six.

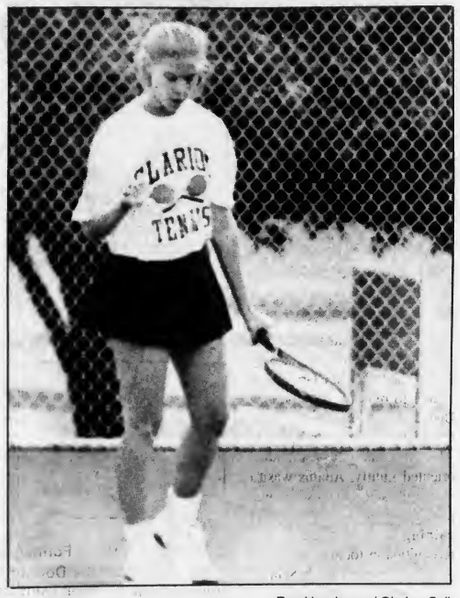

The Eagles fought long and hard at Mercyhurst but came up short, 6-3. Roxann Milton was responsible for two of Clarion's three points, winning her singles match 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, and then teaming with Sara Unkefer for a 6-2, 7-6(8-6) doubles victory. Shara Wolkimir was the other Eagle winner with a brilliant 6-1, 6-2 victory.

Clarion next visited the powerful California Vulcans. The Eagles could manage only one point and suffered a brutal 8-1 setback. The lone point was scored by the duo of Wolkimir and Melodi Dess who upped their season doubles mark to 3-1.

Clarion played in only its second home match of the season on Monday. The University of Pittsburgh was the opponent and a 6-3 loss was the result. Wolkimir destroyed her opponent 6-0, 6-0 while Unkefer quietly pulled away with a 0-6, 6-3, 7-5 win. Wolkimir and Dess collected yet another doubles victory as they teamed for a 6-2, 6-4 win.

Wolkimir leads the Eagles with a 4-2 singles record, while Kristen McKinley and Sara Unkefer have accumulated 3-3 slates for 1993.

The Golden Eagles will take their 1-5 overall record into the first of five straight PSAC tilts. Slippery Rock visited Clarion on Wednesday, and then the Eagles migrate for a three day road trip in which they will swoop upon Shippensburg, Edinboro and Indiana. The PSAC's will be held at Allentown, Oct. 14-16.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM LOSES NINTH STRAIGHT

Eagles digging themselves a hole

by Debbie Adams
Sportswriter

After playing ten consecutive road games, the Clarion University women's volleyball team finally had a chance to play in front of the home folk on Thursday.

Robert Morris came to Tippin Gymnasium and the Colonials beat the Eagles three games to two. After losing the first two sets by scores of 2-15 and 14-16, the Eagles clawed back to win the third set 15-6, then won the fourth, 16-14. An exciting fifth set had several lead changes, but in the end, it was the Colonials who prevailed, 15-11.

Lisa Flynn led the Eagles in digs with 16 and Beth Tress shoveled out five. Co-captain Meghan Kelly ended the day with 17 assists.

On Tuesday, Clarion completed its extended two day homestand with a battle against Lock Haven. The Eagles dropped their ninth straight with a 7-15, 2-15, 7-15 setback.

Katie Rhodes had 30 set assists and Lisa Flynn nailed eight service aces for Clarion. Meghan Kelly continued her fine work by collecting 31 digs.

The Eagles will try to end their nine game slide at Mercyhurst on Friday. The next home game will be held on October 5 against IUP.

Intramural rosters for volleyball and soccer are due by 3:00 on Friday, Sept. 24

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

After years of INT's, Adams picks baseball

by Jon Q. Sitler
Contributing writer

During his two full seasons of football at Clarion University from 1989-91, Billy Adams amassed 95 tackles (59 solo), three interceptions, one sack, broke up 15 passes and caused a fumble as a cornerback and free safety. He totaled 100 yards on punt returns and 386 yards on 21 kick returns.

During that same period of time in baseball, Adams collected ZERO home runs, ZERO runs batted in and ZERO steals in ZERO at bats. He didn't play college baseball.

Now a trivia question: Did Clarion graduate Bill Adams recently sign a professional contract with the Los Angeles Raiders or was it the Los Angeles Dodgers?

The most obvious answer is, surprisingly, the wrong one.

This 24-year-old left-handed outfielder, who lettered in only football and track at Clarion, was signed to play pro baseball by Dodger scout Lon Joyce (South Carolina) in June of 1993.

Despite coming from a football oriented family, Adams wasn't supposed to become a successful football player, either. Even after gaining All-Conference recognition in football his senior year at Red Lion High School, people still told him that he was too small to play big-time football. It was obvious that Division I football programs would pass on this 135 pound, "dripping wet" high school graduate. However, telling Billy Adams that he couldn't accomplish something was a big mistake.

Fresh out of high school and only thinking football, Adams played two years at Stevens Tech (Lancaster) and was looking to make an impression.

It was here where Adams began to physically mature. An increase in size and experience opened Clarion's proverbial football eyes.

But did this dedication to football almost make Adams miss his calling (baseball)? "I wouldn't say I regret [not playing college baseball], but if I had it to do over again, I would play," said Adams. "But I have to be happy about the situation, the way things have turned out."

Following his graduation from Clarion with a degree in Business Management, Adams moved to North Carolina. It was here where he would soon be made aware of an Atlanta Braves tryout in Durham. "I was in the best shape of my life, so I said what the heck," explained Adams, who played baseball and football as well as wrestled in high school.

Adams, who can run the forty yard dash in 4.4 seconds, noted that speed is his "main asset." His sixty yard dash to open the tryout paved the way.

The Braves organization expressed great interest but was hesitant to sign a 24-year-old. Surprised by the interest, Adams seriously dedicated himself to the idea of playing professionally. After receiving more interest in his second and third tryouts, these with the Marlins and Cubs, along came the Dodgers.

Following the successful tryout in Carolina, the Dodgers invited Adams to a second tryout in Vero Beach, Florida. They wanted to see his adjustment to a wooden bat in a two-day affair. "When I heard that they had invited me to a second tryout, I hurried up and went to the cage," said Adams. "I had never used a wooden bat before."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Bo don't know Billy: Former Clarion football standout Billy Adams will don the Dodger blue in 1994 after signing a minor league baseball contract in early June.

This time, all eyes were on him. But, despite being nervous, he was satisfied with the second tryout. He would have been happy with any decision.

The day after he got back to North Carolina, he got the call. Adams didn't hesitate to sign.

When asked what his favorite sport was, Adams couldn't answer (even after just signing a pro contract in baseball). Football will always be a major interest in his life. As evidenced by the first day he came back to visit Clarion this fall.

The first place he went was to Memorial Stadium to watch the Golden Eagles practice. He followed that up by catching a Clarion-Limestone high school football game that night.

Realistically, Adams says that there is more of a future for him in baseball, or at least more of a present. After breaking his thumb during the 1990-91 football season, he started thinking more about baseball. His focus on Golden Eagle football, however, kept him off of the diamond.

For Adams, baseball and football comes second to his family, whose positive reinforcement played a part in forming his competitive frame of mind.

He holds his father in high regard for being the person who always made dreams look believable. Adams said that he always had someone setting goals for him, whether it was his family or coaches. "I'm always looking to go a step further," Adams said. "There's no way I'm satisfied."

Adams will be assigned to the Dodgers single A club in Vero Beach. He's already had about three weeks experience with the club (at the end of the 1993 season) in a league known for pitching. He worked "hours upon hours" with the hitting instructor. He was adjusting and learning through the whole experience. Improving every swing, Adams stroked a three-run double and a three-run homer in his final few at bats.

That was last season. "My goal for 1994 is to go to spring training in tip-top shape and make an impact from day one," said Adams. "My foot's already in the door and I'm on equal footing with everyone else."

Adams joins former Clarion pitcher Brad Frazier in pro baseball. Frazier was signed by the Florida Marlins in 1992.

After spending his first professional season (1992) with the Marlins' short-season single A team in Erie, Frazier went 5-0 against tougher competition in Kane County, Ill. He was used as a reliever in lefty versus lefty situations.

"It was a good experience," said Frazier. "It was the longest period of time I've been away from home. I'll know more about my status with the Marlins for 1994 come January."

Undefeated Dawgs refusing to roll over and play dead

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

Wow! Remember last week when I said I had chewed my fingernails off from the excitement? Well, I'm now down to the knuckles. Week three in the NFL was what football truly is; an exciting, fast-paced journey with an unknown ending that keeps the audience breathless.

In Los Angeles, Eric Metcalf brought his Browns back from 16-0 to win in the last six seconds, 19-16. In Philly, sharpshooter Randall Cunningham hit Gizmo Williams in the back of the endzone on the last play of the game to win an uncharacteristic NFC East shootout, 34-31 against the Skins. I thought they played defense in the NFC East! And how about those never-say-die Falcons, who just seemed to "hang in there" against the 49ers in another NFC West clash, finally bowing out at 37-30. Who says the NFL isn't fun?

Hey, Modell's Browns seem to be for real. With Sunday's comeback, the Dawgs have proved they can win on the road and against quality teams like the Silver and Black. Cleveland is playing "NFC style" defense with Michael Dean Perry and Jerry Ball up front and LB's David Brandon and Mike Johnson in the middle. Who would have guessed that the Dawgs would start off 3-0, their best start since 1979? Not me. After Sunday's heroics, people might start referring to the Browns as "the Cardiac kids," a name the men of Cleveland inherited in the early 80's for their last second miracles.

The NFC East seems to be back in form. Both the Giants and Eagles are carrying perfect records. Philadelphia earned theirs the hard way by rising from the depths of defeat with a miraculous TD pass with four seconds left. Wide receiver Calvin "Gizmo" Williams snagged his third TD catch of the day from Randall Cunningham in a wild and whacky 34-31 track meet at the Vet. Experts have said it many times. I'll restate it: The best football in the NFL is played in the NFC East. Hey folks, the last three Super Bowl Champs are from this division.

How about the NFC West? Not bad either. The Saints are posting a 3-0 record, but the Niners are like a cobra, they can strike quick and with deadly results. Just ask Jerry "I bought tickets for Elvis" Glanville, who watched with the "king" as the lights on the scoreboard were lit up to their fullest. You could tell that whoever had the ball last would win this track meet as Falcons' QB Bobby Hebert and the Niners' Steve Young combined for 6 touchdowns and over 300 yards passing. Young was even able to make some highlight reel material by throwing and catching his own pass! Trust me, you had to see it to believe it! Reason enough to be NFL MVP.

In other notes around the league, San Diego kicker John Carney kicked away Morten Anderson's one week old record for consecutive field goals by nailing six against Houston, upping his total to 29 in a row and giving his Chargers a one point squeaker.

Seattle rookie QB Rick Mirer threw his first NFL TD pass against the winless Patriots, a 4 yarder to wideout Brian Blades.

And hey, we've got to mention those Chiefs, who were also playing one fine defensive game! "The Sackman" Derrick Thomas, and a tenacious pass rush kept John "the Duke" Elway in check in a hype filled Monday night clash. The NFL's most accurate kicker, Nick Lowery, booted 5 field goals to lift Kansas City to a 15-7 victory. Mr. Montana made his home debut and was rudely shutout by an impressive Denver defense which didn't allow Joe a TD pass.

Finally, and probably the happiest news in western Pennsylvania, was the Steelers' offense, which finally came out of the cave, and racked up 404 yards as Cowher Power finally discovered where that mythical "0" was hiding. Time will only tell just how long the "0" will stay discovered, as the black and gold head to the Georgia Dome for a Monday Night matchup against Glanville's Falcons. Wouldn't it be nice to make reservations at the Georgia Dome for January 30, 1994? Ah yes, it's fun to daydream in class., isn't it?

Fiscus shoots 71 at Slippery Rock

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

On Monday, September 20, the Golden Eagle golf team finished up the Hal Hansen Memorial tournament at Treasure Lake Country Club in Dubois, PA.

In a field of 11 teams, the Clarion "Blue" team finished fifth overall with a 667 and the Clarion "Gold" team placed seventh, shooting a 686. On a course that golfer Brian Fiscus described as, "really hard and really tight," Andy Ganoe topped the Clarion field with a two-day total of 162, good for eighth overall. The next best Clarion golfer was Chris Brosius, who finished 15th with 165.

Earlier, the Golden Eagles travelled to the Slippery Rock Invitational. The Blue team shot a 318 for ninth place, and the Gold team placed 12th out of 14 with 327.

Fiscus, who described this course as "much easier than Dubois," had an outstanding day, shooting a 71. This earned him the runner-up medal.

The Eagles, yet to capture a first this year, will be at the Edinboro Invitational Thursday.

Breindel and Stecklair lead way

Cross Country squad making great strides

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Captains Megan Stecklair and Russ Breindel have led the Clarion University cross-country team to three impressive performances in 1993, and rumors of a trip to Massachusetts and an appearance at Regionals are sifting around the clubhouse.

For Clarion to advance to Regionals, the Eagles must finish in the top five out of all PSAC schools.

"This is the best girl's team we've had at Clarion in a long time," stated Stecklair, "We have great team unity and are working on all running together."

Stecklair is joined by returners Lisa Griffo, Jen Gleason, Jen Dansberger, Lynn Baluh and Brandee Payne, and by newcomers Lisa Benlock and Kara Schwotzer who add a lot of depth and ability to the team according to Stecklair.

On Saturday, the Eagles competed in the IUP Invitational and finished the 3.2 mile course in impressive style. Griffo finished 25th out of 100 runners with Stecklair coming in 37th.

The men were led by Chad Briggs who finished 51st out of 130 and Scott Reffner who was the 53rd to cross the end line.

The women finished 8th and the men placed 11th out of twelve schools.

The Golden Eagles will next be in action Saturday, September 25 at Geneva College. The Eagles will host the Alumni meet on October 9.

The PSAC championships are scheduled for October 30 at Bloomsburg.

Do SAT scores accurately predict collegiate academic success?

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

The Scholastic Aptitude Test has been officially renamed the Scholastic Assessment Test, beginning this year, and has undergone other changes in form and content.

But are the name change and the related testing changes significant, or are they really just semantics? So far, the verdict is still out.

"The new name for the SAT sends a clear message to this [nation's] diverse group of students that the test is measuring their knowledge and skills, not something innate," said Dolores Cross, president of Chicago State University and a trustee of the College Board.

The first use of the new SAT will take place on March 19, 1994, and the initial version of the PSAT, the shorter version given to high school juniors and sophomores, will be administered on Oct. 12 and 16, 1993.

"The new SAT is repackaging. It's putting tail fins on the Edsel."

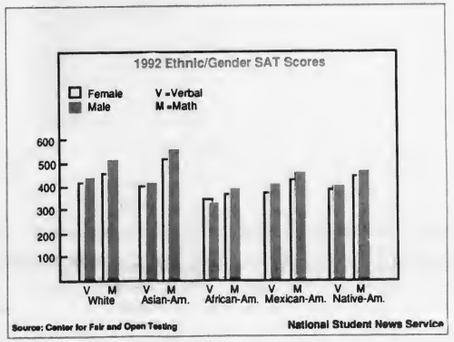

The revised test will place more emphasis upon reading and writing skills and require students to answer open-ended math questions.

According to the College Board, scores on the new test should be similar to those from the old test.

"It's hard to say what [the new test] will mean," said John Shropshire, director of admissions for Clarion University. "The next couple of years will be big question marks."

"In time, high schools and colleges will adjust," said Shropshire. "It's hard to say what colleges or Clarion University will do until we have a test run."

Some civil rights and standardized testing watchdog groups claim the changes are nothing more than a gloss coating to a product in need of repair.

"The new SAT is repackaging," said Bob Schaeffer, director of the National Center for Fair and Open Testing (FairTest). "It's putting tail fins on the Edsel."

One analysis by FairTest said that 71% of the verbal test and 83% of the math test will remain essentially as is.

In a recent publication, the College Board admitted that, "the new SAT and the current SAT have more similarities than differences."

"Instead of dealing with the SAT's serious flaws—its biases, inaccuracy, coachability and irrelevance to sound college admissions practices—the College Board has decided to make minor changes and give it a new name," said Schaeffer.

"Standardized tests have been used to exclude low-income and minority group girls and boys from educational opportunities," said Dr. Beverly Cole, education director for the NAACP.

The old test is biased, said Shropshire, in that it is skewed toward the math and sciences, in which a higher percentage of boys enroll than girls. If girls took the same courses as boys, the scores would balance. "Fact is, girls actually have higher grades, "Shropshire said.

The test is more a reflection of the courses the student took throughout high school than a reflection of any innate ability, said Shropshire. Large suburban schools that have a large number of honors and advanced placement courses to offer, will have students with a better background to take the test. Rural and urban schools that cannot offer those courses to their students will fare worse on the test, he said.

But, said Shropshire, "It's all tied to the curriculum. The new set-up most likely will not change that. If [students] don't have the background, they won't do any better on the new [test] than the old."

The College board agrees. "The trustees (of the College Board) wished to correct the impression among some people that the SAT measures something innate and impervious to change regardless of effort or instruction," said Donald M. Stewart, president of the College Board. "We wanted to emphasize more clearly that the SAT measures verbal and mathematical skills that are developed over time both in and out of school."

According to 1993 statistics from the College Board, suburban high school mean SAT scores topped rural schools by 62 points and urban schools by 59 points. 32% of all SAT takers come from suburban high schools, 12% from rural schools and 23% from urban schools.

What this means, Shropshire said, is that generally suburban

Two thefts reported in Clarion

The Clarion Borough Police are investigating a burglary at High Gear Bike Shop, 34 South 5th Avenue in Clarion. According to a police report, the burglary occurred in the early morning hours on Sunday. The burglars gained access through a second story construction area. 3 Cannondale bicycles, numerous Oakley sunglasses, clothing, boots, tents and back packs were taken. The value of the stolen items is estimated at $6,690.36.

Also, the Clarion borough Police are investigating a theft from a wallet lost in the Dollar General Store at 609 Main Street. Shirley Clever of Marienville lost her wallet at 11:20 a.m. on Tuesday.

When she found the wallet 20 minutes later, $60 in cash had been removed from the wallet. At the time, the store was crowded.

Rodney Sherman

RINGGGGG.....RINGGGGG....

"Hello"

"Mister Sherman?"

"Yes."

"Hello, Mister Sherman, this is John Fleecem, of Fleecem and Skiptown Publishers. We were just looking over your manuscript for a new printing of 'Little Red Riding Hood' and we need to clear up a few things here and there. You know, a couple of minor changes."

"Well thanks Mister Fleecem, I wrote out the story because I couldn't find a version of it at the bookstore. I wanted a copy for my niece. I thought there might be other people out there who would be interest-"

"That's great Rodney. May I call you Rodney? Great. There's just a few problems we should fix. You know, to make it... Acceptable under today's standards."

"You mean politically correct?"

"You're a heterosexual white male aren't you, Mister Sherman? We can tell by your bias and unsensitive manuscript. But look, we just want to make the story something that won't offend anyone. We'll touch it up and then run it past the new liberal NEA board and Hillary and Bill's social engineering commission and then get back to you."

"I don't know, I kind of like the story the way-"

"It's just a few minor word choices Mister Sherman, of course we will have to give the little girl a name. To judge and nick-name a person because of the clothes they wear could give the kid a complex. We don't need the child psychiatrists on our backs. How about Jen?"

"Jen?"

"Yeah it's a very popular name right now in schools. Half the young girls in America are named Jen."

"I kind of like-"

"Great, now Rodney, may I call you Rodney? Great. Now you have Jen being sent to her grandmother's house by her mother. We'll have to fix that. Jen's mother really should be a new age working, oops, I mean new age career woman. We'll have Jen slip away from her government provided day care worker."

The Way I See It

Copy and Design Editor

There is an ever-increasing phenomenon plaguing college students today. It is the problem of Common Sense Deprivation Disorder(CSDD). CSDD is the inability to take learned knowledge and apply it to real life situations.

This university is comprised of close to 6,000 highly knowledgeable students. The problem, however, is that few have the common sensical ability to use their learnings outside of the classroom. Knowledge is gained through the learning of facts, theories, and introspection—among other ways (ask someone in the Philosophy or Psychology departments).

The lack of common sense is what gives students a bad name. Common sense is the application of the above knowledge to daily occurances such as working at a job, making decisions, shopping, dining, and conversing with others. Much of the common sense wisdom that we need is gained at home from birth until high school graduation, but it is seemingly lost after the first semester away at college.

The following are examples of CSDD:

1. Groups of 4 or 5 people congregating in front of a doorway into a building—just chatting.

2. In fast food restaurants, persons come right to the counter and take five minutes to decide what they want while a line of ten people wait behind them.

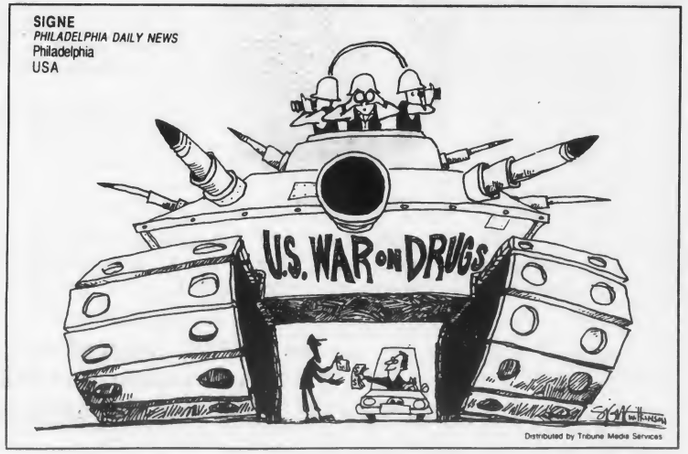

3. After listening and taking notes for 45 minutes, a student asks, "Is this going to be on the test?"

The above situations are very trivial and simplistic. There are definitely more serious ones. I do not know the reasons for CSDD, perhaps the results of being alone for the first time, but I do think college could be used to better prepare students.

Courses could be offered such as "Life Applications" to set up scenarios for the students to solve the best outcome. Some instructors do give us some help in applying knowledge through essay questions and group exercises, but these only work for the field in which we are entering.

I am certainly not one to talk when it comes to common sense, I have made my share of mistakes--my college career would probaly have been about three years shorter otherwise--but I have learned from them and hopefully grown along with the learning process.

Have an enjoyable week ahead and use your heads.

schools can afford to offer the advanced courses that promote better scores on the test. Rural and urban schools often are not able to provide the same variety in courses.

According to the College Board, SAT scores were lower than the national average in urban and rural areas "where the percentages of students with 20 or more year-long academic courses were smaller than the percentage in suburban areas." In the same areas, the scores of students with the same amount of academic courses were comparable to those in suburban areas.

"In general, the higher the percentage of students taking the test, the lower the average scores," said a statement about cautions on the use of aggregated SAT scores by the College Board.

In states where a very small percentage of high school seniors take the test, generally only the students with strong academic backgrounds intending to enter selective colleges or scholarship programs take the test, thereby elevating the average score.

"The scores continue to mirror the socioeconimic split between the well-educated of all races and the rest of society," Stewart said.

Current high school students, though, may take the test more as a matter of ritual than for any benefit they feel they can glean from its content.

"I figure I have to take them," said junior Erin Weiland, at Butler Senior High School in Butler, PA.

"I don't like [the SAT]. There is too much emphasis on one test," said Jennifer Vaughn, a senior also at Butler Senior High School. "I don't see how colleges can base your whole career on how you do one morning."

Senior Patrick Blaine of Slippery Rock High School, Slippery Rock, PA, said, "I don't think there's too much [emphasis] placed on it. There could be less, but it's just about right."

"The SAT helps to measure intelligence," said Senior Adam Ketler, of Grove City High School, Grove City, PA. "[But] even then it's not great. It'll show someone who's a complete idiot, [but] you don't take just one big test to get through college."

The SAT is only one of several components the admissions department considers when admitting a student, said Shropshire. Also considered are class rank, grade point average, profile of the high school and recommendations.

"The SAT is such a barometer. It gets so much publicity that people think it's such a great forecaster," said Shropshire. "It's not a test that tests your ability to do college work. It never tested motivation."

At present, there are more than 100 college and universities in the U.S. that do not require admissions tests, including the California State Universities and Harvard Business School.

"There is an overemphasis on the SATs in many areas," said Janet A. Lavin, associate director of admissions at Bowdoin College, which made the SAT optional in 1989.

Research at the University of Pennsylvania called aptitude tests "redundant when good measures of past performance are available," citing that high school grades and achievement test scores were the best predictors of college grades.

Shropshire does not predict that Clarion will drop the SAT from its admissions criteria.

"I don't know Mister Fleecem, couldn't she be sent by her father? I could see my way to write him in as a house-husband."

"No, that's no good, Mister Sherman, everyone knows that men are deadbeats now-days, we'll write him in as having skipped out on them. Or better yet, Jen's mother could have had her as a lifestyle choice, you know, like Murphy Brown. Yeah. That's it!"

"Uh, well-"

"Great, now Rodney, may I call you Rodney? Great, now the snacks that Jen is taking to Grandma, cookies, cakes, pudding, and pie. That won't work. Better fill that basket with rice cakes, nuts, and lowfat, high protein, low sodium, genuine artificial bran muffins. Maybe throw in a bottle of imported spring water. Have it all packaged in environmentally safe, re-cycled containers. No plastic stuff. And make sure the basket wasn't made in a third world country by exploited workers."

"I guess I could-"

"Great, now you have Little Red Riding Hood stopping to-"

"You mean Jen."

"Oh yeah, Jen. You have Jen stopping to pick flowers for grandma, kill that idea, the nature conservationists would rip us apart. This part won't get past Al Gore. Have Jen BUY some flowers, maybe at a minority owned shop. And get some sun screen on the kid. She's outside in the sun, and we have that hole in the ozone layer debate."

"Sun-screen?"

"Great, now Mister Sherman, about this 'big, bad, wolf', you know out west we have that group, PAGWABR, you know, People Against Giving Wolfs A Bum Rap. They aren't going to like the way you portrayed the wolf.

"Why is the wolf bad? Because he has been repressed, suppressed, hunted, pushed off his land, and called nasty names. He is a victim, not a villain. Better find another animal to chase Jen."

"A different animal? I don't-"

"That's the spirit, how about a chicken? You know, a sweet little chicken who is exposed to illegally dumped toxic waste during the horrible 80s. That way it's not the chickens fault that he turned evil."

"A mutant chicken?"

"I knew you would love it. Now Rodney, it is Rodney isn't it, about grandma's house, it's great that you show grandma living independently and on her own, but what is she doing at home all day? Let's get her out doing volunteer work or maybe teaching an aerobics class.

"And one other correction, we better not refer to her as a kind 'old' lady. Dump the 'old' and maybe say 'chronologically gifted'. And make sure the neighborhood is ethnically diversified."

"Is that all? I mean you-"

"Now that you mention it, it's this thing about the wolf... I mean chicken, wearing Grandmas clothes to fool Jen. That is going to upset the ASOCDWASOBPAKODTTS."

"The ASOCDWASOBPAKODTTS?"

"Yeah, the American Society Of Cross Dressers Who Are Sick Of Being Portrayed As Kooks On Day Time Talk Shows. We don't need them picketing outside our bookstores. Cross dressers must be shown in a positive light now."

"I see, maybe we should just forget-"

"And about this lumber-jack coming to the rescue with an axe. Two big problems here buddy, can I call you buddy? Great, now about that lumberjack, he is a no-no. Lumber-jacks cut down trees and spotted owls live in trees. Of course cutting down trees leads to the greenhouse effect. Let's make a homeless man with a tender and loving heart, who is a victim of a cold and cruel capitalistic society.

"Have to ditch the axe. We don't need trouble with the AMANP."

"I'm afraid to ask."

"Axe Murderers Against Negative Publicity."

"I must have forgotten."

"One more thing Rodney, I can call you Rodney right?, the closing line, 'And they lived happily ever after.' Has to go. No-one lives happily in America any more. Gloom and doom is the thing to dwell on now. Change it to 'They lived happily until the next Republican president?"

"I don't know, I-"

"Great, now we thought you could re-work the three little pigs....."

Gaining insights into European culture

©The Miami Herald

Recently, in an effort to gain insights into the European currency crisis, not to mention large quantities of weight, my family and I went to Italy.

Our plan was to rent a car and drive around on winding, picturesque Italian roads. Because we are international travel sophisticates, we went in the middle of August, which is when the entire population of Italy, including statues, goes on vacation. It turns out that the No. 1 Italian vacation activity is to get in a car and drive around on winding, picturesque roads, at approximately the speed of light.

When we picked up our car in Rome, I asked a man for directions; he told me to start by driving the wrong way up a one-way street. "Isn't that a one-way street?" I asked. "Yes," he said, shrugging. "But who reads the signs?"

As far as I could tell, in 10 days of driving around Italy, there is only one strict traffic regulation: You are NOT allowed to be behind another motorist. If somebody is in front of you, you MUST, by law, get past this person, even if you are on a winding, hillside road the width of a strand of No. 8 spaghetti, next to a humongous cliff. Several times I was passed by drivers who, as far as I could tell, got past me by driving right off the cliff's edge, so that their cars were briefly hanging right out in space.

We were on many small roads, because we stayed in some picturesque hill village built a thousand years ago by people who put massive stone walls around them to indicate that these villages were never intended for automobile traffic. But you have to try to drive in them anyway, to reach your hotel. To do this, you follow a series of arrows, apparently put up by prankster villagers, which lead you through a winding maze of streets, sometimes passing the same point four or five times before reaching the center of the town, where the pranksters laugh as you inch your car through streets so narrow that they make the winding, hillside road look like the New Jersey turnpike, with stone walls practically scraping your car on both sides and even overhead, so that you appear to be driving inside ancient Roman air-conditioning ducts, clenching the wheel in terror, convinced that you're about to drive into somebody's living room.

Once we reached the hotel, we did fine, thanks to my sophisticated international knowledge of Italian. I had memorized the Italian expressions for "I do not speak Italian," and "Do you speak English?" As a result, on two occasions, I strode confidently up to the hotel desk person and stated, in crude Italian, "I do not speak English."

Fortunately, the Italians are low on snoot, so we were treated well despite comunicating like tourist versions of Tonto ("We stay in room with toilet, yes?"). We ate many wonderful meals in the Italian style, wherein they keep bringing you more courses, and when you finally stagger away from the table, they follow you to your room and stuff food into your mouth while you sleep.

But of all our experiences, the one I remember most vividly was when we were in the Dolomite Alps, an area of historical importance and spectacular natural beauty, and I realized -- as perhaps such visitors as Hannibal and Napoleon had realized before me -- that our passports were missing. So I reported this loss to the local police, who typed up and handed me a detailed document that I believe said, in Italian: "The people holding this document have no idea what it says, but it will certainly get them out of our hair. Thank you."

In my sophistication, I actually believed that this document would be an adequate replacement for our passports. You can imagine how comical this seemed to the authorities when we got to the Milan airport and attempted to leave Italy. So our plane took off without us, and we got to spend a whole extra day in Italy, rearranging our travel plans and trying to prove to the American Consulate that we were Americans and should be permitted to return home. During this process, I thought a lot about Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman, whom our government cheerfully admitted despite the fact that he listed his occupation, on his visa application, as "Terrorist Loon."

Not that I am bitter. Anyway, we eventually go home, bringing with us valuable insights into the European currency situation, the main one being that if you go over there, you should take a lot of it.

Sexual assault: What to do if it happens

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

With the increased awareness of sexual assault by Clarion University students, there is some confusion among students about the terms used in sexual assault cases and the procedures that take place after an assault occurs.

Sexual assault is an act of violence. Victims need immediate help, both physically and emotionally. The trauma of rape is overwhelming and the systems that a victim must deal with after an attack can be intimidating.

According to a new pamphlet being distributed by Public Safety, the first priority is to seek medical attention. A victim of sexual assualt could suffer external or internal injuries that require immediate attention. A medical examination could also provide important evidence of rape for prosecution.

Public Safety will assist a victim in getting to medical assistance. If Public Safety cannot transport a victim directly to the hospital, an ambulance can be called. The Rape Crisis Center (RCC, 226-RAPE, or hot line 911) also provides a trained staff to assist a victim.

The goal of the Rape Crisis Center is to help all victims of rape understand the inner emotional reactions and the medical and legal systems that come into play once the crime has occurred.

A medical examination is conducted at Clarion Hospital following a reported rape. If the victim wishes to keep the option of prosecution open, the exam at the hospital ensures that legal evidence is obtained. This evidence would include human hair, evidence of seminal stains and other identifying markers.

Follow-up care for disease, injury or pregnancy is available at the hospital. Counseling is recommended and available at Counseling Services, 148 Egbert Hall, 226-2255, or at the Rape Crisis Center, 226-Rape or STAR, 226-2720.

The second thing to remember in the event of an assualt is NOT to bathe or douche. Although it might be the first thing a victim wants to do, bathing or douching might destroy valuable evidence.

Thirdly, save the clothing. It is alright to change clothes, but do not wash the clothes the victim was wearing. Again, valuable evidence might be destroyed.

Christin Mihon / Clarion Call

Help and counseling is available to rape victims at the Rape Crisis Center located at 301 Main Street, near The Red Stallion.

Place all items in a paper bag.

Following these steps, report the incident to the Public Safety office. Public Safety does not determine if a crime has happened or not, that decision is made later by the District Attorney's office. Victims of sexual assault must file charges as well as a report. The decision is the victim's, but, according to the RCC, rapists are usually repeat offenders and police can only apprehend offenders when they know about the crime.

Officers will be assigned to work with the victim, help the victim and apprehend the offender. All contact with the university officers will be confidential.

The necessity for prompt reporting cannot be overemphasized. If an attacker rapes you, notify Public Safety immediately.

The new pamphlet comes with a detachable wallet sized card with a condensed version of the above tips.

What are the legal definitions of sexual crimes?

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

What is rape? Statutory rape? Definitions of sexual assault terms are often confused and misunderstood. Listed are some terms and their meanings according to the Pennsylvania Crimes Code.

Rape: A person commits a felony of the first degree when he engages in sexual intercourse with another person not his spouse:

(1) by forcible compulsion;

(2) by threat of forcible compulsion that would prevent resistance by a person of reasonable resolution;

(3) who is unconscious; or

(4) who is mentally deranged or deficient that such person is incapable of consent.

Statutory rape: A person who is 18 years of age or older commits statutory rape, a felony of the second degree, when he engages in sexual intercourse with another person not his spouse who is less than 14 years of age.

Involuntary deviate sexual intercourse: A person commits a felony of the first degree when he engages in deviate sexual intercourse with another person:

(1) by forcible compulsion;

(2) by threat of forcible compulsion that would prevent resistance by a person of reasonable resolution;

(3) who is unconscious;

(4) who is so mentally deranged or deficient that such person is incapable of consent; or

(5) who is less than 16 years of age.

Aggravated indecent assault: A person commits a felony of the second degree when he engages in penetration, however slight, of the genitals or anus of another with a part of the actor's body for any purpose other than good faith medical, hygienic or law enforcement procedures if:

(1) he does so without the consent of the other person;

(2) he knows that the other person suffers from a mental disease or defect which renders him or her incapable of appraising the nature of his or her conduct;

(3) he knows that the other person is unaware that the indecent contact is being committed;

(4) he has substantially impaired the other person's power to appraise or control his or her conduct by administering or employing without the knowledge of the other, drugs, intoxicants or other means for the purpose of preventing resistance;

(5) the other person is in custody of law or detained in a hospital or other institution and the actor has supervisory or disciplinary authority over him or her; or

(6) he is over 18 years of age and the other person is under 14 years of age.

Indecent assault: (The conditions for this charge are the same as the conditions for aggravated indecent assault with the offense being described as): A person who has indecent contact with another not his spouse, or causes such other to have indecent contact with him. This crime is a second degree misdemeanor unless the victim is under 14 years of age, in which case it is a first degree misdemeanor.

Indecent exposure: A person commits a misdemeanor of the second degree if, for the purpose of arousing or gratifying sexual desire of himself or of any person other than his spouse, he exposes his genitals under circumstances in which he knows his conduct is likely to cause affront or alarm.

The Pennsylvania Crimes Code also contains definitions of spousal sexual assault which differ slightly in wording and legal intent.

A career in your chosen field? Maybe and maybe not

Clarion University's student body is as diverse as the careers they have chosen to pursue. Department of Labor figures may paint a dark picture though. Students are graduating at a far greater pace than the job market is able to absorb them.

This year the Department of Labor estimates there will be 4,300 new jobs for psychologists, while colleges will award 58,430 bachelor's degrees in Psychology.

A total of 224,000 Communication majors are expected to graduate in 1994. All of the daily newspapers in the country combined are expected to hire a total of 4,600 reporters this year. Radio and television stations may hire a total of 1,500 announcers; most of them at local radio stations. Nonpublishing organizations will need 3,000 technical writers and 15,400 public relations workers. Even if new graduates could get all these jobs, over 199,500 of them would have to find another means of employment.

Sociology has become a favorite major for some students. Male sociologists from the University of Wisconsin reported as gainfully employed a year after graduation included a legal secretary, sports editor, Peace Corps worker, truck unloader, and a stockboy. No sociologist. The highest paid worker of the group worked at the Post Office.

Schools of Architecture are expected to turn out twice as many graduates than are needed. The only profession that seems to be exceeding the number of graduates, at present, is engineering. With the many different types of engineering offered at colleges this, however, is hard to judge. Whatever college graduates want to do, ultimately, they are going to do what there is to do.

During the next few years, according to the Department of Labor, the biggest demand will be for stenographers, secretaries, retail clerks, sales workers, hospital attendants, nurse's aides, receptionists, cooks, fast food workers, cosmotologists, hairdressers and industrial machine repairmen.

College graduates are selling shoes and delivering pizzas. Young people have been told they have to go to college because our economy at present can't absorb an army of untrained eighteen year-olds.

Disillusioned graduates are realizing that the economy can no longer absorb an army of trained twenty-two year-olds either. This is not to mention the growing number of returning adult students who hope that an education will secure their financial future.

A college degree is a good way for an employer to screen candidates for employment. An employer may figure it will be easier to train and rely on people who have gotten through four or more years of college.

This, in the words of Harvard's Christopher Jenkins, is "a hell of an expensive aptitude test."

When students on Clarion campus were asked why they came to collge, the answers were as varied as the students themselves:

• Lisa Daniels
Freshman Biology major
"Because I want to make something out of my life. Also, I wanted to get out of the small town I lived in."

•Melodi Dess
Sophmore Psychology major
"You can't make a decent living without a college education"

•Carla Veronosi
Freshman Speech Pathology major
"I want to get a good job and make a lot of money."

• Ric Frederick
Senior Theatre major
"I'll do anything to delay the real world."

• Maureen Mackintosh
Senior Communications major
"To save the world."

• Brenda White
Sophmore Secondary Education English major
"To Party."

• Mike Holquist
Junior Speech Communications Theatre major
"Without a college degree I'll be working at Subway for the rest of my life."

• Liza Dexter
Freshman undecided major
"My mom made me go to college, I guess."

• Pete O'Rourke
Sophmore Speech Pathology major
"To gain a greater self independence."

•Scott Calderwood
Senior Communications major
"To find a better job."

•Susan Slat
Senior Communications and Art major
"To get an education."

And finally:

•Scott Campbell
Sophmore Economics
"To become intelligent."

Censorship awards given

courtesy of College Press Service

Winners of the 1993 Arts Censors of the Year awards, a dubious honor bestowed by the American Civil Liberties Union on those who show "an exceptional disregard for the First Amendment," were recently announced in New York.

The names of the organizations and individuals were released during Banned Books Week, which was celebrated the last week in September. "This year's art censors span the political spectrum but share an intolerance for expression they consider offensive," reads the literature on the contest.

"A number of this year's censors are public officials or elected boards that have used the weight and authority of their offices to wage campaigns against artists, authors, students and musicians over the past year," said Marjorie Heins, director of the ACLU's National Arts Censorship Project.

U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a shoo-in for the prize according to officials, was the only individual to win other than Mayor Tom Fink of Anchorage, Alaska who, according to the ACLU, "used his power to crusade against the arts in Anchorage by attacking works that violated his political ideology and trying to force content restrictions on arts funding."

Helms, a foe of the National Endowment of the Arts," has been charged by the ACLU as a "symbol of the far right's campaign to limit personal freedoms in the name of imposing a single moral standard on Americans."

The Federal Communications Commission, which the ACLU claims attempted to silence radio personality Howard Stern and a school district that confiscated books and another that halted production of a student mural on the First Amendment were among the government bodies named by the ACLU.

"Censorship takes many forms and guises," said Heins. "The people and groups we've named share an impulse to stifle those they disagree with."

Yeltsin rules out compromise

President Boris Yeltsin ruled out any compromise Monday with hard-line lawmakers who remained barricaded in parliament with dwindling support and no electricity, hot water or telephones.

Yeltsin's tough stand and constant pressure from hundreds of flak-jacketed riot police appeared to be eroding the will of his opponents, who were weakened by deflections and miserable conditions inside the Russian White House.

Speaking confidently on national TV, Yeltsin rejected proposals for simultaneous presidential and parliamentary elections.

Shevardnadze in hiding

Abkhazian seperatists captured Sukhumi on Monday after 12 days of bitter combat, forcing Georgian leader Eduard Sheverdnadze to flee the devastated city he had vowed to defend.

Abkhazian forces fought their way to the center of the city and raised their flag over City Hall, Shevardnadze said in a message to his office in Tbilisi, the Georgian capital.

Smallest ocean boat

A retired airline pilot stepped ashore Monday after reclaiming the record for a trans-Atiantic crossing in the smallest boat.

Hugo Vihlen, 61, of Homestead Fla., made the crossing in a boat five feet four inches long in 104 days.

U.S. POW's were shipped to U.S.S.R.

A U.S. report on American servicemen missing in the Korean War sketches a chilling picture of American airmen being hunted by Soviet intelligence teams and shipped off to labor camps.

The report, which was provided to Russian officials at a recent meeting in Moscow, alleges that several hundred American POW's were secretly taken into the Soviet Union in the 1950's and never returned.

Moscow has always denied such charges, although it has said some U.S. aviators on non-Korean War missions were captured. The Soviets claimed the flights were spy missions and fired on the planes.

Officers sprung from jail

Officer Laurence Powell had already spent his first night in prison for the beating of Rodney King and Sgt. Stacey Koon was just surrendering, when a judge suddenly allowed them to go free Monday.

U.S. District Judge John G. Davies gave Powell and Koon about two weeks to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, setting Oct. 12 as the new date for them to start serving their two and a half year prison terms.

Both men faced a deadline of noon Monday for checking into the Dublin Federal Prison Camp, a converted military barricks without bars or fences 40 miles east of San Francisco.

Powell surrendered at the prison Sunday afternoon. Koon arrived around the time Davies issued his rulings, and hadn't yet been processed.

Attorney William Kopney, representing the two, said he would file an emergency request Tuesday with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, asking that the men be allowed to remain free on bail while they appeal their convictions and sentences. A decision is expected soon.

Woman admits killing baby

A Wheeling Jesuit College student pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter Monday in the death of her newborn.

Ohio County Circuit Judge George Spillers allowed Suzanne Fenton to remain free on $220,000 bond for two years, after which she may change her plea to involuntary manslaughter and then serve three years of probation.

If Fenton violates her bond or probation, she could be sentenced to up to five years in prison for voluntary manslaughter or up to one year for involuntary manslaughter, Prosecutor Melvin Kahle said.

Psychologists for both sides testified on Fenton's behalf.

Enrollments up

The number of students enrolled in public and private institutions is expected to reach a new high of 15 million this fall, Secretary of Education Richard Riley said in the annual "Back to School" forecast.

The number of earned degrees that will be awarded this academic year is also expected to set records. According to Department of Education estimates, 504,000 associate degrees will be awarded; 1.1 million bachelor's degrees will be awarded; 378,000 master's degrees; 41,000 doctorates; and 75,000 professional degrees in medicine, theology and law.

It is estimated that colleges and universities will spend about $198.1 billion in 1993-94, up three percent since 1992.

Average spending per full-time student is forecast to reach $15,900, up 23 percent since 1983-84. Public college spending averages $13,400 per student; for private colleges, spending averages $24,000.

Mandela nominated for honorary degree

African National Congress founder Nelson Mandela may be offered an honorary degree by the University of Florida in Gainesville for his work in human rights in South Africa.

There are some behind-the-scenes discussion on the matter, said Peter Schmidt, director of the Center for African Studies at UF.

"It's in delicate negotiations right now. We haven't heard yet," Schmidt said. A formal invitation will be sent to Mandela if he is interested in accepting. Mandela was nominated by Schmidt and Professor Carlton Davis.

Fraternity evicted from house

A University of Arizona fraternity was evicted from its chapter house because the building was so badly trashed it was uninhabitable, the Arizona Daily Wildcat reported in September.

The Theta Delta Chi fraternity was charged with criminal damages in an amount of more than $250,000, plus $18,000 in unpaid bills. Under the chapter's lease agreement, the fraternity was responsible for maintaining the house.

Investigators discovered excrement on the floors, fire extinguishers that had been discharged and noted that the roof needed replaced.

The Autumn Leaf Festival:

Celebrating 40 years of festivities, food and fun

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Each year, thousands of residents and visitors gather for the eight-day traditional Autumn Leaf Festival. This year, Clarion will be celebrating its 40th year of the annual festivities, starting October 2-10.

The Autumn Leaf Festival has grown from a one-day parade event with a purely local interest to an eight-day fall-foliage extravaganza with visitors driving from hundreds of miles.

In 1954, the festival began during a "cracker-barrel" talkfest of young Clarion and professional men in the L & R Decorating Company's storeroom in Main Street. In this group were the late Russ Hepler, Jr., "Po" Haskell, Leon Hufnagel, Joe Schierberl and Don Stroup.

Then someone mentioned the attraction of the autumn foliage displays around Clarion for tourists, and the Autumn Leaf Festival idea was born. All that was needed was a Chamber of Commerce to make the festival work, and as a result, such an organization was formed.

Serving as the first manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Harold A. Flick was assigned to organize the first fall festival the following October as a one-day event marked by a parade.

As the years went by, the idea became so popular that the Autumn Leaf Festival expanded to three days, to five days, to a full week, and now eight days. Even though Flick left the Chamber of Commerce the day before the second annual festival, Gene McDonald took over and the festivities continued to grow.

That year, the festival's symbol became a leaf-shaped figure called "ALF." By 1958, the festival's fifth year, ALF had become so big and involving so many people that George Wolf was named the Chamber's first general chairman.

State and national figures have come to Clarion to proudly ride in the parades, including a governor, senators, congressmen, state officials, noted athletes, beauty queens and big names of show business. These parades have grown from a few units to 135 or more floats, bands, drill teams, marching units and cars bearing notables.

Soon Clarion University (then Clarion State College) became involved in the festivities. Sororities and fraternities competed to create the most imaginative floats. Homecoming day became the climatic finish to the festival, with the parade and the CSC football game with the students' floats entering Memorial Stadium for a parade of their own.

Each year the crowds increased so much that short-wave radio control and mini-transit vehicles became essential for communication. Though state, county and local police appeared in numbers, disorderly conduct was rare.

The streets of Clarion will soon be filled with the sights, sounds and smells of the 40th annual Autumn Leaf Festival, October 2-10

However, traffic control and parking became a mammoth operation. Feeding the large crowds also became a problem, but easily solved by a production-line chicken barbeque.

The Autorama became a new feature of ALF, where owners of antique and classic cars were invited to "show off" their prized possessions. Every year Main Street is packed for blocks with cars worth millions of dollars. This year's Autorama is expanded to two days due to popular demand.

Besides the Autorama and the rows of tempting, mouth-watering food, the carnival attracts many people, young and old. The thrilling rides and game booths are provided by J & J Amusements.

This year, the Autumn Leaf Festival will feature the Pennsylvania-Iowa Percherons-Ertyl Draft Horse Hitch sponsored by the Clarion Animal Hospital. This six black Percheron wagon team, owned by Jim Mays and driven by Karl Haglund, will lead Saturday's parade.

Once paid for by local contributions, ALF had become so big that various concessions and the Souvenier Program supported by advertising have been involved to help decrease the project's expenses. This year's title sponsor is Integra Bank, along with Franklin Bottling Company and Bell of Pennsylvania.

Volunteers have also helped the festival immensely to make each year's spectacle bigger, better and more attractive. The entire Clarion community gets involved to work together to make ALF better each year.

Local students compete for Miss Teen ALF/ Miss Clarion County

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

One of the main attractions to this year's Autumn Leaf Festival is the Miss Teen ALF and Miss Clarion County Scholarship Pageant.

Several young women, including six university contestants will be competing for the various prizes and awards.

Sponsoring this year's Miss Clarion County Scholarship Pageant is Caroline Rearick, Independent Sales Director for Mary Kay Cosmetics.

The Miss Clarion County Scholarship Pageant is a local preliminary to the Miss PA Scholarship and Miss America Scholarship Pageants. This year's pageant promises to be a musical, exciting and multi-dimensional show, with a well-qualified panel of judges.

The contestants will be judged according to swim suit, talent, individual interview, evening wear and poise and appearance on stage. In addition to designating Miss Clarion County, prizes will also be awarded to the first and second runners-up. All prizes and awards will be in the form of scholarship monies. Miss Clarion County will represent our area in the Miss PA Scholarship Pageant in June, and then on to Miss America in September.

Sponsoring this year's Miss Teen Autumn Leaf is the Uppers and Downers Boutique shop. Like the Miss Clarion County pageant, Miss Teen ALF will be competing in front of a panel of judges according to talent, individual interview, evening wear and poise and appearance on stage.

In addition to the crowning of Miss Teen ALF, prizes will also be awarded to the first and second runners-up and Miss Congeniality.

Contestants will be competing from various counties, including Clarion, Venango, Jefferson, Forest, Butler and Armstrong. Any student from those counties between the ages of 17 and 24 are eligible.

The Miss Clarion County Scholarship and Miss Teen Autumn Leaf Pageants will be held consecutively at the Redbank Valley High School auditorium on Saturday, October 9. The doors will open at 7 p.m. and the curtain rises at 7:30 p.m. General seating is $6 and reserved seats are $8.

The Talent Search will be Tuesday, October 5 at 7 p.m. at the Clarion Area High School.

Young artist depicts racial and cultural identity

Kristine Yuki Aono was the first artist to break the seal of a series of programs that Clarion University will be hosting called "Minority Women Scholars: Toward 2000." Yuki Aono visited Hart Chapel last night at 7 p.m., presenting a lecture and slide show of her art. A reception for all at the Women's Studies Center in Harvey Hall completed the evening.

Yuki Aono is a third generation Japanese-American. She received her B.F.A. degree from Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri. She also received her M.E. from the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture, Skowhegan, Maine.

Yuki Aono was born in Chicago, Illinois and is currently living in Cheverly, Maryland. Yuki Aono gets to travel a lot with her work. She has covered a broad geographical area, displaying art exhibitions at San Antonio, Texas, Richmond, Virginia, Washington D.C., Tokoma Park, Maryland, and St. Louis, Missouri.

Yuki Aono's art reflects highly controversial issues. "Racial and cultural identity are strong themes throughout my work," she states. "I address in my art such issues as acculturation, racial and sexual stereotyping, the Japanese-American internment camps and topics associated with cultural interfacing."

"My art begins as a thematic concept with a specific story to tell," she continues. "Choice of material, process and format are determined by the ideas themselves. Thus, the final work may result in various media and forms."

Being very thorough in her work, Yuki Aono digs deep through mounds of information in order to capture the desired message of her art. It is not a matter of having a dream or feeling a sensation that first motivates her to produce a work.

Yuki Aono states, "The process of creating an artwork is important to me. Research such as reading books, searching through the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and discovering family histories are all part of my process. My hope is that the final piece becomes an artwork which promotes understanding with visual integrity."

Artist Kristine Yuki Aono, third generation Japanese-American presented a lecture and slide show of her work last night.

With this understanding of her work in mind, Yuki Aono is just a glimpse of what the Women's Studies program is trying to implement this year. Her appearance was sponsored by the State System of Higher Education Chancellor's Office Social Equity Grant obtained by Deborah King, director of Women's Studies at Clarion University. Dr. Katheryn Graham, chair of the Women's Studies advisory committee, assisted King in this action.

Explaining their plan a little further, King states, "This project will assist the infusion of scholarship by and about women from under represented equity groups into study at Clarion University. It will do so through visits of four minority women scholars to the university through public presentations by the scholar, through meetings of the scholar with faculty, administration and the students."

Following this schedule, Yuki Aono visited several classes during her visit at Clarion. Some faculty members had the opportunity of dining with her, and including one of her presentations as a highlight. Yuki Aono also attented a luncheon with Asian members of the university's faculty and students.

Comic book writers to appear in Clarion

by John Martinec
Lifestyles Writer

Comic Books 101 is celebrating its one-year anniversary here in Clarion. To commemorate this occasion, owner Bill Wieder has invited three comic book writers to his shop. Bill Spangler and the husband-wife team of Tom and Mary Bierbaum will meet and speak about their careers in comics on Saturday, October 2 from 12 noon to 5:30 p.m.

Bill Spangler of Warminster has sold over 90 comic strips over the past six years. Some of the comics include Alien Nation, Tom Corbett, Space Cadet and Quantum Leap. Some of his more current works include Robotech: Invid War, Robotech: Return to Macross and Argonauts: System Crash. System Crash is a revival of a comic publishers by Eternity Comics in 1988-89. This two-issue pulp-style adventure is similar to Doc Savage or Buckaroo Banazi.

Tom and Mary Bierbaum of Erie met through their mutual interest of comics which led them working regularly as scripters for four years. Their current projects include Legionnaires for DC and Dead Kid for Sky Comics. Legionnaires is a recently launched series starring 30th century teen-age superheroes who are trying to put back the pieces of a shattered Earth.

Dead Kid is a new project about a cool teen-age hero who just happens to be a corpse. Other works of the Bierbaum's include DC's Legion of Super-Heroes, The Heckler, Secret Origins and Elvira's House of Mystery, Evolutions's Green Ghost and Lotus, Disney's Chip 'n Dale's Rescue Rangers, and DeLuxe's Wally Wood's Thunder Agents.

Weider started this business a year ago in pursuit of a dream he had in the back of his mind. That dream was to one day be involved in the comic book world. He did this by opening his store on 15 South Avenue which he would like to consider a friendly store where every customer is important.

Weider also feels that his store fills a need in Clarion for people who enjoy comic books.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-Gary T. Williams, 38, pleaded guilty to forgery in Louisville, Ky., in August, involving checks totaling more than $4,800. Williams told the judge that he needed the money badly to pay off a man who had just threatened his life in the group house in which he was staying. Williams said it all started when he fried some chicken gizzards using what he thought was flour; it was actually the other man's cocaine.

-Hermosa Beach, Calif., City Councilman Bob Benz helped run this year's annual July Fourth "Ironman" competition, which requires contestants to run a mile, paddle a surfboard a mile, and then down a six-pack of beer without vomiting. Benz was co-producer of a video of the event that aired on local cable TV and featured contestants for the "most picturesque vomiting" award. Ironman was held over to nearby homes, whose owners complained of contestants' publicly urinating. Said Councilman Benz," I had a great time."

-Washington state Rep. Ron Jacobsen introduced a resolution in February calling for the appointment of a state poet laureate "to write poetry and lofty expressions to be read at appropriate state occasions." The state wine industry would pay the laureate's salary: 126 gallons of wine a year.

-A March Associated Press roundup of bills introduced in state legislatures included an attempt in Maine to outlaw electronic moose calls; a proposal in Minnesota to permit tavern customers to roll dice (without violating anti-gambling laws) to see who pays the tab; and a Florida proposal to require a man who has extramarital sex to register with the state in order to preserve parental rights he may have to any offspring.

-Pheonix New Times, covering a human-branding demonstration at a downtown art gallery in August by "body artist" Steve Haworth, reported that a 38-year-old female sought Haworth's services, intending to have her S&M master's three initials burned into her buttocks with stainless steel at 1,800 degrees Farenheit. However, after one initial, she called it off because of the pain, scrapped the second initial altogether, and said she'd add the last if the couple stayed together a year.

-After a month-long investigation, police in Lakewood, Colo., announced in August that the 100-plus bullet firings that had frightened neighbors into believing that gangs were engaged in drive-by shootings in the area were actually caused by the poor aim of employees at the nearby federal prison facility firing range. According to a prison spokesman, all employees, including clerical personnel, must be trained in firearms, and some apparently missed not only the targets but a large hill that separates the range from the complaining neighborhood.

-Sheriff's deputies near Cudahy, Wis., arrested Michael Foster, 21, and a companion, 17, in April and charged them with theft of a large electronic dart-game machine from a bar. When the heavy machine in the back of the boys' pickup truck caused it to sink into the mud in the tavern's parking lot, one of the boys called the sheriff to ask for a tow. Said sheriff's Lt. Jim Paape, "They didn't put a real lot of thought into this."

-Kansas City, Mo., police reported that two music store break-ins over Memorial Day weekend netted the thieves nearly 1,000 empty CD boxes. They apparently thought they were stealing CDs, but the stores are among a growing number that remove the CDs themselves for safekeeping while displaying the boxes.

-In April a Penn State University woman complained to local police in State College, Pa., that she had been ripped off. She said she had given a fellow student a $1,200 stereo to take an exam for her, but that he had flunked it and now wouldn't return her stereo. Buying academic work is illegal in Pennsylvania.

-In March in Houston, Humallah Mendenhall, 18, to obtain the local Crimestoppers cash reward, told police that his colleague, David Clyde Spencer, 18, had murdered a convenience store clerk a few days before. Evidently, Mendenhall failed to realize that, when arrested Spencer would turn him in, too, because Mendenhall allegedly drove the getaway car for the murder, and had allegedly committed another murder two months earlier.

-Accused drug dealer Alfred Acree bolted from police in Charles City, Va., in April on a Saturday night and took off in the dark through the thick woods. However, police tracked him down easily because he was wearing new L.A. Gear athletic shoes containing small, battery-operated lights that light up each time the heel is pressed. Said sheriff's investigator Anthony Anderson, "Every time he took a step, we knew exactly where he was."

-Police in Cedarbury, Wis., arrested a 24-year-old man in September and charged him with robbing a Hardee's restaurant. He left with $650 but made two crucial mistakes. First, he parked his getaway car in the middle of the drive-by. Then, before entering the Hardee's, he used the men's room in the gas station next door and, as he discovered when he got back into his getaway car after the robbery, left the keys in the restroom. Police arrived before he could retrieve them.

Clarion University Broadcasting ready for new fall season

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles Editor

Clarion University Broadcasting's TV-5 continues another busy season of broadcasting. This station, better known as TV-5 is a student-operated organization which provides hands-on experience in broadcasting.

Joseph Rainey, station manager, is really excited about the new season. He believes shows such as TV-5 News and Talk Around Town will give more of a community feel to TV-5.

Rainey also noted the large number of freshman that will be working at TV-5 this year. Approximately 35 freshman from different majors will be starting their broadcasting careers.

This year, TV-5 will be offering a variety of programs which are available through Clarion TCI Cable. One of these programs is TV-5 News which airs Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and Fridays at 10 p.m. This half-hour news program offers in-depth news coverage of people and events in Clarion County. Regular sports updates and a wide variety of information will also be available.

Clarion Hot Trax returns this year to provide some of the hottest new music to viewers. In addition to alternative music, Hot Trax offers Rock News and exclusive interviews with today's hottest rock acts. Hot Trax airs Mondays through Thursdays.

City Beat offers a funky mix of R & B, Reggae and rap music videos. Airing daily, City Beat also offers news and updates on urban and contemporary performers.

If you like to watch a sports game live, but don't like dealing with the crowds, then Live Sports is the show for you. Live Sports features live coverage of local high school and university sporting events.

This year Sports Center 5 will take on more of a news report feel. This show complements TV-5 News and Live Sports with a wide variety of special reports. Sports Center 5 will offer game analysis and in-depth interviews with the people who make the games happen.

Talk Around Town is a weekly program that focuses on issues that affect Clarion residents. This show's format allows for panel discussions on topics that may range from date rape to the environment.

TV-5 Special Features will be bringing special events into your living rooms for the second consecutive year. Special shows planned for airing this year include the ALF parade, the Pennsylvania Senate report and Clarion Borough Council meetings. All air dates for Special Features are to be announced. The Clarion Borough Council meetings will be aired the first Tuesday of each month. The 1993 ALF parade will be broadcasted live on Saturday, October 9 at 12 p.m.

Alcohol 101: Knowing now may save future problems

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Those of you who were sober enough to read the headline are probably groaning loud enough for Bill Clinton to hear you, and are looking forward to rereading the News of the Weird.

But if you are on campus on the weekends, you know that there are many students who have potential alcohol problems. The symptoms and behaviors can be as easy to read as accidents, fights and suicidal thoughts, to more vague signs like mood swings, missed classes and depression.

Many students who frequently comsume large amounts of alcohol don't know all the facts about the chemicals they are putting into their bodies. Nor do they realize the damage they are doing to the brain cells that affect their memories.

In other words, those of you who are getting smashed, trashed and wasted off your barstools almost every day (especially during ALF week) should listen up. These are some facts to use as a "chaser."

No matter what anyone tells you, and just because you don't sniff it, smoke it or inject it, alcohol is still a drug and can be harmful when addictive.

We all know people who used to go out partying every once in a while who now cannot get through the day without a "pick-me-up." This is a mistake within itself to think alcohol is an upper. All alcoholic beverages are depressants and will bring you down before it will pick you up.

Another point to remember is that equal amounts of alcohol do not affect people in equal ways. Just because your best friend is about to begin his next six-pack does not mean that you'll be able to keep up with him. Remember many people die each year from alcohol poisoning or just plain drinking too much.

Physical damages are not the only problems caused by over-drinking. Being drunk also causes a lack of control. Most sexual attacks occur when one or more parties are under the influence of alcohol. This reason alone should be enough to make us more responsible drinkers.

If responsibility is not your thing then think about hang-overs. Even the word can strike terror in the heart, head and stomach of any heavy drinker.

Despite popular opinion, alternating drinks or mixing drinks with a carbonated beverage instead of fruit juice will not make you any less drunk. You still have a good chance of "praying to the porcelain god" the next morning. No amount of coffee or cold water will save you from that feeling.

There is also the campus alcohol policy to remember. It is illegal to possess or use alcohol on campus, or sell to minors.

Knowing several precautions and alternatives will help save you a lot of future trouble. Shutting yourself or a friend off will save you or them from crossing that line where lives can be lost.

BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Conciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) is still on campus to prove you don't need alcohol to have a good time.

Have a safe ALF week and remember that too much of a good thing can wind up worse.

Protection or prevention of learning from the classics

The American Library association has designated the last week of September as "Banned Books Week '93 Celebrating the Freedom to Read." The entire week will be devoted to promoting awareness of books that have been banned in various areas of the United States.

According to Julie Smith, president of the Clarion chapter of the Library Media Information Science Society, one of the main goals of Banned Books Week '93 is to make known that "some people out there don't believe certain books fit, and they try to impose their own moral judgement on everyone else."

Among the many books banned in the United States is Alice Walker's The Color Purple. This book was banned at the New Bern, North Carolina High school because the main character is raped by her stepfather. The book is currently being challenged in the Souderton, Pennsylvania Area School District "because it is smut."

Also on the list is the Illustrated Encyclopedia of Family Health. This text was challenged in an intermediate school library in Beaverton, Oregon, because of "explicit line drawings of sexual intercourse positions. The book was removed from the library shelves, but maintained "for staff use only."

Perhaps the strangest case of book bannng on this year's list is Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451. This book was banned at the Venado Middle School in Irvine, California. The book was banned because it "deals with book burning and censorship."

Smith believes that Banned Books Week plays a very important role in keeping people informed of their rights.

"Book burning is a form of censorship," she said, "and I don't believe in that. I believe each person should choose for themself what is fit to read, and not try to make that decision for everyone else."

Book banning is a violation of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution which states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Books to be banned in U.S.:

Mark Twain--Huckleberry Finn

Clyde Edgerton--The Floatplane Notebook

William Golding--Lord of the Flies

John Steinbeck--Of Mice and Men

S.E. Hinton--The Outsiders

Roald Dahl--James and the Giant Peach

Alice Walker--The Color Purple

Edward de Grazia--Girls Lean Back Everywhere

Stephen King--Cujo

Nathanial Hawthorne--The Scarlett Letter

Dee Brown--Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee

Katherine Paterson--Bridge to Terabithia

Judy Blume--Blubber

Shel Silverstein--A Light in the Attic

Maurice Sendak--In the Night Kitchen

Robert Cormier--The Chocolate War

Ray Bradbury--Fahrenheit 451

Fourth quarter rally fells Titans, 23-20

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

For three and a half quarters, it seemed like deja vu all over again. The Eagles trailed 20-10 with seven minutes to play, and a lethargic and sluggish Clarion offense was 67 yards from the Titans' end zone. Just like last year, the Clarion Golden Eagles were on the verge of suffering their third straight defeat, and the Westminster Titans were one quarter away from stripping the Eagles from any post-season playoff aspirations.

Then, after two weeks of hibernation, the silent Clarion offense awakened. Westminster never had a chance.

Early on, it was evident that this game would be ruled by the defenses. The respective offenses could muster only four first downs in a scoreless first quarter, and the first big break did not arise until early in quarter number two.

A Clarion penalty on a Titan punt return placed Westminster inside the Eagle 15. On third and 18, the Eagles were flagged for pass interference, and Westminster had first and goal at the five. Four times the Titans tried to stuff it down Clarion's throat. Four times they failed. Damon Mazoff thwarted the last attempt, a fourth and goal leap by Matt Buggey.

The Clarion offense could not move the ball, and a 46 yard punt return by Aldridge Jones placed the Titans right back down at the Eagle 11. This time Westminster went to the air. A strike from Sean O'Shea to Tim McNeil on the first play from scrimmage gave the Titans a 7-0 lead.

With seven minutes to play in the half, the Eagle "O" had mustered only one first down and quarterback Chris Zak had completed just two of 13 passes for two yards. Approaching midfield with the offense struggling, the Eagles' coaching staff faced a fourth and one decision. Damien Henry got three. Then, on third and three from the 42, Henry got 13.

Henry's running set up a gorgeous play-action strike from Zak to Jess Quinn that moved the ball to the 12. Two plays later, Zak hit Henry out of the backfield for a six-yard scoring strike, and a tie game.

Westminster came right back, and with just 19 ticks left on the clock, O'Shea hit Andy Blatt with a 24 yard spiral to reclaim the lead for the Titans.

A flat and disappointed Clarion defense took the field for quarter number three and watched as the Titans waltzed down the field like they were guests on the Lawrence Welk Show. Buggey travelled 51 yards on his first carry, then wheeled 14 more for a Westminster touchdown. The extra point was blocked, but despite holding the Titans to 21 yards on 22 carries in the first half, the Eagles found themselves on the verge of getting blown out, 20-7.

A more confident Clarion offense, led mostly by the running of Henry, methodically marched toward the Titan goal. Henry gained 32 yards on the drive, but, after over five minutes of possession, the Eagles had to settle for a 34 yard Cramer boot.

The Eagles moved into Titan territory early in the fourth, but Cramer had his 40 yard attempt blocked, and the score remained 20-10.

The clock was dwindling down and so were Clarion's playoff hopes.

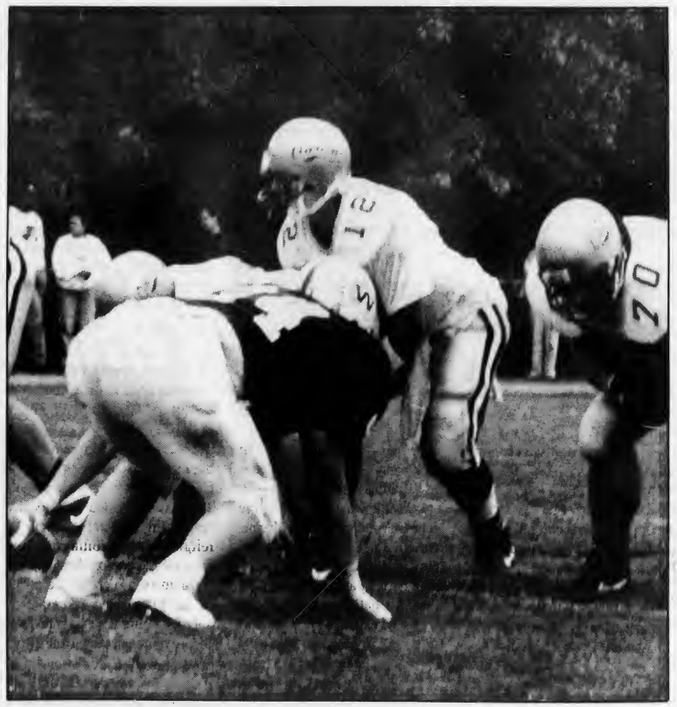

Westminster lined up for a punt with eight minutes to play, and the Eagles needed a big play. They got it from Marlon Worthy. At his own seven yard line, and with three Titans breathing down his tiny neck, Worthy refused to call for a fair catch. A breathtaking 27 yards later, the momentum had shifted Clarion's way.

Zak found Tim Brown for 28, then Henry for 14. Two Henry runs placed Clarion at the two, and Zak snuck it in from there. A two point conversion try failed and the Eagles trailed 20-16 with just five minutes to play.

The defense held again, and the Eagles were 42 yards from victory.

Zak hit Worthy for 18 on the first play from scrimmage, and two Henry runs moved the ball to the 13.

On first and ten, Zak took a brutal hit after an incompletion and was forced to leave the game. Backup quarterback Craig Ray trotted in from the sideline, rolled left, stopped, and found Tim Brown in the end zone for the winning score.

Dess, McKinley win matches

Slippery Rock rolls over Eagles

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Though usually a powerhouse, the 1993 season has been a disappointing chapter in the history book of the Clarion University tennis team. Last Wednesday the Eagles fell deeper into despair with a 6-3 loss to Slippery Rock.

The Eagles are having one of those years that sportswriters love to call a "rebuilding" year. The fact that they have been the top NCAA Division II team in the east over the past seven years makes this season even harder to digest.

Coach Terry Acker, who was 28-5 in dual meet play over his first three seasons, knew that this would be his team's toughest year to date. He had hoped that his five first year players could get used to the college game and develop into the type of players that Clarion has had a legacy for showcasing. For the most part, these newcomers have held their own, but the Eagles have not been able to pull out many victories as they saw their record drop to 1-6 against the Rock.

Clarion entered the match against Slippery Rock hoping to add to the win column. Shara Wolkomir, the Eagles' #1 seeded tennis player, suffered a very disappointing loss 2-6, 6-2, 5-7. The former PSAC champion dropped to 4-3 on the year. To make things even worse for Wolkomir, she lost another heartbreaker in the doubles match as she paired with Melodi Dess. The final of that was 5-7, 7-6 (7-5), 5-7.

One of the Eagle's singles winners was Melodi Dess, who overwhelmed her opponent, 6-1, 6-1, to raise her personal record to 3-4. Kristin McKinley upped her mark to 4-3 with a 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 victory.

Clarion's Roxann Milton and Sarah Unkefer took care of business with a straight set 6-2, 6-3 victory. Unfortunately, these are the only three wins the Eagles could manage.

Clarion is led by Wolkimir and McKinley who each sport 4-3 singles records. The leading doubles tandem consists of Wolkimir and Melodi Dess who sport a record of 4-3 as well.

On September 29, the Eagles visited the Edinboro Fighting Scots, and will face the IUP Indians at Indiana today. Clarion has a home match October 9 against Bloomsburg starting at 11:30 at the Campbell Hall tennis courts. After that, the Eagles begin preparation for the PSAC championships at Allentown, which will be held on the 14th, 15th and the 16th of October.

Giving their best shot: A disappointing season has left the Golden Eagles swinging towards Allentown and PSACs.

Griffo medals

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

On Saturday, September 25th, the Clarion Golden Eagles men's and women's cross country teams travelled to Geneva College in Beaver Falls. Out of a field of six teams, the men finished fifth and the women were fourth overall.

The women's team was sparked by the significant improvements of Lynn Baluh and Jen Dansberger. Of the 54 girls in the race, Bulah finished 17th and Dansberger 18th, but it was the third place finish of Lisa Griffo that lifted the Eagles into fourth place overall. Griffo completed the three mile course with a time of 20:55, good for a nice piece of metal to wear around her neck. Captain Megan Stecklair finished 12th with a time of 21:48, Lisa Benlock came in 16th with a mark of 22:30, Lynn Baluh was five seconds behind Benlock and finished 17th, while Jen Dansberger was seven seconds behind Benlock and finished 18th. Jen Gleason finished 27th with a mark of 23:36, and Brandee Payne placed 34th with a time of 24:00.

"The girl's pack has improved greatly," Stecklair said. "We are working towards our goal of qualifying for regionals."

A stomach virus kept Chad Briggs from finishing at his normal excellent pace, but it did not stop the men from placing fifth overall. The men ran a five mile race with a field of 65 total runners.

The men are showing signs of improvement week to week and feel that they should place higher in meets to come.

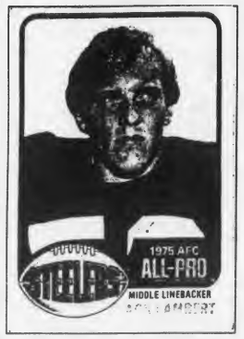

The mens' results are as follows: Scott Neffner finished 15th at 29:09; Russ Breindel placed 25th at 29:31; Chad Briggs finished 31st at 30:15; Rick Rectenwald came in 38th at 31:04; Brian Patterson placed 39th at 31:13; Brian Stohr crossed the finish line 45th at 31:41, and John Homick was 53rd at 34:58.

The Cross-Country team is next in action at the Bloomsburg Invitational on Saturday. "This meet will mark the midpoint of the season , and will show where the team stands and where it has yet to go," said Briggs. Race time will be sometime between 11:00 AM and noon.

Corbeil, Bierly lead Eagles

Clarion finishes third at Mercyhurst

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

The Clarion University golf team continued its climb to the top of the PSAC with a third place finish at the Mercyhurst Invitational on Monday.

Slippery Rock won the 11 team event with a combined team score of 307 while Clarion entered the clubhouse with a score of 320.

The Eagles were led by senior Todd Corbeil who shot a blistering 77. Cory Bierly, who improves every match, shot a 1993 best of 78. Andy Ganoe finished with an 82, Brian Fiscus shot an 83 and Chris Brosius took a 94.

Clarion was the host school in the Hal Hansen Memorial Tournament on September 19-20.

The Eagles 'blue' team finished fifth with a score of 667 and their 'gold' team placed seventh with a total of 686, out of the 11 teams represented.

Allegheny won the event with a combined 36 hole score of 640. The Clarion 'blue' squad was led by Ganoe with a two-day score of 162. Brosius shot a 165, Fiscus took a 169, Corbeil finished with a 171, and Rob Pierson ended with a score of 174.

The 'gold' team was led by Bierly's 167. Chris Williams took a 172, while Ron Malinchak salvaged a 175 despite hacking his way to a 93 in the opening round. Matt Fiscus shot a 180, and Greg Greksa finished the day with a 181.

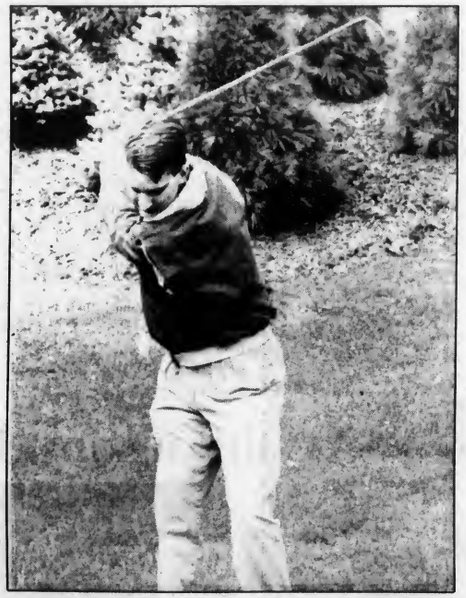

The Eagles participated in the Slippery Rock Invitational on September 16. The first team placed ninth with a score of 318 and the second team finished 12th out of 14 teams with a 327.

Youngstown State won the invite with a mark of 288. Brian Fiscus was the runner-up medalist as he blistered through the course to finish the day with a 71. Brosius blasted a 78, Corbeil shot an 84, Williams knocked an 85, and Fiscus entered the clubhouse with an 86.

The second team saw Ganoe and Malinchak shoot 80's, and saw Pierson blast an 81. Greksa shot an 85, and Bierly took an 86.

September 13 was the date that Clarion participated in the Gannon Invitational. The Eagles finished 12th out of the 18 squads with a score of 345. The winning team took away a score of 303. Brosius shot an 82, Fiscus stroked an 84, Williams pelted an 89, Bierly shot 90, and Corbeil struggled to a 93.

The Eagles will next be in action at Allegheny on October 5, with the PSAC championships scheduled for October 14.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Chris Williams shot 172 for the 36 hole Hal Hansen Memorial Tournament. He and the Golden Eagles' seem to improve every week as they prepare for PSACs Oct. 14-16.

Eagles fly west

by Debbie Adams
Sportswriter

The Clarion University volleyball team continued their skid this week by losing their 11th consecutive game. The Eagles are off to a rocky start, so where better to heighten your record than lovely Colorado.

The Eagles flew out to the great Northwest last night and will play the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs tonight, and then participate in a tournament Friday and Saturday.

Clarion dropped a match to California 5-15, 14-16, 9-15 on Tuesday to drop its overall record to 2-12

Katie Rhodes finished with 27 set assists and Bobbie Simpson had 13 kills in a losing cause. Lisa Flynn collected seven digs.

The Eagle's travelled to Mercyhurst where they were defeated three games to none.

Mercyhurst took the lead early in the first set with a score of 3-15. They continued to prove to be more powerful than the Eagles by winning the next two sets 13-15 and 12-15.

Despite the loss, Lisa Flynn managed seven kills, which moved her to second place in kills this season with a total of 121. Leading the team in digs this game was Katie Rhodes. Lisa Flynn has the most this season with 156.

Simpson leads the Eagles in kills with 141 and Rhodes leads in assists with 213. Flynn has more sevice aces than any Eagle as she has collected 27 this far.

The team will try to end their 11 game losing streak and improve their 2-12 record with a game at the University of Colorado on Thursday and a tournament on Friday and Saturday. They will return home on Tuesday to play IUP. It will be the first of five consecutive home games for the Eagles who have only played two thus far.

Point Park, Slippery Rock and Edinboro visit Tippin before the Eagles go on the road again.

The Eagles host the Clarion Alumni Tournament at 11 AM on the Saturday of the ALF parade.

SPORTS COMMENTARY

Will the Saints come marching in?

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

I sat once again, glued to my television set on Sunday afternoon. As Morten Andersen walked onto the field to attempt his game winning field goal, I felt like part of a ritual. How many times has Andersen won a game for the Saints by splitting the uprights in the final seconds? Add one to that number.

The 33-year old, 12 year veteran is almost a given in game-winning situations. On Sunday, Andersen connected from 49 yards to give New Orleans a 16-13 victory over the San Francisco 49ers. Perhaps the CBS broadcast team of Pat Summerall and John Madden put it best by saying, "This is why you pay a kicker millions of dollars... to win games." Andersen is the Nolan Ryan of the NFL. No voting needed, just induct him now.

With their three point win, the Saints improved to 4-0 and now sport the best record in the NFL. Every year, it seems New Orleans thrives on a slogan and carries that motto with them into the playoffs. Even though the Saints have never won a post-season game, slogans like "Who dat, who dat, who dat say they gonna beat them Saints," "Cha-ching" and "Ya Gotta Believe" have bellowed from the lips of the Superdome faithful. A far cry from the days when the Saints couldn't sell tickets, but there was a mad rush for paper bags at the local Piggly Wiggly.

This year the Saints' slogan is somewhat off the wall, but isn't it always. "Whoop there it is" is the choice for 1993. I still don't know exactly what it means, but regardless, it has the Saints undefeated after four weeks. They better win a playoff game soon or their slogan will be "underachievers."

New Orleans is certainly one of the most unusual teams in pro football. I mean, how many team owners do you see twirling umbrellas on the sideline for a victory celebration?

The Saints' defense can certainly back up the off-the-field shenanigans. The quartet of Rickey Jackson, Vaughn Johnson, Sam Mills, and Pat Swilling has arguably been the best linebacking corps in NFL history. But, an off-season transaction sent Swilling to Detroit thus collapsing the all-time unit, right? Wrong. In steps 6'4", 255 pound, Renaldo Turnbull, who fills Swilling's shoes ever so nicely.

The Saints offense has long strummed to a different beat, at least until now. A team that has had offensive problems in the past, has turned it around, and so far in 1993, leads the league in scoring.

Wade Wilson is at the helm for his 13th professional season at quarterback. The Saints have all cylinders pumping, offense, defense, and special teams, and there may be a changing of the guard in the NFC West. The Old Gold and Black might just be the real McCoy.

Hopefully, when the second round of the playoffs come around, the Saints' slogan is still "Whoop there it is," instead of Whoop, here we aren't... again.

Brown approaches all-time mark

Eagles begin defense of PSAC title against Edinboro

by Tondelaya Carey
Sportswriter

The Clarion Eagles 1993 defense of their PSAC-Western Division championship begins Saturday, October 2 at home against Edinboro. Kickoff time is scheduled for 1 p.m. at Clarion's Memorial Stadium.

The defending PSAC- Western champs enter the game with a 1-2 overall record. The Eagles started the season off in 1993 with a tough 19-17 loss against West Chester (last year's defending PSAC Champions East) after leading 17-6 at halftime. The Eagles then traveled to New Haven and lost 35-23 to the second ranked team in Division II. The Golden Eagles bounced back with a 23-20 win over seventh ranked Westminster last Saturday.

"No doubt about it, it's a big game for both teams," said Gene Sobolewski, head coach of the Eagles for eleven years. "When we play Edinboro it's always an aggressive, physical game," Sobolewski said. "Both teams play intense defense and have the capability of scoring from anywhere on the field on offense. If you like hard-hitting football, don't miss this game."

The Clarion offense is averaging 366 yards of total offense per game, including 146 on the ground and 220 through the air. Quarterback Chris Zak, who has completed 46 of 108 passes for 607 yards and four touchdowns in 1993, left the game at Westminster late in the fourth quarter with a leg injury. Backup Craig Ray made a game winning 13 yard touchdown pass to Tim Brown on the next play with 2:07 left in the game. Zak returned for the final series

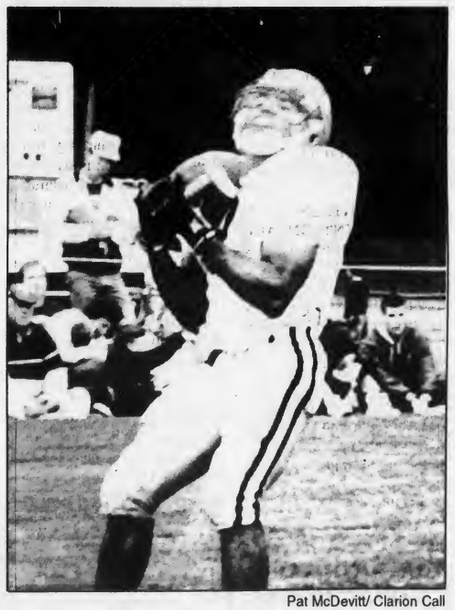

All-American tight end Tim Brown has 20 catches for 205 yards and one touchdown this season and is ranked third in career catches at Clarion with 136. Brown needs 15 receptions to break the all-time Golden Eagle record.

Running back Damien Henry is ranked second in the PSAC-West averaging 123.3 yards per game, gaining 370 yards and one touchdown on 78 attempts. Henry, in his senior year, is currently fifth on the all-time rushing list with 1,460 yards and is eighth in career touchdowns with 19.

Edinboro's offense is well balanced between the run and the pass. The Fighting Scots are averaging 363.3 yards per game including 178.3 on the ground and 185 passing. The defense is yielding only 318 yards per game, including 207.7 passing and only 110.3 on the ground.

Edinboro gave Clarion its only conference loss last season, a 26-17 heartbreaker at Edinboro.

The Clarion Homecoming Game versus Bloomsburg is set for Saturday, October 9. The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

SPORTS OPINION

The Mighty Ducks put sports in perspective

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

I often hear people say that the newest National Hockey League franchise, the Anaheim Mighty Ducks, is an embarrassment to sports. They argue that the playful name of the Disney owned team portrays sports as being something silly or trivial.

Hello! McFly!

Sports is a fantasy world. Lets face it, you can't walk down the street dressed like Tom Barrasso, you'll get laughed out of town. Sports aren't real life, they're an escape from real life. They're an escape from the hustle and bustle, the trials and tribulations. That's why millions of people attend sporting events each year. No matter how much money players are paid or how many times these overpaid players feel it necessary to go on strike, sports still act as a release for fans of all ages, and these fans will always come back for more.

Unfortunately, in the brutally competitive and violent society we live in, a bench clearing brawl occurs almost every night. The Al Davis motto "Just win baby" is treated as gospel by Little League coaches all over the world. It gets so bad, that pitcher Donnie Moore killed himself after giving up the game winning homerun with two outs in the ninth inning in the 1986 American League Championship Series.

The wealthy lifestyles of professional athletes have produced new definitions in sports terms. Coke once was something you drank at the ball park while watching your favorite player. Now its the reason your favorite player isn't permitted to play.

Some college athletes ruin their lives by trying to get an edge on their competition through the use of steroids. The pressure to make the starting lineup or even to keep their scholarship costs thousands of athletes valuable years of their lives.

Colleges are constantly ruining their own reputations by offering a recruit a little money here and a little car there in an effort to coax him into joining their particular program.

Basketball players Reggie Lewis and Hank Gathers fell in love with their sport so much, they sought second opinions when it was diagnosed they had heart trouble. Both continued to play, and both tragically died on the basketball court.

Caught up in all the gambling scandals of Pete Rose and Michael Jordan. Caught up in all the bitterness between the Pistons and the Bulls, the Yankees and the Red Sox, Chuck Noll and Jerry Glanville. Caught up in all of the new terms like revenue sharing, free agency, and collusion, along comes the Mighty Ducks to finally put sports in its proper perspective.

America: Seeing it again for the first time

Christin Mihon

Greetings students.

Last semester I was fortunate enough to have the unmatchable experience of participating in the University of Pittsburgh's Semester at Sea program. In January I boarded the S.S. Universe in the Bahamas. I spent the following 100 days traveling around the world and taking classes with about 400 other college students (okay, our professors, an administrative staff and the ship's crew came too).

Our ports of call included La Guira, Venezuela; Salvador, Brazil; Capetown, South Africa; Mombasa, Kenya; Madras, India; Penang, Malaysia; Hong Kong; Keelung, Taiwan; Kobe, Japan and Seattle, U.S.A.

I learned an unattainable amount of knowledge and had many incredible experiences, but nothing seems more relevant to me than the new perspective that I have on life.

Many people who go abroad come home feeling very lucky. I am no exception. Yes, I felt discrimination as a woman, but never because my skin is white. I realized that I really don't have problems when compared to most people in the world. I'm lucky, damn lucky. I live in a society where I have (relative) freedom of speech, religion and all, but upon my return to America, I found myself closely examining this society for what it is, and not what I was taught to believe.

I encountered no problem abroad that I couldn't find right here at home, I just saw them in a different context.

Economic problems? One doesn't have to travel to Venezuela to see economic problems. While Americans are not plagued by 800% inflation like Venezuelans, it's obvious that our economy has problems.

Governmental grief? Sure Brazil's politicians are skimming hundreds of millions of dollars out of funds, being bribed by multi-international corporations and are guilty of sending hit

THE WAY I SEE IT

Michelle Sporer
Editor-in-chief

Yes, it's that time of year again--Autumn Leaf with all its food and rides and air of festivity and of course its traffic congestion and lack of available parking.

Clarion is lucky in the respect that Autumn Leaf is one week out of the year, therefore, the parking problem is temporary. Clarion University's parking mayhem, however, seems more permanent.

Every morning when I walk to class I am treated to the sight of commuting students racing their cars through the parking lots, frantically searching the overflowing lots for that coveted empty space.

More than once I have seen cars parked illegally because there is more pending business at hand like class, than trying to spend hours finding an empty space. And, as a result, public safety mosies around the lots looking for the offenders so they can gleefully ticket them.

The university, I am quite certain, is making a bundle off of the parking problem. (They got me for $10.) So, it seems reasonable to suggest that this dilemma won't be solved in the near future because, in our financial straits, parking offenders are inadvertently lessening the burden.

Of course there is always lot W if you are willing to walk miles to your classes. In bad weather, this solution seems less appealing than receiving a parking ticket.

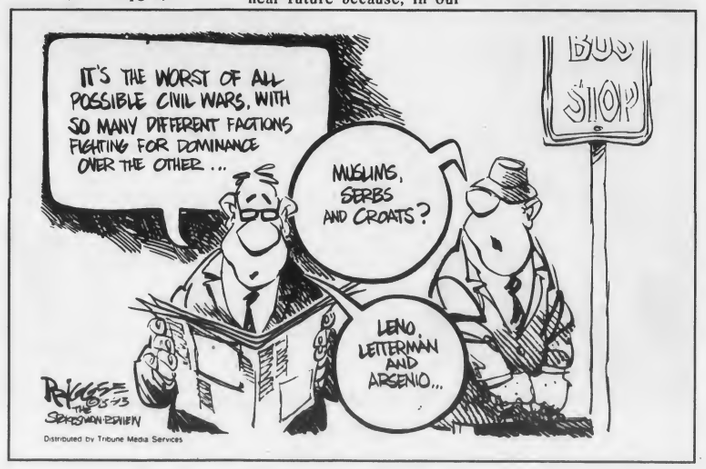

Eventually you will probably see students sleeping in their cars overnight in the parking lots just so they can keep the space they were lucky enough to grab two days ago.

Or maybe you will see parting students auction off their spaces to arriving commuters. There's a moneymaking proposition!

I wonder how much people would be willing to pay in order not to miss the exam they were supposed to take five minutes ago.

But wait, commuters pay for the privelege already with a $15 parking permit and a glove box full of unpaid parking tickets.

Ask yourself please, how much additional money are you willing to pay this university for the privelege of going here? Then, please ask yourself, how much are you willing to put up with?

First Blood

Nov. 14 of last year was a day that seriously impeded the progress of the IUP football paper in their drive to the Division II National Championship. On that day, Clarion beat the Indians in a hard-fought game that Indian fans will not soon forget, much less forgive Clarion. Even though this year, on almost the exact same day, we will all go to the IUP-Clarion game on our home turf (IUP) to see the Indians cap off another great season with a victory, there is another way we can all help to beat Clarion.

IUP's Student Congress has issued a challenge to Clarion's Student Government Association regarding the bloodmobile coming up this week. At each blood drive, the Red Cross sets a quota as to the number of pints of blood that the effort must produce. If IUP donors can top the quota by a greater percentage than Clarion tops it, we (IUP) will win the challenge. The winner will have its school flag flown over the campus of the losing school for one day.

Ask yourself this question: Do we really want to fly Clarion's flag on our campus for even one day? Also, what could be sweeter revenge for last year's game than having our flag flown over its campus (except for the victory we will earn on Nov. 13, of course)?

Besides, we need to give blood now so that Clarion's football team will have an extra supply on that glamorous November day, because they will be needing it. Most importantly, we need to give blood because "Saving a life is the right reason."

James C. Leda, President
IUP Student Congress

Last Laugh

Dear Clarion,

Calling out to all living and breathing bodies out there!

As if it isn't enough that we ask for all your money, now we're asking for your blood. No, this is not some kind of twisted tuition increase. The Student Congress at our dear sister institution, IUP, has thrown down it's dulled tomahawk to the faithful and proud students of Clarion University to compete in the American Red Cross Bloodmobile Challenge. It is astonishing that IUP feels itself of sufficient quality to have our golden eagle soar above their dispirited institution. The reason I say "dispirited" is because IUP didn't even reach their goal of 600 pints of blood in two days. They came up short again for the loss not only because of the offense but the defense didn't even show up. It just seems that anytime the words "Clarion University" are mentioned in the IUP area, all those unfortunate souls just drop to their knees and whine, in true Wayne and Garth fashion, "We're not worthy."

The American Red Cross has set Clarion's bloodmobile goal at 175 pints of blood in one day, October 18th from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-purpose room. Prizes and gift certificates will be disbursed throughout the bloodmobile. Student Senators will be assisting the Red Cross volunteers, but it is you (well, your blood) that we need. No matter if you are a first timer or a professional donor, stop and consider the impact you will make. You may even "save a life".

Enjoy the fesitival this weekend and stay healthy.

squads and mercenaries to kill or destroy their enemies, but that happens here in America too.

Rampant crime? Riots? Social unrest? Do I even have to discuss this? It may be getting some attention from others now because it's getting closer to their homes.

Apathy? Never mind Kenya, how about here? When was the last time that you stood up for something that didn't directly affect you, lobby government or write a letter to your governor or state representative?

Human rights? China comes to mind, but let's take an example straight from American history, the story of the Native Americans. (Not too far from a system of aparthied in my opinion.) For those who still may believe that the Native Americans wanted to live on reservations and have their food and goods provided by the U.S. government, I beg you to do a close examination of their culture and the way the government exploited, lied to, stole from and forced these people into submission.

Let's talk environmental issues. We're quick to condemn the Brazilians for destroying their precious rainforest, but how many virgin forests do we have? Sadly, the U.S. Forest Service is still more concerned with servicing large logging companies than protecting national forests. And what about our country's practice of waste trade?

What about poverty? We don't have to visit an untouchable village in India, the poverty rate in America has reached 36%, and children are the largest group affected. One doesn't have to look far at all to see poor or homeless Americans.

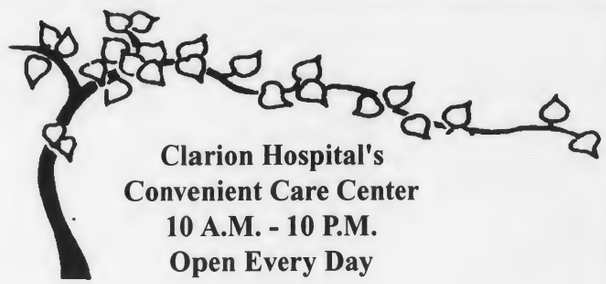

Prejudice and discrimination? It's obvious to women, blacks, Indians, Asians, and, in one way or another, maybe everyone who's not a white male. To quote a professor who was on the ship with me, Nagueyelti Warren, "South Africa has no monopoly on banning nor detainment. Their's is crude, America's insidious."

So, where does this leave us as students at Clarion? I believe that we as young Americans have grown lazy in the comfort of our predecessors' efforts to raise social equity and societal decency to the point that it is now. Many have not joined in the fight for justice and equality in our society, and that's why we're not getting anywhere anymore This is a huge problem. When was the last time some of us stood up for something that really mattered? Are we doing enough as citizens? Are we involved in actions for change, or are we too caught up in our ethnocentric, closed-minded, insecure and unbending sense of what is politically correct or popular?

Julian Bond spoke to us about the "torch of change." He said that when he was young, he saw the torch quivering in an unsure hand, so he grabbed it and ran with it. It's time for us to do just that, but will we?

We live in a country where we are able to work for, and achieve, change. We are in the times of our lives where we can do so. Why don't we?

I am pleased to report that, thanks to an important scientific advance, the human race may soon be able, after years of frustration and failure to lick soap scum.

I have here an article from ASTM Standardization News. ASTM stands for "American Society for Testing and Materials," which is an organization that, as its name implies, has something to do with testing and materials. The article states:

"Topping the list of the most dreaded household chores, cleaning the soap scum from our showers and and bathtubs has also been one of the most challenging. But thanks to a new guide developed by Subcommittee D-12.16 on Hard Surface Cleaning, part of Committee D-12 on Soaps and Other Detergents, beating soap scum is expected to become easier and less expensive.

This is wonderful news indeed, because everybody has soap scum. Poke your head into the finest bathrooms in the world -- in Buckingham Palace, the White House, even the Vatican -- and you'll be shot by security guards. So just take my word for it, there's soap scum in there, and they can't get rid of it, because soap scum is the most durable substance known, a fact that was demonstrated by the U.S. space program. You may recall that when the first space shuttle was built, scientists were concerned about protecting it from the intense heat of re-entry into the atmosphere. So what did they do? THEY COVERED THE SHUTTLE WITH TILES. They knew that tiles are the ideal breeding ground for soap scum and that soap scum cannot be harmed by atmospheric re-entry or even leading household cleansers.

Here on Earth, anti-soap-scum products are not effective. I base this statement on a recent nationwide survey of my Research Department, Judi Smith, who said, "The stuff they say gets rid of soap scum never, ever works."

(She also said: "My shower is way too dirty to attribute to soap scum." But I am far too respectful of her privacy to include that in the column. I also will not include the following actual quote from her husband Tim: "What's soap scum?")

For many years, the only prestigious international research insitiution working on the soap-scum problem was Heloise, who was always running hints from readers about it. ("Heloise, my soap-scum problem was so bad that my husband said he didn't even want to take a shower! So I made a mixture of three parts vinegar, one part lemon juice and two parts sulfuric acid, and I put it in his coffee.")

But the Subcommittee D-12.16 on Hard Surface Cleaning swung into action. According to the ASTM Standardization News article, researchers "went to consumers' homes and scraped off soap scum to analyze it. I bet THAT was a fun job.

RESEARCHER: Hi! I'm with the American Society for Testing and Materials, and I'd like to obtain some of your soap scum.

CONSUMER (calling to spouse): Marge, get the rifle.

But the determined men and women of Subcommittee D-12.16 perserved. Using their samples, they were able, for the first time in recorded history that I know of, to reproduce soap scum in the laboratory. (The article does not reveal the exact formula, but it involves human body fat and an ingredient identified only as "dirt.") The article also does not reveal where they GET the body fat. Maybe they just go to liposuction clinics and ask for it. "It's OK!" they explain. "We're making soap scum!"

To determine how cleansers are used in consumer households, the researchers also conducted what the article describes as "actual tests" in which they determined "when consumers stop wringing the water from their sponge and how much (cleanser) product they place on the sponge." (It is only a matter of time before this whole effort is dramatized in a motion picture starring Harrison Ford.)

Armed with this information, the researchers developed a method for testing tile cleansers. The cleansers are tested on tiles that have been coated with laboratory scum, then heated in an oven. ("Care to join us for lunch, Ted?" "No thanks, Bob! I just put a fresh batch of scum in the oven!")

Please understand that we do NOT yet have a cure for soap scum. But we do have, finally, a standardized cleanser-testing method. And the Standardization News article confidently predicts that this standard will produce benefits that "go far beyond the bathroom."

On behalf of consumers everywhere, I salute the researchers of Subcommittee D-12.16 on HardSurface Cleaning. I hope that their achievement will inspire other ASTM groups.

Wright requests probe of state A.G.

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Local legislator and Clarion University professor David Wright has asked the FBI to investigate charges that the Pennsylvania Attorney General Ernie Preate Jr. ordered his arrest shortly before the 1992 election.

File Photo

State Rep. David R. Wright (D-63), seen here at Knox's Horse Thief Days parade, has asked for an investigation of state attorney general Ernie Preate Jr.

Wright declined to tell The Patriot-News what he told an FBI agent who interviewed him twice after he called the U.S. Attorney's office in August.

Wright said he contacted federal authorities about the handling of the Mechling investigation because of speculation that the course of the probe was being dictated by politics.

The Patriot-News, based in Harrisburg, reported in last Sunday's edition that Preate ordered an agent to arrest Wright and his former campaign aide Dr. Kenneth Mechling, also a Clarion University professor.

The Patriot-News quoted people it said were "familiar with the probe."

The arrests never took place, however 12 days before the election, Preate's office did serve search warrants on Mechling's bank accounts tied to a company he owns.

The Harrisburg paper said sources told them that in the fall of 1992, Deputy Attorney General Lois Lichenwalner telephoned Gregory Kerpchar, the agent handling the on-going Mechling investigation, and told him to prepare to arrest both Wright and Mechling. The Patriot-News claimed Kerpchar balked at preparing the warrants, because he lacked probable cause.

Mechling had been accused of using university offices and equipment during earlier Wright re-election bids. According to the Patriot-News, those allegations have been dismissed by investigators who are now trying to determine if Mechling violated ethics laws by awarding state contracts to the company he owns, School Science Services Inc.

Preate spokesman Robert Gentzel called the report "very shoddy journalism," and added that the order "simply didn't happen."

The Patriot-News quoted Gentzel as saying, "Nobody's alleged Representative Wright did anything wrong, I don't even have any idea what we were suppose to have been arresting him for. I don't know what allegation we would have put in the arrest warrant." Gretzel said Wright is no longer a target of the investigation.

Sources talking to the Patriot-News said the arrest order came from the "front office" of the state attorney general. In investigations involving members of the state assembly, Preate requires any actions to be approved by the front office, which is composed of the attorney general himself and his top deputy, Walter Cohen.

Cohen explained the paper work required for both an arrest and a search warrant are the same and Gretzel added that Kerpchar may have become confused and thought he was actually drafting an arrest warrant.

Cohen added that any arrest order would have had to cross his desk. In this case, he insisted, that never happened.

The Patriot-News quoted Wright as saying, "I am disappointed but I can't say that I'm surprised," adding, "If the House and Senate are gearing up for impeachment proceedings of a (state) Supreme Court justice this fall, I think they should consider impeaching the attorney general at the same time."

AP photo

Pennsylvania Attorney General Ernie Preate Jr., already under investigation by the FBI, allegedly ordered the arrest of Rep. David Wright and Dr. Kenneth Mechling.

State Speaker of the House, H. William DeWeese said he would seek an investigation by "higher authorities" if Preate's office indeed sought an arrest order for Wright.

Preate is already involved in a controversy concerning his handling of investigations involving political contributors and his failure to report $146,000 in campaign contributions has drawn heavy criticism from those who are considering a run for Pennsylvania governor. It is widely accepted that Preate is considering a run for the office.

Several calls to Wright's Harrisburg office were not returned before press time and the FBI declined to comment on the story or the investigation.

Public Safety: it isn't all parking tickets

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

If you have ever earned a parking ticket on campus, you have probably wondered if Public Safety doesn't have anything else to do. Actually, Public Safety does have other duties.

According to Dr. Ron Martinazzi, the Public Safety department "is an umbrella for three different areas of concern." These areas include Law Enforcement, Workman's Compensation/Risk Management and Safety.

Law Enforcement is the most familiar to students since it is the most highly visible aspect of their duties. Under the department of Law Enforcement the uniform crime report is prepared by Public Safety. This crime report sends all crimes that occur on campus to PA state police monthly. Law Enforcement also deals width crime prevention and the alerting of students of possible crime situations. One of their projects was to encourage students to buy loud whistles from the book store for protection when walking alone. Dr. Martinazzi said "it takes everybody to have a safe environment."

Martinazzi also added "we try to emphasize a lot in crime prevention, that's what we are striving to do. We teach people how to investigate crimes, we teach students on dorm floors, participate in drug and alcohol programs and we also talk with sororities and fraternities about crime and safety."

Workman's Compensation/Risk Management are the departments of Public Safety that are probably the most unfamiliar to students. Over the past three years, workman's compensation has significantly reduced the amount of accidents that took place in the working environment by safety training and by the enthusiasm of workers. Dr. Martinazzi said "safety has been de-centralized and it is now everyone's concern. The superintendents are conducting safety training based on jobs."

Accidents that occur on campus are identified by workman's compenstaton programs. "They are categorized and it directs us in determining which accidents and what types of accidents are occurring. It's almost like a guideline.

"We tie in workman's compensation and safety together as a program which provides benefits for PA employees who are injured or who have contracted a disease which is caused or made worse through the work environment.

"It's up to the safety program to reduce risk by lowering accident rates," Martinazzi said.

Although Risk Management is tied in with Workmans Compensation, it is rare that any incidents conerning risk management need to be dealt with. An example of the duties under the department of risk management would be if a non-employee wants to file a claim if they are injured because of negligence of University. Risk management also handles personal property that is damaged through negligence of university.

Ray Nice / Clarion Call

Parking tickets and campus safety are usually the first issues students associate with Public Safety. While patroling is a big part of Public Safety's day, it is only part of their mission.

The final area that Public Safety covers is safety. This does not just include campus safety but also things such as legal compliance and hazard waste materials. The safety department makes sure that the University is in compliance with rules and regulations from the Department of Environmental Research and the Environmental Protection Agency. Safety works in conjunction with the Biology, Chemistry and Physics Department in ensuring the general welfare of the University students.

According to Martinazzi "for every chemical on campus including cleaning agents there is a way to deal with it. For example if there was a radioactive spill in Clarion, the safety department would assist in it's clean up.

A common misconception among the community is that Public Safety and the Campus Police are two separate departments. This is untrue, Public Safety and the Campus Police are one in the same. Martinazzi said "they are no different than any other police department. We are a service organization here to enhance quality of life for the students and the employees so they can meet educational goals.

"We are also called at times to assist off campus with certain incidents. If there is a catostrophic occurence we would participate with other organizations to help control the scene."

During ALF and Homecoming Public Safety will clear parking lots, put signs up for additional parking, control traffic for the parade and try to keep a peaceful setting.

During Homecoming they will be watching for alcohol violations.

Martinazzi reminded students and vistiors that "Public Safety is everyone's friend and that we are here to help in any way, shape or form."

University of Pennsylvania

Students won't be punished for stealing newspapers

College Press Service

The University of Pennsylvania has decided not to punish nine students who swiped all the copies of a campus newspaper April 15 to protest a conservative columnist's writing.

Claire Fagin, interim president of the university, and Marvin Lazerson, interim provost, decided this fall to accept the recommendation of a special faculty judicial officer who said no furthur disciplinary action should be taken against the students.

However, both administrators warned that Penn would move quickly to punish any future confiscation of campus publications.

"Free expression of ideas is essential to the university and to American society," Fagin and Lazerson said in a joint statement. "The confiscation of any publication on campus is wrong and will not be tolerated."

The Daily Pennsylvanian is distributed free across campus, including residence halls, classrooms and administrative buildings.

Last spring, African-American students threw the full press run - 14,200 copies of the independent daily newspaper - into trash bins. After learning of the incident, the newspaper staff moved quickly to print and distribute an additional 6,000 copies.

Disciplinary charges were filed against nine of some 60 students who took copies of the newspaper from distribution sites. The Black Student League, a student group, organized and sanctioned the protest in response to the newspaper's policies and editorial columns by a conservative writer who questioned Martin Luther King Jr. as a black hero, and his comments regarding what he said was blacks' preferential treatment in admissions and disciplinary procedures.

Officials said Penn was one of th 15 U.S. institutions where newspapers were seized in recent months. Protesters defended the actions as political demonstrations because they charged that the papers were biased in news coverage or were promoting racism or sexism.

Howard Arnold, the faculty judicial officer, also recommended that the staff and management of The Daily Pennsylvanian and the Black Student League meet to work out differences.

"Communication, dialogue and mediation need to become the norm on this campus, not the exception," Fagin and Lazerson said in the statement.

After talking with the students, advisers, faculty and administrators, Arnold said he concluded that the newspaper theft resulted from long-standing disagreements between black students, the student editors and the university.

Arnold said he found students on both sides of the dispute were genuinely open to discussions to find common ground, so there was no furthur need for disciplinary action.

"Mistakes by students must be seen more as opportunities for education than as occasions for punishment," he said.

Former Penn President Sheldon Hackney, who is now chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, has been criticized for his handling of racial tensions and free speech issues that arose last year when he was still head of the university.

Last spring, five black students dropped charges of racial harassment against a white student who called them "water buffalo," saying they did not believe they could get a fair hearing on the issue.

The white student said he did not consider "water buffalo" to be a racial slur, and he simply wanted the women to stop making noise outside his dorm room.

Gay students face challenges

College Press Service

While gay, lesbian, and bisexual students have made strides for equality on many college campuses, the national debate on gay rights still impacts them greatly, student leaders say.

Many gay students either have to hide their orientation from fellow students, faculty, and administrators, or if they have come out, must remain vigilant against those who may harm them verbally or physically, officials said.

Several universities and colleges have established gay, lesbian, and bisexual centers as resources both for straight and gay people who are trying to understand gay issues. Additionally, many campuses have student organizations, and support and social groups, for gay students. Even with this expanding openness and demands students are reporting that harassment still exists.

Activists and scholars say that there is still a great misconception about who and what gay people are, and that the problems students face at college mirror the problems that gays and lesbians have in the "real world" concerning job security and benifits, housing, parenting, safety, and other issues.

Phil Martin, director of the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Center at Ohio State University in Colombus, said the University- supported center was created so that gay students could have a safe environment and the greater community could better understand issues that affect these students.

"the basic need for the office is to provide factual information about the gay population," Martin said. "People talk about myths that we're child molesters. The myth is that we are weak and sexually deviant. The myth is that women are strong and truck drivers. The myth is that we are not equal human beings."

There is no way to accurately gauge the number of lesbians, gays, and bisexuals in the United States- figures range from 1 percent to 15 percent of the overall population.

Martin and others say the same holds true for the college population- the exact numbers aren't known. But it is safe to assume that gay students attend almost every institution in the nation, Martin and other experts in the field said. But that doesn't mean that gay students are accepted.

In the past year, there have been setbacks for the gay rights, officials say. Ohio Northern University voted to deny student government recognition of the Gay and Lesbian alliance.

CUP students favor moving mid-semester break to ALF week

by Christin Mihon
News Writer

A recent area of student concern has been the possibility of having mid-semester break coincide with the Friday of Autumn Leaf Festival.

In an opinion poll of 100 students by random phone calls to dormitory rooms across campus, 48 percent of students interviewed thought that having the Friday of ALF week off was a good idea, 26 percent did not think it was a good idea and 13 percent were neutral.

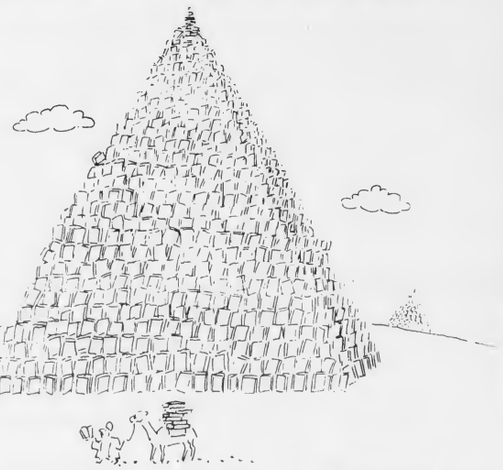

A formal poll is under consideration by Student Senate and would be conducted in conjuction with senate elections.

The results of that vote would be taken into consideration by university officials, who would make the final decision on moving the holiday.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Sept. 27, through Oct. 03, 1993.

A love seat was reported missing on Sept. 28 from the TV room of Wilkinson Hall. This seat has been missing for three weeks. The value of the love seat is approximately $500.00. The item is green in color and has wooden arm rests.

A fire alarm pull station was activated on the fourth floor of Nair Hall at approximately 5:54 a.m. on Oct. 2. The incident is under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Yeltsin defeats revolt

Boris Yeltsin won a bloody victory in the battle for Russia's future Monday, as his army crushed hard-line opponents barricaded in the Russian White House.

Scores of former-communinists died as Yeltsin defeated the strongest bid yet designed to unseat him.

Mubarak secure

Egyptians voted Monday in a referendum that is widely expected to hand President Hosni Mubarak a third six year term.

Police stepped up security to protect against attacks by Muslim militants who have mounted a violent campaign to topple the government and replace it with a strict Islamic state.

Voting, which was light in Cairo, but heavier outside the city, passed without incident.

Argentine mandate

President Carlos Menem, exulting in his Peronist Party's solid victory in congressional elections, zeroed in Monday on amending the constitution to allow him a second term in 1995.

The Peronists defeated the Civic Radical Union, the leading opposition party, by nearly 12 points in Sunday's election.

With 82 percent of polls reporting, official returns gave the Peronists 42.2 percent of the total vote cast.

U.S. troops killed in Somalia

The Pentagon ordered fresh infantry, aerial gunships and top-of-the-line tanks to Somalia Monday to bolster U.S. forces after at least 12 Americans were killed, 78 wounded and others captured in the fiercest fighting since the mission began.

The casualties, inflicted by the forces of warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid, were the most for the United States in such a short period since the Persian Gulf War. The battle began late Sunday and lasted into Monday.

On Capitol Hill, some lawmakers called for U.S. withdrawal, but President Clinton insisted American forces would remain until order was restored.

"Americans by the dozens are paying with their lives and limbs for a misplaced policy," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Senate minority leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "It seems to me that it's time to take a hard, hard look on why we're still there.

"It's gone from a humanitarian mission to almost an outright armed conflict, and it seems to me Congress and the administration ought to come to grips with this and make a decision one way or another."

Clinton defended sending the reinforcements.

Viet envoy visits D.C.

The highest ranking Vietnamese vistor since the end of the war was urged by Secretary of State Warren Christopher Monday to cooperate further in providing an accounting for missing American servicemen.

State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said Vietnam has been accelerating its cooperation, but added Vietnam must do more.

Trade center bombing trial started

A prosecutor pointed one-by-one to four Muslim fundamentalists charged in the World Trade Center bombing and said Monday their "war of terrorism" had shattered America's sense of security.

Some of the defendants, Mohammad Salameh, 26, Ahmad Ajaj, 27, Mahmud Abouhalima,33, and Nidal Ayyad,25, shook their heads several times during the prosecutor's opening statements but otherwise showed no emotion.

Defense lawyers maintained the men's innocence.

The bombing occurred as tens of thousands of people in the world's second tallest building were going about their lunchtime business. The Feb. 26 blast killed six people.

Heisman Trophy winner returns

After 20 years, a Heisman Trophy winner is back in the classroom at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln working toward a degree that he never received, according to The Nebraskan, the UNL newspaper.

Former Cornhusker wingbacker Johnny Rogers, 42, who was awarded the Heisman Trophy in 1972 for being the best college player in the country, said he regrets not completing the coursework for his degree, and this time he'll stay in school until he completes his education.

Rogers, a Lincoln resident, is president of the Omaha-based Malcolm X Memorial Foundation.

His education is being paid for by the Northeastern University Center for the Study of Sport in Society.

NBC's Bryant Gumbel named trustee

NBC "Today" show host Bryant Gumbel has been elected to serve on the board of trustees of Bates College, the Lewiston, Maine school were he received a bachelor's degree in history in 1970.

Gumbel, who has anchored "Today" since 1982, longer than any other host, was awarded an honorary degree from Bates in 1986.

Pot plants found at Ithaca College

Who ever was having a high old time in the woods of the Ithaca College campus has probably hit an all-time low this fall.

Over 290 neatly potted marijuana plants, with an estimated street value of $400,000, were discovered in a densely wooded lot on the southern edge of the campus.

Students walk in silence

More than 650 students and faculty members silently marched across the Appalachian State University campus in memory of a student who lost her life to violence four years ago.

The silent march has been held every fall since Jeni Gray, an Appalachian student, was abducted and murdered in the fall of 1989.

The crowd included a student who was abducted and sexually assaulted by the man who murdered Gray.

'Love Letters' portrays childhood friendships

by Ray Henderson
Lifestyles Writer

The Clarion University Theatre's presentation of "Love Letters", by A.R. Gurney made its debut at the Hart Chapel on Tuesday evening.

"Love Letters" is a very emotional story about a determined, goal-oriented man and an emotional, rebellious woman whose relationship exists mainly on paper. The two begin by passing notes back and forth to one another in grade school, and their written relationship blossoms and perseveres for many years

Both are upper-class children born of prominent families, whose parents have their whole lives planned out for them. Andy (Michael Lee Martin) and Melissa (Marion K. Russell) are sent away to academies, summer camps and dancing schools, all the while holding their relationship together through the mail despite the many miles that separate them.

Michael Martin and Marion Russell play childhood friends who keep in touch despite the changes in life and its rewards and consequences in the drama "Love Letters."

As they mature physically and emotionally, so does their relationship and their writing. They both leave home to begin college and to pursue different careers and lead different lives. Andy joins the Navy and goes on to law school and a successful career, and Melissa pursues a career as an artist while she is in and out of various schools.

Eventually, they each marry. Andy raises a family and enters politics, and is eventually elected to the United States Senate. Melissa's life, however, does not turn out to be as stable as that of her loving penpal. Melissa struggles with her career, and her marriage ends in alcoholism and divorce, breaking apart her family, her spirit, and her heart. For many years, the once flowering correspondence between Andy and Melissa is reduced to a relationship consisting only of Christmas cards and hastily penned notes.

Later in their lives, they once again become close, engaging in a behind-the-scenes affair. Unfortunately, Melissa is encumbered with a heavy load of emotional baggage, and Andy is too worried about his future in politics to risk the scandal that would inevitably occur were he to nurture a physical relationship with her. The press finds out about their affair, and they break apart. They are once again confined to what they can express to one another through pen and paper, this time for the rest of their lives.

"Love Letters," which was directed by Mary Hardwick, is a quality production. Its simple stage set and one-on-one interplay lend themselves well to intimacy and emotion found in this story of a love held together only with perseverance and ink.

"Love Letters" will be presented nightly at the Hart Chapel Theater through Saturday, October 9 at 8 p.m.

Homecoming Queen: An Autumn Leaf Tradition

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

It's that time again—twelve young women are competing for the Homecoming Queen crown and all its glory.

The court is chosen by various clubs or organizations on campus. Through a method of voting and elimination, the student body decides who will be their next Homecoming Queen.

Senior attendants are Merrilyn Murnyack, communication major sponsored by Alpha Sigma Tau, Elizabeth Hughes, psychology major sponsored by Panhellenic Council, and Delita Greco, elementary education major sponsored by the dance team.

Junior attendants are Carrie Van Verth, communications major sponsored by Panhellenic Council and Kristen Duncan, elementary education major sponsored by Alpha Sigma Tau.

Sophomore attendants are Angela Shaffer, nursing major at the Venango campus, Laurie Marmo, early childhood/ elementary education major, Gina DeBacco, elementary/ early childhood education major sponsored by Delta Zeta, and Amy Bowser, political science/ history major sponsored by Delta Phi Epsilon.

Freshman attendants are Kristen Kulling, elementary education/ special education major from Venango campus, Colleen Hiteshew, medical technology major sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha, and Tracy D'Ambrosio, geriatrics major sponsored by the dance team.

Clarion University will crown their Homecoming Queen and present her court at the Homecoming Dance tonight at 10:30 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room. The dance will run from 9 p.m. to midnight. The Homecoming court will be presented again at the football game on Saturday, October 9 during halftime.

Two new faculty members welcomed to staff

by Ron Santillo
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University faculty is happy to welcome two new members to its staff. Joyce Jablonski has joined the staff as director of the Sandford Art Gallery and as an art department faculty member. Dr. Richard DeLuca has joined on as a professor of education and director of the Center of Educational Leadership.

A native of Brookfield, Ohio, Jablonski is quite familiar with the Clarion area because she visited Cook Forest often as she was growing up. Jablonski received a B.F.A. degree in ceramics from Youngstown State University. She also earned her M.F.A. degree in ceramic sculpture and drawing from the University of Texas at San Antonio, Texas. She will be teaching all levels of sculpture and 3-D design here at Clarion.

While attending an art conference in Yuma, Arizona, Jablonski met Cathy Joslyn, the chair of the Clarion University Art Department and faculty member Gary Greenburg. Jablonski's teaching experience ranges from kindergarten through the university level. During the past year, she has been lecturing and leading workshops at Lakeside Studio in Chicago, Illinois, where she served as an administrator and in charge of international art exchange.

Prior to her work at Lakeside Studio, Jablonski has served as instructors and teaching assistants at various colleges and art centers in Michigan and Texas. She has received national and international art show awards for her works which have been displayed in Texas, Illinois, Michigan, California, Ohio, Kansas and New Mexico, as well as in Canada and the former Soviet Union. Along with her art, she has also delivered many slide shows and lectures throughout the U.S.

Jablonski feels that the Sandford Gallery is a nice size gallery with a lot of potential. She would like it to be a teaching gallery focusing on contemporary works, and depending on the budget, she would like to bring individual artists with the exhibits. Her contracts through her years in art will enable her to obtain exhibits from the Baltic and from deep in the heart of Mexico. She would like to mix what is displayed from folk ceramic art in Mexico to works by Lativan artists.

Dr. Richard DeLuca of Harrison City will be succeeding Dr. Claude Perkins, who took a position in St. Louis, Missouri, as the director of the center.

DeLuca did his undergraduate work at the University of Pittsburgh and St. Vincent College, where he received his B.A. in history. He later received his master's degree in education/administration from Duquesne University and earned his Ph.D. in administration from the University of Pittsburgh.

For the past three years DeLuca was the superintendent of schools for the Greater Johnstown School District. He was also employed by the Hempfield Area School District serving as assistant senior high school principal, assistant director of curriculum and instruction, administrative assistant and assistant superintendent.

DeLuca is very happy to be teaching at the university level here at Clarion. "Teaching at a college is something that I always wanted to do," says DeLuca. "When this opportunity presented itself, I decided to pursue it."

Along with directing the Center, DeLuca will teach Introduction to Education for the Clarion University College of Education and Human Services.

In 1988, the Center for Educational Leadership was formally authorized, which general purpose is to establish closer relationships with the K-12 school community and the College of Education and Human Services.

DeLuca would like to see the Center working with the superintentents, principals and teachers in each of the districts in order to assist in providing the best possible education to their students. DeLuca is looking to visit each of the schools in the district to meet with superintendents and assess all their formal and informal needs.

One of the Center's more popular programs is the Program of Scholastic Enrichment or POSE. The goal of this program is to increase post-secondary participation of rural students, specifically where families do not have a history of post-secondary participation.

"Duo Concertante" features flute and piano soloists

by Anita Carbon
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University's music department will host a guest recital, "Duo Concertante," with flutist Diane Gold and pianist Hanni Schmid-Wyss on Sunday, October 10.

Hanni Schmid-Wyss is internationally known, traveling throughout the U.S. and Europe performing in recitals, chamber ensembles and as a soloist in orchestras. She graduated with her M.S. degree from the Music Academy of Zurich in Switzerland and received a soloist diploma at the Staatliche Hochschule fur Musik Cologne in Germany.

In Switzerland, Schmid-Wyss won a medal in the International Competition at Geneva and received first prize in the National Competition. Schmid-Wyss also plays contemporary music and has made several recordings. Critics describe her as "an artist full of temperment with a brilliant technique and at the same time very sensitive."

Diane Gold is a member of the musical faculties of Juniata and York Colleges, Bucknell and Lehigh Universities and the Music Academy of State College. She is principle flutist of York, Altoona and Nittany Valley orchestras. Gold has recently recorded a second CD, "Masques," with the Huntingdon Trio of Philadelphia, a chamber ensemble at Drexel and Bucknell Universities.

Gold has earned degrees from Eastman and Columbia where she studied with Julius Baker, Joseph Mariano and Albert Tipton. She performed in the Claire Polin Birthday Tribute in January 1991 at Weill Recital Hall in New York. Gold has played in concerts with the New Philadelphia String Quartet.

Gold has taught masterclasses to advanced students throughout the U.S. and Europe, and to students at Oxford University during the spring of 1993. She will perform Carl Reinecke's "Concerto for Flute" as a guest soloist with the Altoona Symphony on March 12, 1994.

The program will include "Suite Mondale" by Ernest Block, "Anante in C Major, KV315" by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, and more. Schmid-Wyss will perform a piano solo, "Variations on 'un air Allemand' for solo piano" by Fredrick Chopin and Gold will perform Claude-Achille Debussy's "Syrinx for solo flute."

The recital and masterclasses presented by Diane Gold and Hanni Schmid-Wyss were arranged and co-ordinated by assistant professor of music, Dr. Brent Register.

Schmid-Wyss and Gold's "Duo Concertante" is made possible through a grant from the Clarion University Foundation. The guest recital is free and open to the public on Sunday, October 10 at 8:15 p.m. in the Hart Chapel Theatre.

Ponder the meaning of life and college

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

Philosophy is the exploring of the basic truths of life and the universe. It reaches above and beyond the ordinary thinker.

Dr. Laurence Thomas is currently a professor of philosophy at Syracuse University. Thomas' unique approach to teaching has inspired greater interest among his students, and has also made his Philosophy 191 the most sought-after class on campus.

Because of his innate ambition to create a greater interest, he invites groups of students to lunch or to his home. Students can earn extra credit by writing a three-page essay on any lecture subject, and if it is considered to be an A then the grade counts. (If not, it is forgotten.) Always trying to keep the students thinking positively, he sends personalized letters to those who are doing well in his class.

An incident that occurred one day in Thomas' classroom displays his extreme concern for the college students' study habits. When learning upon his arrival of the classroom that 18 out of 280 plus students in attendance indicated that they had read the assigned material for the day, Thomas walked out of the classroom without a word.

The next day, Thomas brought an advertisement from the Daily Orange, the Syracuse newspaper, chastising students for what he saw as academic indifference, and imploring them to be more serious in the classroom. His advertisement was met with praise and support from his colleagues, students and media.

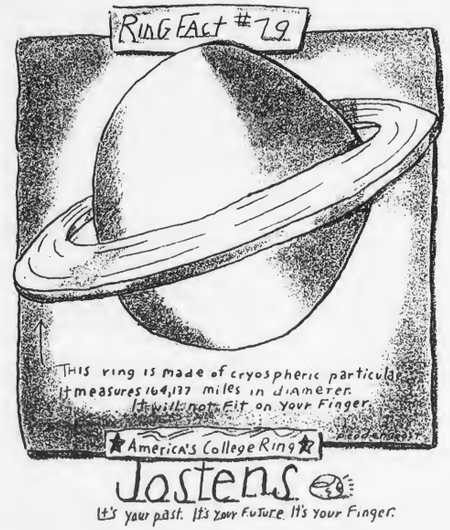

Thomas received his B.A. from the University of Maryland and he acquired his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh. He also received an honorary L.L.D. from New England College. He previously held jobs as a professor of philosophy at Oberlin College, the University of Maryland and the University of Notre Dame.

Dr. Laurence Thomas is a hard working professor who is always striving for excellence in his students. He has chosen to be a guest speaker at Clarion University. This visit is to be paid for through a grant from the Clarion University Foundation.

The lecture given by Thomas, "Moral Deference and the art of Excellence," will be held at the Hart Chapel Theatre at 7 p.m. on Monday, October 11. It will cover contemporary moral problems and the ideals of liberal education. The lecture is free and open to the public. A reception will follow the lecture at Moore Hall. On Tuesday, Thomas will be visiting classes on campus to meet with the students.

If you enjoy pondering the meaning of life, this is a lecture you just cannot miss.

Student senators: the voices of the campus

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles Writer

The Student Senate here at Clarion University plays an important role in most of the decisions made by the administration. Each student senator is responsible for making sure that all decisions are made with concern for the welfare of the student body. Three of those elected senators—James Smith, Angela Link and Katrina Helmick—have specific ideas about what they can do to help all students here at Clarion.

James Smith is a senior elementary education major and he became a student senator because he wanted "to get involved and make a difference." Smith believes that his role of being a student senator is to address the needs and concerns of the student body.

Smith is on the Dining and Residence Hall Committee, a job he takes very seriously. As a member of the committee, Smith works closely with the dining and residence halls to see that students' needs and suggestions are met.

Smith wants all students to get involved in Student Senate. "We as student senators are here to work for and with the entire student body. Without you this university wouldn't exist. So please voice your opinions and make a difference."

When asked what needs to be changed at Clarion University, student senator Angela Link says, "More student involvement is needed here at Clarion. The school could be so much more full of life if there was more involvement from all of the students."

Link, a sophomore elementary/special education major is concerned with apathy among the student body. "There is so much to get involved in here at Clarion, but students don't seem to care." Link is also a part of the Committee on Sub-Committees and Student Centers Committee.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Angela Link is just one of the many dedicated Student Senators ready to be your voice on campus issues.

A major reason Link ran for Student Senate was so her opinions could be voiced and heard. Her goal as a student senator is to give everyone a chance to have their opinions heard.

Katrina Helmick is a senior French/ international business/ economics major who ran for student senate so she could be the spokesperson of "the campus' most precious resources—its students." Her most important goal as a student senator is to increase the student body's awareness in subjects concerning everyone.

Helmick is the chair of the Committee on Subcommittees and is also a member of the Elections Committee. She also believes that student involvement is the key in making the student senate effective. She says, "Student Senate is here to represent you. If you don't express how you feel, we'll never know. Let your voice be heard."

Our student senators are waiting to hear your voice. If you have any suggestions or complaints, stop by the Student Senate office in 269 Gemmell.

Medley of Latvian art displayed

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

An interesting array of art from Latvia is being displayed in the Sandford Art Gallery in Marwick-Boyd during October. The exhibit opened Tuesday, October 5 and will continue through Thursday, October 28.

A plethora of six artists contribute a medley of artwork to be seen. Ilmars Blumbergs and Peteris Martinsons present their ideas in prints and ceramics. Egils Rozenberg creates printed fiber work of wall splattered tapestries. Viesturs Berzins generates works of fiber, ceramics and sculpture.

Juris Leitans contributes a display of Russian amber jewelry. Necklaces, pins, rings and bracelets with hints of sterling silver adorn one particular corner of the gallery. Peteris Sidars completes this exhibit with more ceramics. All of the work displays a wide variety of color, ranging from as neutral as blacks, whites and browns to as bold as bright pinks and sky blues.

"All work is contemporary and most is abstract or surreal," comments Joyce Jablonski, director of the Sandford Gallery. "In their older works under Soviet rule, they had no control over what they could make. They had to be careful and focused their works on nationalism through recognizable, figurative work, supporting the country."

These artists' works have changed greatly since Latvia pushed for independence in 1988-89. Their main influence after this privilege of freedom came from what they saw on U.S. television broadcasts out of Finland and after a visit to the U.S.

Due to the loss of government support, the artists had to become much more independent, supporting themselves through gallery exhibits and sales of their work.

Jablonski has met each of these artists, "I met all of these artists at fiber and sculpture symposiums I attended in 1989 and 1990. I invited all of them to the United States, and they have all visited and worked in the Chicago area. The pieces that they left behind are the basis for this exhibit."

Gallery hours are 1-5 p.m. on Monday and Friday, 9 a.m.-8 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, and 2-5 p.m. on Wednesday. Following the Latvian art is a faculty art exhibit November 2-24.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-Officials of the Katy (Texas) Independent School District sent parents formal letters of apology in September for having distributed a sexual conduct manual, which officials belatedly concluded went too far. Among the listed violations, requiring expulsion, explained to all students from the first grade up were having sexual contact with the genitals or anuses of animals.

-In August, Judge Robert Schillberg released shoplifter Leroy Kelley without penalty in Lynnwood, Washington even though Kelley had just pleaded guilty to stealing two packs of Marlboros from a Safeway store, Schillberg fined Kelley $1, which the judge then paid out of his own pocket, because he believes "the store is more culpable than (Kelley) is" for selling cigarettes in the first place since they are such dangerous products.

-In August, Food and Drug Administration agents raided a store in Columbus, Ohio that had an inventory of "ear candles," which are hollow candles that in theory will loosen hard-to-remove wax from a person's ears. (The candle is placed in the ear and lighted on top; the oxygen sucked from the hollow canal creates a vacuum that loosens the earwax.) FDA said neither the safety nor the effectiveness of the candles had been demonstrated.

-In Rome, Georgia last fall, Rusty Strickland, 23, was sentenced to 12 years in prison when a substance the police said was cocaine was found in plastic bags in his home. At the time, Strickland begged for the police chemist to analyze the contents; the chemist affirmed that the substance was cocaine. After Strickland had served six months of his sentence, police chemists ran another test and found that the bags all along contained only soap. The original chemist, who had sworn in court that he had tested the bag but had not, was fired.

-In July, Sacramento, California police began a crackdown on the city's homeless who were illegally camping out. Numerous citations were written, but almost as fast as the citations came to court, the court clerk—following official procedures—voided them because they lacked home addresses for the accused.

-Retired Mongolian physician Ichinnorof Dendev, 60, and two countrymen are in the middle of a nine-month "walk" from Mongolia to Seattle, Washington where they hope to place flowers on the grave of the late martial arts movie star Bruce Lee, who apparently is very popular in Mongolia. As of early September, the trio were trying to get from Nome, Alaska, to Fairbanks, despite landscape that is impossible for walking.

-James Cramer, 25, and Rudolf Warren, 24, were arrested in August and charged with four robberies of Buffalo, New York banks. The pair came to the attention of police when officers made a routine traffic stop of Warren, who was alone and driving Cramer's car, and asked for his registration papers. Warren reached into the glove compartment and handed all the papers to the police, inadvertently including the holdup note the two had been using ("I have a gun. Put all the money in the envelope quickly!")

-Wilfredo Nunez, 43, died of head injuries after being swept off his feet by unusually strong currents in a New York City sewer in July while sifting through knee-deep water searching for coins and trinkets. Said a colleague, of the pair's expedition, "It doesn't smell that bad down there, and you don't get that dirty."

-In May, the Howard Johnson Plaza-Suite Hotel in Baton Rouge, Louisiana temporary home of state Rep. David Armstrong of New Orleans while the legislature is in session, banned him from the premises, to protect its female employees from Armstrong's repeated sexual harassments. Hotel manager Rick Smith said he had stopped allowing housekeeping employees to go to Armstrong's room alone because several of them said Armstrong had greeted them naked or wearing little clothing, had made various sexual gestures and had invariably invited them to join him in sexual activities.

-Knight-Ridder News Service

reported in December that Roger Dunavant's Straight Arrow firm in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania has increased sales of its horse grooming products over the last three years from $500,000 a year to $12 million through sales to humans for grooming themselves. The hottest product is Mane 'n Tail Conditioner, but Hoofmaker also sells well as a hands and nails conditioner.

-Rick Brown of Los Angeles introduced a $69.95 audiocassette program for women, "Think and Grow Breasts," consisting of hypnotic creative-visualization exercises designed to take women's minds back to puberty, to re-engage the "mammary-building process."

-In a recent issue of the trade journal Circus Report was a notice placed by a clown, threatening legal action if a competitor didn't stop using the first clown's performing name, which is "Underwearhead the Clown."

-Donald Kuntz, 25, was convicted of assault in Toronto in March after participating in the slicing open of the arm of a 21-year-old woman he had just met in a bar. According to testimony at the trial, the woman had agreed in principle to let him drink her blood, but it was Kuntz who opened the wound, causing the woman pain and forcing her to head for the hospital. According to witnesses, Kuntz then dropped to the floor and licked up the spilled blood before fleeing.

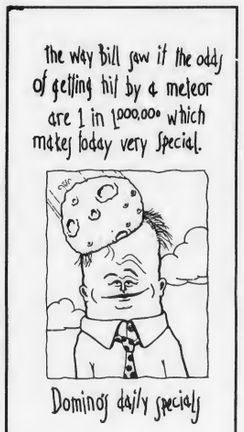

-Brian C. Jones, 20, was arrested in Norfolk, Virginia in May and charged with breaking into his neighbor's house, stealing a television, camera and VCR, and then setting the neighbor's house on fire, gutting it to wipe out any evidence linking him to the theft. However, the neighbor's house is actually on the other part of Jones' duplex. Jones' place suffered heavy smoke damage, which opened the house to firefighters, and the neighbor's equipment was spotted inside.

-Among the inventions revealed in a February contest in Tokyo sponsored by Konica Corp. was a camera tripod fitted with an adjustable-length U-shaped chin rest and a shoe with a telescoping handle for killing hard-to-reach insects.

Pittsburgh's Dancing Linda appearing at Metropol

by Kristen Geyer
Lifestyles Writer

"Sometimes true individuality comes not from creating something new, but from avoiding everything familiar," says Pittsburgh City Paper writer John Hayes in relation to Pittsburgh's own alternative rock band Dancing Linda.

Dancing Linda's original material, with thoughtful lyrics and a touch of metal, can be heard on Clarion's WCCB 640 A.M. and, following the trend, Edinboro University's station WFSE. Not only is Clarion being trendy by playing Dancing Linda on their radio stations, but the fraternity Sigma Phi Epsilon brought them to Clarion live. Dancing Linda can also be heard on WDVE's "Homegrown" show.

Pennsylvania Musician writer Ronnie Cremer describes Dancing Linda's sound as "truly unique. . .the chord changes and rhythmic variations displayed on their demo tape are extremely tasty, and I love food for song." Cremer also calls Dancing Linda's music as "cutting edge stuff."

The four-man band, with Jimmy on vocals and lead guitar, Mark on drums, Chris on rhythm and lead guitar and Jason on bass, could have a very promising future, according to Aaron P. "Throwing up a sound that falls somewhere between the guitar krunch of Alice in Chains and the ambionic noise washes of Smashing Pumpkins, Pittsburgh's own Dancing Linda may be one of the city's best kept secrets."

Arthurs continues to rave about Dancing Linda as "packing enough commercial appeal to probably draw some label attention, yet staying far enough left of center to be respectible."

Some of Dancing Linda's songs include "Arig Nos Rae", "Poor Little World", "Under Water", "Honey Dear", "and "Circus." Says Bryan Woleslagle of Pennsylvania Musician, "All instruments stand out and what Jimmy does with his vocals is a very talented difference to show off his unique ways."

In the past, Dancing Linda has performed at Metropol in Pittsburgh and at Niabingy and Mutt's, both in West Virginia. Now Metropol is bringing Dancing Linda back home.

So if you feel like taking a road trip to Pittsburgh tonight, be sure to stop in at the Metropol to check out Dancing Linda along with Bunjie Jambo and Thickhead Grin. The doors open at 6:30 and the performance is open to all ages with admission of $3.

A pack of gum and a piece of history at Herman's

by John Martinec
Lifestyles Writer

The next time you need a pack of gum, cigarettes, a can of pop or some canned goods, think about going to Herman's Groceries-Conf. because you may get a little more than you think.

This modest store is located beside Wendy's just off campus. It is a special little place because mixed in among the Pop-Tarts and the cans of beans is some of American small-town history.

The original store was started in the 1860s as a general store like many others. It was a friendly store where the regular customers could go in to buy the day's groceries, set up an account or go buy a chaw of tobacco for that day. They grinded their own coffee at Herman's and sold fresh baked goods to wide-eyed children.

The store used to supply the university with buns and cold cuts, but that slowly changed when the town began to grow and the other larger businesses started to take the orders away from the small general stores.

Today Herman's is a landmark of sorts here in Clarion. It is one of the last small-town general stores left in operation. At one time the store would have many people coming in and out but today only twenty or thirty people, usually college students, walk through those wooden doors.

There was a time when many students would enter the store to buy a snack or something for dinner. But today, according to the store owner, Joseph Herman, the students want "pizza, beer and ready-made sandwiches." Unfortunately this store does not carry those items.

However, Herman's does have what most stores do not. All around the store are bottles and cans, little figurines and signs. Beneath the soft layer of dust that covers them is a story. The stories tell of Clarion history not unlike the history of many of America's small towns.

Did you know that Clarion had at one time its own beer company around the 1900s? Not only that, but it had its own Coca-Cola bottling plant which closed in the 1940s. Herman has a bottle from each company

What was most interesting was how people started to call soda water, pop. According to Herman, Stines Kennedy sold a beverage in the 1930s that had a metal loop connected to a rubber plug in a bottle. The plug kept the flavoring and the carbonation separated. When the bottle was opened and the flavoring and carbonation were mixed together it caused a loud "POP" and bubbles flowed everywhere. Thus came the name "pop."

Many other pieces of history are preserved in glass at Herman's. There are tall wine bottles and bottles that are shaped like men and animals. Herman also has beer bottles of all shapes and sizes.

Herman handed me one bottle with nicks around the mouth. He told me it was caused from the bottle being worn from the metal rod they used to remove the cork.

There was a glass rolling pin and advertisement signs that looked like they should be in a museum. Herman also had a glass blowing rod that was used to make bottles here in Clarion.

Just reading about these stories can never equal hearing them straight from the mouth of a man who knows them by heart. They lose the flavor that only Herman can give as he remembers working for his grandfather, who ran the same store prior to him.

Eagles fall to 1-3

Edinboro crushes Eagles, 28-0

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

It was an ugly, dreary day in Clarion anyway, but four Golden Eagle fumbles, three interceptions, and 102 yards worth of penalties turned ugliness into putrescence as the Golden Eagles were skunked by Edinboro 28-0.

The severity of starting quarterback Chris Zak's leg injury was kept quiet all week, and at game's start, Craig Ray was under center.

Trailing 7-0 late in quarter number one, Ray led the offense to the Edinboro 30, but on the 13th play of drive, he fumbled the snap. Clarion never got closer than that.

After two Edinboro field goals went awry, quarterback Jody Dickerson found Scott Mikowicz from three yards away for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Clarion was lucky to only be down by two touchdowns, as the Scots accumulated 296 total yards and 12 first downs in just two quarters.

Edinboro continued its domination in the second half. The Scots used a 25 yard reverse and 20 yards worth of Clarion penalties to set up another score midway through the third. A five yard run by Larry Jackson capped off the drive and made it 21-0.

Later in the third, a 50 yard Dickerson missile set up a one yard plunge by Tom Tedder that mercifully closed out the scoring for the Scots.

On the day, Edinboro amassed 441 yards of total offense to Clarion's 221, while the Eagles were flagged for five personal "fowls."

With the loss, the Eagles' record drops to 1-3, 0-1 in the conference as they enter Saturday's Homecoming game against Bloomsburg. Clarion beat Bloomsburg 23-20 last year. Saturday's kickoff is at 2 p.m.

Clarion defeats IUP, 3-0

Eagles soar high after Rocky Mountain low

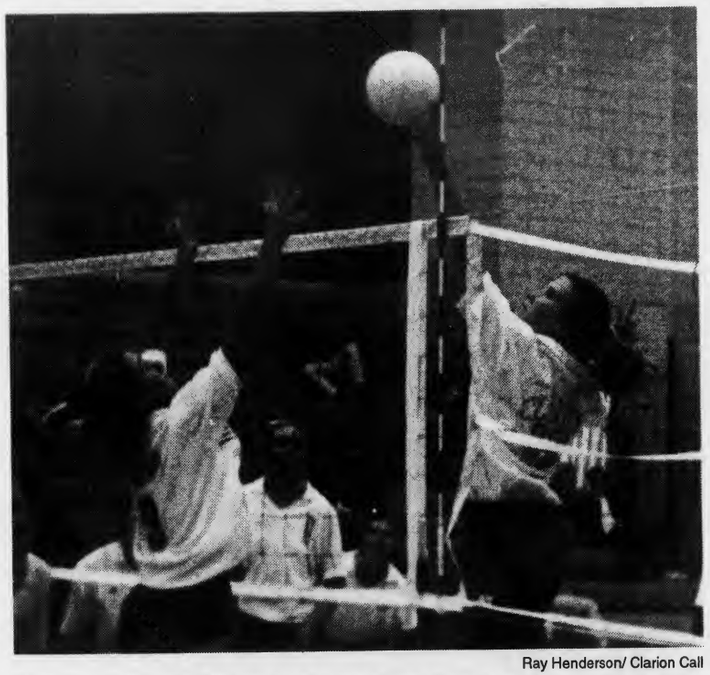

by Ray Henderson
Sportswriter

During the first week of September, with three games under their belt, the Clarion University volleyball team was riding high. They had just defeated IUP at the Fairmont State volleyball tournament to bring their record to 2-1.

In the weeks that followed, the Lady Eagles' returned to Tippin Gymnasium for only two games against Robert Morris and Lock Haven, and their record plummeted to a dismal 2-15 that put them nearly in the basement of the PSAC. After a 14 game losing streak, it took a trip to the Rockies to bring their rocky record to 3-16, when they bested Tabor University of Kansas at the Colorado Christian Tournament in Colorado Springs.

On Tuesday evening, the team managed to put yet another number in the "W" column with a 3-0 (15-8, 15-8, 15-1) victory against IUP. So far this season, two of the Eagles' three wins have been chalked up against IUP. Sophomore Bobbie Simpson led the evening with eleven kills, and Nicole Flambard finished close behind with ten. Katy Rhoads had 33 assists for the evening, and Lisa Flynn dug in for 15 digs.

The Eagles, their record improved to 4-16, will face off against Point Park College on October 15 at Tippin Gymnasium at 7 p.m.

Clarion drops EUP, IUP

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

After one of the worst starts in recent memory, the Clarion Golden Eagles tennis team pulled together for a two game win streak to raise its record to 3-6.

A determined Eagle squad embarked on a two game road trip and Edinboro was the first destination.

Kristen McKinley disposed of her opponent only minutes after it started with a 6-0, 6-1 beating. She then teamed with Morgan Mulvihill to claim a 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 win. It was the first doubles victory for that team.

Mulvihill also grabbed her first singles match of the year with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 decision.

Roxann Milton evened her record at 3-3 with a come from behind victory 4-6, 6-3, 6-2; and Shara Wolkimir won 6-2, 6-0.

Wolkimir continued her great play at IUP. After a shaky start she overwhelmed her opponent 3-6, 6-2, 6-0 to raise her personal record to 6-3. Wolkimir also won her doubles match, teaming with Melodi Dess for a 6-1, 6-2 conquest.

Dess won her singles match 3-6, 6-2, 6-0 to increase her win total to four, and the number two seeded Milton took her singles match as well 6-4, 6-2.

The teams of Milton and Unkefer along with McKinley and Mulvihill captured victories in doubles to give the Eagles six of the nine possible points.

The Eagles will have to miss the ALF parade for their next match, a home tilt with Bloomsburg on Saturday. That match begins at 11:30.

The Eagles seemed to have peaked at just the right time, for the PSAC Championships are right around the corner starting October 14 and lasting until October 16.

Brown needs seven catches

Clarion hoping to regroup against Bloomsburg

Sports Information

Clarion University's 1993 football team will look to get back on the winning track this Saturday, October 9, as the Golden Eagles host Bloomsburg in the annual Homecoming game. Kickoff at Clarion's Memorial Stadium will be at 2 p.m.

The Golden Eagles enter the game with a 1-3 overall record and 0-1 mark in the PSAC-West, and Bloomsburg comes in at 1-4, 0-1 in the PSAC-East

"A year ago we were 0-4 going into this game and we told the team we still believed in them, we just needed to keep working hard and take them one game at a time," reflected head coach Gene Sobolewski. "We're going to approach this game just like we did a year ago and keep a positive approach. There's a lot of football left in 1993."

The Golden Eagles, who are averaging 329.8 yards of offense per game will again be without the services of starting quarterback Chris Zak. The junior signal-caller, who injured his knee during the New Haven game in 1992 missed the entire season, re-injured his knee at Westminster two weeks ago and sat out the Edinboro game on Saturday. He will be re-evaluated next week.

The Eagles will start junior Craig Ray who has completed 20 of 46 passes for 210 yards and 1 td, along with 4 interceptions.

All-American tight end Tim Brown, who ranks number one in the PSAC with 6.8 catches per game in 1993, is bearing down on the Clarion career reception record. Brown currently has 143 career receptions at Clarion, second in school history behind former great Ron Urbansky who had 149 catches from 1986-89.

Clarion's second leading receiver Jess Quinn will miss the Bloomsburg game with a leg injury.

Clarion's running game will be led by tailback Damien Henry. Henry has 396 yards on 90 attempts, plus has caught 9 passes for 104 yards and 1 td.

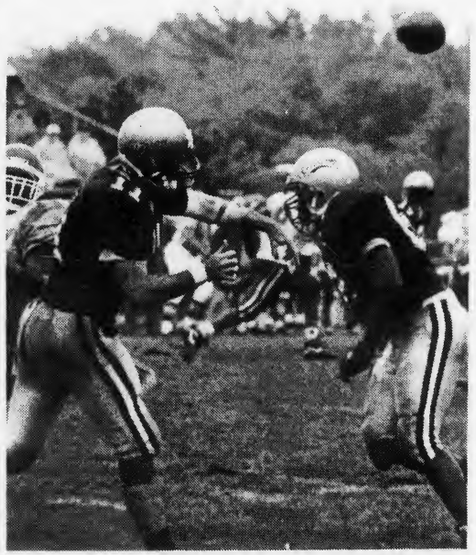

The Clarion defense is yielding 361 yards of offense per game, including 191.8 on the ground and 169.3 passing.

The Huskies are averaging 258.6 yards of total offense per game, and are led by sophomore quarterback Phil Ries, who has completed 46 of 105 passes for 640 yards and seven td's, but has tossed nine interceptions.

Ready to catch the pigskin are wideouts Buck Eardley (21 catches) and Jeff Zoranski (10 grabs)

The running game is solid behind fullback Syheed Brooks (261 yards) and tailback Mike Johnson (243 yards).

The Bloomsburg defense is giving up 402 yards of offense per game.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Looking to connect: Clarion qb Craig Ray (11) is hoping to bounce back after an 11 for 32 passing day against Edinboro.

Sports Commentary:

Can Philly fly with Bubby?

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

After watching Sunday's Jets-Eagles clash, I've become a believer; the Boomer Esiason led Jets are for real. The fired-up team from the Meadowlands was out to prove its worth against an NFC powerhouse in the Philadelphia Eagles. The result, a crazy 35-30 Philadelphia victory. No, not crazy, unimaginable.

Eagles' quarterback Randall Cunningham ended his season early once again by suffering a broken leg in the first half. Guess who stepped in? You guessed it, the man for whom, due to his erratic passing, every underpass and overpass in Pittsburgh is named. Bubby Brister. Yes, black and gold die hards, your former starting quarterback. This particular Sunday, however, Brister would bury the Steeler ghosts from the past.

Brister rallied his troops to 21 points in the second half and tamed the Jets' Boomer Esiason in the fourth quarter. Philadelphia defensive back Eric Allen sealed the track meet for Philly with a 94 yard interception return.

To tell you the truth, I never doubted Brister's ability. Crowd pressure, a mediocre offensive line and shaky receivers were partly the reason for Bubby's escapades in Pittsburgh, but in Philadelphia, he's been greeted with open arms and a clean slate.

With many key players gone to free agency such as Reggie White, Keith Jackson and Keith Byars, the Eagles weren't expected to make the playoffs in 1993, but at 4-0, they lead the most powerful division in the NFL.

With the Phillies in the playoffs, the city of Philadelphia has turned its attention more towards baseball for this October, but the undefeated Eagles deserve the just attention of their fans. Remember 1980? Tug McGraw led the Phils to a World Series championship over the Royals, and Ron Jaworski passed his Eagles to an NFC championship and an appearance in Super Bowl XV. Deja vu?

- In other NFL notes, the New Orleans Saints kept rolling with a 37-6 drubbing of the LA Rams. Playing probably the best defense in the NFL, the Saints kept the Rams from getting inside their 20 yard line.

- Kansas City's Joe Montana went down with a hamstring injury, but the Chiefs were still able to hold the Raiders in check, 24-9.

SPORTS COMMENTARY :

My interview with Jack Lambert

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Would you pay eight bucks to get the autograph of a linebacker that hasn't played in the NFL since 1984, and is currently the deputy game warden of Armstrong county? Probably not, but I would. In fact I did on Sunday when Jack Lambert came to the Clarion Mall (and I use the word "mall" loosely) to sign autographs.

The eight dollars was a small price to pay (I hear Willie Mays charges $30) as far as I was concerned. You see, Jack Lambert has been my idol ever since I was about eight years old. I am a long time cult follower of the Steeler teams of the seventies, and Lambert epitomized those teams. I have always wanted to just be able to sit down and shoot the breeze with one of the many hall of famers that played for those teams. I had done so much research about them that I probably knew more about their careers than they did. When I found out that my favorite of those hall of famers was going to be in Clarion, I hoped that I could get an interview with him for the Call. A conversation with him would be like a dream come true.

After arriving at the mall and standing in line for several minutes, my chance finally came to talk to the greatest middle linebacker ever to play. When I got to him I excitedly shook his hand and said the wonderfully original line, "I'm a big fan." Ouch. I was choking in front of my hero.

I shook that one off and moved on the rehearsed words. You see, in Super Bowl X, Steeler kicker Roy Gerela missed a 33 yard field goal. Dallas Cowboy cornerback Cliff Harris patted Gerela patronizingly on the head; an unacceptable taunt. Lambert ran up behind him and threw him on the ground. This was a moment that is shown on every Super Bowl highlight tape and really epitomized the Steeler domination and intimidation of the 70's. I told Lambert that I loved that play, to which he responded, "Were you even alive then?" I said that I was two and he said, "Well, I'm sure that you have vivid memories." Everyone in line laughed, but Lambert wasn't even smiling.

My ego was bruised a little but this was the crucial part. I asked him for an interview after the autograph signings. "Well, we'll see how the time goes." Right. A sugar coated "no."

After an hour, the line had dried up and I walked over to the table at which he was sitting. I stood beside him with my notebook for about 15 seconds as he stared straight ahead, feigning obliviousness to my presence. Finally, I asked him if he could answer a few questions. A wordless nod was all I got. I asked if he was happy about being drafted by the Steelers back in 1974. He said that he had not been because the Steelers already had Jack Ham and Andy Russell at linebacker, and he did not think he would get to play. After this, he signed another autograph (this man, whose hands were shaking profusely, plunked down $24 for a card, football, and hat to be signed). Then I asked my second question. "What was it like playing with Chuck Noll?"

> "I had to hold out for $200,000, and I had made it to three consecutive pro bowls."
> —Jack Lambert

"I never played with Chuck Noll, he was my coach." This was followed with a humorless chuckle.

Sorry your highness, I didn't realize what close attention to detail you ex-jocks pay to linguistics. Then, with a critical look he asked, "Are you even writing any of this stuff down? What paper do you write for anyway? "You must have a really good memory."

Slowly, my enthusiasm was beginning to change to both embarassment and anger. I couldn't exactly produce press credentials, but I think that I convinced him that this was a real interview. Even though I could realize I was more of a nuisance to him than a journalist, I pressed on.

Still dripping with attitude, he seemed to begin to talk a bit more openly about his playing days. He noted that during his first two years in the NFL his team won the Super Bowl. "It was just the way we ended our season. I really took that for granted. It wasn't until the first year we didn't make it to the Super Bowl..." his mind searched to grasp the year and I quickly contributed, "1977." He gave a look that I think was of annoyment and then continued, "It wasn't until that year that I realized how hard it was to win the championship."

I asked him to respond to a quote. "Paul Zimmerman said that if 'Terry Bradshaw was their sword, and Joe Greene their heart, and Franco Harris their power, then Jack Lambert was their spirit.' How would you respond to that?"

"Who's Paul Zimmerman?"

"The premier NFL journalist in the country." I assumed he would know.

"Well then he would know huh? (Humorless laugh again) I don't care about a blade or a sword or a heart, I just played the best that I could every game and if that inspired people, so be it. I never understood why people that are professionals need to be inspired."

In Lambert's rookie year he signed for a measely $30,000. He breeds contempt for the owners, it seems, and I would guess that he is happy with the fact that they are shelling out so much money for today's players. "I had to hold out for $200,000, and I had made it to three consecutive Pro-Bowls. The owners got rich off us for years but would never part with a nickel more than what they had to."

When asked if the Steeler teams that he played on were the greatest ever, Lambert said, "We were certainly one of the greatest teams that ever played. It's all relative. It's too hard to compare. It's like trying to say who was the greatest running back of all time."

Upon completing the interview (which I cut short because of his excessive rudeness), I thanked him and wished him luck with his 1 1/2 week old baby. As I walked away, I was saddened because my favorite football player of all time, was no longer that. I couldn't believe the incredible indifference with which he treated me. How could he treat his number one fan like that? Didn't he know I've glamorized him for years?
And then I thought, no he doesn't.

Sometimes people expect too much of professional athletes. We may worship them so intensely and for so long that we feel we have an intimate relationship with them. Yet when we look at it from their perspective, we're just another fan, and they see the face of the fan hundreds of times a day for years. If I would have blurted out the endless number of facts an figures that I knew about his career, rather than be impressed, I'm sure he would say, "Get a life kid." He would see me as the football equivalent of a Trekkie.

I loved the way Jack Lambert played football, but that never meant that he was obliged to be Mr. Personality. Charles Barkley says that he's not a role model, and I guess Lambert doesn't feel that he needs to be one either.

The whole experience raised the question in my mind: Are professional athletes automatically forced to behave themselves in the public eye? We have to realize that there are some athletes that we have to admire for their athletic ability and their athletic ability only. Otherwise, our images of them may be spoiled.

Sports Commentary:

With Jordan's father, so died the thrill

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

He won three straight NBA championships, three MVP awards, seven scoring titles, two gold medals, and an NCAA national championship. Nobody could stop him. So, Wednesday afternoon, Michael Jordan stopped himself.

Jordan did not just play basketball, he was basketball. From the playground to the gym, from elementary school to the pros, he was the ambassador of the sport he loved, the idol of everyone who ever laced up a pair of basketball shoes.

The impact he alone had on the growth of the NBA was as immeasurable as his impact on the success of Nike, McDonalds, Wheaties and everything else he endorsed.

The sky was the limit for this incredible athlete and with some of the gravity-defying things he could do in mid-air, you couldn't even be sure of that.

But Jordan has always had troubles with the press. It bothered him that, despite being the best offensive and the best defensive player in the game and despite his ability to place an entire franchise on his back and carry it to title after title, he was still so often criticized for so many different reasons. He was criticized for shooting too much, for not shooting enough, for not having an outside jumper, for not driving the lane enough.

The calm, cool Jordan became so fed up he refused to speak to the press during the 1993 finals after the press battered him about allegations of a late night trip to Atlantic City.

Despite all of this, Jordan still averaged 41 points during the NBA finals and brought home his third straight playoff MVP award along with his third consecutive championship.

The Bad Boys of Detroit couldn't rattle him. Charles Barkley was unable to get inside his head and the media's attempt at causing Jordan to shatter emotionally was just as unsuccessful.

It took the death of his father to prove that this man was actually human.

James Jordan's death was seen as just another obstacle that this master of composure would overcome. But his father was his best friend, the one person that the most idolized person in America looked up to. When Michael Jordan's father died, so did Michael's desire to play basketball.

Jordan has done everything one can do in a sport he dominated from 1984 until 1993. Despite only ten years in the league, Jordan is the 15th all-time leading scorer, and his 32.3 point per game average is the best mark in history. He's also been an all-star every year he's been in the league.

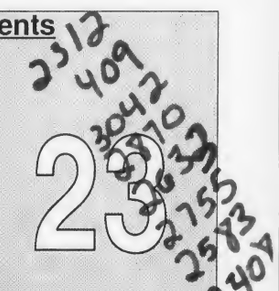

"There's nothing more for me to accomplish on the basketball court." Jordan said at his memorable press conference. "I may one day decide to unretire, but right now, I'm comfortable with my decision."

Jordan's career in basketball has been magnificent, but he certainly will not miss being constantly in the public eye.

Jordan's accomplishments

Regular Season

Year	G	FG%	FT%	Reb	Asts	Pts.
1984-85	82	.515	.845	534	481	28.2
1985-86	18	.457	.840	64	53	22.7
1986-87	82	.482	.857	430	377	37.1
1987-88	82	.535	.841	449	485	35.0
1988-89	81	.538	.850	652	650	32.5
1989-90	82	.526	.848	565	519	33.6
1990-91	82	.539	.851	492	453	31.5
1991-92	80	.519	.832	511	489	30.1

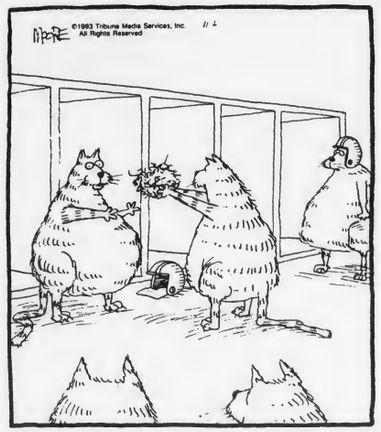

You would expect a lesser person to come back to the sport that has been his life forever. But Michael can do whatever he wants. He'll have more time with his family and more time on the golf course, and he certainly won't miss the constant trouble with the press.

The death of his father made Michael realize that he didn't need basketball, but he may just return when he sees how much basketball truly needs Michael.

The Economics of the Citibank Classic Visa card. How Student Discounts and Price Protection contribute to upward growth.

A variety of factors have been suggested as contributing to the economic growth of students, including (1) more lottery winners between the ages of 18 and 22, (2) a 37% increase on earnings from bottle and can returns, (3) more students doubling earnings in the lightning round of game shows, and (4) the Citibank Classic Visa® card. It's the last one, however, that affects most students. ¶ The Citibank Classic Visa card offers immediate savings to student cardmembers. You can save up to 26% on long distance calls versus AT&T with the free Citibank Calling ServiceSM from MCI.[1] And you can capitalize on a $20 Airfare Discount for domestic flights.[2] Savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music also bound. Maximize these savings with a low variable interest rate of 15.4%[3] and no annual fee, and you can significantly improve your personal bottom line (especially if one's net income tends to be pretty gross). Put another way, one might even have enough savings to reinvest in a CD or two (the musical kind, of course). ¶ On the way to the record store, or any store for that matter, take stock of the 3 services concerned with purchases made on the Citibank Classic card. Citibank Price Protection assures one of the best prices. See the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150.[4] To protect these investments, Buyers SecuritySM can cover them against accidental damage, fire or theft (ordinarily causes for Great Depressions) for 90 days from the date of purchase.[4] And Citibank Lifetime WarrantySM can extend the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years.[5] ¶ But perhaps the features which offer the best protection are your eyes, your nose, your mouth, etc. – all featured on The Photocard, the credit card with your photo on it. Carrying it can help prevent fraud or any hostile takeover of your card. (Insiders speculate that it makes quite a good student ID, too.) Even if one's card is stolen, or perhaps lost, The Lost WalletSM Service can replace your card usually within 24 hours. ¶ So never panic. As we all know, panic, such as in the Great Panics of 1837, 1857, and 1929, can cause a downswing in a market. But with 24-hour Customer Service, there's no reason for it. A question about your account is only an 800 number away. (Panic of the sort experienced the night before Finals is something else again.) ¶ Needless to say, building a credit history with the support of such services can only be a boost. You're investing in futures–that future car, etc. And knowing the Citibank classic Visa card is there in your wallet should presently give you a sense of security, rare in today's–how shall we say?–fickle market. ¶ To apply, call. Students don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd simply like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. Back by popular demand: The Godfather Predicts

Florida State to finally "kick" Miami jinx

The Godfather is back, and just in time for one of the best weekends in college football. Back from a one year hiatus, I was a documented 70 percent winner last year and am looking for a big year this season. So here I am to give you my picks of the week. Call your bookie, because these are the picks you can count on. Make him an offer he can't refuse. If he does, send Big Vinny over to break his kneecaps.

#3 Miami at #1 Fla. State -11

Perhaps the biggest game of the year, just like every other year, is this battle for bragging rights in the state of Florida. The Seminoles come into this game at 5-0, but more impressively, 5-0 against the spread. Now, you might say that Florida State hasn't played anybody. Well...they haven't, but they have proven to be the best team in the nation.

There are just too many weapons for the Hurricanes to contend with, weapons nearly as dangerous as the ones I sell to Third World nations. The most notable is Heisman Trophy candidate Charlie Ward. What can you say about Ward, except that he can do it all. Running, passing, shooting, rebounding. Miami can't stop this two-sport wonder, they can only hope to contain him. They won't. On the other side of the ball, there is hard hitting Derrick Brooks, who has everyone in Tallahassee asking, "Marvin Jones who?" Brooks anchors one of the quickest and most talented defenses in the nation.

Two great offenses, two great defenses, but all eyes will be on the kicking game. Can you say, "wide right?" Can you say, "It doesn't matter?" For the first time in three years the kickers will have absolutely nothing to do with the outcome. Too much speed, too many weapons, and not enough trash talking or camoflauge for Miami to even come close. Take Florida State in a sniff, sniff, sniff...do I smell a BLOWOUT. Fla. State 35, Miami 14.

#10 Michigan at Mich St. +11

The Wolverines come into this game at 3-1 and have won 29 straight against the Big Ten plus one. Quarterback Todd Collins calls the shots for this potent offense, but its the running of Heisman candidate Tyrone Wheatley that makes this offense a kingpin. Wheatley visits the endzone an average of three times per game, and if it wasn't for Charlie Ward (and the fact that there's a contract out on him), Wheatley could be handed the Heisman right now.

The Spartans have improved from last year, but not enough to give Michigan a game. Wheatley and company will have a bang-bang shoot 'em up (pardon the expression. It's from the line of work I'm in) time. Wolves 38, Michigan State 10.

#17 Louisville at #20 West Virginia +1

This brings us to the game of the day. Not since the Major Harris era has West Virginia fielded a good team. They enter Saturday with a mark of 4-0, after holding off a tough Virginia Tech team last week.

Louisville also has an undefeated record, and they possess one of the most underrated running backs in the nation, Ralph Dawkins. The Cardinals are good, but they only beat Pitt by 22. (Pitt is a 40 point underdog against Notre Dame this weekend, and rumor has it that John Majors may go back to his old job as British Prime Minister.) Take the "eers" and the point. WVU 24, Louisville 20.

Bloomsburg at Clarion -3

The Eagles won a tough game in Bloomsburg last year with the help of a 68 yard fumble recovery for a touchdown by Frank Andrews. That win ended a four game losing streak, and placed the Eagles on the road to the PSAC-West championship. After being embarrassed by the Scots last week, Clarion needs the same boost in 1993. They'll get it. Look for the offense to finally get it together, and Marlon Worthy to have a huge day both receiving and returning. The Eagles will give the huge Memorial Stadium crowd something to cheer about. Eagles 26, Bloomsburg 13.

The big plate of spaghetti award goes to the Arizona Wildcats' defense. Desert Storm is giving up an unbelievable 0.2 yard per carry average and six yards rushing per game. The Wildcats sit at #11.

The black rose award goes to the entire team of Syracuse and whoever picked them #6 in the preseason. The Orangemen just flat out stink.

Now that you have read this article, you're part of the family, and the only way you can walk away is in a pair of cement shoes.

Clarion to get challenge money

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

Clarion has already received the first payment of nearly $1 million as part of Governor Casey's tuition challenge program.

Under the program, the 14 state system schools and the four state related universities are eligible to receive about $200 per Pennsylvania undergraduate student provided that the individual schools keep their tuition increases under 4.5 percent. This year, tuition increased 4.4% ($126) to $2,954 per year for in-state students.

The amount is to be paid in quarterly installments. Thus far, Clarion has received $249,325.

All of the state system schools kept tuition increases low enough to qualify for the additional funds, said Gary Tuma, press secretary for the Pennsylvania department of education. The 14 state schools together have qualified for $13.99 million in funds, averaging about $206 per Pennsylvania undergraduate student. This amount is on top of $357.9 million already appropriated.

Including the state related schools, the amount released is $31,758,000.

"We look better [financially] right now than we did at this time last year," said Comptroller John Francis. Cutbacks, said Francis, can be largely attributed to this.

In comparison to in-state tuition, non-resident tuition jumped 20.09 percent this year to $7,352 per year, while out-of-state graduate tuition rose 23.83 percent to $5,196 per year.

Under a similar challenge program three years ago, the university only received 25 percent of the expected amount.

According to University Relations Director Ron Wilshire, "university officials do not anticipate a similar situation."

Wilshire said that the university feels that if the remaining payments were not received the total budget would have to be reviewed.

CUP's blood drive has undertones of urgency

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles writer &
Michelle Sporer
Editor-in-chief

The challenge has been issued and both sides are out for blood - literally. In an effort to encourage campus communities to donate blood due to extremely low supplies in the region, student governments at both Clarion University and Indiana University of Pennsylvania are working in conjunction with the American Red Cross in sponsoring competetive blood drives at each of the two rival schools.

Whichever school surpasses their quota, as determined by the American Red Cross, by a greater number will have its flag flown over the losing institution's campus. In addition, both universities' presidents have agreed that the losing school will present a cake to the winning school's alumni at the November 13 Clarion versus I.U.P. football game at I.U.P.

I.U.P. held their blood drive approximately two weeks ago but failed to meet their quota of 600 pints of blood within a two day time frame.

Clarion's chance to taste victory, however, presents itself this Monday, October 18 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Gemmell Student Complex. Clarion's challenge is to meet 175 pints of blood in one day.

Is Clarion up to the challenge? Student Senate President Gara Smith thinks so. "I believe in Clarion's ability to accomplish this goal. In fact, I'm extremely confident Clarion can double our quota."

I.U.P.'s Student Congress President, James Leda shares some of Smith's confidence. "Your chances look pretty good," Leda said in a phone interview. However, he added that the football game is another matter altogether.

And, while the competetive blood drive may be a fun challenge, the issue at hand is quite serious. According to Blood Services Aid Jesse Copenhaver, with the Clarion County chapter of the American Red Cross, blood supplies for the county are dangerously low. "All (blood) types are, at what you would call, an extremely urgent level of need. We are within a hairsbreadth of calling on a national backup for coverage."

In light of this, the Red Cross urges individuals age 17 or older, who weigh at least 105 pounds, and are in generally good health to give blood. Individuals can safely donate blood every 56 days.

Student Senate will be distributing prizes and gift certificates throughout the bloodmobile.

"I think it's a worthy cause," said Smith. "We must remember who the real winners are -- the people who benefit from it."

They call it "Testing Your HIV Status." I call it a wakeup call from God. I know the facts about AIDS. I know how it is contracted. I know that, like getting pregnant, it only takes one unprotected time. And I also know that, like getting pregnant, protection isn't 100%. For years I played the roulette wheel with life and with the lives of my partners. I knew the risks and yet I was unaccountable, not responsible, but mostly I thought I was invincible.

My nightmare began a few months ago when I was treating myself for what seemed to be an incurable yeast infection. I almost never read the inserts inside the boxes of over-the counter medicines, but for whatever reason I read the insert that time. It said, in big bold print, that chronic yeast infection are a common symptoms of HIV infection in women. My heart sank and my mouth went dry. My mind raced through the pictures of the men with whom I had slept. They all looked normal. They were all middle to upper-middle class men with good jobs and nice cars. How could I possibly be infected?

I called the AIDS hotline to get more information about symptoms and to also find out what my risk was to HIV infection. I was told that anyone who has had unprotected vaginal, oral, or anal sex in the last 12 years and whose HIV status was not known should be tested. That wasn't what I status was not known should be tested. That wasn't what I wanted to hear. I wanted to be told that bright college-educated females were personally exempt from AIDS.

When I hung up the phone my body started shaking and I threw up. I didn't want to know. I didn't think I could handle the truth. HIV seemed so foreign, so outside my body. But the possibility existed that the disease could be just under my skin, preparing its attack on my immune system, preparing its psychological destruction of my family, my friends, and my life.

Two weeks went by before I made an appointment with my doctor. I finally stopped running and hiding, and I faced the truth: right or wrong, I had had several sexual encounters without using a condom, and I could very well be carrying the HIV virus. It was my responsibility to myself and to my past and future partners to know the truth about my HIV status.

The test was simple and anonymous. I had blood drawn, and then I waited seven agonizing days for the envelope that

THE WAY I SEE IT

Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Can you name the saddest piece of music you've ever heard? I heard my "saddest tune" Monday night on the evening news. At the end of a memorial service for a 19 year-old man killed in Somalia last week, a lone trumpet sounded "Taps."

The tune was sharp and mournful until the last few notes when the trumpeteer started to lose his emotional composure and the notes began to tremble. It always happens like that.

"Taps will sound across the nation this week as the 14 men killed in a firefight in Mogadishu a week and a half ago are laid to rest.

I'm not going to debate the pros and cons of the Somalia mission or the possibility of U.S. intervention in Bosnia. I won't dwell on the failed attempt to land U.S. troops in Haiti Monday. Each is a damned if we do, damned if we don't, no win, can't lose situation.

Katie Zaikoski went out this week in search of student and faculty opinion on the U.S. policy in Somalia. You will find some of the quotes on page six. Some people have given the issue a lot of thought, and while I don't necessarily agree with all of them, disagreement brings debate, and debate encourages thought.

A disheartening trend can be found in Katie's notes though. Some students on this campus had no idea of what is happening in Somalia. It's bad enough that college educated men and women are unaware of world events, it is unforgivable to be indifferent or oblivious to the fact that 14 men were killed trying to carry out a humanitarian mission.

Their ages ran from teen-ager to middle-aged. They very well could have been your kid brother, boyfriend, or father, yet some people set to graduate from this institution of higher learning cannot find on the map a dusty corner of the world where American men and women continue to risk their lives.

For some young "adults" picking up a newspaper or catching the evening news cuts into 35 cent draft beer or the Beavis and Butthead show. They prefer the same old song and dance of blissful ignorance.

And that song folks, is almost as sad as "Taps."

Reader Responses

What about us?

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the article, "Gay Students Face Challenge." The article stressed that all campuses should have centers where people could understand the problems and situations of homosexuals and bisexuals. Ohio State University has such a center on its campus. There they can enjoy a safe atmosphere among people who understand and respect them as individuals.

What about a center such as that in Clarion? For those who do not know, no, we do not have one here. I believe that we all go to school in a very close-minded environment. No one understands who we are or what we stand for, but instead we are suffocated by stereotypes. These stereotypes have been able to continue because people are ignorant. That is why we need a center to combat the ignorance on campus. From there, ignorance could change into understanding.

I and many of my friends live everyday in fear of being attacked by some close-minded person, either physically, verbally, or both. It is very hard to keep a positive attitude and be proud about who we are when we are smothered by the ignorance of the straight world. However, straight people also live in fear; fear of what they do not understand -- homosexuality. Out of their ignorance comes violence against us. I never expect anyone to understand me, only to respect me for who I am. We are no different, only in those we love. We deserve equality, but instead get swept under the carpet as inferior.

There are many homosexuals on Clarion's campus. There are also many who do not understand us and do not give us a chance. Perhaps we need a center like that at Ohio State to help those understand better that we are all in this world together, whether gay or straight. No one needs to be alienated anymore in the world of straight vs. gay. I feel the way that I do because that is who I am. It is not a disease.

Homosexuality is something that I any many others have chosen and are proud of. But everyday we have to journey out into the "straight world" and are expected to follow the rules there. There does not need to be two separate worlds but one world, built on understanding for each other.

Parking woes continue

Dear Editor:

We call it fraud! The school sells us a ticket for $15 and there is nowhere to park. It is almost two months into the semester and we still park about ten minutes away. The school should take the responsibility to make parking less stressful. I live half an hour away and have to leave an hour early just to have time to walk to class. It is pathetic! Take heed to these words Public Safety because our feelings of immense hostility and frustration are shared by many commuters. Take notice at the depletion of permit sales the next time you attempt to "steal" $15 from the hard-working student body!

The cycle of exploitation

Dear Editor:

Two flyers during Rush Week caught my attention and infuriated me. Both the Sigma Phi Epsilon and the Sigma Chi fraternities attempted to grab the attention of the "well balanced" men of this campus by publicizing themselves through the use of the most commonly used image -- the female form.

A bikini contest one night and a hot legs contest another made me think of how degrading these men are of women. They willingly exploit us just to publicize themselves and gain membership to their organization. These guys (I cannot give them enough respect and refer to them as men) think they have the power to controlus and use our bodies as objects.

How can they call themselves "well-balanced?" They are tipping the scale of equality, making it and themselves, extremely unbalanced. However, on the other side of the scale, there are women who place themselves into the position of objectivity. These women do not necessarily realize they are being used because they are conditioned to live up to those standards and act "like a woman should." They are unable to recognize this fact because the images seen through the media feeds their minds and persuades them into believing that THAT is what men want. They feel they must live up to these standards so that they are "proper" women.

When these women contribute to this cycle, they are letting men believe it's alright to treat them contained Jane Doe's results. It was the longest, most soul-searching week of my life. I planned my death. I picked out guardians for my children. I though about how I had gotten the disease, if I had it, and how having sex didn't automatically make me mature.

I realized that sex is a very powerful force and just like guns, power, or drugs, it deserves respect and complete understanding before it is used.

I thought of how during the last 4 years I have known one person who died from AIDS and know one person who knows that he is infected with the HIV virus.

I avoided listening to "The Last Song" by Elton John and refused to watch "And the Band Played On" on HBO about the origins of the AIDS epidemic. No matter what I did, though, I couldn't ignore the disease. AIDS was in the paper, on the television news, and in my children's health lessons in school. I tried to find peace. I talked to God. I came to the conclusion that whatever the results were, AIDS was a part of my life, whether it was living with it or living my life so as not to contract it.

Finally day seven came. The doctor ripped open the envelope and said "It's negative." Relief poured over me like a tidal wave and I cried hysterically. I cried for myself, my children, and for my former lovers. I cried because my life would never be the same. I cried because I got another chance to listen, to learn, and to help those who weren't as lucky as me.

You don't just wake up one morning healthy and die of AIDS that evening. The HIV virus can live inside you for 10 years or more. And if you think putting together a family tree is difficult, imagine the sex partner tree you must put together for everyone with whom you've had sex. Each partner has a branch on which their partner's partners branch hangs.

So next time you decide to have sex with someone, whether you are drunk at a party, dating for several months, or are considering marriage, remember how crowded your bed really is. You are responsible for your physical and mental health. And being responsible means more than rolling on a condom.

Jackson speaks at IUP

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

"Young America, you have the capacity, you have the will. Don't let this moment pass. Keep this moment alive," said Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, telling the youth of America that they have to "move forward to hope, not backward by fear."

The nationally known orator and civil rights activist was speaking at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, addressing issues of concern for today's youth.

Students, Jackson said, are the source of change in America, so much more so than the courts, the president or the legislature. There is much that the twentysomething generation has to accomplish, Jackson said, but they must overcome obstacles first in order to fight for change.

If the youth are scared of guns and murder, they don't have the energy to fight for health care, Jackson said.

"One never knows when the door of opportunity will swing open and you will have to become a Rosa Parks or Martin Luther King, Jr.," said Jackson. "Every generation has its challenge and its moral imperative."

The twentysomething generation has two sets of probems facing it said Jackson.

The first quagmire is the erosion of the tax base and the loss of jobs. The presidential response to this, said Jackson, is not increased investment, but a pledge to put more police on the streets. Clinton promised four years of investment at $50 billion dollars per year re-investment in America, but so far has been all cut and no reinvestment.

The second set of problems is the "moral degeneracy" that the youth have come to live with.

"Our ethical standards have dropped so low [that] we have no guilt or shame," said Jackson. "In our arrogance, we have lost our sense of shame."

Letters to the editor. . .

that way; this gives the males permission, and the cycle continues.

Where do we aim to break this cycle? Do we go straight to the source or do we educate the people lower than the hierarchy and grow in mass? There is strength in numbers, so the saying goes; this means that the stronger we become, the more powerful we can be against the patriarchy. It is when this system is deteriorated by our unified strength, these negative images of women will cease and our human abilities will rise.

Dave Barry
Dave's real world collides with TV

©The Miami Herald

The reason I agreed to be in an episode of a TV situation comedy was that the role was perfect for me. You want to choose your roles carefully, as an actor. You want to look for roles in which you can display the range, the depth, the infinitely subtle nuances of your acting talent.

"It's just one word," the director said. "You say, 'Howdy.'"

"I'll do it," I said. A role like that comes along once in a lifetime.

The TV show -- which might even still be on the air as you read this -- is called "Dave's World." It's loosely based on a book and some columns I wrote. I use the term "loosely" very loosely. There's no way they could just take my columns and turn them directly into a TV series; every episode would last four minutes, and end with all the major characters being killed by an exploding toilet. So they have professional writers supplying dramatic elements that are missing from my writing, such as plots, characters and jokes that do not involve the term "toad mucus."

I worked hard on "Howdy," memorizing it in just days. Depending on the scene, I could deliver the line with various emotional subtexts, including happiness ("Howdy!"), sorrow ("Howdy!"), anger (Howdy!") and dental problems ("Hmpgh!").

Then, just before I flew to Los Angeles for the filming, the director called to tell me that they had changed my role. In my new role, I played a man in an appliance store who tries to buy the last air conditioner, but gets into a bidding war for it with characters who are based, loosely, on me and my wife, played by Harry Anderson and DeLane Matthews.

In my new role, I had to say 17 words, not ONE of which was "Howdy!" I was still memorizing my part when I got to the studio. It was swarming with people: camera people, light people, sound people, bagel people, cream cheese people, people whose sole function -- this is a coveted union job, passed down from father to son -- is to go "SSHHH!" You, the actor, have to say your lines with all these people constantly staring at you, PLUS the director and the writers keep changing the script. The actors will do a scene, and the director will say, "OK, that was perfect, but this time, Bob, instead of saying, 'What's for dinner?' you say, 'Wait a minute! Benzene is actually a hydrocarbon!' And say it with a Norwegian accent. Also, we think maybe your character should have no arms."

My lines didn't change much, but as we got ready to film my scene, I was increasingly nervous. I was supposed to walk up to the appliance salesman and say: "I need an air conditioner." I had gone over this many times, but as the director said "Action!" my brain -- the brain is easily the least intelligent organ in the body -- lost my lines, and began frantically rummaging around for them in my memory banks. You could actually see my skull bulging with effort as I walked onto the set, in front of four TV cameras, a vast technical crew and a Live Studio Audience, with no real idea what I was going to say to the appliance salesman ("I need a howdy").

But somehow I remembered my lines. The director seemed satisfied with my performance, except for the last part, where Harry Anderson, outbidding me for the air conditioner, hands the salesman some takeout sushi and says, "We'll throw in some squid," and I become disgusted and say, "Yuppies." (If you recognize this dialogue, it's because it's very similar to the appliance-buying scene in "Hamlet.")

"That was perfect, Dave," said the director. (This is what directors say when they think it sucked.) "But when you say 'yuppies,' make it smaller."

So we re-did the scene, and as we approached my last line, I was totally focused on doing a smaller "yuppies." Then I noticed that (a) the other actors weren't saying anything, and (b) everybody in the studio was staring at me, waiting. I had clearly messed up, but I had no idea how. This was a time to think fast, to improvise, to come up with a clever line that would save the scene. So here's what I did: I fell down. (It's a nervous habit I have. Ask my wife.)

When I got up, I explained that I'd been waiting for Harry to say the squid line.

"They took that out," somebody said.

"They took out the SQUID?" I said. "The squid is GONE?"

It turned out that everybody else knew this, including probably the Live Studio Audience. So we had to do that part again, with my brain feverishly repeating "No squid! Smaller yuppies!"

That time we got through it, and my television career came to an end, and I went back to being, loosely, a newspaper columnist. I have not, however, ruled out the possibility of starring in a spinoff. I am thinking of a dramatic action series about a hero who, each week, tries to buy an air conditioner. I have a great line for ending this column, but I can't remember what it is.

Could be installed this semester

Cable TV service agreement reached

by Christy Williams
News Writer

A tentative agreement has been reached between Clarion University of Pennsylvania and TCI of Clarion cable company to supply cable television service to all residence halls.

In an agreement reached Wednesday afternoon, the cable company has agreed to wire the remaining rooms which do not currently have service before the end of the semester.

The agreement is pending final approval from the Legal Council for the State System of Higher Education (SSHE), in Harrisburg, and TCI's parent company in Denver, CO.

Director of Resident Life, Barry Morris, said late Wednesday afternoon, "Both local parties have signed a contract. Now, we need federal approval.

"The University has sent the contract to Harrisburg for approval, and TCI has sent the contract to Denver. We can't guarantee they will approve it. If they do, arrangements will be made to prepare a schedule of when we can begin talking to individual students."

As for an actual date of installation, Morris said, "If they sign, and we get no problem from the students, we may be able to install cable in at least some residence halls by the end of the fall semester."

According to Morris, complete installation of cable in Wilkinson Hall, which has had the service for some time, took only one week, but he added the building was empty at the time.

Another option the University is considering is to only install cable service in the rooms that are occupied by students who presently want cable hook up in their rooms.

This could present a wide variety of problems because when new students arrive cable installation would have to begin all over again.

Morris prefers the option of putting cable service into all the residence hall rooms at one time. The University hopes to pick one hall to begin installation as soon as possible.

Ben Call, general manager of TCI of Clarion, has been negotiating the agreement with the University.

"TCI is prepared to provide cable service to the student residence halls as soon as the University gets the contract signed. We have the equipment on hand, and we can start immediately."

During the summer orientation sessions, incoming students were promised that by the start of this fall semester cable hook ups would be installed in all of the University residence halls.

"The University had told us that all halls were going to be wired with cable by this year, so that is what we told the incoming freshmen," said Penny Farmery, Orientation leader and senior secondary education social studies major.

Currently the only residence hall with complete cable accessibility is Wilkinson Hall. Nair Hall and Campbell Hall have cable hook ups in the graduate rooms and resident director rooms, and all of the halls have cable in the television lounges.

Carla Veronesi, freshman Speech Pathology major stated, "I was informed that the dorms were going to have cable hook ups this year, so I went out and bought a new television set. What a waste of money. I cannot get a single channel."

Ben Vessa III , Senior Communications major and resident assistant in Campbell hall is one of the students with a strong opinion about this situation.

"A lot of people moved from off campus into the dorms because they were informed there would be cable. When we didn't have cable at the beginning of the year it caused a lot of tension ."

New scholarship award planned for Venango campus

courtesy of
University Relations

An anonymous $10,000 contribution will fund an endowed Clarion University of Pennsylvania scholarship in honor of long-time professor Dr. Glenn R. McElhattan.

The Clarion University Foundation received the anonymous contribution designated for the Dr. Glenn R. McElhattan Scholarship Endowment. McElhattan is a professor of chemistry at the Venango Campus of Clarion University in Oil City.

The new scholarship will be awarded next spring for payment during the 1994-95 academic year to high school seniors enrolling at Venango Campus. The scholarship winners will be selected by the Venango Campus Scholarship Committee and will be required to demonstrate high academic ability and success. The size of the award will be determined at a later date.

"We are grateful for this anonymous contribution to the endowment fund," said Harry Tripp, vice president for university advancement and executive director of the Clarion University Foundation. "It will provide a base for needed scholarship funds and serve as a tribute to the accomplishments of Dr. McElhattan and his commitment to the students of Clarion University's Venango Campus. The endowment contribution will be a lasting benefit for students, with only interest being used to fund the scholarship."

McElhattan has worked to increase scholarship opportunities for students at Venango Campus, having served for over eight years as the chair of the Venango Campus Scholarship Committee. During this time period the number of scholarships grew nearly 400 percent from eight to 40.

"The committee members and myself worked with a number of local businesses and clubs to add scholarships from the campus," said McElhattan. "I feel very strongly about students having scholarship opportunities. I am pleased to have additional scholarship added through this anonymous source."

McElhattan, a resident of RD4 Franklin, has taught chemistry at Venango since 1968. A Clarion County native and graduate of Keystone High School, he obtained a B.S. in education from Clarion State Teachers College in 1956, a M. S. in chemistry from Western Reserve University in 1963, and an Ed.D from the University of Pittsburgh.

He taught chemistry and physics at Rocky Grove High School from 1959-68 and was a night school program/continuing education teacher for Pennsylvania State University in 1966-67. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps as an artillery officer and aerial observer from 1956-59.

CUP students voice opinions on Somalia

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

Over the past two weeks, events in Somalia have made front page news across the nation. As tensions mounted in the African nation, 17 American soldiers were killed in a weekend fire-fight Oct. 2. The American public was shocked and angered as Somalis dragged the body of a slain U.S. soldier through the dusty streets of Mogadishu.

On Oct. 7, President Clinton ordered 5,300 more troops into the area, along with heavy armor support and increased off-shore naval support. Clinton said the humanitarian missions must continue.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, the demand for U.S. withdrawal was being issued by members of both political parties. Calls for the resignation of Defense Secretary Les Aspin were made by several members of Congress who were upset over Aspin's earlier refusal to reinforce the troops in Somalia with tanks and armored personnel carriers.

On Clarion's campus the students and faculty expressed their opinions in a survey conducted after the Clinton announcement of increased troop strength.

• "I think we should pull all troops out. We went over there to help then defeat them, we're getting killed, we're not the bad guys so we should pull all troops out" Gwen Neal, freshman, Pre-Law

• "I just don't believe in it, I don't think our servicemen should be killed for any other countries anymore. I'm from the Vietnam era, that's what they can do with it, say good-bye." Laura Eisenman, cafeteria worker.

• "I think we definitely need to consider whether we're in there as relief or as an invading force because right now, we started out as one thing and we're becoming another." D.J. Sylvis, second year senior, general studies

Members of Bravo Company, 1st battalion, 87th Infantry, board a C-5 transport plane Sunday at Griffis Air Base in Rome, New York. The soldiers were being sent to reinforce the U.S. troops already in Somalia.

• "Half of me says they should leave them alone and the other half of me says they should help them." Linc Hilowij, sophomore, English

• "I think we should get them out of there." Vikki Whistner, cashier at University book store

• "Like I said a long time ago when we first went in there, they should of gone in and taken away all the guns from all the clans and then there would be no problems." Craig Waringo, desk clerk for game room

• "The whole bit was a bunch of political crap in the first place so if they wouldn't have got their butt in there trying to get somebody out of it, and try to get their little bit out of it, then they wouldn't be there in the first place." Malcolm Mosley, junior, accounting

• "I think that there are more concerns in the U.S. and that we should be more concerned with ourselves before we get involved in another country's problems." Katrina Helmick, French International Business and Economics

• "I think it's a complicated situation and I react in two different levels. We owe it to the United Nations to remain involved in Somalia when we made that pledge and if we pull out now we are admitting that Adid has won. This strong arm tactic that he has employed will bring us to our knees. On the other hand, my gut feeling is that we should get out, the cost of human lives is one I wouldn't want to pay." Harold Jacobson, Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church

• "I feel that the United States should either pull totally out of Somalia or send more troops in. I think what Clinton did by sending more troops was smart but I don't feel that we really need to be there, but since we're there we might as well put more troops in." Tyson Schlosser, freshman

• "I think that Somalia is kind of scary because it could be another Vietnam but it doesn't seem the United Nations is doing any good, I can't imagine that there isn't anything that we can do, we ought to do something. It's not up to us to kick Adid out of power, just to make sure that everyone is out." Doug Sheldon, junior, geography.

• "I don't mean to sound inhumane or anything, but I feel that we should completely pull out of Somalia because it's such a vulnerable situation. There's talk of that possibly being another Vietnam and to me as inhumane as it sounds, I think we should just torch it and get out of there." John Echenoz, Pizzamore employee

• "I think we should stay there and help out." Phil Plant, junior

•"We should just pull out and let them deal with it themselves. I think it's terrible the way they are treating our servicemen over there and I just feel that we should get out." Sharon Yonkoski, third semester freshman, Business

• "It looks to me that the support of humanitarian relief is not going to do the job. I think they should orderly withdraw the strength that the president is proposing. I don't think that we can just pull out tomorrow without leaving a lot of unhappy people behind. It's just an unfortunate situation." Dr. James Knickerbocker, English Department

• "I think we should pull all troops out of Somalia." Stephanie Dewire, sophomore, undecided

• "We should definitely get out of Somalia as soon as possible." Julie Smith, freshman, undecided

• "I think they should be out of there now, or very soon. I'm comfortable with the idea of March as long as we are out of there by March. It seems to me that we aren't doing any good, I'm not sure that we are wanted there, I think we have probably overstayed. People get hurt, that's not the problem we should of expected some people to get hurt going in there for a war but I don't think we're really doing any good there." Dr. Marite Haynes, Psychology

• "I think that we have already wasted too many human lives over there. We can't be safe in all of their country, we have too many people who are starving in this country that we should help before we go fighting over there. Now they are just fighting against us and we're wasting lives." Julie Sherlock,senior, Psychology

• "I think we should stick with it. Cutting and running is not a good idea especially because something becomes unpopular and you just decide to give up.

"I'm not particularly enthusiastic about military adventures but if you get into them and you don't have an easy victory and you get into something where you don't look that good and then you cut and run, well then everyone knows what you're doing." Roger Horn, librarian

• "I don't think we should be over there, I think we should just stay here because we have enough problems and we should help out with what's going on here." Amy Robeson, freshman, Elementary Education

• "I'm in the reserves and I partly think that we should be over there and I partly think that we shouldn't" Scott Emerick, third semester freshman, undecided.

• "With the recent turn of events, it would seem obvious that our presence is not welcome and I believe we should remove our forces from that area." Benjamin Fisler, freshman, theatre.

Drinking games may be far more dangerous than you think

courtesy of
College Press Service

Chug-a-lug and other drinking games are not as harmless as college students think, warn two researchers in a recently published study.

Nearly 4,000 alcohol-consuming students from 58 American colleges and universities were surveyed about the games they play when drinking.

The study was done by David Hanson, a professor of sociology at Potsdam College of the State University of New York, and Ruth Engs, professor of applied health science at Indiana University of Fort Wanye, Ind.

While students who identified themselves as "light" or "moderate" drinkers experienced few alcohol related problems, those who played a drinking game within the preceeding year significantly increased the probability of negative conquences in 15 of 17 drinking-related behaviors, the report says.

The behaviors included missing classes, getting low grades, trouble with the law, violent behavior or property damage.

More than twice as many game players as non-game players experienced difficulties in most categories, such as driving while drinking. Twice the number of game players as non-game players also had fears that they may be alcoholics.

Ray Henderson / Clarion Call
Drinking games can be dangerous to your health and grades.

Chug-a-lug contests, which identify winners by those who consume the most alcohol in a time period, and "quarters," a game that involves flipping a quarter into a mug of beer to designate the person who has to drink the contents, were identified as two popular campus drinking games.

Hanson and Engs stated that drinking game behavior should receive greater attention from campus alcohol prevention programs and messages.

The two researchers concluded, however, that messages that stress abstinence from drinking have proved to not be effective among college students.

"Light" and "moderate" drinkers were defined in the study as those who drank no more than three to four drinks no more than once a week, or five or more drinks no more than once a month.

"Heavy" drinkers were defined as those who drank more than five drinks at any one sitting once a week or more.

Many students are encouraged in their drinking endevors by drink specials offered by bars near campuses.

Some bars near college campuses offer different drink specials every night of the week, leading some researchers think the offers lead to binge-drinking by some students.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Oct. 02, through Oct. 10, 1993.

A fire alarm station was activated on the forth floor of Nair Hall on Oct. 2 at approximaely 5:54 a.m. Incident is under investigation.

A banner (ASA) was removed from the Chandler lobby between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 p.m. on Oct 5. The banner is six feet in length and three feet wide with red and white colors.

A fire alarm station was pulled on the sixth floor of Wilkinson Hall on Oct. 8, at approximately 3:20 a.m. Incident is under investigation.

Between the hours of 3:30 and 7:30 a.m. on Oct. 8, a sink in the men's restroom on the "B" wing, forth floor in Campbell Hall, was pulled away from the wall. The incident is under investigation.

On Oct. 9, at approximately 12:30 a.m., a student was cited for Public Drunkeness after being observed straggering and falling to the ground.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Ethics essay contest announced

Clarion University seniors are eligible to enter two ethics essay contests with the opportunity to win up to $5,000 in the national contest. Seniors interested in the contests must be graduating in Dec. 1993 or the spring of 1994.

The essays can be entered in the Clarion Ethics Essay Contest and the National Elie Wiesel Ethics Essay Contest. Deadline for entry in the national competition is Jan. 4, 1994, and the deadline for the Clarion contest is Feb. 1, 1994.

Prizes for the national contest range from the first place prize of $5,000, down to $500 for an honorable mention. The winner of the Clarion contest will receive $100, and a second $100 may be awarded in the event of a tie. Honorable mention in the Clarion competition carries no cash award but would enhance a vita.

Some sample topics for the essays:

• What are our ethical obligations to preserve and protect our physical environment and natural resources?

• What are the significant moral or ethical issues raised by technology in the 1990s?

• How should we respond to new, and not so new, ethical issues in business, medicine, law, government and human rights?

• What are the most important moral choices we face today?

Seniors in all fields of study are eligible to enter the contests. Members of Clarion University faculty from many different areas have volunteered their assistance to entrants. Interested seniors may contact any of the following faculty for guidelines or advice: Bill Barnes, Biology ; Julia Bartkowiak, Philosophy; Edward Caropreso, Education; Lois Green, English; Mark Haggerty, Economics; Susan Hilton, Communications; Jean Rumsey, Philosophy; and Franklin Takei, Philosophy.

Clarion University has been participating in the National contest for three years through the sponsorship of the Philosophy faculty and the College of Arts and Sciences.

U.S. troops blocked in Haiti

Army-backed toughs, warning of another Somalia, blocked American troops from landing as part of a U.N. peace mission in Haiti on Monday and drove away U.S. diplomats waiting to greet them.

A band of 25 to 50 men, some of them armed, then beat up merchants in the nearby market and fired guns while roving through the capital city, Port-Au-Prince.

No casualties were reported. The gunmen later took over the state-run radio station.

U.S. and U.N. officials said the disturbances would not halt the overall peace mission.

Two Americans win medicine Nobel Prize

Massachusetts based scientists Phillip A. Sharp and Richard J. Roberts were named the co-recipients of this year's Nobel Prize for medicine and will split the $825,000 prize.

The two men knew of each other's work but were not collaborating when they made their discoveries that changed scientist's understanding about DNA make-up and helped launch the field of biotechnology.

Sharp, 49, a native of Falmouth, Ky., heads the biology department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Roberts, 50, a native of Derby, England, works at New England Biolabs in Beverly, Mass.

In the wake of the two men's work, scientists found that in humans and other higher organisms, DNA includes seperated gene segments that contain information to build proteins.

Kevorkian to go on trial again

A Michigan judge ordered suicide doctor Jack Kevorkian Monday to stand trial for helping a 73 year-old man to kill himself last month.

It is the second time Kevorkian has been ordered to stand trial for ignoring the state's new suicide law since the measure was reinstated by the Michigan Court of Appeals in June. Kevorkian has attended 18 suicides since 1990.

FBI harassment case

An FBI agent who contends her career has been ruined because she publicly accused a superior of assault and sexual harassment, declared Monday that she is turning in her badge.

Suzanne J. Doucette, 39, said she was taking the action because the FBI had placed her on unpaid leave.

Doucette argued that she was the victim of retaliation because she made her allegations public in congressional testimony.

Officers in King beating begin jail time

Two white police officers convicted in the videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King reported to a federal prison Tuesday to begin serving their sentences, after receiving a two-week reprieve.

Sergeant Stacey Koon and Officer Laurence Powell started their time in "Club Fed" as the minimum security facility in northern California is called.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear their pleas to remain free while appealing against their convictions.

Officials of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, mindful that disgraced police officers are loathed by the general prison population, recommended the men serve at the facility.

Kennedy wedding another spectacle

The bride was late, the groom couldn't wait to kiss her and camera-wielding journalists chased the guests across the church lawn.

The spectacle was everything one would expect from a Kennedy wedding.

Edward Kennedy Jr. and Katherine Anne Gershman were married on Sunday after Gershman kept Kennedy waiting at the alter for nearly 20 minutes. Kennedy met her half way down the aisle and gave her a kiss.

He is the son of long-time Massachusetts senator Edward Kennedy.

Casey getting stronger

Pennsylvania Governor Robert P. Casey's recovery from a heart-liver transplant has been encouraging despite some recent set-backs, his heart specialist said Monday.

The governor reportedly felt better Monday after antibiotics apparently countered a sudden bout of fever and chills late Saturday, according to the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center.

Doctors believe Casey's fever was triggered by a blood infection caused by bacteria.

Transplant patient critical

A five year-old girl from England who underwent a rare transplant was back in the intermediate intensive care unit (ICU) at Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital Monday.

Laura Davies, who had a seven organ transplant at the hospital Sept. 16, had been moved to a regular room, but was returned to the ICU after she developed breathing problems.

Davies received a new liver, stomach, pancreas, small and large intestines and two kidneys in a 15 hour operation because organs she recieved in an earlier transplant in June of 1992 began to fail.

Straight group supports gay rights

The name says it all. Straight But Not Narrow is a group of heterosexual students who have banded together to support gay and lesbian rights and fight homophobia at the University of Houston.

"There is no reason for homophobia," said John Cobb, president of the new organization. Cobb said his group wanted to emphasize that not all heterosexual people fear homosexuals. "It's simple. We're straight, but not narrow minded," said Maryelaine Eckerle, vice president of the group. "Everyone should have equal rights, and everyone should have the right to be who they are."

Mitchell Nicholas, executive administrator of the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Alliance, said his group supported the efforts of SBNN.

"You don't have to be gay to come out in support of gay's and lesbians' equal rights," Nicholas said. "People are realizing that 95 percent of our lives are like everyone else's."

SBNN will be involved in the National Coming Out march and rally Oct. 11 and AIDS Awareness Week in November.

Cash prizes to student ideas

A new national grant program dubbed "The Big Idea" offers students $2,000 grants for designing innovative service projects to battle social problems in their campus communities.

The program, sponsored by the Jostens Foundation in partnership with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL), announced the program, which will provide grants to ten students throughout the country, in September.

The projects must reflect creativity and innovation and have the potential to be replicated on other campuses.

"Further evidence of growing student concern over social issues can be found in the profusion of new student service organizations like COOL that have sprung up since the late 1980s, as well as in a marked resurgence in established service programs," COOL said.

College gets gift - 100 years later

Gettysburg college recently received the biggest single gift in its history, $3.5 million, from a trust fund established by an 1893 graduate.

Merle Stauffer Boyer's will stipulated that the college ultimately receive all proceeds from a trust fund established to benefit his two children, Kathryn and Donald, during their lifetimes. Boyer, a physician in Philadelphia, died in 1941.

Kathryn died in 1979, and Donald died in 1993. They left no heirs.

"What makes the Merle Boyer gift so special is that students who will make their mark on the 21st century will have as their benefactor a graduate from 19th century," said college president Gordon Haaland.

Escape cold Clarion weather; study overseas in sun

by Luis Almeida
Contributing Writer

Most Clarion University students are unaware that they have the opportunity to study abroad at almost the exact expense of studying in Clarion.

The International Student Exchange Program (ISEP) trades one student from the United States for one student from a host country, so they literally trade expenses. Besides the difference in expense of living, the airfare and a small placement fee, the cost of going to school would remain the same.

One of the three Clarion students to participate in the ISEP program last semester was Brandie Payne. Payne had taken eight years of Spanish before going to Mexico. Her main purpose for going was to become more fluent in that language.

Payne is majoring in both Spanish and marketing. She was enrolled in a university in Monterey, Mexico. The university was like a technical school where she took business courses. She felt that professors in Mexico expect a lot from their students and that homework was a daily fact of life.

There were 30 other American students at Payne's surrogate college, including Jennifer Johnson, another Clarion student involved in the ISEP program. Johnson stated that she would usually find herself in a crowd with a mixture of both Americans and Mexicans. Friendships were made to the point where she spent Christmas and New Year's with two different families.

The third Clarion adventurer was Megan Stecklair, who is a German and Spanish major. She was placed in Eichstatt, Germany, but she is currently in Bavaria, about one hour north of Munich. The university she attended in Eichstatt had 3000 students and the town was comprised of one street.

Stecklair spoke very highly of her ISEP experience. She said that she learned new ways of thinking and educating herself and that people seemed to really enjoy learning in Germany and dedicated a lot to that process.

Germany was not the only country Stecklair visited. She also explored Poland, Austria and Czechoslovakia, and her family even joined her in March for a vacation.

Stecklair encourages everyone to travel overseas. She reminds us that one does not need a foreign language because there are possibilities of going to Ireland, Scotland, England or some other English-speaking nation. She states that there was financial aid available and that after buying the ticket it was like being in Clarion.

Anyone who is interested in seeing new places should stop by the Office of International Programs at 212 Founders and ask about the ISEP program.

One-person performance for adult minds only

Actor Scott Keeley dazzles audience with magic

by Hans Dovenspike
Contributing Writer

Scott Keely, 20 year veteran of stage, television, film, and radio will be performing a one-man show next Wednesday, entitled "The Devil You Say." The performance entails an evening of conversation with the devil himself (or herself depending on your beliefs).

Satan delivers his dialog while moving between stage and audience. During this witty repartee, he attempts to dazzle the audience with backfiring magic tricks.

The performance uses excerpts from literary greats such as Dostoevsky, Twain, and Melville—along with the devil giving his version of the Bible.

Amidst the humorous points of the performance, the audience will find out that beneath his facade, the devil is not someone to laugh at.

Says Keely about the play, "In everything—every word, every image—there is a truth...and there is a lie. It is for you to decide which is which."

"The Devil You Say" is recommended for mature audiences only of adults, college and university and selected high school students. The play is sponsored by the Clarion University Activities Board Art Series. It is playing on Wednesday, October 20 at 8 p.m. at Hart Chapel. "The Devil You Say" is free and open to the public.

Expand intellect at coffee house

by Suzanne Hildebrandt
Lifestyles Writer

The retrospect of beatnik coffee houses comes alive in Oil City . For one to two nights a month, a portion of the newly renovated Barrow Civic Theatre complex hosts a quaint gathering of diverse artists and audience members.

Sponsored by Professor Phillip Terman of the English department at Clarion's Venango campus, and other volunteers, the coffee house opens its doors on select Saturdays throughout the year.

For a nominal admission of $3 for adults and $2 for students, children and senior citizens, you are open to enjoy musical performances, poetry readings, short skits and literary readings as well as collections of other fine arts.

Beginning at 7 p.m., people are prompted to relish the atmosphere by starting off with a relaxing cup of coffee, including the luxuriant tastes of expresso and cappuccino, and the delectable morsels of fresh pastries.

While engaging in this titillation of this palate, you are also invited to admire the various pieces of artwork on display throughout the establishment.

Then at 7:30 p.m. the enchanting "performing showcase" takes the spotlight as fresh artisans from theaters demonstrate and share their skills with the varied audiences whose ages range from 2 to 90. Participation as either performer or audience member provides for an expressive and entertaining evening.

Presently there are only three more coffee house nights left in this year's season but they are looking for interested performers, writers, artists and musicians as well as good-hearted volunteers for next year's venue.

All interested individuals please feel free to contact Professor Phillip Terman at (814) 676-9429 or Charlene Dicaligaro at (412) 794-3338.

The headlines for the remainder of this year's performances are as follows: October 25-Accustic guitarist Charlene Dicaligare, poet Norm Milliken, Clarion University flutist Kylie Anderson, and Clarion University violinist Janice Spangler.

November 6-CUP guitarist Brent Register, CUP flutist Lisa Johnson, and accomplished writer Bill O'Driscoll of the In Pittsburgh magazine with the remainder of the night reserved for open stage.

December 4-performers are yet to be announced but there will be two from the musical genre and two from the literary genre. Hope to see you there!

Student Senate Time Capsule

Scare yourself at the Jaycees haunted barn

by Sherry Dickerson
Lifestyles Writer

Halloween is just around the corner. So if you're not afraid of ghosts and goblins, the haunted barn awaits you. It is sponsored by the Clarion Area Jaycees. The haunted barn is the Jaycees largest fund raiser of the year.

The haunted barn will be open Thursday, October 14 thru Sunday, October 17th and every night from Wednesday, October 20th thru October 31st from 7-10 p.m. on weekdays and 7-11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

The haunted barn is located at the Clarion County Park off of Route 66 (between Route 322 and Exit 8 on I-80). The admission price is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 years and under.

The Jaycees are a leadership training organization that offers individual development through community service for people the ages of 21-39. If you are interested in joining, the Clarion Jaycees hold their membership meetings on the first and third Thursday of every month at the Holiday Inn.

Wednesday, October 27th is Community Night. All proceeds benefit the Clarion County Red Cross. Your support will get you a scare. For advance tickets sales call (814) 797-5864. Any questions call Jan Walters 226-8041. Group rates are available.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-A February issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association reported that a 23-year-old Israeli man required surgery to repair his small intestine after it ruptured following a competition with his brother in which he ate 25 chili petters in 12 minutes. Capsaicin, the burning agent in chili peppers, had eaten through the intestine wall.

-Testifying in Conway, South Carolina, in April on behalf of her brother, who was ultimately convicted of criminal negligence in the drowning death of a woman despite his being severely intoxicated at the time, Janet Kolbasook told the court her brother was dear to her: "We're a tight family. We're all alcoholics."

-In April, Edward R. Blagden, 64, was brought before taxicab regulators in Fort Lauderdale, Florida on a customer's complaint that Blagden had locked him in the trunk of the taxi when he didn't pay the fare. Blagden ultimately lost his license, but not before he begged the hearing board: "I promise you, I won't put anybody in the trunk."

-Ms. Adel Arnold, 49, the oldest of five woman who had been arrested in July 1992 for a top-free protest against Ontario nudity laws that allow men to be shirtless but not women, won the case in February with her argument that women's breasts are not necessarily objects of sexual desire: "They're hanging down to my waist. What's sexy about that?"

-Convicted serial keller Henry Lee Lucas, imprisoned in Huntsville, Texas told an Associated Press reporter in July that he actually made up tales about his involvement in the nearly 600 murders he had confessed to. Lucas, who is now serving life sentences for 10 murders, said that once he got started making up confessions, he couldn't stop: " I just didn't have any willpower."

-A judge in Los Angeles sentenced Yu-te Chen, 27, of Taiwan to 30 days in jail in September after federal agents found 52 snakes illegally in his possession as he attempted to board a flight home from Los Angeles International Airport. Most were found in a carry-on bag, but 18 were strapped to his biceps and ankles.

-Christopher Howard, 25, was arrested in Haines City, Florida in August after police responded to his call reporting that a burgler was trying to break into his house. When the officers arrived, Howard led them around the house looking for the alleged burgler, but apparently forgot that he had left on the dining room table a ceramic plate containing cocaine, which the officers soon discovered.

-In April, the Montana Legislature passed a harsh animal-abuse law that increased the penalty for a second conviction to two years in prison and a $1,000 fine. The state's maximum penalty for second-offense wife-beating is six months and $500.

-A man whose identity was not disclosed in news accounts was arrested in April in Kissimmee, Florida and charged with misdemeanor lewdness after he tried to obtain the underwear of several police officers to add to his 400-item collection. Said a police detective, "This guy has a fetish for cops." Officers arrested him after they talked him into dropping by the station to chat. He was carrying samples of his collection along with videotapes of the TV show "Cops."

-A 17 year-old boy was hospitalized in Southington, Ohio, in March after he placed a .22 caliber bullet in a vise at his home and tightened it to see what would happen. It exploded, embedding metal fragments in his fingers.

-Francis Perlmutter, who had inadvertently confessed to murder in St. Paul, Minnesota in June when he left a message on an answering machine, told reporters who were questioning him just after his arrest: "I don't know what's going to happen now. This is my first murder."

-William K. Kessie, 42, was arrested in Cleveland in December and accused of making several telephone calls to women who work for churches in which he pretends to be a young girl who has been abducted and raped and who is asking for their help.

-In February, Wellington, New Zealand, police commander Murray Jackson told reporters that construction of a new police station and lockup would be delayed because the building would be subject to the new local safety code, which would require that prisoners have immediate access to exits in case of fire. According to Jackson, that would require furnishing them with keys.

TV-5 joins United Way in fundraiser

by Sean Boileau
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University's own TV-5 joined forces in an annual Walk-a-thon and 10 kilometer race with the United Way of Clarion County on October 3rd. Participants from the TV-5 staff included Karen Hazlett and Cassie Kaizer, who joined in the walk-a-thon. Station Manager Joe Rainey was awarded a trophy for placing third in his age division for the 10K race.

TV-5 raised a total of $129 through sponsors who agreed to pledge a certain amount for each mile of the course, which totalled three miles. This amount was the largest amount raised by any participating student organization. Said Hazlett, "We are happy to have this trophy; but more than that, we are happy to have helped United Way. We would like to thank our sponsors who made this possible."

In addition to several other fundraisers, the 10K race and the Walk-A-Thon help to raise money for Clarion County's United Way and its eleven local member agencies: Southern Clarion County Organization for Parenthood Education, SAFE, Rape Crises Center, Parents Anonymous, Goodwill Industries, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Foxview Manor, Clarion/Forest Visiting Nurse Association, Association for Retarded Citizens of Clarion County, and the American Red Cross.

Highlights of the Walk-a-thon and race were aired during TV-5's live broadcast of the Autumn Leaf Parade, which will be re-aired the entire week of October 10th at 5:00 PM.

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

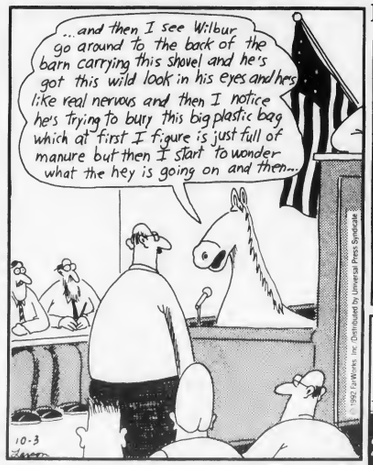

"One more time: You were at the park, enjoying the afternoon, when you distinctly heard the defendant turn to his dog and say: 'Look, boy! A stickman!' "

"In fact, you like to build fires, don't you, Mr. Pig? Building fires and burning wild animals a pastime of yours, Mr. Pig? Did you know my client is an endangered species, Mr. Pig, while you yourself are nothing more than a walking side of ham?"

"Well, the defendant and I had made this deal in which we both prospered....One of those 'you-scratch-me-behind-my-ears-I'll-scratch-you-behind-yours' arrangements."

Mr. Ed spills his guts.

HEY, WILLIE!

ALF "leafs" Huskies mushing in defeat, 40-18

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Just as it left Melmac, ALF departed from Clarion with a bang. After giving up two quick scores to Bloomsburg, the Clarion Golden Eagles exploded for 40 unanswered points and after a great week of food and fun, proved that they could have their cat and eat it too.

Bloomsburg darted ahead early in quarter number one. After an put Bloomsburg up by 12 with only eight minutes gone by.

Clarion began to move the ball late in the first, but a 12 play drive stalled at the BU 20 and Paul Cramer's field goal attempt sailed wide.

Clarion got the ball back after a Bloomsburg fumble and Craig Ray went to work. First he found Kevin Harper on a third and nine play , then he spotted Marlon Worthy in the end zone on another third down attempt.

Just before the half, Ray marched his troops down the field one more time. Damien Henry picked up 29 of his 105 first half yards on this drive, the last yard good for a 13-12 Eagles' halftime lead.

The Eagles came out flying in the third quarter. An Alim Kamara interception placed Clarion at the Bloomsburg 28. Another third down pass from Ray to Harper, this one good for 26, capped off the drive.

Ray hit Tim Brown on another third and long situation on Clarion's next possession. That 23 yard pick-up set up an eight yard Henry touchdown and a 26-12 lead.

Ries fumbled the snap on the Huskies next possession and the rout was on.

Chris Coleman recovered the fumble, and three Henry runs later, the score was 33-12. It was Henry's third touchdown and he would finish the day with 125 yards rushing.

Bloomsburg would shoot themselves in the foot one more time as Ries, looking all the more like Gordon Schumway, coughed up another furball, this time at his own 10 yard line. Art Gregory would take the honors from there to conclude an incredible stretch in which the Eagles scored 27 points in the first eight minutes and 37 seconds of the third quarter.

Both teams cleared the benches in the fourth, and it led to some impressive performances by the Eagles. Fullback Chad Speakman gained 32 yards on five carries and Gary Fallings and Dan Veney each contributed three tackles in limited playing time.

Bloomsburg scored again with 23 seconds remaining on a Rob Giba touchdown pass to Glen McNamee from four yards away to set the final at 40-18.

Coming together: Craig Ray (11) and the Golden Eagles displayed the championship form of 1992 against BU on Saturday.

Art Gregory fumble stalled a lengthy Clarion drive, Bloomsburg quarterback Phil Ries found Buck Eardley flying down the right sideline for a 72 yard touchdown and a 6-0 lead.

An interception gave the Huskies the ball at the Clarion 18, and on the second play of the drive, Mike Johnson scored to Clarion wins fifth of year:

Eagles split with Point Park, Slippery Rock

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

After starting off 2-1, the Golden Eagle volleyball team suffered through weeks and weeks of losses, however, going into their match against Point Park College, the Eagles had won two of their last three.

Point Park proved to be no match for the Golden Eagles and Clarion prevailed three games to one. Clarion won the match 15-10, 9-15, 15-2, 15-8. Jenny Betters led the Eagles with nine kills, and Katie Rhodes was close behind with seven. Meghan Kelly led the way defensively with 10 digs, while Lisa Flynn and Gerri Condo added nine. Rhoads also finished with 29 set assists.

The Eagle's bliss ended, however, when they lost to Slippery Rock on Tuesday. The Eagles dropped this one in straight sets, 14-16, 7-15, 11-15. The games were close, but this was the type of match where things could have gone either way, but they didn't go right for the Eagles.

Flynn had nine kills and seven digs. Betters added seven kills. Rhoads was again the set assists leader with 28.

The Eagles will be in action again on October 19 with a home match against Edinboro. Clarion lost a close, hard fought match to the Fighting Scots earlier this year.

Clarion's overall record is 5-17 with only four of those 22 matches being at home.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Get it out of here! : Clarion's Bobbie Simpson and Nicole Flambard kept IUP off balance all night. The Eagles have won three of their last five including a four set thriller against Point Park last week.

Golfers win at Edinboro

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

In a field of six squads at the Edinboro Invitational, the Clarion University Golden Eagles placed first overall with an score of 315. The tournament which was held September 30, was the first Clarion tournament victory in four years. Chris Brosius and Cory Bierly tore up the course by shooting scores of 78. Brian Fiscus shot a 79, while Andy Ganoe and Todd Corbeil fired 80's.

On October 5th, Clarion took part in the Guy W. Kuhn Classic better known as the Allegheny Invitational. The Golden Eagle gold team shot a 330 and finished eighth while the blue squad finished eleventh by shooting a 337.

The top golfers for the Eagles were Greg Greksa and Rob Pierson who finished with scores of 79. Andy Ganoe continued his outstanding play by shooting an 83, and Chris Brosius and Chris Williams were close behind with an 84. Todd Corbeil and Brian Fiscus finished with scores of 85, Cory Bierly blasted an 86, Ron Malincheck took an 88 and Cory Allen shot a 90.

The Eagles begin the PSAC Championships today and will be in action October 19 and 20 at the Davis & Elkins Invitational.

Sports Commentary:

Lloyd and Greene are bringing back memories

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

After Greg Lloyd blasted San Diego wide receiver Anthony Miller last Sunday, Miller arose from the turf and slowly stumbled to the wrong huddle. This play signified the kind of football the Pittsburgh Steelers are playing.

After a dismal 0-2 start, head coach Bill Cowher has his black and gold playing the best defense in the league. Not the division or the conference, the league. The top-ranked defense of the Steelers is playing "NFC-style" and it's no wonder why Pittsburgh has won three straight games.

Kevin Greene, who gave San Diego quarterback John Friesz a concussion with a bone-crushing hit, and Greg Lloyd whose blindside mugging of back-up Stan Humphries caused a fumble and a Levon Kirkland touchdown, have destroyed opposing quarterbacks all year. They did let the ambulance carrying Friesz escape the field without stripping it, however. There is a limit isn't there?

At this pace, Lloyd and Greene will be reclining on the beach in Hawaii come February. Just as Joe Greene was the cornerstone to the dynasty defense, Lloyd is to the 1993 version. And how about the secondary? Led by "Mr. Do Everything" Rod Woodson, this unit is the best in the league, and with tons of young talent, the defensive unit is going to be solid for years to come.

The Steelers last three games have literally been shutouts. The Curtain has allowed one offensive touchdown in the last three contests. Granted these three teams stink (2-13 combined record), but remember, they are professional teams.

Cowher wants his team to have that "nasty" image; the image of a punishing defense. They want the reputation of sporting the fastest, hardest-hitting defense in the league. Football fans, they have my vote!

This week is the biggest test to date for Cowher's Men of Steel. A typical NFC powerhouse is coming to town. The unbeaten New Orleans Saints arrive, and with them, a well-balanced powerful defense and the top rushing offense in the NFL. The Saints seem to be the "cream of the crop" for the '93 NFL campaign. If the Steelers can knock off the Saints, people everywhere will become believers. That could be just what the Steelers need, a solid winning performance over an NFC powerhouse and a stay at the top of the heap in the AFC Central..

- In other NFL notes, Miami Dolphins starting quarterback Dan Marino was lost for the season after he ruptured his right Achillies tendon against Cleveland last Sunday. Marino wasn't the only Dolphin to go down, however. Linebacker John Offerdahl will miss three to four weeks with a dislocated right shoulder, and defensive end David Griggs will miss about a month after undergoing arthroscopic knee surgery.
- New York Jets running back Blair Thomas will miss two to four weeks with a strained right hamstring, and wide receiver Rob Moore will miss about a month due to a torn cartilage in his right knee.
- Chicago Bears wide receiver Wendell Davis may be lost for the year after he underwent knee surgery on Monday. Davis tore tendons in both patellas, which hold the knees in place, trying to catch a deep pass against Philly.

Clarion vs. Lock Haven

Eagles look for first conference win on Saturday

by Tondelaya Carey
Sportswriter

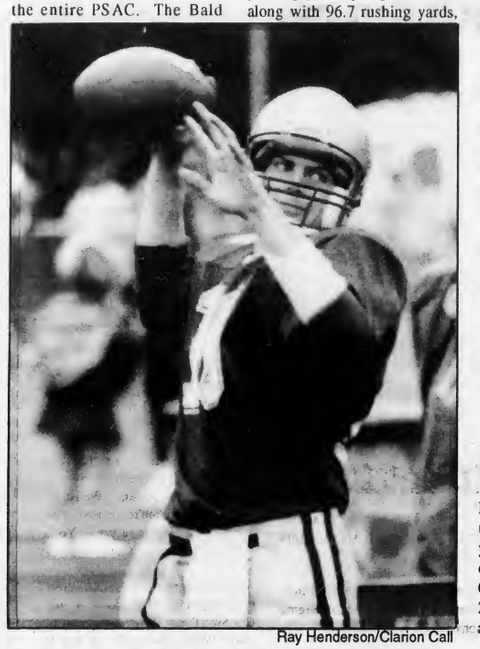

Clarion University's football team travels to Lock Haven to battle the Bald Eagles Saturday, October 16th after a 40-18 victory over Bloomsburg during Homecoming. Kickoff time is set for 1:30 at LHU's Hubert Jack Stadium.

Clarion, under the tutelage of eleventh year head coach Gene Sobolewski, enters the game with a 2-3 overall record and an 0-1 mark in the PSAC-West. Lock Haven, led by fourth year head coach Dennis Therrell, enters the game with a record of 1-5 and an 0-2 mark in the conference.

"We're basically in the same position going into this game as we were a year ago," says Sobolewski. "But if we're going to work our way back into the race, we have to take it one game at a time."

Clarion's offense exploded for 40 points last week and is currently averaging 338.6 yards of total offense with 151.2 coming on the ground and 187.4 through the air. The Eagles' defense ranks sixth in the PSAC and fourth in the west in total defense, limiting opponents to 334.6 yards per game. Opponents are getting 163.8 on the ground and 170.5 through the air.

Clarion's defense will definitely have its hands full trying to stop the Bald Eagles' passing game. Lock Haven has the number one passing attack in the entire PSAC. The Bald Eagles are averaging 276.7 passing yards per game, and, along with 96.7 rushing yards, average 373.3 per game.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Ready for action: Freshman quarterback Chris Weibel (10) has assumed the second-string job after Chris Zak's injury ended his season prematurely.

Quarterback Craig Ray will lead Clarion's offense again. Ray, a transfer from New Haven, completed 10 of 12 passes for 120 yards and two touchdowns against Bloomsburg. He has now completed 30 of 58 aerials for 330 yards and three scores in 1993. Starting Eagles' quarterback Chris Zak will miss the remainder of the year due to a re-injured knee.

All-American tight end Tim Brown has caught 30 passes for 332 yards and needs four receptions to set the new Clarion career record with 150 grabs. Also ready to catch passes are wideouts Kevin Harper with 10 catches for 155 yards and Marlon Worthy who has eight receptions for 140 yards.

Senior tailback Damien Henry ranks third in the PSAC-West with 521 yards and four touchdowns on 114 carries. Henry is Clarion's fourth all-time leading rusher with 1,615 yards and is tied for third in career touchdowns with 22. Gregory, meanwhile, has run for 222 yards and two scores on 62 attempts.

Lock Haven quarterback Bob McLaughlin has completed 147 of 259 passes for 1,624 yards and nine touchdowns. He leads the PSAC in total offense averaging 273.2 yards per game.

Top receivers are Jon Spinosa, Bryan McGinty, Erik Steinbacher, and Otis Duncan. Spinosa has caught 33 balls for 380 yards and three scores; McGinty has 31 catches for 311 yards; Steinbacher has 26 receptions for 318 yards, and Otis Duncan has latched on to 11 McLaughlin strikes.

Lock Haven is led on the ground by Afiba Fairnot, who has gained 298 yards on 68 carries. Kevin Brown has gained 155 yards on 36 attempts.

The Bald Eagles problems have come on defense where Lock Haven ranks last in the PSAC in total defense giving up 509.2 yards per game. Opponents are getting 274.7 rushing yards and 234.5 passing yards per game, plus 36.5 points per outing.

The Golden Eagles host Shippensburg next Saturday, October 23rd at 1 pm. Clarion beat Lock Haven 42-14. Gregory ran for 148 yards and Jay Tonini gained 166 during last year's Homecoming.

The Godfather predicts:

The road to Pasadena goes through Happy Valley

Just to bring you up to date, the Godfather went 3-1 last week. What does that tell you? It tells you that the Godfather just wins. It also tells you that if you don't listen to the Godfather, you may find a stallion head when you wake up. This week I'm taking a look at the biggest games in the biggest conferences. So call your bookie; make him an offer he can't refuse.

#17 Michigan at #7 Penn State -5

This game is crucial to both teams on their quest for the Rose Bowl. Penn State is undefeated in its inaugural Big Ten season, while Michigan suffered its first loss in 29 Big Ten games last week. Penn State quarterback Kerry Collins is strong and will be looking to get the ball into the hands of explosive wide receiver Bobby Ingram. The Wolverines will try to pound Tyrone Wheatley down the throats of the Lions. No chance. Take Penn State in Happy Valley as the Lions take a step closer to Pasadena. Penn St. 20, Michigan 7.

#10 Tennessee at #2 Alabama -6

The Tide finally gets its first major test when the Tennessee Volunteers come to town. 'Bama owns the nation's longest winning streak as well as the quickest, hardest-hitting defense. Tennessee boasts of quarterback Heath Shuler who passed for 307 yards last week against Arkansas despite wearing uniform number 21. Alabama is not Arkansas. Look for the Tide to roll closer to the Sugar Bowl. Alabama 24, Tennessee 17.

#20 Colorado at #9 Oklahoma -6

Who would have thought that the Sooners would be sitting at 5-0. But here they are, and a confrontation with Nebraska for an Orange Bowl berth could be happening "soon." Cale Gundy and company have schooned over their opponents thus far including Texas A&M. Colorado has had a rough time of it lately. Even Big 8 doormat Missouri covered the spread last week against the Buffaloes. Figure the Sooners to jump on the Buffs early and often. Oklahoma 30, Colorado 17.

Stanford at #11 Arizona -11

Bill Walsh, who some say has the greatest mind in football, better come up with an ingenius formula to figure out how to gain a yard against Arizona's Desert Swarm defense. After this week, I have a feeling Bill will contemplate going back to the booth for Notre Dame games. The Wildcats are on their way to the Rose Bowl and anyone who dares stand in their way, will suffer the same treatment as someone who keeps me from my lasagna. Arizona 28, Stanford 3.

Clarion -5 at Lock Haven

The Eagles are at the point in their schedule where they should be able to put together some wins. Quarterback Craig Ray played an exceptional second half on Saturday, and his passing should open up the running game for Damien Henry and Art Gregory. The defense struggled early against Bloomsburg, but after two quick scores, the Huskies were shut down the rest of the way. Look for Clarion to start showing the championship form of 1992. Clarion 33, Lock Haven 18.

The big plate of spaghetti award goes to Georgia Bulldog quarterback Eric Zeier. Zeier set an SEC record as he threw for 544 yards and four touchdowns against Southern Mississippi.

The Black Rose award goes to the Michigan Wolverines for spoiling a perfect week for the Godfather. I'll get my revenge.

Clarion wins blood drive challenge

by Michelle Sporer
Editor

Clarion University was victorious Monday, besting Indiana University of Pennsylvania at the blood drive challenge, by surpassing their quota and netting 229 pints of blood for the American Red Cross.

Clarion's goal was to surpass 175 pints within one day unlike IUP who fell short a few weeks ago, of their preset two day quota of 600 pints of blood.

"Student Senate is very proud of both Clarion and IUP for the tremendous participation with the blood mobile challenge."
---Gara Smith

Maggie Collarini/Clarion Call

Clarion claimed victory over IUP, Monday, in a student government sponsored blood drive challenge. Clarion surpassed their quota by 54 pints of blood in a single day unlike IUP who didn't quite meet their two day quota of 600 pints of blood.

The blood drive challenge was sponsored by the respective student governements at the rival schools in conjunction with the American Red Cross in an effort to boost extremely low blood supplies in the region.

"Student Senate is very proud of both Clarion and IUP for the tremendous participation with the blood mobile challenge," said Clarion's Student Senate President, Gara Smith. "[It's] an even better feeling in knowing that lives will be saved."

Because of the win, Clarion's flag will fly over IUP's campus on November 12 and a cake will be presented by IUP's president to Clarion's alumni at the November 13 Clarion versus IUP football game.

Anti-Abortion groups target college papers

by Diana Smith
College Press Service

Pro-life groups are targeting colleges with paid newspaper supplements that use first person accounts and photographs of babies and developing fetuses to urge women to consider alternaatives to abortion.

"We had hoped to put it in 100 campuses nationwide this year," said Bob Cheatham, a graduate student at the University of Southern California and past president of the California Collegians for Life. Students who oppose abortion want to print and distribute 1 million copies of the publication through campus newspapers.

However, the supplemental has raised objections from some students who believe it is an attempt to bypass the editorial process and get pro-life views into circulation without dissenting opinions. Pro-choice students also have criticized some information in the publication as false or misleading and question whether First Amendment issues are involved.

Students involved in getting the supplement into as many college newspapers as possible believe the pro-choice groups are disgruntled because Collegians for Life have found an effective communication tool.

Legal Ed. Seminar

The Clarion University Center for Legal Education has been approved to host a one day seminar, "Current Development in Legal Ethics," which will meet the Pa Supreme court's requirementof continuing education.

"The Pennsylvania Supreme Court promogated a rule that all lwayers authorized to practice in Pennsylvania must complete instruction each year in legal ethics."

This seminar will meet the requirements set down by the court. Six speakers from various law firms are scheduled to speak to 900 invited attorneys at the seminar on Nov. 23.

Say What?

In celebration of the October Classic: The World Series, I again proffer a reprint of the testimony of one Casey Stengel, Manager of the New York Yankees, said testimony given on 9 July, 1958, before the subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly of the Committee of the Judiciary ofthe Unites States Senate. This excerpt is taken from The Congressional Record.

I try to reprint this testimony every four years; that way each generation of college students will have had at least one exposure to "Stengelese." Casey, the master of manipulation and the manipulator of obfuscation, has always been a known force with which to deal, but in reviewing this copy I made a new discovery (redundant) -- the quick wit, keen mind and brilliant use of linguistic simplicity of, (lest we forgot that only one representative of the baseball establishment was giving testimony), Mickey Mantle.I always knew there was something lurking behind that boyish grin. Enjoy. . .

From The Congressinal Record
Casey Stengel

Senator Kefauver: Mr. Stengel, you are the manager of the New York Yankees. Will you give us very briefly your background and your views about this legislation?

Mr. Stengel: Well, I started in professional ball in 1910. I have been in professional ball, I would say, for 48 years. I have been employed by numerous ball clubs in the majors and in the minor leagues.

I started in the minor leagues with Kansas City. I played as low as Class D ball, which was at Shelbyville, Kentucky, and also Class C ball and Class A ball, and I have advanced in baseball as ballplayer.

I had many years that I was not so successful as a ballplayer, as it is a game of skill. And then I was no doubt discharged by baseball in which I had to go back to the minor leagues as a manager, and after being in the minor leagues as a manager, I became a major league manager in several cities and was discharged, we call it discharged because there was no question, I had to leave.

And I returned to the minor leagues at Milwaukee, Kansas City and Oakland, California, and then returned to the major leagues. In the last 10 years, naturally, in major-league baseball with the New York Yankees; the New York Yankees have had tremendous success, and while I am not a ballplayer who does the work, I have no doubt worked for a ball club that is very capable in the office.

The Way I See It

Ray Henderson
Photography Editor

Last night as I was defrosting my freezer, I realized two t+hings. First, I should defrost my freezer more often, and second, winter is about to return to Clarion.

For the benefit of all you freshmen and transfer students who haven't yet experienced winter here at Clarion University of Pennsylvania's Siberia campus, we are mind-numbingly proud to extend to you the Official 1993 Clarion Call Spectacular Blow-Out All-American Winter Preview and Survival Guide.

(WARNING: THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPHS OF THIS COLUMN CONTAIN SCENES OF A FRANK AND GRAPHIC NATURE. NO ONE WILL BE ADMITTED WITHOUT SNOW SHOES, SEVEN LAYERS OF THERMAL UNDERWEAR, AND A VALID STUDENT I.D.)

The first thing you should know about the Clarion winter is when to expect it. Usually, winter arrives in Clarion sometime between late October and early May, much like the Pro Basketball season.

Also like the Pro Basketball season, winter here in Clarion is boring, unproductive, and seems like it will never ever end.

Another important thing about winter in Clarion: one moment it's a really nice day out, and one moment later WHOOMP (sound of four feet of snow falling without warning), four feet of snow has fallen without warning. This can be very disturbing, particularly for those of you who are less than four feet tall.

As far as surviving these months of hell, here are a few tips and tricks to help you get by:

1.)Use cafeteria trays as sleds on the hill by Ralston. Don't worry if you can't get stopped. You will crash headfirst into the Student Center long before you get to the street.

2.)Get together in the TV lounge with your friends, turn off the TV, look out the window, and make fun of all the people who slip and fall on the ice (I once saw a person clear an entire set of stairs by Carlson Library).

3.)Write your name in the snow (you can get really creative here).

4.)If you're out of hairspray, just style your hair, leave it wet, and then go outside. In ten seconds it will be stiff as a board.

5.)Walk down the hill by Peirce, fall down by Tippin, and slide on your butt the whole way to Becker.

Have a pleasant winter, or maybe stay in Clarion instead.

Reader Responses

Athletes are heroes

Dear Editor:

I thought that the commentary written by Nathan Kahl was interesting ("My interview with Jack Lambert"). In fact, I wrote a similar piece on athletes last year in the Venango Voice. I went on to say that Lou Gehrig was my favorite athlete of all time because of his dedication (2,130 consecutive games), his lifetime statistics, his compassion for people, and his truly moving final speech at Yankee Stadium; "I consider myself the luckiest man on the face of the earth." People like that are few and far between.

But what about our expectations of athletes? Is it too demanding? My belief is that to some extent, athletes should be role models. Afterall, it is the fans who are really paying their salaries. I've sometimes wondered why millions of people are such devoted fans of professional sports teams. Is it to see the greatest talent in the world or is it to see the people who have the greatest talent in the world. I've always figured it was the latter. I think they owe us a little more than just doing their job. This doesn't mean that we should bug them for an autograph if they are eating at a restaurant. Nor are they expected to be "chipper" every time they make a public appearance.

However, I think they should conduct themselves as a role model to fans, (i.e., staying away from drugs, getting in bar fights, etc.) particularly to children.

Athletes are heroes. That is their job.

Praise for the library

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regard to Carlson Library and its services. However, it is not one of the usual library-bashing types; instead it is a laudation to its performance.

After two-and-a-half years as a grad student in Rehab Sciences at Clarion, I have found the overall resources to be more than praiseworthy. Above all, I have found the staff to be far more helpful and courteous than that of the larger libraries at Pitt and Penn State, whose libraries I used to roam for six years as an undergraduate. Perhaps I have found Carlson's resources to be most advantageous because I simply took the time to learn what potentials libraries can offer while still in high school -- and there were no available GEAC, ERIC, InforTrack, and PsychLit computer systems back then! Many students still fail to take full advantage of these databases, yet will tell you the library had no information on the subject being researched.

To be honest, I will be the first to admit that Carlson is not entirely up-to-date in certain areas, and does lack some immediate resources; most libraries do due to growth and technological change. However, many of these unavailable resources may be obtained via interlibrary loan if students would just take the time to examine their needs closely, ask questions, and place orders early. Notably, the reference and interlibrary-loan staff deserve the most praise as far as I am concerned. Friends, you simply will not get as much one-on-one help and considerate effort from larger libraries. Perhaps you would enjoy paying the processing fees for any reprints of journal articles obtained elsewhere -- this is a reality at many larger libraries! Of course, there are many disadvantages of having a smaller library; however, perhaps we should focus on the advantages instead.

As the average student, I have usually found that if you make the effort to dig deeply enough, look at what you have instead of don't have, and pose questions to the Carlson staff, you will probably end up with all the information you can possibly use for any assignment. Remember... knowing how and where to look is half the battle.

Jeffrey W. Edelmann is a graduate student in Rehabilitative Sciences at Clarion

Dear Clarion,

A special and warm thanks are extended to you from Student Senate. We did not only meet our quota but we donated 229 pints of blood! An extra thanks to all who donated. The proud CUP flag will soar high above the losing IUP. Go Golden Eagles!

A call for flexibility

Dear Editor:

On October 6, 1993, a classmate and I decided to go see the University performance of "Love Letters" in Hart Chapel. Actually, we are both enrolled in Acting 254, and Dr. Mary Hardwick made attending the show mandatory for all of her students. So, because I am a good student, I decided to go.

My friend and I were informed in class that CUP students were admitted to performances and other activities free of charge. That is why we pay our activities fee. I understood that I had to take my student ID to verify that I am honestly a CUP student.

When I got to the door of Hart Chapel, approximately ten minutes before the performance began, I walked up to the lady sitting at the table guarding the front entrance like a pit bull. I said hello to her, and she replied coldly, "ID!" I handed her my student identification card, and she threw it back at me. She barked, "Five dollars or you can't get in. Your ID isn't validated."

At that moment I saw my teacher Dr. Mary Hardwick, who was nervously awaiting the beginning of the performance that she had been laboring over for weeks. I flagged Dr. Mary down, and I explained my situation. She very graciously explained to the woman that I was in her class, and I was indeed a student at Clarion University this semester.

The woman began to growl. She said Student Senate's policy is that no one can get into any activity for free unless they have a validated student ID card to prove they have paid their activities fee.

Still calm, I explained to this person that I lived in a dormitory. I showed her my key, and I explained to her that every student in the dorms pays their activities fee before they are given their key. I further stated that I am a writer for the Clarion Call. My friend, luckily, had a copy of the previous week's paper, and I showed the woman my name on the byline. I explained to her that I could not participate in activities unless I had paid my activities fee.

Dr. Mary, who was becoming impatient, said she would give me the five dollars for my admission. I declined, and informed her that I would rather walk back to my room to get the money.

I walked out of the chapel doorway and headed toward my dorm. As I was walking, I became enraged at this unbelievable scene that had just occurred. I sprinted back to Hart Chapel ready to defend my position, once again. It was five minutes after the performance had begun.

As I entered the now dark chapel, where the entire audience was captivated by the actors on stage, the woman was nowhere to be found. I couldn't believe my eyes. I walked right in, along with two other students who did not show their ID to anyone. I enjoyed the entire performance free of charge.

I can understand the rule requiring students to get their ID's validated in order to prove they are currently CUP students. What I cannot understand is the Draconian policy they have adopted of enforcing their rule.

Governor Jerry Brown once said, "What we all need is a flexible plan for an everchanging world." If the United States government recognizes this statement to be true, I think Clarion University's government should take a look at it too.

I have been up and down the ladder. I know there are some things in baseball 35 to 50 years ago that are better now than they were in those days. In those days, my goodness, you could not transfer a ball club in the minor leagues, Class D, Class C ball, Class A ball.

How could you transfer a ball club when you did not have a highway? How could you transfer a ball club when the railroad then would take you to a town, you got off and then you had to wait and sit up five hours to go to another ball club?

How could you run baseball then without night ball?

You had to have night ball to improve the proceeds, to pay larger salaries, and I went to work, the first year I received $135 a month.

I thought that was amazing. I had to put away enough money to go to dental college. I found out it was not better in dentistry. I stayed in baseball. Any other question you would like to ask me?

Senator Kefauver: Mr. Stengel, are you prepared to answer particularly why baseball wants this bill passed?

Mr. Stengel: Well, I would have to say at the present time, I think that baseball has advanced in this respect for the player help. That is an amazing statement for me to make, because you can retire with an annuity at 50 and what organization in America allows you to retire at 50 and receive money?

I want to further state that I am not a ballplayer, that is, put into that pension fund committee. At my age, and I have been in baseball, well, I will say I am possibly the oldest man who is working in baseball. I would say that when they start an annuity for the ballplayers to better their conditions, it should have been done, and I think it has been done.

I think it should be the way they have done it, which is a very good thing.

The reason they possibly did not take the managers in at that time was because radio and television or the income to ball clubs was not large enough that you could have put in a pension plan.

Now I am not a member of the pension plan. You have young men here who are, who represent the ball clubs.

They represent the players and since I am not a member and don't receive pension from a fund which you think, my goodness, he ought to be declared in that, too, but I would say that is a great thing for the ballplayers.

That is one thing I will say for the ballplayers, they have an advanced pension fund. I should think it was gained by radio and television or you could not have enough money to pay anything of that type.

Now the second thing about baseball that I think is very interesting to the public or to all of us is that it is the owner's fault if he does not improve his club, along with the officials in the ball club and the players.

Now what causes that?

If I am going to go on the road and we are a traveling ball club and you know the cost of transportation now -- we travel sometimes with three Pullman coaches, the New York Yankees and remember I am just a salaried man, and do not own stock in the New York Yankees. I found out that in traveling with the New York Yankees on the road and all, that it is the best, and we have broken records in Washington this year, we have broken them in every city but New York and we have lost two clubs that have gone out of the city of New York.

Of course, we have had some bad weather, I would say that they are mad at us in Chicago, we fill the parks.

They have come out to see good material. I will say they are mad at us in Kansas City, but we broke their attendance record.

Now on the road we only get possibly 27 cents. I am not positive of these figures, as I am not an official.

If you go back 15 years or so, if I owned stock in the club, I would give them to you.

Senator Kefauver: Mr. Stengel, I am not sure that I made my question clear.

Mr. Stengel: Yes sir. Well, that is all right. I am not sure I am going to answer yours perfectly either.

Senator O'Mahoney: How many minor leagues were there in baseball when you began?

Mr. Stengel: Well, there were not so many at that time because of this fact: Anybody to go into baseball at that time with the educational schools that we had were small, while you were probably thoroughly educated at school, you had to be -- we only had small cities that you could put a team in and they would go defunct.

Why, I remember the first year I was at Kankakee, Illinois, and a bank offered me $550 if I would let them have a little notice. I left there and took a uniform because they owed me two weeks' pay. But I either had to quit but I did not have enough money to go to dental college so I had to go with the manager down to Kentucky.

What happened there was if you got by July, that was the big date. You did not play night ball and you did not play Sundays in half of the cities on account of a Sunday observance, so in those days, when things were tough, and all of it was, I mean to say, why they just closed up July 4 and there you were sitting there in the depot.

You could go to work someplace else, but that was it.

So I got out of Kankakee, Illinois, and I just go there for the visit now.

Senator Carroll: The question Senator Kefauver asked you was what, in your honest opinion, with your 48 years of experience, is the need for this legislation in view of the fact that baseball has not been subject to antitrust laws?

Mr. Stengel: No

Senator Langer: Mr. Chairman, my final question. This is the Antimonopoly Committee that is sitting here:

Mr. Stengel: Yes, sir.

Senator Langer: I want to know whether you intend to keep on monopolizing the world's championship in New York City.

Mr. Stengel: Well, I will tell you. I got a little concerned yesterday in the first three innings when I saw the three players I had gotten rid of, and I said when I lost nine what am I going to do and when I had a couple of my players I thought so great of that did not do so good up to the sixth inning, I was more confused but I finally had to go and call on a young man in Baltimore that we don't own and the Yankees don't own him, and he is doing pretty good, and I would actually have to tell you that I think we are more the Greta Garbo type now from success.

We are being hated, I mean, from the ownership and all, we are being hated. Every sport that gets too great or one individual - but if we made 27 cents and it pays to have a winner at home, why would not you have a good winner in your own park if you were an owner?

That is the result of baseball. An owner gets most of the money at home and it is up to him and his staff to do better or they ought to be discharged.

Senator Kefauver: Thank you very much, Mr. Stengel. We appreciate your presence here. Mr. Mickey Mantle, will you come around? . . Mr. Mantle, do you have any observations with reference to the applicability of the antitrust laws to baseball?

Mr. Mantle: My views are just about the same as Casey's.

A list of menswear you must have

©The Miami Herald

You men will be relieved to learn that fashion designer Donna Karan has come out with a list of menswear items that you must have. This is a big load off my mind. I HATE making my own menswear decisions.

Especially pants. I can never find pants in my size, which is 33 - 31. I would call this an average size, but for some reason, the pant industry makes only about two pairs of 33 - 31 pants per year, and they're always gone by the time I get to the department store, leaving me to paw through the Mutt and Jeff Designer Clothing Collection.

In an effort to find something at least close to my size, I end up trying on a lot of pants in those changing booths with the postcard-sized swinging doors that offer you the same level of privacy as you'd get if you tried on pants while standing on a counter in Ladies Cosmetics. Privacy is a problem, because there are always women lurking around the changing area, making sure their husbands buy pants that fit. They know that their husbands HATE trying on pants, and will, if left alone, purchase the first pair they put on, even if it does not have the correct number of legs.

So the women stand just outside of the changing area, peering in trying to get Pant News Updates:

WOMAN: Michael? How do they fit?

MAN: They fit fine.

WOMAN: Michael, I want to see them.

MAN: I said they fit FINE.

WOMAN: (banging into the changing area, causing guys in there to scurry, rat like, around their booths, attempting to cover themselves with shopping bags): LET ME SEE THEM.

I personally consider this kind of behavior to be degrading to the husbands. I never shop for pants with my wife. This is why I personally own several dozen pairs of pants that don't fit.

I'd like to buy just one set of clothes, the RIGHT clothes, and never have to buy any again. That's why I'm so pleased about the new Donna Karan Fashion Essentials catalogue of "must - have menswear items." This catalogue, according to an accompanying press release, is being distributed "to select consumers." You will be pleased to learn that the Fashion Essentials catalogue does NOT include a skirt. This is good news, because Donna Karan does sometimes have her male models appear in fashion shows wearing skirts. But for now, you will not be required to purchase one, although this could change; the release states that "Karan will re-evaluate each Essential item to make sure that the product mix remains current."

I was surprised to note that the Essentials catalogue also does not include underwear, which most guys I know view as an essential clothing item, both for formal occasions and for mopping up beer spills. What the catalogue does include is a 100 percent Scottish cashmere jogging-suit ensemble, consisting of a "hooded zip-front jogger" for $1,960 and a "drawstring sweat pant" for $1,465.

I know what some of you men are thinking. You're thinking that you're not going to spend $3,425 on a jogging suit unless it also comes with a car. I'm sorry, men, but that is exactly the kind of bad attitude that keeps you off the list of select consumers. This jogging suit is essential, and so are all the other items in the Donna Karan Essentials catalogue, including the cashmere crew ($650), the biker jacket ($1,200), the leather vest ($495), the balmacaan ($860), and the cashmere robe ($1,925). Altogether, the catalogue features 25 essential garments, requiring a basic fashion investment of $18, 452.50. (No, I don't know what a "balmacaan" is. Just shut up and buy it.)

I am certain that all the essential garments in the catalogue are very attractive. Unfortunately, I can't really see them. Most of them are, of course, black, and they have been photographed under dim light against a black background. In most of the photographs, the only thing you can see clearly is the ghostly, floating face of the model, who, like most male fashion models, has a facial expression normally associated with prostate surgery.

But that's his concern, men. Your concern is bringing your wardrobe up to minimum acceptable fashion standards. So I want you to sell that extra kidney, go to a store that carries the Donna Karan Menswear line, and start purchasing your fashion Essentials. While you're there, pick me up a size 33-31 balmacaan.

TelReg at Gemmell will be improved

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

It's TelReg time again and this year new improvements will hopefully be intact to efficiently aid students in scheduling classes in the Gemmell student complex.

The computer lab was adopted last year and serves as an alternative to students when other computer labs are filled to capacity. Since then the computer lab has "finally completed networking of five Macintosh computers which have access to the vacs on campus and access to the LaserWriter as well as the Dot Matrix," said Hal Wassink, director of student activities.

However, one step that hasn't been taken is to offer Macintosh users Course View, which is used to show class and section availability. "What I'm happy about is that now the Macintosh users have everything but Course View and Computer Services is currently working on installation," Wassink said.

Manager of systems and networks at Computer Service Steve Selker says that "students who use the Macintosh computers will be able to register for classes from in Gemmell's computer lab very shortly. We are working on capability right now." Selker says that he is unsure of the exact date that Course View will be available. "That's the capability that we are working on to be available by pre-registration on the 25th of this month."

Wassink says "I don't want to be too critical because I understand that they are busy. There are enough times when your putting up with hardware and software problems daily and I think Computer Management Services does a good job. It's not like they've never done anything, most of their time is spent on day to day problem, my only concern is that we need to be on line and get this thing taken care of.

"This summer they were working on one major lab and getting that ready, I just feel that we have been put on the backburner and I would really like to be on line by pre-registration," Wassink said.

The computer lab currently provides Claris Works for Macintosh, Aldus Page Maker desk top publisher for both Macintosh and Digital units, Lotus 123, and Word Perfect.

The lab is available to students Monday through Friday from 9:15 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Lab Assistants are not assigned for all of these hours but they are generally available from 1-3p.m. and 6-11 p.m. Monday through Friday, 1-6p.m. Saturday and 6-11p.m. on Sunday.

According to Wassink "They're some people that need assistants and there are people that know what they are doing and don't need an aide.

The Lab Assistants place ribbons in the printers, put paper in the printers and keep the place running as efficiently as possible."

Wassink added that "We are in the process of putting in a rack with manuals for software programs that are available because they're not always assistants over there and even when they are, they don't necessarily have all the answers. We are currently adding a manual rack just like the other two labs in Becker and Still."

Although the Course View program is not presently available to students, it is being worked on and should be available soon.

If all goes well, students will find registering a much smoother process.

Cori Phillips / Clarion Call

Students registering for next semester will find improved computer systems in the Gemmell lab to help them through the process.

Coffee: Breakfast choice of many students

courtesy of
College Press Service

It is the fuel of all-nighters.

The lifeblood that courses through the veins of college students, pushing them on toward academic achievement.

And sometimes, as a popular button proclaims, it is your only friend.

It's caffeine, and students devour it in mass quantities.

Maria Celes, a Union Square Cafe employee, said the University of Arizona Student Union restaurant sells about 15 pounds of coffee and 2,400 ounces of cola each day.

And that's just the beginning. Add to that a daily total of about 100 hot espressos, 15 gallons of cold espresso and six gallons of tea.

Becky Snyder, another Union Square employee, said a female this summer drank three 32-ounce cups of cafe au lait each day. She said it was not unusual for a regular cafe customer to drink three or four cups of some kind of coffee per day.

Some students said they use caffeine to replace eating and sleeping.

"When you only get two hours of sleep each night you really need it," said Colleen Graham, an English and French senior. She said caffeine became a regimen in her when she had early classes her freshman year.

"It was Mountain Dew and M & Ms for breakfast that would keep me going," Graham said.

Jennifer Webb, an English and German senior, said she recently had the choice of using her last three quarters for coffee or bus fare.

"I walked home," she said, adding that the caffeine gave her enough energy to make the trek.

Both said they have no plans to stop drinking caffeinated beverages, and Graham added that she gets headaches when she doesn't have coffee regularly.

Gary Wenk, a University of Arizona psychology professor, researched caffeine as a professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Wenk said caffeine acts as a general stimulant tot the central nervous system, raising heart and blood pressure rates. The substance also drains sodium from the body, he said.

"It seems to enchance mental function," Wenk said.

He added that caffeine is less addicting than nicotine or other drugs and will positively affect only people who are physically or mentally fatigued. Those well rested will only experience anxiousness, he said.

And Wenk said the body does build up a tolerance to caffeine - an event that could create "nasty headaches" for about three days if a regular drinker does not ingest caffeine.

Students sipping caffeinated beverages in the Student Union had their own reasons why caffeine is part of their lives.

"I drink tea because of its flavor," said Sonya Wodopianov. She said she drinks a beverage containing caffeine about four times per day.

Christopher Johnson, an English literature senior, has a different reason for drinking coffee.

"It's something that's relatively cheap that might earn you a bachelor's degree," Johnson said, adding that it helps him wake up in the morning and study for long periods of time.

"I just couldn't be doing college if I didn't drink coffee," Johnson said.

International student enrollment down at CUP

by Chritin Mihon
News Writer

For the fourth consecutive year membership in the Clarion University International Student Association has dropped. Plagued by sharp tuition increases and lack of adequate funding, students have had to transfer to less expensive schools or quit school altogether.

Another factor in the dropping population has been the International Office's disability, due to budget cuts, to actively recruit students for a few years before 1993.

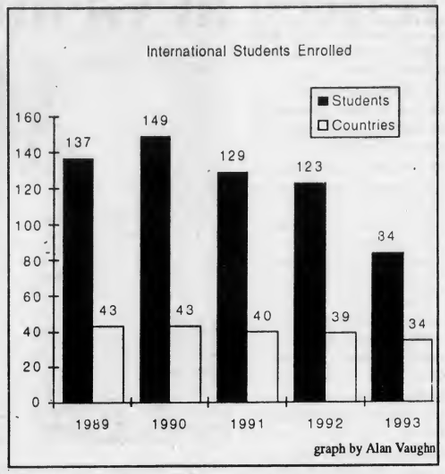

This fall there are 84 international students at Clarion University compared to last year's count of 123. Surprisingly however, the countries represented through the organization have not fallen so rapidly. The students here still represent 34 countries.

International students face a number of financial issues. They have watched their tuition increase almost 50 percent in the past few years. Unable to receive any type of federal aid, these students can only receive aid through an International Assistantship program. This option does not cover any of the costs of a students first year, and is awarded only after a student has proved herself or himself to be an enterprising student.

There are 17 students at Clarion that are partially or fully funded through this program. Another way that an international student may get help in paying for college is to be sponsored by an ethnic group, church or individual in the United States or abroad. Many international students also get jobs to help them pay for college.

Because it is impractical, (if not impossible), for representatives of the International Office to travel, they subscribe to a data bank service that supplies them with the names and addresses of students abroad who request information. After finding interested students, the University does extensive mailing once a month. Financial constraints have prevented these mailings for some of the past years, but re-allocation of funds has provided the office with the ability to resume these mailings.

So, what will the future of the International Association hold? According to Dr. Lepke, Interim director of the International Office, "That's very hard to predict." Other schools may have more aggressive recruiting and assistantship programs that attract students, while Clarion is unable to change its system.

Ohio State drops plan for gay housing courtsey of

College Press Service

A plan to open Ohio State University's family-housing complex to gay and lesbian couples was quietly shelved after President E. Gordon Gee ran into heavy resistance from Board of Trustees members and state legislators.

The 396-unit Buckeye Village is currently open only to married students and students who are single parents. Gee had proposed that gay and lesbian couples who signed an affidavit of "domestic partnership" also be allowed to live in the complex.

Just before the start of the fall semester, Gee announced that he was withdrawing the proposal, indicating that the Board of Trustees didn't like the idea.

Ohio lawmakers also raised objections to the plan, with one legislator introducing a bill that would have blocked the plan.

Time capsule buried

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Almost six months after it was originally scheduled to be buried, a time capsule containing Clarion University memorabilia was lowered into the ground in front of the Gemmell Student Complex Monday afternoon.

The capsule was to be buried last April, during the Earth Day celebration. It is scheduled to be opened in the year 2068.

University President Diane Reinhard and Student Senate President Gara L. Smith presided over the ceremony attended by a handful of students and faculty.

Student Senator Amy Schaub was the chair of the committee in charge of the time capsule project which cost approximately $600.00

Among the items in the capsule; sports programs from various university teams, pictures of campus organizations and clubs, a student I.D., a map of the U.S. and the world, a CUP calender and handbook, tapes from the campus radio station, a Clarion telephone directory, clothing from the bookstore, a copy of the Middle States accreditation, copies of the campus newspaper, local newspapers, a listing of student senators, a copy of the Clarion Student's Association Constitution, pictures of the buildings on campus and painted bedsheets that protested Governor Casey's proposed tuition hike for the 1993-94 school year.

Maggie Collarini / Clarion Call
Student Trustee Brian Hoover, CUP President Diane Reinhard and Student Senate President Gara L. Smith preside at the time capsule ceremony on Monday.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Oct. 11, through Oct. 17, 1993.

A fire alarm was activated on the ground floor of Wilkinson Hall on Oct. 11, at approximately 1:21 a.m.

A fire alarm pull station was activated on the fifth floor of Wilkinson Hall on Oct. 11, at approximately 2:40 a.m.

On Oct. 11, at approximately 3:20 p.m., a male student entered another male student's room and struck the other person several times with his fist. One student was cited for simple assault and harassment. Case pending.

On Oct. 14, an unknown person smashed the glass on a door of the Marwick-Boyd theatre. The door is facing Greenville Ave. and it appeared the glass was smashed with a piece of 4X4 wood.

A disc drive was reported missing from Marwick-Boyd theatre. The drive is an AMIGA three and a half inch, model 1011. The drive was last seen on Sept. 29, and is valued at $80.00.

A set of car keys was removed from a vehicle parked near Campbell Hall on Oct. 16, at approximately 1:30 p.m.

A fire alarm pull station was activated on the ground floor of Nair Hall at approximately 8:20 p.m. on Oct. 17.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Health record can flag registration

by Christy Williams
News Writer

Some Clarion University students may soon find that if they don't have the proper health forms signed and the proper immunizations administered, they also will not have any spring classes.

Any students having a deficiency concerning the university requirement for a complete health assessment, currently has a "hold" flag placed in the computer or on their record.

Immunizations such as tetanus, measles, and mumps tuberculosis tests, physical examinations, and family medical histories must be completed by students by October 25. Otherwise, they will be unable to participate in early registration for the Spring Semester.

Once a student completes their deficiency, the"hold" flag will be removed from their records, and they will be able to go through telephone registration (TelReg) without any problems related to this university requirement.

Many of these flagged students have already been notified through letters sent to them by the Keeling Health Center.

If any student wishes to complete their record through the university health services they can contact the Keeling Health Center at 226-2121.

Students are also permitted to have their personal physician assist them in the completion of their requirements. They will be permitted to foreward the records to the health center.

Students have mixed feelings on this flag being placed on their records.

Lisa Daniels, freshman Biology major said, "I can understand why the health center wants to make sure that all the students are healthy, but I think a flag on our records is going a little far."

Carla Veronesi, freshman speech pathology major, said, "I can see why the health center is doing what they're doing. You have to threaten students. Otherwise, they'll never get anything done. No one cares if they have a measles shot, but if you tell students they can't register for classes, then, they'll listen."

Partial verdicts in Denny beating trial

Two blacks were acquitted Monday of most of the felony charges stemming from the beating of white truck-driver Reginald Denny.

The defendents were convicted of lesser counts.

The judge sent the multiracial jury back to deliberate the most serious count-attempted murder against defendant Damian "Football" Williams in the videotaped attack of Denny-and two lesser charges on which the panel deadlocked. Hours later, the panel announced it had decided that Williams was innocent of a robbery charge.

Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk ordered the jury to resume deliberations on the final two counts today, saying he hoped that a "good night's rest" would be helpful.

Accepting the defense argument that Williams and co-defendant Henry Watson were caught up in mob violence after the state Rodney King beating trial, the jurors acquitted them of most charges that required specific intent.

Clinton wins debate on war powers

Apparently lacking the votes to pass a resolution tightly restricting President Clinton's military options in Haiti, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole negotiated with the White House Tuesday about watering the bill down.

Lawmakers from both parties criticized Clinton's handling of the situation in Somalia, Haiti and Bosnia. But even as they offered their own suggestions, a bipartisan consensus appeared to be growing against any attempt to make fundamental foreign policy decisions on the Senate floor in response to public opinion.

The proposal would have barred Clinton from sending troops into Haiti unless national security was at risk.

Shuttle lifts off

Space shuttle Columbia blasted off Monday with a crew of seven astronauts and 48 "astro-rats," some of which will be decapitated in experiments to help develop treatments for human aging.

The mission has drawn criticism from animal rights groups for its planned dissection of the rats.

Minors and guns

Expanding his anti-crime program, President Clinton Monday embraced a proposal that would make it illegal for minors to possess handguns.

Clinton rejected an alternative proposal by Sen. John Chafee, (R-R.I.) that would have banned handgun possession by private citizens.

Fort Knox shooting

A disgruntled Fort Knox civilian employee killed three civilian co-workers, including his boss, before turning the gun on himself Monday.

The gunman, Arthur Hill, 53, of Radcliff, Ky., was hospitalized in critical condition at the base hospital.

He is not expected to live.

Marine reinstated

A gay marine placed on standby reserve in September will be immediately reinstated to active duty in accordance with a federal judge's ruling handed down Monday.

Racial slurs at CSU

Anti-Semitic fliers stuffed in textbooks about Nazi war criminals and the defacing of a black theology textbook temporarily put students and professors on edge at Cleveland State University.

Both incidents took place in late September at the university bookstore. Someone slipped fliers containing "anti-Holocaust propaganda" into copies of "Prosecuting Nazi War Criminals," which was written by a faculty member, Alan Rosenbaum, and used in a philosophy course, reported the Campus Marketplace, a newsletter of the National Association of College stores.

Keith McCann, manager of the bookstore, said employees immediately pulled the fliers from the remaining books, sent copies to Rosenbaum and destroyed the rest. Similar incidents have occurred several times in the past ten years, he said.

"We generally try to keep it quiet because if we draw attention to it, it's just going to happen more often. We correct the situation and just move on," McCann told the newsletter.

In the other incident, the only copy of "For All My People," a textbook for a black theology class, had three chapters cut out and a dark liquid stained the top edges of the pages. The liquid looked like blood, but was not officially identified as such.

Professorship named for Clinton

President Clinton has approved the creation of an endowed professorship in politics at Arkansas College that is named in his honor.

A contribution of $500,000 from an anonymous donor made the Willaim Jefferson Clinton Professorship in international politics possible, said campus officials.

The search has begun for a scholar in international relations and comparative government to fill the position.

The position is part of the preparation for the college's new major in politics. It also expands the Nichols Program, which focuses on increasing opportunities in foreign travel, language study and the study of international cultures and politics.

Clinton is familiar with Arkansas College. As governor of Arkansas, Clinton spoke at the school, and his wife, Hillary, received an honorary doctorate from the college in 1988.

"In agreeing to have his name associated with it, I think he is showing his confidence and faith in what we are accomplishing here," said John V. Griffith, president of Arkansas College.

Clinton has not commented on the action.

Some opponents of the award said that Clinton has yet to prove his abilities as a good handler of international politics, and feel the decision may be premature.

Arkansas College is located in Batesville, Ark.

Argentina to get help from U.S. community colleges

Officials at Miami-Dade Community College and Broward Community College will be helping Argentina to establish its first community college system, which will make college study available for the first time in Argentina.

Argentina does not have an equivalent to the community college level and large gaps exist in its educational system, officials said.

Argentina's first community college will open in Mar del Plata in January 1994, with other provinces to follow.

Location matters

Forget the perks, and don't worry about the vacations and focus on just where the company is located.

Location, it seems, is now a hot item in corporations' pitches to graduating college seniors, says the College Placement Council. Where the company is located is just as important as other job-related factors, the council said, such as health plans and salaries.

Consider what Houston Lighting and Power Co. is doing to attract accounting, finance and business graduates: "Houston is a city on the move, making the transition from its explosive boomtown years to a period of stable economic growth."

Dell Computer Corp. says it is in "the center of beautiful Texas hill country," in their attempts to lure graduates to their company based in Texas.

Red Ribbon program boosts drug-free life

Community and campus effort can make a difference in the war against drugs and alcohol

Alcohol Awareness Week may be almost over, but that doesn't mean that alcoholism is gone. In fact, alcohol and other drug abuse in the U.S. has reached epidemic proportions. Those 15-24 years of age are dying at a faster rate from alcohol-related incidents than anyone.

Pennsylvania AWARE and Clarion County Drug and Alcohol Administration are proud to sponsor the Red Ribbon Campaign, which offers citizens of Pennsylvania the opportunity to demonstrate their committment to a drug and alcohol-free lifestyle.

From October 23-31, the community will demonstrate their committment to drug and alcohol-free lifestyles by displaying red ribbons during this week-long campaign.

The Red Ribbon Campaign is a nationwide campaign that was initiated in 1985 by IDEA and the Virginia Federation of Parents after the brutal torture and murder of Federal Agent Enrique Camarena by drug traffickers. These two parent groups introduced the red ribbon as the symbol of intolerance to illegal alcohol and other drug use and started the Red Ribbon Campaign as a grassroots movement towards eliminating drugs from our society.

The purpose of this campaign is to focus on action-oriented activities in a prevention effort to keep kids (of all ages) off drugs before they get on them. By wearing your red ribbon, you show your committment to the war against drugs and present yourself as a positive role model for our youth. Success is dependent on the joint participation of all segments of our communities.

According to Paul Kelly, Director of Prevention Programs for the Bobby E. Wright CCMHC, Chicago, Illinois, "Red Ribbon activities must be generalized to every day and every week of every month of the year. If our drug (and alcohol) awareness and consciousness is reserved for only one week out of each year then we've lost the relay before the sound of the whistle. . .The drug problem will not go away until there is a total community effort."

Real-life story of crime and punishment: it can happen to anyone

by Deb Huffman
Contributing Writer

I became conscious of the long needle penetrating my soft, torn skin. "Mom, I'm sorry" were the words I muttered as I started coming to reality. The policeman came into the emergency room for my arrest. He asked me if I had been drinking, and I said "yes" and then I signed a declaration paper admitting to my crime.

I couldn't very well deny that I was not drinking because my blood alcohol level was .15. In Pennsylvania, if the level is over .10, a person is considered legally drunk.

I was 18 years-old and convicted as an adult because I was drunk when I got behind the wheel of a car. There are several charges for driving under the influence (DUI). This story can happen to anyone, even a teenager like (I was); everyone pays the consequences.

It was the day after Easter, and a friend and I went to a party. I was a mile from my home when I pulled out into an intersection and hit a ditch; that impact blew out my tire. My friend, who had her seat belt on, said I bounced to her side of the car. Then I hit the front windshield because I wasn't wearing my seat belt. We ended up crossing the road and hitting a telephone pole.

A friend of mine came upon the scene of the accident and found me shoved underneath the dashboard. My friends checked my pulse to make sure I was alive. Finally the ambulance and my father came to the scene, and from there my friend and I were transferred to the hospital.

As I laid in the hospital for over a week I was arrested, and I couldn't imagine what lay ahead for a high school student. I suffered lacerations on my face and knees, and I had a concussion. My friend suffered no major injuries.

All that was running through my mind was, "I could have killed my best friend and could have been convicted of manslaughter." What I went through was hard to deal with emotionally, physically and psychologically.

A couple of weeks later a preliminary hearing was set with the district magistrate. Here the policemen who arrested me testified that I had been drunk. I ended up pleading guilty to the charges filed against me. The next step was going in front of the judge at the county courthouse.

A month before my hearing I had to meet a case worker who gave me a Court Reporting Network (CRN) test, which all DUI offenders must take to determine whether an offender needs counseling for a drinking problem.

The test was a one-on-one question/answer type test. I found out right before the court hearing that I failed my CRN test. This meant I had to go through another series of tests to determine if I needed help with a drinking problem.

On June 13, 1989, I entered into the courtroom with eight other people convicted of crimes like mine.

Then it was my turn to stand in front of the judge with my appointed lawyer. The judge asked me, as he looked at me CRN report, "Do you think you're an alcoholic?"

I replied "no" as I started crying. My lawyer looked me, put a strong, reassuring hand on my shoulder and said, "It's going to be all right."

I left the courtroom sentenced to ARD classes for a month at my own expense of $200, a $700 fine for DUI and finally I was put on probation for a year.

Besides all this I had to report to the State Police barracks to get a mug shot and be fingerprinted. Now I had a criminal record. I was a criminal for doing something everyone in my home town did, but I was the one who got caught.

Partial verdicts in Denny beating trial

Two blacks were acquitted Monday of most of the felony charges stemming from the beating of white truck-driver Reginald Denny.

The defendents were convicted of lesser counts.

The judge sent the multiracial jury back to deliberate the most serious count-attempted murder against defendant Damian "Football" Williams in the videotaped attack of Denny-and two lesser charges on which the panel deadlocked. Hours later, the panel announced it had decided that Williams was innocent of a robbery charge.

Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk ordered the jury to resume deliberations on the final two counts today, saying he hoped that a "good night's rest" would be helpful.

Accepting the defense argument that Williams and co-defendant Henry Watson were caught up in mob violence after the state Rodney King beating trial, the jurors acquitted them of most charges that required specific intent.

Clinton wins debate on war powers

Apparently lacking the votes to pass a resolution tightly restricting President Clinton's military options in Haiti, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole negotiated with the White House Tuesday about watering the bill down.

Lawmakers from both parties criticized Clinton's handling of the situation in Somalia, Haiti and Bosnia. But even as they offered their own suggestions, a bipartisan consensus appeared to be growing against any attempt to make fundamental foreign policy decisions on the Senate floor in response to public opinion.

The proposal would have barred Clinton from sending troops into Haiti unless national security was at risk.

Shuttle lifts off

Space shuttle Columbia blasted off Monday with a crew of seven astronauts and 48 "astro-rats," some of which will be decapitated in experiments to help develop treatments for human aging.

The mission has drawn criticism from animal rights groups for its planned dissection of the rats.

Minors and guns

Expanding his anti-crime program, President Clinton Monday embraced a proposal that would make it illegal for minors to possess handguns.

Clinton rejected an alternative proposal by Sen. John Chafee, (R-R.I.) that would have banned handgun possession by private citizens.

Fort Knox shooting

A disgruntled Fort Knox civilian employee killed three civilian co-workers, including his boss, before turning the gun on himself Monday.

The gunman, Arthur Hill, 53, of Radcliff, Ky., was hospitalized in critical condition at the base hospital.

He is not expected to live.

Marine reinstated

A gay marine placed on standby reserve in September will be immediately reinstated to active duty in accordance with a federal judge's ruling handed down Monday.

Justin Elize, an 11 year veteran of the Marines, openly declared his homosexuality in January, according to his attorney.

Start own business with help from seminar

by Anita Carbin
Lifestyles Writer

Have you ever dreamed of owning your own business? If you have an entrepreneurial spirit, then the "Young Entrepreneur Seminar" is your ticket to starting your business successfully.

The seminar will be held on Friday, October 22 in Gemmell from 8:50 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Registration begins at 8:15 a.m. There is a $10 fee per student or teacher, which includes refreshments, lunch and materials. Because of limited spacing, pre-registration is required. The afternoon break-out session for high school students and college business students is free.

Keynote speaker Ben Stapelfeld has been recognized by numerous local, regional and national organizations for his contributions to business. In 1988, former President Ronald Reagan presented him with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Award. He won the 1989 Small Business Administration Exporter of the Year Award and was recognized in 1987 by St. Francis College with the Small Business Person of the Year Award.

Stapelfeld is chairperson and co-founder of New Pig Corporation. This company introduced the PIG absorbent sock, which revolutionized industrial maintenance worldwide. Pig's merchandise line has grown from this one commodity in 1987 to more than 600 products in 1993, with sales in 24 foreign countries, topping $31 million.

Dr. Joseph Grunewald, dean of the College of Business at Clarion University, will present "Marketing: Tips and Strategies for Success" at 10:15 a.m. Grunewald has served for the American Marketing Association, has taught a variety of marketing-related courses and served as marketing department chair.

Grunewald has held workshops for regional and national organizations and has published articles in numerous professional journals. He will also present "How to Select the Right Location."

William Fulmer, professor of administrative science at CUP, will present "Knowing How to Develop a Sound Business Plan" at 11 a.m. He has taught courses on labor law, personnel and production, which use his textbook "Managing Production." Fulmer has worked for Talon Zipper as a production manager and R.T. French Co. as an industrial engineer as well as a consultant to many small businesses.

Breakout classes will be held between 12:45 and 1:30 p.m. Students may attend any one of the following presentations.

Dr. John Eichlin will present "Legal and Insurance Aspects of Starting a Small Business." Eichlin is a professor of finance at Clarion and teaches classes in business law. He offers his legal services through Laurel Legal Services. He is an experienced speaker, speaking for business conferences about early management and legal issues for small businesses.

Joy Parsons will present "Accounting and Bookkeeping for Small Businesses." Parsons graduated from Clarion with a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration and is now a CPA with McMahon, O'Polka, Guelcher and Associates Inc. She serves both governmental and non-governmental clients with audits, tax preparation and client accounting guidance.

Kenneth Franklin, president of Franchise Developments Inc., will present "Franchising: An Alternative to Starting Your Business." Franklin uses his 25 years of experience to advise many franchisors. He has helped to develop many domestic and overseas companies. Franklin is a former professor of marketing for the Carnegie Mellon Graduate Business School and was senior vice-president of franchising and operations for Arby's International.

A panel discussion, "Getting Started," from 2:30 to 3:15 p.m., will conclude the seminar. Local young entrepreneurs will provide advice in an interactive format.

The workshop is sponsored by CUP's Small Business Development Center (SBDC) and the College of Continuing Education; the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA); and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

For more information call the SBDC at 226-2060.

-Reinero Torres, Jr., 53, successfully defended himself in court in Sebring, Florida twice this year first on a worthless-check charge and then for assault. However, in August on a third charge for theft, for which he also acted as his own lawyer, he lost. A jury convicted him of having stolen from the courthouse library the books he had used in preparing his defenses to the first two charges.

-In July in Bristol, a Connecticut woman, Kathleen Driscoll, filed a formal complaint accusing ex-lover Richard LaMothe of being the person who made a series of harassing phone calls to her. In addition to telephone company records that tended to support her charge, Driscoll said that one call in March consisted only of silence punctuated by a very large belch, which Driscoll positively identified as LaMothe's.

-To help a 43-year-old man in Ridley Township, Pennsylvania who needed a liver transplant, friends established a fundraising "beef and beer" dinner in March.

-Leona Vanatta, 66, was charged with robbing the Trans World Bank, of which she is a regular customer, in San Fernando, California in September. She arrived at the bank expecting that her monthly Social Security funds ($242) had been direct-deposited; when informed that the funds were not yet available, she pulled out a gun and said, "Now can I have my money?" She took the $242, hopped on her bicycle, and started to pedal home but was quickly apprehended.

-A federal appeals court upheld the conviction of Rodney Hamrick in June on mailbombing charges. Hamrick ultimately confessed to the crime, but the first piece of evidence that led investigators to him was that he had written his return address on the bomb package.

-In September, Gwen Laymon said in New Orleans that her recently arrested son, Eric, accused in a drive-by shooting of a 12-year-old girl, could not possibly have participated in the incident. She told reporters that, at the time of the shooting, Eric was at a nearby housing project participating in another shooting.

-In a case report in a 1993 issue of the Journal of Forensic Sciences, an Aberdeen, Washington coroner described the death of a depressed, 28-year-old man who killed himself by tying a thick nylon rope from his neck to a tree stump, getting into his truck in a rural area, fastening his seat belt and accelerating until he decapitated himself.

-Light bulb eater Jim Rose was forced to postpone his 33-city tour in September for one month, because he was still recuperating from his last show in The Netherlands. To satisfy TV and radio stations there, Rose had ingested five bulbs in one day (vs. his usual limit of no more than one every 24 hours) and had to be treated for stomach cramps and bleeding bowels.

-Timothy Ray Anderson filed a lawsuit against a McDonald's restaurant in Milwaukee in May for injuries he suffered when a security guard shot him in the stomach as he attempted a robbery. Wrote Anderson's lawyer in the complaint, "The mere fact that you're holding up McDonald's with a gun doesn't mean you give up your right to be protected from somebody who wants to shoot you.

Cedar Point rated number one amusement park in the world

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

Excited screams fill the air as the Magnum XL-2000 races down the first 195 foot drop. The Magnum swiftly glides across its track at a record speed of 72 miles per hour, and standing 205 feet tall it is considered to be the most immense roller coaster in the world.

When the Magnum XL-2000 debuted in 1989, it was the top-ranked steel roller coaster in the world, but for the first time it has moved into the number one slot. As far as readers of Inside Track (the only newspaper in the world solely dedicated to amusement and theme parks) are concerned, the Magnum is the number one ride on Earth.

"Magnum has such an international reputation," states Mark Wyatt, founder and editor of Inside Track. "Five years after its inception, our readers still consider it the elite roller coaster by which all others are measured. And its number one rating is proof that it just keeps getting better."

Maybe you are asking yourself where this fabulous ride is located. It is at the park that was consecutively rated number one by Inside Track readers for the past two years—Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio. With its beautiful landscaping, Cedar Point is one of the most spectacular parks to visit.

Cedar Point's cleanliness and friendly atmosphere cause people to return year after year. The park has a wide variety of roller coasters, young and old, ranging from the Iron Dragon (a suspended roller coaster) to the age-old wooden Blue Streak.

Whatever death-defying thrill you seek, the Demon Drop will surely satisfy it with its broken elevator-type drop. The new Mean Streak, one of the world's largest and fastest wooden roller coasters, will also make your hair stand on end.

Those who enjoy peaceful and relaxing rides and enjoy taking in an array of interesting shows would certainly not be lost at Cedar Point. For those who love the water, Soak City is just waiting for you to take the plunge, along with the newest water coaster Snake River Falls which has a get-wet guarantee.

The Inside Track Readers Poll, started in 1987, serves as the worldwide list of "favorites" in the amusement park industry. Their readers include amusement park and roller coaster enthusiasts, industry experts and manufacturers, park and attraction executives and the general public.

"Having the number one roller coaster at the best amusement park in the world is a real coup," says Wyatt. "Cedar Point is the first and only place that has occupied both the 'Best Coaster' and the 'Best Park' categories at the same time. It was a clean sweep."

Cedar Point's president and CEO, Richard L. Kinzel, was extremely pleased with the park's ratings done by Inside Track. He comments, "These compliments are among the highest we could receive."

Because of Cedar Point's combination of a variety of roller coasters, shows, restaurants and water rides, it can no longer be considered just an amusement park; it can now be considered a summer resort. Whether your idea of fun is tempting fate and riding the fastest, steepest, most breathtaking roller coaster on earth, or if it is simply walking through Jungle Larry's Safari, Cedar Point is the number one place to vacation.

Activism and realism in the "Real World"

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Thanks to quick rescheduling, Clarion University students will still be able to experience the "Real World." Student activist Kevin Powell is giving a lecture Tuesday October 26 entitled "Student Activism and Campus Racism." The lecture which was originally scheduled for September, had to be cancelled due to illness.

Although Powell has lectured many campuses on the topics of black male-female relationships, the state of black youth and other issues affecting young black, he is best known as being one of the "seven strangers picked to live in a loft and have their lives taped" on the highly regarded MTV series "The Real World." He was also the host and writer for the MTV documentary drama, "Straight From the Hood." Powell also works as a journalist and music critic whose articles have appeared in "Vibe," "Essence," and "The City Sun."

The New Jersey native who currently resides in New York City also spends time writing and reciting poetry. Powell has toured many educational institutions such as Princeton, Rutgers, and New York Universities as well as San Francisco College and the University of Massachusetts. Powell was the winner of the African Poetry Theater's Annual Poetry Contest in 1990 as well as being a semi-finalist in the Nuyorican Poets Cafe Grand Slam Contest. He was also a second place winner in the Passaic Community College Annual National Poetry Contest. His first volume of poetry "don't feel no way" was published last year. The lecture held in Hart Chapel at 7:30 is free and open to the public.

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

And for the rest of his life, Ernie told his friends that he had talked with God.

God makes the snake

Every hour on the hour, a huge truck, made entirely of pressed ham, lumbers its way across Dog Heaven — and all the car chasers can decide for themselves whether or not to participate.

Brown ties Urbansky

Eagles pick Lock Haven apart, 37-26

by Jon Q. Sitler
Sports writer

Like Sugar Ray Leonard, the Clarion University Golden Eagles just keep coming back.

Last year, Clarion started off at 0-4 before winning its last six games and capturing the PSAC-West championship in a comeback win versus Indiana.

1993 has proven to be no less of a comeback year.

On Saturday, the Golden Eagles rallied for 17 third quarter points to defeat host Lock Haven 37-26. It marked the third come-from-behind win for Clarion on the season (now 3-3 overall, after an 0-2 start).

The Eagles rallied for 13 fourth quarter points behind Chris Zak to down Westminster, 23-20, on September 25. Last week, a 27-point third quarter explosion blew Bloomsburg away in an eventual 40-18 win. And now the comebacks have reached the PSAC-West again.

"We've gotten off to a slow start the last two games, but we haven't panicked," said Clarion head coach Gene Sobolewski. "The defense settled down in the second and third quarters."

The Lock Haven offense had the luxury of opposing a Golden Eagle defense that was without starting linebackers Frank Andrews and Clint Terza.

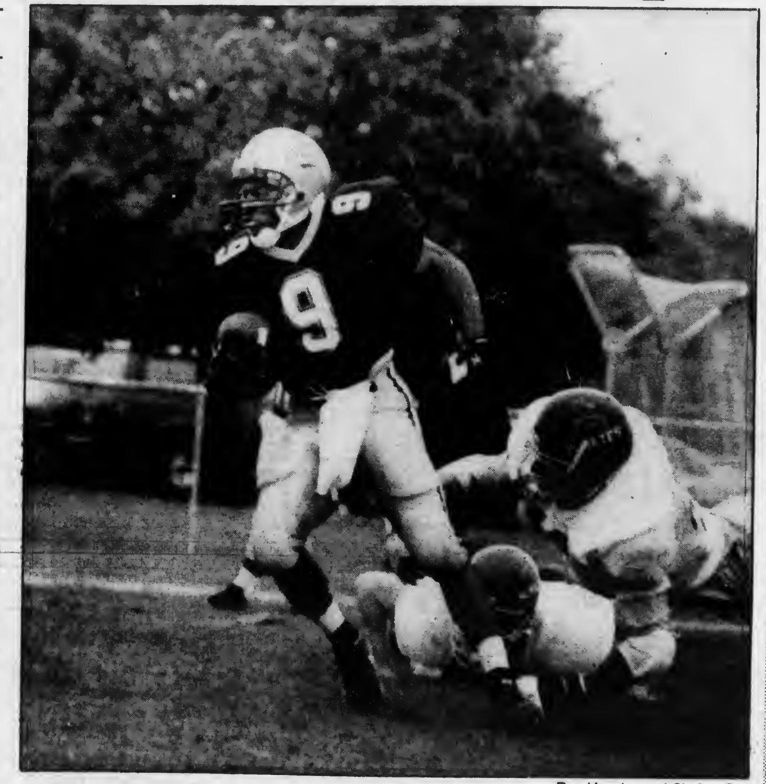

Despite yielding 405 yards of total offense to LHU, the Clarion defense made big plays all day. Sophomore Michael Kerestes and freshman Thomas Williams stepped up in place of the injured starters, teaming for 17 tackles. Williams added two tackles for losses, and Kerestes added one of three Clarion interceptions.

Sophomores Pat Span and Ric Giles added the other interceptions for the Eagles while Alim Kamara, also a sophomore, had 12 tackles.

"I thought the defense played well as a unit with those younger players," Sobolewski said.

Senior Damon Mazoff had nine tackles to surpass 400 for his career.

Clarion's offense and special teams both played flawlessly on Saturday, with no turnovers.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Get off: Marlon Worthy (9) and the Golden Eagle offense has a total of77 points in its last two games. The Eagles will be without Worthy against Shipp due to a knee injury.

The running game amassed 221 yards on 50 carries. Finishing the game with 75 less total yards, the Eagles offense still controlled the ball nearly eight minutes longer than its Lock Haven counterpart.

Senior tailback Damien Henry had his fifth 100-yard rushing game on the year, carrying the ball 29 times for 147 yards. Fullback Art Gregory complemented Henry well with 47 yards on 11 carries.

Henry, who also played a part in the passing attack catching two aerials for 41 yards, ranks fifth in both rushing and all-purpose yardage in the PSAC thus far in 1993. Henry has totaled 668 yards rushing and 818 all-purpose yards.

Everybody's all-purpose man in 1992, Marlon Worthy caught three passes on Saturday for 57 yards, including two touchdowns (one for 49 yards).

All-America tight end Tim Brown hauled in three throws and is now tied for the career reception record at Clarion with former great Ron Urbansky (1986-89) at 149 catches.

Junior southpaw Craig Ray was the source of every reception, going 10 of 17 for 139 yards and two touchdowns.

A Ray one-yard quarterback sneak with 1:09 to go in the second quarter gave Clarion the lead for good at 14-13. Henry carried nine times on the drive.

Twenty seconds later, after a Kerestes interception, Ray led Clarion downfield in 23 seconds with a 33-yard completion to Henry and a three-yard touchdown pass to Worthy for a 20-13 halftime lead.

A 17-point third quarter explosion set up the eventual 11-point victory.

Kevin Harper caught the other two Ray completions as well as keying the special teams with a 79-yard kickoff return for a touchdown. Trailing 3-0 to start the game, Clarion answered quickly when Harper, who got a key block from Ryan Alleman, took a hand-off from Worthy and raced up the right sideline.

Lock Haven dropped to 1-6 overall, 0-3 in the conference.

The Golden Eagles take their 1-1 conference record into Saturday's game versus Shippensburg (4-3, 0-3).

Cross Country team preparing for PSACs

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

It was 60 degrees and overcast; a great day for running in Akron, Ohio as the Clarion Golden Eagle cross country teams began their race at Mt. Union College on Saturday.

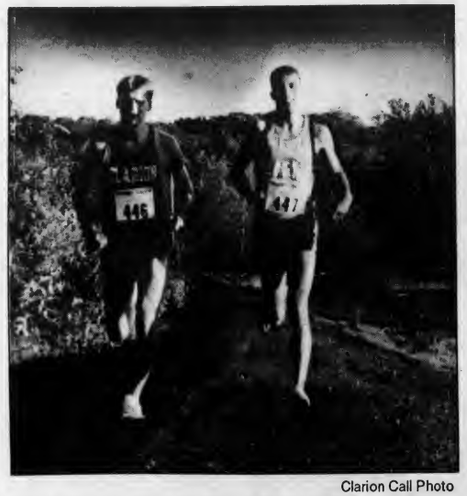

The women, who had some personal bests, finished ninth out of 12 teams with Megan Stecklair leading the way. Stecklair finished 24th in a field of 90 runners with a time of 21.16. Lynn Baluh placed 33rd with a time just 29 seconds behind Stecklair. Lisa Benlock placed 41st at 22.20. Jen Dansberger finished 44th coming in at 22.22. Jen Gleason was 66th at 23.47, and Brandee Payne was 73rd at 24.46.

The men placed 8th out of 10 squads with Russ Breindel and Chad Briggs leading the pack. Breindel and Briggs raced the entire meet side by side before Breindel stormed past Briggs in the final few yards to beat him by four seconds. "He came out of nowhere with his big guns rolling and rolled on by," quipped Briggs. Breindel finished 30th and Briggs placed 32nd.

Rounding out the men, Scott Reffner placed 43rd with a time of 29.49; Brian Stohr placed 63rd at 31.02; Brian Patterson finished 69th at 31.52; and Rick Rectenwald placed 80th at 33.44.

Both teams used this meet, the final regular season race of the year, to gear up for the PSAC Championships in Bloomsburg on October 30. "When we go to states, we're just gonna give it everything we've got," Briggs said. "There's no reason to save our energy."

Both the men and women have been working extremely hard in preparation for PSACs. "Hopefully we're saving our best for last," said Briggs, who won the ALF 10K race two weeks ago. The women share the same sentiment. "For a bunch of the girls, this will be their last cross country race of their career, and they don't want to end it saying 'We could have.'"

Clarion finishes 10th

Golden Eagles struggle at conference championships

by Ray Henderson
Sportswriter

After an unusually rough season in 1993, the Clarion University women's team finished off on a melancholy note, returning home empty-handed from last week's PSAC championship tournament in Lancaster.

The Eagles got off on the wrong foot right from the start, as Shara Wolkomir droppped a close one to Edinboro's Karen Idzik 2-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-3). Wolkomir, a former PSAC champion, went into the tournament with a 6-3 record this season and a career singles record of 39-12.

Christin Mihon/Clarion Call

Taking their lumps: An inexperienced Clarion tennis team encountered its roughest year in recent memory in 1993.

In other singles play, senior Roxann Milton (season 4-3, career 23-12) defeated West Chester's Amy D'Alessandro 6-4, 7-5 before losing to Cal's Monica Dinatale, and freshman Kirstin McKinley stomped East Stroudsburg's Cari Hogan 6-0, 6-0 before falling to Slippery Rock's Darla Opferman.

In #1 doubles, Wolkimir and sophomore Melodi Dess came from behind to beat IUP 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, but then lost to Edinboro in straight sets, 6-0, 6-1. In #2 doubles, Milton and freshman Sarah Unkefer breezed by Cheyney 6-0, 6-0 before falling to Kutztown 6-4, 6-4.

The Eagles finished 10th in overall team scoring with 5 wins.

Head coach Terry Acker was optimistic going into the tournament. "We expected to start a little slow with our youth, then mature as the season went along. That's exactly what happened this year, and we feel we're playing our best tennis of the season right now." Clarion entered the tournament with an overall record of 3-6 with a 2-2 mark against PSAC schools, having defeated IUP and Edinboro and losing to Edinboro and California.

From 1985 through 1990, Clarion's tennis program had won an unprecedented five straight PSAC championships and posted a regular season dual meet record of 70-2 during that time.

Henry having career year

Eagles host Shippensburg on Sat.

by Tondelaya Carey
Sportswriter

The Clarion Golden Eagles have snatched two straight wins and will try for three on Saturday against the Shippensburg Red Raiders. Kickoff time is set for 1 PM at Clarion's Memorial Stadium.

The Eagles enter the game with a 3-3 overall record and a 1-1 slate in the PSAC-West. Shippensburg comes in with a 4-3 overall mark and 0-3 in the conference. The Raiders won their first four games before dropping contests to Slippery Rock (36-7), Indiana (45-10) and last week to Edinboro (34-17).

"Shippensburg is a very disciplined and physical football team," stated Clarion head coach Gene Sobolewski. "They want to possess the ball on offense and establish their running game. Defensively, they are big up front and hard to run on. It will be a tough game."

The Eagles are averaging 23.3 points per game and 337.2 yards of offense per game. Clarion ranks third in the PSAC-West in rushing averaging 157.8 yards per game, and sixth in the conference in passing with an average of 179.3.

Leading the offense is junior quarterback Craig Ray. Ray has directed the offense to 77 points in the last two games, completing 40 of 75 passes for 469 yards and five touchdowns this season.

All-American tight end Tim Brown, who has latched onto 33 aerials for 344 yards, needs one reception to break Clarion's all-time reception mark. He is currently tied with Ron Urbansky (1986-89) with 149 career catches.

Kevin Harper has pulled in 12 passes for 174 yards and returned a kickoff 79 yards for a touchdown last week. The receiving corps suffered another severe blow last week when the Eagles, already without the services of Jess Quinn, lost wide receiver and return specialist Marlon Worthy with a knee injury. Worthy, who has grabbed 11 passes for 197 yards and four touchdowns this year, will miss this week's game against Shippensburg, according to team members.

Damien Henry who is having his finest season in his senior year, leads the running game along with fullback, Art Gregory. Henry has carried the ball 143 times for 668 yards and four touchdowns. He has also latched onto 12 passes for 150 yards. Henry ranks fourth in career rushing with 1,762 yards and is tied for third in career touchdowns with 22. Gregory has rushed 73 times for 269 yards.

The Eagles defense ranks fifth in the PSAC in total defense yielding 151.3 yards on the ground and 195 through the air.

Eric Acord leads the front line with 43 tackles. Damon Mazoff leads the linebacking corps with 77 stops, while free safety Sean Spencer leads the secondary with 43.

Shippensburg offense is averaging 314.3 yards per game, including 157.7 on the ground and 156.6 passing.

The offense will be led by either Brian Curnow or Tim Barto. Curnow has completed 67 of 131 passes for 902 yards with seven touchdowns, but was knocked from the Edinboro game on the Raiders' second possession. Barto lettered at Clarion in 1991 and then transferred to Shippensburg where he has completed 16 of 50 passes for 194 yards and two scores. Barto was eight for 24 for 123 yards last week.

David McLendon (525 yards) and Winston Horshaw (383 yards) lead the running attack while Horshaw leads the receivers with 28 receptions for 379 yards.

The Red Raider defense is giving up 354.1 yards per game including 152 on the ground and 202.1 through the air. The "D" is led by by linebacker Chris Willingham, who has compiled 126 tackles, 10 for losses through 1993.

Clarion beat Shipp 23-20 last season. The Eagles lead the all-time season series 29-7-1 and have won eight of the last 10 meetings between them.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

How grand art thou: Damien Henry (1) has gained 668 yards through five games and is headed towards 1000 for 1993.

Sports Commentary:

Steelers are looking super

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

I'm not one to dwell, but the way the Pittsburgh Steelers are playing, I could make this story a thesis.

With Sunday's 37-14 annihilation of the New Orleans Saints, the Steelers finally earned the respect they deserve. Previously accused of beating up on weaker teams, Cowher's black and gold brigade showed everyone that this is team to reckon with in 1993.

The Saints were thoroughly stifled by the Steeler defense, and managed only one first down for the entire first half. Rod Woodson is simply the best cornerback in the world, leading the NFL in interceptions with seven in six games, which by the way, is more than most teams have.

The Steelers linebackers are their biggest asset, however. Everyone knows Greg Lloyd and Kevin Greene are unstoppable from the outside, but inside, Levon Kirkland and Jerry Olsavsky are surprising everyone with their hard-nosed attitudes. These gridders are incredible against the run, and their pass defense isn't too shabby either.

The frightening thing about this team is that it has an offense that effortlessly put up 30 points against a tremendous Saints' defense. You've gotta think that if Pittsburgh keeps playing like this, a Super Bowl championship is a definite possibility. What? What did I just say? Is that possible?

Yes... Yes it is. Even though the NFC has won the last nine Super Beatings, the Steelers are playing like they belong in the NFC. Cowher has his team rolling like a well-oiled dynamo. But, can he keep his squadron focused on their goal, avoiding distractions and that dreaded eight-letter word... injuries? Time will only tell, but one thing is for certain, Pittsburgh is no longer a mystery.

Next up for the Steelers are those hungry Dawgs from Cleveland. At stake, sole possession of the AFC Central lead. It should be a war. It always is.

For Brown, records take back seat

by Jon Q. Sitler
Sportswriter

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Putting down the hammer: Senior Tim Brown, standing under a photograph of former great Ron Urbansky.

Over the past four years, only two things could ever be counted on in Clarion. One would be rain, the other would be Tim Brown.

Brown, a senior co-captain on the Golden Eagles football team, snagged a Craig Ray spiral on Saturday for his 33rd catch of the season, tying him for the career reception record at Clarion with former standout Ron Urbansky at 149. It's probable that he'll break that record this Saturday versus Shippensburg.

Last year, the tight end caught a single-season record 60 passes for 614 yards and four touchdowns.

But for Brown, records come second to just about everything else.

"Records are something I'll worry about later on," said Brown. "They'll be something I'll be really happy to have after the season, but right now I have a job to do."

It isn't difficult to take Brown for granted, but he may have easily been doing his job somewhere else.

"There was no real recruitment from Clarion," said Brown, a Business Management major out of Thomas Jefferson High.

On the first day of recruiting, five years ago, Brown walked into the football office with some high school game film. "When I came back from lunch, they said Okay." recalled Brown.

However, he expected to play at defensive end. "(At 190 pounds) I wanted to hit but not get hit," said Brown.

Right from the start at Clarion, things started to happen. He began to experience college practices (a huge difference) in which he had up to eight tight end coaches working with him. He also lifted a lot of weights and got bigger, stronger and faster.

Now, at 6-4 and 243 pounds, he is a clutch receiver with soft hands, a great blocker and virtually impossible to tackle.

All of Brown's hard work paid off in 1992 when the Eagles won the PSAC-West crown. "Everything flowed during the last six games last year, no one could touch us," said Brown about his first-ever football championship. "I wasn't really used to winning, so it was that much sweeter."

When later asked what his favorite game ever was, he laughed. "What do you think?" Brown scored the touchdown that put the title clinching game versus IUP (35-26) out of reach on November 14th of last year. The play-action pass from the arm of Tim Myers scalped the Indians in 1992.

"I didn't have to think about it, he was always there," Myers recalled of Brown.

1993 has given Brown added challenges. For one, defenses are paying much more attention to him. "One more catch, Bavaro," was the needling he got from the Lock Haven linebackers last week. Double and triple coverages can't be easy either.

The biggest challenge has come from the talk of his pro potential. He's nervous that he might not fulfill his dream of making it to the next level. As far as pro scouts being interested? "It's all hearsay to me," said Brown. "I don't really want to know that much anyway. I don't want to jinx myself."

Brown has been supported throughout college by his family and friends. "My brothers (Bob and Dan) call every Thursday night," said Brown. His brother Dan stands at 6-5 and weighs 260 pounds but has never put on the pads. (Tim isn't even the biggest in his family!).

Brown's closest friends include Ryan Alleman, Shawn Kimple, Brad Kline and Jason Reinhart (all present or former teammates).

Alleman is not only a teammate but he plays the same position as Brown and both are seniors. "Ryan is one of my best friends and has kept me working hard," said Brown. "The competition of playing the same position has improved us both. Ryan could probably start at tight end at most other PSAC schools."

Brown said that there have been many good times over his five years at Clarion; Thursday nights with his friend Jimmy and Eddie Dogs are two.

Brown ended by saying that he wouldn't mind leaving his mark at Clarion with one more reception. "I don't know much about Ron (Urbansky) but I do know that the offense was revolved around him, so I look up to him," said Brown.

The forecast for Saturday? Tim Brown and, quite possibly, rain.

Sports Commentary:

How Game 7 could have sounded

by Rodney Sherman
Disgruntled Baseball Fan

Last Wednesday the Phillies beat the Braves in game six of the NLCS to win the national league pennant, and I thank the baseball gods that ended without a game seven. I fear it may have sounded like this:

"And we're under way at Veterans Stadium with the first pitch in there for a strike, Tim."

"And that ties a NLCS record for first pitches delivered by a right-handed pitcher with size ten-and-a-half shoes starting on a Thursday in the eastern time zone, Sean. The old leader was Sneezy Drivelpump of the '69 Mets."

"Here's the pitch Tim, swung on and bounced foul down the third base line, and the Phillies' ball-girl will field that one."

"That's right Sean, and that will move the Phillies' ball-girl into third place on the all-time list of balls fielded by a left field foul-line ball-girl. That list, of course, is led by Wendy Jones of the '71 Pirates.

"Thanks, Tim. One and one on the Braves' lead-off hitter -"

"And that's the 34th time in this series that the count has been one and one on a hitter leading off an inning."

"Here's the pitch, high, ball two."

"That puts the pitch count at three, Sean."

"Thanks, Tim, and the pitch is swung on and bounced to short. He throws to first and there's one away."

"That's the 103rd call made by a first base umpire in this NLCS, breaking the old record held by Grumpy Rumblelump since 1970."

"Alright Tim, here's the pitch to the number two hitter. In there, strike one. The batter looks down to the third base coach for the signal-"

"And that's the 639th set of signals that Dopey Dunkindonut has flashed to the batter in this series, moving him into second place on the all-time post-season list behind Happy Doc Blunderbuss of the '79 Baltimore team."

"Alright, Tim, thanks for that. There's a base hit up the middle-

" That's only the second time in NLCS history that a ball bounced 11 times before being fielded, Sean. The only other time was a right field single hit by Sleepy Grindstone of the '75 Red Sox."

"Thanks, Tim, here's the number three hitter, first pitch to him is low, ball one."

"Pitch count at seven Sean."

"There's ball two. The catcher appeals to the third base umpire. He thinks the batter went around on the pitch, and-"

"That's only the 14th appeal in this series, the lowest total since 1982."

"There's a long fly ball to center, and it's caught at the edge of the warning track by-"

"That's the 17th first inning put out made by a center fielder in this series, breaking the old record held by the 1883 Akron Chickenhawks who were led by Bashful Flywacker."

"An old teammate of yours, wasn't he Tim?"

"That's the 13th joke you've made about my age Sean, passing last year's mark of twelve..."

Like I said, there was no game seven and this game play-by-play never happened. But there is an expanded round of playoffs next year. I can't wait.

The Godfather had a rough 1-4 record last week and took this week off to regroup. Watch for a rejuvenated Godfather in next week's issue.

Student Senate considers adoption of constitution

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

Student Senate introduced a proposal to adopt a new constitution to govern the Clarion Students' Association's governing body at their meeting Monday night.

The CSA is comprised of all students of Clarion University who have paid their student activity fee.

Under the tenets of the proposal, to be voted upon at the Nov. 8 meeting are the creation of a board of directors to oversee the CSA, a function that so far has been carried out by the Student Senate.

"In the history of Student Senate, we never completely fulfilled our duties as Board of Directors of CSA."
Gara Smith--President of Student Senate

"In the history of Student Senate, we never completely fulfilled our duties as Board of Directors of CSA," said Gara Smith, president of Student Senate. "The duties of the board of directors have never been defined enough. It is a tremendous responsibility to undertake."

It's always been that way, said Smith. Now, under the proposed constitution the board of directors will be comprised of the President of Student Senate, Vice President of Student Senate, three members of the CSA, Vice President of Finance and Administration, Vice President of Student Affairs, a Clarion alumnus and a faculty member.

The CSA members would be appointed by Student Senate, the Alumnus member would be selected by the Alumni board and the faculty member would be selected by Faculty Senate. Under the proposal, the faculty member and the CSA members must be approved by Clarion University's President, but the Alumni member would not.

The board would not have any control over the allocation of the student activity fee, which Student Senate appropriates to CSA recognized organizations.

Also under the proposed constitution, the terms of Student Senators will be changed from the current one year term beginning the first Wednesday of the calendar year. The terms would be changed to a one year term beginning at the end of April and running through the end of April the following year.

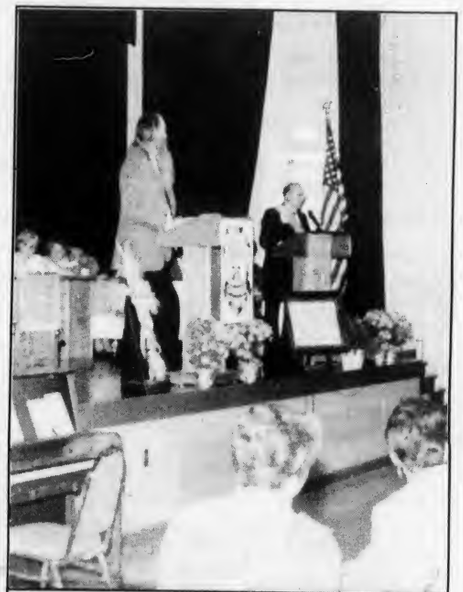

If the constitution is passed at the Nov. 8 meeting, the next Student Senate will be elected for only one semester, said Smith. All applicants for application are being told this, said Smith. If the constitution fails to pass, the next Student Senate will hold office for a full year, under the terms of the old constitution.

Under the terms required to ratify the constitution, it must pass by a 2/3 majority two weeks after being proposed, including all amendments and changes. After passing the senate, it must be ratified by a referendum of all CSA members who choose to vote.

If this measure passes the senate Nov. 8, a referendum will be held Nov. 9 and 10 for final ratification.

Also under the proposal, requirements for student senators, members of the senate executive committee, duties of the treasurer and other internal functions have been changed or otherwise modified.

"This is the biggest thing that has ever happened to CSA next to its beginning," said Smith. "It is a new and exciting foundation."

Board approves instructional appropriations request for 1994-95

by Michelle Sporer
Editor

The State System of Higher Education's (SSHE) Board of Governors recently hammered out a 1994-95 instructional appropriations request which, if approved by the Commonwealth would not require a tuition increase for in-state students.

The proposed $410,591,396 request was approved by a unanimous vote last Thursday at the quarterly Board of Governors meeting at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania.

The request will be submitted to Governor Robert Casey's office in early November for review.

The governor will then announce his instructional appropriations proposal around February of 1994. The final decision will be made by the State Senate Appropriations Committee in early summer.

The request is a 10.35 percent increase, $38,507,673, over the 1993-94 combined state appropriations of $372,060,000 in order to meet inflationary and mandatory cost increases.

Several special purpose appropriation requests for affirmative action efforts, restructuring library and instructional systems as well as additional items were also approved by the Board.

"We hope the governor and his office will look closely at the needs of the system," said SSHE press secretary, Scott Shewell.

The Board also approved a 1994-95 $550,973,000 capital appropriations request.

Woman vs. Man

Debbie Huffman

I'll never forget the look on my friend's face -- glassy eyed, with a hint of sadness -- as she told me with a trembling voice her terrifying story of a man who took advantage of her. She continued to tell me how she struggled in desperation to recover from the physical and psychological damage of that one night when "no" wasn't good enough to stop the rape. He was a man who persisted until he got what he wanted. He thought he was in control and had power.

When a woman makes a decision to go back to his place after a date, the man has assumed that this is a "yes" to an invitation to sex. Some men might think, ""ell this woman knows what she is doing and can make rational decisions by saying "yes I would like to come in to your apartment." But the "yes" does not mean "yes" to sex. This decision a woman makes is not because she is weak, it is because men read other meanings into a word. Like the word "equality." Some read it as just another word that will never exist in our society.

Blacks, immigrants and now gays have hoped for equality; women also hope for equality. It is power and prejudice working together that separates man from man, creating man vs. sex and race.

In the beginning, God created Adam, and then Eve was made from Adam. And, of course, women were belittled because Eve ate the apple, therefore casting Adam and Eve out of the garden. Whose fault was it? Of course the woman's.

Women have always been struggling to gain acceptance. Women wanted the freedom to vote, to have a say in society and to gain equality like men.

The woman's equal rights movement started by Eleanor Roosevelt in the 1930's brought a new era for women. In 1982, ratification failed to pass the Equal Rights Amendment. It failed because people were not ready to pass a law that would allow women rights of equality.

But this is not the only time women have struggled for equality. A debated issue today is whether women should fight in the front lines during war. Men argue that it is better to see

THE WAY I SEE IT

Rodney Sherman
News Editor

The latest fad sweeping the nation seems to be bending your common sense with a few bottles of booze and then laying in the middle of the road and waiting for a Firestone radial to re-adjust your brain.

And guess what? It's Walt Disney's fault.

What a great defense. You are not responsible for your actions if you watch a movie or television show. You are victim of TV/movies.

Actually, the "It's not my fault, I'm a victim," defense is sweeping the ranks of psychobabblists and their legions of followers. "I couldn't help myself, I'm a victim of (pick your favorite reason or excuse)."

"Yes your honor, I gunned down 65 people at the mall. But It's not my fault, I saw Boris Yeltsin's boys machine gun the Russian White House on the news one night and I just couldn't get over it."

Get that man a TV movie contract and an agent for the book rights and sign him up for the next Geraldo show.

"Yes officer, I hit that old fella in the middle of the street back there, and sure, I can hardly stand up, and sure I reek of vodka, and sure I've peed my pants, and sure I'm a grown adult that decided to get plastered and drive, but hey, my father was an alcoholic. It's my father's fault that I ran that man down."

Get that man to the Betty Ford Clinic, then dig up his old man and lay the guilt at his feet.

Speaking of guilty parents, are there any Hollywood stars who were not physically/verbally/sexually/mentally or imaginatively abused by their parents, which forced them to make horrible movies and brainless television shows because they are repressing the memories?

Now before you pick up your poisoned pens and write letters to the editor saying you are a victim of mental anguish because of my opinions, let me say that there are true victims out there in the world and it is not my intention to make light of their problems.

But the constant cry of "I'm a victim" takes away from the credibility of true victims. It's time for Americans to get their collective minds out of their bleeding hearts and take responsibility for their own decisions and actions.

Even if that means admitting that you just may be a moron. (Apologies to morons who haven't laid down on the centerline of a highway yet.)

The History of the Citibank

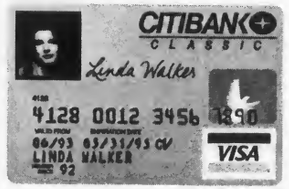

Classic Visa card and the Age of Credit

Card Security. In the 67th year of the 20th Century A.D., Citbank introduced a credit card aptly titled the Citibank Classic Visa® card. Established on the premise that a credit card should offer-24 hours a day-warm, personal service, the Citibank Classic Visa card marked the end of the Ice Age. And it ushered in a new era. ¶With the introduction of the first Photocard, the credit card bearing one's own photo and signature on the front, it soon became evident that Man was entering the Post Paleolithic Period. First, Man was no longer looking like a Neanderthal, as one often does more primitive cards such as the Student ID. He or she could now choose his or her own photo. Second, by deterring other anthropoids from using the card, man was helping to prevent fraud. Surely this was a sign of advanced intelligence. ¶The subsequent rise of services was nothing less than an American Revolution. So as you might expect, Citibank would be there for you, even if your card was stolen, or perhaps lost. The Lost Wallet℠ Service could have a new card in your hands usually within 24 hours. (You can almost hear Paul Revere crying, "The card is coming! The card is coming!") ¶When the Great Student Depression came along, Citibank introduced New Deals-special student discounts and savings. Hence, today's student can enjoy a $20 Airfare Discount for domestic flights[1] (ushering in the Jet Age); savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%[2]; and, no annual fee. ¶Finally, comes the day you enter the Classical Age (i.e. when you charge your purchases on the Citibank Classic card). You receive Citbank Price Protection to assure you of the best prices. Just see the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[3]. You receive Buyers Security, to cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days form the date of purchase. And Citibank Lifetime Warranty℠, to extend the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years[4]. Together they give you complete coverage; and with everything else. . . the Age of Credit Card Security. ¶It's credit history in the making. With the help of Citibank's services and savings, you earn some of the credentials needed later on to purchase a car or even a house. ¶So call to apply. Students don't need a job or a cosigner. Call, also, if you'd like your photo added to your regular Citibank Visa card. The number is 1-800 CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19. ¶If after reading this chapter describing the prosperous conditions set forth by a Citibank Classic Visa card, one feels that he or she has left forever the Dark Ages and has entered upon a new age, the Age of Enlightenment, then your time, as they say, has come. Destiny is calling. And so should you.

This tablet, dated 1358 B.C., was the first known attempt to put one's photo on a credit card--but not without drawbacks. Photography had not yet been invented. It weighed over 50 pounds. And, it did not fit easily into a wallet.

Had Napoleon carried a Citibank Classic Visa card with its Lost Wallet Service, he would not have been compelled to hold on so obsessively to the wallet inside his jacket

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

[1]Offer expires 6/30/94. Minimum ticket purchase price is $100. Rebates are for Citibank student cardmembers on tickets issued by ISE Flights only. a bloody man lying on the smouldering grounds of war than a woman. Women argue that they want to serve their country too. Why not? We are all created equal.

But when the preamble was made, all were not created equal. It stated, "All men are created equal. . .," meaning just that. Men were the ones who were equal not women. It seems like men will always hold the upper hand, and the women will always be the feeble and the weaker sex.

It is true that men are built different than women. Men's frames are bigger than women's; men's muscle's are bigger, so men think that women should be barefoot and pregnant. (Well some men do.) Some men think that because they are bigger and stronger, they should be in control. Because of all these reasons, males feel that they have authority over women, and it becomes a power struggle between men and women when it comes to jobs, and when it comes to sex.

Some men might think that women owe them something out of a date; maybe some men feel the only way to gain control over a woman is forced sex; or maybe this is something that he thinks a woman deserves. Whatever the reason, it is wrong not only in the eyes of the woman but in the eyes of the law.

Women have come too far in history to take a man's abuse. We have women doing, historically, men's jobs. We have women taking roles in government positions. We have a first lady, Hillary Rodham Clinton, who has been criticized for running the White House and helping her husband make decisions. Can't a woman make decisions like a man and know what she is doing? I believe she is stepping out of the stereotype of the first lady by wanting to get involved in national issues.

A woman needs to be empowered to overcome obstacles of sexism against men. It's a power struggle for a woman in a man's world of politics, power and sex.

My friend has become a stronger person but because of something that shouldn't have happened. I do not believe in sexism and racism. We need to reassure each other that we are equal and that no one holds us captive.

Survey rates best campuses -- for fun

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) -- In this survey of the "Best Colleges Ever," Yale, Johns Hopkins and Chicago didn't make the top 10 - - they barely made the top 300.

That's because, as the young editors of an irreverent publication for college-age men put it, those schools may excel in academics, but they "rot" when it comes to having fun.

The pollsters emphasize that the best party schools aren't necessarily scholastic zeroes; their survey simply focuses on "the fun factor."

The unscientific poll appears in Inside Edge, a national magazine produced by students from Boston-area colleges, including Harvard, which was No. 122 on the list.

Using reports from 50 student correspondents nationwide, Inside Edge graded America's 300 largest coed universities on nine criteria ranging from the bar and club scene to sports. The magazine's November issue lists the top 20 and worst 10.

"The things we rate are things that make the schools fun to go to," said publisher Aaron Shapiro, 21, a Harvard senior.

While researchers considered "ease of classes" and "ease of graduation," Shapiro insisted they don't view the top schools as filled with brain-dead party animals.

The top 10, in order, were: Florida State, the University of California at Santa Barbara, Vermont, Rice, Georgetown, Syracuse, Alabama, Penn State, Connecticut and Tulane.

The University of Chicago was No. 300. Others in the bottom 10 in descending order, were: Yale, Tufts, Oral Roberts, California Institute of Technology, Brigham Young University, the U.S. Naval Academy, Johns Hopkins, the Rochester Institute of Technology, and the U.S. Military Academy.

Hide Park material should be submitted to the Call office no later than Friday, the week prior to publication.

Issues of the day (a serious discussion)

©The Miami Herald

Health care reform, NAFTA, "Reinventing Government" — these are issues that deeply concern you, as an informed American, in the sense that if you read one more word about them, you are going to puke. Nevertheless we intend to address them today, because we are a professsional news commentator, and we feel that it is our responsibility, from time to time, to refer to ourselves in the plural.

HEALTH CARE REFORM:

This is an important issue, because many Americans are not receiving adequate health care. We certainly are not. We haven't been to our doctor's office in several years. Don't get us wrong: We love our doctor, whose name is Curt. He sits right behind us at Miami Heat basketball games, and we're deeply impressed by the wisdom of his observations, such as: "He's a BUM!" And: "This guy is a BUM!"

But the last time we went to Curt's office, he suddenly, without warning, put on a rubber glove and did something to us that we cannot discuss in the newspaper except to say that it gave us a deeper understanding of what it must feel like to be a Thanksgiving turkey. And THEN he made us take a "stress test" wherein we had to run on a treadmill with wires attached to our skin and radioactive chemicals flowing through our body. So now we're afraid to go to Curt's office, because we don't know WHAT he might do to us next. We're afraid he might have purchased a soldering iron. Thus our only option, if we developed a serious medical problem, would be to do what millions of other Americans must do: Go to a Miami Heat basketball game. Our plan would be to get Curt's attention by dropping subtle hints. ("Hi, Curt! By the way, we have a large lesion!") Then, during timeouts, Curt could diagnose our condition by asking medical questions. ("Could you try not to bleed on my nachos?" And: "How come you're referring to yourself in the plural?")

But this is not a long - term solution. For one thing, it doesn't work during baseball season. What we need is health-care reform that would require doctors to return to the old type of physical examination wherein they don't actually touch you, but instead just ask a bunch of questions, to which the correct answer is always "no." ("Have you ever had the plague? Navel discharges? Eyeball worms? Any trampoline-transmitted diseases?") Also, just to make sure, doctors should be required to wear a full-body restraining device like the one Dr. Hannibal Lecter wore in "Silence of the Lambs" to keep him from turning the other characters into Corpse McNuggets. This would make all Americans feel more comfortable about medical care, and free them to think about the important issue of NAFTA.

"NAFTA" is an antonym standing for "North Atlantic Treaty Organization." This agreement, hammered out by the United States, Canada, Mexico and Belgium, would enable the nations to trade freely with one another. For example, the United States could trade North Dakota, Kansas and a state to be named later to Canada in exchange for Toronto and Montreal; many economists believe this would create jobs in the moving industry and guarantee that Canada would never again win the World Series.

Leading the support for NAFTA is President Clinton, who favors it because it is a humongously boring government thing that only he understands. Leading the opposition is "H." Ross Perot, the feisty, popular, plain-spoken maverick billionaire space alien, who believes that the real purpose of NAFTA is — and he can prove this with charts — to disrupt his daughter's wedding.

Which side will prevail? That is a question that remains to be answered, unless it already WAS answered, and we missed it. We frankly haven't been paying much attention to NAFTA, because we're so excited about REINVENTING GOVERNMENT.

This is a brainstorm from Vice Presidential Al "Mojo" Gore, who, while carrying out his vice-presidential duties as stated in the Constitution ("The vice president shall wear a nice suit") noticed that the federal government, in performing its many functions, demonstrates the collective brainpower of a sponge. (Gore failed to notice this during his 15 years in the House and Senate; he was busy passing laws giving the government new functions to perform.)

As an example of bureaucratic inefficiency, Gore noted that the government agencies go through an absurdly complex procedure simply to purchase ashtrays.

"It's ridiculous," he pointed out. "The agencies should just steal them from motels, like everybody else."

So the administration has a bold reform program under which the government would take such radical steps as — get ready — REQUIRING FEDERAL AGENCIES TO ANSWER THEIR TELEPHONES. Of course this would require intensive employee re-training programs ("OK, you hear that sound? We call that 'ringing' "). Also, there would be some health risk to the thousands of elderly people who dialed the Social Security Administration as far back as 1975 and have been hanging on the line ever since; many of theses people would suffer heart attacks if they were to suddently hear an actual human voice. Fortunately for them, we will soon have health care reform, so they can all be treated, regardless of income level, at the basketball game of their choice.

To the tune of $111,000

University Book Center running in the red

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Joey Payne / Clarion Call

The University Book Center, located in the Gemmell Student Complex, is facing a financial crunch this semester. The new steps being taken to increase sales and cut costs should have the center back in the black next semester.

The University Book Center told the Student Senate Monday night that the operation would finish the fiscal year in the red. Book Center Manager Ed Biertempfel estimated the "book loss" at $111,000.

Among the reasons cited for the loss was expected traffic at the new book store never met the anticipated 17 percent increase. The actual increase in sales was only four percent. Biertempfel listed parking problems as one of the more frequent customer complaints. A decrease in university enrollment was also a contributing factor.

Less than expected sales were not the only factor in the financial crunch that hit the store. Additional payroll for the enlarged facility cost the operation an extra $77,654.

Breaking down the figure into three factors, there was an extra pay period during the last fiscal year that raised payroll costs by approximately $11,000. The payroll for the new express store added $35,518 and the addition of one full time, two part-time and three student employees in the bookstore raised the total by $13,936.

The total increase in payroll was $60,454 with the added costs in payroll tax being $17,000.

Another major factor was $105,000 paid in rent to auxiliary services. There was no rent charge when the bookstore was located in the basement of Carlson Library.

"We felt that in moving here (Gemmell) we would see more traffic and that it would offset payroll increases and the cost of the rent, and we just didn't see that," said Biertempfel.

Biertempfel said during a follow-up interview that the big snow storm last year affected store traffic for almost six weeks. "Students seemed to be hibernating," said Biertempfel.

There are plans in the works to turn the negative cash flow around according to Biertempfel.

The measures include eliminating everyday discounts to customers on greeting cards and discount trade books.

The store will evaluate current price margins which means the price of textbooks may be headed up.

Longer store hours have already been adopted to attract more customers. This move required adjusting employee hours to avoid extra payroll costs. Saturday hours have also been added.

The cleaning of the store will now be performed by student employees to cut costs.

Future plans include more promotions to increase store traffic, possible use of flex dollars, the production of a monthly newsletter to be distributed in the dorms to promote sales, services and image. Additionally, the conference travel budget has been cut by 60 percent.

"We anticipated the best and got the worst," said Biertempfel.

High employment rates

Report says CUP graduates are sucessful

courtesy of
University Relations

Clarion University has released a statement saying that 95 percent of the 1,287 students who graduated from the university during 1991-92, can be "placed" in categories which include employment or further education. These figures were determined through a survey conducted by the universities Career Services office.

Almost 65 percent of the graduates responded to the survey. Of the 836 answering the questionaire, 797, or 95 percent, are employed or enrolled in further education.

The number of graduates who were working in their chosen career field, either full or part time, was 63 percent.

Connie Laughlin, director of career Services, whose office conducted the survey and compiled the information for its annual report, said she was pleased with the figures which reflect post-graduation activities of Clarion graduates.

"Given the current state of the job market, Clarion University graduates are doing well," said Laughlin. "Clarion is holding its own as far as full-time and part-time employment are concerned."

Additional figures were compiled for the college of graduate studies for 1991-92. During that time 183 master's degrees were conferred and 97 graduates responded to the survey. Of those, 78 percent could be placed in the same categories as the undergraduates.

The Venango campus response showed that 85 percent of its graduates were employed full-time and 11 percent were employed part-time.

Of those employed, 86 percent were working in their chosen career field.

This is the seventh year Career Services generated this report. The annual report is designed to be more than just a survey.

"We hope our annual report is used with students," said Laughlin, "All departments receive a copy and we urge them to share it with their students. It shows the entry level and advanced positions achieved by our graduates, the employers hiring them, and the average salaries they are receiving."

Also receiving the report are the Clarion University Council of Trustees, the administration, the admissions office and other agencies who request data on post-graduation activities of Clarion University graduates.

The report enables Clarion University's Career Services to share the information with the faculty and administrators who advise both prospective and current students.

It also presents information on the career paths of Clarion University alumni for students who seek to relate academic qualifications to career prospects in their attempts to plan their futures.

Group focuses on off-campus crime

courtesy of College Press Service

Dana Getzinger didn't worry much about being a crime victim until Jan. 17, 1988. That was the date the University of Georgia sophomore was stabbed in the chest as she lay in bed in an off-campus apartment.

In the early morning hours, a man in a ski mask and gloves slipped in through a sliding glass door and crept past sleeping roommates in the apartment. Getzinger woke up with a pillow over her face. She fought off her attacker and felt a sudden pain in her chest. She thought the man had punched her, but the blow turned out to be a knife that pierced her aorta and liver.

If it hadn't been for the quick work of friends who heard the commotion and two fortunate circumstances — an ambulance happened to be in the neighborhood and a cardiovascular surgeon was on duty at the hospital — Getzinger likely would have died. Instead she was on the operating table in 16 minutes.

Later, Getzinger would discover that her experience was not uncommon, but there was no way students and parents could make an informed decision about the safety of a particular college, on or off campus, because no one was keeping statistics on crimes involving students. After undergoing two heart operations, Getzinger decided that she had to do something to let college students and their parents know more about how to protect themselves.

She founded Safe Campuses Now, which was instrumental in persuading Georgia and Tennessee legislators to pass laws that require police agencies to note in crime Campuses Now the ability to track crimes against students both off and on campus. So far, those two states are the only ones in the nation where such statistics are being recorded.

In most states, "the schools have absolutely no responsibility, except a moral one, to make students aware of crime that occurs off campus, and that's where most students live," Getzinger said. "There's a false sense of security among students. They think they're living in a safe haven."

Currently colleges are required to report crimes that occur on campuses to the federal government and provide annual statistics to students and parents. Getzinger was one of the crime victims who went to Washington to testify before Congress on behalf of the legislation. But no national agency keeps track of crimes against students off campus, and the result is that colleges can report that no rapes occurred on campus in 1992, when in fact, four to five rapes might have occurred just a few blocks from campus.

"That's a joke. It's just not fair," Getzinger said.

Although she currently lives in Chicago and no longer directly works with the organization, Getzinger hopes to see more Safe Campuses Now Chapters and off-campus crime reporting established in other states as well.

"Most college students live off campus, they party off campus, and most crime occurs off campus," said Nancy Zechella, administrative director of Safe Campuses Now in Athens, Ga. "We would love to have this law passed in all of the states."

At the University of Georgia, for instance, only 5,000 students live on campus while 23,00 live near the university. Safe Campuses Now also works to promote safety awareness and issues weekly bulletins that list the locations and crimes committed against University of Georgia students in the Athens area. If students notice that a high number of break-ins have occurred on the street where they lic, they might be spurred to take more precautions, Zechella said.

For instance, on July 16 in Athens, an assailant broke into a college student's apartment, forced two women to drive to an ATM and withdraw money, and then sexually assaulted them. Three cases of assault and battery, three residential burglaries, seven thefts and one armed robbery, among other crimes, were also reported that week.

After Safe Campuses Now started gathering the statistics, the extent of off-campus crime became apparent. "The most surprising thing is the number of things that are happening to students," Nechella said. In one week in this past summer, 32 crimes were reported on and off campus. During another week in April, 53 crimes were reported.

"In reality, communities are facing more problems with violent crime, and colleges have to deal with more crime," said Bill Whitman, executive director of the Campus Safety and Security Institute near Philadelphia, an independent group that conducts research and seminars on campus crime.

University and college administrators, meanwhile, don't want crime statistics to reflect badly on the institutions. Some watchdog groups have questioned whether schools are fudging on the number and kinds of crime reported to the federal government because it is not in the colleges' best interests to let statistics scare off potential students and their parents.

Safe Campuses Now chapters are currently operating at the University of Georgia and University of Tennessee at Knoxville campuses.

A chapter opened at the University of Florida in Gainesville, but it since has closed.

Nine college students have been murdered in the Gainesville area in the past three years, all off campus, while another student disappeared four years ago without a trace.

Seven of the students attended the University of Florida, while two others attended Santa Fe Community College. Tiffany Sessions, a University of Florida finance major who disappeared in February 1989, has never been found.

In the latest killing, 26-year-old Gina Langevin, a University of Florida graduate student in architecture, was stabbed to death Sept. 18 in her apartment. Her roommate was stabbed and badly injured.

Richard Meissner, 27, of Orange Park, Fla., was charged with first-degree murder in the case.

The latest murder may not have shocked Gainesville students but it has renewed efforts to protect themselves. "Intellectually, I have nothing to worry about, but I don't want to be alone in my house for a while," Justin Crestani, a UF psychology junior and neighbor of Langevin's, told The Independent Florida Alligator. "I'm sure murders take place in every city, every day, but because it was right next door, it brought it home."

New financial aid forms announced for student's 1994-95 applications

by Robert Malsom
News Writer

The federal government has developed a new form for those students who have already applied for financial aid. The new form is called the Renewal Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), this is a new application for the Student Aid Report (SAR), according to Kenneth Grugel, director of financial aid.

The Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) has taken a big step toward streamlining the application process by designating the FAFSA as the 1994-95 state grant application, with the follow-up form process used to collect additional data only when necessary.

For those students who are incomplete or have never applied for any grants or loans, they will have to fill out a regular free application for Student Aid after the semester break. These forms will be available in January at the financial aid office.

The students who have already applied for aid will receive a white, FAFSA form around Thanksgiving. Students who do not receive the form can find it readily available at the Office of Financial Aid.

The FAFSA form is based on the students and parents 1993 income. If you are a dependent student, you should not fill out a FASFA form until you know your own income after filing your 1993 income tax return.

Paul Levy/Clarion Call
Director of Financial Aid Kenneth Grugel.

These figures should not be estimated. The FAFSA forms can be turned in after May 1, 1994.

The PHEAA Grant recipients will not need to fill out a PHEAA Grant Application form this year. For the first time in 26 years recipients of the state grant will not be forced to fill out the form. These students will now be able to fill out a FAFSA form for that grant also.

Another change in this year's loan and grant process involves the Stafford Subsidized and the Stafford Unsubsidized Loan Applications. The new form will be only one page. For independent students, the Supplemental Loan to Students (SLS) has been eliminated and blended with the Stafford Subsidized and the Stafford Unsubsidized one page application.

The change means that independent freshmen could be eligible for a $6,625 loan, with the amount increasing each year. This one page application may also mean a faster turn around time on the loan.

Ohio students will also be able to fill out a FAFSA or renewal form. The Ohio Instructional Grant Application (OIG) has been eliminated.

The new forms are expected to be easier to manage and process.

Students having questions can call the financial aid office at 226-2315.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Oct. 18, through Oct. 22, 1993.

A smoke detector head on the third floor of Nair Hall was struck with an unknown object, activating the fire alarm at approximately 2:34 a.m. on Oct. 20.

A purse was reported missing from a room on the first floor of Ballentine Hall. The occupants left the room several times without locking the door. The purse is described as a small brown leather purse with one compartment. The purse contained a brown wallet with I.D., SSN card, Subway cards and $20 worth of lipstick. This happened on the evening of Oct. 21.

On Oct. 22, at approximately 5:25 a.m., Public Safety observed a parked vehicle in parking lot "K" which had had the rear window kicked out. Shoe prints on the truck indicated that an unknown person intentionally kicked out the window.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Clarion County has its homeless

by Lynn Haraldson
Contributing Writer

Drive through Clarion County on any given day and you probably won't see individuals living on the street or laying drunk in the alley. To most people living in the Clarion area, the homeless are considered an urban problem. But Clarion County is not spared the problems of homelessness and inadequate housing.

Clarion's homeless are part of a rapidly growing population of what is being called the "hidden homeless." The term includes individuals and families who are living "doubled up" with relatives or friends in one house, resulting in up to, or exceeding six people per bedroom, or people who live in their cars, or people who are tucked away in crude shelters or garages in the countryside where no one knows they exist.

The latest figures released by the Clarion County Housing Authority indicate that approximately four percent of all households in the county lack full plumbing and kitchen facilities.

People become homeless due to cuts in federal low-income housing programs and rising housing costs as well as the inability to cover living expenses while working a minimum wage job. Lack of education and/or opportunities prevent most people from moving up to higher paying jobs.

According to Laurie Snyder-Yount, executive director for Stop Abuse For Everyone (S.A.F.E.), women and children are the groups most affected by homelessness in Clarion County.

According to 1989 statistics, families and children constitute approximately 35 percent of the homeless population in the United States. More recent figures put that number as high as 50 percent.

The most recent figures for Clarion County indicate that 15 percent of the 9,000 households in the county are female-headed.

S.A.F.E. manages the Bridge House program, which provides low-income housing for up to one year for individual women and women with children who do not have permanent or adequate housing.

To qualify for the Bridge House program, however, families or individuals must have spent seven to fourteen days in emergency shelter.

"The waiting list varies. Some women need to be referred outside the county where the waiting lists for low-income housing aren't as long," said Snyder-Yount. "We can provide emergency shelter through the hotel/motel program, or in the case of domestic violence, we can put them up in one of our S.A.F.E. homes.

"However, the time any individual can stay in either place is very limited and many times we have no choice but refer our clients out of the county."

TV-5 scales back on programming

by Christin Mihon
News Writer

Last Tuesday Clarion's TV-5 cut back its programming. A major lack of communication, poor planning in the production phases of the programs, and a general lack of direction accounted for the absence of programs that would have normally been seen. Live Sports and Talk Around Town were both cut from the TV-5 broadcast.

Since last Tuesday there have been several meetings to confront and try to correct the problems of each TV-5 program.

For the last few weeks most of the programs have been undergoing plans for new programming and design.

Most of the programs should be back on line very soon if they're not already. Hot Trax and City Beat are the only programs expected to be off the air longer than next week.

Live Sports, TV-5's sports coverage program is already back on line. It aired the Golden Eagles victory over the Shippensburg Red Raiders Monday night.

TV-5 News should be back on the air sometime next week after the resolution of some serious internal problems. The staff was unsure of certain directions that the news team should be taking and working on some planning and production problems.

Hot Trax, TV-5's rock and alternative video program, will not go back on air for a while longer because it is restructuring and redesigning its format after the producer from the beginning of the semester quit.

Joe Rainey, TV-5 Station Manager, said Monday that programming should be "back up to the quality and standards expected at TV-5".

Dr. Henry Fueg, faculty advisor for the student-run station, could not be be reached before press time for comment on the issue of the programming problems and restructuring at TV-5.

Canadian elections

Jean Chretien's left-of-center Liberals drew on widespread discontent with the economy to sweep to a surprisingly strong victory in national elections held Monday, putting an end to nine years of Conservative rule.

The victory means Chretien, a Quebec lawyer known for his charm and integrity, will be the next prime minister of Canada's 27 million people.

But the result that stunned Canadians the most was the second place finish of Bloc Quebecois, leading a party dedicated to the break-up of Canada.

New fighting in Somalia

Militiamen loyal to Mohamed Farrah Aidid, engaged for months in a guerrilla war with U.N. forces, clashed with an old rival Monday in a clash that broke a 19 month-old truce.

U.N. officials said at least ten Somalis were killed and 45 wounded in fierce battles around Aidid's stronghold. The final toll was expected to be higher.

U.N. and U.S. troops stayed out of the fighting, mindful of heavy casualties in an Oct. 3 battle that killed 18 Americans and some 300 Somalis.

Clinton rejects D.C. request for troops

President Clinton rejected a request from Washington D.C. for National Guard troops to combat crime in the nation's capital, but he promised Monday to take steps to help the battered city.

Calling this "a painful time" of homicides, robberies and drug abuse, Clinton said he, nevertheless, could not comply with Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly's request to give her authority to deploy Guard troops.

Officials don't like school lunches

School cafeterias give students too much salt and fat, setting them up for cancer, heart disease and other ailments, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

"We can't continue to deep fry our children's health," said Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, while releasing a report criticizing the school lunch program for failing to meet guidelines his department helped set.

The report showed that lunches offered by the nation's schools exceeded the government's own dietary guidelines for fat by 25 percent and for saturated fat by 50 percent. The report also showed that school lunches exceed recommendations for sodium intake by nearly 100 percent.

Espy joined children at Brent Elementary School near the U.S. Capitol for a lunch of chicken, tossed salad, green beans, buttered roll, milk and a fresh apple or pear.

"What we have to do is find a medium between what they like and what's nutritious," said James Adams, cafeteria manager at the school, "We're striving to reach that medium."

Vincent Price dies

Vincent Price, the stage trained actor whose gaunt face and creepy voice made him the perfect villain in such thrillers as "House of Wax," "The Pit and the Pendulum," and "The Raven," died Monday at the age of 82.

Price died of lung cancer, his personal assistant, Reg Williams, said from the actor's home.

Price began his movie career in 1938, and performed in all types of movies from comedy to drama. He also narrated Michael Jackson's video, "Thriller."

Halfway mark for space shuttle

First-time astronauts aboard the space shuttle Columbia said Monday they could feel their bodies adapting to space at the start of a two-week medical research mission.

Most astronauts get puffy faces as blood and other fluids begin to float in their bodies with nothing to hold them down.

NASA said the astronauts had adapted fully by the time the flight passed its mid-point Monday afternoon and will land next week.

Helmsley on the move

Fallen hotel queen Leona Helmsley was released from a federal prison Tuesday to begin serving her final months of a tax evasion sentence at a New York City halfway house according to her lawyer.

Helmsley, 73, began serving a four-year prison sentence on April 15, 1992.

Last June a federal judge reduced the sentence to 30 months, citing her husband's poor health.

Helmsley herself suffers from numerous health problems.

Record cash gift

Northwestern University recently received an unrestricted gift of $25 million from the Annenberg Foundation, making the institution the fourth university to receive a gift from the St. Davids, Pa. based foundation.

Gail Levin, senior program officer for the Annenburg Foundation, said the gifts to Northwestern in Illinois, the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard and the University of Southern California were made because of "a long standing relationship" that billionaire publishing executive Walter Annenberg has with the schools.

She said in the future the foundation will be working at the pre-collegiate level because Annenberg "feels that it is important and essential to reach these youngsters at that time to give them an opportunity for them to become responsible citizens."

In June, the foundation announced it was giving $365 million to Harvard, USC, Penn, and the Peddie school, a prep high school in Hightown, N.J. Harvard received $25 million; Penn and USC, $120 million each; and $100 million to the Peddie School.

First Amendment conference held

Concerned about political correctness? First Amendment issues on college campuses was scheduled to be the subject of an Oct. 21 interactive videoconference at the State University of New York at Albany.

Panel members talked about hate speech, diversity and controversial newspaper articles in a debate moderated by Charlayne Hunter-Gault, national correspondent for "the MacNeil/Lehrer News Hour." Almost 100 colleges and universities subscribed to the videoconference, sponsored by the Public Broadcasting Service's Adult Learning Satellite Service (ALSS) and SUNY.

"New conflict on campus: Can we live with the First Amendment?" focused on what should be done to protect speech while protecting the rights of minorities on increasingly diverse campuses, whether academic freedom should be absolute and whether institutions of higher learning should strive for higher legal and social standards than exist in society.

The videoconference was beamed via satellite to ALSS colleges and universities around the nation for a $250 fee and $350 for non-members.

Sakharov Archives donated

The archives of the late Andrei Sakharov, the man the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize committee called the "conscious of mankind," will be donated to Brandeis University, officials at the Waltham Mass. school said.

The archives, which will be housed both at Brandeis and in Moscow, were donated by Elena Bonner, his widow. The archives include his scientific research, human rights work and his personal papers.

"These archives are a living treasure from one of the greatest heroes of the twentieth century, a man whose life lifted the spirit of the world and whose vision and determination literally changed the course of history," said Brandeis President Samuel Thier.

Sakharov, who was the Soviet Union's top nuclear scientist, was the father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb.

He waged a 30-year battle against the Soviet system and its human rights violations.

The Sakharov Archives contain documents that were carried out of the former Soviet Union between 1978 and 1984.

The archives contain a variety of papers, including the original manuscript of his memoirs, his diaries, letters and personal and family documents.

CUP president and student trade places

Being president of Clarion University isn't as easy as Karen Shelhamer makes it look. Her day was full of meetings while Dr. Diane Reinhard attended Karen's classes.

On Monday, October 25, Karen Shelhamer will go down in history as the first freshman in college who has ever been promoted to president in her first semester.

Clarion University held its annual "President for a Day." Dr. Diane Reinhard spent her day full of the headaches that students endure full-time and Karen braved the office of our president for the day, which consisted of meetings, meetings and meetings.

For Dr. Reinhard, the day of headaches included Biology, Humanities and History. Although classes appear to be a burden for most students, Dr. Reinhard saw this as an opportunity to gain an understanding of the classroom atmosphere through a student's eyes.

"By getting back in the classroom, I got to see what the classes were like from the student's view," commented Dr. Reinhard.

Along with attending Karen's classes, Dr. Reinhard also added to her experience the thrill of spending the night in Karen's dorm room in Wilkinson Hall, while Karen and her roommate spent the night at the president's house.

"The dorm room and hall were quiet, but the rooms were close together and the phones ringing from nearby windows made it hard to sleep," said Reinhard.

Perhaps the one night of sleep isn't enough of an example of what residence hall life is all about, but it is definitely enough time for Dr. Reinhard to gain insight as to the living conditions there.

Dr. Reinhard feels that the whole experience is a good idea because the students need to see what the president does every day.

"I like the idea because the student gets a chance to see that the president is not only involved with budgets and meetings, but also the community and student life in Clarion," added Dr. Reinhard.

For Karen, or shall I say "Madame President," she was very excited about the project. The whole overwhelming fact is that she gets a chance to live the life of the President of Clarion University for one whole day.

"At first I was a little nervous, but my friends gave me support and made it a lot easier," said Shelhamer. "I called home and told my brother but he didn't believe me."

The nerves that Karen felt are normal for anyone who does something new, but after a day of meetings and programs, the whole experience turned out to be a lot of fun. Shelhamer admits that when she saw her agenda for the day she thought that it was only for a one-day event. She later admits that the busy schedule is a 24-hour, seven-day event.

"It's a good experience, I'm very busy but I got a good sense of what Dr. Reinhard does every day," said Shelhamer. "The Rotary meeting included all the businesses in Clarion and I had a chance to see the community involvement that Dr. Reinhard has."

Shelhamer's night at Dr. Reinhard's house was indeed a break from the dorm. "It was a nice quiet atmosphere; no fire drills or anything," she said.

All in all, the whole experience was meaningful to both Dr. Reinhard and Karen Shelhamer. Perhaps Dr. Reinhard gained a better understanding of student life at Clarion University. Maybe she will be better prepared for future problems arising from residence halls and maybe she has become more involved with the students.

The first year at Clarion University may be a time of adjustment for Karen Shelhamer, but she will never forget that she was President of Clarion University for a day.

Halloween feature story

America's top ghost hunters: fiend or fraud?

By Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Ghosts and goblins and ghouls- oh my! Thanks to Ed and Lorraine Warren, our guests at the Hart Chapel last Tuesday, we got some exposure about everything that haunts our houses and goes bump in the night.

I had been anticipating this lecture since I wrote last week's story on them. After fighting tooth and nail to get a seat (because nobody realized they handed out too many tickets), I sat down to hear the real stories of ghosts and the supernatural. Instead, what I got was strange, weird and unexpected--tabloid television.

Lorraine Warren, supernatural specialist, began the show with clips of the Warren's work. Although it was interesting, it seemed more like an advertisement for their work and upcoming program on the FOX network.

Mrs. Warren then introduced the story about Bill Ramsey, a 40 year-old carpenter from Britain who suffered from lycanthropy. In other words, he was subject to bark and howl at the moon as a werewolf.

The Warrens heard about the man's dilemma, and after interviewing everyone involved with his attack on a police officer, decided to have the man come to the U.S. for an exorcism. Ramsey has then considered himself "free" since 1989.

Sound exciting? I thought it was, but I had to wonder how exciting would the story have been without the clips of snarling wolves howling at the full moon and the profile shots of Bill Ramsey's face edited in.

We were also introduced to two haunted cemeteries in New England. Union and Stephanie Cemeteries were built in 1760 and are about three miles apart. Stories of "sightings" were spread far and wide. There was even a man who found himself coupled with a ghost as a passenger in his car.

Ed Warren showed the audience a film from Stephanie Cemetery which showed a white form surrounded by smaller black forms. He explained that the "forms" were truly supernatural beings.

The most interesting story was on Annabel. Two nurses were in possession of the Raggedy Ann doll. Just for fun they treated the rag doll like a child. Neither woman thought it was strange until the doll was standing in the doorway when they returned from work. They decided to hold a seance and found the doll was possessed by the spirit of a young girl who was killed years ago.

One day, one of the nurses' boyfriend threw the doll against a wall because he knew it couldn't hurt him. But the nurses ran when they heard him screaming and found bruises and slashes on his body. But even after an exorcism, the doll was a suspect in three accidents and at least one death. Happy Halloween!

Student Senate profiles:

King and Campbell promote positive environment

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

For a few weeks now members of Student Senate have been profiled. Continuing in these biographies are Jay Campbell and Kari Davita King.

Jay Campbell

Jay Campbell is a junior History major and keeps himself very busy and involved in student activities. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and serves as a resident assistant in Campbell Hall. He has also worked at WCUC radio station and is a member of the Recreational Outdoors Club.

Campbell is currently the Chair of the Elections Committee and is also in the Legislative Affairs Committee of Student Senate. Part of his goals of being a Student Senator are "to make people aware of the activities that go on that affect them." The main reason he ran for Senate is that he "wanted to be more involved with the ongoings that affected me daily."

Terri Steigelman/Clarion Call

Jay Campbell and Kari King are two members of the Student Senate who work to get students involved.

He considers "the friendly student population" to be the best asset of CUP, and when asked what changes could be instituted at CUP, Campbell said that "people need to become involved with campus government and activities."

Campbell's advice to the student body is, "Don't be afraid to get involved. If you see something wrong or something that needs attention, let the Student Senate know, or better yet, run for Senate and work on the change yourself."

Kari Davita King

Kari Davita King is a junior Elementary Education major and is also very busy on campus. She is a member of Delta Sigma Theta sorority and the African American Student Union. King was one of the three founders and formerly a director of the Lift Every Voice Choir. She is also a delegate of the Panhellenic Association.

King is presently the Chair of the Social Equities Committee of the Student Senate. Her goals are "to assist in creating harmony on this campus" and to "work along with the various minority-based organizations." A main project of this committee is to "produce a publication regarding our position on multiculturalism and cultural diversity." King is also on the Elections Committee.

King ran for Student Senate "to challenge the institutional, academic and racial injustices of this university." She "wants to be that voice for the unknown masses."

King's statement to the student body is: "This is our campus, and we must make every effort to maintain it. If situations, concerns or incidents arise that are contrary to the proper conductive learning environment, they must be addressed. That is the purpose of Student Senate; to speak on behalf of each Clarion University student and promote a positive academic, social and cultural environment."

PA State Grange convention held

by Deb Huffinan
Contributing Writer

This year marks the 121st anniversary of the Pennsylvania State Grange. The Grange is at Clarion University this week for their state convention.

The Grange is an organization that helps the rural community and is a legislative power to improve and create laws. The Grange is a 120 year-old fraternity currently representing 35,000 rural Pennsylvanians.

More than 1,000 Grange members around Pennsylvania have gathered this week at the Gemmell Student Complex to discuss and vote on new policies concerning rural areas. Some topics that will be discussed here are the North American Free Trade Agreement, conservation of Agricultural Security Areas, emission inspections and organ donor legislation.

Policy developed by the delegates will become the policy of the Pennsylvania State Grange. Policy dealing with national issues will be forwarded to the National Grange for consideration in November at Cleveland, Ohio.

"This is where the grassroots of laws are made," said Shelby Brosius a member of the Clarion County Grange.

"Our logo is FACES--Family Agricultural Community Education--and we are here to promote and service our communities."

Gordon Hiller, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, opened the convention by reviewing the past year's accomplishments while offering a vision toward the future to over 600 Grangers assembled during the first day of the State session.

"One of the first steps when I took office was to implement our Grange initiative for the '93 and Beyond Campaign," Hillier said. "The program has been well-received across the state and we look for the Grange to continue to grow as we approach the year 2000."

Hiller said the accomplishments of the past, combined with a vision toward the future will guide the organization as the Grange continues to tackle issues facing our communities.

Chemistry Conference

Pennsylvania State College Chemistry Conference will be held on Saturday, October 30 at 9 a.m.

Dr. Norman Craig, professor of chemistry at Oberlin College and member of the committee on professional training of the American Chemical Society will be the featured speaker with the address "Current Philosophy/Thinking of CPT; Curriculum Revision in Chemistry at Oberlin College."

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-In July, JoAnn Suggs was convicted in Raleigh, North Carolina of hiring Bill Bateman to kill her estranged husband, J.R. The plot failed because of Bateman's lack of temperament for the job. Testifying in the case, Bateman said he pulled a gun on Suggs one night at Suggs' condo, but put it away and eventually even helped Suggs unload the groceries from his car. Suggs offered Bateman a beer, and the two talked into the night. After being implored by JoAnn by telephone to get on with the job, Bateman tied Suggs up with stereo wire, but then resumed talking. Bateman then put his hands around Suggs' neck but, when Suggs objected, Bateman said he was only applying a pro wrestling "sleeper" hold. Then the two drove around and talked some more over beers. Bateman and JoAnn kept in telephone contact; she became increasingly exasperated that Suggs was still alive. Finally, JoAnn met the two men and implored Bateman to shoot Suggs, who had been placed in the trunk of the car. Bateman closed his eyes and fired several shots at the trunk, wounding Suggs in the hand.

-The Baltimore Sun reported in June that New York City artist Todd Alden recently asked 400 art collectors worldwide to send him samples of their feces so he can offer them for sale in personalized tins. Said Alden, "Scatology is emerging as an increasingly significant part of artistic inquiry in the 1990s." The feces of Italian artist Piero Manzoni, canned in 1961, recently sold for $75,000.

-Cox News Service reported in August that Mexican professional wrestler Gerardo Palomero, who works in a mask, colorful tights and a cape under the name Super Animal, has taken to charging into Mexico City slaughterhouses in costume to challenge workers to treat animals humanely. Said one worker, "We just wish he would come in a respectable suit." Another costumed wrestler, Super Barrio, similarly defends tenants' rights and works in AIDS education.

-Neil McKerracher, mayor of Calmar in Alberta, Canada held the town's first Heterosexual Pride Day in June to combat the Gay Pride Day in nearby Edmonton. McKerracher said there would be no parade or other festivities but urged the town's straight residents to celebrate with plenty of sex.

-The Albany (N.Y.) Times Union reported recently that Stella Downing, 81, had just sold her 167-piece collection of bedpans and urinals, to be housed in a museum in Missouri. The oldest, made of tin, is from the 18th century.

-In July, after two years of haggling with a New York art dealer, the National Gallery of Canada announced that it had acquired, for $1.5 million, a painting entitled "No. 16" by American abstract impressionist Mark Rothko, which consists of two white rectangles on a red background. Its original price was more than $4 million.

-In May, biology professor George Hunt of the University of California-Irvine led a field trip to the Channel Islands near Oxnard, California where he had originally spotted what he called "lesbian sea gulls" in the 1970s. Hunt had reported then that 14 percent of the 1,200 gull pairs he studied were lesbian. He admitted that he cannot tell males and females apart, but inferred because of the larger number of eggs in some nests that the hatching pair of gulls on those nests were both female.

-In Mebane, North Carolina, in August a man reported that someone stole his dog from his backyard but left another one in its place. Also that month in King, North Carolina, Steve Szabo reported that someone broke into his home, took his VCR and 15 tapes, and took 34 comic books from his collection and replaced them with 34 others.

-Archie Calvin Whitehurst, 28, was arrested at the Mission Boulevard Convalescent Hospital in San Jose, California in August and charged with having sex with the body of a woman who had died eight hours earlier. According to police, Whitehurst at first appeared not to have known the woman was dead; when police asked him what he had done, he blurted out that he had not raped the woman but that she had consented to sex.

Practice your talent at Seminar for Strings

by Suzanne Hildebrandt
Lifestyles Writer

A day-long Seminar for Strings will be held Saturday, October 30 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania/ Delaware String Teachers Association, the Seminar for Strings will be directed by co-founder Professor Vahe Berberian, who is an associate professor of music at Clarion University.

Professor Berberian has studied with Aldo Pais in Venice as well as other prominent artists in Europe and the United States. Professor Berberian is a master cellist-conductor who has performed in many concerts worldwide and enjoys contributing his experience to the various aspects of the Pennsylvania String Teachers Association.

Professor Berberian and other associates founded the seminar in 1990 bringing a new concept to the American String Teachers Association. Its uniqueness is due to its heterogeneous meaning that players of all string instruments gather together rather than separate sections of strings gathering at different days.

The program offers a wide variety of activities designed to enhance skills and encourage exchange among string students and instructors at all levels.

Seminar activities will include group master classes in violin, viola, cello and double bass as well as group quintets, group solo sessions for advanced violinists and special activities for preparatory-level students.

The master clinicians overseeing instruction and performances will be Professor Berberian and Dr. Jaropolk Lassowsky, an associate professor at Clarion University and a conductor performer throughout Pennsylvania.

David Cerone is an internationally acclaimed violinist and teacher, and is currently the president of the Cleveland Institute of Music. Jeffery Turner is a principal double bassist for the Pittsburgh Symphony and is also a member of faculties at Carnegie Mellon and Duquesne Universities.

Carol Bolland is the coordinator of the Suzuki program at Clarion University, and Kim Thomas is an alumna of Clarion University who is the instructor for strings at the Kane Area School District. Jane Palmquist is a member of the Pennsylvania/ Delaware String Teachers Association.

The seminar will conclude with a brief address from Dr. John Kuhn, Vice-President of Clarion University, leading into ensemble renditions of Bach, Vanhal, Dvora and Hayden. All participants will perform and participate in special cross-sections and solos.

There is a registration fee of $20 for students and ASTA and NSOA members, $25 for other participants and $12 for those with participants.

Many participants are expected so make your plans now to enjoy the musical talents of the 4th annual Seminar for Strings.

Carnegie Museum of Art

J. Carter Brown will be lecturing on "The Architectual Challenge of Adding to Museums: Picks and Pans."

The lecture is part of the celebration of the new Heinz Architectual Center.

Tickets are $5, for more information call (412) 622-3131.

Ray throws four TD's

Cramer field goal sinks Shipp, 34-32

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

It looked bleak. The Clarion Golden Eagles had watched their ten point third quarter lead evaporate, and trailing 32-31, Clarion was facing the doldrums of defeat. The Eagles had 20 thousand leagues to go and only 50 seconds to get there. Jules Verne couldn't have written a better ending.

Starting at their own 37 yard line, Craig Ray and Kevin Harper went to work. First Ray found Harper over the middle for 16 yards. Then, on the very next play, found Harper along the sideline for 11 more.

A draw play stunned the Red Raiders, and Art Gregory sailed past the Shipp defense for 14 more stationing the Eagles at the Shipp 22.

The Eagles would move the ball to the Raider 19, and with eight ticks left on the clock, Paul Cramer was called upon to take the air out of Shippensburg's sails.

Cramer had converted only three of his 10 field goal attempts coming in the game, but from 36 yards away, he was perfect.

The 34-32 Eagle victory has Clarion docked at 2-1 in the conference, and it keeps the Eagles alive in their quest to repeat as PSAC-West conference champs.

Clarion wasted no time in setting the tone for this game. Damon Mazoff, who amassed 18 tackles on the day, recovered a fumble on Shipp's first possession, and two plays later, Ray hit Harper from 34 yards away for the first of his four touchdown passes.

Shippensburg wasn't fazed. One play after the kickoff, Brian Curnow hit Tom Coleman on a 74 yard bomb, and two and a half minutes into the game it was 7-7.

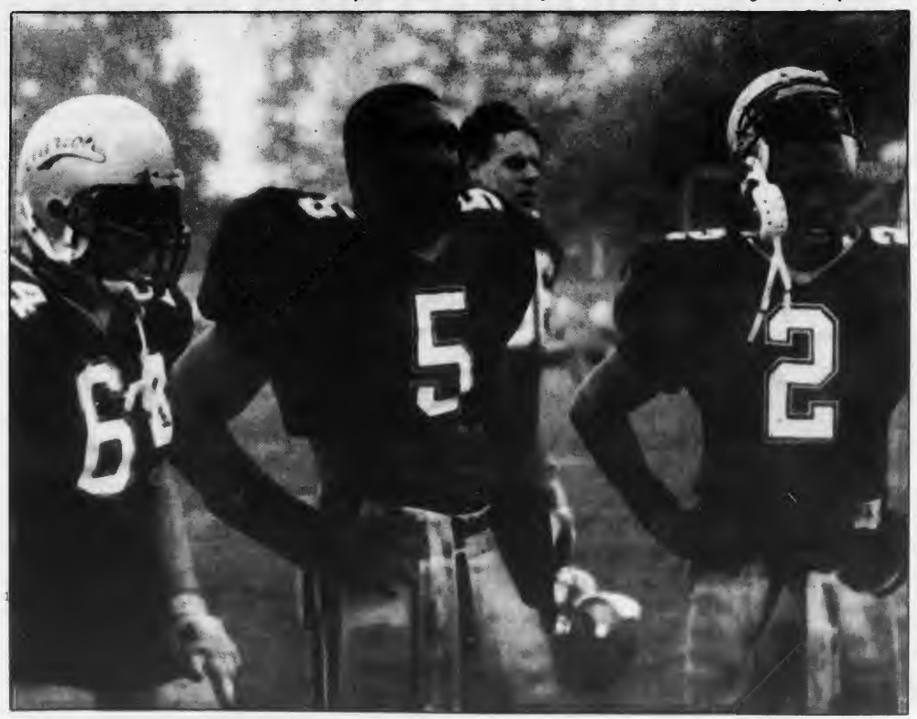

With just over four minutes to play in the first, Clarion faced a third and nine situation from its own 32. Ray dropped back to throw and, under immense pressure, appeared to have nowhere to go but down. Somehow, he found Tim Brown underneath the coverage for 11 yards and a first down. More importantly, it was the 150th career reception for Brown as he became the all-time leading receiver in Clarion football history.

The emotional moment inspired the Eagles as two plays later, Ray hit Harper for 59 yards and another score. Harper would catch three of Ray's four touchdown passes on the day.

Clarion held a 17-14 lead at the half, and increased it to 24-14 on Chris Skultety's diving reception in the right corner of the end zone.

Shippensburg fought back to tie it at 24 before Ray hit Harper deep over the middle for a 37 yard score.

The Eagles held that lead until the last minute when Curnow fired a 10 yard strike to Shawn Garner, then hit Brian Stolarick for the go ahead two-pointer.

Flaherty notes recent improvement:

Golden Eagles looking to finish strong

by R. Thomas Henderson
Sportswriter

Although their season record currently stands at 6-21, the Clarion University volleyball team has been showing signs of improvement.

"We're about a month behind where I thought we'd be at this stage," said head coach Sue Flaherty. "With Jenny (Betters) and Katie (Rhodes) out for extended periods of time, plus other nagging injuries and illnesses, we just haven't had the practice time to take the next step."

Clarion's latest attempt at taking that next step came last weekend at the Gannon Tournament. Unfortunately, it was not a step forward.

Although the Eagles bested Robert Morris three games to one, they dropped two straight to Juniata (3-0) and host team Gannon (3-1).

Sophomore Bobbi Simpson led the weekend with 22 kills, bringing her season total to a team leading 245. Freshman Lisa Flynn, who led the team in digs with 231, picked up 27 more at Gannon to bring her season total to 258.

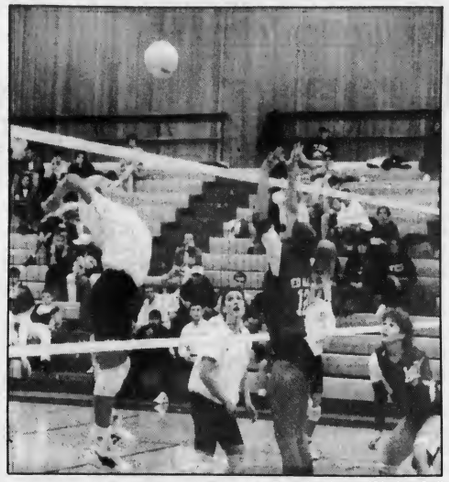

With less than two weeks left in the season, the Eagles' work as a team is finally coming around. Flaherty cites the team's relative youth as a factor in their earlier performance. "Young teams have to mature and this team was not able to play together enough early to develop any team chemistry," she explained. "Now that we've been back for a couple of weeks practicing together, we're starting to come around."

Clarion traveled to Lock Haven to face the Bald Eagles on Tuesday. The Eagles lost the first game 10-15 before rebounding for an impressive 15-3 victory in game two. A hard fought game three resulted in a tough 14-16 defeat, and the Eagles had nothing left for the finale, a 7-15 game four final.

Nicole Flambard led the Eagles with seven kills, while Lisa Flynn and Bobbie Simpson added six and five respectively. Simpson chipped in on the defensive side with five block solos while Meghan Kelly added 12 digs. Katie Rhoads led the setters with 24 assists and increased her team-leading total to 507.

Simpson leads the team in kills, while Flynn and Kelly lead the squad in digs.

The Eagles' next game will be on Tuesday, November 2 against California at Tippin Gymnasium, followed by another home match Friday against Shippensburg. Both matches are slated to begin at 7 PM.

Morton receives honors

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

For three years, Kwame Morton has juked, faked and slithered through defenses to score an amazing 1,698 points, just 313 behind Clarion all-time scoring leader Reggie Wells.

Last year, the 6'4" shooting guard from Brooklyn scored 655 points for a 25.2 point per game average. He also averaged 4.6 rebounds per game, dished out 77 assists, collected 34 steals, and led the Golden Eagles in scoring in nine of their last ten games.

Morton's play last year was good enough to earn him spots on the PSAC-West first team, the NABC East Region first team, and honoroble mention as Basketball Gazette All-American.

The 1993-94 honors have already begun for Morton as Street and Smith's magazine has picked him on their Division II first team, an honor even the great Wells never received. NCAA Preview Magazine has named Morton as one of the top five players in the East Region, and Marty Blake, the NBA Director of Scouting, has called Morton one of the top 10 small college prospects in the nation.

"You just can't say enough about Kwame as a player and a person," said head coach Ron Righter.

The Eagles begin their preparation for the 1993-94 season with the traditional "Midnight Madness" practice which is open to the public at the stroke of midnight Friday night.

Sports Commentary:

With Phillies as heroes, is America safe?

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Sure, Canada owns the most coveted trophy in our American pastime. Sure, everyone in eastern Pennsylvania wants to kill Mitch Williams. But, over the past three weeks, the "Broad Street Bellies" have established themselves as role models for America's youth, and that by far is the scariest thing of all.

Now that guys like John Kruk, Pete Incaviglia and Lenny Dykstra have won our children's hearts, is sloppiness in? Is hygiene out? Will your son want a Tonka truck for Christmas or a pouch of Red Man?

"I'd like to get a haircut and shave, but guys like Hollins and Daulton won't let me," Kruk explained as he chomped on his mountainous wad of chewing gum. "They say, 'We'll kill you.' They were saying that I had to stay like this as long as we were in first place."

The Phils occupied first place since mid-April causing Kruk and friends to sacrifice hygiene for superstition. Little did they know they would become the heartthrobs of America.

So now what? Does Kruk grace the cover of GQ next month? Does People magazine name him the sexiest man alive?

Lenny Dykstra's tobacco chewing habit spurred Pittsburgh centerfielder Andy Van Slyke to say, "It was like a toxic waste dump out there" in reference to replacing him in centerfield between innings.

So now what? Instead of changing his shoes, does Mr. Rogers begin his show by cleaning out his spitune? Does he trade in his cardigan sweater for a Harley?

Luckily for America's safety, Mitch Williams surrendered the game-winning homerun in game six or else Little Leaguers would have been wearing number 99 and refusing to look toward the plate when pitching.

When asked about Williams' habit of letting runners on base, Kruk replied, "At least I know when he comes in, someone's going to come down to first and I can talk to someone. I just hope the guy who leads off the inning is a nice guy and likes to talk."

The wacky Phillies had everyone talking in 1993, so if your child is suddenly refusing to shower, don't worry, he may just turn out to be the next Pete Incaviglia.

Sports Commentary:

Thank you Joe Carter, I've got you on tape

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

I have a hobby that is somewhat off-the-wall, yet extremely interesting and contagious. I collect complete sports events on VHS tape.

I don't make one cent from my hobby or don't plan to because it is illegal to sell copyrighted material. I do it because sports are my identity. I want to watch sports year round, and by taping these games, I can.

Every fall, I practically spend every cent I own on blank tapes so I can record every game shown on TV. I just hope to catch one magic moment on tape, to have it and cherish it over and over again.

Such an event occurred Saturday night when Joe Carter dramatically ended the 1993 World Series with a three-run homerun off of Mitch Williams in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Every year, when the Fall Classic rolls around, I get goose bumps just thinking about it. Yes, the World Series sticks in my mind and heart forever. It's where memories are made and where grown men cry.

Everybody can name a famous World Series or playoff moment. Maz's dramatic blast in 1960, Fisk coaxing his game-winner in '75, or the "Earthquake Series" are just a few that have been tagged unforgettable.

My personal favoriteWorld Series moment I didn't even see live or get it on tape at the time. I was sound asleep in October of 1986 when the New York Mets were trailing by two runs with two outs in the bottom of the tenth inning. The Mets had nobody on base and Wade Boggs was in the Boston Red Sox dugout grinning from ear to ear, when suddenly nobody wanted to make the last out.

The Mets battled back, and a Bob Stanley wild pitch tied the game at five. Red Sox fans are pessimistic as it is, but not even the most pessimistic Red Sox fan could have believed what was about to transpire.

Mookie Wilson hit a slow dribbler to first base, certainly the third out of the inning. But, no! The ball squirted through Bill Buckner's legs and into right field. Buckner could just stand there and watch as an estatic Ray Knight jumped on home plate for the most impossible win in World Series history.

I was fortunate enough to obtain that entire World Series on tape, and I've watched game six an inumerable number of times. Next to "The Miracle on Ice" where Mike Eruzione and the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team beat the Russians in the heat of the Cold War and then went on to capture the Gold Medal, that 1986 series is my favorite.

I carry these lasting images with me every year as the baseball playoffs routinely roll around. I just hope that the game will give me and my VCR what we want; a memory to capture and keep forever. This year, our prayers were answered. Thanks, Joe Carter, I got ya on tape!

Chair set afire on steps of President's house

by Rodney Sherman
News Editor

The Pennsylvania State Police and Clarion University's Public Safety department are investigating an incident in which a reclining lounge chair was set ablaze on the front steps of University President Dr. Diane Reinhard's Moore Hall residence, early Tuesday morning.

Public safety Officer Mark Humes, on routine foot patrol, discovered what, at first sighting, looked like a building fire. Humes radioed to Clarion's 9-1-1 center to report the fire before realizing that the fire was consuming a chair that had been placed in front of the doors. Humes then quickly moved the chair away from the doors and cancelled the fire call.

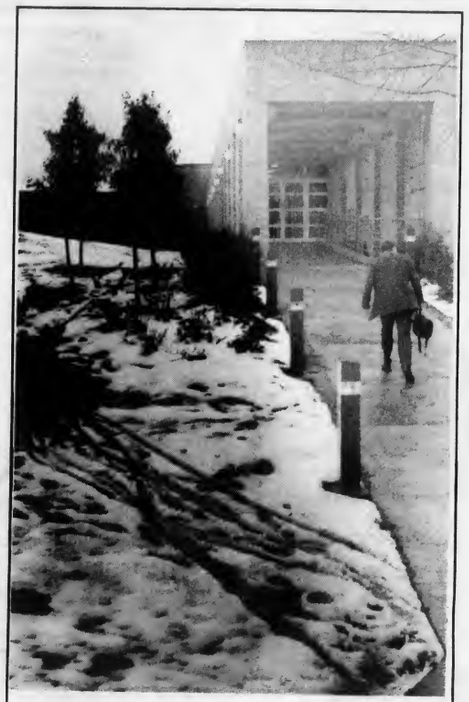

Clarion Borough Police Officer William Peck IV soon arrived and helped Humes throw the burning chair into the snow where it was extinguished by Public Safety Officer Thomas Hearn. There was no damage to Moore Hall and there were no injuries.

Dr. Reinhard was awakened and informed of the situation. Dr. Reinhard later traveled to Harrisburg and was unavailable for comment.

Dr. Ron Martinazzi, director of Public Safety, said an accelerant may have been used in the incident.

"I would venture to say there was [an accelerant] due to the height of the flames," Martinazzi said, adding that the chair did not appear to be university property.

If caught, the perpetrators could face third degree felony charges of attempted arson. The crime is under investigation, with the Pennsylvania State Police assisting.

Resolution to assault outside Campbell reached

by Ben Vessa
Contributing Writer

A plea bargain has been reached in the case of an assault on Sept. 15 outside Campbell Hall.

Robert Eric Kearney, a non-student was charged with two counts of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, criminal mischief and underage consumption after striking public safety officer Keith A. Kaschalk in the face during an altercation.

Kearney spent the night in jail and was released on his own recognizance the next morning, despite having no permanent address or job.

Kearney failed to show up for a preliminary hearing and a warrant was issued for his arrest. Soon thereafter, a public safety officer received an anonymous phone tip from a Barnesboro resident saying that Kearney had been causing problems. A member of the Clarion County Sheriff's Department was sent to apprehend him on Oct. 15. Another hearing was scheduled for Oct. 19. During a continuance, Kearney's attorney approached district attorney William Kern and a plea bargain was reached.

According to the DA's office, Kearney plead guilty to one count of disorderly conduct and one count of underage consumption.

One count of disorderly conduct, one count of criminal mischief and one count of resisting arrest were dropped.

Kearney received a 90 day suspended sentence and a fine of $557.60.

If the fine is paid within 90 days, Kearney will not have to serve the sentence and will not have a permanent record.

Indecent assault in residence hall under investigation

by Rodney Sherman
News Editor

A Clarion University student has been charged with several crimes stemming from an incident Oct. 27, in one of the university's resident halls.

Jon Paul DeFoor, of Ringgold, Pa., has been charged by Public Safety Officer Keith Kaschalk with; indecent assault and indecent exposure, both second degree misdemeanors; criminal trespass-defiant trespass, a third degree misdemeanor; and summary counts of disorderly conduct and harassment.

DeFoor is accused of assaulting a female student in her room in Ralston Hall after exposing himself to her. DeFoor allegedly refused to leave the room even after being asked to do so at least ten times.

Formal arraignment at district justice Tony Lapinto's office is scheduled for next week.

According to documents filed at the district magistrate's office, both parties involved had been drinking that night, and had admitted to having four or five beers. According to these same documents the alleged victim knew the alleged perpetrator for over two years.

Brotherhood

If you reflect on your life and see what you have accomplished, you see that it is partly because of others before you. We all are where we are today through some form of assistance from someone. So, why is it that young African-American men are placed in the position of trying to get for themselves?

Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity has dedicated itself to changing this fact. Through the fraternity's National Guide Right Program, young African-American men are receiving help and assistance in the form of role models. The Mu Phi chapter, here at Clarion, feels deeply committed to this program.

On October 8 and 9, the Clarion chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi hosted a college visitation for a group of seven young African-American men. These students came from the so-called "low class" neighborhoods in Pittsburgh where drive-by shootings, drugs and gangs are everyday occurrences. They themselves, to the ignorant eye, even looked like the supposed thugs and gang members because of their style of dress, but yet each one had a GPA in high school of 3.0 or better. One would not know this without looking past their visual impression and to the substance of these young men

College, to these students, is a hard-to-reach goal. This is only because no one has made it a reality to them. After the weekend these young men spent here, they realized it was a reality, and if it wasn't they planned on making it one.

The group arrived from Pittsburgh on Friday evening around nine. Kappa Alpha Psi had opening comments and a small repast for them. This broke the ice for the young men and gave them the itinerary for the weekend. The group then attended the Homecoming party given by the brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi in the Gemmell Complex. This was a new experience for many of them, and a delightful one at that. They partied until three in the morning and then turned in. Saturday was an early start with an eight o'clock breakfast in the cafeteria. The food was questionable, but they enjoyed seeing Clarion's cafeteria.

The Way I See It

Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

What would you think if there wasn't any Chuck Shepherd's "News of the Weird?" Would you celebrate with delight or write letters demanding it back in the Lifestyles section of the Call?

There are two issues here that I would like to discuss, but lack of space prohibits me to do that. So let's just point them out. The first one is political correctness. Does anyone find "News of the Weird" offensive? If so, does anyone else care? This highlight of the Clarion Call Lifestyles section is meant to entertain, not to scoff. I am estimating that "News of the Weird" is one of the most read features of the paper, but I have yet to receive any complaints or negative attitudes about it.

During a recent trip to a national media convention in Dallas, Texas, I attended a conference session in which editors of arts and entertainment sections of different college newspapers got together to discuss political correctness in their articles and share ideas for their section. We discussed the usual movie reviews and the Hollywood news, but that seemed to be all that was in their section. Missing were the various happenings around their campuses and the arts and entertainment that involved their colleges and universities. It seemed to involve frivolous fluff to fill the empty spaces that filled their swelled heads.

If I seem bitter, it is because during this roundtable discussion everyone shot down everyone else's section because "I would never put that in my section." And when I told them about "News of the Weird", boy did they freak. "Oh my God, why would you put that in your section?" Some did like the idea, though. They thought it was perfect for the college student's mind. I just think that it gives people a reason to laugh at themselves and the crazy things that others do.

But I could be wrong. This brings me to my next subject that the student senators are trying to stress. Student apathy is spreading throughout the campus. Sure there are those who are extremely busy with activities and are involved in everything under the sun. They are the ones who leave their mark on campus.

But there are also those who sleep their way through college life. This is something I don't understand. Maybe they just want their degree and leave, but

Response to the "proud feminist"

Editor's Note: This letter is in response to the "proud feminist" whose letter appeared in the October 14 issue of the Call.

I applaud your willingness to take a stand on an issue that you feel so strongly towards. Few people have the initiative to take the time to voice their opinions, regardless of how self-righteous and uninformed these opinions may be. Being Vice President of Interfraternity Council and a proud member of the greek community since Fall 1989, I feel it is my duty to try and inform you what really goes on at these events (Sigma Chi's "Hot Legs" and Sigma Phi Epsilon's "Bikini Contest").

First of all, all efforts are made to insure that the ladies are not embarrassed or degraded. Our Hot Legs rush party has always been open to women to observe so they can see that we are doing nothing terrible. Many of the girls who participate in our event bring along roommates, friends and sisters to watch them, and not only have we never received a complaint from the ladies in attendance, but most have admitted to having a good time. Also, we have disqualified and asked people to leave for doing anything that might be considered to be too explicit by the other ladies present. And finally, we have some of our male members competing as well to show everyone that what we are doing is all in fun, and no harm is meant by it.

Also, as far as your comment relating to our not being "well balanced men," perhaps you didn't consider any of the good things we, as Greeks, do for the university. Our members hold offices on nearly every Clarion Organization from Student Senate to campus radio to Clarion Athletics and Intramurals. Consider also, the community work our Greeks VOLUNTARILY do for Clarion. Charities such as American Red Cross, American Cancer Society, Children's Miracle Network, Youth Olympics, and even Adopt-A-Highway, all greatly benefit from these people that you seem to despise so much. In fact, these "Boys" and "Guys" (since you have such a problem with calling us "men"), out of their own pockets, even pay for the Clarion Taxi to give fellow students a free designated driver so students like you don't need to worry about being attacked or killed by a drunk driver when you walk the streets at night. If every other student on campus did as much, there might not be as much of negative stereotype by many of the townspeople against the college students.

So call us what you wish. . after all, we've heard it all, but please do your homework and know what you're talking about before you decide to badger a group of "guys" just to get your name in the Clarion Call.

Respectfully,
Ron Berry
Vice-president Interfraternity Council and member of Sigma Chi fraternity

Against the homosexual movement

Dear Editor:

I could not help but reply to the letter in the Reader Responses section of the October 14 issue of the Call. The letter encouraged the idea of a center for understanding homosexuals and bisexuals on our campus. There are a couple of points that I must cover concerning this individual's letter before I express my reasons for objecting to this proposed center.

First of all, the individual said "Homosexuality is something that I and many others have chosen..." Exactly! I could not have said it any better myself. You have CHOSEN to be that, you were not born into this world with an uncontrollable defect or even a different color skin. You act as if you deserve something from society. It seems like all we hear anymore is "Gimme rights, gimme, gimme, gimme."

The second part of the quote that I extracted from this letter states "...and are proud of it." Yeah right, then explain why you requested that your name be withheld. If you are so proud of this lifestyle you have chosen why on earth would you not sign your name?

This letter was not written out of hatred or violence. In fact, it is my love and concern for our future generations and this country that I am so moved to express by strongly held opinions. My objection to this center is based on my own open-minded investigation and acquired knowledge of the Gay Rights Movement. This center may seem like an innocent suggestion but little by little the gay lifestyle is imposing its desires on the majority in society. This gay agenda is imposing on our schools their chosen lifestyle and sexual desires. These are the same schools where we cannot have school prayer (which time after time at the polls has been favored by a vast majority of Americans). The homosexual movement is targeting the break-down of the family and they are beginning at the very roots by introducing pro-homosexual story books such as Daddy's Roommate and Heather Has Two Mommies to first graders!

What does kindergarten and primary school have to do with us? If they are nonchalantly creeping into the curriculum taught to the babies of our society, what do you think they are willing to do to make college-aged adults accept their behavior?

This center would not be for understanding the homo-bisexual lifestyle. What more knowledge do we need? Instead it is another aid in supporting and advancing their political agenda.

It affects you!

Dear Students,

On Monday, October 25, various constitution amendments of the Clarion Students' Association (CSA) and By-laws were proposed to Student Senate. Student Senate will vote on them at its November 8th meeting.

Why should you care? Foremost, you as a student who has paid your student activity fee are a member of the CSA. Your student activity fee is budgeted and allocated to over 75 recognized student organizations and CSA administration.

Student Senate has been the governing legislative body of CSA as well as the Board of Directors of CSA since 1974. Throughout the past two decades Student Senate has fulfilled its first power but unfortunately not the latter. By being the Board of Directors, Student Senate is responsible for CSA administrative and University Book-center matters. The blame can not be put on Student Senate per se because of the influx and inconsistency with the Student Senate terms.

Four months ago, I, as President of Student Senate, asked President Reinhard for the university's assistance to form a committee to assist in the evaluation of the general operation of CSA. This committee consisted of students, administrators, and the Chancellor's office. It is the overwhelming consensus of the committee to relinquish the board of directors duties from Student Senate and place those duties to a nine member board consisting of various members of Student Senate, CSA, university administration and a CUP alumnus. The board will elect a student chair and the student board members will have majority vote.

Another major amendment is the change of Student Senate's office term to accomodate the academic year instead of the calendar year. Numerous students are appointed to various university-wide committees by Student Senate with President Reinhard's approval. Many of the committee appointments are to be filled for an academic year. It is extremely difficult to have consistency with a constant overturn of leadership. The terms of office will begin the fall of 1994 with the spring semester 1994 Student Senate holding a one semester term if ratified.

If the proposed amendments are approved by Student Senate with a two-thirds vote at its November 8 meeting and receive President Reinhard's approval it will be put to the student body on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 9 and 10. Copies of the old and new CSA constitution will be distributed throughout the campus. For the referendum to pass, a two-thirds vote is needed from those CSA members voting.

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me at the Student Senate office, #2318. This is a great opportunity to have your voices heard, my ears are waiting.

Sincerely,
Gara L. Smith
President, Student Senate

Brotherhood

If you reflect on your life and see what you have accomplished, you see that it is partly because of others before you. We all are where we are today through some form of assistance from someone. So, why is it that young African-American men are placed in the position of trying to get for themselves?

Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity has dedicated itself to changing this fact. Through the fraternity's National Guide Right Program, young African-American men are receiving help and assistance in the form of role models. The Mu Phi chapter, here at Clarion, feels deeply committed to this program.

On October 8 and 9, the Clarion chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi hosted a college visitation for a group of seven young African-American men. These students came from the so-called "low class" neighborhoods in Pittsburgh where drive-by shootings, drugs and gangs are everyday occurrences. They themselves, to the ignorant eye, even looked like the supposed thugs and gang members because of their style of dress, but yet each one had a GPA in high school of 3.0 or better. One would not know this without looking past their visual impression and to the substance of these young men

College, to these students, is a hard-to-reach goal. This is only because no one has made it a reality to them. After the weekend these young men spent here, they realized it was a reality, and if it wasn't they planned on making it one.

The group arrived from Pittsburgh on Friday evening around nine. Kappa Alpha Psi had opening comments and a small repast for them. This broke the ice for the young men and gave them the itinerary for the weekend. The group then attended the Homecoming party given by the brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi in the Gemmell Complex. This was a new experience for many of them, and a delightful one at that. They partied until three in the morning and then turned in. Saturday was an early start with an eight o'clock breakfast in the cafeteria. The food was questionable, but they enjoyed seeing Clarion's cafeteria.

The Way I See It

Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

What would you think if there wasn't any Chuck Shepherd's "News of the Weird?" Would you celebrate with delight or write letters demanding it back in the Lifestyles section of the Call?

There are two issues here that I would like to discuss, but lack of space prohibits me to do that. So let's just point them out. The first one is political correctness. Does anyone find "News of the Weird" offensive? If so, does anyone else care? This highlight of the Clarion Call Lifestyles section is meant to entertain, not to scoff. I am estimating that "News of the Weird" is one of the most read features of the paper, but I have yet to receive any complaints or negative attitudes about it.

During a recent trip to a national media convention in Dallas, Texas, I attended a conference session in which editors of arts and entertainment sections of different college newspapers got together to discuss political correctness in their articles and share ideas for their section. We discussed the usual movie reviews and the Hollywood news, but that seemed to be all that was in their section. Missing were the various happenings around their campuses and the arts and entertainment that involved their colleges and universities. It seemed to involve frivolous fluff to fill the empty spaces that filled their swelled heads.

If I seem bitter, it is because during this roundtable discussion everyone shot down everyone else's section because "I would never put that in my section." And when I told them about "News of the Weird", boy did they freak. "Oh my God, why would you put that in your section?" Some did like the idea, though. They thought it was perfect for the college student's mind. I just think that it gives people a reason to laugh at themselves and the crazy things that others do.

But I could be wrong. This brings me to my next subject that the student senators are trying to stress. Student apathy is spreading throughout the campus. Many issues were discussed; experiences of being an African-American student on a predominately white campus, motivation, and proving that college is an achievable goal. Three guest panelists engaged in a further discussion; Nicole Washington, Kelly Phillips and Candace Woods. These young ladies did an excellent job of discussing mature male and female relationships. This discussion opened the minds of the youth and definitely got them thinking.

After the discussion, we went as a group to the ALF parade and then to the football game. Many of the students pictured themselves on the Clarion football field in a few years. At the game's end, they had to depart; the group felt upset. They enjoyed visiting and felt that it was not long enough.

The Kappas exchanged addresses and promised these young men they would hear much more from us. After the group was gone, the Kappas realized that we actually made a difference for these young men.

The brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi would like to thank the following for their assistance also: Barry Morris, John Shropshire, Frank Leaks, Office of Minority Student Services, Kevin Stephens, Mark La Vere, Kelly Phillips, Nicole Washington and Candace Woods.

The Way. . .

what's the point? Where's the connection that is established with other students and professors that can help you once you graduate. The only reason I can think of is that you are extremely shy or you have a ready-made career after you have your degree in your hand.

No opinions, no involvement, no life. I shouldn't say that, maybe you are happy just lounging around with nowhere to go and nothing to do outside of classes. That is a perfect attitude during this blustery season. But if there is a major problem with the university, you just sit by and let everyone else do something about it. What is going to happen when something hits close to home? Will you sit by then, too?

Again, don't get me wrong. If you want to live your life this way, by all means. Just remember that not everyone can taste the victory when they haven't even taken the bite of life. (Wow, that was deep.) Get involved, you just might surprise yourself.

The inscrutable midwest: Weirdsville, USA

©The Miami Herald

Lately a lot of media attention has been focused on the Mideast, so I felt that it would be a good idea to go out and personally review the situation in the Midwest. Here is my report:

FRIDAY —— I arrive in Champaign, Ill., and proceed to the University of Illinois agriculture school, which I am able to locate easily because I have clear directions, plus I can smell it. I am greeted by Dan Weber and Jeana McAllister, two alert readers who wrote me a letter claiming that the university has cows with research portholes installed in their sides. Enclosed with the letter was a photograph of Dan with his right arm up to his shoulder inside a cow.

I'm not sure that I should shake his hand.

Dan and Jeana introduce me to George Fahey, professor of animal sciences, who informs me that the holes are installed because scientists are very interested in finding out what goes on inside the cow digestive system. (I already know what goes on: Cows convert grass into cow poop. But I'm not going to spoil the surprise for scientists.)

Fahey leads me to a cow named "Fussbudget," who is very large, a cud-chewing aircraft carrier. In Fussbudget's left side is a porthole, maybe eight inches in diameter, with a rubber plug in it. Fahey tells me that Fussbudget doesn't mind the porthole, but I'm not so sure. If I were a huge hoofed animal, and humans had put a porthole in my stomach, I'd PRETEND not to mind, but I'd definitely be plotting to stomp some random human until he had no more skeletal structure than a bag of grits.

"What gender is Fussbudget?" I ask.

"He used to be a boy," says Laura Bauer, a lab technician.

So Fussbudget has TWO reasons to want revenge. Now Bauer is removing Fussbudget's plug. An now she is REACHING INTO THE HOLE.

"You can see what he just ate," says Bauer, pulling out some dark-green material.

"Gack," I remark.

But it's clear that these people expect me to put my hand inside the cow. Apparently this is a traditional agricultural gesture of hospitality. I put on a long plastic glove and approach Fussbudget, who is eyeing me with a giant cow eyeball.

"I have nothing to do with agriculture," I tell him. Squinting hard now, I stick my hand into the mass of dark-green glop. It feels, to use a scientific term, really yucky in there. It's also warm. In fact, it's almost HOT. Plus, I can smell methane. Fearing an explosion (scientists call this "The Big Moo"), I pull my arm out.

This is when Tom Nash, manager of the Beef Research Farm, tells me about a recent incident wherein a 4-H Club was checking out Fussbudget's interior, and Fussbudget coughed, and a young man standing in front of the porthole was covered with stomach contents.

"If he had a date that night," says Nash, "he didn't anymore."

"Ha ha!" I say, backing away from the hole.

I leave the University of Illinois with a new appreciation of the benefits that agriculture will someday provide, especially in the field of interrogating captured spies. ("Tell us who your contact is! We have ways to make this cow cough.")

Saturday —— I am now 30 miles down the road in Arcola, Ill., to attend the annual Broom Corn Festival. Arcola has long been a major power in the broom industry; it also boasts the world's largest rocking chair, the world's largest collection of brooms and brushes, and the world's only combination bowling alley and gourmet French restaurant. I am not making any of this up.

I am here to march in the Broom Corn Parade with Arcola's world-famous Lawn Rangers, a top precision lawn mower drill team. This is my third year as a Ranger. I've tried to talk my wife into going to the Broom Corn Festival with me, but she resists.

"It's just a bunch of guys who drink beer and push lawn mowers around and act juvenile," she says.

"Yes!" I say, not understanding her point.

Anyway, the Rangers do more than just "push lawn mowers around." We also carry brooms, and we perfo.m precision broom-and-lawn-mower maneuvers, such as the extremely difficult (for us, anyway) "Cross and Toss." Plus, this year we are marching with - get ready -- a 10-foot-high painted concrete statue of Elvis. It belongs to Clark and Sandy Staford of Seneca, Ill., and it is available for rent. It's mounted on a trailer, facing backward, and it weighs 5,000 pounds, almost as much as The King himself near the end.

It's difficult, using mere words, to describe the scene as the Rangers, more than 50 strong, stride in two columns down the parade route, pushing our mowers in front of us, raising our brooms on high at the command "Brooms Up!"; meanwhile, bringing up the rear, glinting in the Midwestern sun, is: Elvis' giant concrete butt.

VERY EARLY SUNDAY MORNING —— After an evening of fellowship with the Lawn Rangers, I return to my room at the Arcola Inn, which is also where Elvis is staying. Looking out my window, I can see him on his trailer in the parking lot, looking into the distance, as if waiting for somebody to deliver a giant concrete pizza. I reflect back on my trip -- on Elvis, the Lawn Rangers and Fussbudget the cow. Things are good here in the Midwest. Weird, but good.

Parking Committee reviews suggestions

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer

In response to the growing and frustrating parking problem, Student Senate has composed a Parking Committee to hopefully curtail and review the current complaints.

During the October 19 meeting of the Parking Committee, possible solutions were suggested and rejected.

The idea of parking in the area between Ralston and Givan was proposed but due to the inadequate roadway width, the idea was quickly eliminated.

One parking adjustment that was recommended and approved will be the relocation of the chain across Tippin Road. According to the Parking Committee minutes, "the chain will be moved up the hill and placed just below the road leading from the Day Care Center which will allow extra cars to parallel park along the roadway."

Another proposed change concerns the issue of overnight parking. A new plan would allow for a storage lot for cars and cut down on the problem of park lot overcrowding. Also the idea of issuing temporary permits is being discussed.

Joey Payne / Clarion Call

Clarion University's parking problems continue to plague students. The Student Senate Parking Committee is studying suggestions to lessen the heavy traffic on campus.

The Parking Committee minutes state that "currently an individual is limited to receiving three temporary permits per semester. However, Public Safety's computer system does not have sufficient programming to monitor this."

Additional solutions will be addressed at the November meeting.

Currently, there are approximately 1,016 employee permits distributed and 1, 591 student permits sold bringing that number to 2,607 parking spots needed for the campus. Clarion University has approximately 1,600 available spots.

Parking Committee member Jim Junger says "parking lot W has been a large problem. There is a problem with upper classmen buying tickets for freshman since you're not required to show registration or proof of ownership."

Junger also commented on the number of available faculty spots verses the number of student spots. "The problem is you can't deny a faculty member a parking spot because they are a necessary part of this institution. They are required to come here, it's their job so we really can't deny any of their spots."

Although Clarion University issues a great number of tickets weekly, it is not as strict as other nearby universities. I.U.P. allows no parking on campus with the exception of commuters.

Even if you live on campus you are denied the privilege of parking on campus. They allot 250 spots that are available at $50 a semester and there is a lottery drawing to receive one.

Shippensburg University requires a minimum of 60 credits for a spot in a reserved lot and only offers a storage lot for freshman and sophomores.

Commuting students are especially aware of the parking problems at CUP. The daily search for a parking space is one of their most voiced complaints.

The Parking Committee greatly stresses that they welcome suggestions or complaints at anytime.

Students with suggestions or complaints should contact Jim Junger at the Senate office 226-2318.

Clarion area AIDS Alliance receives major grant

courtesy of
University Relations

The Northwest Pennsylvania Rural AIDS Alliance (NWPRAA) located in room 202, Egbert Hall at Clarion University, has received over $315,000 in grants to continue programs in 1993-94.

The NWPRAA offers HIV/AIDS services to individuals in the 13 county region of northwest Pennsylvania which includes the counties of Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Forest, Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer, Venango and Warren. Services include: case management, hotline access, speakers bureau, conference calendar and grant money for client care.

"Clarion University's involvement is solely administrative," said Dr. Woodrow Yeaney, director of the Small Business Development Center at Clarion University. "The Pennsylvania Department of Health was selected to coordinate the state-wide program and the funding goes through it."

In addition to operating a four person office in 202 Egbert Hall, there are subcontracts for Erie and Mercer Counties, where four other persons are employed. A 35 member board, some of whom are consumers (HIV positive or influenced by a HIV experience) and others who represent health care organizations and businesses, serve in a directory and advisory capacity to the NWPRAA.

Kim Swab, program administrator, estimates that through the three offices approximately 150 people in northwest Pennsylvania are being served. The services are free of charge and are available to anyone residing in the region. All contacts are strictly confidential.

"In the over two years that the NWPRAA has been functioning, we have had numerous growth and organizational problems, but we have matured into a viable organization that is now performing the mission," said Yeaney. "The main reason for that organizational success has been the fact that we never forgot that we were established to service and care for the victims of this dreaded disease."

In addition, the three offices offer nearly 237 seminars each year to health organizations, high schools, university students, churches and social service organizations. Swab estimates that these seminars reached 20,646 people.

"The NWPRAA has no political agenda, nor do we desire to function in an advocacy role," said Yeaney. "We want to get the truth about the disease to the population in our service area through preventative education."

"The university has been very supportive and concerned about this epidemic," said Swab. "It has taken action to support our organization and to do as much as possible to provide the services needed."

The Clarion office has three specifically trained case managers.

Case managers provide assistance by helping people to obtain financial assistance, housing, transportation, medical and dental care, pharmaceuticals, and support.

There is also limited funds available for pharmaceutical, physician, dental, and emergency care.

False fire alarms plague dorms

by Christy Williams
News Writer

Although there hasn't been an actual fire in a Clarion University residence hall since 1980, the halls continue to be plagued with criminally pulled fire alarms that disturb every resident's sleep.

In the month of September, 1993, Wilkinson and Campbell Halls both had one criminally pulled fire alarm, and Nair Hall had two.

In the month of October, 1993, Wilkinson's and Nair's total number of criminally pulled fire alarms rose to three, and Campbell's total remained unchanged.

According to Dr. Martinazzi, Director of Public Safety, the campus police expect the numbers to continue rising until the end of the semester. These numbers exclude fire alarms that are initiated accidentally, such as by a maintenance worker or a surge in the power system.

Martinazzi said, "Information from the students is the most prevalant way to catch a person who sets off a residence hall fire alarm."

One student has already been disciplined for initiating a fire alarm since the beginning of this semester.

Currently, Campbell Hall offers a one hundred dollar reward leading to the apprehension of a student who pulls a fire alarm. Wilkinson Hall offers a reward of fifty dollars, and Nair Hall offers a reward of ten dollars.

In addition to these rewards, with Nair Hall as the first, the residence halls are initiating open forum meetings so that students can voice their useful suggestions on how to reduce this annoying problem.

It has been estimated that over 9,000 institutional fires occur every year. Because of the commonness of the fire drills in the residence halls, students tend to take them lightly. If an actual fire were to occur, students may react laxly.

In 1980, an internal fire occurred in 540 Wilkinson Hall. There were no injuries because everyone reacted quickly.

Students who are tired of being bothered by the false fire alarms have been caught hiding in closets or under beds. "If a student fails to leave their room, sanctions will be imposed upon them," said Martinazzi.

When a fire alarm has been initiated, a computer in the Public Safety building is immediately notified. If the officers were not informed beforehand that this was planned, a Public Safety officer must check to see if there is a fire. If there is no fire, they investigate the scene. They either reset the pull system or take the initiated smokehead down. Then, they must reset the entire system.

"This seems like a whole lot of trouble to go through just because some kid pulls a prank." said Kerri McCool, Secondary Ed. English major.

"If a student knows who is violating the sleep of others and has no respect for who they live with, they should turn that person in if they can. Public Safety is doing everything they can, but it's the students who can ultimately stop these unnecessary fire drills.

"Someone can also be turned in anonymously," said Martinazzi.

People pulling the fire alarm stations continue to be a problem in resident halls.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Oct. 22, through Oct. 29, 1993.

A van was reported vandalized in parking lot "A." Unknown actors smashed the driver side window. The van was in the parking space for approximately two days. The incident was reported to the insurance carrier of the owner. The incident happened sometime on Oct. 21 or 22.

On Oct. 23, a report of a theft from a van parked in the Gemmell lot was received by Public Safety. The alleged theft happened between the hours of 7:00 and 8:30 p.m. The following items were reported missing; Yamaha guitar, white finish, model number APX6, serial number 10306740, valued at $750; a guitar case, brown in color with a carpet-like cover; and an Ensoniq Keyboard, black with white keys, model number SQ-1, serial number 9920003701, valued at $1,800. Under investigation.

A vehicle window was reported damaged when it appeared that an unknown person had thrown a bottle which smashed the window. The vehicle was parked in lot "Z, " below Chandler Dining Hall. Under investigation.

On the evening of Oct. 24, two individuals were cited for Careless Driving after being observed operating their vehicle in a careless manner in parking lot "H." No time given.

On Oct. 27, approximately 4:30 a.m., Public Safety received a call from a female student who indicated that she was sexually assaulted in her room by a known male student after they went to her room to talk. Under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

TV-5 situation clarified

by Michelle Sporer
Editor in Chief

Dr. Henry Fueg, general manager of TV-5, has cited lack of quality in several station productions as reasons for indefinitely removing some of the programming from the weekly schedule.

Shows like Hot Trax, Rendezvous, City Beat and TV-5 News, says Fueg, will come back on the air when everything "comes up to snuff."

According to Dean Lemon, a graduate assistant at the station, Hot Trax is presently going through a reorganization process. "We are intentionally regrouping with a new look and new design and new producing staff for Hot Trax."

Fueg said that to ensure better quality of the indefinitely pulled programs, TV-5's staff is planning better and organizing differently with more distribution of responsibility.

Fueg added that Live Sports, Talk Around Town and Sportscenter 5 were not pulled off the air because the programs were "well planned, well organized and well thought out."

Those programs that were pulled will go back on the viewing schedule when the standard is met, said Fueg.

In the meantime, TV-5 is facing the prospect of an increased viewing audience within a year. According to Lemon, the station currently broadcasts to approximately 3,000 homes. If everything goes well with TCI, TV-5 could reach around 30,000 homes sometime next year.

When asked if he was excited about the prospect, Fueg replied, "It's terrifying," adding, however, that he feels it will be interesting.

"I have no doubt that we will meet the challenge. We have some good students here."

Packwood diaries tie up Senate

Senate debates Packwood diaries

Sen. Bob Packwood, accused of sexual harassment, struggled Monday to resist a subpoena for his personal diaries. One of the Senate's seven women members countered that siding with Packwood would send the message, "if you are harassed, keep quiet, say nothing."

The debate raged on for nearly seven hours as committee Chairman Richard H. Bryan, D-Nev., fought for a lawsuit to enforce the panel's subpoena, saying the diaries had evidence of potential criminal conduct. Senators then quit for the night and decided to resume the arguments the next day.

Nervous senators debated sex, privacy and allegations of possible criminal conduct in the historic effort to enforce the subpoena for the "very, very personal" diaries of the Oregon Republican.

"The Ethics Committee cannot turn a blind eye" to potential violations of criminal law and standards of conduct, Bryan said in asserting a need for the diaries.

Members of the panel rose one by one to quietly support the subpoena with statements in favor of opening the diaries. But the argument turned heated over Bryan's assertion last week that Packwood may have violated the law.

"The chairman has labeled me all over this country as a criminal," complained Packwood.

Mrs. Clinton attacks insurers

Hillary Clinton accused health insurance carriers Monday of waging a deceitful campaign against the Clinton socialist health plan to protect profits and preserve the ability to cut people off when they get sick.

"It is time for you and for every American to stand up and say to the insurance industry, 'Enough is enough. We want our health care system back, '" she told more than 2,000 pediatricians.

But the industry said it was the first lady who was guilty of deception and promised to press the $6.5 million advertising campaign that questions the Clinton plan.

Court to clarify Miranda ruling

The U.S. Supreme Court agreed Monday to set new boundaries for its landmark Miranda ruling on the rights of criminal suspects by deciding just who qualifies as a suspect and how police must respond to vague requests for a lawyer's help.

The justices will use murder cases from California and South Carolina to clarify what is still an often-disputed part of law enforcement. Decisions are expected by spring.

VA begins testing Gulf vets

The Veteran's Affairs Department, responding to claims that Iraqi chemicals caused mysterious illnesses afflicting some Gulf War veterans, announced Monday it will begin testing veterans for chemical exposure.

VA Secretary Jesse Brown said a pilot program will be started at the VA Medical Center in Birmingham, Ala., with testing conducted on veterans from Georgia and Alabama.

Oklahoma governor to quit

Gov. David Walters, who faced calls for his impeachment after he agreed to a plea bargain that dismissed eight counts of felony campaign violations, said Monday that he will not seek re-election.

The first term Democrat, whose three years in office have been marked by turbulence and tragedy, had said he would make a re-election decision in December.

Walters pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor Oct. 21, admitting he violated state campaign laws by encouraging a contributor to give $13,500 more than the $5,000 campaign limit.

Eight felony counts, including six perjury charges were dismissed. He was fined $1,000 and given a one-year deferred sentence and ordered to return unspent funds.

Shuttle ends 14-day mission

The space shuttle Columbia glided to Earth Monday through a clear morning sky over the Mojave Desert as 35,000 spectators cheered its 7:05 a.m. touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

After 14 days in orbit, the crew was carried off Columbia on stretchers to preserve the effects of weightlessness for tests that will be conducted on some of them for up to 45 days.

Welfare limits approved

The Clinton administration gave Wisconsin permission Monday to experiment with a two-year limit on welfare benefits and allowed Georgia to cap payments to families that have more children while on the welfare rolls. Both state governors promise success.

White House payroll released

Tense whispers and the indignant crackling of Page A15 of The Washington Post broke the early morning quiet at the White House Monday.

Salaries of nearly every White House employee filled the page.

An embarrassment in any office, the publication of salaries angered some workers, embarrassed others, and was prime news inside the beltway. Never mind Haiti and Somalia; did you see what Dee Dee Myers makes?

In a comical understatement, White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said the list "has created a little curiosity." Her salary: $100,000.

Of the 17 people listed with salaries over $125,000, four are women. Of the 26 listed who make at least $100,000 but less than $125,000, 13 are women.

Freshmen work soup kitchens

Every freshmen entering Stonehill College in North Easton, Mass., is required to donate a day of their time St. Paul's soup kitchen, the Habitat for Humanity, a homeless shelter, or the Old Colony Hospice.

"I don't know of any other college that does anything like this with its entire incoming (freshman) class," said the Rev. Dan Issing, the founder of the "Into the Streets" program.

The two-year-old program is a mandatory part of the freshman orientation which is scheduled for two days.

School officials say they created the program to familiarize students with the community of North Easton and to make them aware of the social problems that exist in the world outside of college.

"It's proving to be a very positive experience for everyone involved," Issing said.

Education charitable support rises

While contributions by corporations and their foundations to charitable causes in the United States declined in 1992, donations to higher education rose a bit for the year.

The Council For Aid To Education, based in New York City, estimated that in 1992 higher education received 70 percent of corporate education contributions at an estimated $1.7 billion.

This figure is up less than one percent from $1.69 billion in 1991. Overall charitable contributions declined one percent to $5.9 billion in 1992, the council said.

Overall, all levels of education received $2.4 billion, a one percent increase over 1991.

Education's share of total corporate contributions is estimated to have climbed from 36 percent in 1963 to 41 percent currently.

The council estimated that corporate contributions to education for 1993 will fall by four percent.

Sales up at college bookstores

The nation's college bookstores reported a huge increase, 222.4 percent, in sales of custom-published or locally produced course materials in August 1993.

The National Association of College Stores reported a 15.6 percent average increase in total sales between August 1992 and August 1993, compared with 14.3 percent from the previous period.

New textbook sales rose 16.5 percent, a smaller increase than in the 1991-92 accounting period (19.5 percent), while used textbook sales showed an 11.5 percent increase, a little higher when compared with 1991-92 figures (9.2 percent).

FSU fraternity president arrested

Florida State University police arrested the president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and charged him with obstruction of an officer's investigation, officials there said.

John Patrick Morris was involved in an alcohol case.

Jazz legend makes special appearance

by Anita Carbin
Lifestyles Writer

Come experience an evening of big band sounds with jazz legend, Maynard Ferguson on trumpet. The internationally famous big band leader will be entertaining with his Big Bop Nouveau Band in Marwick-Boyd Auditorium on Sunday, November 7 at 8 p.m.

Clarion is privileged to have Ferguson take time from his heavy on-the-road itinerary. Ferguson tours with his band nine months of the year with almost nightly performances at festivals, concert halls, jazz clubs and universities. He also makes guest appearances for symphonies and other special events. Ferguson is currently leaning heavily toward more traditional jazz music and instrumentation as he tours with his Big Bop Nouveau Band.

Ferguson was born in Montreal, Quebec in 1928. He began exhibiting his musical talents at the early age of four playing the violin and piano. He performed solo in the Canadian Broadcasting Company Orchestra as an eleven year-old child prodigy. The French Conservatory of Music enrolled him at age nine to receive formal training.

Internationally famous trumpet legend Maynard Ferguson performs with his Big Bop Nouveau Band on November 7 in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium at 8 p.m.

"When people ask me who my main influences were, I tell them my mother and Louis Armstrong," comments Ferguson.

A three-time Grammy nominee and "Downbeat" award winner, Ferguson makes time to personally encourage young musicians in the world of music education. He uses his musical talents beyond trumpet playing as a composer, arranger, record producer and instrument designer.

Ferguson started his own jazz and dance band by age sixteen. He made his United States debut with the Boyd Ralburn and in 1948. In the 1950s, he dazzled the jazz world in the Stan Kenton Band with Charlie Barnett and Jimmy Dorsey. For three years following Kenton, he was first-call studio trumpeter and recorded film soundtracks for Paramount including "The Ten Commandments."

The recording of "Gonna Fly Now" from the original "Rocky" movie pushed Ferguson into "pop" demand. He achieved a top 10 single, a gold album and three Grammy nominations in 1978.

"I'm a person of change and I must be honest to my artistry and my creativity," says Ferguson. "That's part of the word jazz. . .it's an adventure."

Maynard Ferguson's appearance is sponsored by the University Activities Board. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12 and free for Clarion University students. For additional information call 226-2312. For tickets call 226-2459 or for group ticket information call 226-1865.

Challenges of modern women faced at conference

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

This is a group of individuals who strive to make a difference in the lives of others. They are on a mission to cast away ignorance and shed light on important issues that are affecting young women today.

The organization these women belong to is known as the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education (SSHE) Women's Consortium.

During SSHE's existence, the consortium has become a major woman's lobbying power with offices of the chancellor and unions. They have also brought about reform in such areas as sexual harrassment, women's centers, women's studies and child care. They also researched and published statistical information concerning the status of faculty women in Pennsylvania SSHE. They also founded and hosted five annual leadership institutes for undergraduate women and have been instrumental in establishing presidential commissions on women at each SSHE campus.

Clarion welcomes the SSHE Women's Consortium's 13th annual conference from November 4-6. The theme of the conference is "Collaboration, Subversion or Revolution?"

The SSHE workshops for Friday are from 11:00 to 11:50 a.m. and from 2:00 to 2:50 p.m. These include "African-American women's perspectives," in Gemmell Multi-Purpose room, in which African-American women collaborate in an open-forum to convey a message to majority women that "our diverseness only adds to our nation's richness."

"Sex and the Returning Adult Student," room 248 Gemmell, is a hands-on program where such topics such as sexual harrassment in the academic setting, dating issues such as AIDS and date rape and the question of professors dating students will be discussed.

"Sexual Behavior: What's going on at Clarion University," room 250 Gemmell, is an honest, interactive discussion workshop about sexual behaviors on and off the campus.

"Revolutions that worked: Students Together Against Rape (STAR)" traces the growth of the STAR organization.

The final workshop to be held on Friday is "Homophobia: Sources and Solutions," which deals with homophobia on campus and in society at large.

On Saturday, November 6, the following workshops will be held at the Holiday Inn: "Women and Men: Where are we coming from and where are we going?" and "Building Self-Confidence" among many other workshops to be held by SSHE.

For the first time at this conference, a minority women's caucus will be included. This will identify minority women's needs, concerns and issues and intends to provide an opportunity to develop and support agendas committed to cross-cultured understanding.

Vivien Ng, the keynote speaker of the conference, is an associate professor of history and women's studies at the University of Oklahoma. She is also President of the National Women's Studies Association and serves on the Board of Directors at the Center for Lesbian and Gay Studies.

Ng's keynote address is "Integrating our institutional, professional and personal revolutions." As workshop facilitator for the President's Commissions on the Status of Women, she will present "The mission: Collaboration for Actualization."

Virginia Schaefer is known nationally for her monologue portrayals of Susan B. Anthony. Schaefer is to perform "Mother Mary Jones" at the Friday luncheon in Chandler Dining Hall.

All workshops are free to students. Shuttle service will be provided to and from the Holiday Inn at no charge.

Musical terrorists take the hardcore scene

by John Martinec
Lifestyles Writer

Names like "punk rock," "heavy metal," "alternative," "hardcore," "industrial" and "grunge" are words used to describe the last bastion of beauty left in a world fascinated with the perverse.

What they refer to is music. Out of a sea of clever marketing that tries to disguise this greasy kid's stuff as something more than just noise rises Love Jones who declare themselves as the "champions of the possibilities that music one offered. . .and shall again.

Love Jones was formed in the spring of 1990 by singer/percussionist Ben Daughtrey and bassist Barry Thomas. Daughtrey was formerly a member of such "alternative" groups as Squirrel Bait, False Prophets and most recently, the Lemonheads.

During his time with these groups, Daughtrey had all but ruined his hearing and finally reached his limits when it came to the funny haircuts, nose-rings, vomit and the attitude. He and recovering "punk rocker" Thomas wanted to write and perform real songs, but most importantly, they wanted to atone for their previous sins as rock-n-rollers.

Daughtrey and Thomas joined forces with three young men who shared in their desire to create a different sound. Singer/guitarist Chris Hawpe, former "hardcore" afficionado, Jonathan Palmer, who still suffers from "heavy metal" flashbacks, rounded off the group and helped to give birth to the Love Jones Formula.

Love Jones clockwise from top: Stuart Johnson, drums, percussion and vocals; Ben Daugherty, vocals, congas, bongos and percussion; Jonathan Palmer, vocals; Chris Hawpe, vocals and guitars; Barry Thomas, bass guitar and vocals.

This formula is a mixture of an amalgam of doo wop pop, bossa nova style and real rhythm and blues. Love Jones took their music to the most unlikely of audiences. . .the very same noise rock crowd they had just fled from. The road they chose to take to bring this music to the public was not always an easy one for Love Jones, but the persuasive power of the group transformed more than a few headbangers into samba-crazed sophisticates.

After a year of playing their music in every strip club in their home town of Louisville, Kentucky, the band decided to set their sights on a new higher goal, Hollywood. "Fight the devils on their own ground," Johnson cried, believing that Hollywood is the wellspring from which the vile and virulent strains of "rock" came.

Zoo Entertainment took in the group and "Here's to the Losers," Love Jones debut long player for the label, emerged as the manifesto of a movement. Other hit songs include "Ohio River," "Li'l "Black Book," "Paid for Loving," "Bacchus Gin," "Fragile," and "Pineapple."

The musical values that made this country great can be found in "Here's to the Losers." Ron O'Brien, who has worked with such "rock" acts as Talking Heads, Aerosmith and Suzanne Vega, co-produced and engineered the album. This album was also produced in the same studio where Nat King Cole and Elvis Presley performed.

By mixing the styles of old, Love Jones takes their place as the group that stepped out of the bounds of mainstream.

Faculty recital performance scheduled

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

A contemporary faculty music recital has been scheduled to ring in November with the sounds of music.

On Sunday, November 7 at 3:15 in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium, "Contemporary Music Concert" will be performed by music faculty members. The recital is free and open to the public.

President Reinhard will present "4' 33"" for piano by John Cage as one of the highlights of the concert.

Guest performers Margaret Wells and Karen Hetrick will join faculty member Dr. Lisa Johnson for a flute performance of "Canon" by Elliott Carter.

Janet Berberian, another guest performer will sing during the premier performance of "Two Songs" composed by Dr. Lisa Johnson. The songs are set to poetry of Phil Terman of Venango campus. Berberian will be accompanied by faculty members Dr. Paula Amrod on piano, Dr. Brent Register on English Horn and Johnson on clarinet. Amrod will also accompany Berberian for the singing of "Two Songs" by Samuel Barber.

Dr. Donald Black will also accompany Dr. Register on organ for "Dialogues" by John Weaver.

news of the WEIRD

By Chuck Shepherd

-In September, police in Springfield, Massachusetts charged wheelchair-bound Anthony C. Garafolo with robbing a Northeast Savings Bank. The robber demanded money, received $2,500, then wheeled himself outside where he was picked up by a man driving a getaway van. Included in Garafolo's criminal record is the robbery of the same bank in 1990 and the robbery of a liquor store, during which he was shot in the back and paralyzed. (His lawsuit against the liquor store, for paralyzing him, was settled out of court.)

-In September, police in Chiba, Japan announced the imminent arrests of three men for selling schoolgirls' used underpants in vending machines at a price of about $30 for a set of three. The men are accused of violating the Antique Dealings Act, which regulates the sales of used goods.

-Gary Richards, founder of a Jupiter, Florida company that sells lifelike models of human feet for $74.95 a pair, told the Palm Beach Post in March that he sells about 150 pairs a month to the 4,000 or so foot fetishists who subscribe to his catalog/newsletter, Fantasy Foot News. A sideline is that women who model their feet for Richards also furnish their used shoes for sale to customers. "Most guys are into the odor," said Richards, "so we wrap (the shoes) in plastic. The odor will stay for a long time if you keep it in plastic and then steam it when you want to use it."

-Among the products recently brought to market: "PooPets," animal figurines made of cow manure supposedly hand-made by the Amish in Lancaster, Pennsylvania and placed in flower pots as an attractive fertilizer; handcrafted dog beds (starting at $900, plus another $250 for the draperies to hang from the four-posted models) from the New York designer Joseph Biunno; "Fudge on Fire," fudge laced with hot peppers from the Fudge Farm in Paso Robles, California; and caskets customized in colors of Southeastern Conference football teams from Loretto Casket Co. in Tennessee.

-Among the products offered for sale by members of Japan's Chindogu Society (an invention support group) and reported recently by Details magazine are: "Puss in Boots," a set of four dust slippers enabling cats to dust your floor while they walk around; water-filled compartments that strap on your legs, enabling you to wash clothes by walking vigorously; a rack worn on your back, secured by a shoulder brace on which clothing can be hung to dry while you bicycle about; and a flashlight powered by solar panels.

-Two men suspected of committing armed robberies, auto thefts and kidnapping in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Tennessee had their photographs nationally distributed by law enforcement agencies (and on the TV program "America's Most Wanted") after police in Clarksville, Arkansas recovered snapshots the two had taken of themselves while visiting Elvis' Graceland mansion and had left behind at the scene of one of their crimes.

-A Tokyo company announced in July that it will market videos consisting solely of the corpses of torture victims from the war in the former Yugoslavia. A company spokesman said that, although "Japanese have feelings of love even after someone dies," he thought the videos would be popular because only foreigners' bodies would be shown.

Cultural Diversity Week feature

Understanding different cultures can lead to respect and friendship

by Phil DiFrancesco
Lifestyles Writer

Exposing yourself to different cultures is an essential part of becoming a well-rounded person. Clarion offers this type of exposure and you don't even have to pay an extra fee to get it.

Clarion may not offer a great amount of cultural diversity, but it does offer enough so that there is a mixture of cultures and ethnic backgrounds to learn more about other people.

This in turn can help lead to a decrease in racial and ethnic slurs. The more you know about people that are different from you, the less you are intimidated by them.

Academic Affairs puts the official enrollment at Clarion University this fall at 5,881 undergraduate and graduate students. The breakdown of students shows 174 African-American students (down from 181 last fall). White, non-Hispanic is down from last fall to 5,576 and only six American-Indian students this fall, down from nine last year.

Asian-American students total 30, and that is down just one from last year. International students talley up at 84, down 39 from last year to reach a ten-year low.

If you compare the statistics from the other area state schools (Slippery Rock and IUP) with Clarion, the percentages of minority and international students are roughly the same; they are all under 5 percent.

Nonetheless, the more cultural diversity the better. The more one understands someone the easier it is to respect them which may eventually decrease the amount of turmoil and violence.

Musical terrorists take the hardcore scene

by John Martinec

Love Jones clockwise from top: Stuart Johnson, drums, percussion and vocals; Ben Daugherty, vocals, congas, bongos and percussion; Jonathan Palmer, vocals; Chris Hawpe, vocals and guitars; Barry Thomas, bass guitar and vocals.

Names like "punk rock," "heavy metal," "alternative," "hardcore," "industrial" and "grunge" are words used to describe the last bastion of beauty left in a world fascinated with the perverse.

What they refer to is music. Out of a sea of clever marketing that tries to disguise this greasy kid's stuff as something more than just noise rises Love Jones who declare themselves as the "champions of the possibilities that music one offered. . .and shall again.

Love Jones was formed in the spring of 1990 by singer/percussionist Ben Daughtrey and bassist Barry Thomas. Daughtrey was formerly a member of such "alternative" groups as Squirrel Bait, False Prophets and most recently, the Lemonheads.

During his time with these groups, Daughtrey had all but ruined his hearing and finally reached his limits when it came to the funny haircuts, nose-rings, vomit and the attitude. He and recovering "punk rocker" Thomas wanted to write and perform real songs, but most importantly, they wanted to atone for their previous sins as rock-n-rollers.

Daughtrey and Thomas joined forces with three young men who shared in their desire to create a different sound. Singer/guitarist Chris Hawpe, former "hardcore" afficionado, Jonathan Palmer, who still suffers from "heavy metal" flashbacks, rounded off the group and helped to give birth to the Love Jones Formula.

This formula is a mixture of an amalgam of doo wop pop, bossa nova style and real rhythm and blues. Love Jones took their music to the most unlikely of audiences. . .the very same noise rock crowd they had just fled from. The road they chose to take to bring this music to the public was not always an easy one for Love Jones, but the persuasive power of the group transformed more than a few headbangers into samba-crazed sophisticates.

After a year of playing their music in every strip club in their home town of Louisville, Kentucky, the band decided to set their sights on a new higher goal, Hollywood. "Fight the devils on their own ground," Johnson cried, believing that Hollywood is the wellspring from which the vile and virulent strains of "rock" came.

Zoo Entertainment took in the group and "Here's to the Losers," Love Jones debut long player for the label, emerged as the manifesto of a movement. Other hit songs include "Ohio River," "Li'l "Black Book," "Paid for Loving," "Bacchus Gin," "Fragile," and "Pineapple."

The musical values that made this country great can be found in "Here's to the Losers." Ron O'Brien, who has worked with such "rock" acts as Talking Heads, Aerosmith and Suzanne Vega, co-produced and engineered the album. This album was also produced in the same studio where Nat King Cole and Elvis Presley performed.

By mixing the styles of old, Love Jones takes their place as the group that stepped out of the bounds of mainstream.

Faculty recital performance scheduled

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

A contemporary faculty music recital has been scheduled to ring in November with the sounds of music.

On Sunday, November 7 at 3:15 in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium, "Contemporary Music Concert" will be performed by music faculty members. The recital is free and open to the public.

President Reinhard will present "4' 33"" for piano by John Cage as one of the highlights of the concert.

Guest performers Margaret Wells and Karen Hetrick will join faculty member Dr. Lisa Johnson for a flute performance of "Canon" by Elliott Carter.

Janet Berberian, another guest performer will sing during the premier performance of "Two Songs" composed by Dr. Lisa Johnson. The songs are set to poetry of Phil Terman of Venango campus. Berberian will be accompanied by faculty members Dr. Paula Amrod on piano, Dr. Brent Register on English Horn and Johnson on clarinet. Amrod will also accompany Berberian for the singing of "Two Songs" by Samuel Barber.

Dr. Donald Black will also accompany Dr. Register on organ for "Dialogues" by John Weaver.

news of the WEIRD

By Chuck Shepherd

-In September, police in Springfield, Massachusetts charged wheelchair-bound Anthony C. Garafolo with robbing a Northeast Savings Bank. The robber demanded money, received $2,500, then wheeled himself outside where he was picked up by a man driving a getaway van. Included in Garafolo's criminal record is the robbery of the same bank in 1990 and the robbery of a liquor store, during which he was shot in the back and paralyzed. (His lawsuit against the liquor store, for paralyzing him, was settled out of court.)

-In September, police in Chiba, Japan announced the imminent arrests of three men for selling schoolgirls' used underpants in vending machines at a price of about $30 for a set of three. The men are accused of violating the Antique Dealings Act, which regulates the sales of used goods.

-Gary Richards, founder of a Jupiter, Florida company that sells lifelike models of human feet for $74.95 a pair, told the Palm Beach Post in March that he sells about 150 pairs a month to the 4,000 or so foot fetishists who subscribe to his catalog/newsletter, Fantasy Foot News. A sideline is that women who model their feet for Richards also furnish their used shoes for sale to customers. "Most guys are into the odor," said Richards, "so we wrap (the shoes) in plastic. The odor will stay for a long time if you keep it in plastic and then steam it when you want to use it."

-Among the products recently brought to market: "PooPets," animal figurines made of cow manure supposedly hand-made by the Amish in Lancaster, Pennsylvania and placed in flower pots as an attractive fertilizer; handcrafted dog beds (starting at $900, plus another $250 for the draperies to hang from the four-posted models) from the New York designer Joseph Biunno; "Fudge on Fire," fudge laced with hot peppers from the Fudge Farm in Paso Robles, California; and caskets customized in colors of Southeastern Conference football teams from Loretto Casket Co. in Tennessee.

-Among the products offered for sale by members of Japan's Chindogu Society (an invention support group) and reported recently by Details magazine are: "Puss in Boots," a set of four dust slippers enabling cats to dust your floor while they walk around; water-filled compartments that strap on your legs, enabling you to wash clothes by walking vigorously; a rack worn on your back, secured by a shoulder brace on which clothing can be hung to dry while you bicycle about; and a flashlight powered by solar panels.

-Two men suspected of committing armed robberies, auto thefts and kidnapping in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Tennessee had their photographs nationally distributed by law enforcement agencies (and on the TV program "America's Most Wanted") after police in Clarksville, Arkansas recovered snapshots the two had taken of themselves while visiting Elvis' Graceland mansion and had left behind at the scene of one of their crimes.

-A Tokyo company announced in July that it will market videos consisting solely of the corpses of torture victims from the war in the former Yugoslavia. A company spokesman said that, although "Japanese have feelings of love even after someone dies," he thought the videos would be popular because only foreigners' bodies would be shown.

Cultural Diversity Week feature

Understanding different cultures can lead to respect and friendship

by Phil DiFrancesco
Lifestyles Writer

Exposing yourself to different cultures is an essential part of becoming a well-rounded person. Clarion offers this type of exposure and you don't even have to pay an extra fee to get it.

Clarion may not offer a great amount of cultural diversity, but it does offer enough so that there is a mixture of cultures and ethnic backgrounds to learn more about other people.

This in turn can help lead to a decrease in racial and ethnic slurs. The more you know about people that are different from you, the less you are intimidated by them.

Academic Affairs puts the official enrollment at Clarion University this fall at 5,881 undergraduate and graduate students. The breakdown of students shows 174 African-American students (down from 181 last fall). White, non-Hispanic is down from last fall to 5,576 and only six American-Indian students this fall, down from nine last year.

Asian-American students total 30, and that is down just one from last year. International students talley up at 84, down 39 from last year to reach a ten-year low.

If you compare the statistics from the other area state schools (Slippery Rock and IUP) with Clarion, the percentages of minority and international students are roughly the same; they are all under 5 percent.

Nonetheless, the more cultural diversity the better. The more one understands someone the easier it is to respect them which may eventually decrease the amount of turmoil and violence.

Eagles drop to 4-4

Vulcans overcome weather, Clarion 26-14

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Anyone who says that it never rains in southern California obviously did not attend Saturday's football game between the Clarion Golden Eagles and the California Vulcans.

The Eagles entered Cal with only one loss in the conference, and a win against the Vulcans would place them just two victories away from a repeating as conference champions. They only faced two minor obstacles; a potent California run-and-shoot offense and a driving monsoon.

The California offense wasted no time in setting the early pace. A 43 yard bullet from Todd Hirt to Ken Cahoon on the third play of the game placed Cal at the Clarion 19. It wasn't long before Scott Hoover plunged in from a yard out to grant the Vulcans a quick seven point advantage.

Clarion's offense, which had averaged 37 points per game over its last three contests, didn't seem impressed. Starting quarterback Craig Ray found Tim Brown for 20 yards on second down and 16, then hit Kevin Harper for 10 on a third-and-nine play. Damien Henry capped off the 13 play 75 yard drive with a four yard scamper around left end.

Both offenses had effortlessly marched down the field the first time they had the ball. It looked as if the team who had the ball last would win the game. Mother Nature had other ideas.

After just two possessions, the field was a mess. Uniform numbers were unrecognizable, the ball needed replaced on virtually every down.

The teams exchanged missed field goals, and it wasn't until the last minute of the first half that another point would be scored.

The Clarion two-minute offense, which was so dominant last week against Shippensburg, came through again. Ray found Brown for 26, then hit Chris Skultety for 27 on a fourth down. With 52 seconds to play, Ray took a naked bootleg around left end from 10 yards away to give Clarion a 14-7 lead.

The Vulcans had only 44 seconds to work with ,and standing deep in their own territory in these hazardous field conditions, would certainly elect to sit on the ball.

After a Clarion penalty, Hirt found Cahoon for 18 yards, then found Freddie Temoney for 40 more. Hirt spotted Scott Hoover in the end zone on the next play and the Vulcans had travelled 71 yards in 40 seconds. The extra point made the score 14-14 going into the half.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Wired: Head Coach Gene Sobolewski watched his hopes of a repeat PSAC-West championship get washed away.

The Eagles salvaged 16 first downs and 275 yards in total offense in the first 30 minutes, but only had a tie score to show for it.

The third quarter was as much of a nightmare for the Golden Eagles as the halftime show was for the respective bands.

The Eagles' offense waded through the muck to muster only 22 yards in the entire third quarter, and the Vulcans jumped all over them.

Cal's first two plays of the second half saw Hirt hit Tony Todd for 31 yards and then Eric Carter run for 32 more. Todd took a pitch 18 yards around left end to give Cal the lead.

The Eagle defense toughened up, but when Kevin Harper muffed a Vulcan punt at his own 15 yard line, Cal applied the Vulcan death grip.

Tony Todd took an end around 13 yards for the score and Cal had extended its lead to 26-14.

By now the field was a disaster. The fourth quarter featured more fumbled snaps and more dropped passes than should be allowed by law.

The Eagles were not without their chances, however. Clarion moved the ball to the Cal 12 midway through the fourth quarter, but Ray was sacked twice, and the Eagles came away empty. One last gasp late in the quarter saw Tracy Latham intercept his third pass of the day, and the game was over.

The loss dropped the Eagles to 4-4, 2-2 in the conference as they prepare for next week's "Senior Day" contest against Slippery Rock. The seniors to be honored include Eric Acord, Ryan Alleman, Frank Andrews, Tim Brown, Chris Coleman, Damien Henry and Damon Mazoff.

Slippery Rock is 5-3 overall and 2-2 in the PSAC-West. Last week the Rockets lost a shoot-out with Edinboro 41-38. The offense is averaging 400 yards a game and their defense is ranked number two in the PSAC despite allowing 45 points to IUP and 41 last week. "They have a very potent, balanced offense," stated Sobolewski. "We are looking forward to the challenge."

Last year's match-up produced some incredible offensive numbers. The Eagles prevailed 49-37, with the total offense exceeding one thousand yards. Clarion had 513 yards with Tim Myers throwing six touchdown passes, three to Marlon Worthy who also returned a punt 67 yards for a score. Slippery Rock had 523 yards of total offense with 502 coming through the air. Jason Linhart completed 35 of 58 passes, 16 going to Greg Hopkins. Kickoff is at 1 pm.

Sports Commentary:

Who's Scott Mitchell and what is a Ute?

by Jody Males
Sportswriter

At the start of the 1993 NFL season, many experts picked the Miami Dolphins to make it to Super Bowl XXVIII. They said that Dan Marino would lead the Fish to the big game, much like he did in 1984 when he rewrote the record book by throwing 48 touchdown passes in just his second season in the league. Although his Dolphins fell to the 49ers in Super Bowl XIX, Marino shrugged it off and said, "wait until next year."

Nine years later Marino still waits, and if the Dolphins are to make it to the promised land in 1993, Dan will be waiting and watching. After a torn Achilles tendon ended his season in week six, Marino has handed the reins of his offensive machine to back-up quarterback Scott Mitchell.

A former "We Laugh" quarterback, Mitchell led the explosive Orlando Thunder to a World Bowl II appearance a few years ago. The former University of Utah quarterback (that's right, he was a Runnin' Ute) beat out Kerwin Bell for the top spot in Orlando, and after an impressive World League campaign, headed to Miami to backup a guy who hadn't missed a start in nine years.

No matter who is quarterbacking this team, the Dolphins are solid contenders. They possess a very aggressive defense, pure athletes at the skill positions and a powerful offensive line that rarely surrenders a sack. But, can the former Ute take them to the top of the football world?

Receivers O.J. McDuffie, Irving Fryar, Mark Ingram and Keith Jackson make Mitchell's job a lot easier. Miami also has a running game this year, something Marino seldom enjoyed. Rookie Terry Kirby along with veterans Mark Higgs and Keith Byars will keep opposing defenses honest with their ability to pop the big run at any time.

The one ingredient that keeps Miami in the running, however, is their ever-improving defense. Names like Louis Oliver, Shawn Vincent, Marco Coleman and Jeff Cross are quietly becoming household names, Miami's defense is an aggressive bunch of hitters that will take the same pressure off Mitchell that it once put on Marino, to score on every possession. At 6-1, the Dolphins are one of the best in the AFC and are looking to overtake Buffalo as conference representatives to Super Bowl XXVIII.

But, Super Bowl quarterback Scott Mitchell? Think back to 1983 when the Los Angeles Raiders lost their starting quarterback, Marc Wilson. Jim Plunkett came in to lead the way to a Super Bowl victory for the Silver and Black. In 1990, Phil Simms was the top rated passer in football before he suffered a season ending injury. Seldom used Jeff Hostetler marched the New York Giants through the playoffs and capped it off with a Super Bowl XXV win. NFL history has certainly seen this before, so don't count the Marino-less Dolphins out, especially with the winningest coach of all time on their side.

Golfers place 18th

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

The Clarion University golf team finished 18th out of 21 teams at the Davis & Elkins College/ Snowshoe Mt. Resort Golf Invitational on October 19 and 20. The Golden Eagles finished round one with a score of 370, and completed the final round with a total of 332. Their total of 702 was one shot behind Rider College of New Jersey and a better total than Robert Morris, Virginia Military Institute and the host college Davis & Elkins.

Clarion was led by Ron Malinchak who shot a first round 87, then blistered the course with an 81 to come in at 168, good for 44th out of 105 golfers.

Andy Ganoe, who led Clarion with an 83 at the Allegheny Invitational on October 5, continued his steady play with a two-day total of 173. He took an 86 in round one and an 87 in round two to finish 60th overall.

Chris Brosius, who shot a 78 at the Edinboro Invitational, hacked his way to a 95 in round one, but rebounded to shoot a 79 for a two-day total of 174, good for 62nd overall.

Chris Williams shot a final round 85 and finished 88th with a score of 187, while Greg Greksa had a rough tournament taking scores of 104 and 93 to finish 97th with a two-day mark of 197.

Liberty University won the Davis & Elkins Invitational with 624 points, beating UNC-Greensboro on their first playoff hole. Methodist College finished third with a score of 628 while James Madison, Charleston, Loyola (MD), George Mason, Cincinnati, St. Joe's and Radford rounded out the top ten.

Liberty boasted of the top two golfers. Kenny Hobbs shot a 151 and Chad Hall took a 152.

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT:

Recognized or not, War Pigs have netted their goal

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

"Clarion has a hockey team?" This question is being asked all across campus this semester as people keep popping up with Clarion Hockey T-shirts and caps. As a matter of fact they do... kind of.

If you've seen the handful of guys roller blading on the tennis courts clad in hockey gear then you've seen Clarion University's hockey team. The "War Pigs," as they affectionately call themselves, have been playing hockey for the past few years, but are not officially recognized by the university.

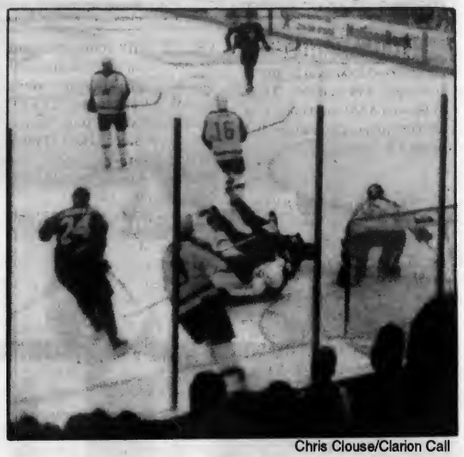

They started off as just a bunch of rag tag guys that wanted to get together and play hockey. They entered a league in Kitanning, which is home to the closest hockey rink in the area. The league, which consists of teams sponsored by garages, restaurants and local businesses, cost the War Pigs $1000 to enter. Just to get on the ice to practice for one hour costs the team $85, and the equipment they practice with is purchased by the individual players.

Last year the members of the team wanted to get more serious about their season, so they put signs up around campus inviting people that were interested in hockey to give the club a call. Many of the people that ended up joining the team had never even played hockey before. A couple of the players had played in high school, and what they had been coached in high school was what they practiced in Kitanning. "A lot of the guys on our team didn't even know each other's names," said team captain Brian Nicol.

The War Pigs knew they would be going up against well practiced, experienced teams that had been together for years. Despite the inexperience, the team won their first game of the season last year, but finished 2-12-1 overall.

Currently, the War Pigs are not recognized by the university as an official team. The team wrote a constitution and submitted it to Student Senate. Student Senate passed it, but there were problems with liability and insurance.

All it will take is some rewording of the constitution and a few legal answers and soon the Clarion War Pigs could very well become the Clarion Golden Eagles.

Moooog!: Hockey in Clarion is as new as hockey in Texas.

Sports Commentary:

Texas hockey? Not as strange as it seems, pardner!

by R. Thomas Henderson
Sportswriter

During a recent trip to Texas, I was given a wonderful opportunity: the chance to see first hand how the Lone Star State has adapted to having their very own professional hockey team. Texas, home of Cowboys football, H. Ross Perot, and Shiner beer just didn't seem to be the kind of place where hockey could gain widespread appeal.

Being a pre-Cup Penguins fan (yes, I liked them when they were rotten), the idea of Texas hockey intrigued me. I remember the days when hockey fans in this area were ridiculed for watching a "minor sport" that wasn't as action-packed and fun as football or baseball, and I was anxious to see if Texans saw hockey in that light, too.

YEEEHAH!! They sure didn't.

Being ambitious people, a friend and I called the Dallas Stars' front office last week to tell them that we were in town and that we would like to do a story. The Stars' press manager, Larry Kelly, was more than cooperative. Not only did he arrange free tickets for us, but the tickets he gave us were "executive box" seats which normally go for $44 apiece. When we learned this, we figured that they must be really hard up to fill seats at the games.

Wrong. Yes, we had executive box seating, but it wasn't for lack of a crowd. Over sixteen thousand people turned out at Dallas' Reunion Arena on October 30 to see the Stars battle the Ottawa Senators. This city is just discovering the Joy of Hockey, but they sure are eager to learn.

During the first period of the game, a really good fight broke out between two players. I mean, I've seen a lot of good hockey brawls in my time, but this was definitely one of the best. Shirts torn off, fists swinging, blood and flesh flying all over the ice. Good hockey.

The weird part was the crowd reaction. Instead of the usual cheers and yells I hear during a fight at a Penguins game, I heard things like "YEEEHAH!", "Git 'im!!", and "Whoop his ass, pardner!". Texans might not know hockey very well yet, but they sure know a good knock-down, drag-out fist frenzy when they see one.

Another neat thing I realized about Texas hockey is how fun it is to watch people trying to get interested in a new sport. If you've ever been to a local junior league hockey game, you know what I mean. All the kids are out on the ice playing the game, and all the parents are sitting in the stands cheering and trying to figure out just how in the hell hockey is played in the first place.

It was the same thing in Dallas, except that the kids were professionals and the parents were wearing big dumb-looking cowboy hats. One of the Senators got called for icing, and the crowd went wild with cheers of joy. After that, the crowd looked at each other and said, "What's icing?" Luckily, a description of all the penalties may be found on page 17 of the program, and during breaks in the action, segments of "Hockey 101" are flashed across the scoreboard.

Yes, hockey has come to Texas, and if things continue the way they are going, it is there to stay. Sometime down the road, if the Stars do well, maybe Lord Stanley will end up wearing a Stetson.

The most encouraging thing I saw was the crowd itself. These were people who had a new gang in town and were doing the best they could to support and encourage them, despite a general lack of knowledge about the game.

Even more encouraging was the fact that about one out of every three people at the game was wearing a Mario Lemieux jersey.

The Godfather (5-6) predicts:

If I don't win this week, I'm through

I know I guaranteed a winning record last week. I know I promised to take a long walk off a short pier if I had a losing week. But, I pushed. I was 2-2. What does that mean? Well, it means that the Godfather is back for one last hurrah due to the infinite kindness of the sports editor and the fact that I made him an offer he couldn't refuse.

Clemson at #16 N. Carolina -13

The Tar Heels come into Saturday's tilt with a 7-2 record. Clemson sits at 6-2. So, why are the Heels favored by two touchdowns? Well, Clemson has played only two road games this season and has an 0-2 mark against the spread. Away from Death Valley, the Tigers usually don't play well, and Chapel Hill is not an easy place to turn it around. North Carolina is 4-1 and has averaged 40 points per game at home. The Heels won't score 40 on Saturday, but Clemson won't score 10. North Carolina 37, Clemson 9.

#18 Kansas St at Iowa St +7

Kansas State once was the doormat of the Big Eight. In fact, the Wildcats would traditionally battle Kansas in the final week of the year to see which Kansas team would end the season with a victory. Well, they usually tied. Now, these pathetic laughing stocks are sitting in the top twenty, and are looking forward to their first bowl appearance in 8.000 years. The last time K. State rocked like this Mitch Richmond and Steve Henson had taken them to the round of eight in the NCAA basketball tournament. Funny, that it was Danny Manning and Kansas that knocked them out. Another interesting fact is that the Wildcats are 1-1-1 against the big three (Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado). The Cyclones only have two wins this year and they'll finish with two. Kansas St. 28, Iowa St. 7.

Stanford at USC -11

It's unbelievable that Bill Walsh has only one win in the Pac 10 this year, and that didn't come until last week. It's certainly not due to a lack of effort, however. The Cardinal has an excellent passing attack and at 3-5 overall, has been beaten soundly only once (48-20 by Notre Dame). Southern Cal comes in with only one loss in the Pac-10 and needs a win to keep its Rose Bowl aspirations alive. Stanford and USC have two things in common. Each has a potent air attack and each have been creamed by the Fighting Irish. You can't give a Bill Walsh team 11 points (as Arizona found out a few weeks ago). The scoreboard will light up, the passing yards will approach a thousand, and USC will win, but not by 11. USC 35, Stanford 31.

My big plate of spaghetti award goes to UCLA wide receiver J.J. Stokes. Last week he set a school record for touchdown receptions in a season with 21. At 6'6", Stokes is lean and quick, and reminds a lot of people of Jerry Rice.

My black rose award goes to Michigan coach Gary Moeller. At 4-4, the defending Big 10 champs might not make it to a bowl game.

Former NBA coach to visit

Jack McKinney, a former NBA "Coach of the Year", will come to Clarion on Saturday, November 6 and Sunday, November 7 as part of a joint venture sponsored by the Clarion University Men's and Women's basketball teams and the Clarion County Y.M.C.A..

November 6, sponsoredby the CUP basketball teams, McKinney will conduct a morning basketball clinic from 9 am until noon at Tippin Gymnasium. He will lecture on a variety af basketball topics, with those attending actually participating in drills on the floor. Clarion University players will help with demonstrating skills. There is a $3 charge per person to attend the clinic and anyone can attend.

Following the "Senior Day" football game, Clarion will feature two "Blue-Gold" basketball scrimmages. The women's team will scrimmage at 6pm and the men's team will scrimmage at 7 pm. McKinney will coach one of the teams in both games. The scrimmages are free and open to the public.

November 7, sponsored by the Clarion County Y.M.C.A., McKinney will speak on "From the NBA to Real Life", at the Liberty Street Church of God in Clarion. His talk will begin at 7pm with donations accepted at the door. Proceeds will benefit the Y.M.C.A. The talk will be followed by a social and autograph session.

McKinney led St Joseph's University to four NCAA tournament appearances between 1968-74 before moving on to the NBA. He was an assistant with the Milwaukee Bucks (1974-76) and the Portland Trailblazers (76-79). He was the head coach of the L.A Lakers (1979-80) and Indiana Pacers (80-84). In '81, he was "NBA Coach of the Year."

"Jack is recognized as one of the finest basketball minds in the game," stated Clarion men's coach Dr. Ron Righter. " I was fortunate to have played under him in college, and I urge everyone in the area to come to the clinic and hear him speak about life.

Memories of last year's upset abound

Clarion, IUP rematch on Saturday

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

One year ago, it was for the conference championship. Powerful IUP, who hadn't lost a PSAC-West game in their last 27 tries, against the Clarion Golden Eagles, who hadn't won a championship in nine years.

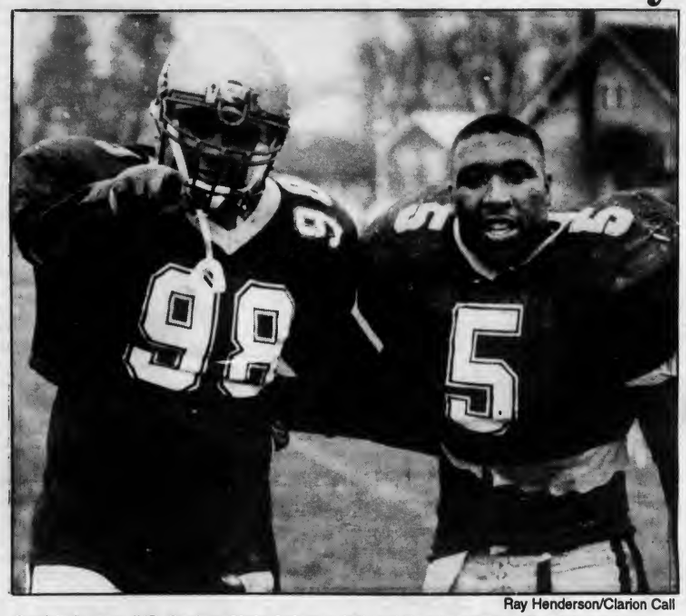

The result was a 35-26 shocker that gave the Eagles the conference championship and knocked IUP from the Division II playoffs. It was the first time the Indians were not invited in six years.

The Tribe has not forgiven nor forgotten that cold November day in Clarion, and they come into this weekend having already piled up scores like 54-9, 52-14, 45-10 and 52-13.

"My freshman year, they beat us 44-0 for no reason," said defensive tackle Chris Coleman. "This year they have a reason."

IUP clinched at least a tie for the 1993 PSAC-West title last week by beating Edinboro. A win on Saturday would give the Indians the outright crown.

Three students suspects in burglaries

by Rodney Sherman
News Editor

Three Clarion University students have been identified as suspects in a string of burglaries that hit Clarion in recent months.

Clarion Borough Police served a search warrant at room 220 in Nair Hall at approximately 9:36 p.m. Monday, and recovered a large amount of property taken in recent burglaries uptown at High Gear Bike Shop, Crooks Clothing and Dan Estadt's Sports Shop.

According to documents filed at District Magistrate Tony Lapinto's office, Clarion Borough Police Officer Mike Reed and Public Safety Officer Denny Hagen were acting on a tip when they went to room 204 in Wilkinson Hall. They found the door open and asked the person in the room if they could come in. After being invited in by the person in the room and having a conversation with the person, some 17 items listed as missing from the burglarized businesses were discovered in the room.

After further conversation with the person in room 204, a search warrant was obtained for room 220 in Nair Hall. A subsequent search of that room turned up some 70 items also listed as missing from the uptown businesses. All items were confiscated by police.

The Clarion University Student Directory lists Scott David Doyle as one of the occupants of room 204 in Wilkinson. The listed occupants for room 220 in Nair Hall are Francis Blake Stoveken and Brian Richard Berkson.

According to Clarion Borough Police Chief R. Eric Shaffer, approximately $8,000 worth of the stolen merchandise from the three incidents was recovered.

A break in the case came when Steve Shaffer, owner of High Gear Bike Shop, was driving on campus. "I saw the guy standing on the steps of Founders (Hall) wearing one of my jackets. I stopped and walked past him to make sure and then I called Public Safety," said Shaffer.

"Then I followed him to the dorms and got his room number," added Shaffer.

Shaffer said he lost over $10,000 worth of merchandise in the burglary at his business on Sept. 26. Reported missing at the time of the break-in were three Cannondale bicycles, numerous Oakely sunglasses, clothing, boots, tents and backpacks.

A break-in at Crooks Clothing was discovered on Oct. 11, and approximately $2,600 worth of garments were reported missing.

The Oct.21 burglary at Dan Estadt's Sports Shop left the store ransacked and missing between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of merchandise.

No charges have been filed yet in the case.

Rebuttal

I must first extend my sincerest of compliments to the Clarion Call I find this publication to be well balanced and at times, highly insightful. This past week I took the opportunity to read the Hide Park editorial by Ms. (please pronounce as "Miz") Huffman. I am aware that you cannot judge a book by its cover, however, Ms. Huffman looked as though she would submit a letter that was well conceived, evocative and lucid. I believe that this letter was far below the standards that Ms. Huffman is most assuredly capable.

I take exception to several of the assertions made by Ms. Huffman, mainly for their simple inaccuracy and intellectual dishonesty. First off, why did Ms. Huffman give credit to Mrs. Roosevelt for creating a "new era for women" and not to Susan B. Anthony? I believe that the women's suffrage movement which inevitably and deservedly brought into being the women's right to vote is certainly worth mentioning. Wasn't that really a "new era for women?"

Secondly, the Equal Rights Amendment did not fail because the U.S. Congress was not ready for equality; that assertion is not only ridiculous but utterly false. It failed because it was a bad bill. Poorly drafted legislation, no matter what its title, should not be passed. If a bill were introduced and called "The End of Hunger, Violence and Disease Bill," we all certainly would find the implied intent highly laudable; however, if the means to this end were assinine, the bill should not be passed. This does not mean that you are against bringing about the end of these plagues to humanity, it means that you are using common sense and prudence.

As to the issue of women in combat, I find this whole topic somewhat ironic. Somehow, men are oppressing women by denying them the opportunity to be maimed and killed. It seems to me, following Ms. Huffman's implied allegation of absurdity of this current policy, that if we (men) really wanted to successfully oppress women, what better way than allow them into combat service and be killed, or taken prisoner? After all, doesn't it make sense, since men and women are at

The Way I See It
Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

"I . . . will die for the freedom of the press, even for the freedom of newspapers that call me everything that is a good deal less than . . . a gentleman."
---Dwight D. Eisenhower

Let me tell you a little bit about how we, here at the Call, work. We don't make the news, we don't create the news, we don't change the news.

We report the news. Period.

Blaming the press for printing the facts of anything, good or bad, that has occurred is killing the messenger who bears the tidings. We don't print lies. We don't print innuendo. We print the facts. Even the funniest news articles in our paper, those in the "News of the Weird" section, are all completely true and without any fiction or embellishment added.

It is true that some among our profession have tarnished the reputation of the other 99 percent of honest and hardworking reporters.

The rampant sensationalism of the tabloid television shows, like "Inside Edition," "Hard Copy" and "A Current Affair" have blurred the line between news and entertainment by presenting issues of dubious newsworthiness with re-enactments, sound effects and other devices rightfully forbidden to the news industry.

The vast majority of honest journalists, however, are not in it for money (definitely not for money), prestige, or fame. They became reporters because they felt that people should know. Not about any one issue in particular, but just about the premise that the public has the right to the knowledge of the actions of the officials they elected and the events and circumstances that shape their lives.

There is a difference between these shows and legitimate journalism. That difference is that legitimate journalists are out there covering the stories fairly and accurately day in and day out, whether they agree with what their sources are saying or not, whether it's of international importance or local significance or whether the public loves or hates the story.

The journalist does this because he or she is a professional, performing a vital and necessary function.

The purpose of this diatribe is not to gain your sympathy. The purpose is to ask you, the recipient of the stories, to separate journalism from sensationalism and to put each in its proper place. You may not like everything printed or broadcast, just agree with us that it should be.

Reader Responses

We are no different

Like Ms. McCoy, whose letter you published in the November 4 edition, I am also compelled to respond -- this time to her ill-informed and paranoid concerns. Ms. McCoy chose to focus on and strongly amplify a statement made in a previous letter that homosexuals (and presumably, bisexuals as well) have "chosen" their lifestyles. Besides ignoring a large body of scientific research that indicates that an individual's sexual orientation is determined at a very early age -- well before puberty -- and may be, at least in part biologically determined, the idea that a group of people would "choose" this lifestyle seems ludicrous on the face of it. Why would some seven to ten percent of the population "choose" to suffer the abuses that many elements of our society (Ms. McCoy included) heap upon them? Gays, lesbians and bisexuals are taunted, assaulted, denied jobs, fired from jobs if discovered, refused health benefits, denied spouse benefits, have insurance (life, health and auto!) policies canceled, suffer vandalism against homes and autos, are denounced from pulpits and in political campaigns -- all for something which is not theirs to change. If there is a choice involved, it is to refuse to accept marginalized status. I suspect that is the sense of "chosen" the first writer meant, though it is obvious that is NOT how Ms. McCoy chose to interpret it.

As for Ms. McCoy's ridicule of the letter writer's refusal to have their name published, the reason should be obvious to anyone with a modicum of compassion and understanding --fear--fear of reprisals from gay-bashers on this campus and in the community. It takes great courage to acknowledge one's own non-traditional sexuality and to speak up for it in a public forum. I commend the anonymous letter writer for that courage.

Ms. McCoy speaks of her "open-minded investigation" of the Gay Rights Movement. There is nothing open-minded in her letter. She claims we wish to impose our "lifestyle" upon the majority in our society. She claims we are "targeting the breakdown of the family." And she claims that efforts to have gay and lesbian roles displayed in a positive manner in children's books is somehow a threat to traditional family values. Poppycock! One of the battles we are waging is to have the right to keep our families! Instead, the vicious hate-mongering of gay-bashers serves to separate gay and lesbian children from their parents, gay and lesbian parents from their children, and deny gay and lesbian couples the legal and social ties which keep relationships together. And research indicates that children raised by gay and lesbian parents are no more likely to turn out "damaged" (or gay, for that matter) than those from "straight" families. In addition, thanks to the gay-hating environment endorsed by Ms. McCoy, gay and lesbian children --children-- are three to four times more likely to attempt suicide. Ms. McCoy's letter "was not written out of hatred or violence." Perhaps she thinks so, but tell that to the grieving parents of a gay or lesbian teen forced by their sense of rejection, loneliness and fear, engendered by attitudes like hers, to kill themselves.

As a further result of her "open-minded research," Ms. McCoy claims that the motive of the gay and lesbian rights movement is the subversion of our society. As a member of that movement for some 20 years, and having marched in Washington and Pittsburgh with many gay, lesbian and bisexual brothers and sisters (and the wonderful members of P-FLAG --Parents of Lesbians and Gays), having read hundreds of books by and about homosexuality, having intervened in numerous suicide crises, having watched the loyal and tender comfort given by the gay and lesbian community to AIDS victims who were rejected by family and abandoned by society, and having watched far too many intelligent, gentle, loving compassionate young people suffer undeserved abuses, I can say, with total conviction, that Ms. McCoy knows nothing of the gay and lesbian rights movement beyond her own paranoid fears and prejudices. All we want is to be able to LOVE without fear or oppression.

Gays and lesbians aren't all that much different from you, Ms. McCoy. You know us, for we are your brother, sister, mother, father, uncle, aunt, husband, wife, son, daughter or best friend. We get up in the morning, brush our teeth, drag on our clothes in a sleepy fog, gobble down a hurried breakfast and rush off to our daily tasks. Somedays we do well, manage to get most of our work completed, manage to avoid argument or anger -- other days, we fail and feel frustrated, grouchy and depressed. Most of us who are single dream about finding that special "someone." And, if we find them, we are giddy with joy, insufferable in our happiness, and blind to the world as only lovers can be. And if the relationship should fail, we cry bitterly, feel utterly worthless and believe that hope and joy have completely evaporated. If we stub our toes, it hurts, if we cut ourselves, we bleed, and if we try something new, we're often frightened and uncertain. We want good jobs, a nice car, a comfortable home and someone to share it with. What in that, save the gender of our loved ones, is so frighteningly different that you must strike out against us? I really don't understand. I suspect I never will.

Rebuttal

Editor's note: This letter is in response to last week's "Response to one proud feminist."

To explain to your own ignorance, I must inform you that you missed my point completely. I was only using the two specific fraternities as simple examples of the whole. Your "duty" to try to inform me of what really occurs at your social events was unnecessary. You did not need to attempt to justify yourself because the fact is that women and the female form is used to grab the attention of males. Although you say the women who participate do so willingly, it's the fact that you provide this type of entertainment that is the ground for my argument.

To put it in plain person's terms, this is contributing to exploitation and the degradation of women. In simpler terms, the cycle of oppression continues because of it. And the women who participate are caught in the cycle as well. Your desire for this type of entertainment allows women to provide it for you because they believe this is what odds with one another, to eliminate the most vocal of the opposition by forcing them into hazardous duty?

All men are not created equally, nor are women. I will never play basketball like Michael Jordan; I will never inspire like Martin Luther King; I will never annoy so many people as Barney the Dinosaur.

The notion that we are all created equally is a standard that should be applied to our rights, not our God-given abilities. Serving in the military is a privilege, with our successful admission and participation contingent upon our abilities. Serving in the military never has been, and I hope never will be, a right. Further, it should be noted that several countries who originally had women in combat have dropped that policy. Also, the last time I looked, the United States of America had the finest, most successful military institution in the world; let's not risk messing it up for the sake of employing a feminist policy of social engineering.

The last significant point made by Ms. Huffman was the issue of the first lady. Hillary Rodham Clinton is doing far more than participating in the decision making process; she controls more than 10 percent of our Gross Domestic Product (GDP). Any rational person would expect that a spouse of the president would, and should, give his/her input to the president, but Mrs. Clinton's current position far exceeds that mere expectation. The objection to her involvement quite rightly resides in the fact we, as a nation, did not elect Mrs. Clinton, nor did the Congress have the opportunity to vote on her appointment. Remember that all of the presidential cabinet appointees had to be approved by Senate. I would think that a rational person would agree that such an influential position as held by Mrs. Clinton should require Senate approval. C'mon, even the secretary of the interior who presides over acres of dirt and wood requires Senate confirmation.

Ms. Huffman made many valid points about the issues of forced sex. Regrettably, there still are those segments of the population which do not understand that "no" does indeed mean "no". Fortunately, that is a very small part of society, and I hope, will continue to become smaller still. However, using a friend's personal tragedy to buttress the misguided allegations in this treatise shows a lack of, or simple aversion to, professional and personal ethics. Further, although Ms. Huffman is quite obviously passionate about her beliefs, passion does not excuse the perversion and distortion of the facts.

their life is aimed at to satisfy a man. What does the woman gain out of this? NOTHING. She does, however, continue to be treated as inferior, less equal, and unable to overcome these false ideas. This lack of education on both parts can be solved by informing women and men of these old attitudes.

Women are the victims of your actions, whether or not you can understand it as such. You use our image for fun...and do not think it offends us. It does, but many women are unable to recognize it, just as you cannot. Many do not have a voice of their own. So I am taking the responsibility to defend women as a whole because they haven't learned to speak yet.

The gods must be crazy

©The Miami Herald

What's wrong with this country, aside from "light" beer, is that Americans don't know anything about foreign affairs. Your average American can't even answer basic questions about geography, such as: 1. In which direction does the Nile River flow? 2. What can the letters in "Great Britain" be arranged to spell? (Answers: 1. Downhill; 2. "Big Titan Rear.")

Tragically, we Americans are too busy sitting around watching worthless juvenile mind-rotting TV situation comedies such as "Dave's World" (Monday nights, CBS, check your local listings) to learn about foreign affairs. This is bad, because what happens abroad can greatly affect our lives. For example, if tensions were to mount again in the Middle East, fighting could break out, and it could escalate to, God forbid, nuclear war, and this would almost definitely affect our TV reception.

This is why today I'm going to present a Foreign News Update, starting with an important story from the Sept. 2, 1993, Times of India, sent in by alert reader Tapash Chakraborty. This article,which I am not making up, states: "Villagers of Khajuria in Ganjam district worshiped a frog on Monday to appease the rain god Indra, as the dry spell continued to delay cultivation." The article further states that "a big live frog tied with a bamboo stick was carried by villagers who roamed in and around the village chanting couplets in honor of the wife of Lord Indra."

The article does not give the exact wording of the couplets. Probably they went something like: We need rain; your wife is great; here's a frog; let's cultivate!

The article also doesn't state whether this effort resulted in rain, but I'm sure it did. If you're a rain god, and you have people waving a frog around and chanting about your wife, you're definitely going to dump something on them .

But whether or not it worked, the point is that the villagers of Khajuria DID something about their problems. They did not just sit back and wait for "the other guy" to worship the frog. We need more of that kind of gumption in this country. Take the economy. People have been whining about the economy for years, but nobody does anything about it. I'm not saying we could get the economy going again by worshiping a frog. Please do not take me for a total idiot. We have a huge, complex economy, and we'd need a much larger amphibian, such as a mantee, or, if he is available, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Speaking of frogs, many alert readers sent in an Associated Press report concerning an incident in Manchester, N.H., which is not technically a foreign country, but you'll want to know about this incident anyway, because it involves a woman who opened a bag of pretzels and pulled out a pretzel with a one inch frog baked onto it. The AP sent out a photograph showing the actual pretzel, and sure enough, there's a frog sort of welded onto it, looking crouched and ready to hop away, except of course that frogs become very poor hoppers after being subjected to the pretzel-baking process, as has been verified in countless laboratory experiments.

My first thought, when I saw this article, was that maybe the frog had been put there on purpose. We live in an era of increasingly complex snack-food variations, such as Jalapeno Cheddar 'n' Onion Graham Crackers ("Now with Avocado!"). It's entirely possible that marketing experts at the pretzel company were simply enhancing their product line ("Now With Frogs!"). But apparently that was not the case with these pretzels, so the woman took them back to the food store, which gave her a handsome baked prince.

No, seriously, the store gave her a refund, so all's well that ends well. But that does not mean we should relax, not with these alarming cheese-related developments that are taking place in England. I refer to a May 26, 1993, UPI report, sent in by alert reader Clyde E. Morgan, which begins: "Fourteen people were injured taking part in the annual Double Gloucester cheese-rolling race." I am still not making this up. The article states that this race takes place every year, and it involves "rolling large round slabs of cheese down a hill," with individual cheeses "reaching speeds of up to 50 kilometers per hour." Last year, 27 people were injured.

The question is: What if this kind of semideadly activity catches on in this country? I, personally, am not worried, because I live in South Florida, which is extremely flat; plus, even if you could get a large cheese rolling down here, passing armed motorists would blow it to smithereens. But what if people start rolling cheeses in, say, Colorado? What if you get one of those big babies hurtling down a Rocky Mountain, straight toward -- to pick a worst-case scenario -- a John Denver concert?

. . .friends around the campfire, And everybody's hiiiEEE (SPLAT). Is that the kind of nation you want your children to grow up in? Me, too.

New CSA constitution is ratified

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

Ray Henderson /Clarion Call

Clarion University students went to the ballot box this week to vote on the proposed constitution for the Clarion Students Association. The new constitution was easily approved and has already been approved by University President Dr. Diane Reinhard.

The new constitution of the Clarion Students' Association has cleared its final hurdle on the way to ratification this week after the student body passed the referendum by a vote of 486 to ten, much more than the necessary two-thirds majority of those students voting needed to pass the measure.

"I am very pleased. The constitution is exactly geared to the future of the Students' Association," said Gara L. Smith, resident of Student Senate. "I am elated. I feel like I won Publisher's Clearing House sweepstakes."

The constitution has already been reviewed by the members of the Council of Trustees of the university, although they do not vote on the measure, under the requirements for ratification of the constitution. President Diane Reinhard has already given her approval to the document.

At Monday's Student Senate meeting, the motion to ratify the amendment passed with no opposing votes. No additions had been made since the motion was put on the table at Oct. 25's meeting. Then on Tuesday and Wednesday, the motion went on to be approved by the entire body of the Clarion Students' Association.

Among other changes, the passing of the constitution alters the terms of office. Under the new constitution, terms of office will begin the end of April and conclude one calendar year later. The first senate elected under the new constitution, during elections next week, will only serve for one semester.

The constitution creates a board of directors to oversee the CSA, a function that was formerly carried out by the Student Senate.

"In the history of Student Senate, we never completely fulfilled our duties as Board of Directors," said Smith. "The duties of the board have never been defined enough. It is a tremendous responsibility to undertake."

Under the new constitution, the Board of Directors is comprised of the President of Student Senate, the Vice President of Student Senate, three members of the CSA, the Vice President of Finance and Administration, the Vice President of Student Affairs, a Clarion Alumnus and a faculty member.

A CSA member is any student of Clarion University who has paid his or her activity fee. The CSA members selected to the board will be appointed by the Student Senate.

The faculty member will be selected by faculty senate and the Alumni member will be selected by the Alumni Board of Directors.

All members of the board except the President and Vice President of Student Senate and the Alumnus member must be approved by the president of the university.

The Board of Directors will have no say over the recognition of campus organizations nor over the allocation of the student activity fee. Both those functions will still be carried out by Student Senate. Actions taken by the board can be over-ridden by a 2/3 referendum of the CSA body.

"This is the biggest thing that has ever happened to CSA next to its beginning," said Smith. "It is a new and exciting foundation."

As part of other internal changes, a treasurer's position will be created. The Treasurer will keep records of all activity fee acounts, will serve as chairperson of the appropriations committee, and will be a member of the executive council of the senate. Other members of the executive committee are the president and vice president.

The student centers standing committee will also be eliminated as part of the reorganization. It may become a sub-committee.

Student Senators are required to serve on two standing committees and one sub-committee during the entirety of their term.

Smith attributed much of the success in passing the constitution to the work put forth by the student senate and by Vice President for Student Affairs, Dr. George W. Curtis.

Student Senate election rules clarified

by Alan Vaughn
Managing Editor

Among the changes incorporated into the new student senate constitution is the inclusion of an amendment to the by-laws that will govern the manner in which elections to senate are held.

Until the passage of this amendment there were no formal or written guidelines governing the elections.

The new guidelines regulate the dates of the elections held each spring semester, deadlines for submitting applications, locations of poll sites and procedures for handling the ballot box.

These regulations come as a result of controversy surrounding last year's election. After last year's student senate elections, a motion was presented before senate that the elections be voided and the process begun anew.

During last year's elections, one voting session was missed in Carlson Library , the ballot box was stored off campus overnight and a candidate was permitted to run even though the application was not submitted to senate by the deadline, based only on the approval of then senate President Brian Hoover.

Pictures of all candidates were also removed from displays of their platforms after several candidates either failed to arrive for appointments with an appointed photographer or did not even make appointments at all.

"I don't think that was right," said current election committee chairman Jay Campbell. "People knew when pictures were to be taken. This year I want to see the pictures up."

One failed returning adult candidate brought the issues to the senate after the missed voting session in Carlson.

"As a non-traditional student, I lost support due to the loss of polling time," said former student senate candidate Rodney Sherman. "Most of my support does not use [the other polling sites]."

The new election guidelines may take care of the problems.

Under the rules, no candidate can be added after the deadline. Poll sites are formally listed and are to be staffed by student senators not seeking re-election.

It is now the candidates' responsibility to ensure that his or her picture is taken by an appointed photographer.

"I'm looking forward to the elections," said Campbell. "I think they're going to go well. I think that we have a good system."

Awareness poll

Clarion students tell what they know about HIV/AIDS

by Christy Williams
News Writer

HIV or AIDS has never, as of yet, been diagnosed at the Keeling Student Health Center. However, as a small rural university students should not delude themselves into believing that it will not occur.

It is predicted ten to 15 percent of people age 15 to 25 will be infected with AIDS within the next ten years. Although Clarion is in a rural setting, the students are from different places, and not isolated.

Since the beginning of the fall semester, 1990, approximately three percent of Clarion University's Keeling Health Center's visits are STD related. The incidences of these are probably higher because some students get treated off campus.

The average incidence of STD's in a college setting can range from 15-20 percent. At it's lowest estimation, of every ten people a student knows, at least one of them probably has a sexually transmitted disease.

HIV and AIDS continually raise new questions. AIDS education is constantly being stressed, but how much do CUP students actually know or practice?

The Call questioned 150 students about their knowledge and practices regarding AIDS. 85 were male, and 65 were female. 111 of the students questioned were between the ages of 18 and 20, 33 were between the ages of 21 and 24 and seven were over the age of 24.

The first set of questions were designed to see how many of the students questioned have actually put themselves at risk to the AIDS virus.

When asked if they ever had unprotected sex, 68 percent said that they had, and 38 percent said that they had not. The females questioned had a much higher incidence of practicing safe sex than the men did. 68 percent of the females said they practiced protected sex more frequently than unprotected sex, while only 30 percent of the males said they practiced protected sex more often.

When asked if alcohol and/or drug use had ever influenced their sexual behavior, 67 percent of the students questioned said it had influenced their behavior.

Fear seems to have elevated in the majority of college students concerning STD's. 75 percent of the students questioned said that fear of AIDS or other STD's influenced their sexual behavior.

The most easily identified symptoms of AIDS are: tender or enlarged lymph glands in the armpit, neck or groin, unexplained shortness of breath, feeling tired, persistent fever, unexplained weight loss, persistent rash or unusual blemishes especially around the face and mouth and unusual bruising or bleeding.

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, Ga., many people infected with AIDS have absolutely no symptoms. The CDC also said that only about half the people who become infected with HIV develop visible symptoms of AIDS within ten years.

When The Call asked the students to identify the symptoms of AIDS, only 39 percent of the students could identify more than two.

The best way to prevent sexually transmitted diseases, especially AIDS, is by practicing abstinence. 13 percent of the students questioned did not know this.

There are only three ways that a college student could be infected with AIDS. The first is by having sexual intercourse-anal, vaginal, or oral-with an infected person.

Almost 20 percent of the students questioned did not know AIDS can be contracted by engaging in oral sex with an infected person.

The second way is by sharing drug needles or syringes with an infected person and the third is through a blood transfusion.

15 percent of the students questioned falsely believed that AIDS can be contracted by kissing an infected person. It cannot.

When asked if they thought AIDS could be contracted by giving blood, 39 percent of the students answered yes. "You are not now, nor have you ever been in danger of getting AIDS from giving blood at a blood bank.

The needles that are used at a blood bank are brand new. There is no way you can come in contact with the AIDS virus by donating blood." said a spokesman for the CDC.

There is, however, a risk of getting AIDS from a blood transfusion. This risk has been reduced by screening the donors for risk factors and donated blood for the AIDS antibody.

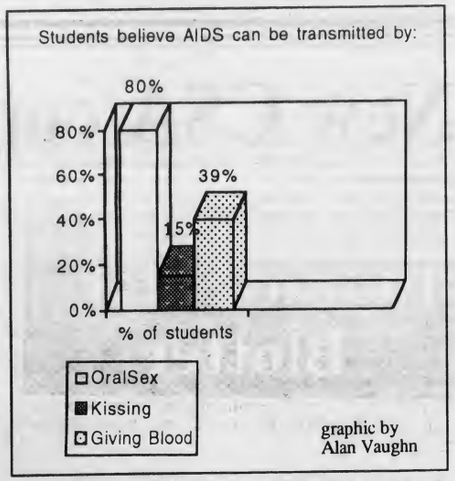

"Today, there are promising new medical treatments that can postpone many of the illnesses associated with AIDS, but there is no cure.

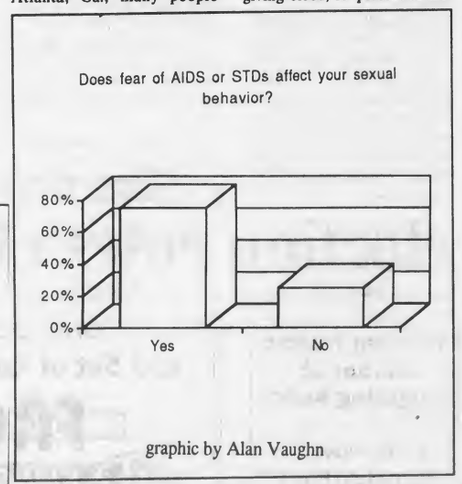

Practicing safe sex or abstinence and not using IV drugs is the only way to protect yourself." said Dr. Ben Scoscia of Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh, PA.

"The Keeling Health Center does provide AIDS testing for students who need it. Although, if pre or post counseling is needed we send students to the Clarion Hospital." said Alice Spindler, Nursing Supervisor of the KSHC. "The Keeling Health Center supports AIDS educational programs and acts as a source of information and referral."

If you or anyone you know is having a problem with AIDS or needs tested. the AIDS hotline number is 226-7011 or (800)627-7116.

R.Thomas Henderson and R. Lynn Sherman assisted in the research for this article.

AIDS a history:

Scientists are not certain how, when or where the AIDS virus evolved and first infected human beings.

Researchers have shown that HIV-1 and HIV-2 are more closely related to simian viruses which infect monkeys, than to each other. Thus, it has been suggested that HIV evolved from viruses that originally infected monkeys in Africa and was then spread somehow to humans.

An argument against this theory is that the virus has only been found in humans and has never isolated from any animal species.

AIDS was first identified as a "new" disease by physicians in Los Angeles and New York City in 1980 and 1981. The doctors recognized the condition as something new because all the patients were otherwise healthy, young homosexual men suffering from rare forms of cancer and pneumonia.

The name AIDS was adopted in 1982. Scientists soon determined that AIDS occured when the immune system became damaged, and that the agent that caused the damage was spread through sexual contact, shared needles and infected blood transfusions.

HIV was isolated as the cause of AIDS in 1983.

Grievance filed over sabbatical leaves

by Katie Zaikoski
News Writer
Rodney Sherman
News Editor

The Clarion Call has learned that a grievance has been filed by the university's Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF) union over the way the administration awarded upcoming sabbatical leaves.

Robert Balough, president of the Clarion University chapter of APSCUF confirmed Tuesday that a grievance has been filed. Balough said the grievance was filed to ensure the university followed procedures previously agreed upon when upcoming sabbaticals were granted.

The grievance concerns a possible violation of procedure when an employee was passed over for a sabbatical leave.

Balough said the grievance was filed in part to ensure timeliness of the complaint.

Sabbatical leaves have been granted to the following employees; Arthur Barlow, Fall 1994; Larry Dennis, Spring 1995; Brian Dunn, 1994-95 academic year (half pay); Anita Hall, 1994-95 academic year (full pay); Mary Hardwick, Fall 1994; James Holden, Fall 1994; Erika Klusener, Fall 1994; Thomas Schaeffer, Fall or Spring 1994-95; Ron Shumaker, 1994-95 academic year (full pay); Lou Tripodi, Spring 1995; Gil Twiest, Summers of 1994 and 1995; Bernard Vavrek, Fall 1994; and Hal Wassink, Fall 1994.

When an employee files a grievance, it is channeled step by step through their immediate supervisor, then to the university Vice-President, followed by the University President.

If the matter is not resolved at any one of those levels, the issue is sent to the Employee and Labor Relations Division of the Office of the Chancellor for the State System of Higher Education (SSHE).

Scott Shewell, spokesman for SSHE said Wednesday that a policy grievance has been received by the chancellor's an is under review.

Shewell said the grievance alleges that Clarion University failed to abide by a previous agreement to meet and discuss the process for granting sabbatical leaves to qualified personnel.

The grievance alleges a change in the pattern of granting the leaves in contrast with past practices of the university.

While Balough would not say who the employee was that the possible violation involved, he did not rule out that the employee may not be a full-time instructor.

The person "is not a temporary," said Balough, "Everyone who applied is tenured."

The current contract between the union and the university stipulates that an employee has completed seven years of service before being considered for a sabbatical leave, no mention of full-time status is made.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Nov. 01, through Nov. 07, 1993.

On Nov. 2, at approximately 3:17 a.m., Public Safety Officers observed flames and smoke coming from the front step of Moore Hall. A lounge chair had been ignited by unknown actors. The flames were extinguished without any damage to Moore Hall. Under investigation.

On Nov. 3, at approximately 5:40 p.m., a student reported his boots and socks were stolen from an unsecured locker in Tippin Gym. The boots were brown leather (Colorado Boots) valued at $70.00.

Several vehicles were reported to have been scratched with a key or other object. The vehicles were parked in lot "D." Incident could have happened sometime between Nov. 2 and Nov. 4. Under investigation.

A fire alarm station was activated on the second floor of Campbell Hall on Nov. 5, at approximately 1:17 a.m. An unknown person struck a smoke detector head, damaging it. Under investigation.

A fire alarm station was activated on the sixth floor of Wilkinson Hall by damaging the detector head. This happened on Nov. 5, at approximately 2:02 a.m. Under investigation.

A report was received from a student that the center caps from his custom rims were stolen from lot "G" on Oct. 8. The caps are gray with the letters ABS. Incident was reported Nov.5.

A student reported a scratch of approximately three and one half feet on the trunk of his car. The car was parked near Ralston Hall. This happened on Nov. 6.

A student was cited for minors possession after being confronted as he entered Campbell Hall with a duffel bag containing 12 forty ounce bottles of malt liquor. This happened on Nov. 6, at approximately 8:10 p.m.

The receiver of a courtesy phone in the Gemmell Center was reported missing. This was reported on Nov. 6.

CUP professor meets Mandela

courtesy of
University Relations

Dr. Ed Grejda, professor of English at Clarion University of Pennsylvania, recently attended the 16th Annual Conference of the Fulbright Association in Washington, D.C. The theme of the conference was "Pathways to Peace."

Highlighting the conference was the first presentation of the $50,000 J. William Fulbright Prize Laureate for International Understanding Award to Nelson Mandela. The prize honored Mandela for his personal courage and selfless determination to eliminate racial and political barriers in South Africa and to focus international attention on the divisive practices that have for so long been part of the daily lives of South Africans of all races. The prize particularly recognized Mandela's commitment to the resolution of longstanding injustices in a peaceful and pluralistic manner.

Grejda met Mandela at a reception following the ceremony and was impressed by the man, who a few weeks later would win the Nobel Peace Prize. "He had spent 28 years in prison and showed no bitterness," said Grejda. "He told me that he was 75 years old and had never been allowed to vote out loud. He told me that 'We cannot, however, be bound by the past, we must look ahead.'"

Grejda is a two-time recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship, to China in 1980-81 and Barbados in 1987-88.

In establishing the prize, made possible through a grant by The Coca-Cola Foundation, the Fulbright Association and its cooperating American and foreign associations sought to provide substantial recognition to individuals who dedicate their energies to improving international understanding.

Established in 1946 under Congressional legislation, the Fulbright program is designed "to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries." Individuals are selected on the basis of academic and professional qualifications, plus their ability and willingness to share ideas and experiences with people of diverse cultures.

Number two man at State Department resigns

Clifton Wharton, the State Department's number two official, resigned Monday night after only eight months on the job, blaming "sustained anonymous leaks to the media" for his early departure.

He said he decided to resign rather than to allow his effectiveness to be eroded.

President Clinton and Secretary of State Warren Christopher expressed regret over Wharton's departure and praised his contributions to the administration.

An official said Wharton, one of the administration's highest ranking blacks, was the wrong person to serve as Christopher's top deputy. His resignation came amid growing concern in Congress and elsewhere about the Clinton administration's management of foreign policy.

Kevorkian bailed out

Dr. Jack Kevorkian was getting so much attention from his jail-house hunger strike that a lawyer who doesn't support his role in assisted suicides put up $2,000 Monday and bailed him out.

Kevorkian, who went to a Michigan jail last Friday rather than post bond himself, said he was disappointed to be leaving, but added, "There's no way I could refuse. That would be unconscionably headstrong."

Lawyer John A. DeMoss posted $2,000 in cash for the $20,000 bond.

Kevorkian has assisted in 19 suicides in various states. He continued, even after Michigan passed a law prohibiting assisted suicides, and has vowed to continue his ways.

HDTV design advances

The crystal-clear pictures and concert-quality sound of high-definition television crept closer to the american market Monday with advisory committee approval of designs for a final test in Washington D.C.

Approval comes six months after four industry groups started working together to win approval for the new technology.

Their efforts led to selection of a 5.1 channel Dolby AC-3 for audio and a method of picture delivery compatible with both "progressive" scanning, used to transmit computer pictures, and the "interlaced" method that works best for movies.

HDTV is expected to be the next fad in home electronics.

Authors eye data toll

Lawyers for American writers are seeking to have tolls charged on the information superhighway of the future, to make sure authors get a fair share of the electronic media's explosive growth.

The National Writers Union said Monday during it's meeting in New York city, that it was preparing a lawsuit against some of the country's largest newspapers and computer information services to determine if a writer should get paid when his story is read or reproduced electronically. Spokesmen for the 4,000 member union declined to name the companies to be sued.

Puppy mauls infant

A baby girl in Chicago was bitten to death Monday by a Rottweiler puppy her parents had just bought for protection, animal control officers said.

The 75 pound dog dragged five-month-old Sasha Brown from her baby seat and mauled her to death.

Excess zinc may lead to Alzheimer's

Excess zinc could exacerbate or even trigger dementia in people with Alzheimer's disease by creating a sticky glue that clings to brain cells and eventually kills them, researchers reported Monday. There is no evidence that zinc alone increases someone's risk of getting Alzheimer's.

Drs. Rudolph Tanzi and Ashley Bush of Massachusetts General Hospital made the discovery. Zinc is vital for brain functions, particularly the short-term memory.

Madonna act draws protest

Angered by pop-star Madonna's intimate gestures with the Puerto Rican flag during a concert, angry protesters demonstrated near the pop singer's Miami, Fla. bayside mansion Saturday.

During an Oct. 26 show near San Juan, Madonna, known for her controversial shows, used a small flag to wipe away sweat, then held the flag to her chest and passed it between her legs.

"She's known for her tasteless acts and she has no morals. But when she insulted my country, my island, my morals kicked in," said organizer Lisa Chaparro.

Clinton calls for living wills

President Clinton urged families Sunday to consider living wills that stipulate when an ailing person should be allowed to die, suggesting "that's one way to weed...out" some questionable health care costs.

"I certainly would sign one," Clinton said, adding that he had discussed the issue with his wife, Hillary, whose father died earlier this year after a lingering illness and a stroke.

Medical experts say particularly high costs can be incurred when trying to keep someone alive against high odds.

Jesuit Colleges form alliance

Students who attend Jesuit campuses have formed an organization to increase communication among their colleges and universities, student leaders in the organization said.

Jesuit University Students Concerned with Enpowerment (JUSTICE) was started in 1992 as a link between the 28 Jesuit campuses nationwide. Its purpose is to help the students bond spiritually and allow them to develop friendships with students in other Jesuit universities.

Each Jesuit University has JUSTICE meetings where the university's issues can be addressed. Students talk about their concerns within the university and discuss national concerns, such as multiculturalism. The organization also serves as a liaison for other campus groups that could benefit from the topics discussed.

The main event of JUSTICE that brings its members together is its national convention, which was held this fall at Spring Hill College in Mobile, Ala. About 40 students attended the convention. In addition to hearing speakers, the Jesuit students choose a national issue to support for the upcoming year.

Christian music controversy at NMU

Student funding will continue to back a Christian rock program on North Michigan's University's student station, WUPX-FM in Marquette, Mich.

The radio show, which is funded with student activity money, was in conflict with a university policy prohibiting student activity money from being used to fund religious activities, detractors said.

The radio receives about $9,700 a semester from student activity fees, and a portion of this money is used to fund the Christian rock program.

Station Manager Kale Seagraves defended the Christian programming. He said the show is not a religious activity and does not promote a specific religion. He said the station simply plays music that has won awards and is listened to by the students with varied religious beliefs and backgrounds.

Seagraves said that the show is aired on Sunday from 5:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. because the disc jockey was available at that time, and not for religious reasons.

Dean of Students Sandra Michaels, also defending the programming, said the show is not a religious activity.

"It's allowing them (the radio station) to play all the rock music that students find popular," said Michaels.

Survey reveals athletes' bad habits

A survey of college athletes drug use and understanding of the AIDS virus found that steroid use has decreased and that half the athletes were unclear about how AIDS is transmitted.

The number of steroid users in colleges has dropped two percent, the Michigan State University survey said. In 1985, when the survey was first conducted, four percent of athletes said they had used anabolic steroids. This number increased to five percent in 1989 and dropped to two percent this academic year.

"I think this indicates that athletes are getting smarter about the side effects. They're realizing this stuff just isn't good for you," said William Anderson, director of the survey.

Anderson said the decrease in the anabolic steroids may be a sign that steroid users are moving to "designer drugs." He said the survey found that steriod users were more likely than non-steriod users to the use the new class of drugs such as epitestosterone, clenbuteral and human growth hormones.

Because little is known about the side effects of these designer drugs, they could be more harmful than the anabolic steroids, added Rick Albrecht, who helped administer the survey.

Comic celebrity to appear and intrigue

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Red hair is not the only thing that distinguishes this nationally known comedian from the rest. With a trunk full of laughs, Carrot Top breaks the mold of everyday comic-relief.

Carrot Top first made his appearance in several comedy clubs and performed for three years before his big break in television on Fox's "Comic Strip Live." After his debut he was in a major demand.

He has appeared on such shows such as "The Sunday Comics," A & E's "Evening at the Improv," "Comedy on the Road," "Star Search," Mtv's "Half Hour Comedy Hour" and "Spring Break Special," and "Jonathan Winter's Showtime Special."

Now Carrot Top will make his special appearance here at Clarion University on Tuesday, November 16 at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

Comedian Carrot Top pack laughs in his signature trunks.

To see Carrot Top in action is to see a colorful work of art. With six large trunks overflowing with bits and pieces of everyday objects, he transforms them into ingenious observations and inventions that make the audience shake their heads and wonder "why didn't I think of that?"

Not to give away any good punchlines, but some of Carrot Top's inventions include items that even the laziest person, the most compulsive person or the most creative person slap their foreheads and ponder on why that wasn't ever invented before.

Dressed in extremely colorful and mismatched clothes that somewhat resemble a circus member, Carrot Top delivers his unique observations with uncanny accuracy in rapid-fire succession about each of his inventions in the trunk before tossing them aside. Not only does he not give the audience time to think or breathe, he keeps them rolling in the isles taking breaths only to laugh some more.

Carrot Top's signature look and one-liner about himself is brought about after he ties his hair up in a familiar way in which he will surely announce in his performance. Look for it. (Hint-Dave Thomas would be scared; Bozo would be proud.)

This special performance is guaranteed to captivate the audience with a twist of the absurd. To be a part of the fun, stop by information desk in Gemmell to purchase your required ticket, or call (814) 226-2459 and (814) 226-1865 for group ticket information.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12 and free for Clarion University Students with valid identification cards. For additional information on this University Activities Board-sponsored event call (814) 226-2312.

This is one performance you would not want to miss. How many times can you say that you witnessed possible history in the making, especially when it comes from an everyday object in an everyday trunk, but certainly not from an everyday type of guy.

Women's Consortium session opened doors to diversity

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

The semester is finally winding down. Many students are thinking about life after Clarion University while others are considering yet another semester here. The rest are probably pondering the different ways to hurdle the barriers that life seems to keep throwing our way.

For those people I need to pose a question, "Have you ever thought about what it is like to be different?" If that isn't bad enough, "Have you thought about being different and being in Clarion?" Having one blue eye and one brown eye is not the same as being of a different race, culture, or sexual orientation.

If you are thinking that all this information is too heavy for you to handle by yourself, then you should have been present at the Woman's Consortium that took place during November 5-7.

Because I am one of those lucky people who would like to graduate this coming May (translation: I have very little time) I could only attend one of the sessions. Monica Bizzell, a Clarion University Graduate student led the round table discussion entitled "What Minority Women Want Majority Women To Know" in which I shared as a panel member. One of the questions that was posed was about racism on campus. This is a topic that I had the "pleasure" of experiencing first hand.

During my first weekend on campus my freshman year, some half-witted, sub-intelligent male decided it would be fun to shower my two friends and I with racial slurs. (I won't insult your intelligence or mine by repeating what they said.)

I'm a senior now and I still remember how I felt that day. Here I was young, vibrant, and ready to conquer the world. I had done nothing to receive that emotional slap in the face. I remember the pain it caused, but more importantly, I remember the anger and frustration, because I couldn't return the blow. All this just for having the perfect year- round, lifelong tan.

Many minority students feel that the racism still exists, it is just more subtle.

Another question that was posed was one of minority students not responding when someone greets them. This topic was explored thoroughly until most of the people sitting in the informal semi-circle agreed that this was not an issue of race, but one of common courtesy. Not one race, culture, religion or sex has a corner on the market of rudeness. I think we all made a silent note to ourselves to be more polite and open to other people. It really doesn't take that much energy to return a sincere smile or greeting when someone has already taken the time and energy to make the initial verbal contact.

One inquisitive person wanted to know if it was more difficult being female or being a person of color. As much as the panel members wanted to answer this question, we could not. It is impossible to separate the two entities.

One question that always brings about great conversation is the one about interracial dating. When the topic was first approached, the semi-circle was inordinarily quiet. No one wanted to touch that one; at least not at first. Someone stated that in their opinion, interracial dating and marriage "waters" down the diversity that we should be striving for. Another person thought of the topic in a completely different way.

The young audience member considered interracial dating, marriage and the children that are produced from the union the perfect way to bridge the gaps between the races. In her opinion, that would be the epitome of true diversity. Other members disagreed by saying that one race should work to accomplish their own goals before they try to create a merger with another.

The subject of love was finally brought to the forefront of the discussion. Many members of both the panel and the audience agreed that love was enough to break down the barriers that society throws in front of many people who chose not to limit themselves to whom they date based on race.

One point to remember is that interracial dating and marriage is not a "black and white" issue. The definition of interracial is any two people who differ in racial backgrounds. This means an Oriental person dating a person of Hispanic descent is just as racially diverse as a Caucasion person dating an African - American.

These differences are what make life worth living. They are also worth discussing. We shouldn't have to wait for another women's consortium to communicate with each other.

For those of you who prefer not to attend any women's discussion for fear that it's just a gabfest, you just might discover there that women do half of the living, dying and suffering in this world and have many questions to ask and solutions to be applied to make all our lives a little simpler. But then again, so do Orientals, Hispanics, African-Americans, Jews, gays and lesbians.

You may be tired of the phrase "Free your mind"but if we do, we could begin to move forward together towards diversity.

Spend an evening going around the world

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

Does listening to people speaking in native tongues intrigue you? Are you fascinated by foreign attire and are you wondering what customs people outside the United States have?

If so, come to Cultural Night and spend an evening with 85 foreign exchange students from the European and American nations. The variety of shows and presentations planned include a Scandinavian performance, authentic European singing and dancing, a review of regional holidays and a fashion show with a surprising twist.

The presentations are to be performed by Clarion University's French, German and Spanish clubs. There will also be an array of foreign foods available to sample.

File photo

Singing and dancing, food and fashion will be the entertaining highlights at Cultural Night.

Several years ago when these cultural programs were held in Still Hall, approximately 25 people would show up. There has been an incredible increase in interest in our different cultures because now over 100 people turn out for these educational programs.

Eighty-five students from 35 countries are enrolled at Clarion University. Among them are the international student officers for the 1993-94 term including President Nazri Nizar of Sri Lanka, Vice-President Nee Nee Goh of Malaysia, Secretary Indu Mathur of India and Treasurer Julie Lee of Korea.

Upcoming cultural events are East Asian Night on February 7 and another to be announced on March 18. Each of the cultural nights provides an overview of the clothing and activities and offers a taste of food from the areas being represented. These programs are free and open to the public, but donations are gladly accepted to help defray the cost of the food.

International students are willing to present cultural programs to other schools and community groups. If you are interested, please contact the International Programs Office at (814) 226-2340.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-The Environmental Assessment Center in Okayama, Japan announced in October that it had manufactured an experimental sausage out of recycled Tokyo sewage by adding soybean protein and steak flavoring to "sewage solids." A company spokesperson said, "Sewage isn't really such a dangerous and dirty thing." However, he did not foresee commercially marketing the sausage: "Sewage does have a slight image problem. I don't think people will be content eating something they know has been excreted by humans."

-In October, Mohammad Jafari was shot point-blank between the eyes with a .22-caliber pistol during a convenience store holdup in Memphis, Tennessee but the bullet failed to penetrate his skull. Jafari was back at work the next day, with only a nine-stitch wound. Said Jafari, "I have a hard head."

-The Washington Post reported in August that there are 3,000 pet therapists in the U.S. including 50 fully certified as animal behaviorists, and that they charge fees ranging from $150 to $400 for three-hour sessions. Said one pet therapist, "There's a reason for everything (animals) do." Said a skeptical veterinarian, "The pets aren't crazy. The humans are crazy."

-After he crashed his stolen car in September, Mark David Warner, 29, hopped on a 13-ton front-end loader at a construction site and led eight police cars in a 40-minute, 15 mph "chase" down a highway near Orlando (Fla.) International Airport. Warner, just five days out of prison at the time, was charged with attempted murder for ramming one occupied police car. Said a security guard on the scene, "No one in his right mind would do those kinds of things."

-In June, Stuart Bowyer, a University of California astronomer in charge of a year-old project that has monitored 30 trillion radio signals from outer space, said that so far, 164 of those signals are "unexplained." However, he said it was "very unlikely" that any of them came from extra-terrestrials.

-Earlier this year, at least 2,000 cases of teen-age girls fainting were reported around Cairo, Egypt. Authorities checked the environment repeatedly for such hazards as chemical warfare agents, radon gas and allergens in school building material, but most health authorities now believe the girls fainted after having delusions.

-Matthew Noble Palmer, 48, pleaded no contest to 24 burglary counts in Alamogordo, New Mexico in July, ending a rash of break-ins of isolated mountain homes. Several of Palmer's victims reported that guns had been taken from their homes, thoroughly cleaned and returned during later break-ins.

-High school soccer coach Jesus Valencia Gomez, 45, was arrested in Whittier, California in September and charged with practicing medicine without a license. According to the sheriff's deputies, Gomez told a 24-year-old woman she had cancerous tumors on her neck and head and would need surgery. Allegedly, Gomez anesthetized her, shaved her head and bandaged her in a motel room. The woman notified authorities only several days later when she discovered that she had no scar under the bandages. In Gomez's apartment were medical and dental supplies and two types of business cards, one identifying Gomez as a doctor and the other as a dentist.

-A lawsuit was filed in June in Morristown, Tennessee against Dr. Crampton Helms and the Morristown-Hamblen Hospital for negligence. Last year, three months after an operation on an elderly woman, a nurse treating her identified a "foreign object" protruding from the woman's surgical scar, which had been irritating her ever since the operation. According to the lawsuit, the object was the tip of Helms' surgical glove, which was still inside the patient and which hospital staff had not noticed in three follow-up hospitalizations.

-In May, a 17-work retrospective of Joel-Peter Witkin, who photographs human bizarrities, was scheduled for the Villa Pignatelli in Naples, Italy. Included in the show were "The Kiss," a photograph of a corpse's head sliced open by a pathologist and joined lip to lip, and "Still Life," a decapitated head photographed as a vase containing a flower arrangement.

-The San Francisco Chronicle reported that Nicolino, a "conceptual artist" in Point Richmond, California is trying to collect enough brassieres to string four miles across the Grand Canyon. So far he has about fifty brassieres.

-During a domestic dispute in Millstadt, Illinois in March, Terry L. Maul threatened to shoot his wife and daughter but finally settled for throwing the family's pet pig at the girl. Neither she nor the pig was hurt.

-Terry Allen, 34, was convicted of attempted burglary in San Antonio, Texas in October after having been caught red-handed by police as he was removing burglar bars from the window of a beauty salon. He told the judge he was guilty of simple theft but not of the more serious crime of attempted burglary because he was not trying to break into the beauty salon; he was merely trying to steal the burglar bars to take home to put on his own windows to protect himself from burglars.

Homosexual panel: Coming out of the closet at Clarion University

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles Writer

Homosexuality was the topic at a panel discussion entitled "Coming out in Clarion." The discussion, which took place in Gemmell on November 3, was part of Cultural Diversity Week.

Approximately 50 students were given the opportunity to ask questions to the panel, coordinated by Denise Bump, which consisted of Dr. Joseph Bodziock, an English professor at CUP, Allison Mercurio, a CUP student, Dr. John Ernissee, a Geography/ Earth Science professor at CUP, Constance Sullivan and her companion Louise Blum. The five panel members addressed questions ranging from coming out of the closet to the legislation of marriage between homosexual couples.

Sullivan and Blum made their commitment to each other about a year and a half ago. They plan to have children and raise them in the small town of Mansfield, Pennsylvania. They both believe that coming out was one of the best (but scariest) things they have ever done. According to Sullivan, everyday is a challenge because every time she meets someone she has to come out all over again.

Allison Mercurio agrees. As a Clarion student, she finds it hard to be herself in a community that is not very acceptive of lesbians. Mercurio believes there is a small gay population in Clarion, but many of them are secretive about their sexuality because they are afraid to come out.

Dr. Bodziock is not a homosexual, but he is interested in studying the way our culture classifies homosexuals. Along with Mercurio and Dr. Ernissee, he plans on starting two gay rights groups on this campus.

Dr. Ernissee has been out of the closet for about twenty years. He believes people are unfairly punished for being gay. Dr. Ernissee wants to help people to be proud of who they are and what they stand for.

1994 Student Senate Candidates

The Clarion Call and the current student senate wish to take this opportunity to allow students the chance to read over the platforms of each student senate candidate before voting next week.

Voting will take place Monday, November 15 through Wednesday, November 17.

Students can vote at the following locations:

Chandler Dining Hall: 11 a.m. -- 1 p.m.

Carlson Library: 2 p.m. -- 4 p.m.

Gemmell Student Complex: 5 p.m. -- 7 p.m. (only Mon. & Tues.)

Erick Lane

I'm a freshman business administration major with 3 years experience on my high school's Student Council. I was co-president my senior year. During that time, I've gone to and have helped plan 3 county leadership workshops. I will try to be as available to the student body as I can be.

Kelly Phillips

Freedom of speech is something that we all need to express freely. If I am elected to Student Senate I promise to dedicate my time, be committed to the responsibilities asked of me plus some, and to give the best judgement to those who are concerned for the well-being of those here at Clarion.

Chad Svehla

If elected to Student Senate, I would address two major issues of concern. First, I feel the annual tuition hikes are becoming preposterous and unnecessary. And second, I believe recurring problems with scheduling due to the unavailability of required classes need to be addressed.

Matt Ames

I am a sophomore communication major. Currently, my campus activities are treasurer of BACCHUS, drug and alcohol awareness counselor and the treasurer of Theta Chi fraternity. In high school I was involved in student council and senior executive council. I feel that I'm qualified to represent Clarion's students.

Joseph P. Baker, Jr.

I want to be a student senator because I want to be a voice of the student body. I am eager to help voice the opinions of the students so that there is more student involvement in the Senate. I am currently the president of Nair Hall Council, an Interhall Council representative and an Honors Council student representative.

Mark Blacknell

As a fraternity brother, I will ensure that the Greek population is properly represented. And, I will ensure that the students are made aware of the National Service Education Program and will press the administration into helping them take full advantage of this program.

Sean Boileau

I feel strongly that for a student senator to be effective in their office, they must have experience working in this type of organization. I served as president for student council in my high school, and I currently serve as president of Phi Eta Sigma, the national freshman honor society, and as treasurer for Ralston Hall Council.

Delphine A. DJossou

I have always been politically active in school. In high school I was president of my class every year. In my freshman college year I was very involved as chairperson of the athletic committee. I feel I am qualified to be a senator. I hope to promote multiculturalism, diversity and more student involvment at Clarion.

Jennifer Koren

I am running for student senate to help in making our campus a better experience for every student who attends this university. I would like to be a voice for the students. Other activities which I am involved in are Phi Sigma Sigma, the honors program and Honors Congress. I am also a part of STAR.

Marie Kosanovich

I believe that the best way to get the most out of college is to get involved in campus organizations. Instead of complaining about the way our money is spent, I would like to do something about the frivolous spending of our dollars. I would be proud to represent student and greek voices on campus.

Jamie Krugger

Your ideas and opinions will be heard through my representation as a member of student senate. I'm not one to let things pass by without a say. I will ensure that the issues which you feel are most important are brought to attention! I will also see to it that the campus organizations receive the necessary resources for them to grow.

Angie Link

I am a sophomore running for re-election to senate. I have been on the senate for the past 2 semesters and I believe that if I am re-elected I will continue to make the changes the university needs. This campus needs dedicated people like myself to make Clarion the university everyone wants.

Edward Rogers

I, Edward J. Rogers, am interested in running for student senate so as to help further advance the rights of the student body at Clarion University. I feel there is a need for such individuals as myself in the student senate and am willing to give my time and energy to help in every way possible.

Kelly Beth Thompson

If I am re-elected student senator, my primary goal will be to represent the student body in all student concerns. I will work hard to see that the problems of safety and discrimination are dealt with. I will also try to ensure that the CUP students' academic and social needs are met. I do not believe that this university does enough for the students and I will work hard to change things.

Jason Weaver

As a student senate hopeful, there are several things I would like to accomplish. The first being the situation with parking permits. This semester, the university gave out 2,000 more permits than there are parking spaces. Another issue is the tuition increase each year. If elected, I would definitely look into these issues.

1994 Student Senate Candidates

Quanda Williams

As a student senator, I would strive for diversity on Clarion's campus. I plan to act as a liason between the students and the administrative powers. We must understand that education's span goes further than a textbook. In order to function in an ever chaning society, we must accept the unique qualities that we all possess.

Kelly Beatty

I am a junior psychology major running for student senate. If elected, I promise to increase the student body's awareness concerning everyone as a whole. I also plan to ensure that the necessary changes which need to be made concerning student activities and the university are met.

Melissa Dolmovich

As a student senator I feel that it is vitally important to address the needs and concerns of the student body. I will work closely with the faculty and administration of the university. I would also serve as a bridge between the university administrators and the student body.

Amy Donahue

I am running for re-election to the senate so that I may continue addressing the issues and concerns of the Clarion student body. I understand the policies and procedures of the CSA and senate having already served a one year term. I am a 1993 senator and the president of UAB. I have the leadership skills to properly address the issues that come from the students.

Ralph Godbolt

I have worked hard to represent the interest of Clarion students for the past 2 1/2 years. I hope you will give me the opportunity to represent you again.

Lori Wise Grunick

The issues and perspectives of full and part time non-traditional students need to be represented in student senate. Non-traditional students are a growing segment of the university population which has not had a voice in student senate.

Jim Junger

I have been on the student senate this term and would like to continue to serve the student body. Along with serving on the senate and its subcommitees, I am also a food and housing rep., involved with RACS, sit on the conduct board, and am a member of the Parking Committee. I am here to work for you and I hope to have your support.

Kari Davita King

If I am re-elected to the senate, I'll continue my commitment to serve all Clarion students. There are several issues that need to be addressed: multiculturalism, campus safety, parking problems and academic affairs. As a senator, I will represent all students in effective decision making.

Amy Mennen

I would like to be a part of student senate because I strongly believe in working towards the goals and ideas for Clarion University students. I feel that I would be able to contribute leadership, honesty, and ideas while being a student senator.

Amy Schaub

I am a junior communication and political science major. I have served on student senate for the past 2 years. Currently, I am the chair of the Legislative Affairs Committee. I am also a member of the Public Relations and Appropriations Committee. As a re-elected senator, I hope to continue implementing new and exciting changes.

Kevin G. Stephens

I am running for student senate because I feel I can address the various needs and concerns of our students. Furthermore, the decisions that will be made will impact and shape our university for years to come. When the time arrives to make these decisions, they must be made in the interest of all students.

Andrea Straw

I am running for student senate because, changes at Clarion are being made and I want to be a part of these changes. I want to help by using my voice to improve our university. Other activities that I'm involved in include Zeta Phi Eta, a National Professional Fraternity for Comm. and Theatre majors.

Carrie VanVerth

I feel that I would be capable of representing the student body fairly, giving each student the representation each deserves. I would competently see to it that the voice of students would be heard, having no reservations to defend the rights of the students. As a member of Alpha Sigma Tau and the greek community I could serve as a liason between greeks and the college community.

Maggie Collarini

My goal, as a student senator, is to ensure that your CSA activity fees are spent wisely. This means all recognized student organizations would have equal opportunities to access the capital funds account. Further, I will vote in your best interest on issues that concern you. I feel my experiences with several organizations have given me a strong base to choose the right direction for you and the university.

Katrina Helmick

I am running for re-election to student senate so I can continue to make your voice beard. I would like to see the improvements on this campus taken to an even greater height and feel strongly that I have the ability to do so. Along with senate, I am also involved with the Phi Sigma Sigma sorority, the French Club and the UAB.

Brian Hoover

I am a senior political science major. My experiences include student trustee, student senate president, interhall council president, resident assistant, orientation leader, president's student advisory board, conduct board and self-proclaimed CUP Student-of-the Year. This next semester will be a very important one for the CSA, so let my experiences work for you. When you vote, make the move, take that pen and vote for HOOV.

Michael Jewart

During my last year on student senate, I have served on 4 different committees and chaired the Rules and Regulations committee. Throughout the year, I have learned the ins and outs of the senate. I know that I can provide the leadership that will be necessary to guide the senate in the right direction. When you stop at the voting places mark Mike Jewart for student senate.

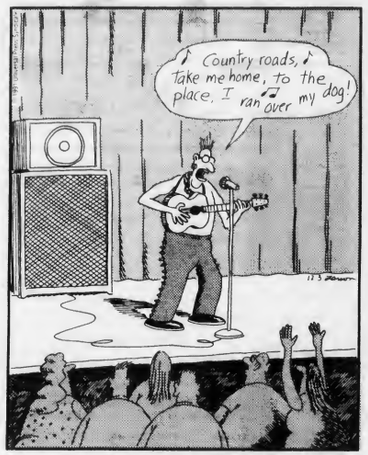

Tiffany Tatum

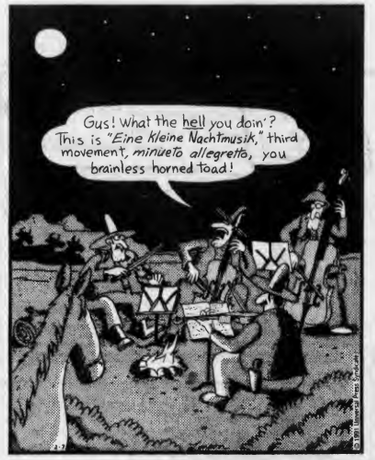

Student senate is here to represent ALL students. If I am elected to senate, I will keep the interest of the students as my top priority.

Hopkins catches 17 passes

Eagles lose on paper, cover Rock 29-25

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

The Slippery Rock Rockets compiled 518 yards and 33 first downs in last Saturday's game at Clarion. But when the visitors would march inside the Eagles' 15 yard line, the rock became just that... slippery. The Rockets turned the ball over three times while in prime scoring position, and despite outgaining Clarion by over 250 yards, Slippery Rock was polished by the Eagles, 29-25.

The igneous invaders slipped some trickery past the Eagles to strike midway through quarter number two. Greg Hopkins, who caught a school record 17 passes in the game, took a handoff from running back Lamonte Coleman and fired it 35 yards to Duane Hitchcock to "granite" the Rock a 7-0 lead.

Clarion eroded the following kickoff, and nine seconds later the Rock had struck gold again. Hopkins was on the receiving end this time, a 34 yard gem from James Poldiak, and a 13-0 Slippery Rock lead.

The Rockets attempted another "oxide" kick, but Clarion recovered this one, and the Eagles offense, which had been out of "zinc" up to now, suddenly came to life.

Freshman quarterback Chris Weibel, making his first collegiate start ever, "lead" the Eagles on a 54 yard drive which he polished off himself with a two yard sneak.

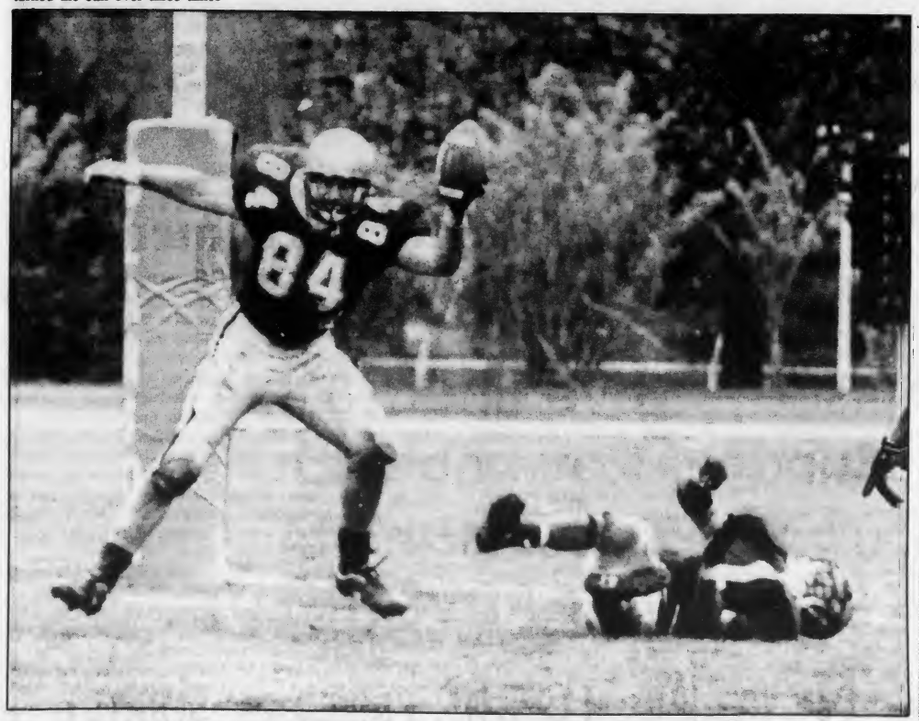

Unencumbered by this event, the Rock came right back. A 42 yard pass from Poldiak to Hitchcock placed the ball at the seven, but Poldiak was sacked by Frank Andrews and before it could gather any moss, Clint Terza picked up the rolling stone at the Clarion 15.

Weibel continued to chisel away at the Rock's defense. He hit Harper for 11, Brown for 25, then hit Brown in the end zone on a ball that caromed off Damien Henry's pads.

Leading 19-14 in the third, the Rock "alloyed" Eldridge Ponder to explode through the line and get a piece of the Rock's punt. Ponder then picked up the ball and "quarried" it 45 yards to paydirt giving Clarion a 22-19 lead.

Clarion got even "boulder" on their next possession as Weibel hit Kevin Harper in the end zone from six yards away, and the Eagles were in like flint.

The Rockets cut the lead to 29-25 on an 18 play excursion, and had the ball inside the Eagles' 15 with less than a minute to go. The Eagles were between a rock and a hard place, but Eric Acord sacked Poldiak on fourth down to preserve the Clarion victory.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Just the way we planned it : Tim Brown (84) celebrates his second quarter touchdown reception that was originally intended for Damien Henry (1). The ball deflected off of Henry's pads and fell into the awaiting arms of Brown.

Swimming & Diving Preview

Clarion women seeking 19th straight title

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Over the past two decades, the Clarion University Women's Swimming and Diving team has posted a phenomenal record of excellence, gathering eight national titles. Last year, Clarion won its 18th straight PSAC crown. This year should be no different for the Golden Eagles.

Seventh year coach Bill Miller believes that once again he has a strong, well balanced team. "This is the most talented team we've had in my seven years as head coach." That is an amazing statement, considering the fact that the Golden Eagles finished second at the NCAA Division II nationals last year.

Clarion's leaders this year will be seniors Kim Strawbridge, Kendra Raymond, and Justine Gibbons.

Strawbridge, the 1993 NCAA Division II "Diver of the Year," won the 3-meter national title last season. A four-time All-American, she was also second in the 1-meter event.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Livin' on the edge: Freshman sensation Nicole Joa is one of eight talented Clarion divers destined for a solid season.

Raymond also earned All-American honors last year with a seventh place finish in the 1-meter. A conference finalist last year, Raymond is looking for her strongest year.

Gibbons has earned 17 All-America placings in her career. Last year she placed 6th in the 100 and 200 backstroke, and 7th in the 500 freestyle. She is the CUP record holder in the 200 backstroke.

Clarion has a young team overall with three seniors, eight juniors, nine sophomores, and 13 freshman. Other returning All-American performers for Clarion are swimmers Stephanie Kissel, Dawn Jones, Tedra Kruse, and Kathy Randazzo. The divers are Jill Braught, Stephanie Kent, Amy Paganie, and Tammy Quinn.

Clarion's youth shall make a strong contribution to the team as well. In the 50 and 100 freestyle, Clarion has Lauri Ratica, a high school All-American, and Division III All-American transfer, Bethany Ross. Rounding out this event are Kathy Randazzo, a national qualifier, Colleen Davidson, Stephanie Wigfield, Tonya Burke, Sharon Conley, Mara Strelecki, and Heather Bachteler.

Lisa Kaylor is strong in the butterfly, and in the backstroke Clarion has Regan Rickert, Heather Heinz, Danielle More, Collette Shreckengost, Lynn Livingood, and Laurie Doherty.

In the breaststroke Kera Namey, Tara King and Jennifer Alcott are all planning to contribute.

Five seniors lead way

No 'Kwams' about it, the Eagles are contenders

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

This Saturday, the Clarion Unversity Men's Basketball team opens its season at home against Cleveland AAU. Clarion, led by six year coach Ron Righter, expects to quickly dismiss this opponent and begin what should be a very successful campaign in 1993-94.

Righter has led the Eagles to a 79-52 mark, and more impressively, a 36-17 record over the past two years. Three losses near the end of the season last year, two in overtime, probably cost the Eagles a place in the PSAC top four. "We want to be playing for a playoff bid come the last week of the season," said Righter. With Righter's combination of strong veterans and talented youth, he may just be in such a position.

Leading the way for Clarion is 6'4" shooting guard Kwame Morton. Morton, a 1993 All-American and a consensus 1993-94 first team pre-season All-American, is ready to lead his team farther than they have been in a long time. In the process, Morton will undoubtedly place his name in the record books.

The top returning scorer in Division II, Morton needs only 314 points to pass all time Clarion scoring leader Reggie Wells, who had 2,011 points in his illustrious career. Morton starts the year with a 43 percent career three point field goal percentage (285 of 667, both PSAC records), a career 80 percent mark from the free throw line, 359 rebounds, 210 assists, and 110 steals.

Joining Morton are five seniors, all who will contribute. Steve Branch, a 6'9" center, will start for the third year in a row. Branch averaged 12.2 ppg and 6.6 rebounds last year. He led the team in field goal percentage last year at 65.5 percent, and he blocked 20 shots.

Chris Boone, a 6'7" power forward, is a very physical player who led the team in rebounds last year with a 7.1 rpg average. Boone's aggressiveness greatly strengthens Clarion's inside game.

Brian Paige, a 6'3" guard/forward, complements Morton well in the backcourt. "With his excellent shooting range, opponents will think twice before dropping him to double team Kwame," Righter said. Paige was also one of the best free throw shooters in the country last year with a 91.8 percent mark from the charity stripe. He set a CUP record last year when he made 33 straight.

Ian Whyte, from Brighton, England, saw limited time last year, but expects to be an important fit into Clarion's plans this year. He towers above everybody on the court at 7'2", and with an improved inside game, he could be a real intimidator.

Steve Young, a 6'8" forward has been troubled with injuries throughout his career, but hopes to add strong depth to the Eagle attack.

Some newcomers are expected to make an immediate impact. Oronn Brown, a 6'1" guard from Brooklyn averaged 18.5 points, 8 rebounds, 5 assists, and 4 steals per game last year at New Utrecht High. "Hoop Scoop" magazine listed him as the 27th best player in New York City. Righter stated, "Oronn is a future star in the PSAC. He does everything well and will follow in the footsteps of Kwame."

Jamie Polak should be another successful freshman. The 6'2" guard was a first team WPIAL Section 10 choice, and was named the MVP of the section for Steel Valley High. He was also in the top ten in scoring in the WPIAL with a 23.5 ppg average.

Bill Chwalik is a 6'7" forward transfer from Macomb C.C. in Michigan. Chwalik is a very physical player who was named team MVP and first team all conference his senior year in high school. He is a hard working, blue collar power player.

Scott Cronk, a 6'7" forward, averaged 12 points and 11 rebounds per game for Erie McDowell. He led his team, one of the top ten Quad A teams in the state, in rebounds, blocked shots, and field goal percentage.

Bob Montrose, a guard that averaged 19.6 ppg as a senior, and walk-ons Scott Auman and Jim Brunelli should also add good depth.

Righter hopes that Clarion's tough early schedule will help his team prepare for the ever challenging PSAC schedule. "I feel this will be our toughest schedule since the 1988-89 season." However, this may be Clarion's best team in an equally long period of time.

Eagles meet up with IUP once again

by Tondelaya K. Carey
Sportswriter

The Clarion football team has climbed the mountain of adversity all season long, battling injuries that have claimed many starters. Despite this season of misfortune, the Eagles have pulled together to create a quality 5-4 overall record and a 3-2 mark in the PSAC-West.

The Golden Eagles meet up with #4 ranked IUP in their last game of the season. One year ago, the game was for the PSAC-West title. Clarion snatched a 35-26 win and the conference crown while IUP was rudely bumped from an invitation to the NCAA Division II playoffs.

This Saturday, November 13, the game plan is much different as the two teams meet to close out the 1993 regular season. Kickoff time is 1:30 pm at IUP's G.P. Miller Stadium.

IUP has already assured itself a share of the 1993 PSAC-West title and can take the crown outright with a victory, but can the Eagles put a dent in their plans? Can Clarion pull off the upset?

Clarion's offense is averaging 24.1 points per game and 337.6 yards of total offense. the Eagles are getting 144.3 on the ground and 193.2 passing the football.

Fresman Chris Weibel will most likely start at quarterback. Weibel has completed 14 of his 30 pass attempts for 171 yards and two touchdowns with 11 of his completions and 139 of his yards coming last week against Slippery Rock. Weibel is replacing junior Craig Ray who exited the California game with a fourth quarter injury, and Chris Zak, who suffered a knee injury against Westminster in Clarion's third game of the season.

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Thrown into the fray: Freshman quarterback Chris Weibel will be making only his second start of his collegiate career as the Eagles face the fourth ranked IUP Indians on Saturday.

Senior Damien Henry at tailback has gained 902 yards and scored five touchdowns on 211 carries in 1993. Henry ranks third at Clarion in career rushing (1,996 yards), third in career rushing touchdowns (23) and needs only 98 yards to become the second player in Clarion history to rush for 1,000 yards in a season.

Art Gregory, at fullback, has 403 yards and three scores this year.

The receiving corps suffered another severe blow Saturday when senior tight end Ryan Alleman suffered a broken leg against Slippery Rock. Alleman joins Jess Quinn and Marlon Worthy as receivers who sustained brutal injuries in 1993.

The remainder of the outlets is led by All-American tight end Tim Brown. Brown has caught 49 passes for 613 yards and two touchdowns. He is ranked seventh all-time in the PSAC for career receptions with 165. Brown also ranks third at Clarion in all-time receiving yards with 1,965.

Kevin Harper and Chris Skultety round out the receiving corps.

The Clarion defense is yielding 137.8 rushing yards and 237.7 passing yards for a total of 375.6 yards per game.

Leading the way up front will be Eric Acord, Ed Mariano, Brent Lehmann, and Chris Coleman. Tackle Joe Morlacci suffered a season-ending leg injury last week.

The linebackers include Damon Mazoff, who leads the team in tackles by far with 122, Clint Terza and Frank Andrews.

The secondary is led by corners Eldridge Ponder and Ric Giles and safeties Sean Spencer and Alim Kamara.

IUP is 9-0, 5-0 in the PSAC-West and has lost only one of its last 27 conference games, that to Clarion last year.

Scott Woods quarterbacks an offensive machine which averages 470 yards and 41.4 points per game. He has completed 101 of 190 passes for 1,567 yards and 12 touchdowns.

The main offensive weapon is senior tailback Michael Mann. Mann, who is the all-time leading rusher in PSAC history with 4,245 career yards, has 1,467 and 28 touchdowns this year.

Woods' receivers include JeMone Smith who has 22 receptions, Derrick Smith who has 21, and Theo Turner who has hauled in 16 passes.

The IUP defense is only giving up 298.8 yards of total offense per game, including 101 on the ground and 197.8 through the air. The Indians employ a team defense where nobody of the front seven has over 62 tackles and nobody has less than 37.

Kickoff time is 1:30 pm from IUP's G.P. Miller Stadium on Saturday, November 13.

While IUP has coasted to an unblemished record, the Eagles have struggled their way though a tough season. Clarion has seen two quarterbacks and three wide receivers suffer devastating injuries in 1993. Despite this turn of bad luck, the Eagles sport a 3-2 conference record, and only one poor half of football (the second half at California) separates Saturday's football game from another title match-up.

"It's a game where we gotta prove that last year wasn't a fluke," explained Clarion strong safety Sean Spencer, who nearly decapitated IUP wide receiver JeMone Smith on one of the most brutal hits in PSAC history last year.

Spencer and the Clarion defense will have a difficult task in stopping an IUP offense that averages 400 yards and 41 points a game. Last year, the Eagle defense was unstoppable in holding IUP to seven first half points and blitzing quarterback Scott Woods into a miserable six for 19 first half passing performance.

"The thing is, (this year) they're gunning for us," said Clarion cornerback Eldridge Ponder who was simply possessed in last week's 29-25 beating of Slippery Rock, "but we're still gunning for them."

The Eagles will need to have that same aggressiveness and that same fearless mentality they displayed in last year's masterpiece if they hope for a repeat performance.

"We know we have an uphill climb, we're just going to give it everything we have," explained Golden Eagle head coach Gene Sobolewski. "We're going to give it our best shot."

Eagles finish 7-23

Volleyball squad completes season at IUP

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

The Clarion volleyball team completed its season on Tuesday with a five set loss to IUP, a team it had defeated twice before.

IUP, which had not won a set against Clarion in two previous matches, captured the first set on Tuesday by a score of 15-10. The Indians rallied to take set two 15-13 before the Eagles would start to claw their way back.

Nicole Flambard and Lisa Flynn combined for 13 kills in game three and the Eagles squeezed out a 15-13 win.

Clarion started slowly in game four, but Flambard, who had 19 kills on the night, blasted five more to help give Clarion a 15-12 victory and set up a decisive fifth set.

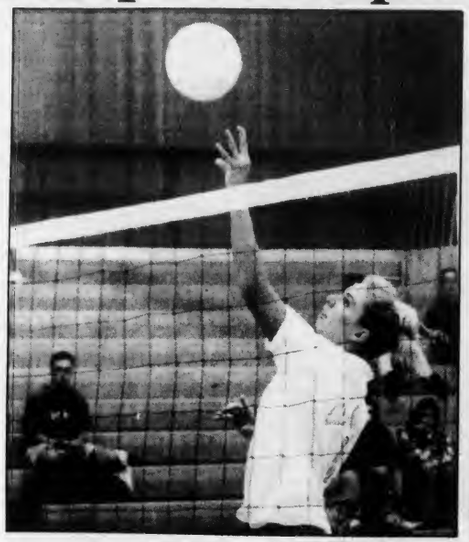

The fifth set was all Indians as they trounced the Eagles 15-2 to capture a hard-fought, five-set victory.

The young Eagles got a great match from freshman Dawn Frederick who dished out 39 assists in a losing cause.

The loss came just three days after Clarion looked unbeatable in a three-set destruction of Shippensburg. The Eagles used the support of a good-sized crowd to win 15-11, 15-10 and 15-9.

On Election Day, the Eagles travelled to California and, after capturing the first set 15-11, were dumped in the next three sets by scores of 8-15, 12-15, and 8-15.

The Eagles finished the season with a 7-23 record, but went 5-8 over the last month and a half after losing 14 straight earlier.

Clarion men prepare for 1993-94 campaign

Sports Information

A young but talented Clarion University Men's Swimming and Diving has embarked on its 1993-94 season, in search of another PSAC title and a high finish at the NCAA Division II Nationals.

Fresh off its 132.5 to 108.5 win over Allegheny College last Wednesday, the 1-0 Golden Eagles host West Chester in a dual meet that is set for 6pm Friday and contines at 11am Saturday at Tippin Natatorium.

The Golden Eagles are led by head coach Bill Miller, who begins his 16th season. Miller has already compiled an impressive 118-27 career dual meet record, including a 4-2 slate a year ago. The 1992-93 Golden Eagles were second at PSAC's and surged to sixth at the NCAA Div. II Nationals. Under Miller, Clarion has won 12 PSAC crowns in 15 seasons, with the best nationals finish coming in 1992, when Clarion was second to Cal-Bakersfield. A force in the PSAC from the team's first season, Clarion won 19 straight PSAC titles from 1971-89, placed second in 1990 and 91, first in 92 and second a year ago.

The 1993-94 outlook? "There's no question we have a young team this season," said Miller. "To win our 21st PSAC title and go on to a strong nationals finish, a few things need to happen. First, our veterans must step forward and provide quality leadership by example. Second, although we have plenty of potential, we must realize that potential in the second half of the season. Third, our young swimmers have to mature, then step up and prove themselves. If we can accomplish those goals, we are going to be very tough at the end of the season."

Clarion will be led in 1993-94 by senior captains Rick Bull, Chad Rimsky, Rob Reda and Pete Barry.

Bull, the most accomplished senior, is an outstanding butterfly and I.M. (Individual Medley) specialist. He was a two-time PSAC champ and a six-time All-American in 1993. Already notching a strong three-year career, Bull was the 1991 PSAC "Swimmer of the Year", a year he won three individual PSAC titles, and went on to six All-America finishes. Rick is an 18-time All-American and holds Clarion records in the 200 I.M. and the 400 I.M.

Rimsky, a backstroke and freestyle specialist, had a solid PSAC performance last year, placing eighth in the 200 back and ninth in the 100 back. Rimsky was also on the winning 400 medley relay, the second place 400 free relay and the fifth place 200 medley relay. He placed fourth in the 200 back and was 12th in the 500 free in 1992.

Reda, a freestyle/backstroke specialist and a 1993 Clarion "Scholar Athlete", and Barry, a freestyle swimmer, have made past contributions and are looking to step forward and have strong years at the 1994 PSAC championships.

"I think we have a group of hard-working captains this season, who are looking forward to their leadership roles," stated Miller. "I know they will be outstanding captains."

The Golden Eagles are also expecting strong performances in the pool from returning All-Americans Dan Stoner and Scott Rosenbaum, along John Oleksak and Joe Egan in diving.

Stoner paces the sprint freestyle events. A 13-time All-American and seven-time All-American in 1992, Stoner placed fifth at nationals in the 100 free. Rosenbaum, who earned All-America status last season, will be joined by veteran Robert Janeski, talented freshman Erich Heise, Kevin Sciullo, Kevin Stair and Craig Whaley.

Adding quality depth in the freestyle events will be John Williams, Pete Barry, Adam Coffman, Tom Connolly, Chad Rimsky, Mark Keister, Jim Hug and Tom Russo.

Stoner also owns the 100 record in the butterfly, while Bull, also strong in this event, won the PSAC title in the 100 last year and was second in the 200. Rosenbaum and Jim O'Connor, both placewinners at PSACs last year, and veteran Mike Klunk also provide depth.

Reda, John Williams, Mark Keister and Glenn Raymer are all looking to qualify for nationals in the backstroke, while Heise and Rosenbaum excel in the breaststroke event.

Diving coach Dave Hrovat will be solid with the return of All-Americans Joe Egan and John Oleksak. Egan, the defending PSAC one-meter champion, and Oleksak, who has four All-American placings in his career join Joe Aiello and Chad Heverly.

Sports Opinion

Boxing is just downright "Riddick"ulous

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

While watching last Saturday's heavyweight championship rematch between Evander Holyfield and Riddick Bowe, I came to the bitter realization that this sport was just downright stupid. I was rooting for a guy to get knocked out cold, I wanted to see him get destroyed, and I didn't have any clue why. I had never even met the guy. He could be the nicest guy in the world, always giving to charity, working to feed the hungry, to shelter the homeless. But, for some unknown reason, I wanted to see him get decked.

Nevertheless, I kept watching and rooting. It was a good fight, as far as fights go. I mean, neither fighter had bribed the other to take a fall, neither had pulled down the other's shorts, neither fighter's mother had come into the ring with shoe in hand looking to beat on the other fighter.

All of those situations had already sadly taken place in the world of boxing, but what occurred in the seventh round on Saturday was just downright kooky.

Some nutball decided to parachute into the center of the ring midway through the fight. That's right. Smack down in the center of where two large men are trying to beat each other senseless.

Luckily for the chutist, his parachute got caught in the lights, and he landed in the ropes where front row fans, who were feeling like hitting someone anyway, dragged him into the seats and began beating him. One guy used a cellular phone, another a glass bottle.

Imagine a bar full of drunkards, gazing at their buddies and saying, "You'd better take me home, I think I just saw a guy... well, forget it."

The chutist was carried out on a stretcher and taken to a hospital where he was checked for neck injuries. He was arrested and charged with unlawful flying. No charges were filed against phone man, bottle man or Holyfield and Bowe for that matter.

The rationale, the chutist could have really hurt someone. Hmm?

Steenlage to speak

Sports Information

A special program will be presented on Thursday, November 11th at Clarion University's Marwick-Boyd Auditorium, beginning at 7:30 pm. The program is free and open to everyone.

Presented by the Clarion University S.A.A.C. (Student Athlete Advisory Committee) and BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), motivational and inspirational speaker Bob Steenlage will be featured.

One of the nation's most sought after speakers, Steenlage travels nationwide to tell his story of America, of youth, of dreams and of fighting back from adversity to be a winner. His message is predicated on his own experience as an abused and neglected son of an alcoholic father.

Called by those who have heard his presentation as "a voice of our times", "a stunner", "a dynamic personality" and much more, Steenlage addresses crucial topics affecting today's youths and society.

Steenlage, a former teacher and coach, overcame devastating childhood problems to become Iowa's first four-time wrestling champion. Through experiences at West Point, where he graduated with a B.S. in engineering, and later in Vietnam, where he served as a Company Commander during the Tet Offensive of 1968 (earning a bronze star), Steenlage continued to struggle against the scars of a dysfunctional family history.

His is the story of a search for meaning in life, of overcoming obstacles, and of fighting back from adversity to become a winner. Steenlage's book "Fighting Back", is an American story of doing just that, and the courage to change one's life. With a depth of conviction that can only come from personal experience, he offers his secrets to motivation and success.

Sobolewski steps down after 11 years

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

Gene Sobolewski stepped down from his position as Clarion head football coach Tuesday.

Sobolewski, who has been the Golden Eagles head coach since 1983 and a member of the Clarion football staff since 1971, said he "just felt it was time to step aside and for the team to move forward" at Tuesday's team meeting.

He finished his eleventh head coaching season with a 44-7 loss Saturday at IUP and finished his career with a 60-51 mark.

In his first season, he guided the Eagles to the PSAC-Western Division crown and a number three ranking nationally. That year, Sobolewski was named PSAC-West and Kodak Region I "Coach of the Year."

In 1984, Clarion tied for first in the conference and in 1985, the Eagles finished the year ranked number 16 in Division II.

Last year may have been Sobolewski's most impressive coaching performance when he turned Clarion's O-4 start into a PSAC-West championship.

Gene Sobolewski retires after 11 years as coach.

"I wasn't exactly shocked (at the announcement), said sophomore guard Joe Lemley. "Nothing against 'Sob', but I sensed it was time for a change."

Sobolewski will continue in his position as an Associate Professor in the Department of Health and Physical Education.

"I have always enjoyed my teaching and continue to look forward to that," Sobolewski said.

He also cited his increasing interest in the utilization of computer graphic videos in teaching football techniques as a factor in his decision. "I intend to devote research time on this project right away and will use sabbatical leave time in the near future to continue experimenting."

A Freeport, Pennsylvania native, Sobolewski earned three football letters in high school and accepted a full scholarship to the University of Pittsburgh in 1960. He earned three letters and was the starting defensive end in 1962 and 63. His greatest individual effort came in Pitt's only loss in 1963. The Panthers were beaten by Navy that year, but Sobolewski sacked Navy quarterback Roger Staubach seven times.

Inducted into the Armstrong County Hall of Fame in 1980, Sobolewski was also co-winner of Clarion's "Distinguished Faculty" Award with former professor/football coach Charles Ruslavage in 1977 when the two developed the "Coaching Certification Program."

"We thank Gene for his 23 years of loyal and dedicated service to Clarion University and wish him well in the future," said President Diane Reinhard.

Former Clarion student makes the grade

At any time-- any one of us could non-voluntarily become disabled; sight impairment, hearing impairment, physical impairment, mental impairment, or mobile impairment. Disability shows no prejudice.

--Peg Smith

In 1990, Peg Smith, majoring in Business Administration and Computer Science, received an Associate of Science Degree from Clarion University. Her full-time employment for the past 24 years has been with the Quaker State Corporation at its Research Center in Seneca, Pa.

She describes herself as an avid outdoors person with "a little gypsy" in her blood. She has rambled extensively throughout North America, including every state within the United States, almost every province in Canada, and many states in Mexico.

In talking with Peg, it is easy to see the delight in her eyes and sense the passion in her heart when she talks of her explorations. She is compelling when she says that everyone should have the opportunity of access.

Although Peg is not disabled, awareness of accessibility and the problems encountered while traveling became apparent when she teamed with her travel companion, a friend with several disabilities. Their adventures have covered a vast area from trekking the heights of Mount McKinley to plunging the depths of the Pacific in a submarine. Together they have discovered that where there is a will there is a way.

As a result of Peg's many expeditions and first-hand awareness of those with disabilities, she was eager to somehow spread the word. She had the chance when she collaborated on The Real Guide: Able to Travel: True Stories by and for people with disabilities.

The book is unique because it was written by the handicapped for the handicapped. Who better to accurately describe the realities of accessibility than those who seek a barrier-free world. The Guide is a beacon of light -- reaching out across manmade barriers of all sizes and shapes, both moral and physical. This presents a strong case for those who desire to

On November 22, 1963, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was gunned down by assassins (yes, plural) as his motorcade traveled through the streets of Dallas. That was thirty years ago.

On November 22, 1993, few people our age will know or even give a big rat's butt what happened in Dallas thirty years ago. "So what?" you may ask. "That was then, this is now. Does it even really matter anymore?" Good question. Does it?

There isn't any point in babbling about "the end of the innocence" or "the fall of Camelot" as many editors have taken a shine to doing over the past three decades. Kennedy's body is as cold as the ground it is buried in. It is time to reflect and move on.

Let's reflect. Kennedy was a great man with a good heart and good ideas. Through somewhat questionable means he rose to occupy the highest office in the land. He fulfilled the duties of the office to the best of his abilities. He was shot and killed in Dallas by multiple assassins near the end of his first term. This was a tragedy. A very crude sociopath assumed the presidency shortly thereafter and got our nation hopelessly bogged down in an unpopular and possibly unwinnable war in order to feed the gaping, greedy maw of the military-industrial complex and in the process caused violence, suffering and death on a scale to make Kennedy's assassination look like a Bugs Bunny cartoon.

Okay, we've reflected. Let's move on. How does this affect us today, in 1993?

The actual killing of John F. Kennedy isn't what is important now. His untimely death cannot stand alone as the harbinger of bad times, the "end of the innocence." One must also include the assassination of his brother, Robert F. Kennedy, along with Malcolm X and Martin Luther King, Jr. in order to fully grasp the big picture. Over the course of five years, these four men, four heroes, were killed, leaving a gaping hole in our national consciousness, a hole that has since never been filled. It's not a lack of Kennedys that is hurting us, it's a lack of heroes. Therein lies the problem.

What heroes do we really have today, not counting sports figures or entertainers? Who are the moral agents of our national feeling? Who can we look up to, who can we rally around?

The answer is: nobody. And until we have someone, we may as well keep on mourning JFK.

FYI

Many of my African American brothers and sisters on this campus are not aware of all of the black organizations on this campus and their purpose. As Vice President of Political Actions of the African American Student Union, my committee members and I felt it necessary to put this information out to not only the African American students, but the white students as well. This information is available to any -- and everybody in self-education, however, not everyone shares this belief. You cannot sit idly by and expect things to be handed to you because if you do, then everything you want in life will just pass you by. I don't know about you, but I want to make a difference on Clarion University's campus! Before this can happen, the African Americans on this campus need to be more educated as to different black organizations, you need to get more active and involved, (attend the AASU general body meetings, speakers, and other educational programs), and you need to basically wake up! No one is going to do anything for us, therefore we have to do it ourselves. Life in Clarion is not great all of the time, so stop pretending it is!

As a member of the African Student Union Board, I am going to give the purpose of our office as it is stated in our constitution. Article II states, "The Black Student Union of the University of Clarion is an organization whose aim and purpose is to: 1. Provide an outlet for black students on campus to work through many of the basic problems and confrontations peculiar to Black students in a predominately white academic institution; 2. To provide an arena for fellowship and socialization in keeping with their black cultural heritage; 3. To effect a friendship and peer exchange to aid in one another's achievements and their highest academic potential; and 4. to effect a mutual understanding, respect for and appreciation of the diverse racial and ethnic entities existing within the University of Clarion.

Remember, get involved!

It's about responsibility

Dear Editor:

Several weeks ago, Lynn Haraldson, Director of United Campus Ministry, wrote a very candid letter to you about our college education preparing us for the "real world." In her letter she stated what the "real world" consists of: individuals and families who are homeless, women being battered by their spouses, children being abused, physically and mentally, as well as neglected, along with many other examples. My purpose in writing this letter to you is not to point out, as Lynn Haraldson did, what the "real world" is all about. Instead, my purpose is one of a more intrapersonal approach -- how serving others has improved my life.

I have always known that serving those in need was the right thing to do; I viewed service from an altruistic point of view. When I would wash cars to help raise money to buy books for the schools that were devastated by Hurricane Andrew, I felt good that I could lend a helping hand. Or the times I would show up at Tippen Gym to help set up and tear down everything that was needed for the Red Cross Blood Mobiles, this made me feel good because I knew that everyday there are people in great need of blood in order to survive (I would donate as well). Sure, I could rattle off many of the service projects that I have been a part of, as many of us could, and each one of them gave me a warm-fuzzy feeling inside.

Over the summer I began to reevaluate my position on service. As I was thinking about why I do service I began to notice a change in how I perceive serving those people in our society who are in need. The conclusion that I came up with is that service is not about altruism, it's about responsibility. It is my responsibility to help those people who have fallen victim, and to me that is what they are, to a society that does not, and will not, help them. It is also my responsibility to push for change so that the number of people who have become victims in the actively participate in the joys of traveling.

The guide is published by Prentice Hall and is available at all major book stores. The editor-in-chief, Alison Walsh, associate editors Jodi Abbott and Peg Smith have never met. The book was produced by the use of electronic media-computers, fax machines, and telephones.

Peg is a liaison between those with disabilities and those without -- connecting people to accessible places and with friendly people willing to help. The 600-plus page paperback and Peg have brought joy to many, adding inspiration and encouragement along the way. Peg says: "Writing has given me a tremendous opportunity to stretch; I'm just an entrepreneur at heart and desire to serve my fellow man."

A final note: While majoring in Business Administration, Peg took the elective "Writing for Media" because she loved to write. She submitted her first class assignment to Alaska Outdoors magazine. They published the article and the rest is history; her photojournalistic skills have reached a varied market. In her spare time, she is Travel Editor for the Disabled Outdoors Magazine, 2052 W. 23 Street, Chicago, Il 60608. She continues to "pass the word" for the disabled.

merry-go-around situations of society become fewer in number. If I, and the many other people on this campus, do not help those who suffer from situations beyond their control, we are only perpetuating the problems. When I say perpetuating the problems, I mean that we are condoning homelessness; we are advocating the cyclical nature of poverty, drug and alcohol abuse; we are saying it's okay to discriminate against people on the basis of their religion, color, gender and/or their sexual orientation. In order to put a halt to these injustices we must be willing to take time out of our busy college lives, serve others in the capacity in which they need it, and speak out against the problems that plague our society. I have found that in doing these things I am, to some degree, fulfilling my responsibility to others, and knowing that, altruism takes shape, but in a different form.

Matt Ames-(113), Kevin Stephens-(113) and Ed Rogers-(112). The alternates are Jennifer Koren-(111), Tiffany Tatum-(105), Quanda Williams-(102), Jason Weaver-(100) and Kelly Beatty-(100).

"The elections went well," said Jay Campbell, chair of the elections committee. "I think we had a great turnout and I wish next year's senate a lot of luck."

676 students cast their votes in the three day election.

"I'm excited for the new year. I'm excited for the new Senate," said Brian Hoover, a 1992 Student Senate President. "It's going to be a good one."

Student Senate President Gara Smith, who did not seek re-election said, "I'm very proud of the 1993 Student Senate's accomplishments and we're still not finished."

According to the new Clarion Students Association constitution,the new Student Senate will have terms coinciding with the academic year, changing the terms from following the calendar year.

The new Senate will take over next semester.

The Call incorrectly reported last week that new by-laws for the elections were passed along with the new constitution. The by-laws governing the running of the elections, in fact, have not yet been passed.

They were scheduled to be voted on at Monday's Senate meeting, but a quorum of senators was not present at the meeting.

The by-laws are scheduled to be on the agenda at next Monday's meeting.

The Senate has been following the guidelines even though they have not been officially adopted, said Campbell.

What we have is a failure to communicate

©The Miami Herald

Now that my son has turned 13, I'm thinking about writing a self-help book for parents of teen-agers. It would be a sensitive, insightful book that would explain the complex, emotionally charged relationship between the parent and the adolescent child. The title would be: "I'm a Jerk; you're a Jerk."

The underlying philosophy of this book would be that, contrary to what you hear from the "experts," it's a bad idea for parents and teen-agers to attempt to communicate with each other, because there's always the risk that one of you will actually find out what the other one is thinking.

For example, my son thinks it's a fine idea to stay up until 3 a.m. on school nights reading what are called "suspense novels," defined as "novels wherein the most positive thing that can happen to a character is that the Evil Ones will kill him BEFORE they eat his brain." my son sees NO connection between the fact that he stays up reading these books and the fact that he doesn't feel like going to school the next day.

"Rob," I tell him, as he is eating his breakfast in extreme slow motion with his eyes completely closed, so that he sometimes accidentally puts food into his ear, "I want you to go to sleep earlier."

"DAD," he says, using the tone of voice you might use when attempting to explain an abstract intellectual concept to an oyster, "you DON'T UNDERSTAND. I am NOT tired. I am SPLOOSH (sound of my son passing out face-down in his Cracklin' Oat Bran)."

Of course, psychologists would tell us that falling asleep in cereal is normal for young teen-agers, who need to become independent of their parents and make their own life decisions, which is fine, except that if my son made his own life decisions, his ideal daily schedule would be: Midnight to 3 a.m. -- Read suspense novels; 3 a.m. to 3 p.m. -- sleep; 3:15 p.m. -- order hearty breakfast from Domino's Pizza and put on loud, hideous music recorded live from hell; 4 p.m. to midnight -- blow stuff up.

Unfortunately this schedule would leave little room for, say, school, so we have to supply parental guidance ("If you don't open this door right now I will break it down and charge it to your allowance"), the result being that our relationship with our son currently involves a certain amount of conflict, in the same sense that the Pacific Ocean involves a certain amount of water.

At least he doesn't wear giant pants. I keep seeing young teen-age males wearing ENORMOUS pants that two or three teen-agers could occupy simultaneously and still have room in there for a picnic basket; pants that a clown would refuse to wear on the grounds that they were too undignified.

The young men wear these pants really low, so that the waist is about knee level and the pants butt drags on the ground. You could not be an effective criminal wearing pants like these, because you'd be unable to flee on foot with any velocity.

POLICE OFFICER: We tracked the allege perpetrator from the crime scene by following the trail of his dragging pants butt.

PROSECUTOR: And what was he doing when you caught up with him?

POLICE OFFICER: He was hobbling in a suspicious manner. What I want to know is, how do young people buy these pants? Do they try them on to make sure they DON'T fit? Do they take along a 570-pound friend, or a mature polar bear, and buy pants that fit HIM?

I realize I've mainly been giving my side of the parent-teen-ager relationship, and I promise to give my son's side, if he ever comes out of his room. Remember how the news media made a big deal about it when those people came out after spending two years inside Biosphere 2? Well, two years is NOTHING. Veteran parents assure me that teen-agers routinely spend that long in the bathroom. In fact, veteran parents assure me that I haven't seen anything yet.

"Wait till he gets his driver's license," they say. "That's when Fred and I turned to heroin."

Yes, the next few years are going to be exciting and challenging. But I'm sure that, with love and trust and understanding, my family will get through them OK. At least I will, because I plan to be inside Biosphere 3.

Total project cost: $409,000

Admissions and Public Safety offices will move

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Several offices on campus will be relocated beginning as early as next semester.

The Public Safety office will move from its Wood Street location to the Thorn 1 building near Becker Hall on Thorn street.The move will allow the admissions office to occupy Wilshire House, the current location of Public Safety.

John Thiem / Clarion Call

The Public Safety building will become the admissions office after renovation.

Public Safety could be moved as early as the end of December.

An addition will be built on Wilshire House before the admissions office moves in to accommodate a "much more pleasant and practical environment," said University Spokesman Ron Wilshire.

The entire project would move the Admissions office to Wilshire House, Public Safety to Thorn 1, Publications to the Receiving building and Printing Services from the basement of Davis Hall to the Receiving building. No plans have been made for how to utilize the gained space from the admissions office.

The expansion and moves will cost an estimated $409,000. Wayne Key, interim vice president for finance and administration, presented the figure to the Nov. 10 meeting of the university's Council of Trustees.

According to Wilshire, funding for the project will come from the capital component of out-of-state student tuition. To pay for the project, Wilshire said $82,000 was saved from last year's budget, $60,000 will come from this year's budget and $63,000 from next year's budget, with the remainder coming from the regular budget.

The move by the admissions office was a key factor in the project.

"Enrollment management has been targeted as a number one concern on Clarion campus for a number of years," explained Wilshire.

Problems with parking and difficulty in finding the admissions office have been frequent complaints by potential students and their families for several years. Wilshire said the move will give the admissions department greater visibility and will be more attractive to visiting potential students.

The expansion of Wilshire House will add 2,400 square feet of space to the building which will provide the admissions department with approximately twice the amount of space they have now.

The actual cost of the expansion at the Wilshire House will be approximately $150,000.

Because the moves and expansion will not require a new building, approval from the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) is not necessary.

Scott Shewell, spokesman for SSHE, said state approval for expansion is only necessary in three instances. The first is if the proposed project is to be funded with money from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The second if the funding is being requested from other than operating funds, and third, if the project adds "significant" square footage, as in the case of a new building.

Wilshire explained that it is extremely difficult to get approval and funding for new construction. "Renovation is a lot easier to accomplish than new building," said Wilshire, adding that SSHE will be informed of the status of project but that all approval is obtained at the university level.

John Thiem / Clarion Call

Thorn 1 will become the home of Public Safety, while Publications will move to the Recieving area.

Key presented preliminary drawings of the proposed Wilshire House addition at the Council of Trustees meeting. Expansion construction could start next summer.

No definite plans have been approved, nor have bids for the project been solicited.

New minors to be offered in music and geronotology

courtesy of
University Relations

Two new minors, geronotology and music, were approved by the Clarion University Council of Trustees at its November 10 meeting. The proposed minors will be forwarded to the State System of Higher Education for approval.

Dr. Helen Lepke, associate academic vice president, reviewed the proposals for the trustees. Demand for both of the new minors, which will utilize existing courses, was given as reason to offer the minors.

The minor in geronotology will be an interdisciplinary effort by the departments of anthropology, philosophy, political science, sociology, psychology, special education and the school of nursing. The minor program will be overseen by a geronotology advisory committee with a rotating elected coordinator, and an outside five-member advisory board.

Clarion University offers seven courses in geronotology, however they are not organized into a recognized block of study. The minor is designed to provide a cohesive program of study for these seven related courses which will be accessible to students from a variety of Clarion's majors.

The objectives of the minor are: to educate students from a variety of degree programs about the multifaceted changes and needs of the elderly; to prepare students to work with the elderly; to provide structure and integration for existing courses in geronotology; to give formal and marketable recognition to students who have developed expertise in geronotology; to give students an interdisciplinary view of aging; to meet the needs and interests of nontraditional students; and to promote faculty scholarship in an interdisciplinary field.

The minor in music, which is designed as an enrichment minor, would consist of 21 semester hours taken from existing courses. This would include 10 to 12 credits from 100 and 200 level courses, six credits from 300 and 400 level courses, and a three credit capstone of independent study.

The courses include the same introductory and intermediate courses that form the basis for the B.M. and B.S. programs in music. Allowing selection of courses at higher levels allows the student to pursue a field of particular interest. All of the courses are currently in place and it is not anticipated that any additional faculty or staff would be required to meet the teaching requirements.

The minor will permit students, from all academic disciplines, an opportunity to complete a course of study that reflects on their transcript, without requiring them to make the extensive commitment to undertake a second major that could delay graduation.

Most Clarion students surveyed have cheated on exams and would do it again

by Katie Zaikoski
Asst. News Editor

Is cheating a problem in the classrooms at Clarion University? Would students cheat if they knew it was possible to get away with it? Would the person next to you tell the professor if they saw you cheating? According to a recent survey conducted on cheating, the answers are both disturbing and startling.

Students were asked: "Have you ever cheated on a test or quiz while at C.U.P?" 151 students were surveyed and surprisingly, 143 students responded with "yes."

"Would you cheat on a test if you knew you would not get caught?" 147 students replied that they would. Only eight students surveyed said that they would not cheat if guaranteed they would not be caught.

"If you were aware of a classmate cheating on a test, would you say anything?" 109 of these same students said that they would say nothing if someone was cheating during an exam.

When asked to comment on the issue, some random student answers were;

•Robert MacBeth, freshman, Elementary Speech; "Yes, because they are stealing and screwing up the grading curve. Yes I would notify a professor if I saw someone cheating."

•Rick Ruperto, sophomore; "Yes because they are taking points away from me and the whole class."

•Sharon Yonkolski, freshman, Business; "Yes, because they are stealing from all of us. But they are hurting themselves also."

•Marcy Rearick, junior, Psychology; "It's wrong to cheat on an exam. I would hope people are here to learn, not to get grades. I fear that people who cheat on exams might cheat in their line of work once they graduate. The economy cannot afford this kind of job performance and is already suffering from it. I would not notify a professor of cheating, unless I did it in a general, non-specific way."

•Heather McCready, sophomore, Biology/Medical Technician; "From the other student responses the only thing these students are concerned with is the destruction of the 'curve.' They are not addressing the correctness of the act itself. I don't feel it's wrong to cheat on one exam. You are responsible for learning the information which you'll take into your job situation. If you don't learn the information you're putting yourself at a disadvantage and may be putting someone else in danger because of your ignorance."

•Melissa Porter, sophomore, undecided; "I think it is wrong to cheat on an exam, this shows you have not put in the time and effort and you shouldn't use someone else's valuable information."

•Bobbie Simpson, sophomore, Education; " It's wrong to. If not prepared, it's your fault for the grade you receive. By cheating, what are you really learning?"

Most survey respondents admit they have cheated. Oddly, students are more concerned cheating will ruin the grade curve than with the ethics of cheating.

Supreme Court lets abortion law stand

A Mississippi abortion law requiring unwed girls to get both parent's permission or a judges consent before ending their pregnancies survived a Supreme Court challenge Monday.

The court rejected a constitutional attack on the law, called by opponents "devastating" and "the most burdensome of its kind."

The action was not a ruling, but a refusal to review the law. Nevertheless, both sides in the national debate over abortion were quick to react.

Pro-choice advocates blasted the decision while pro-life groups rallied to the defense of the court's refusal to hear the case. Both sides vowed to continue their fight.

The Mississippi law was enacted in 1986 but had been tied up in court since a federal judge barred its enforcement that same year.

$261 billion defense budget passed

The U.S. House of Representatives approved a $261 billion defense budget Monday that endorses a more restrictive version of President Clinton's policy on homosexuals serving in the military.

Approved by a vote of 273-135, the overall package largely tracks President Clinton's military blueprint and postpones many of the tough decisions on cutting weapons and reducing troops in a post-Cold War world.

The budget for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 is $2.6 billion less than the amount Clinton proposed and $12 billion below last year's level.

"This report reflects a well-reasoned and prudent approach for funding defense programs," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Cal., of his first military budget since succeeding Les Aspin as House Armed Services Committee chairman.

The Senate is expected to vote on the package later this week before sending it on to the president.

Buttafuoco sentenced

The saga that began in a Long Island auto body shop ended Monday in a courtroom where a handcuffed, smirking Joey Buttafuoco was led away to the same fate that befell this former lover, Amy Fisher - jail time.

Buttafuoco's expression never changed as he was sentenced to the maximum six months in prison and fined $5,000.

He will serve five on probation for the statutory rape conviction as well.

Michael Jackson "not hiding" say lawyers

Michael Jackson was not trying to escape child abuse charges back home when he checked into an overseas treatment center for drug users, his lawyers said Monday.

"If Michael Jackson wanted an excuse to stay out of the United States, all he had to do is stay on his tour," attorney Bertram Fields said.

Jackson has cancelled the remainder of his world tour.

Hawaii receives apology

The U.S. House of Representatives Monday joined with the Senate in approving a formal apology to native Hawaiians for the U.S. led overthrow of their monarchy 100 years ago.

The resolution acknowledges the U.S. role in the rebellion that overthrew Queen Liliuokalani Jan. 17, 1893 when Hawaii was an independent kingdom.

The Senate approved the measure on Oct. 27.

"Gettsyburg" to aid college

A Civil war movie starring Jeff Daniels will help fund the restoration of the Bowdoin College home where a college graduate and president who fought for the Union in the Civil War lived.

"Gettysburg" was screened in Portland, Maine in early October, and money from the premier will go to the restoration of Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain's house.

Chamberlain, who graduated from Bowdoin College in 1852, took part in 24 engagements during the Civil War and won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his part in the battle of Gettysburg.

Chamberlain is credited with saving the Union from defeat at that battle by staving off an attack on the hill called "Little Round Top."

Stanford approves harassment policy

After three years of debate and rewriting, Stanford University officials enacted a new policy in early October that deals with sexual harassment on campus.

Unlike policies at some other institutions, Stanford's does not prohibit consensual relations between students and professors, but does warn that there are risks involved when the relationship is between individuals in "inherently unequal positions."

The policy "comes down squarely on the side of confidentiality," said University President Gerhard Casper, regarding the conflict between the desire "to establish records of transgressions that can be reviewed later" and the assurance of confidentiality that would encourage people to come forward.

Sexual harassment is defined as unwanted sexual advances, requests for sexual favors or unwelcomed physical conduct.

Empty pockets save students

Two University of Florida students were the victims of attempted robbery while they were on their way to play tennis at some campus courts, police said.

Sophomore Jason Conaughty said he and first-year student Vicente Parra were getting out of their car in late October near the tennis courts when they were confronted by a man with a gun at about 9:30 p.m.

Conaughty said the suspect made them empty their pockets, but after learning neither was carrying money, he asked them, "Have you seen Craig or Mike?"

When the two said they had no idea what he was talking about, he left.

Survey: Frat members drink more

Residents of campus fraternity houses drink nearly three times as much booze as other college men, while residents of on-campus sorority houses consume twice as much as alcohol as other women, a recent study said.

Results of the study, conducted by the Core Institute for Alcohol and Other Drug Studies at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, were reported in the October issue of Campus Crime.

"This is significant new information that campus officials and prevention specialists need to have," Cheryl Presley, director of the institute, told the newsletter.

"The Amazing Professor P" will dazzle the audience with his hypnotist abilities on Friday, November 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

Better known as Mr. John Postlewait, director of the Drug and Alcohol Education program at the university, "Professor P" will involve the audience with amusing impressionistic exercises. Under hypnosis, volunteers from the audience have been known to talk in a language from a far away galaxy, experience the feeling of weightlessness, perceive odors and fragrances, forget names and how to deal with simple numbers, participate in contests without leaving their seats, and perform feats of superhuman strength.

One of "Professor P's" favorite hypnotic feats to observe from the audience is the "ride on a roller coaster." "They really get into it," he comments. Leaning from side to side, some put their hands in the air, and even funnier, some put their legs up. Some of "Professor P's" audience even did summersaults on the ground.

The "Amazing Professor P" will send a curious audience on a mysterious, hypnotic ride.

Another of his favorite feats is when a volunteer is hypnotized to stiffen all of the muscles in his or her body enough to lay flat and balance suspended between two chairs.

"Professor P" has been exercising hypnosis programs at colleges and universities for 11 years. He first became interested in it when he went to a seminar in Maine in 1982. He observed a hypnotist working with victims and witnesses of crimes for research and development purposes.

Has "Professor P" ever reversed the roles and been the participant of someone else's hypnotic suggestions? You bet! "Professor P," himself, was once hypnotized to trace back to a younger age when he was little. He remembers particular points about when his family was "building a new house and baking cookies for the carpenters."

The main purpose of his program is for the "entertainment and enjoyment of the people." But, at the same time, his program is meant to be educational. Professor P" explains the many uses of hypnosis in law enforcement and its many applications in therapy, just as he was first educated in it 11 years ago.

The "Amazing Professor P's" performance will be free and open to the general public. Come to experience the mystery of hypnotism and the unknown feats of the unconscious from the little swinging watch.

City Theatre extends hit "Oleanna"

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

David Mamet's hit production "Oleanna," which was originally scheduled to close this Sunday, is now running through December 5 at Pittsburgh City Theatre's Hamburg Studio.

"Oleanna" focuses on communication problems between a college student and her professor to address issues of political correctness, sexual harassment and power. The original casts consists of Victoria Rhoades as Carol and Kenneth Meseroll as Carol's professor, John.

An informal "talk back" is a unique aspect of the City Theatre Production. After each performance, audience members are encouraged to express their views or experiences about the issues raised by the play with cast members and other patrons.

"The audience response has become an intregal part of the play," explained Marc Masterson, the producing director of "Oleanna." "People want to talk about what they perceive has happened, or not happened, on the stage."

Critics agree with Masterson. "It's impossible not to have an opinion about this incendiary bomb (of a play) in which Mamet pushes our buttons on questions of power and political correctness. Perceptions count for everything here," says Ron Weiskind in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

"Mamet defies you to watch his play placidly," writes Ed Blank, drama critic of the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review. "So will anyone who has seen it."

"Popular response is the reason we extended this show," said Masterson. "one patron reported she and her husband argued about this play until 2 a.m. on a week night. We have really succeeded in getting Pittsburghers involved in live theatre with this show."

Tickets for "Oleanna" can be purchased at the City Theatre Box Office located on 57 S. 13th Street (on the corner of Bingham and 13th Streets, South Side) or charge purchases may be made by calling (412) 431-CITY.

Ticket prices for "Oleanna" range from $17 to $25. Discounts and special packages are available for groups of ten or more. Half-price tickets are available 15 minutes before the performance to students and senior citizens with proper ID. Prices for students and professors are $10.50 on any Tuesday and groups of four or more pay only $8.

City Theatre is a professional, nonprofit performing arts organization and is a member of the Theatre Communications Group and Theatre Association of PA.

"Much Ado" about matchmaking Shakespeare way

by Michelle Sporer
Contributing Writer

Dr. Richard Seaver of the speech communication and theatre department should take pleasure in the knowledge that his directing debut at Clarion is sure to be a success.

The Shakespearean comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing, " which has run since Tuesday and continues through this Saturday evening, is marked by a strong cast of actors and actresses who competently carry off Seaver's change of place and time within the production.

According to Seaver, he decided to set this particular Shakespearean play in West Africa, 150 years ago, in order to "enhance some of the values inherent in the play by shifting it in time and place. These values include exotic, fairy tale quality, a milieu in which formal and informal courtesy is customary and an environment in which quick judgements are necessary."

The play revolves around two love stories; one with Hero (Marion Russell) and Claudio (Michael Lee Martin) that nearly ends in disaster and the second with two very reluctant individuals, Beatrice (Andrea Straw) and Benedick (Daniel Brady).

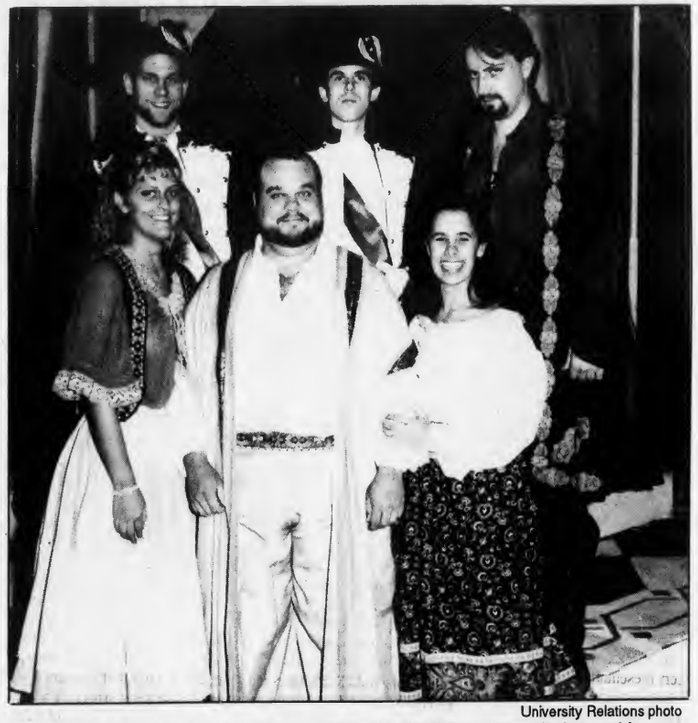

Russell does a marvelous job with her role as matchmaker and jilted bride. Martin, too, holds his own, although his conviction of boundless love for Hero and then later disgust for her "apparent" infidelity, is at times lacking in substance.

Andrea Straw, on the other hand, plays a delightfully cynical Beatrice with skill. She is perfectly cast and paired well with Brady (Benedick). Although, Brady also has rare moments of a "too staged" performance. But these are just minor observations within the whole picture.

Congratulations and compliments should go to Jeffrey Powell (Leonato) who is cast as Hero's father and one of the strongest supporting characters. Powell's "taking to the part" hints at an acting background.

Seaver has proved himself a capable director who knows how to combine the cast's talents to attain a fine theatrical performance.

The play is scheduled for November 16-20 at 8 p.m. in Marwick-Boyd's Little Theatre. Tickets for the production are $5 for adults, $4 for students, and free to Clarion University students with valid identification cards.

Music review

New releases range from wildly hip to rock classics and legends

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Here's what's new and exciting at Capitol Records. Four new hit releases are now available in the nearest music store.

Frank Sinatra Duets is the recording hit of the decade as he returns to the studio for the first time in 15 years to record classics with several famous recording artists such as Arethra Franklin, Gloria Estefan and even U2's Bono who is starring in Sinatra's next MTV video.

Paul McCartney features 24 live tracks from his recent "New World Tour" in his new album Paul Is Live.

US3 Hand On The Torch is the cross-fertilization of jazz and hip hop reconstructed from classic jazz.

HEART reunites their rock 'n roll sounds and feelings in their new album Desire Walks On. Their music takes fans back to their earlier days.

Look for these new hits because they are only available to those with open minds and a love for good music.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-The Los Angeles Times reported that the Novel Cafe in Santa Monica recently featured Kopi Luwak, the Sumatran coffee reputed to be the most expensive in the world, at $130 per pound. According to the cafe's owners, a certain kangaroo-like Sumatran animal eats only the "ripest, best" coffee cherries, digests them, and excretes them, after which natives pick the beans and process them into Kopi Luwak.

-In Austin, Texas in October, landlord John Mattingly Jr., 26, served an eviction notice in court on his grandmother, Dorothy Webb, 85, for non-payment of rent. Said she, in court, "I guess I'm not dying fast enough (for him)."

-California Attorney General Dan Lungren proposed in October that the state measure the pain-killing attributes of cyanide gas in order to demonstrate that the gas chamber is not "cruel and unusual" punishment, as contended by the American Civil Liberties Union in a recent lawsuit. Lungren proposed that the state put rats in pain by "colon balloon distension" - inserting balloons in the anuses of 60 rats and inflating them until the rats squeal - and then administering cyanide at different doses to see if the pain subsides.

-In February, a squirrel apparently fell into a small vent on the roof of Kim Richardson's home in Lawrenceville, Georgia and got into the plumbing pipes. Richardson reported that she discovered the animal when she sat down on the toilet and felt a scratching on her derriere. She "almost died," she said later. The squirrel had drowned by the time help arrived.

-In Baton Rouge, Louisiana in October, Larry McKee, 42, was arrested and charged with robbing a convenience store. The robbery started in the back room, and the robber wasn't aware that a camera crew from WBRZ-TV was taping a feature on crime in the front of the store. The tape clearly shows the robber running through the store and out the front door.

-In October in Los Angeles, Humberto Amaya, 32, at first bragged to customers and staff at the Guatemalteca Market that he had just killed a man. But when they failed to take him seriously he became angry, went home and returned with a freshly severed head, which he began waving around the market and then set it down next to the pastry case to the horror of onlookers. Police believe that Amaya, who is a tailor, killed the man when he tried to steal Amaya's stereo and stitched the body's stomach to its chest so that it would fit into a garbage can.

-Long-standing calls for reform of New Jersey's county medical examiner system were renewed in October when The New York Times reported that examiners in Cumberland and Ocean counties had recently erred in making cause-of-death reports. In the Cumberland case, the county medical examiner, Dr. Larry Mapow, failed to see a bullet lodged in a man's skull and instead attributed death to a blow by a blunt instrument. Mapow did see a second bullet in the man's brain, but merely removed it and noted it without attributing significance to it.

-In July, the police chief of Manila, Col. Generoso Necesito, told reporters that the reason more than $25,000 worth of marijuana and cocaine were missing from the police evidence room recently was that rats and cockroaches had eaten it.

Just listen to all that jazz

by Sherry Dickerson
Lifestyles Writer

Are you in the mood for jazz? Well, you are in luck! The Clarion University Jazz Band will be performing its Fall concert presentation. All are definitely welcome to attend this year's jazz extravaganza. The concert will be held in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium on Monday, November 22, 1993, starting at 8:15 p.m.

The Clarion Jazz Band will play the music of Duke Ellington, Maynard Ferguson, Sammy Nestico, and many other big name jazz singers and composers will be heard. The show promises to be a memorable one.

This jazz ensemble will be led in prepared selections by student conductors Todd Karenbauer and Robert Colbert. The program will also include vocal jazz selections in groups and solo appearances, such as the performance of "Birdland" which was recorded by Manhattan Transfer.

The Clarion Jazz Band is under the direction of Dr. Lisa Johnson, conductor and music director, who is currently in her third year as Assistant Professor of Music at Clarion University. In addition to Dr. Johnson's busy teaching schedule, she performs in New York City where she plays woodwind instruments.

Don't let this evening of free, live jazz pass you by. For more information concerning this and other concerts, please contact the music department office at 226-2287.

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

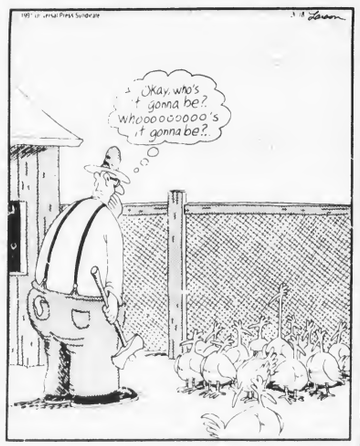

Unbeknownst to most ornithologists, the dodo was actually a very advanced species, living along quite peacefully until, in the 17th century, it was annihilated by men, rats and dogs. As usual.

New York 1626: Chief of the Manhattan Indians addresses his tribe for the last time.

"Vince! Just trample him! . . . He's drawing you into his kind of fight!"

UN-COMMON SENSE

By Arlo Soltesz

I Think we might have a Problem...

For a random experience, hook up with 'Phat' college lingo

By Diana Smith
College Press Service

Quick--someone just referred to you as "phat." Have you been insulted? (No.) What if someone says your homeskillet is cholo ("thanks") or you forgot to momaflauge your crib ("uh-oh")?

If you're as uncertain about this hip speech as most people are, consult a list of the hottest words on college campuses compiled recently in a nationwide survey by Merriam-Webster, publisher of Webster's Collegiate Dictionary.

You'll find that being phat, or cool, is a positive thing. A homeskillet is a good friend and cholo means macho, while momaflauging you crib means hiding anything in your suitcase or room that you don't want your parents to find. As in, "Wait a minute, while I momaflauge my stash."

On the other hand, you wouldn't want to be known as an herb (a geek), a long nose (a liar), or high postage (a conceited female). Once you've got that down, remember that a circle of death is a bad pizza, a jimmie is a condom, a blizz is a crazy prank, and a sploink is an infinite measure.

That's just a sampling f nearly 50 words and phrases deemed as the most popular on college campuses today. All in all, about 1,000 different words were culled from surveys taken at 25 public and private schools, ranging from the University of Massachusetts and Bryn Mawr College of Pennsylvania, to Tulane University in New Orleans and Baylor University in Texas, to Santa Monica College and the University of California-Los Angeles in the west. The words were then ranked in order of popularity according to region.

Susan Leslie, vice president of marketing, said the survey was first conducted by Merriam-Webster of Springfield, Mass.

"We didn't claim it was going to be a wholly scientific survey, but college campuses are often where new words and phrases show up," she said.

A number of interesting trends became apparent, she said. First, the popularity of some words is strongly regional. Second, many of the hip phrases arise from African-American and Hispanic cultures. Third, there was a small, but interesting increase in the use of product brand names to convey certain qualities, like describing someone as "Nike" or "Quaker Oats." Fourth, certain retroactive words are coming back into use, such as crib (meaning home base). Crib was popular in the 1950s.

"There was a definite regionalism that was coming off," Leslie said. "The absolute hottest word in the east was phat."

Phat, sometimes spelled fat, has appeared in The New York Times several times, and some theorize that its use evolved from the New York fashion industry.

Cholo, on the other hand, is a Western/Southwestern word tat once was used to describe a Mexican gang member as being extremely macho. Fly is is a word that arose from the African-American culture, also meaning cool or good. Some examples of the use of fly: "My, that's a fly frock you're wearing today." (Not cool at all.)

"Get the flyswatter." (Extremely uncool)

"Lookin' fly, girlfriend." (Cool, though a little dated.)

The main purpose of the survey was to see how new language is being devised and used and to see whether the words and phrases will catch on and become standard in English or simply fade away.

A DISPATCH FROM SPY MAGAZINE

Sorry, Wrong Number

Will O'Brien Feature Stupid European Economic Community Tricks on the Program?

Immediately upon hearing that NBC had selected a replacement for David Letterman, SPY called the putative host, the Irish scholar Conor Cruise O'Brien, whose recent well-received biography of Edmund Burke gave him the edge over Garry Shandling. We found him in Dublin.

Conor Cruise O'Brien: Hello?

SPY: Hi, I'm just calling to get your reaction to your new job.

I don't know that I have such a job.

Oh, it's been in the papers. Replacing Letterman at NBC.

Sorry?

Replacing David Letterman at NBC. I wanted to know if you were still going to do the pet tricks.

Well, this is the first I've heard of any such thing. Where has this appeared?

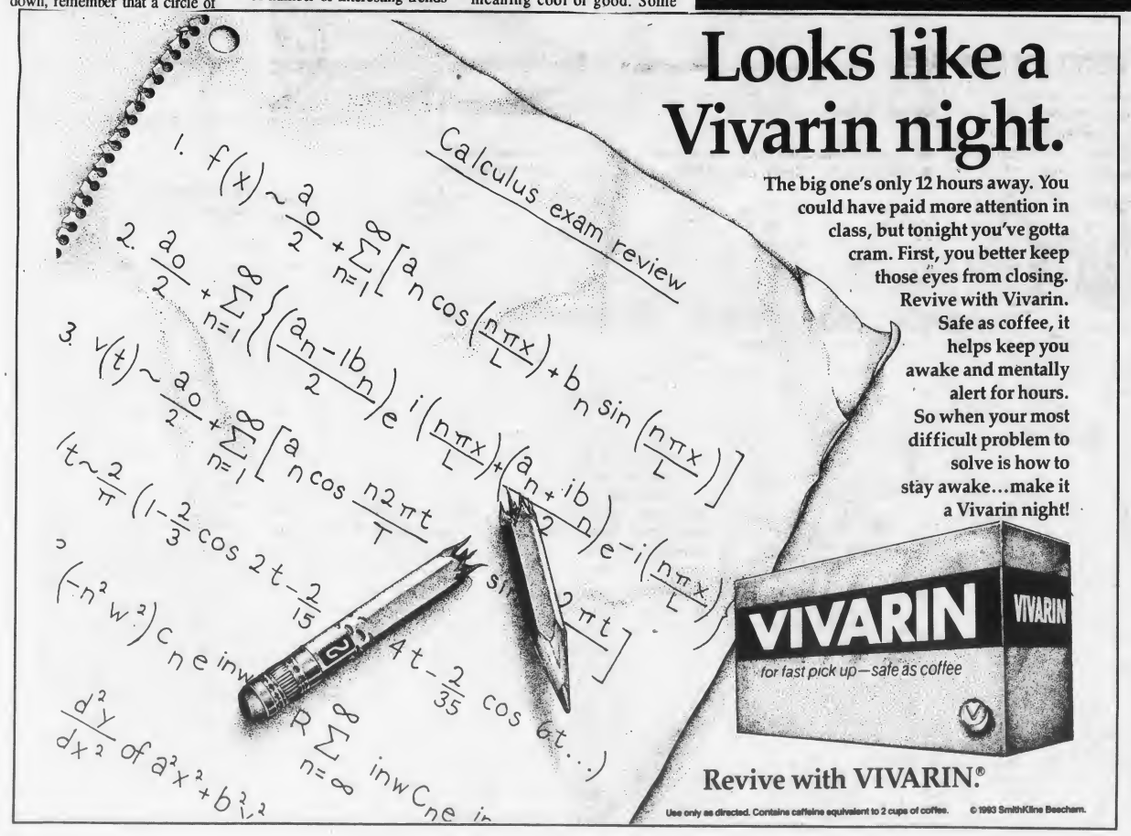

In the New York papers! But you've written for The Simpsons and Saturday Night Live, and....

I've written for various print publications in the United States. Mainly for The New York Review of Books and The Atlantic and sometimes for The New Republic, but I've only very occasionally appeared on panels and whatnot, when I'm over there.

You're not a comedian, then?

Uh, only occasionally.

Eagles finish 5-5

IUP scores early, often 44-7

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

After disposing of Edinboro in the PSAC-West title game a week earlier, the IUP Indians had one thought in mind, payback. The Clarion Golden Eagles had rudely ended the Indians' 25-game conference unbeaten streak by drubbing them 35-26 in last year's conference title game.

The outcome was decided shortly after tee time at George Miller Stadium.

The fact that freshman quarterback Chris Weibel had nothing to do with last year's game didn't seem to affect IUP's relentless assault on him, and on the fourth play of the game, Weibel was picked off by Jermayne Wagner.

Ten plays later, it was 7-0.

That Weibel was riding the bus home from his class field trip when Clarion knocked IUP from a Division II playoff berth, didn't seem to phase Jeff Turnage when he blew into the Eagle backfield and dumped Weibel for an eight yard loss on Clarion's next possession. The Eagles had to punt.

Eleven plays later, it was 14-0.

Just because Weibel was getting fit for his prom tuxedo as the Eagles were pulling off one of the biggest upsets in Division II history didn't stop the IUP defense from placing him in a 2nd and 24 situation on Clarion's next possession. The Eagles would soon have to punt.

Seven plays later, it was 21-0.

You get the point.

The Indians were everything they were billed as being. Hungry, aggressive, balanced, resolved. They weren't ill-mannered because they didn't have to be.

After a Mike Geary field goal kicked off the second half, Weibel found Kevin Harper on a 49 yardpass play, and the Eagles were showing signs of life.

It didn't take long for IUP to pull the plug. Indians' quarterback Scott Woods, who completed 17 of his 20 pass attempts for 353 yards and two touchdowns, found Theo Turner for 43 yards and then hit Derrick Smith for 33 more. Woods took it in himself from six yards out, and less than two minutes after Clarion scored, IUP answered.

IUP would score two more touchdowns before quarter's end, and after three, the score was 44-7.

The Eagles finished the season with an even 5-5 overall record and a 3-3 slate in the PSAC-West.

Damien Henry gained 56 yards against IUP and finished the year 42 short of 1,000. For his career, Henry gained 2,052 yards and scored 23 touchdowns.

Tim Brown's four catches gave him 53 for the season and 169 for his record-breaking career. He ranks seventh all-time in the PSAC.

Inside linebacker Damon Mazoff had 12 tackles, 10 solo against the Indians on Saturday. He finished 1993 with a team leading 134 tackles and has compiled 464 for his career.

Senior defensive end Eric Acord put an exclamation point on his career with eight tackles, four solo and one tackle for loss. Acord finished the season with 61 tackles, six for losses.

Frank Andrews had three solo tackles before leaving with an injury and Chris Coleman had five solo hits.

Women's hoop preview

Parsons' project has Eagles' eye in the sky

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

When Margaret "Gie" Parsons took the Clarion University Women's Basketball head coaching position four years ago, she inherited a 3-23 team. Since that time, the Golden Eagles have simply owned the PSAC, compiling a 30-6 conference record and a 73-18 overall slate over the past three years. Parsons' teams have made it to the Division II playoff "Sweet 16" twice, and the round of eight once, while setting 12 Division II records in the process.

The biggest difference between this year's team and those of the past is an improved inside game. "Adding a strong post game to go along with our fast break, three point game has been a growing concept over the past seasons," Parsons said. "The players have really adapted to it. It will be fun for us, but a nightmare for the opposition."

PSAC coaches certainly won't be having pleasant dreams about facing the returning conference champs. Led by PSAC preseason All-West selections Shannon Coakley, Amy Coon, Carlita Jones, the Eagles return eight talented letter-winners to their 1993-94 version.

Coakley is Clarion's all-time leading scorer with 1,293 career points. Last season, she was named to the PSAC-West second team for the third straight year. She holds conference records for field goals attempted (1,239), three-pointers made (257), and three-pointers attempted (771). She also holds Clarion's single-season scoring record with 521 points in 1990-91.

Coon, a defensive wizard, led the Eagles in three's last year with 81 while averaging 10.5 points per game. She is the third leading scorer in Clarion history with 1,069 points, and is second only to Coakley in bombs made (255) and attempted (746). Coon also holds the Division II record for consecutive games with a three-pointer with 51.

Jones was the 1992 PSAC "Rookie of the Year." Last year she led the Eagles in scoring (16.7 ppg.), rebounds (10.7 rpg), field goal percentage (53%), free throw percentage (71%), and blocked shots (54), and she earned herself a spot on the PSAC-West first team. Jones set a Clarion single game scoring record with 43 points last year against Mercyhurst.

Other returning veterans include Michelle Crespo, Mona Gaffney and Amy Migyanka.

Crespo has been away from the team for two years. In 1990-91 she averaged 2.8 points per game and had 69 rebounds.

Gaffney, a six foot forward, had an immediate impact on the team as a freshman. Last year, she was second in scoring (13.3 ppg), third in rebounding (6.7 rpg), and shot 53% from the floor. Coupled with Jones underneath, she will help give Clarion one of the strongest inside games in the conference.

Migyanka will get the nod at the point guard position this year. In 1992, she averaged five points, buried 25 triples and dished out 99 assists.

Six newcomers will be needed to provide depth for the Eagles. They are Janete Bolze, Joy Brown, Stephanie Morrow, Tina Sherrill, Tina Skelley and April Thompson.

Bolze was voted a first team Mid-Penn All-Star for three years while leading her West Perry High team to an impressive 66-13 record; Brown was injured her senior year, but still managed 776 points, 421 rebounds and 231 assists in her career; Morrow helped McDowell High reach the state semifinals her senior season by averaging 14 points per game; Skelley played on a very talented Altoona team that reached the Western final and averaged 3.5 points per game; Sherrill and Thompson led their Beaver Falls team to the section title four straight years.

"This is the best freshman group since 1990-91 when we got Amy (Coon) and Shannon (Coakley)," said Parsons.

The Eagles' balance of veterans and youth, with their combination of outside shooting and inside power could be just the right formula for Parsons to finally reach her lofty goal. "Our goal is to make it to the Division II Final Four," Parsons said. "After that, anything could happen."

Clarion opens its season this weekend at the Millersville University Tournament. The Eagles play West Chester while Southern Connecticut plays the hosts.

Their first home game is December 1 against Point Park before hosting the "Best NCAA Division II Tournament in the Nation." On December 3 at Tippin Gymnasium, Clarion faces defending East Regional champ UPJ while five-time final four participant Bentley faces defending national champion North Dakota State.

Blue/ Gold match set for Sat.

The Clarion University wrestling team is gearing up for the 1993-1994 season, which begins with the annual Blue-Gold match in Tippin Gym on November 20.

Second year head coach Jack Davis is optimistic going into the season. "We are going to have an exciting team this season and I think our fans will be anxious to come out and see this first competition," Davis said.

Ten matches are scheduled for the Blue-Gold match on Saturday. In the leadoff match, four time Delaware State Champion and red-shirt freshman Sheldon Thomas (118) will face off against four time PIAA State Champion Bob Crawford (Milton-126). The second match pits junior transfer Colin Gnibus (Mt. Pleasant-134) against another junior transfer, Jason Clark (Curwensville-126). Other names to watch this season include junior Dan Payne and freshman Tom Tomeo.

Davis sees this year's team as a real crowd pleaser. "We have a nice blend of quality veterans and talented newcomers," Davis remarked. "The real excitement this team brings to the mat is its ability to put people on their back at any time. Barring injuries, we feel this will be quality product."

This year's Blue-Gold match is also Clarion's "Poster Night." A 4-color Clarion wrestling poster will be given away free to all who pay admission. Starting time for the match is 7:30pm.

PSAC basketball preview

Coaches say it's Clarion and Cal again

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

According to PSAC basketball coaches, the western division is expected to shape up much as it has for the past two years. The annual preseason coaches poll, released Tuesday, has Clarion predicted to claim the women's title and California taking the men's crown.

Clarion- The Golden Eagles coasted to a 24-6 record in 1992, and claimed their third PSAC-West title in a row. The Eagles, who led the nation is scoring with a 94.1 point per game average, return five letter-winners in Shannon Coakley, Amy Coon, Carlita Jones, Mona Gaffney and Amy Migyanka. Coakley (12.2 ppg, 5.8 rpg), Coon (10.5, ppg 2.3 rpg) and Jones (16.7 ppg, 10.7 rpg) were named preseason all-conference by the coaches. There is no doubt Parsons has solid veterans, but the fortunes of the Eagles may lie in how quickly the seven newcomers mature. With the season less than a week away, Parsons hasn't had much time to groom her freshmen. "I'm doing what I love to do and that's teach basketball," said Parsons. "I'm doing a lot of that." The Eagles finished 11-1 in the PSAC-West last season and are a strong first place selection by the coaches.

Preseason Women's poll
1) Clarion
2) California
3) Edinboro
4) Indiana
5) Slippery Rock
6) Shippensburg
tie Lock Haven

Preseason PSAC All-West Team
Shannon Coakley-Clarion
(Sr, 12.2 ppg, 5.8 rpg)
Amy Coon- Clarion
(Sr, 10.5 ppg, 2.3 rpg)
Kory Fielitz-Slippery Rock
(Sr, 18.5 ppg, 9.8 rpg)
Carlita Jones-Clarion
(Jr, 16.7 ppg, 10.7 rpg)
Holly Kozlowski-L. Haven
(Sr, 19.7 ppg, 4.1 rpg)
Lara Thornton- California
(Sr, 17.4 ppg, 5.6 rpg)

California- The Vulcans finished 1992 with an 18-8 overall record and finished third in the west with a 7-5 mark. Cal will have to find a way to replace first team all-conference Corinne Vanderwal who averaged 18.3 ppg and converted 65.2 percent of her shot attempts, fourth in the nation. Head coach Paul Flores returns eight players to his impressive roster including seniors Traci Cox and Lara Thornton.

Cox, who was a second team all-conference selection in 1992, shot 60 percent from the floor, finishing 14th in the country in that department, and averaged 15.8 ppg. She is joined by preseason all-conference Lara Thornton who averaged 3.3 three-pointers made per game, placing fourth in the nation in that category. She averaged 17.4 ppg and 5.6 rebounds in 1992. "We have better quickness," expressed Flores. "We're looking to run the ball this year, not walk it up." Flores' Vulcans will run up against some tough competition right off the bat as their Tip-off Classic field includes St. Augustine's, Northern Kentucky and Georgetown, Ky.

Edinboro- A very experienced Fighting Scots' team finished second to Clarion with a 9-3 conference mark last year and enters the 1993 season with eight returners, four with NCAA tournament experience. Of the five newcomers, three are junior college transfers who head coach Stan Swank expects to make an immediate impact. Swank will have to find a way to replace the offense lost by graduated PSAC "Player of the Year" Jeannine Jean-Pierre who averaged 21.4 ppg and 11.7 rpg in 1992. "The last four years, we've had four All-Americans. It was never a problem," Swank explained. "This year, there's no person we can say will lead us."

IUP- The Tribe finished the year with a respectable 13-10 record, 5-7 in the PSAC, and face a grueling pre-conference schedule in 1993 in preparation for the competitive west. Head coach Jan Kiger must replace outstanding point guard Cathy Torchia, who averaged 20 points per game in 1993. Newcomer Amy Lundy will be thrusted into that position, and Kiger sites that as a key to IUP's success. "There are three keys which will determine how our season goes," stated Kiger. "How fast Amy Lundy matures at the point guard spot, finding players who want the ball in crucial situations, and maintaining a balanced offensive attack." Nicole Jackson leads a talented group of returners.

Slippery Rock- Preseason All-West selection Kory Fielitz leads an enthusiastic and mature group of Rockets into the 1993 season. Fielitz, a senior forward, averaged 18.5 ppg and 9.8 rpg last season while earning First-Team PSAC-West honors. Head coach Laura Willigies will need to find some help for Fielitz if the Rockets want to improve upon their 10-15 overall record (4-8 in the west). "We should be okay," insured Willigies. "We have a better defensive team and the freshmen group has matured into sophomores. We should be competitive."

Shippensburg- A lot of question marks surround the Red Raiders and head coach Dave Smith. Shipp is looking to the leadership of its seniors based on the fact that Smith is planning to start two freshmen. "We have no expectations going into this season," Smith said. "We've improved team quickness, size and depth, but we have no definite strengths or weaknesses." The Raiders finished 14-12 last year, but only went 3-9 in the conference. They will certainly miss the scoring prowess of Kristy O'Hara who averaged 22.9 ppg and 9.3 rpg.

Lock Haven- The Bald Eagles were predicted last by the coaches, but not without reservations. Head coach Frank Scarfo is blessed with an outstanding recruiting class along with six players who were starters at one time or another. The Eagles are led by preseason PSAC-All conference selection Holly Kozlowski. The senior forward averaged 19.7 ppg and 4.1 rpg in 1992. She is joined by Stacy Gephardt, who Scarfo hopes can take some of the load off of Kozlowski. "Our success depends on the quickness of our young player's maturity," Scarfo said. "We're trying to get back to the competitive level of the late 80's, early 90's."

Men's hoops

California- The defending conference champs are a powerhouse again, returning four of their five starters. The only problem is that the PSAC "Player of the Year" Ray Gutierrez is the one who is gone. Head coach Jim Boone needs to find a way replace the scoring of Gutierrez, who averaged 26.8 points per game last year. "The last four years we've had to replace a great player, and we've found a way every year."

Preseason All-American Chad Scott will be the main man for the Vulcans in 1993. Scott averaged 15.1 ppg and 7.7 rpg last year while being named to the PSAC-West second team. Scott will be joined by Darnell White, who led the conference in steals and assists last season. "We have more pieces to work with this season," said Boone. "We're just searching for the right combinations."

Indiana- The Indians have almost everybody back, and head coach Kurt Kanaskie is not hiding the fact that IUP has a great chance to win the conference. The Indians finished 18-9 last year and finished second in the west. Leading scorer Yancey Taylor, who averaged 17.8 ppg is back to lead the Tribe in 1993. "Yancey is not a great shooter, but he can score," Kanaskie said. "He led us in almost every category." Point guard Phil Crump, streak shooter Jason Bullock and big man Robert Masienko are back, and Division I transfer Troy Jackson from George Mason is expected to make an immediate impact.

Clarion- Head coach Ron Righter describes his first two weeks of practice as "frustrating." Injury problems have plagued the Golden Eagles as big men Chris Boone and Bill Chwalik are out indefinitely, forcing Righter to approach the 1993 season cautiously. The injuries have simplified Righter's keys to a successful season. "Ian Whyte's improvement in the middle and depth are the keys," Righter said. "We'll play more zones on defense to try to keep out of foul trouble."

Edinboro- The Fighting Scots have six returning seniors including Preseason PSAC-West selection Price Williams and streak shooter Ron Santiago. "With our demanding schedule, we'll need good support from sophomores Philip Melton, Ernie Giles and Chris Paris," said head coach Greg Walcavich.

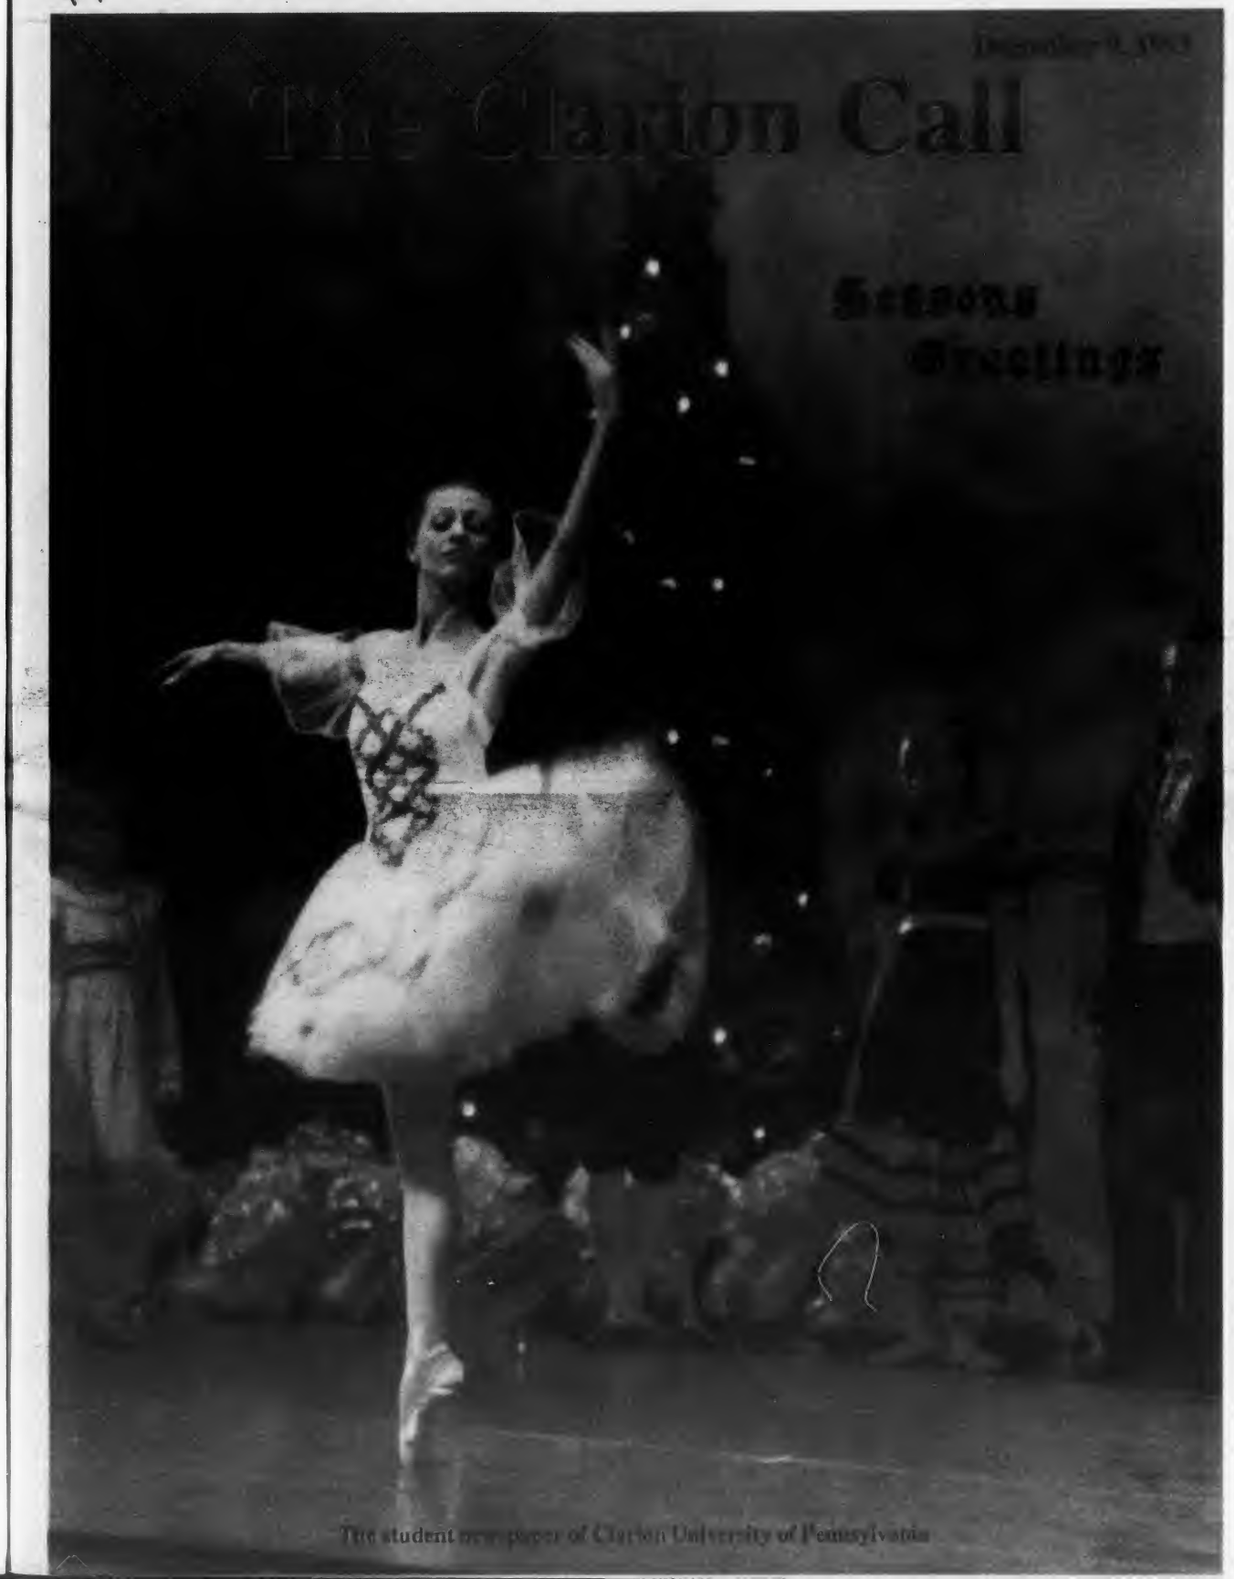

Preseason Men's Poll
1) California
2) Indiana
3) Clarion
4) Edinboro
5) Lock Haven
6) Slippery Rock
7) Shippensburg

Preseason PSAC All-West Team
Shon Crosby-Lock Haven
(Sr, 22.0 ppg, 7.7 rpg)
Kwame Morton-Clarion
(Sr, 25.2 ppg, 4.6 rpg)
Brian Rehm-Shippensburg
(Jr, 13.6 ppg, 5.4 rpg)
Chad Scott- California
(Sr, 15.1 ppg, 7.7 rpg)
Yancey Taylor-IUP
(Jr, 17.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg)
Price Williams-Edinboro
(Sr, 15.4 ppg in 1992)

Lock Haven- Shon Crosby and his 22 ppg average returns for the Bald Eagles, but with eight new players Lock Haven's future contains a lot of questions.

Shipp and Slippery Rock- The Raiders and Rockets round out the men "(Predicted last) is a tough way to go into a season, but realism is realism." said Shipp head coach Rodger Goodling. The two teams were a combined 8-16 in the west in '92.

"We've improved team quickness, size and depth, but we have no definite strengths or weaknesses." The Raiders finished 14-12 last year, but only went 3-9 in the conference. They will certainly miss the scoring prowess of Kristy O'Hara who averaged 22.9 ppg and 9.3 rpg.

Lock Haven- The Bald Eagles were predicted last by the coaches, but not without reservations. Head coach Frank Scarfo is blessed with an outstanding recruiting class along with six players who were starters at one time or another. The Eagles are led by preseason PSAC-All conference selection Holly Kozlowski. The senior forward averaged 19.7 ppg and 4.1 rpg in 1992. She is joined by Stacy Gephardt, who Scarfo hopes can take some of the load off of Kozlowski. "Our success depends on the quickness of our young player's maturity," Scarfo said. "We're trying to get back to the competitive level of the late 80's, early 90's."

Men's hoops

California- The defending conference champs are a powerhouse again, returning four of their five starters. The only problem is that the PSAC "Player of the Year" Ray Gutierrez is the one who is gone. Head coach Jim Boone needs to find a way replace the scoring of Gutierrez, who averaged 26.8 points per game last year. "The last four years we've had to replace a great player, and we've found a way every year."

Preseason All-American Chad Scott will be the main man for the Vulcans in 1993. Scott averaged 15.1 ppg and 7.7 rpg last year while being named to the PSAC-West second team. Scott will be joined by Darnell White, who led the conference in steals and assists last season. "We have more pieces to work with this season," said Boone. "We're just searching for the right combinations."

Indiana- The Indians have almost everybody back, and head coach Kurt Kanaskie is not hiding the fact that IUP has a great chance to win the conference. The Indians finished 18-9 last year and finished second in the west. Leading scorer Yancey Taylor, who averaged 17.8 ppg is back to lead the Tribe in 1993. "Yancey is not a great shooter, but he can score," Kanaskie said. "He led us in almost every category." Point guard Phil Crump, streak shooter Jason Bullock and big man Robert Masienko are back, and Division I transfer Troy Jackson from George Mason is expected to make an immediate impact.

Clarion- Head coach Ron Righter describes his first two weeks of practice as "frustrating." Injury problems have plagued the Golden Eagles as big men Chris Boone and Bill Chwalik are out indefinitely, forcing Righter to approach the 1993 season cautiously. The injuries have simplified Righter's keys to a successful season. "Ian Whyte's improvement in the middle and depth are the keys," Righter said. "We'll play more zones on defense to try to keep out of foul trouble."

Edinboro- The Fighting Scots have six returning seniors including Preseason PSAC-West selection Price Williams and streak shooter Ron Santiago. "With our demanding schedule, we'll need good support from sophomores Philip Melton, Ernie Giles and Chris Paris," said head coach Greg Walcavich.

Preseason Men's Poll

1) California
2) Indiana
3) Clarion
4) Edinboro
5) Lock Haven
6) Slippery Rock
7) Shippensburg

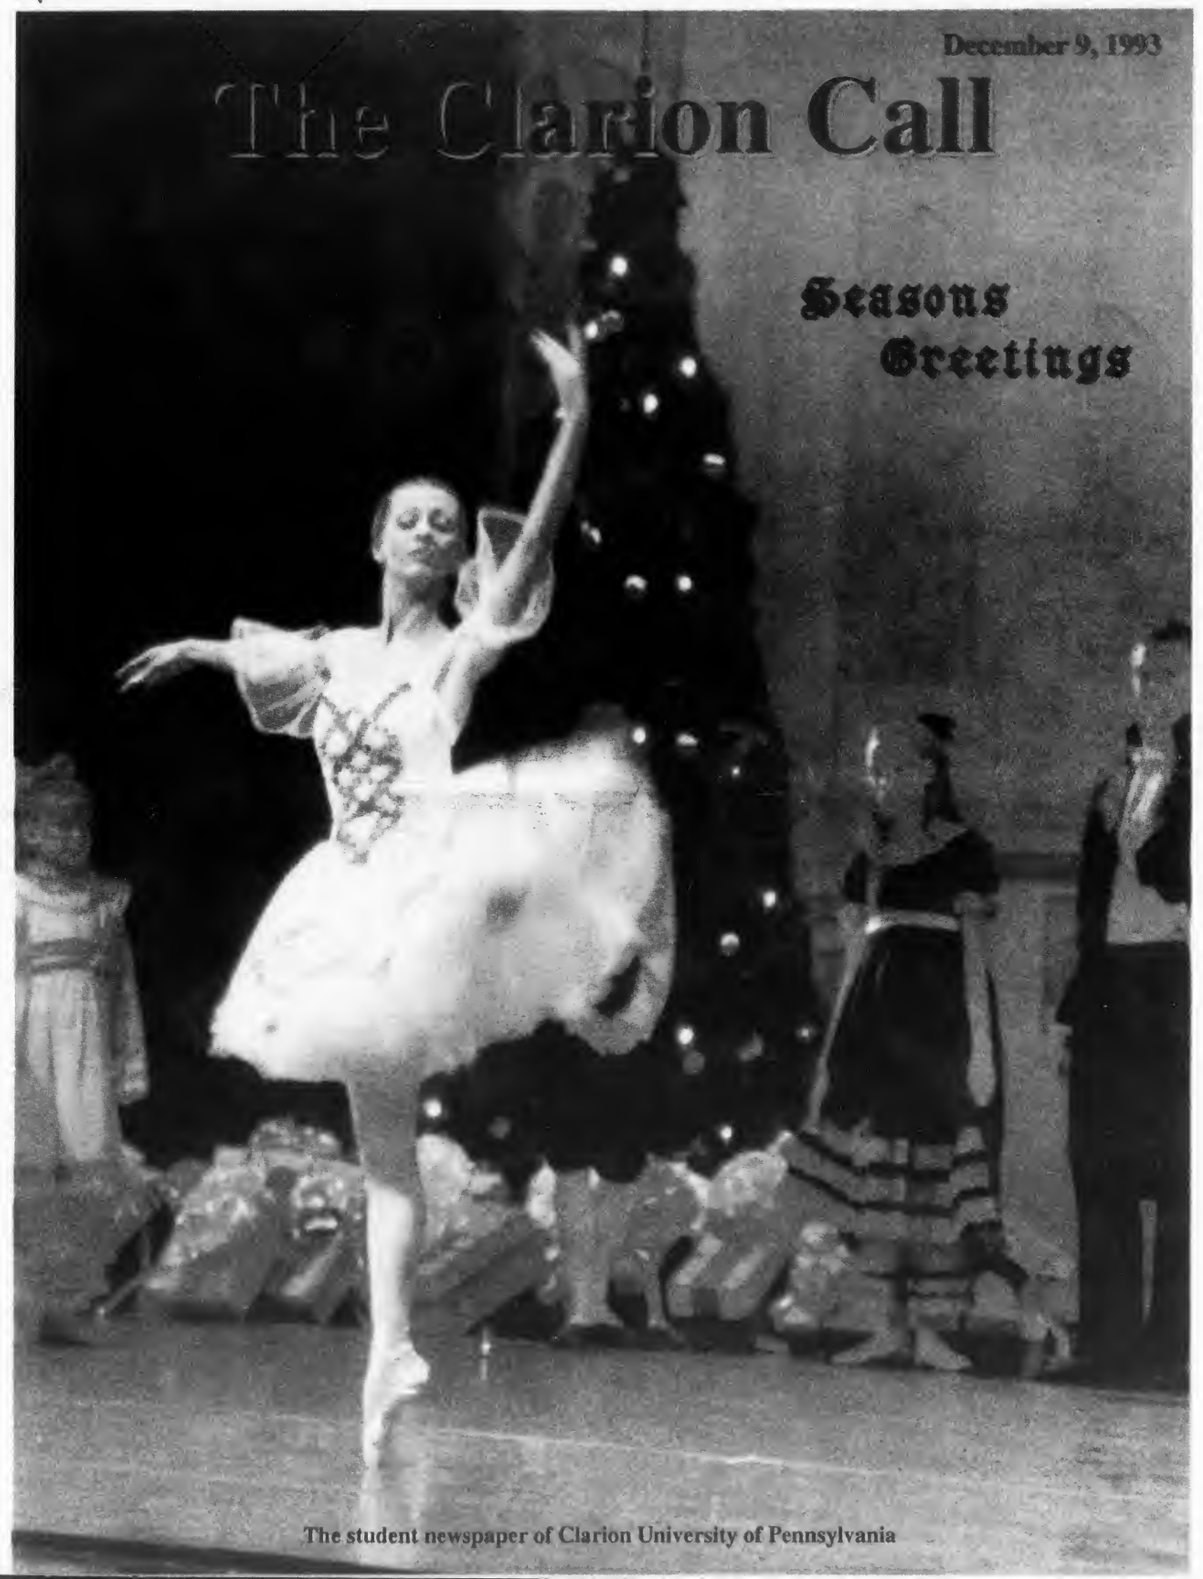

Preseason PSAC All-West Team

Shon Crosby-Lock Haven
(Sr, 22.0 ppg, 7.7 rpg)
Kwame Morton-Clarion
(Sr. 25.2 ppg, 4.6 rpg)
Brian Rehm-Shippensburg
(Jr, 13.6 ppg, 5.4 rpg)
Chad Scott- California
(Sr. 15.1 ppg, 7.7 rpg)
Yancey Taylor-IUP
(Jr. 17.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg)
Price Williams-Edinboro
(Sr. 15.4 ppg in 1992)

Lock Haven- Shon Crosby and his 22 ppg average returns for the Bald Eagles, but with eight new players Lock Haven's future contains a lot of questions.

Shipp and Slippery Rock- The Raiders and Rockets round out the men "(Predicted last) is a tough way to go into a season, but realism is realism." said Shipp head coach Rodger Goodling. The two teams were a combined 8-16 in the west in '92.

My Turn

Eldridge Ponder

I am a person with very low morals and very few expectations of life. I do not take school seriously, because, truthfully, it is not important to me. Despite being as dumb as a doorknob, I always receive good grades in my classes. Trying to hold an intelligent conversation with me would be senseless because I am not intelligent enough to hold one. I am an arrogant, self-centered, egotistical jerk, who only lives for fame and glory. Hanging out with groupy-like females is my hobby.

I know I might sound like a terrible person, but watch out! There are about 150 more people at Clarion just like me.

I am a collegiate athlete, or "jock" as some might say, and many of my peers view me "as sketched in the first paragraph." The fact that I am an active member of the football team has unjustly forced people to stereotype me and other athletes. I feel it is time to terminate these tired and inaccurate presumptions about misunderstood athletes. The stereotyping has gone on long enough, and now it is my turn to set the record straight.

Despite what others have said, collegiate athletes are some of the hardest working people you will ever meet in life. Being a collegiate athlete takes much time and a considerable amount of effort. But athletics, for some strange reason, is viewed as a hobby. Taking into account all that is involved with being a collegiate athlete, it must be considered a full-time job. Most people think all that is needed is for the athlete to show up on game day and perform; put the pads on and bang heads. I wish it was that easy, but unfortunately it is not.

The Way I See It

Michelle Sporer
Editor-in-chief

This issue is not only the last one of the semester but also my last one as reigning editor. I have seen many changes occur at this paper and throughout the university since I became a part of the Call's staff my freshman year; some good and some bad and some that make you pause and think who stands to gain the most from decisions that have been made.

Throughout it all, I have learned a lot, not just about private agendas and politicking but also about friendship. I would like to thank my staff for giving me a few pointers on the finer things in life (my vocabulary has certainly expanded). Your pulling together in tough times and getting the job done, and done well, has made me very proud to have all of you a part of this newspaper.

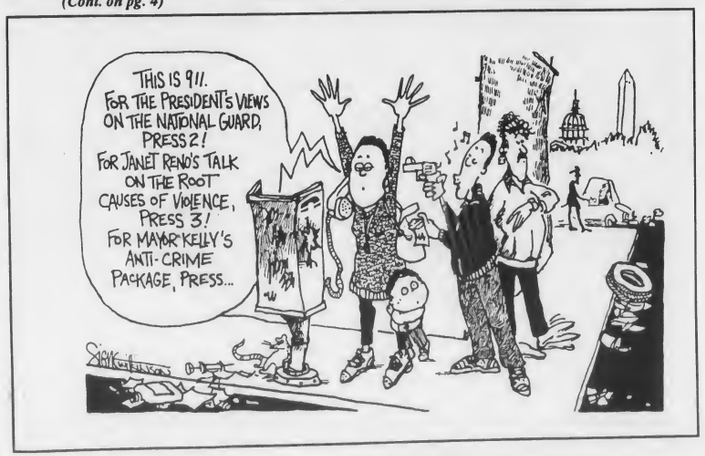

I would also like to thank Mr. Barlow for his bottomless coffers of wisdom and advice. Many times you have provided the words that have made this job seem more appealing than what it has occasionally been.

One of the most important lessons I have learned has been taught, not by any one person, but by this university; nothing is ever free and there is always a price to pay. An economical education it might be but the cost is high for those who haven't budgeted for the little "extras" that don't appear in the catalogue -- namely, a graduation fee and a price for the cap and gown you will never wear again. I almost admire CUP's guts for demanding additional money right up until the final ceremonies. I imagine that at the moment I receive my diploma someone will be ticketing my illegally parked car.

As I tie up loose ends in my final days at Clarion, I would like to remind the Foundation Office not to call me for donations to this establishment for at least ten years. By that time I should have my college loans paid off. And please remember not to ask for money that will go towards unnecessary projects such as signs or a president's house because you will be wasting your breath and my time. Rather, solicit money for this newspaper which needs the funds and equipment to keep sending bright young journalists into the world with Clarion's reputation behind them.

I have many regrets of things I haven't accomplished and people I haven't met at Clarion. But, the one thing that I don't regret is coming here. Not just anybody or anything can teach you life's most valuable lessons and do it with such aplomb.

The debate continues

Dear Editor:

Sadly, Ms. McCoy's November 4 nasty bashing of gays and lesbians merely illustrates an all-too-common ignorance, intolerance and even spitefulness -- ingredients which often lead to violence.

She would have us believe one consciously chooses to suffer the victimization and discrimination that gays and lesbians endure. She naively believes one can and would somehow effectively indoctrinate others to take up this same suffering. Despite the illogic and intolerance of her message she tells us she had "investigated" and that she writes out of "love and concern." Spare us forever both this searching inquiry and such well-intentioned affection.

I sincerely hope she will never discover a family member, friend or acquaintance to be anything less than a completely heterosexual thoroughbred, although probably none of us is. Spare her giving birth to gay, lesbian or bisexual children as well she might.

Regrettably, in her ignorance of the First Amendment, Ms. McCoy goes on, in effect, to oppose the freedom of religion. By crying out for forced group school prayer (rejected by the Supreme Court) in public schools, she thus supports imposing her religion on all faiths and non-believers, thereby denying them free exercise of their beliefs.

Obviously anyone can pray individually, if they choose, at any time, in any place, including classrooms, labs or gyms. There is no one who would prevent it, and no way short of death to do so.

Dear Editor:

Cheers to Dr. John Ernissee. His eloquent, well-written and informed response to the appalling ignorance and unreasoned paranoia that Ms. McCoy expressed (Nov. 4) to unjustly malign gays, lesbians and bisexuals must be highly commended. He wrote intelligently with reasoned understanding from knowledge and experience in contrast to the exaggerated fears and the most narrow of prejudices which seemingly emanate once again from an extremist "religious" fanaticism.

Gays and lesbians are the experienced victims of vicious assaults on truth, knowledge and common sense throughout their adulthood. They repeatedly feel the attacks both physical and verbal, the emotional pain and discrimination, the intolerance and all the denials that are unfairly inflicted upon oppressed minorities. In reality, however, the bigoted fail to recognize that we all gain if none of us is discriminated against.

The gay community seeks only to attain at long last the respect and basic human and civil rights that all, except our minorities, enjoy. It is viscious and fallacious nonsense to utterly distort their search for equality and justice as a "political agenda." That empty charge is simply flagrant intolerance. In fact it is those who make the charge who have such an agenda.

Only a modicum of honest objectivity without any great intelligence, imagination or power of observation is needed to realize that sexual orientation cannout be taught. And who are the gays and lesbians, victims of pervasive intolerance and discrimination who would choose to inflict their sufferings on others if that were possible?

Large numbers thoughtful, understanding and knowledgeable straights have no fear or prejudice against gays or lesbians. Dr. Ernissee's valid and responsible statements merely confirm what mature, reasonable, intelligent and broad-minded persons have felt for years. Unfortunately it is the biased and spiteful fears that come from the poorly informed that invariably get voiced, scribbled on restroom walls or are inflicted on the rights, bodies and reputations of gays, lesbians and bisexuals.

We have all spoken and associated with hundreds of gays and lesbians over the years. We have eaten at the same tables, played on their teams, shaken their hands and laughed and cried with them and never knew or cared about their secret that the paranoia and intolerance of the bigoted unjustly forced them to maintain. Ignorance, paranoia, intolerance and discrimination, not differing sexual orientations, are the enemies, and no bigotry is needed to oppose them.

In the winter, what most people consider to be basketball season, the football team begins winter conditioning. During this dreaded semester-long activity, we run at least three miles and lift weights every day. This procedure lasts until it gets really warm outside. Once this happens, we begin spring-football. I must admit that spring football is a little better than winter conditioning, but not much. During spring football we pound one another endlessly. This happens every day, and believe me, the bruises begin to hurt. After spring football, it is up to me to work out on my own. Since I have worked all winter to get myself in shape, I would be a fool not to continue workouts during the summer. I don't know about other people, but I am no fool. It is important for me to be in the best shape imaginable when football camp begins.

Along with maintaining a full course load of classes during the fall semester, I must also be concerned with other engagements. First, I have the strenuous practices that are scheduled every single day of the week. Then I have long and boring position meetings, which go on every night of the week. Then to top everything off, I have the football films of our upcoming opponents that need to be viewed and studied. The average person making stereotypes about athletes would probably have never known that. Who would imagine that so much goes into 60 minutes of pleasure for 10 Saturday afternoons?

Sure there is a lot of fame involved with being a collegiate athlete, but it is well deserved. After all, I put a considerate amount of time and effort into my studies and into football. I do not think that many of the uninformed could handle being a student-athlete. There are those evenings of coming home exhausted and in extreme pain, and then remembering that an assignment is due in a few days. Sometimes I do not want to do that assignment after a hard day's work, but I realize how much is riding on its completion. Failure to complete assigned work could lead to failure in that class, which subsequently leads to being ineligible for football. Quitting would be easy, but that is something the people who stereotype "jocks" would do. I will never quit -- I am too strong mentally as well as physically to take the easy way out. Hopefully this disproves that athletes are educationally deprived, conceited morons, who only care about scoring.

Support CUP Athletes

Hey Clarion:

Did you know your athletic teams are beating some of the top teams in the nation and bringing recognition to Clarion nationwide? If you don't, perhaps it is because of the lack of your support to Clarion athletics. Did you know that the women's swim team has never lost a PSAC title? The wrestling team recently beat two of the top teams (Division One) in the nation? The women's basketball team has been ranked in the top 20 in the past three years and beat the defending national champions just this past weekend? I bet not! Just think how much better we could do with your support!

It's really embarrassing for the athletes to see more fans from the opposing team in the stands than from your own!

When our sports teams do well, it brings recognition to Clarion. Your support is greatly needed and would be appreciated by the athletes. Support C.U.P. Athletes!!!

University of Houston faculty votes to abolish sports

CPS- The Faculty Senate at the University of Houston recently recommended that the university's athletic programs be abolished or become self-supporting. A poll conducted by the Faculty Senate earlier this fall suggests that students lack interest in collegiate sports, but the students polled do not support the faculty senate's suggestion to abolish them.

Out of 300 students polled, only eight percent said they regularly attend athletic games at UH. But 64 percent said the university's athletics should remain, despite the senate's recommendation. Faculty Senate President George Reiter said the student survey confirms that students don't really care about the university's athletics. He said he was disappointed that students disagreed with the suggestion to eliminate athletics altogether, since they rarely attend the athletic events.

Director of Athletics Bill Carr said the survey is encouraging for the athletic department because it shows that students are interested in maintaining the athletics on campus. The non-binding resolution asks for the elimination of the football and basketball teams, and it asks that the baseball, golf, track, volleyball, tennis, swimming and diving teams become self-supporting.

Carr said that although most students rarely attend the athletic events, they realize the importance of athletics to the university.

"A lot of the students have busy schedules and probably can't come out to the events as much as they would like," Carr said. Carr said he would not want to run an athletic department without student funding.

Dave Barry's Gift Guide

©The Miami Herald

Things have been busy, busy, busy here at the Holiday Gift Command Center.

For months now, our cheerful elves have been hard at work in their cozy workshop, hammering and sawing, drilling and sanding, transforming sturdy blocks of wood into rocking horses, toy soldiers and spinning tops designed to elicit squeals of happiness from lucky little boys and girls. These toys, painted in bright primary colors, are lined up in neat, gleaming rows, waiting for that Very Special Night when we gather them all up and take them in big trucks to the Morphex-Glomco Corp., which burns them to generate the heat needed to cause the chemical reactions required to produce the high-grade plastics that are necessary to manufacture the toys that modern children actually want, such as Mortal Kombat XIV, the video game in which your character eats the enemy character's pancreas.

We have repeatedly tried to explain to the elves that all we really need is the sturdy blocks of wood, but we get nowhere. They may be cheerful, but they have the average IQ of a Salad Shooter. Some of them have been working here for over 250 years without once asking if we have a dental plan. All we have to do, to keep them happy, is every now and then give them some Purina Elf Chow.

But forget about them. The Holiday Retail Frenzy Season is upon us, and you need to be thinking about what special gifts items you will be purchasing for those special people on your list. And that is why, for the fourth consecutive year, we have taken time out from our busy schedule to put together our annual Holiday Gift Guide. We don't want to "toot our own horn," but we happen to think that this is the best Gift Guide ever, as measured in total elapsed time required to put it all together -- 43 minutes, a new Gift Guide record.

This year's official gift guide theme: Our theme this year is "Gifts that do not cost a lot of money, yet are, at the same time, cheap." We are pleased to report that the average item in this year's guide costs less than $20. But don't let the low prices fool you! If you purchase these items and give them as gifts, the lucky recipients will guess that you found these items in a dumpster.

XXX

Figure -Forming Brief ($9.95 from Carol Wright Gifts, 340 Applecreek Rd., Lincoln, Neb.68544-8503) We cannot think of a nicer way for you to send that special someone on your gift list the following message: "You have a really flat butt." For far too long, few options have been available to buttocks-impaired individuals. Yes, they can do what thousands of top models such as Cindy Crawford do, namely, stuff wads of newspaper down the back of their underwear to achieve a fuller look. Unfortunately, however, newspaper ink tends to rub off, which can lead to embarrassment during intimate moments. We can kiss this problem goodbye, however, thanks to this exciting new advance in buttocks enhancement. Not only do these briefs enable the wearer to look good, but they also provide vital protection to those unfortunate individuals -- and there are over 17 million of them, according to U.S. Labor Department statistics -- whose jobs require them, for one reason or another, to sit on thumbtacks.

XXX

Internal Revenue Service Christmas-Tree Ornament ($11 from the Treasury Historical Association, P.O. Box 28118, Washington, D.C. 20038-8118) This item is so wonderful that we feel obligated to remind you we are not making it up. This is a Christmas-tree ornament created to mark the 80th anniversary of the establishment of the income tax. It's gold-plated metal, and it depicts a 1913 IRS form (which was one page). At the bottom it says: "Eighty Years of Income Tax" and "Many Happy Returns." This unique gift idea was created by the Treasury Historical Association, a nonprofit organization that will use the proceeds to purchase new cattle prods for needy IRS agents.

No, we are kidding. The proceeds will be used to help restore the Old Treasury Building in Washington, D.C. This is certainly a worthy cause, so you will want to purchase this ornament for a special taxpayer on your holiday list. Remember, however, that if you do not order this ornament in time for holiday gift-giving, you must order Extension Ornament 2093-3J on or before the sixth fiscal week of the holiday season unless you are a joint taxpayer giving gifts singly. If we were you, we would contact our lawyer immediately.

Three freshmen arrested on burglary charges

by Rodney L. Sherman
News Editor

Three Clarion University freshmen have been arrested by local police and charged in connection with a series of burglaries in the borough of Clarion.

All three students have been placed on interim- suspension by the university pending the outcome of their case.

Scott David Doyle, 19, of Harleysville, was arrested Monday, November 22 by Clarion Borough police and is free on $20,000 cash bond. Francis Blake Stoveken, 18, of Dingmans Ferry, and Brian Richard Berkson, 19, of Matamoras, were also arrested Nov. 22, and were originally held on $50,000 bond. A bond reduction hearing was held and bond for Stoveken and Berkson was reduced to $20,000. Both men have since posted bond with the assistance of a professional bondsman.

Ray Henderson / Clarion Call

Bicycles similar to these, are alleged to have been stolen from the High Gear Bicycle Shop. The owner of the store is credited with discovering the possible burglars.

Doyle faces two counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, a second degree felony; one count of burglary, a second degree felony; one count of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, a second degree felony; one count of receiving stolen property, a misdemeanor; and one count of criminal mischief, a summary.

Stoveken faces eight counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, a second degree felony; four counts of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, a second degree felony; four counts of burglary, a second degree felony; six counts of criminal conspiracy to commit theft, a misdemeanor; one count of theft, a misdemeanor; one count of receiving stolen property, a misdemeanor; and two counts of criminal mischief, a summary.

Berkson faces eight counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, a second degree felony; four counts of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, a second degree felony; four counts of burglary, a second degree felony; six counts of criminal conspiracy to commit theft, a misdemeanor; one count of theft, a misdemeanor; one count of receiving stolen property, a misdemeanor; and two counts of criminal mischief, a summary.

Preliminary hearings for the three men are scheduled for Dec. 21 at 9:00, 9:15 and 9:30 a.m.

A statement issued by the university on Dec. 3 said, "Three Clarion University of Pennsylvania freshmen students who were recently charged by police in connection with local burglaries have been placed on interim- suspension from the university until such a time as the University Conduct Board can proceed with consideration of disciplinary charges on campus.

"The reported incidents are criminal in nature and the University Conduct Board is deferring any final decision until after a hearing is held in the criminal court system on the criminal charges or if the students volunteer any information.

"University conduct regulations prohibit acts against property including vandalism, theft, trespass, tampering and other acts causing or risking damage or loss of property. Under university disciplinary guidelines, a student may be suspended pending final disposition of their case if it is determined that their continued presence constitutes a threat of harm to the property of the university or others."

The suspensions were effective Nov. 30.

The charges stem from break-ins at the High Gear Bike Shop, Crooks Clothing and Dan Estadt's Sport Shop between September and October. An estimated $15,000 worth of merchandise was stolen during the burglaries.

Doyle is accused of participating in the burglary at Estadt's, but not the burglaries at the other two locations.

Ray Henderson / Clarion Call

Dan Estadt's Sport Shop, on Main Street, was the scene of one burglary in which all three accused CUP students allegedly took part.

According to records filed at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office, all three of the men have admitted to police of their alleged involvement in the burglaries.

Berkson and Stoveken also told police they were responsible for an attempted break-in at Crooks Clothing on Oct. 24. The two men allegedly fled the scene when they were discovered by borough police as they tried to pry a door at the back of the store open.

A large amount of items listed as stolen in the burglaries was discovered in the dorm rooms of the men after the owner of High Gear Bike Shop, Steve Shaffer, spotted Doyle near Founders Hall wearing what appeared to be one of the jackets allegedly taken from his store.

Shaffer followed Doyle to his room, took note of the room number, and called Public Safety.

A subsequent search of rooms in Nair and Wilkinson Hall turned up a large of amount of allegedly stolen merchandise.

Stress on the campus can lead to clinical depression

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor-Elect

With finals week just around the corner, students are dealing with the stress of making good grades while studying and waiting for their term papers.

Many students feel depressed and worn out. But, for some students, every week is finals week. One in eight people suffer from clinical depression according to the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

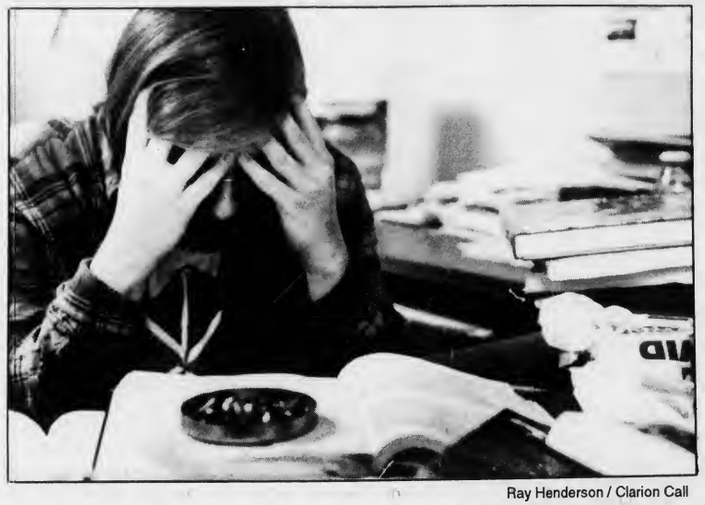

Millions of Americans are slow to recognize the signs of depression. They are also slow to discover that their illness is a highly treatable medical condition.

Depression is a widespread, and widely misunderstood, health problem. More than 11.6 million Americans will become seriously depressed at some time in their lives, yet millions fail to seek the professional help they need. Of those who seek help, more than 80 percent show improvement in 4-6 weeks.

According to NAMI, college students are vulnerable to depression like the rest of the population. In fact, depression among students is a serious problem on many campuses. A growing number of students don't recognize the signs and, when they do, they often don't know where to turn for help.

When left untreated, clinical depression causes unnecessary suffering and can endanger relationships, academic success and physical health. Worst of all untreated depression can lead to suicide, one of the leading causes of death among young adults in the United States. Tragically, studies show that 15 percent of people with severe untreated clinical depression will kill themselves.

So what keeps students from getting help when they're depressed?

Ray Henderson / Clarion Call

The pressures of the last week of a semester can get anyone down. Experts warn that if the stress is not dealt with in a timely and healthy manner, serious physical and mental problems can develop.

Numerous students don't recognize the symptoms. Others regard depression as a personal weakness and are ashamed to seek help. Some think that because they don't necessarily cry all the time, they are not depressed.

To complicate matters, it can be hard to tell the difference between "the blues" and clinical depression. Everyone feels sad sometimes—it's an unavoidable part of life. According to NAMI, it's natural to feel intense grief when something really bad happens—like failing a class, ending a relationship or watching parents divorce. Sadness and grief are perfectly normal, temporary reactions to the inevitable losses and hardships of life. But unlike normal sadness, clinical depression doesn't clear up by itself.

In fact, said NAMI, it's a biological condition; people who suffer from major depressive illnesses often have too few or too many of certain brain chemicals. Depression does run in families, causing scientists to think some people inherit a biological make-up that makes them more vulnerable to depression. But not all of those people actually become depressed, so other factors, like stress and psychological makeup, probably play a role as well.

The causes of depression are as varied as the individuals who suffer from it, and some people get depressed for no apparent reason.

Whatever the cause, clinical depression can be successfully treated in the vast majority of cases. When used properly and monitored carefully, antidepressant medications can be a significant help in relieving the symptoms of depression. While everyone is different, signs of improvement usually occur in 4-6 weeks. Complete effectiveness can often be seen after six to nine months of treatment. Since antidepressants can cause side effects they must be carefully monitored by a doctor—but they are not habit-forming.

With help, students can and do recover their lost joy and get on with their lives.

If you or someone close to you is seriously depressed, the most important thing to do is consult a doctor, or medical professional on campus, to determine an accurate diagnosis and begin the treatment process.

Another effective way to help someone who might be stressed out or seriously depressed is to be aware of the symptoms.

*Persistent sad or "empty" mood.
*Loss of interest or pleasure in ordinary activities, including sex.
*Decreased energy, fatigue, being "slowed down."
*Sleep disturbances (insomnia, early-morning waking or oversleeping.)
*Eating disturbances (loss of appetite and weight or weight gain).
*Difficulty concentrating, remembering or making decisions.
*Feelings of hopelessness or pessimism.
*Feelings of guilt, worthlessness, helplessness.
*Thoughts of death or suicide; suicide attempts.
*Irritability.
*Excessive crying.
*Chronic aches and pains that don't respond to treatment.

In some cases, symptoms appear suddenly for no apparent reason. In others, the symptoms seem to be associated with a life crisis.

The very nature of a depressive illness or a severe stress attack can interfere with a student's ability or wish to get help. A student may feel tired, worthless, helpless, and hopeless so they might not want to seek help.

Students with serious problems need encouragement from family and friends to get accurate diagnoses and seek the treatment that can ease pain and get them through the stress of finals and everyday life.

If you could graduate college in three years instead of four, saving a quarter of total bill, would you? Seventy-seven percent of high school students said yes in a recent study.

With college being second only to the purchase of a home as the biggest expense a family faces, many students and parents are beginning to inquire about the three-year option. Several institutions are also examining the three-year degree as one strategy in meeting the enrollment and fiscal challenges they face.

Of course, the accelerated degree is not new. It has existed at most schools for some time, but only a small percentage of students took advantage of it, perhaps because a three-year degree also means working hard and abandoning such activities such as sports, social organizations, student government, internships and part-time jobs.

But some officials think this low participation is due to programs not being formalized or advertised in college catalogues. Often, shortened programs were strictly for gifted students, or for more enterprising students to work out on their own. Now, with skyrocketing college costs, students may reconsider.

S. Frederick Starr, president of Oberlin College in Ohio, and one of the first administrators to advocate a three-year degree, sees it as an option for students who otherwise might not be able to afford to get a college degree. He estimates that eliminating one year of college could reduce costs by 25 percent, or 40 percent if potential income is factored in for the fourth year.

"This plan actually reduces the cost of a B.A.," he said. "Everything else, so far, simply decreases the rate of the increase."

Starr said he sees student demand for this program growing, citing the boom in Advanced Placement (AP) testing as an indicator. The tests allow high school students to earn college credits. In 1993, 639,000 students took AP's, an increase of 60,000 over the previous year and the largest increase in this decade.

In addition, starr points to the survey of 2,000 high school students nationwide by George Dehne and Associates. Seventy-seven percent said they would want to attend a university offering a three-year degree, a 43 percent increase from the same survey question in 1983.

But four is still the magic number for most educators. The United States adopted the four-year degree from England when Harvard University was founded in 1836. However, England and other European countries have long since changed to a three-year baccalaureate, say it is time the United States does the same.

Critics say the current European system shouldn't be compared with this nation's because of the growing need for high school remedial work and declining SAT scores

Starr does not agree that the program is for all students, saying, "This program would be intensive and hardly appropriate for those wishing to supplement their academic diet with lightweight courses and afternoons on the fraternity porch with a six-pack."

New Student Senate officers elected

Amy Donahue, left, was elected the new vice-president and Brian Hoover, right was elected president of the Student Senate. Due to a change in the Clarion Student Association constitution, Donahue and Hoover will serve only one semester.

Hoover, a senior political science major, is a past president of student senate, serving in the position in 1992. He is also a current member of the Clarion University Board of Trustees. Hoover returns to the senate after taking a year off from it to "pursue other interests."

Donahue, a junior communication major, has been on senate for one year, and was the past chairman of the public relations committee.

Under the new constitution, members of the student senate, including officers serve for one academic year, a change from the one calendar year terms.

Tate to replace Watkins in office of social equity

by Christin Mihon
News Writer

Dr. Davie Tate, Jr., a professor of education, has been named the interim assistant to president of social equity at Clarion University replacing Dr. Ralph Watkins.

Watkins resigned the position on November 30, saying he wanted to spend more time with his family and church related activities.

Tate will remain in the position until July 1, 1994 or when a search committee finds a permanent replacement to fill the position.

Tate teaches classes in multi-cultural education, introduction to education, and educational psychology in addition to supervising teachers.

He has previously worked as a desegregation expert in the Ohio and Kentucky school districts.

Tate has earned an A.A.S., B.S, M.S. and Ph.D., and a law degree, and is also a member of the Ohio Bar.

In the light of the interim position, his belief is that "when a member or members of a protected class' constitutional rights are impinged upon, they must call upon the violators of those rights to search their consciences and correct the justice deficit(s).

Ray Henderson/ Clarion Call

Dr. Davie Tate will assume the position as head of the office of social equity.

If that does not occur, then public policy demands that those responsible for enforcing the rules, policies, and laws send an unmistakable message to all the parties involved that injustice will not be tolerated, and that appropriate action will follow."

Tate briefly outlined a three step plan to combat social injustice.

First, educate the masses so they know injustice will not be tolerated.

Second, place the constituent on notice and encourage that individual to examine his/her conscience and reconsider their actions.

Third, when the violation does occur, appropriate legal action will take place.

Tate will be working closely with Kathy Spozio, assistant director of social equity; Jeanie McLaine, social equity secretary; and Timothy Fogarty, interim assistant vice president for human resources.

President Reinhard is confident that they "will be ensuring that our social equity initiatives are aggressively pursued."

President Reinhard also added that, "we wish Ralph well and will miss his leadership on behalf of our equity and diversity goals."

File photo

Dr. Ralph Watkins is resigning to devote more time to personal matters.

Since his arrival to the university in 1990, Watkins served as director of minority affairs and then as assistant to the president for social equity. In addition, he served briefly as the vice president of the Urban League in Pittsburgh.

One of Watkins' major accomplishments at Clarion was a reworking of the hiring process that insures more interaction between the Office of Social Equity and the departments doing the hiring.

Among Watkins' other accomplishments are the development of minority student services, a campus social equity climate assessment and the Reality '92: Vision'97" conference that allowed the campus to plan it's long -range social equity goals.

CUP default rate below average

courtesy of
University Relations

During 1992-93, nearly 60 percent of the students enrolled at Clarion University of Pennsylvania received federally funded Stafford Loans to pay for their education. Those loans total $6,966,858.

Clarion University's default rate on these loans falls well below the national average. The United States Department of Education has released figures showing that the Stafford Loan default rate at Clarion University of Pennsylvania was 5.7 percent for fiscal year 1991. this is well below the national average of 17.5 percent.

"Naturally, the federal government is concerned," says Ken Grugel, director of financial aid at Clarion University. "Defaults cost hundreds of millions of dollars each year."

Looking at 1992-93, 3,632 of Clarion's 5,384 students were receiving Stafford Loans. This figure includes only Pennsylvania residents who borrowed by Pennsylvania banks.

"Considering the soft economy and the fact that most of our students come from northwest Pennsylvania, southwest Pennsylvania, and the greater Pittsburgh area where the economy is slow, I think we do quite well," said Grugel.

Grugel believes Clarion University's pre-admittance, and pre-graduation follow-ups, keep Clarion' default rate lower than the national average.

"During the entrance interview we emphasize borrowing conservatively," said Grugel. Approximately 50 percent of those applying for loans do so. Each year that they apply they must sign a promissory note outlining the conditions for the loan.

"Prior to graduation they receive an exit interview form which asks for the name of their prospective employer, a permanent address, and two references for skip trace purposes. They also meet with the financial aid staff and view a video about the effects of not paying their loan, which includes how defaulting could affect their credit rating."

Grugel reports that the average Clarion University graduate has $9,500 in loans to repay at the time of graduation. The amount a student can obtain in Stafford Loans increases each year. Beginning in 1992-93, a freshman could borrow $2,625 during the first year, $3,500 during the sophomore year, and $5,500 per year as a junior and senior, or a possible total of $17,125. The maximum any student can borrow over a five year period under new laws is $23,000. A graduate student could obtain up to $65,500, including undergraduate loans, in total loans.

There are ways of postponing the repayment of loans through deferrals. Deferral categories include hardship, meaning unemployment or underemployment; military, Peace Corp, or Vista commitments; childbearing; or medical.

A high default rate can also be critical to a university's operations. "If a default rate at a university goes over 30 percent, the ability to loan will be terminated," said Grugel. "It is important for Clarion to operate educational programs that inform the students about the process of obtaining loans and the consequences of not repaying them."

Professor Krauss elected to chair national committee

courtesy of
University Relations

Dr. Iseli Krauss, associate professor of psychology is chair -elect of the American Psychology Association's (APA) Committee on Disabilities in Psychology. She will assume her position in February.

Krauss was elected chair at a recent meeting. She is serving her fourth year with the committee. Normally, a member only serves three years, but Krauss was selected to fill the unexpired term of another member. Her current term will last one year.

One of Krauss' specific activities for the committee over the last several years has dealt with violence against children with disabilities.

During the upcoming year she views President Bill Clinton's proposed health care plan as one of the issues the committee will face.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of Nov. 08, through Dec. 05, 1993.

At approximately 11:30 p.m. on Nov. 10, a report of a damaged vehicle in parking lot B was received by public safety. The vehicle, a 1993 Chevy Cavalier had scratch marks on the hood. The scratches were made with a key or other sharp object.

On Nov. 10 a report of a vehicle scratched with a sharp object was reported at approximately 7:30 p.m. The vehicle was in parking lot S when the damage occurred on the left front fender.

On Nov. 10 a report was received from Wilkinson Hall indicating lounge chairs are missing. The theft could have happened sometime within the past two weeks.

A report was received at approximately 11:30 p.m. on Nov. 11, that unknown actors set two posters on fire. They were hanging on a bulletin board on the second floor of the Gemmell Complex. Under investigation.

A fire alarm was activated on the ground floor of Nair Hall at approximately 1:12 a.m. on Nov. 11.

At approximately 1:13 p.m. on Nov. 11 an unknown person activated a fire extinguisher on the 2nd floor of Campbell Hall. Under investigation.

A student was found passed-out on the floor of Marwick-Boyd on Nov. 12. The individual was under age and was cited for public drunkenness and under age consumption.

At approximately 4:02 a.m. on Nov. 13, public safety was called to Wilkinson Hall where several male individuals were causing a disturbance. The males in question were not students. Two of the people were cited for under age drinking and one individual was cited for possession of marijuana.

At approximately 3:20 a.m. on Nov. 14, a fire alarm pull station was activated on the ground floor of Wilkinson Hall.

A non-student was cited for public drunkenness at approximately 7:15 a.m. on Nov. 14 in parking lot J.

On Nov. 15 a theft of a rain coat was reported at approximately 9:55 a.m. The rain coat is a canvas type with a yellow lining, size, medium, was taken from a room on the 4th floor of Nair Hall. Approximate value, $320.00.

At approximately 5:15 a.m. on Nov. 23, a fire alarm was activated on the 2nd floor of Nair Hall.

On Nov. 30 at approximately 7:52 p.m. unknown persons activated a smoke detector head in the laundry room of Nair Hall.

Fire alarm pull stations were activated in the basement of Campbell Hall on Dec. 1 at approximately 1:42 a.m., and Dec. 2 at 12:05 a.m. A smoke detector head was activated on the ground floor of Campbell Hall on Dec. 3 at approximately 10:47 p.m.

A fire alarm pull station was activated on the fourth floor of Wilkinson Hall Dec. 1 at approximately 12:05 a.m.

On Dec. 2 between the hours of 3:00 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. unknown persons damaged the tree lights by Marwick Boyd Auditorium. Under investigation.

On Dec. 3 a bicycle was reported stolen from the bike rack near Tippin Gym. The bicycle is an APEX, red in color with black stripes. It also has a black water bottle attached. Valued at $550.00. The bicycle was not locked to the bike rack.

On Dec. 4 money in the amount of $18.00 was reported stolen from a purse in the Gemmell Complex. Time not given. Under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these or other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

U.S. unsatisfied by North Korea offer

President Clinton and U.N. inspectors on Monday, faulted North Korea's offer to open nuclear sites to limited scrutiny, declaring the offer inadequate to make sure the North Koreans were not making bombs.

Clinton called top advisers to the White House to discuss a next step and said he also wanted to discuss the matter with South Korea.

Asked at news conference about North Korea's latest effort to defuse the situation, Clinton said he was encouraged by indications "that they understood that we needed to both start inspections and the dialogue again between the South and the North."

At International Atomic Energy Agency headquarters in Vienna, Austria, spokesman David Kyd said North Korea was offering to permit unrestricted inspection of five of the seven nuclear sites at Yongbyon.

Hubble eyesight repair

With guidance and power systems restored on the hubble, Endeavour's spacewalking repair crew focused on fixing the telescope's bad eyesight. yesterday, the space shuttle Endeavour and its crew of seven were in the sixth day of the 11-day flight, setting spacewalk records each time they venture out of the crew cabin. The bus-sized Hubble, 43-feet long, sits upright on a lazy-Suzan near the rear of the cargo bay. The third day of repairs, beginning late yesterday, was reserved for installing a new multi-purpose camera.

One held in euthanasia

A 50 year-old woman dying of cancer paid a teenaged neighbor in a Chicago suburb $2,100 for her own death, in which she first was choked and then bludgeoned to death, prosecutors said yesterday. Reggie Williams, 18, was charged with first-degree murder. The victim, Susan Potempa, was found strangled and bludgeoned at her suburban home on Thanksgiving Day.

Aidid shuttle defended

President Clinton defended on December 6, the use of a U.S. jet by Mohammed Farrah Aidid, whose Somali forces were suspected in the slaying of 24 Americans. Clinton said Robert Oakley, his special envoy to Somalia, wanted to get Aidid to peace talks in Ethiopia last week and "had to make his decision on the spur of the moment, without much time to consider whether there were any other options."

Haitians to press talks

President Clinton welcomed the Haitian prime minister's plan yesterday to spearhead talks aimed at restoring democracy to the troubled Caribbean country Robert Malval said he would resign as planned on Dec. 15 but stay on as acting prime minister.

Frank Zappa dead at 52

Frank Zappa, whose compositions stretched the boundaries of rock, jazz and classical music, and tested the limits of free speech, has died of prostate cancer. He was 52.

Zappa died Saturday evening, and was buried Sunday in a private ceremony in los Angeles, said family friend Jim Nagle.

Zappa's wife, Gail, and their children, Moon Unit, 26, Dweezil, 24, Ahmet, 19, and Diva, 14, were with him when he died at his Los Angeles home.

Zappa's long illness rarely stopped him from composing, recording and performing, or trying to defend lyrics against censors.

Zappa most recently sparred with Tipper Gore at Senate Hearings concerning rock lyrics.

Don Ameche dies

Don Ameche, best known for his oscar-winning performance in Cocoon, died Monday of cancer. Ameche was also in Trading Places, Folks, and Coming to America.

An upstanding fellow

No one looked down on John H. Doster at his funeral. He was the only one standing.

Doster, who worked at Richmon Funeral Home for about 10 years as a maintenance man, had asked that he be displayed upright when his time came. On Sunday, the funeral home complied, propping Doster's casket up at an angle. Doster died of a heart attack Nov. 29, on the job at the funeral home. He was 66.

Increase in hiring projected

Although companies are doing less recruiting on college campuses this academic year, many employers are anticipating a better year than last year, the College Placement Council said.

According to the Council's Job Outlook '94 report, 57 percent of the 245 employers responding in a survey plan to hire more college graduates for the 1993-94 recruiting season than they did last year. They project hiring 5.9 percent more graduates in 1993-94 than they actually hired in 1992-93.

Many firms, however, do not plan on active recruiting on campus, according to the survey. Responding employers plan to visit 7.4 percent fewer campuses in the 1993-94 recruiting season than they did last year. Last year was described in the survey as a "buyer's market" for employers, and that low inflation, coupled with a tight job market, kept increases in starting salaries low.

Only 37 percent of non-profit organizations plan to increase hiring, while 57 percent of service employees plan to hire.

MBA's help women break glass ceiling

Women who want to break through the glass ceiling into top management jobs might consider earning a master's in business administration.

Researchers at the University of Dayton, Ohio, and Pepperdine University in Malibu, California studied women in management positions at Fortune 500 companies across the nation and found that women who hold MBA degrees are entering corporate top management jobs quicker and in larger numbers than similarly prepared men.

According to Rebecca Yates, associate dean of the University of Dayton's School of Business Administration and co-author of the study, the findings debunk recent studies that indicate women are blocked in their career paths by "an invisible glass ceiling," and cannot advance through the upper ranks of American businesses.

The researchers' study found that 25 years after receiving an MBA, women in Fortune 500 companies held nearly triple the percentage of top management jobs than did their male counterparts.

Stadium rules prevent further injuries

The new rules for the University of Wisconsin's stadium successfully stopped another rush of students onto the football field, university officials said.

The new stadium rules were established after thousands of students rushed onto the field following the upset victory against Michigan State on Oct. 30. The stampede left more than 70 people injured, seven critically.

"I think they're smart people," UW's Police Chief Susan Riseling said. "They learned from the Michigan game that they didn't want to live through that again."

All of the victims hurt in the incident have been released from the hospital, officials said.

The new stadium rules for the Ohio State game, students exchanged their season passes for paper tickets to prevent more than one person from using each pass.

During the game extra security guards were present to stop students from sitting in the aisles and to prevent any students who attempted to rush onto the field.

Madrigal singers present 16th annual dinner to celebrate the holiday season

by Christy Williams
Lifestyles Writer

The 16th annual Madrigal Dinner, the highlight of the Christmas season at Clarion University for the last fifteen years, will be presented in the Gemmell Student Complex Multi-Purpose Room on Saturday, December 11 at 6 p.m.

A Madrigal dinner is a reproduction of the Old English Christmas Feast introducing the yuletide season. There are five phases of the dinner, and each phase of the dinner is introduced by herald trumpeters and an appropriate carol. Chronologically, the phases are: the procession of the Madrigal singers into the hall, the arrival of the Wassail Bowl, the advent of the Boar's Head, the appearance of the traditional flaming plum pudding, and the presentation of the vocal concert.

During the dinner, the guests will be entertained by the Clarion University Instrumental Consort and strolling minstrels while feasting on a hearty prime rib dinner catered by P. C. Crackers.

After dinner the Madrigal singers, including a king, queen, jester, and wizard, and several court men and women, will present a Christmas concert. The concert will be directed by Milutin Lazich, Associate Professor of music voice. All of the cast will be dressed in 16th Century Elizabethan costume.

"In the end we request the participation of the audience to sing the popular carols Silent Night and God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen as the singers leave the hall." said Lazich.

"For the past 6 years we have presented the Madrigal Dinner off campus at the Clarion Castle in Marianne since that was the most appropriate hall." Lazich said.

"This year, however, we want to bring it back to the University and present the dinner in the new Gemmell Complex so more students will be able to attend the event. I am very excited about using the Multi-Purpose room because we have enough decorations to make it look like a 16th Century hall."

The Madrigal Choir, a select group of twenty-three CUP vocalists, is also performing their Renaissance, Medieval, and Elizabethan music in Oil City this season. They have been working on their performance diligently all semester. The president of the choir is Kathi Sheffer, senior music education major, and vice-president is Ronda Tingley, junior music education major.

Freshman Theater major Ben Fisler, head of the Madrigal public relations committee, stated, "It has been a pleasure to work with a group of vocalists in which so much of the responsibility lies with the students. It has been a great opportunity for growth."

Tickets will be on sale at the Gemmell Complex Ticket Office until Friday, December 10. Tickets are $13 for students with a valid ID and $15 for the general public.

Tickets may also be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope and check made out to Clarion Student's Association Gemmell Complex, Clarion PA, 16214, or by calling 226-2459, 226-2709 or 226-

Hot, Sexy and Safer Tour leaves mark on campus

by John Martinec
Lifestyles Writer

AIDS is no laughing matter especially when you are talking about a person who has contracted the deadly disease. But when someone is discussing ways to stop the spread of this killer one can make it very hilarious.

Hot, Sexy and Safer Tour '93-'94 is a provocative, zany, outrageous performance by Suzi Landolphi, a comedienne with a message, who encourages teen and young adults to accept and negotiate safer sex practices.

Organized by the Graduate Assistants in Nair Hall, and sponsored by many campus organizations, Landolphi's visit brought a very important message to Clarion 's campus.

Talking about this very touchy and potentially embarassing subject could be difficult for some people, but Landolphi has a style that relates to young people and eliminates the awkwardness of the topic. The goal is to raise consciousness regarding HIV and the many other sexually transmitted diseases has enabled her to talk freely and open up the kind of rapport that may save many of their lives.

The Hot, Sexy, and Safer Tour has left its mark on the many campuses she has visited around the country. It has heightened peoples awareness and interest regarding society's perception and attitudes towards sexual behavior.

Current projects of Hot, Sexy, and Safer Inc. range from going to high schools to businesses. There have been over 500 performances in high schools, colleges and universities across the nation from 1988-1993. They have been granted membership in the National Association of Campus Activities. Through this organization Landolphi has been nominated for the Harry Chapin Humanitarian Award and "Lecturer of the Year" Award three years in a row.

Their association with the Okamoto Condom Company, which manufactures and distributed the most superior condoms in the world, has provided complimentary condoms for each Hot, Sexy, and Safer performance. Hot, Sexy, and Safer Inc. is also a co-founder of Condomania. This concept is a new and exciting way of retailing condoms and other safer sex products and educational materials, with eight stores in the United States.

Landolphi also uses television as a way to get her message across. She is the host of her own weekly talk show for teens called Raparound on WBZ in Boston. She also hosted a 1991 TV appearances on many well known talk shows like The Home Show, Jenny Jones Show, Night Talk with Jane Whitney, Geraldo, Attitudes, Vickie!, Maury Povich, and she appears regularly on the Los Angeles-based KABC Talkradio Michael Jackson Show.

Besides being the Celebrity Spokesperson for the First National Childrens with HIV/AIDS Awareness Day, she hosted the Nancy Susan Reynolds Awards for the center for Population Options in Los Angeles. She also performed Celebrate Safer Sex at the Improv Comedy Club in Los Angeles which was a benefit for Minority AIDS Project of L.A.

Clarion graduates release first recorded album

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

If you were here back in 1991, you might remember a hot new band consisting of six Clarion University students. They took the Battle of the Bands by storm and celebrated later with first place.

Now Infinity is on their way to the top with their first album "Chronic Musicians." These Clarion graduates have been recording since June, and their final product will be out on the market debuting Monday, December 13.

Guitarist Dan Coyle, a communications graduate student here at CUP, describes the production of the album to be quite an original experience. Infinity decided to write, record, produce and promote the songs themselves. The group had tremendous help from Mike Polimadei of Hometown Productions located in Lower Burrell, Pennsylvania.

The original Infinity first formed in the fall of 1988. The band, from 1990 to the present, consists of Scott Kaminski on lead, harmony and backing vocals, Brian Slavinsky on keyboards, piano, strings and vocals, Dan Coyle on lead, rhythm, electric and acoustic guitars and vocals, Frank Maier on lead and rhythm guitar, Alan Hooks on bass guitar and vocals and Jeff Walch on drums and percussion.

They kept to themselves until a year later when they appeared in the Battle of the Bands. They also played at the Bedrock Cafe Clarion and at bars around Pittsburgh in the summer of 1990.

The group gained some more experience by playing at proms and bigger bars in Greentree, Butler and others. Then in 1991, they appeared in the Battle of the Bands in Clarion and took first place. The band played various Journey and Damn Yankees songs, as well as Heart's "Barracuda," but "Princess," a ballad written by Coyle, astonished the crowd, resulting in a first place prize.

Later on the group members graduated one by one and it became harder to get together. In 1992 they performed in the Battle of the Bands but took third place. But that did not discourage the band.

After the last band member graduated and two of the members got married, the distance required them to write more songs on their own and doing what they each wanted for the album. Then Slavinsky invested in his own studio at his home (called SlavStar Studios) where all the music was recorded this summer. This helped the band save money while also gaining the recording experience themselves.

"Chronic Musicians," according to Coyle, is "not your typical background party music. Our music is very passionate — we call it 'night music'." Each song on the album was recorded as if it had potential of being a hit. In other words, there are no filler songs.

Each song on the album has meaning to it, whether it is about love and war or a memory of the past. Coyle states, "For people who know us, it (the album) will be a surprise." [Editor's note: After listening firsthand to the songs, I found this to be true. It is a very pleasant surprise.]

Soon-to-be-famous Infinity won't forget their Clarion University fans, though. Next semester they plan to make an on and off-campus appearance. They will also continue to play around Pittsburgh.

When asked about other future plans for Infinity, Coyle mentioned a second album which is halfway finished. When will it come out? "The end of next summer," Coyle states, "but who knows? We're just happy to get the first one finished."

Infinity's "Chronic Musicians" will be available now at local National Record Marts in Pittsburgh and surrounding areas, including the Gemmell bookstore.

Wellness Programs provide positive approach to living

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

So. . .you think there isn't anything going on at Clarion University. Possibly you're looking for the wrong kind of excitement. How about attending an event that could uplift your entire well being for a lifetime instead of entertaining you for a couple of hours.

If this sounds exciting, you're in luck. The Clarion University Wellness Committee created a number of programs to increase awareness of the things around you and how they affect your life.

This program deals with six interrelated concepts that are important for all of us to fully understand in order to lead happy productive lives. These dimensions are emotional, intellectual, occupational, physical, spiritual, and social. Students, faculty and staff are able to choose which dimension they would like to explore and do so through the many programs scheduled for the 1993-94 academic year. The programs were created in response to a wellness survey given last year.

Two of the workshops already held this year were a program on kicking the smoking habit and another offered by Father Monty Sayers about beating the holiday blues.

Next semester, on January 20, Dr. Rita Flaningam, Dean of the College of Communication and Computer Information Science will host a program entitled "Dealing with Difficult People." The ways in which people communicate with one another are explored and solutions are discussed for coping with the ways people don't communicate.

On February 3, T. Audean Duesphohl gives helpful advice on how to deal with that era that we college students will never forget. . .the teenage years. Mood swings, rebelliousness and low self-esteem are discussed along with strategies to help families understand and get through what I considered to be my years of demonic possession.

The physical concept of the wellness program is discussed by Cindy Porter's "You and Your Back." Information on proper body alignment as well as normal anatomy is provided. Audience members will also learn stretching exercises.

All of the hour-long programs are held in the Gemmell Student Complex at noon on the respective dates.

Acoustic trio working the "Nightshift"

by R. Thomas Henderson
Contributing Writer

Getting through the day at school is hard enough to begin with, but three Clarion University students also do a lot of work during the Nightshift.

The band Nightshift features Aaron Crisman on vocals and lead guitar, Derek Mikesell on bass, and Lon Pristas on vocals and guitar. The trio does exclusively acoustic rock, with a wide selection of both current and classic material.

"The intent of doing everything acoustic has been to keep it simple and still play a wide variety of stuff," said Pristas. It's doing as much as we can with an acoustic set."

"Yeah, doing 'Eighteen' by Alice Cooper was probably pushing it," added Crisman. "It touches on all extremes."

Nightshift has been together as a unit for about a year. They placed third in Clarion's "Battle of the Bands" last year, and shortly after that they were called to play at the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity house. Since then they have done several more gigs at Sig Eps and have appeared at the Alpha Chi Rho fraternity house, the Phi Sigma Kappa ALF pig roast and performed at a three-band show at the Gemmell Student Complex.

Being a musician and a student at the same time is no easy task. The band puts about six to nine hours per week into rehearsing, and during the week before a performance, they practice as much as two or three hours every day. "Right now, we're just trying to merge college and the band together," said Mikesell.

In addition to cover songs, the band currently has about eight originals in their repertoire. Crisman describes their original songs as "kind of a John Denver, Neil Young, Pink Floyd mix." Mostly, though, they do "classics, 60's kind of stuff." The band's main influences include Led Zeppelin, Tesla, Neil Young, and most "classic rock."

Despite all the hard work involved, the benefits are well worth it. According to Crisman, "It's really great, seeing the crowd getting into it."

"It's not profitable," commented Pristas. "We're not in it for the money. We do it for the fun of it."

For more information about Nightshift, call Lon Pristas at 226-5557 or Derek Mikesell at 226-3772.

Nightshift also appears on and off campus with local bands Simon Sez and Dancing Linda.

Honorary fraternity spreads holiday cheer to local rest home

by Kari Larson
Contributing Writer

Members of the Clarion University chapter of Zeta Phi Eta fraternity spent the evening just before Thanksgiving break entertaining the residents of Allegheny Manor with songs, drama and instrumental music.

While chapter advisor Dr. Kristin Marshall expressed her pleasure in seeing students give up an early start to their Thanksgiving break, the participating members agreed that it was a fulfilling way for them to start the holiday season.

Zeta Phi Eta National Professional Fraternity in Speech Communications and Theater was chartered at Clarion just last spring. The honorary fraternity is dedicated to improving communications throughout the community.

Participating in the evening of entertainment were chapter members Derek Bish who played guitar, Kari Larson who performed a comedy scene, Marion Russell who sang a song from the Broadway musical "The Sound of Music," Lynne Lander and Eileen Withey who acted in a portion of the drama "Legends," Melissa Mong who sang "How Great Thou Art," and a total group participation of "Silent Night," led by Marion Russell.

Ray Gene Adams, Director of Activities at Allegheny Manor, arranged for the entertainment and expressed pleasure at the contributions of the fraternity.

"It was something very nice for them to have done and was enjoyed very much by our residents," Adams said.

The fraternity's next project is involvement in a literacy program sponsored by Clarion Free Library. Zeta Phi Eta members will be trained in methods of helping adults learn to read and then devote time to working with such adults.

A student can become a member of Zeta Phi Eta if he or she has received a 3.0 in his/her major, completed three courses in the speech department, has a 2.5 overall G.P.A. and can be recommended by faculty of the Speech Communications and Theater department.

Students participate in auditions

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

On November 20, auditions were held in West Virginia. But these were not just any auditions. They provide the "big break," which can be the deciding factor in the best college actors and actresses careers.

The auditions were a preliminary screening, or an audition to audition. Many talented actors and actresses from these colleges auditioned for this preliminary screening, but only about twelve from Pennsylvania colleges made the cut. Three students from Clarion University were among this twelve. They are Holly Sena, Brian Bazala, and Holly Sell.

Sena explains each person has a minute and thirty seconds to sing a song, plus do a monologue. If you chose not to sing, then your time limit is a minute for just monologue. After your short amount of time is done, a voice yells, "Stop!" and your audition is finished.

Sena is a junior at CUP, and is one out of two female BFA (theatre) majors. She had the first audition out of about 600 actresses/actors, and afterwards she says she thought she had blown it. After receiving the phone call telling her she made the cut, she said, "I was really surprised, and overwhelmed. I just about died!"

Holly Sell, a senior this semester, is majoring in geology. She claims she's involved in theatre because "it's a lot of fun." Sell, very excited about making the cut, said, "I still don't believe it! I'm not even a theatre major!"

Communications is senior Brian Bazala's major at CUP. After he found out he made the cut, he said, "I was pleased. It was great to participate in the experience. It was the closest thing I've ever come to a professional audition."

These three talented individuals will now move on to audition in Georgia at the Southwestern Theatre Conference. These auditions will be held over spring break. At this conference one hundred directors and casting agents from the Southeast will be making appearances. If selected from the hundreds of actors/actresses at that audition, they will either receive summer employment with the theatre, or possibly a full time job.

"I believe it is a great opportunity because theaters can lead you on your way," said Sena.

WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-In January, Robert Williams, a University of Tennessee neurologist, reported that the brains of successive generations of housecats are getting smaller, probably attributable to their association with humans.

-In Grand Junction, Colorado in July, firefighters called to a potential suicide scene were successful in talking a 42-year-old man down from the courthouse roof, but they made backup preparations in case their negotiations failed by borrowing a huge, inflatable hamburger from a nearby Burger King to break the man's fall.

-In September, Richard Ramirez, the notorious "Night Stalker" mass murderer, failed a metal detector test at San Francisco County jail, and X-rays detected items in his rectum. A subsequent stool search revealed a small handcuff key, an empty syringe, the cap of a pen and a small piece of cellophane on which was printed "I like chocolate."

-In April, Della Dobbs, 31, the woman police called "The Snow Queen," was arrested for theft in Stevens Point, Wisconsin. According to police, she twice met men in bars, took them outside to her pickup truck to have sex and convinced them to take off their clothes, get out of the truck and rub snow on themselves as foreplay. She then drove off with their wallets.

-In June, U.S. customs agents in Miami, tipped off by seeing an "unnatural bulge" in one of the boa constrictors entering the country in a shipment from Colombia, confiscated the entire shipment and found 312 snakes with cocaine-filled condoms in their stomachs and their rectums sewn shut.

-In April, Merriam, Kansas, District Attorney Paul Morrison said the body of a man who committed suicide went undetected for three days in a bathroom of a house that was being shown by a real estate agent. Apparently, neither the agent nor prospective buyers were interested in looking inside that particular bathroom. And over a four-day period in February, guests slept in a room at an Edmonton, Alberta motel unaware that a woman's body was stuffed between the floor and the box spring.

-Dairy farmer Anthony Tworek, 31, slipped from a stepladder in Clarksdale, Missouri in May, falling backward with such force that he impaled himself by the neck on a 1 1/2-inch-thick pole. The pole entered alongside his carotid artery but did not touch it and went through the roof of his mouth, missing his brain by half an inch. He fully recovered.

-The body of a Nashville, Tennessee woman who died in a fire in August was sent to her hometown of Bowling Green, Kentucky where burial arrangements were made by the Burnom and Son Funeral Home.

-Former Oklahoma Rep. Kenneth Converse testified in July that he had witnessed Gov. David Walters, when Walters was a candidate for governor in 1990, promise a state job to someone in exchange for a $5,000 contribution. Converse said he told the grand jury that what Walters did was "highly unethical. Usually you have someone else to do it (for you)."

-In the Nichirei International women's tennis tournament in September in Tokyo, Kimiko Date of Japan defeated Taiwan's Shi-Ting Wang.

BIOS club saves environment at Mill Creek

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

The BIOS club was recently involved in an important clean-up at Mill Creek. This clean-up was conducted on November 19 with the purpose of lowering the iron and acid contamination leaking into the stream.

The problem is caused by discharges of iron and acid water that originate underneath old coal mining sites located approximately one half mile away from Mill Creek. Rain water works its way down through the loose soil, is contaminated with iron and acid, and then forces itself back out of the ground, almost like a fresh spring does.

Dr. Dalby, faculty advisor for the BIOS club, is also the president of the Mill Creek Coalition of Clarion and Jefferson counties. He comments that the coalition has been responsible for addressing "a bunch of discharges that were entering Mill Creek at 12-15 cites along its length" since 1991. With this constant observation, it was a concern that Mill Creek's water would by degraded "to a point that the Fish and Boat Commission might not stock it anymore."

A section of the stream had already been stocked with trout. Dalby states that due to the constant drainage of contaminating water, "approximately 1000 times more acid than most fish and other aquatic organisms can tolerate" into the stream, aquatic life would be destroyed.

Members of the BIOS club set out to help correct the matter. They added onto an already constructed filtering system for the water. It should be clarified that this filtering system does not work vertically, for example, in the way that a strainer drains water off noodles, but it works horizontally. This treatment system operates parallel along the ground through a series of ponds and ditches which collect and treat the acidic and iron contaminated water before it is deposited into Mill Creek.

These wetlands were constructed with the help of the 887th Engineering Battalion of the National Guard division from Punxsutawney in 1991. Without their enabling equipment and personnel, the wetlands could not have been constructed.

The BIOS club helped to restore the environment at Mill Creek as they lowered the contamination in the stream.

What the BIOS club needed to do was back up water in a small pond, using approximately fifty sandbags 30-40 pounds in weight. Dalby informs that this pond "drained into a depression that meandered for several hundred feet before meeting with Mill Creek." The original path of the depression was approximately 50 feet. The addition "increased the distance by six to eight times," allowing a greater "opportunity for reactions to occur for the iron to drop out."

What this dropping out means is that the longer the contaminated water is exposed to the oxygen in the air, it can no longer stay in the form of the threatening solution. The iron is, more or less, precipitated out, lowering the acidic level.

With the help of the BIOS club, Dalby informs that the upgraded work done on the treatment system "took care of 70-90 percent of the iron and acid problem" along a three to four-mile cite. Further clean-up along other cites is an ongoing process, but hope is bright. Fish have been seen swimming along the bottom of this section of the stream, and it is hopeful that it will hold a developing aquatic colonization in the next few years.

Russian exchange program teaches American finance system

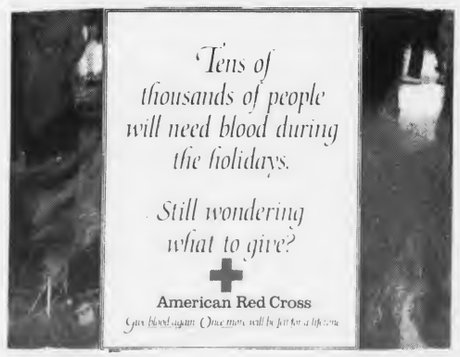

Courtesy of College of Business Administration

Two faculty members from Clarion University had the opportunity of teaching Russian students a bit about finance last spring. Dr. Soga Ewedemi and Dr. Marguerite VanLandingham from the Department of Finance in Clarion's College of Business Administration travelled to the city of Kazan for six weeks in April and May. Their assignment was to teach undergraduate and graduate students in the Kazan Institute of Finance and Economics how the American finance system operates. They also explored how market-based financial notions might work in the former Soviet Union. The two faculty members have returned with many observations on their trip, and on December 7 they hosted a program to discuss their unique experience.

Dr. Joseph P. Grunenwald explains how this program came about. "We have been developing international programs for quite some time now. When I met several visiting Russian faculty members and administrators here in Clarion about three years ago, we discussed the possibility of a faculty and student exchange. The Russians were enthusiastic and we proceeded from there."

Actually, the process of making the program a reality was long and complicated. Dr. Grunenwald explains that "none of our business faculty speak any Russian; few of the Russian faculty and administrators speak any English. We were very fortunate though to have Dr. Dilara Nikoulin, a retired Russian faculty member at Clarion University and President of D&M Consulting, assist us in this program. Without her and the help of her associate, Ms. Maria Braun, we could not have put this visit together."

So what did the American faculty members think of their first extensive experience with Russian students and Russian people? Dr. VanLandingham observed that "the six weeks went by very rapidly. We would be picked up at 8:30 a.m. every morning, teach as fast as we could all day long, and come home exhausted every night. There was so much to learn as will as to teach. The fact that we had almost no language capability was unfortunate from a cultural perspective, but the Kazan Institute provided us with excellent Russian-English interpreters. We felt quite at home with our Russian students and colleagues." As to the classroom environment, Dr. Ewedemi noted that "The students were very attentative and eager to learn. They weren't always familiar with all of the financial terms and techniques we discussed in class, but that is not unusual for students anywhere. That is what education is all about. We found that within a short time, students were able to grasp many of the details of financial techniques and were quite creative in applying them to Russian situations. Students in Russia are just beginning to study market-based systems but will have no difficulty in catching up to the rest of the world."

Dancers to perform "A Step In Time"

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

"A Step in Time" is the theme for the 6th annual Dance Concert scheduled for Thursday, December 9 and Friday, December 10 at 8 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Little Theatre.

Marilouise Michel, assistant professor of speech communication and theatre, is directing the performance and designing the choreography along with students Maria Sleigh, Monica Schmader and Desiree Wassam. The concert will feature dances of all genre's including jazz, lyrical jazz, modern and tap.

Music will be featured from the Tony Award winning play "Kiss of the Spiderwoman," and by other popular artists such as B.B. King, Genesis and Michael Jackson. Accompanying one of the dances on piano will be Dr. Paula Amrod, associate professor of music. Dr. Lisa Johnson, assistant professor of music will contribute a recording of her clarinet, oboe and bassoon music for another segment of the performance. Dana Shaw, director of the Clarion Dance Studio, will also perform in one of the numbers.

Michel's speech communication and theatre class 304: Dance Repertoire will perform the segment of the production called "Worship." The students in this class work like a professional dance company to create and extend an original work to stage.

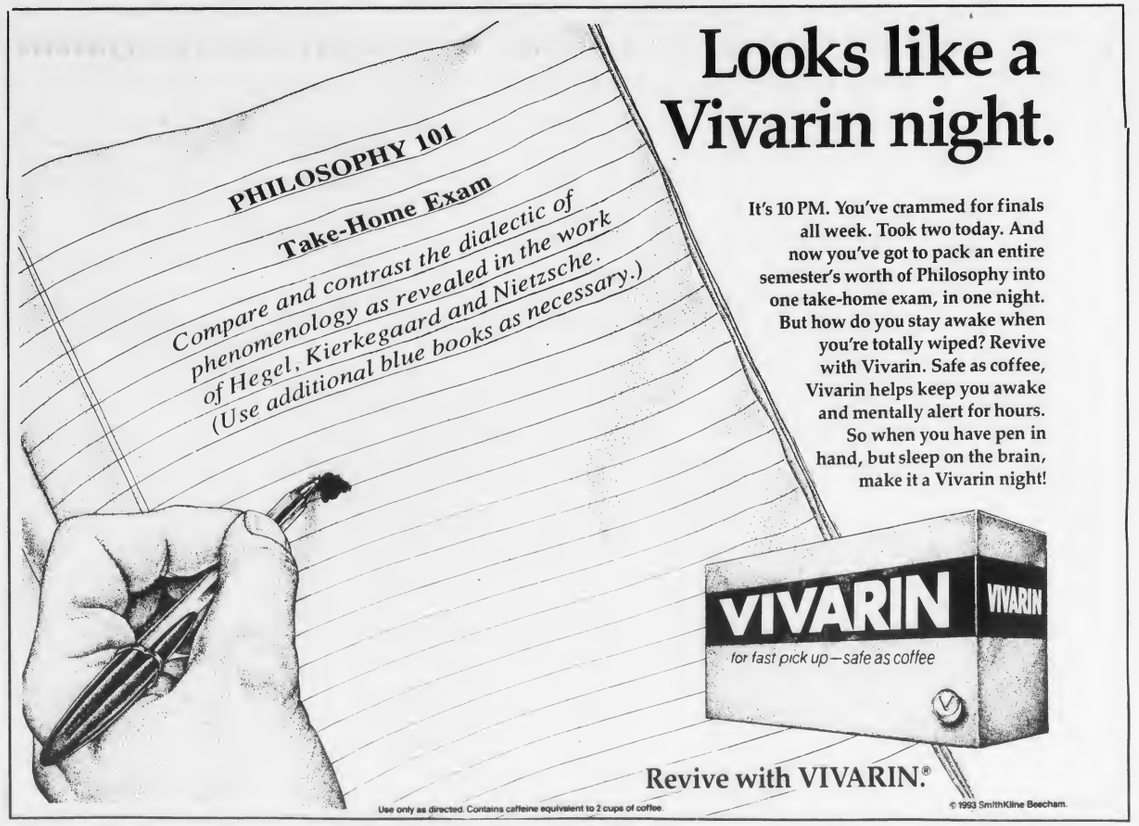

Solos will be danced by April Gallagher, LaDonna Morton, Patty Helterbran, Dayna Shaw, Dana Machen and Maria Sleigh.

Tickets for the dance concert are $5 for adults, $4 for children 12 and under and free for students with valid identification cards. For more information or to order tickets call (814) 226-2459.

"See how the vegetation has been trampled flat here, Jimmy? That tells me where a deer bedded down for the night. After a while, you'll develop an eye for these things yourself."

Where the deer and the antelope work

"There he is, Stan! ... On that birch tree, second branch from the top, and chattering away like crazy! ... I tell you — first come the squirrels and then come the squirrel guns."

Impolite as they were, the other bears could never help staring at Larry's enormous deer gut.

Clarion stripped of 1992 PSAC title

by Ben Vessa
Sports Editor

"Unfortunate." That was the term used by Athletic Director Bob Carlson and Registrar Douglas Bills in regard to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference's decision to strip Clarion's football team of its PSAC-West Championship.

The Golden Eagles were forced to relinquish their 1992 title due to an error in the tabulation of credits of Clarion defensive lineman Antron Sims.

Sims, an undeclared major, took summer classes at a school near his home in Cleveland, Ohio in 1992. He took the amount of credits he was told would make him eligible. The credits transferred and Sims returned to play football for Clarion in the fall of that year.

The problem was that the community college Sims attended worked on a quarter hour system, not a semester hour system, like Clarion. "Nowhere on the form or on the transcript we received did it say that the college worked on a quarter hour system," said Bills. A quarter hour equates to approximately two-thirds of a semester hour according to Bills, which in turn, made Sims ineligible to play.

"I don't blame the coaching staff at all," said Sims, "I was told what I needed to do to play, and I did everything I needed to do. It was just a miscommunication process between the athletic department and the Registrar."

The error was discovered when Sims took classes at the same community college the following summer, and the transcript came back with the disclosure that the school worked on a quarter hour system.

When the error was discovered, Carlson self-reported it to the PSAC and the NCAA. The NCAA had no problem since the Eagles self-reported the infraction, but the PSAC referred to an old rule stating that any game in which an ineligible player plays, the team must forfeit. Sims played in all six Clarion victories.

"I feel bad for the kids," stated Carlson. "It takes away from a heck of an effort."

"I don't think the team had any knowledge that the penalty would be so severe," said Bills. "It is a very drastic and unfortunate penalty."

Carlson must send a letter to the six schools Clarion defeated in 1992 disclosing that the Eagles have forfeited those games, along with mailing the PSAC-West championship trophy to IUP. The members of the team will be able to keep their rings, however. "We haven't lost any credibility, said Carlson. "In fact, we have gained it through our honesty."

Clarion ranked #9 in nation

Eagles takedown three ranked opponents

by Ben Vessa

In his 26 years as head coach, Bob Bubb turned a little town in northwestern Pennsylvania into a Division I wrestling goldmine. From 1971 through 1992, Bubb's teams won 12 PSAC titles, one Eastern Wrestling League crown, and at Nationals, placed in the Division I Top-30 in team scoring 18 times in 21 years. For many of us, wrestling was the keystone in which we referred when explaining which school we attended.

Then Bubb retired.

In 1993, under the tutelidge of rookie head coach Jack Davis, the Eagles suffered through their worst season in over a quarter century, muddling through a 9-13-1 campaign, and for all intents and purposes, dropped off the wrestling map.

This year, Davis hopes to regain some of the respect that the program lost in 1992, and if last week's Cornell Duals are any indication, the Eagles are headed in the right direction.

In Clarion's first match, the Eagles faced the eighth-ranked team in the nation, the Nebraska Cornhuskers. The Huskers captured decisions in three of the first four matches and vaulted to a commanding 12-3 lead. After Clarion's Moss Grays pinned Joe Stephens at 150 pounds, Nebraska's Jason Kraft earned a technical fall over Shawn Armbrust, and the Cornhuskers had a 17-9 advantage. It was all Eagles from there.

J.J. Stanbro captured a close 3-2 decision at 167, Dan Payne outscored Nebraska's Tom Manzella 15-10 at 177, and Brian Stout and Rob Sintobin pinned their respective opponents.

Not only did the Eagles dominate the final four matches, but Nebraska had a point taken away in the heavweight match, setting the final at 27-16.

Clarion next battled the host school, the 16th-ranked Cornell Big Red. This time the Eagles started strong. Sheldon Thomas opened the scoring for Clarion at 118 pounds. Thomas major decisioned Cornell's John Bove 11-2 to give the Eagles an early 4-0 lead. Kyle Wolfe, replacing Bob Crawford, who had earlier won at 126 against Nebraska, was major decisioned by David Hirsch, 12-3, evening the score. The two squads split the next four matches, and once again it would come down to the final four wrestlers.

Again the Eagles dominated. J.J. Stanbro squeaked out another thrilling victory, a 5-4 decision over Cornell's Trip Rodgers. Payne decisioned Terry Lucero, 7-2 and Stout crushed Shane Cass, 16-0. The technical fall gave Clarion a 21-10 lead, and after a loss at heavyweight by Sintobin, the Eagles were two for two, this time a 21-13 beating of Cornell.

The Eagles would then battle the 27th ranked team in the country, the Purdue Boilermakers. The Boilermakers were having a rough enough time as it was, already dropping matches to Brown (25-12) and Edinboro (35-3). Clarion didn't care.

The Eagles won all but two matches in claiming a 34-9 victory over Purdue. Thomas pinned his opponent at 3:20 to begin the onslaught and Payne and Stout polished it off with overwhelming victories. Payne creamed Mike benson 24-9 and Stout shutout David McCubbins 14-0. For the day, Stout did not have a point scored against him, pinning his first opponent and then beating the next two challengers by a combined score of 30-0.

Clarion entered the Cornell Challenge Duals as the only team of the six without a national ranking. The Eagles exited Ithaca with a 3-0 record, and the look of a Division I powerhouse reminiscent of the Bubb years.

Stanbro, Payne and Stout went from Ithaca, New York to the gambling capital of the world and didn't miss a step. The Las Vegas Invitational was the next step for the Eagles, and their 167, 177 and 190-pound manglers were again impressive. Stanbro and Payne finished fourth and Stout placed sixth for the Eagles, who came in 10th overall.

Oklahoma State won the title.

Clarion will next visit WVU on Friday and then travel to Ohio State on Saturday. The West Virginia match begins at 8 p.m.

Eagles invite, expunge national powers

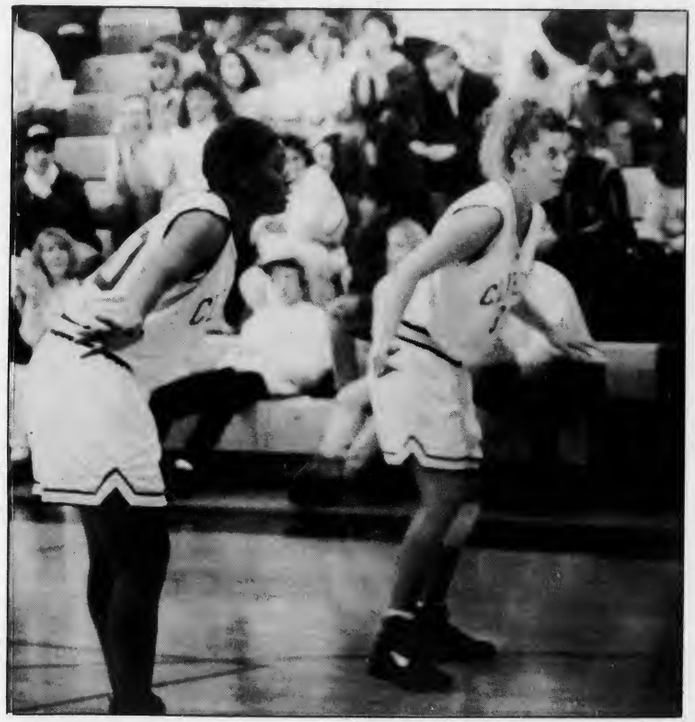

by Ben Vessa

It was billed as the "Best Division II Women's Basketball Tournament in the Nation." The contestants: Second-ranked North Dakota State, the defending national champion; Fifth-ranked Bentley, a "Final Four" participant five straight years; Eighth-ranked Pitt-Johnstown, the East Regional Champions the past two seasons; and the 19th-ranked Clarion Golden Eagles.

"I thought we could finish anywhere from one to four," said Clarion head coach Gie Parsons, "but we wanted to find out how we matched up with the best." What Parsons found out was almost frightening, for not only did the Golden Eagles win this tournament of Division II juggernauts, they won it convincingly.

The tournament's opening game pitted the Bentley College Falcons against the North Dakota State Bison. The Bison grazed to a 23-13 lead and had buffed it to a 14-point cushion by intermission. NDSU held a 13-point advantage with just over five minutes to play, but Bentley, under the direction of Tracy Pomerenke came knocking on the door. Pomerenke's five straight points and Janet Kerrigan's driving lay-up sliced the lead to four with just over a minute left, but the Bison, doing their best George Jefferson imitation, slammed the door in Bentley's face and held on for a 91-83 win.

The nightcap was a battle between two eastern titans. The UPJ Mountain Cats had knocked the Eagles from the Division II playoffs last year with a 70-64 victory in the Eastern regional final, and Clarion was anxiously awaiting this first round match-up.

Pat McDevitt/ Clarion Call

Double trouble: Mona Gaffney (foreground) scored 28 points and pulled 25 boards against UPJ while Coakley (background) netted 32 in the championship against North Dakota State. Both were named to the All-Tournament team with Coakley claiming MVP honors.

From the outset, UPJ pressured the Clarion perimeter players, forcing the rambunctious three-point shooters into poor shot selections. The only offense Clarion could agregate was through the low post game of Mona Gaffney. Gaffney single-handedly kept the Eagles in the game, scoring 16 of Clarion's first 25 points.

The Eagles found themselves down by nine with only 30 seconds remaining until halftime, but an Amy Migyanka three, Clarion's first of the game, and an Amy Coon lay-up at the buzzer milked the Cats' lead to four at the break.

The Eagles, which in previous years had lived and died by the three, were only one of 13 in that department in half number one, but still only found themselves down by four.

UPJ upped that advantage to seven early in the second stanza, before Gaffney finally received some scoring support in the form of Claron's all-time leading scorer Shannon Coakley. Coakley hit two straight jumpers, one from 25 feet away to draw the Eagles even at 43.

After several lead changes, the Eagles finally began to pull away. Baskets by Gaffney and Carlita Jones placed the Clarion lead at five with just over one minute to play, and when the Lady Cats attempted to trap the ball, Amy Coon found herself all alone to bury the game-clinching three-pointer.

The hard-fought 79-72 win was earned by the Clarion inside game. Gaffney finished the night with 28 points and 25 rebounds (14 offensive), while Jones shrugged off a poor start and finished with 14 points and 12 boards.

UPJ's setback placed the Cats in Saturday's consolation game against Bentley, and paced by a 34-point effort by Denise Gallo, the Lady Cats prevailed 76-66.

That set the stage for a classic battle between the Clarion Golden Eagles and the defending national champions, the North Dakota State Bison.

The Bison had handled Bentley rather easily in the opener, and led by an inside game which featured five ladies over six feet tall, North Dakota State was looking to shut down Clarion's inside game of Gaffney and Jones.

The Bison were not prepared for the shooting clinic they were about to witness.

Amy Coon walked out of the locker room and buried a trey. Soon, Shannon Coakley and Amy Migyanka were joining the missile lauching brigade. Four deep bombs and two Gaffney lay-ups later, the Eagles led 16-5. Coon would bury three more, and before North Dakota State could understand what was transpiring, the Eagles had built a 16-point first half cushion.

The Eagles weren't doing this to the normal Clarion Classic opponent, this was the number two team in the nation, the defending national champions.

Through the perfect execution of a full-court press, NDSU would fight to tie the game at 46 early in the second half.

Coakley would have none of that. After driving the lane for a hoop, Coakley drained two deep threes, the latter from Fargo, and the rout was on.

The Eagles never trailed, and the 90-79 final was not even indicative of the onslaught.

In all, Coakley was seven of 11, and the Eagles were 15 of 31 from three-point land. Coakley led the team with 32, followed by Coon's 22. Jones had 14 points and 13 boards while Gaffney had 10 and 16.

"We used our inside game in the win against UPJ, but because of North Dakota State's strong inside game, we knew we'd have to be successful with our perimeter game," said Parsons. "It was a total team effort."

Clarion now sits at 8-0 for the season and embarks on a tough two game road trip in Gannon and Mercyhurst.

Morton named "Player of the Week"

Eagles crush UPJ, improve to 5-2

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Clarion University's Mens' Basketball team won its second tournament of the year as the Eagles beat Cheyney University and Widener University at the Widener Winter Classic in Chester, PA. Steve Branch was named tournament MVP, and Kwame Morton, who currently leads the PSAC in scoring with 29.7 points per game, was named PSAC-West player of the week due to his outstanding performance.

In game one against Cheyney, Clarion got out of the blocks faster than Carl Lewis. Brian Paige and Oronn brown both hit treys within the first two minutes of the game. After Brown grabbed a rebound and went coast o coast to extend Clarion's lead to 12, Cheyney took a timeout. Shortly thereafter, Morton nailed a long three and only four minutes into the game, the lead was 17-0.

Morton and Brown continued their barage much through the first half. These two accounted for Clarion's final 13 points of the half. Morton took a pass from Paige and rolled one through the rim for three. Brown then hit two free throws, stole a ball and layed it in, and drilled a three pointer from the left side. To finish off the half, Morton sunk his sixth three pointer.

In the second half Cheyney was focused on shutting this dangerous combination down, but Clarion began the half with another three pointer by Morton, and Brown had another steal and lay in. Clarion's lead never dwindled to single digits, and at times, thy were up by as many as 29. Morton finished the game with eight three pointers, one short of the school record held by David Cruise. Steve Branch dropped in 11 points to go along with 11 boards. Brown finished with 20 points, three assists, and four steals.

In the championship game, Clarion was going against homestanding Widener. Clarion again got out to a hot start, leading 12-2 before Widener called its first time out to get things under control. Widener must have done something right during the time out because Jeff Macalis hit a three pointer after resuming play. Clarion answered right back, however, as Paige nailed one from downtown. The Eagles went on a mini-spurt after that, which was punctuated by a fast break dunk by Ian Whyte off a feed from Brown.

Widener was obviously focusing on shutting down Clarion's big guns, so Clarion distributed the ball very well to some of thier other offensive weapons. Whyte had the first four points of the second half for Clarion, and Paige was given the green light to shoot the ball. The guards also pounded the ball in to Branch underneath. Widener made a run at Clarion mid-way through the half and lowered the Eagle's lead to two. But Clarion answered right back with a Morton three pointer and two free throws by Brown. The next time Widener closed the gap, the Eagles again turned to their leader, Morton, to drain another trey. Clarion slowly pulled away and finished the game with a comfortable 15 point lead, 80-65.

For the game, Branch had 15 points and 11 rebounds. Whyte had 14 points, 10 rebounds and one block, and Paige dropped in 17 points.

Widener did a better job than most teams in trying to contain Morton (note he still had 22 points) but when it was crunch time, the Eagles looked to their leader to pull them through. "Kwame is truly our leader on the court," said coach Ron Righter. "His positive attitude and his ability to score big points boosts the team to fight harder for the win."

On Tuesday, December 7, the Eagles traveled to the University of Pitt-Johnston where they drubbed the home team 108-86. Morton had 29 points, six rebounds, and six assists, Paige netted 28 with 10 boards, Brown had 21 points and nine assists, and Branch had 23 points and 11 boards. Whyte added 10 rebounds.

Earlier in the year Clarion won the St Vincent tournament with victories over Houghton (86-72) and St. Vincent (85-70). The next home game will be this Saturday at home against Wheeling Jesuit.

New men's assistant named

Clarion baits Wurm

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Michael Wurm, 31, was named assistant Men's Basketball Coach at Clarion University on December 6. Wurm comes to Clarion from the University of Nevada at Reno where he was an assistant coach for six seasons.

Wurm is a native of St. Louis, Missouri. He attended Hazelwood West High School where he was a three-year starter and a three-time All-Conference choice. He led the team to consecutive Suburban North Conference titles his junior and senior seasons. His senior year he averaged 19.1 ppg, and led the state class AAAA in rebounding with 16.5 a game. He made All-State honorable mention and was recruited to go to Washington State University.

Wurm lettered all four years at WSU. In his junior year, his team made it to the round of 32 in the NCAA tournament. His senior season, Wurm was voted the "Best Sixth Man" in the PAC-10. He also received WSU's Bill Rusch Memorial Award.

Clarion assistant men's basketball coach Michael Wurm.

"To get the caliber of person and coach that Mike is, was a coup for Clarion University and our basketball program," said coach Ron Righter. "Mike possesses all the ingredients we we're seeking in an assistant coach. He's proven himself as a quality assistant coach at the Division I level. He is an excellent teacher of the game, has a good rapport with the players, and is an experienced recruiter and camp director. Mike has always impressed me with his hard work, loyalty, and dedication, both as a player and as a coach. We're glad to have him here in our family."

Note of Thanks:
I'd like to take this oppurtunity to thank our Editor-In-Chief Michelle Sporer for her three-and-a-half years of service to the Clarion Call. You've been a good journalist and a strong leader. Congratulations on your graduation and best wishes as you begin a new dimension of career with American Publishing Company.

Swim teams delve into season, remain unbeaten

by Nathan Kahl
Sportswriter

Last Saturday, Clarion University's Men's and Women's Swimming teams went to the West Chester Swimming Invitational and fared very well. It was an especially good day for Dan Stoner.

Stoner swam a 45.2, breaking Dave Holmes' 1983 record of 45.36, and qualified for the NCAA Division II meet. Stoner, a junior, anchored the 400 free relay with a 45 flat and brought his team of John Williams, Kevin Sciullo and Scott Rosenbaum to victory in 3:09.85. Stoner also swam national qualifying times in the 100 fly (50.47), the 200 free (1:41.33), and the 200 IM (1:55.24), winning the fly and the free. His 20.76 to lead off the 200 relay was good enough to qualify for nationals and he anchored the 400 medley relay with teammates Williams, Rosenbaum, and Rick Bull. Clarion coach Bill Miller said, "Dan Stoner had the meet of his life."

Clarion finished the meet with 132 points, which was good enough for second behind Shippensburg and their 254 points.

The Clarion women brought home a first place with 160 points. West chester finished second with 129 points. Stephanie Kissell qualified for nationals in the 200 IM with a first place time of 2:10.65. She swam a 53.32 as the anchor of the 400 relay team. Her and teammates Mara Strelecki, Kathy Randazzo and Colleen Davidson won with a 3:39.17. she was also on the 200 free relay team wwhich won in 1:38.03 and qualified for nationals. Tedra Kruse won the 500 free (5:07.78) and the 400 IM (4:37.79) in national qualifying teams, and the 1650 free.

Lauri Ratica (58.78 in the 100 fly) and Justine Gibbons (2:07.72 in the 200 backstroke) won with qualifying times as did Regan Rickert, Lisa Kaylor, Ratica, and Dawn Jones in the 200 medley relay.

Rickert also qualified for nationals in the 100 backstroke and the 200 backstroke. Jones won the 200 free. Other firsts for the men were Mark Kiester, and Bull.

The next meets for the Eagles will be early next semester.

Cancel your plans, here comes the Carquest Bowl

by Jody Males

With school coming to a halt for another semester, my thoughts quickly turn to mid-semester break and the holidays. Time with the family and friends, plus an over abundance of holiday cooking, make for plenty of good times ahead. But what caps off Christmas break the most, is plenty of pigskin. Hey! you should have guessed; look who's writing this article.

Ah yes, from now until New Year's, my body wil absorb an incredible opulence of football in an extremely short time period. The NFL season will be playing its final games to decide playoff berths and college football will be closing its books on another season with it's bowl schedule. Every network is carrying some type of pigskin action at some time or another, so my guide to the holidays isn't the JCPenney Wishbook, but rather TV Guide.

The action heats up this Saturday when the NFL starts its holiday weekend telecasts with Washington hosting the Jets and Atlanta tackling division foe San Francisco. Don't forget those college football games on ESPN and CBS. Division I-AA, II and III National Championships are all held this Saturday. Small college football is great! In fact, tune in to ESPN for the Division II National Championship and see Clarion's arch rival Indiana University of Pennsylvania battle for all the marbles. Personally, I think having IUP there is the next best thing to having our own Golden Eagles there. Hey, we PSAC-West schools have to stick together! So, for just this weekend — go IUP!

This weekend, it's going to be hard studying with so much football on TV. Ah, so what, they're just FINALS, right?

Division I-A football doesn't get kicking until next weekend when the bowl season officially begins with the second annual Las Vegas Bowl so there will be no studying conflict there. With the addition of two bye weeks in the NFL this year, the regular season lasts into 1994, with season finales the day after New Year's. I think it's great! The one-week cushion allows avid fans like myself a rest between the college bowls and the start of the NFL playoffs (just enough to catch our breath and head for Super Bowl 28!).

I truly live for this time of year. So much football action, so little time to take it all in. But, as I sit back and think about winter break and all the football action, I have to feel saddened to some extent. No, not because my Steelers aren't playing very well (although that does upset me), and not because West Virginia didn't get a title shot, but because in the near future, the sport I adore and follow so closely — will be leaving, again. After New Year's Day, college football is just a memory until the kickoff classic in August. So long. Come back when you can stay longer. Once the playoffs begin, the NFL schedule will be cut down to just 12 teams. Games will be fewer, with just a couple per weekend. Oh yes, the hype and excitement is still there, but it is short lived and lasts only as long as your favorite team does. The hype and majesty of the NFL season , a season of over 200 games boils down to just one, quite often, in the form of a lop-sided event we call the Super Bowl. And then it's over. We are left to face the cold winter alone.

Oh there's college and pro-basketball and the NHL is hotter than ever, but these sports aren't football — at least not to me. Football is America's passion. Almost everyone wants to put on a helmet and hit somebody like a train and in turn not get in trouble for doing so, but rather get paid for it. Oh, I'm sure there are hundreds, maybe even thousands of sports fans out there that are infuriated at my thoughts. College basketball is an exciting sport and so is hockey; both deserve all the attention they get and then some. But any true sports fan must feel a little disheartened as they wave goodbye to the NFL. Sports Illustrated claimed recently that the NFL is in trouble. They listed 10 reasons why the NFL isn't the game it used to be. Then explain to me why NFL viewership and attendance are climbing at a steady pace? Americans still love their NFL, regardless of what the big-wigs say.

Anyhow, Christmas 1993 is upon us, and with it, a heavy filling of football. Almost everyone has the TV on over the holidays, whether they're watching it diligently or just have it as background noise. I hope you turn some football on over the holidays because it won't be on much longer.

Football, football, everywhere. I love it, but then again, I hate it! Space the games out more, say, from January to July? Too much to ask? Well, guess what my Christmas wish is?

Sports Opinion: The Godfather unveiled

Lett it snow, Lett it snow, Lett it snow

by Brian Caratelli
Sportswriter

Ahhh, Thanksgiving. A time for giving thanks. A time for being with family. A time for eating turkey.

If you think back upon memories of Thanksgivings past, perhaps you recall Uncle Bob tumbling down the stairs, Aunt Jenny drying out the turkey or just simply eating until your shirt buttons popped off. But, my fondest memories of turkey day have come from watching television. No, not from watching "It's a Wonderful Life" all 339 times it airs during the holiday season, but from watching football.

The National Football League's annual Thanksgiving Day doubleheaders have provided some amazing moments throughout the years. I remember when Chicago Bears' kick returner Dave Williams returned the opening kickoff of overtime 95 yards to beat the Detroit Lions in the fastest overtime ever played. I remember the infamous 12 men on the field game, as Detroit kicker Eddie Murray booted the game-winning field goal against Dallas with the help of an extra blocker. And I will never forget when New York Giants' punt returner Leon Bright, after signaling for a fair catch at midfield and calmly waiting for the punt to descend into his relaxed arms, got "mashed" by a charging Detroit Lion defender. It took longer for Bright to be attended to and carried off the field than it took Aunt Jenny to actually bake the turkey.

Those were just a few of the plays that have stuck in my mind over the years, but a play that occurred this past Thanksgiving is definitely, without question the one that takes the... cranberry sauce? That play was turned in by Dallas Cowboy defensive lineman Leon Lett. No, he didn't begin celebrating his fumble return at the one yard line, allowing Don Beebe to knock the ball out of his hand and through the end zone for a touchback. He did that last year. No, this year's blunder was far worse, for it cost the Cowboys the game and knocked them out of first place in the NFC's Eastern Division.

Dallas led the Miami Dolphins 14-13 with just 13 seconds to play in the game. Miami kicker Pete Stoyanovich attempted a 40 yard field goal in the sleet and snow covered field of Texas Stadium. The kick was blocked, preserving the victory for Dallas, for all the Cowboys had to do was stay away from the ball and savor their hard-fought one-point victory. The soggy and pneumonia-stricken fans would go home happy, realizing that their bed-ridden week to follow was worth every phlegm-filled cough. Their beloved Cowboys had won.

The ball rested quietly at the eight yard line. The Dolphins' offense helplessly and solemnly stared at the ball realizing they had lost, for the only way they could pick up the ball, since it had gone past the line of scrimmage, was if a Dallas player touched it first. The chances of that happening were slim and none. Enter slim, in the form of Leon Lett.

For a reason unbeknownst to all, Lett did his best Sid Bream imitation, sliding ahead of Barry Bonds throw and into the serene ball, kicking it down to the one yard line where Miami recovered it.

Three seconds remained. Stoyanovich effervescently skipped back onto the field, needing only to nail an 18-yard chip shot for the win. After a stint of uncontrollable laughter, the Dolphins' kicker composed himself long enough to split the uprights, and Miami won, 16-14.

After Lett turned them down, the Dolphins hoisted Stoyanovich upon their shoulders and carried him off the field. Understandably, Lett was not available for comment after the game.

So now, while the faithful who braved the frigid temperatures in Dallas have a legitimate "bone" to pick, I give thanks to Leon Lett, for making this a Thanksgiving memory I will never forget.

Thank You

Debbie Adams, Brian Caratelli, Tondelaya Carey, Ray Henderson, Nathan Kahl, Jody Males, Rodney Sherman and "Q" for your outstanding sports coverage.

Once again, frigid winter weather forces many class cancellations

by Alan Vaughn
Editor

Clarion Students returning from semester break were greeted with what seems to be becoming a habit when returning from time off from classes -- more time off from classes.

For the second time in three semesters, class days were lost due to foul weather when the university cancelled classes on Jan. 18, 19 and 20.

The classes were completely closed on Jan. 18 and 20. 8 a.m. classes were held on Jan. 19, but not other ones, because the power company that supplies the university called to inform the university that the power supply was low too late too cancel the first classes. Spring Semester, the university missed two days following winter break, after large amounts of snow blanketed the east coast as far south as North Carolina. Students returning from break had to find shelter in truck stops and high schools.

This year, large snows and temperatures falling below negative 20 degrees forced Governor Casey to issue a state of emergency and order state agencies to shut down during the worst of the weather.

Maintenance, grounds, custodial and other university workers put in a total of 492 overtime hours in order to prepare for-- and clean up after-- the severe weather.

Director of Facilities Management Clare Heidler said the crews, "did an outstanding job of keeping the university open."

~~Everyone~~ from Public Safety to electricians, plumbers and carpenters ~~and carpenters~~ put in a little extra to help in the emergency.

No major problems were reported during the bad weather, mainly because the grounds were in good shape to handle the storm, said Heidler.

The total cost for overtime for work during the storm is estimated at around $8,000 said Heidler.

The money to pay for this extra work was budgeted and will come out of the general operating budget, according to Wayne Key, interim vice president for finance and

Eagles get 13th PSAC team title

Clarion dominates tourney

The Clarion University wrestling team recently captured their 13th PSAc team title. The Eagles are ranked eighth.

by Jeff Levkulich
Sports Writer

The Clarion University wrestlers traveled to East Stroudsburg last week to seek a 13th PSAC team title, and it appeared as if they were the only team prepared for the tournament.

Clarion placed eight wrestlers in the finals to tie a tournament record and scored 174 points, also a record, as Clarion won their third championship in the last four years.

Competing in the tourney for Clarion were Sheldon Thomas(14-5) at 118, Bob Crawford(15-3) at 126, Tom Tomeo(14-5) at 134, Jody Clark(9-8) at 142, Moss Grays(16-6) at 150, Damon Brown(8-4) at 158, J.J. Stanbro(16-3) at 167, Dan Payne (20-4) at 177, Bryan Stout(16-4) at 190, and Rob Sintobin(15-5) at heavyweight.

Thomas, Crawford, Stanbro, Payne, and Sintobin all won titles for Clarion, while Tomeo, Grays, and Brown reached the finals. The tournament seemed like easy pickings for the Golden Eagles who won 15 of their first 16 matches, thus locking up the title by the time the semifinals were over. The Eagles won 32 of 38 matches, 11 by fall.

Sintobin had a terrific day at Stupid Bowl

2004 A.D. Every football fan in the country is getting ready for the big game, Super Bowl XXXVIII, waiting to see if Buffalo loses their twelfth straight Super Bowl, this time to the Baltimore Rams.

Fox MegaHyperNetworks predict that this will be the most watched Super Bowl in NFL history, partly because it is being broadcast via satellite to everywhere from Butte to Pago Pago, and partly because it is being played on the Fourth of July.

Football on the Fourth of July? People back in the mid 1990s thought it was crazy when the Super Bowl wasn't until damn near February. But the Fourth of July? Ludicrous, you say. The WLAF is dead. There will never be summer football.

Or will there...

"Howdy, folks, and welcome to Super Bowl XXXVIII. This is Joe Montana here in the booth with John Madden and the late Pat Summerall, and the big show is about to start. It's sunny and 83 degrees here at Municipal Stadium in scenic Bar Harbor,

Ray Henderson

Maine as the Buffalo Bills and aged quarterback Jim "Not Again!?!" Kelly give it one more shot. But the Bills have a lot to contend with. The Baltimore Rams, under the leadership of 7-year veteran quarterback Chris Zak are no small potatoes.

Despite the fact that the Bills have allowed only two points scored all season (a freak safety in the 106-2 rout at Pittsburgh), they are 45-point underdogs to the battering Rams.

Before the kickoff, though, let's take a look at some NFL history. Some people wonder how the season ever got stretched out this long. Here's GREAT SNOW JOB!

Once again Mother Nature has dealt the community of Clarion the harsher end of the Winter Spectrum, not just blanketing it, but completely burying it under more than 75 inches of snow and days of sub-zero weather. And the end is far from near, with more bitter weather forecast for the coming weekend.

Students got off lucky. They were left at home or in the blacked-out residence halls during three scheduled days of classes. While not an ideal situation, the students coped admirably under frigid conditions. When meal plans were unable to be processed for two days during the below zero conditions, nary a peep was heard from those who had to go without.

The university itself responded with a great amount of compassion and wisdom. Those classes are gone, that's for sure. But three days of classes during one semester can easily be compensated for throughout the majority of the semester remaining. Professors had ample amount of time to adjust class calendars, particularly since they were to show up for work during the days classes were cancelled.

Yes, the semester will be that much shorter, and yes we missed some valuable classes. But to blame this on the university as some students have been muttering for the past two weeks is misguided and ill-informed.

Should the university have held classes during those arctic days, the power supply, already strapped could have easily went off-line. The university acted responsibly, both as an educational institution and as an arm of the state in cancelling classes during the days when the power plants were running at 100 percent. The result of not cancelling easily could have been, at best, rolling blackouts and, at worst, a complete blackout. Let us also not forget, Clarion University is state-owned, and as such is subject to orders from the governor and legislature.

Commendations, too, should be delivered to all the maintenance, custodial, grounds and other crews who put in 400-plus overtime hours preparing for and cleaning up after one of the worst weeks of weather in recent history.

AND JUSTICE FOR ALL?

Bobbitt, Menendez, Jackson.

All names of citizens who have taken recent excursions through the U.S legal system and, with their lawyers' help, beat the hell out of it.

And they all got rich.

Lorena Bobbitt seriously wounded her husband.

The Menendez brothers shot-gunned their parents to death, then comforted themselves with millions of dollars of inheritance money. Michael Jackson will pay millions to an accuser to avoid a trial.

Lorena Bobbitt said she was insane at the time she cut her husband. She said she had been raped that night, and the jury, disregarding the fact John Bobbitt was found not guilty of that charge, found Lorena not guilty of maliciously wounding her husband. Watch for the movie and book soon.

Lyle and Eric Menendez claim they suffered years of abuse at the hands of their father before killing him. They haven't explained why they killed their mother. Even though they admitted to the killings, two juries were could not return a verdict. The TV movie already aired.

Michael Jackson, convicted of nothing, bought the silence of his young accuser. If Jackson was innocent, as American justice says he was, he should have spent those millions not on silence, but on the attempt to prove his accuser wrong. If the charges were true, his accuser should have held out for justice.

The Bobbitts and the Menendez brothers will reap great financial rewards from their actions. Jackson will continue to make records and quickly make up the hush-money.

Vigilante justice will be punished? Crime doesn't pay? Innocent until proven guilty?

Dear Reader:

Hi! My name is John Buch, I'm a fifth grade student from Clayton Elementary School in Englewood, Colorado.

Our class is studying geography and history of the United States.

We would appreciate it if you would send us a postcard from your state so we can learn more about our country.

Thank you for your help.

Sincerely yours,

Transcript troubles

Dear Editor,

Greetings. I am writing as a May 1993 graduate from the Communication Department. Although still searching for the right position, I am finding that the rocky road of graduating does not end the frustration process with archaic procedures that I found commonplace my senior year of study.

When responding to job postings, federal employment bulletins or whatever, often official transcripts are asked for to be included with the initial completed application and your resume. If you do not submit these important documents, your application may be pulled out of processing for failure to follow directions. If I want a job, I will at least follow the directions to the best of my abilities. Why else would you go through the trouble?

Well, I don't believe that spirit of cooperation lies with the issuing department of such records here at Clarion University. When I requested my transcripts recently for such a job application process, I explained in writing my needs and circumstances of submission, explicitly stating they had to be official transcripts, not unofficial copies.

I ordered two copies at a cost of six dollars, paid by check. In return, I received two copies that were stamped "THIS TRANSCRIPT NEED NOT BE ACCEPTED UNLESS MAILED DIRECTLY FROM C.U.P." These copies were not even placed in sealed envelopes. So what do you think these copies are worth? Surely not six dollars. That is a meal for me. Nor do I anticipate getting work I can't apply for correctly.

In contrast, I sent for my one-semester transcripts from earlier in my college career from Edinboro University, another in the State System of Higher Education. The first transcript is three dollars, additional ones one dollar each. Oh, they send them to you sealed in Edinboro stationary, with the Registrar seal over the closed flap. Sealed and Official! What a concept.

If I sound disgruntled, I am not. Merely unemployed. I just want to know how I can meet employment application requirements and still be stymied by this inconsistency where the only place I can get these grades is reluctant to foresee this situation.

Remember last semester's letters?

Dear Editor:

I sincerely appreciate the Dec. 9th Clarion Call publication of my letter relative to Dr. Ernissee's effective response to Ms. McCoy.

A significant but little recognized point, however, was deleted, almost certainly due to a lack of space. It read:

Realistically we can be thankful for gays and lesbians. They, along with children and the infertile, contribute almost nothing to humankind's most fundamental and serious problem—-MASSIVE OVER-POPULATION—- which threatens everything we know and magnifies all economic, social and psychological difficulties both here and worldwide.

Political contributions

Dear Editor:

It was truly interesting to read that state Representative David R. Wright believes that the over $5,000 he has received from telecommunications Political Action Committees (PACS) over the past several years is just a "minuscule amount."

First of all, $5,000 over any number of years is a lot of money. It could buy a lot of campaign posters and direct mailings to get David Wright re-elected. Make no mistake about it, $5,000 is a substantial contribution to any re-election effort.

Secondly, David Wright is the chairman of the House Consumer Affairs Committee. He has no other standing House committee assignments. His committee is in charge of legislation that directly impacts telephone company profits.

He has the power to control the flow of legislation that could hurt or help telephone companies. Knowing this, does $5,000 in campaign contributions from telephone company lobbying groups seem so minuscule" now?

Why does David Wright want to divert attention from this $5,000 in PAC funds? is he worried that the cleansing light of public attention will end the flow of money and close down the political gravy train he's been riding since he was first elected to the House in the 1970's?

Or does he somehow want to hide the source of his campaign backers, so the voters will remain in the dark like mushrooms? I wonder about this, and so should you. Don't let David Wright keep us in the dark on this one.

Robert W. Barrickman, D.M.D.
Clarion PA

Editor's note: Dr. Barrickman's letter was dated Dec. 14, 1993 and was received by the Clarion Call too late for publication last semester. Barrickman has since indicated he intends to seek the Republican nomination for the election to the seat currently held by Wright, representing Pennsylvania's 63rd legislative district.

After the Bills lost Super Bowl XXVIII to the Dallas Cowboys, Buffalo coach Marv Levy blamed the loss on the fact that there was only one week between the conference championships and the Super Bowl, so in 1995, the Super Bowl was on February 7. The next year, Levy said the problem was "only two weeks...", and so Super Bowl XXX was to be played on February 14. Commissioner Tagliabue said it would be "awful darn insensitive" to hold the big game on Valentine's Day, so it was moved to February 21.

Congress said it would be "awful darn insensitive" to hold the game so close to President's Day, so it was moved to February 28. The Flat Earth Society (in conjunction with their intellectual allies, the Republicans) said it would be "awful darn insensitive and you're a bunch of rotten liberals anyway blah blah blah..." to have the game so close to Leap Year, so the Bowl was moved to March 7.

Super Bowl XXXI would have gone off without a hitch, except for the fact that the season was four weeks longer, because of expansion teams in Duluth, Hoboken, Nome and Yuba City. The Super Bowl would now be held one month later, on April 7.

This arrangement presented two problems. First, members of the Shakespeare Society didn't want football on the Ides of March, so an extra week off had to be stuck in the middle of the season. This concession enraged Pat Robertson and his Fourth Reich Christian Coalition, so they held torchlight parades outside the Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Eventually, the NFL buckled and decided to cancel football during Lent. The Super Bowl was held on May 15, and all seemed to finally be at peace.

But only for one year. At the end of the following season, New England Patriots head coach Buddy "knock your %$&^# lights out" Ryan went insane during the AFC championship game in Buffalo and punched visiting zillionaire H. Ross Perot between the uprights, killing him instantly. The NFL's new commissioner, Joey Buttafuoco, commended Ryan for his actions, and another game week was bumped to celebrate "Slaughter a Rich Power-Hungry Little Freak Week." The Super Bowl finally kicked off on May 21.

Football would have went unchanged after that, except for one final blow. The Federal Reserve board decided that, due to the strain on the nation's treasury and mint, the NFL should take six weeks off every season to offset the broad-based economic effects of Troy Aikman's salary, which was roughly the equivalent of the combined GNP's of every nation in the Western Hemisphere. Aikman's salary was capped at $67673.9 bazillion per down, and the Super Bowl is here, on the Fourth of July."

Sure, this scenario is a little unbelievable (except for the part about the Bills losing twelve in a row) , but football is getting a little out of control. Enough of the crying and fighting and outrageous contracts and weeks off in the middle of the season. How 'bout you all just shut up and play the damn game?

Foreign students set record enrollment

by John Williams
College Press Service

A record number of foreign students were enrolled in U.S. colleges and universities in 1992-93, with enrollment rising 4.5 percent form the previous academic year, a survey recently found.

The survey, done by the New York-based Institute of International Education, found that 438,618 foreign students were enrolled in the 2,583 institutions that responded to the IIE poll. Students with refugee status were not included in the count in "Open Doors 1992/93."

"Continuing growth of international student enrollments in the face of nearly global economic recession and rising costs demonstrates the high value placed by other countries on U.S. higher education," said Richard Krasno, president and CEO of IIE.

Asia continued to send the most students to U.S. institutions -- nine out of 10 nations with nationals in the U.S. were from the region. China sent the most students --45,130--up 5.1 percent from the previous year. Coming in second was Japan with 42,840 students, up 5.3 percent. In descending order, the remaining top 10 nations with students in the United States were Taiwan, India, Korea, Canada, Hong Kong, Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand.

Steve Quint, the associate director of Boston University's International Scholars and Student Office, said that of the 4,084 foreign students enrolled, the majority of them are from Japan. Boston University had the second-largest enrollment of foreign students; the University of Texas at Austin; had the most with 4,119 enrolled.

"[Foreign Students] bring diversity. And to have that diversity, you have to have foreign students educating others about their cultures," he said. "Even though there is that diversity, many students don't take advantage of that. We have 135 nations represented, but people aren't really learning about each too much."

By world regions, 260,670 students form Asia were enrolled in 1992-93, an increase of 5 percent from the previous year. However, Europe held the largest percentage gain --8 percent-- in enrollment with 50,010 students in U.S. schools, IIE said.

A report detailing the survey findings stated that the number of students from Eastern Europe surged 42 percent to a total of 9,800.

Many colleges and universities, including Boston University and the University of Texas at Austin, don't actively recruit foreign students; rather, most of the students apply to the institutions along the same guidelines as U.S. citizens.

"We do not recruit. We consider applications sent to the university," said Margaret A. Kidd, director of the International Office at the University of Texas at Austin. "We have a good reputation internationally. Our students are very well selected academically. They are very motivated. Most are graduate students and are a little bit older."

Public Safety move sparks student controversy

by Jason Renda
News Writer

Do you know why the front of the building next to Becker Hall is wrapped with plastic? The building is Thorn I, and the plastic is not up to weatherproof the building, but it is for renovation purposes. Come this May, Thorn I will be the new location of Public Safety.

This coming Monday, February 7th at 6:00 p.m., there will be an open forum concerning the upcoming move of Public Safety to Thorn I.

The open forum will be held in rooms 250/252 in the Gemmell Center. Present will be President Diane Reinhard, Interim Vice President of Finance and Administration, Wayne Key, and the Director of Public Safety, Dr. Ronald Martinazzi to discuss and take questions about the relocation of Public Safety.

"This is an excellent opportunity for the student body to express their opinion on any concerns with the move of Public Safety," said Student Senate President Brian Hoover.

Public Safety's transfer to Thorn I will cost an estimated $20,000. In addition, the University is planning to upgrade its security system. For this, another $32,500 will be spent on 14 emergency phones and an additional $25,000 will be spent on a monitoring system. The University will derive money for the upgraded security system from the Contingency and Auxiliary funds.

The Auxiliary fund is for stand-alone operations such as the residence halls, Chandler Dining Hall, Gemmell Student Complex, Keeling Health Center. The Contingency fund is used for emergency purposes that may occur to any part of the University.

At times, other monies can be housed in this fund. The expense for the emergency phone system will come from a combination of Contingency and Auxiliary funds, wherea, the cost of the monitoring system will come soley from the Contingency fund.

"We feel that it is important to keep people informed especially if they are going to move Public Safety to a remote location. It's a major affect on campus," said Senator Maggie Collarini.

Student concerns about the move of Public Safety decision may stem from the University Administration's announcements concerning potential changes that were made with little, if any, student input in the past two years.

Some of these changes include the million dollar-plus President's residence proposal by the University's Trustees, drastically reduced library hours, and the relocation of Public Safety to the far end of the campus next to Becker Hall.

The President's residence was put on the back burner last spring by the University's Trustees, the original library hours were reinstalled last fall, but the apparent controversy over the moving of Public Safety is still unresolved.

According to Senator Jim Junger, "The general impression coming from the Administration is that they seem to care more for incoming students than they do for their present students."

To bolster student involvement in the relocation decision of departments in the future, the Student Senate is currently looking for student representatives for the Facilities Planning Committee.

Key said "The move of Public Safety is an effort to support enrollment management and to make admissions more visible."

According to Senator Collarini, "The Open Forum will be the time andthe place to voice your concerns to individuals who can do something about it."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

The renovations on Thorn I will be completed sometime in May. This has been the chosen destination to relocate the Public Safety office bulding from it's prior location on Wood St.

Sexual assualt suspect bound over for trial

by Samantha White
Contributing Writer

A former Clarion University student will stand trial for allegedly sexually assaulting another student in her dormitory room last semester.

Charges stem from an incident which allegedly occurred on Oct. 27 between 2:00 and 4:40 a.m. in Ralston Hall.

Jon Paul DeFoor, of Ringgold, Pa. has been bound over for trial on counts of indecent assault and indecent exposure, both second degree misdemeanors; criminal trespass, a third degree misdemeanor; harassment, a summary offense; and disorderly conduct, also a summary offense.

The decision came after a preliminary hearing before District Justice Norman Heasely was held on Dec. 7.

The victim, a 22-year old student at Clarion University, testified at the preliminary hearing. According to her testimony, she had never dated DeFoor, but had known him. The victim said she had talked to the defendant on the night of Oct. 26 at the University Inn where she had gone with three other females.

During her testimony, the victim said DeFoor allegedly attempted to kiss her several times once they were inside her room and she turned her head away from the attempts.

The defendant wanted to know why she was ignoring him and allegedly he had repeatedly picked her up and dropped her on the bed several times while in the room.

The victim testified that DeFoor took off his jeans and shirt and got on the bed with the her.

The victim left the room and went to the bathroom.

The victim returned to her room and upon entering, she noticed DeFoor was still there. The defendant allegedly grabbed her and pulled her down onto the bed.

According to testimony, the defendant allegedly attempted to force the victim to perform a manual sex act. DeFoor decided to leave, but called the victim derogatory terms before exiting the room.

Officer Keith Kaschalk claimed he went to speak with DeFoor early Oct. 27. He also stated that DeFoor asked for an attorney when told the reason for the investigation after allegedly admitting he had returned to the victim room with her.

Neither Wilshire nor the Registrar's office would comment on whether DeFoor was suspended or withdrew voluntarily, stating that the information is part of the educational record and confidential.

However, a letter sent out the victim from Dr. George W. Curtis Jr., vice president for student affairs stated that he was suspended from the university for the remainder of the semester. It also stated DeFoor would be able to return this semester if he would "engage in a program of counseling relative to [his] sexual behavior and attitudes."

According to court documents, DeFoor will enter a plea bargain agreement on March 30, offering to plead guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. In return, all other charges will be dropped and DeFoor sentenced to no more than 12 months of ARD.

CUP, SSHE and CUP professor face lawsuit over dismissal

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Clarion University, Dr. Kenneth R. Mechling, former chair of CUP's biology department and the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) have been named as defendants in a lawsuit filed by a former CUP employee.

Susan K. Zamzow alleges her contract as an assistant professor of science education with the Science Teacher Education Program (STEP) and the Information Technology Education for the Commonwealth Program (ITEC) was not renewed because she had complained of a "sexually hostile work environment and sexual harassment."

Mechling is the director of both programs, formerly based at CUP, but now headquartered in Shippenville.

According to the Clarion News, Zamzow has filed documents with the U.S. District Court for Western Pennsylvania in Pittsburgh alleging that "on April 22, 1991, she informed Mechling that 'a hostile working environment toward women existed in the (CUP) biology department, that she had received complaints from teaching assistants that Mechling's son, Kenneth Jr., a (former) instructor in the department, had sexually harassed the younger teachers, that she did not approve of it, and that it was interfering with their work performance.

"On or about May 8, 1991, Mechling informed (Zamzow) that she would not be reappointed to her teaching position for the 1991-92 school year."

Zamzow alleges her contract was not renewed as retaliation for her complaints.

Mechling has denied the allegation, saying Zamzow was not re-hired because she refused to do her job, an allegation Zamzow refutes.

Zamzow received an employee review signed by Mechling as late as Feb. 20, 1991 that listed Zamzow's work performance as "exemplary."

According to the Clarion News story, "Zamzow is seeking compensatory damages for all non-pecuniary losses, including emotional pain, suffering, humiliation and anxiety, lost wages and benefits, punitive damages, attorney fees and costs of litigation, an order directing the defendants to take 'affirmative steps...to ensure these unlawful employment practices are eliminated' and other relief as determined to be necessary and proper by the court."

CUP spokesman Ron Wilshire declined to comment on the lawsuit, citing university policy that forbids comment on ongoing litigation.

Scott Shewell, spokesman for SSHE, declined comment on similar grounds.

Students turn to guns for security

Courtesy of
College Press Services

Maurice Marholin has been around guns since he was a child, but the 33-year-old medical student didn't feel the need to carry one until recently. Miami's high crime rate prompted the Southern University of the Health Sciences student to start carrying a concealed weapon for protection for the first time.

Marholin, who has a permit, carries his gun with him everywhere except where weapons are prohibited, and he sleeps with the gun nearby.

Marholin said he believes criminals are the problem in society, not the guns, and he sees his gun as protection against crime.

"I don't see the gun as a power symbol. I think of it as a tool for self-defense," he said.

Although Marholin doesn't carry his weapon to class, other students at campuses nationwide are packing more than books in their backpacks. Many students are carrying handguns onto campus, a recent survey said.

According to a survey published on Jan. 20, 1993 in the Chronicle of Higher Education, there were more than 1,500 arrests for weapons on campuses in 1991.

These arrests included violations of federal, state and local weapons laws, including illegal possession and permit violations.

The arrest information was compiled under the Student right-to-Know Act and Campus Security Act of 1990. These laws were enacted to warn college students and parents about criminal activity on campus.

Bringing a gun onto a college campus, even if it is properly registered, is a third-degree felony under federal law.

According to Connie Clery of Security on Campus, an organization that fought to have crime statistics reported by universities, the guns found on campus are a by-product of the communities that surround them.

"The college campus is just an extension of our violent society," Clery said.

At the University of Texas-Austin, a freshman was arrested in late November for storing weapons in his dormitory room. The student, David Matthew Larsen, was arrested after police received an anonymous phone call indicating Larsen had weapons in his possession.

He was charged with having weapons in a prohibited place, police said.

When police searched Larsen's room they found a Chinese-made AK-47 semi-automatic assault rifle, two daggers, a switchblade, a sword, two pounds of ammunition and a cannon fuse. Police also confiscated an "Anarchist Cookbook," a guide to making bombs.

Capt. Silas Griggs of the university's police department said Larsen told police he didn't realize he was breaking the law by storing the weapons in this dorm room.

Workers' Comp reforms highlight teleconference

On January 22, 1994, Clarion University College of Business was a receiving site for a teleconference highlighting the new provisions in Workers' Compensation Law and Health Care Reform. This teleconference, held in Peirce Science Center and Planetarium, was one out of 14 conferences that will be presented at Pennsylvania's 14 state universities.

The teleconference was presented by the State System of Higher Education in cooperation with the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO and the Pennsylvania Center for the Study of Labor Relations at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

The Panel of Experts that spoke at the teleconference consisted of the following individuals: Irwin Aronson, Esq., of Handler, Gerber, Johnston & Aronson Law Firm; Carl Lorine, Director, Bureau of Workers' Compensation; Carol Cingranelli, Deputy Chief Counsel, Bureau of Workers' Compensation; and William George, President, AFL-CIO.

The panelists talked about recent legislation that was passed in Act 44 of 1993. This act is an amendment to the Workers' Compensation Act. In addition to the three panelists, Mr. Donald Jones, Field Representative for the AFL-CIO Region III spoke about the Health and Security Act.

Professor James G. Pesek, Chair of the Department of Administrative Sciences facilitated the program. Approximately 14 participants attended the teleconference.

Professor to present Cuban lecture, slide show

Associate professor of education at CUP, Dr. Sylvia Stalker, presented a lecture and slide show "Women in Contemporary Cuba," on Wednesday, February 2. The presentation was free and open to the public.

Stalker serves a member of the Women's Studies Advisory Board. The presentation is sponsored by the Women's Studies Program at Clarion University.

Stalker's background includes a trip to Cuba in February 1993 with a New York based group, "Women for Racial and Economic Equality." With the help of a host organization, the Federation of Cuban Women, the purpose of the trip was to examine political and social issues concerning women in Cuba.

Travel to Cuba is not readily available. Only students or scholars have been permitted in because of a U.S. blockade of Cuba that is still in effect.

Stalker visited and spoke with women in schools, work places, health facilities, and day care centers. She also attended plays and musical performances, and visited museums.

Alumni Association scholarships are available

Up to 10 $300 Clarion University of Pennsylvania Alumni Association scholarships will be awarded this year through the Clarion University Foundation to Clarion University students. The Alumni Association is a private organization dedicated to supporting the university community through fostering relationships among current and past students.

The application process will take place in February, and the Clarion University Alumni Association will select scholarships winners during April. Awards will be in the form of a $150 tuition credit for the subsequent fall and spring semesters.

Full-time undergraduate students who have completed at least 16 credit hours and will not be graduating before the semester following application are eligible for the scholarships. Application forms are currently available at the Alumni House on Wood Street. Completed applications for the scholarship are due at the Alumni House by Wednesday, Feb. 22, at 4 p.m. The Alumni Board of Directors will announce the final awards in April.

The evaluation of applicants is based on both academic standing and financial need. All applicants must have application for Federal Financial Aid and PHEAA Aid Information Request forms on file with the university's financial aid office. Two of the scholarships are reserved for children of Clarion University alumni.

Charges from assault at Sigma Chi fraternity house lead to student arrests

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Arrests have been made in connection with a Dec. 3, 1993 alleged assault at the Sigma Chi Fraternity house.

Michael James Corbi, 24, of Pembroke Pines, Fla. and a student at Clarion University, is charged with first degree felonies of aggravated assault and criminal conspiracy to commit aggravated assault, a second degree misdemeanor of simple assault, and a summary charge of criminal mischief.

Neiko Dominic Bernardo, 21, of Lower Burrell, a former Clarion University student, but not currently enrolled in classes, is charged with first degree felonies of aggravated assault and criminal conspiracy to commit aggravated assault, a second degree misdemeanor of simple assault, and a summary charge of criminal mischief.

According to documents filed at District Justice Anthony Lapinto's office, witnesses say they saw Corbi and Bernardo "hitting the victim in the head while they were in his bedroom after they crashed through the door."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

A beating occurred at this fraternity house, Sigma Chi. Arrests have been made in connection with this alleged assault. The victim was treated and realeased for minor abrasions. A preliminary hearing will be scheduled.

The two men allegedly dragged the victim outside to the street, where they continued to hit and kick him.

Bernardo admitted he "was involved in the beating and did hit the kid, and that his friend, Michael Corbi started fighting with the victim, and that's why he got involved in the fight."

The victim, a Clarion University student, was treated at Clarion Hospital for cuts, bruises and abrasions requiring stitches.

The report also claims the victim lost a contact lens, valued at $75.00, in the incident.

Corbi is free on $1,000 bond after being arrested in January.

Benardo is free on $400 bond after being arrested Jan. 19.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for both men on Jan. 25.

Bernardo, in a seperate incident, is currently awaiting a Feb.9 sentencing on charges of marijuana possession and pocession of marijuana paraphernalia.

Those charges were filed by Mercer State Police.

Student Senate is in need of representatives to serve on equality, legislation subcommittees

By LaDessa Edins
News Writer

The Student Senate Committee on Subcommittees is looking for students to serve on several of the subcommittees.

The subcommittees are concerned with subject, such as food service, housing, recreation, programming, equality, and legislation. These committees require student representatives.

The Dining and Residence Halls Concerns Committee is looking for seven students, one to represent each hall, and three off campus students with a meal plan.

Representatives from each residence hall will be pointed by their Hall Council. The Food Service Director and the two student senators, also a part of this committee, are waiting to hear from students on how the University can improve the student body's residence hall and dining experience.

The Dining and Residence Hall Concerns Committee will meet twice a month, to discuss input about food service and residence halls.

The Social Equity Committee is devoted to campus cultural diversity and issues and concerns of social equity on campus.

This committee needs a member from each recognized student organization which serves the interests of "anyone who would normally be considered a minority on the basis of race, color, creed, religion, sexual preference or nation of origin," according to the Student Senate by-laws.

The Legislative Affairs Committee's purpose is to inform the student body of legislation which affects students on the federal, state and local levels.

Tuition increases and voter registration drives are a few issues this committee will be tackling during the semester.

The Student Publication committee is responsible for the publishing of the Calendar/Handbook.

This committee assists the Student Activities Office in selecting a format, design and theme for the university's upcoming Calendar/Handbook.

The University is also accepting students to serve on the Conduct Board, Facility Planning Committee, and the Student Affairs Committee.

"In order to maintain active student awareness of issues on this campus, it is imperative that we have these positions filled as soon as possible.

One of these committees, the Facilities Planning Committee, was lacking student representation when the decision to move public safety was made.

These committees make important decisions on campus and we need people who are not afraid to represent the best interests of the general student body," says Student Senator Jim Junger.

Students interested in serving on a committee may request an application at the Student Senate Office at 269 Gemmell. Applications should be filled out and returned as soon as possible to begin the organizaton of the various committees.

"In order to maintain active student awareness of issues on this campus, it is imperative that we have these positions filled as soon as possible."

For downtown burglaries

Three former CUP students bound over for trial

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

The three former Clarion University students accused of burglarizing several downtown businesses late last year, have been bound over for trial by District Justice Anthony Lapinto.

Brian Richard Berkson, 19, Matamoras (Pike County); Scott David Doyle, 19, Harleysville (Montgomery County); and Francis Blake Stoveken, 18, Star Route Dingman's Ferry (Pike County), were recently bound over for trial on all counts stemming from a series of break-ins at three downtown Clarion Stores.

Doyle resided in 204 Wilkinson Hall on campus, while Stoveken and Berkson resided in 220 Nair Hall.

Doyle had been bound over for trial by Lapinto some 40 minutes earlier, when H. Ray Pope III, Doyle's attorney, requested a ruling for his client.

Berkson and Stoveken each face four counts of burglary, a second-degree felony; six counts of criminal conspiracy to commit theft, a misdemeanor; four counts of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, a second-degree felony; eight counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, a second degree felony; one count of theft, a misdemeanor; one count of receiving stolen property, a misdemeanor; and two counts of criminal mischief, a summary.

Doyle faces two counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, a second-degree felony, one count of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, a second-degree felony; one count of burglary, a second-degree felony; one count of receiving stolen property, a misdemeanor; and one count of theft, a misdemeanor.

Charges against the former students stem from incidents on: Sept. 12 and 26 at High Gear Bike Shop, Oct. 11 at Crooks' Clothing, and Oct. 21 at Estadt's Sport Shop.

Merchandise valued at $15,000 was taken in the four incidents.

During searches of the defendants dormitory rooms in Nair and Wilkinson halls, items were allegedly found which led to the receiving stolen property charges.

At the hearing on December 21, Chief R. Eric Shaffer, Clarion Borough Police, testified Stoveken told him he committed the burglaries because he was unable to get any help from home, he had run out of money, and could not find a job.

Chief Shaffer added Berkson gave the same reason for his participation in the break-ins.

Because he recognized the jacket as one that was stolen from his store, owner of Highgear Bike Shop, Steve Shaffer, testified he passed a man, later identified as Doyle, wearing the jacket.

Shaffer stated he wasn't sure it was the same jacket, but he stopped to notify CUP Public Safety.

After the man proceeded to his dormitory room, Shaffer noted the room number before he left the building.

Dennis M. Reed, Clarion Borough Police Officer, testified he heard the call to respond to Shaffer's call and proceeded to campus, where he joined Shaffer.

Reed said he then notified Public Safety Officer Dennis Hagen and requested they meet outside Wilkinson Hall and go to Doyle's room together.

Owner of Estadt's Sport Shop, Daniel Estadt, testified he remembered seeing the three defendants in his store, and believed they were in the shop the night before the break-in.

While Chief Shaffer and Reed were working on securing a search warrant to search their Nair Hall room on Nov. 8, Stoveken and Berkson came to the police station and said they wanted to talk about the burglaries, Shaffer testified.

Stoveken and Berkson allegedly said during an interview with Chief Shaffer that Doyle was involved in more than he had admitted to, testified Chief Shaffer, and had participated in the burglary at Crooks'.

According to CUP Director of University Relations Ronald J. Wilshire, all three freshman were suspended from CUP effective Nov. 30, and the university Conduct Board has taken action, at the request of the three students, and none of the three are enrolled at CUP this semester.

Citing confidentiality, Wilshire, declined to specify just what action the conduct board had taken. Wilshire also declined to comment on whether or not the students would be eligible to apply in future years.

CUP conduct regulations prohibit acts against property including vandalism, theft, trespass, tampering and other acts causing or risking damage or loss of property, according to Wilshire.

All three defendants are currently free on bond. Doyle was freed on $20,000 cash bond posted by his parents Nov. 23.

Berkson and Stoveken were initially jailed instead of $50,000 cash bond. During a bail reduction hearing Nov. 30, bail was reduced to $30,000.

Baschnagel assumes vice-president of PSAHPERD

by Kristin Lutz
News Writer

Having spent the past year as vice-president elect of the Division of Men's Athletics (DMA) of the Pennsylvania State Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Dance (PSAHPERD), on December 5, 1993, Professor Norbert Baschnagel assumed responsibilities as the VP of the division.

Baschnagel, associate professor of health and physical education at Clarion University, has a big year ahead of him.

In his position, he will prepare the division and section program at the 73rd Annual PSAHPERD State Convention to be held in 1994.

He has to get approximately five speakers to address members of the PSAHPERD at their yearly convention which this year will be held at Split Rock Resort in Lake Harmony, Pennsylvania.

The conference will not be until early December, but because there is little money allotted for speakers, Baschnagel said that it is a hard task to round-up qualified, interesting speakers.

Because there are different divisions of the association, the speakers have to be varied and able to present information about numerous topics.

"The State Convention has one main purpose - to keep its members on the cutting edge of their fields.

I want to get the best quality speakers possible so that this can be accomplished," said Baschnagel.

Last year, as VP elect, Baschnagel attended the EDA AAHPERD 108th National Convention in Washington D.C. and the Slippery Rock AAHPERD Mini-Convention, where he presented the program Organization and Administration of Specialty Camps and Clinics."

He also went to executive committee meetings of PSAHPERD and helped to plan the 1993 convention at which he gave the presentation "Pre-Season Conditioning Programs for Athletes."

Baschnagel presided over the American Coaching Effectiveness Program (ACEP) and submitted an article called "Specialty Sport Schools, Camps and Clinics" to the Pennsylvania Journal of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Baschnagel belonged to the public relations committee of the PSAHPERD for five years before he was nominated for his current position.

Other duties that Baschnagel will be in charge of this year will be to represent his division at PSAHPERD meetings, and to appoint, conduct and coordinate all the division committees

"It will be a lot of hard work, but I 'm really excited about the position," he stated.

Terri Steigelman/Clarion Call

Norbert Bashnagel has been named vice-president of PSAHPERD.

He will be in charge of co-ordinating the 73rd annual State Convention held in Lake Harmony.

Depression, loneliness lead to college student suicide

courtesy of
College Press Services

Why do college-age students sometimes choose to end their lives?

Joe Estes Reynolds, a University of Georgia junior in agricultural engineering, was found dead Oct. 18, 1993, with a gunshot wound to the head and a gun lying between his legs.

Police said they were treating his death as a suicide until test results return from the crime lab.

Psychologists said there are a number of reasons why young people could be depressed enough to kill themselves.

James Calhoun, a psychology professor at the University of Georgia and a practicing clinical psychologist in Athens, said loneliness is often a major factor in suicide cases.

"Most people who commit suicide don't really want to die, they just see no way out, are in great agony for some reason or are very frustrated,"

- Richard Born

"Some reasons for their depression are feeling isolated, feeling they have no friends, feeling alone, feeling like they're all by themselves or feeling that nobody loves them," Calhoun said.

Calhoun added that college-age students are possibly at risk because most have moved away from home for the first time.

"College students are at a higher risk than non-college students the same age because of a number of factors - being away from home, being in a strange environment and lack of any close personal relationships," he said.

Richard Born, an Athens psychologist who specializes in depression, said most people who kill themselves mention they are thinking about taking such a step, and they need to be taken seriously if they mention it repeatedly.

"Most people who kill themselves usually give an indication. It may be subtle, but something is said," Born said.

"A lot of people who commit suicide have talked about it, sometimes explicitly, sometimes vaguely," he said.

If people go into detail about how they would like to kill themselves, then they probably need help, Calhoun said.

Lynne Reeder, director of a counseling center in Athens, said even though the counseling center was there to help, many people won't talk about killing themselves in a counseling situation.

"Not a lot of students talk about it, and just because they do doesn't mean they're going to do it," she said.

Some psychologists said there are other signs to look for besides simply talking about suicide. People feeling sorry for themselves or making comments about not needing their belongings anymore are some clues which may also lead to a suicide, Calhoun said.

"Why don't you take my stereo? I don't need it anymore," or "I won't need my car after this," are the type of comments people might make before killing themselves," he said.

"Most people who commit suicide don't really want to die, they just see no way out, are in great agony for some reason or are very frustrated," Born said.

"When this happens, your brain functions differently and your thoughts aren't as clear as they are when normal.

Born said in many cases peole are more prone to kill themselves after they've come out of a long period of depression.

"When someone is in the depths of depression they don't have the clarity of mind to follow through, he said. "When they are recovering they have more energy and may actually go through with it."

Campuses rocked "n" rolled by California Quake

courtesy of
College Press Services

It isn't often that an all-nighter can save your life, but two California State University-Northridge students are alive today because they weren't sleeping when almost everyone else was.

Amy Miller, starting pitcher for the CSU-Northridge women's softball team, and third-base player Shannon Jones were wide awake and chatting about 4:30 a.m. in their first-floor apartment when the 6.6-point earthquake jolted the San Fernando Valley, crumpling freeways and buildings and creating a hellish scene of gushing water and fires caused by broken water and gas pipes.

One of the women had gone into the kitchen to prepare a snack and the other was in the bedroom when the earthquake caused the ground to leap up as much as 12 feet near the epicenter, creating a jackhammer effect particularly devastating to bridges, roads and buildings. The upper floors of the apartment complex crushed the lower floors just as Miller and Jones were scrambling to safety.

"One (student) went out of the front door, and one went out the back window, and that's how they survived," said Kaine Thompson, a spokeswoman for CSU-Northridge.

However, a third Cal State student was not so lucky. Jamie Reyes, 19, of the Los Angeles area, was killed when the apartment complex near the university collapsed.

Most of the people who died in the apartment complex were sleeping in apartments on the lower floors, although it was not certain on which floor Reyes was located, Thompson said.

The 6.6-point earthquake caused damage estimated between $15 billion and $30 billion. Nearly 5,000 people were injured during the earthquake or shortly thereafter from falling debris and broken glass. The death toll had climbed to more than 50 as of Jan. 21.

Perhaps the most unnerving aspect of the disaster was hundreds of aftershocks, some registering more than 5.0 on the Richter scale, that kept survivors on edge in the days and nights that followed.

Many people chose to sleep outside at night rather then wake up in the dark to the kind of roars and crashes that accompanied the first temblor.

The aftershocks also made damage assessment difficult because buildings that were inspected and declared safe after the initial quake were further weakened or damaged by more shaking, said Bruce Erickson, director of public relations for CSU-Northridge, which appeared to be the hardest hit of all colleges and universities.

"The campus is at or on the epicenter. Our buildings have sustained substantial damage.

We are out of business for a couple of weeks." said Erickson, who handled emergency telephone lines along with about 100 senior university employees, including the president and vice presidents, who huddled in a makeshift tent on the university grounds.

All campus buildings were closed until they could be inspected further. A 2,500-vehicle parking garage collapsed, while fire destroyed two floors of a main science building. The library also suffered significant damage.

The campus had been scheduled to begin registration the week of the earthquake. Classes were scheduled to start January 31. Erickson said classes may be delayed by a week, depending on how badly the buildings have been damaged.

"The image that people have that Los Angeles is cold and uncaring is not accurate, all of us came together to help everyone

"The campus is at or on the epicenter. Our buildings have sustained substantial damage. We are out of business for a couple of weeks,"

Former CUP Public Safety Officer takes step up at Scranton

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Recently, Scranton University hired Julie Foreman as the new assistant director of public safety for support services in hopes to upgrade the Public Safety department.

Foreman is a former police officer for the Public Safety Department at Clarion University of Pennsylvania for seven years.

She developed, initiated, and performed security and safety programs for Clarion University students and personnel.

She has a strong history in specialized course work and technical training.

Some of the duties that she will be responsible for at Scranton include training all full-time public safety officers, crime prevention, educational programs and addressing public relations issues.

Foreman notes that 95 percent of rape victims are women and therefore she will instruct a self-defense course that is strictly for women participants.

Programs that she plans to initiate at the Scranton University residence halls involve crime, rape, and theft.

The particular theft program that she will conduct involves role playing.

Through the use of assigning roles to residents, such as the thief, the victim, public safety officer, R.A. and time keeper, the participants observe that anyone can be stolen from in a small amount of time.

During a different program on theft, play money is hidden in a room. Then someone acts as the thief who found it.

Along with various officials of the public safety department, Foreman is currently interviewing companies with security that is highly advanced. Secure System, Inc., has a certain system that the University is considering as an option, she said.

The Campus Secure, a security company uses a tiny personal alarm device (PAD) which can be carried on a key chain, allowing someone to signal for help instantly anywhere on campus instantly.

The PAD transmits a coded personal signal to strategically placed Campus Secure receiving devices.

These receivers intercept someone's signal and send information to a central computer in the campus security office, about who and where someone is.

Of course, the system must be approved by the Scranton University administration. If approved, a fee will be charged to students for the devices.

Former Clarion University public safety officer, Julie Foreman recently left the university to take another position with Scranton University.

The department and Foreman are also developing a survey that will conclude what needs to be added to guarantee maximum security.

It includes areas such as lighting, locks, shrubbery, visiting restrictions, trees, alarm systems and video cameras in the Scranton University residence halls.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of January 24 through January 30, 1994.

At approximately 3:00 p.m. on January 26, two students were involved in an argument in Ralston Hall. During the course of the disagreement, one student pulled a small knife from his pocket and pointed the weapon at the other student. The student was cited for disorderly conduct.

On January 26 at 1:27 a.m., unknown persons activated a fire alarm on the third floor of Campbell Hall. It appeared that someone tampered with a fire alarm head mounted in the ceiling.

At approximately 10:30 a.m. on January 28 it was discovered that unknown persons broke into the fire strobe and disconnected the internal wiring which in turn shut down the fire warning system on the second floor, south side of Wilkinson Hall. Currently under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

"We look at history and the amount of snowfall," said Key. "We look at the past five or six years and see what it cost us."

PennDOT Clarion County Maintenance office has estimated snowfall in Clarion at 77 inches so far this winter. That figure, though, does not take into account geographical variations.

One small problem that did arise, however, was due to a computer shutdown for two days, when meal plans could not be processed.

Dr. George W. Curtis, Jr., vice president for student affairs said the problem mainly affected off-campus students who turned in meal plans during those days.

"The students were very accepting and understanding," said Curtis. "Minor things can be very agitating at times."

Individual instructors have discretion on how to make up the missed classes. According to Provost and Academic Vice President John Kuhn, individual instructors can authorize extra classes, assign extra readings or use other measures to compensate for the missed time.

"It's highly unlikely that any instructors will schedule [any make-up classes] for breaks," said Kuhn. "[The instructors should] work with the students to make up work."

Kuhn said that instructors have to be considerate when making up classes, adding that students do have obligations.

House backs off statewide gun ban

The state House Tuesday night backed off its December vote to ban 15 types of assault weapons statewide and approved a plan that would overturn existing controls in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Through a procedural move, the House dropped the assault weapon ban from a pending bill and went back to language that focuses on prohibiting local governments from controlling guns.

The amendment vote was 126-72, and the whole bill was approved 134-63.

"For the most part we were very ignorant of how people feel about their guns and their weapons in the rural parts of land. To punish the entire state would be okay if we would remedy their problem.

This bill with the amendment would not remedy their problem."

Belfanti said banning weapons from legitimate sportsmen and gun owners would do little to stop crime.

But gun control advocates warned that lives were at stake.

$1.3 million lead penalty asked

The Labor Department Tuesday slapped a $1.3 million fine on a Pennsylvania paint company for allegedly exposing more than two dozen employees to excessive on-the-job lead levels.

The recommended penalty is the first enforcement action under interim federal guidelines that sharply limited lead-exposure standards in the construction industry.

"The employer in this case disregarded everything and subjected his employees to lead poisoning," Secretary Robert B. Reich said.

"Such callousness cannot and will not be tolerated

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration issued 51 citations against Manganzas Painting Co., of Canonsburg, about 10 citations against Manganas Painting Co., of Canonsburg, about 10 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

The alleged violations occurred during a bridge blasting-and-painting job near Lebanon, Ohio that involve between 25 and 30 workers.

Speech 'rules' may be eased

Unless a student threatens physical harm to another, comments perceived as racist, sexist or politically incorrect will no longer be punished at the University of Pennsylvania, according to a preliminary report released Tuesday.

"Essentially, it is what the First Amendment says," university spokeswoman Barbara Beck said. "The rules inside the campus cannot be different from those outside."

If adopted, the free speech provision would officially reverse Penn's old policy, which prohibited behavior that, among other things, "insults or demeans the person. . . or abuses a power relationship with that person, on the basis of his or her race, color, ethnicity or national origin."

A white student who faced racial harassment charges for calling a group of black women "water buffalo" last year started an ongoing national debate on political correctness and subjected Penn to criticism for squashing free speech and taking the idea to the extreme.

Cable to rate shows for violence

Cable and broadcast networks effectively stopped congressional efforts to restrict violent television programs by agreeing Tuesday to police themselves.

The broadcast television industry announced plans for an independent monitoring system to asses the amount of violence on the tube.

Cable television went a step farther, agreeing to begin rating its programs for violence and endorsing technology that would permit parents to block violent shows from their homes.

The agreement has been endorsed by a large number of cable channels, including Bravo, Disney, HBO, MTV, the Nashville Network, Playboy and the Weather channel.

The two major industry segments held news conferences on Capitol hill in an effort to derail proposals to legislate limits on violent broadcasts.

And Sen Paul Simon, D-Ill., said he plans to drop current efforts to pass a bill restricting violent shows, though he left the door open to trying again if independent monitoring doesn't result in improvement.

The biggest difference focused on rating shows and finding ways to limit children's access to them, with cable endorsing ratings and blocking technology, while the broadcasters declined to join in.

Labor punishes NAFTA backers

Organized labor may have kissed and made up with President Clinton, but it is still holding a grudge against House Democrats who voted for the North American Free Trade Agreement.

That Illinois Reps, Dan Rostenkowski, Richard J. Durbin and Mel Reynolds - the only three Democrats in the state who voted for the free-trade pact last November - have been told that they will not receive an AFL-CIO endorsement is crucial: it opens the way for labor political action committee (PAC) contributions to a candidate, said Illinois AFL-CIO President Donald Johnson.

Officials rein in opitmism

Reining in optimism about talks with the PLO, Israeli officials said Tuesday that an agreement on beginning Palestinian self-rule in the occupied territories could take weeks.

The comments contrasted with rosy predictions Monday that a deal was close on details of autonomy for the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho.

Paper protests budget cuts

The student newspaper staff at Ferris State University published a nearly blank edition to protest budget cuts that would eliminate the school's journalism department.

The staff of the bi-weekly paper, The Torch, published the nearly blank edition late last year to show students what the university will be like without a journalism program.

The 12-page edition contained only two small cartoons denouncing the cuts and an editorial explaining the blank pages.

The paper's opinion editor, Ron Woycehoski, said the edition was published to express dismay about the university cutting $7.9 million from its budget by eliminating 17 academic programs.

According to Woycehoski, the paper received some criticism about their action, but response from students has been mostly positive.

Newsletter Offers Support

A Lehigh University senior has developed an electronic newsletter to help others affected with Lyme disease.

Marc Gabriel was diagnosed with the disease two years ago. From his apartment in Bethlehem, Pa., he started the newsletter to help other Lyme disease patients obtain information via modem. Gabriel edits LYMENET which includes research findings and news stories about the disease. The newsletter is sent every couple of weeks to thousands of readers in eight countries.

Gabriel is currently building National LYMENET, a bulletin board, database and e-mail system for the lyme Disease Network of New Jersey. When the system is running, it will allow users to access the latest information about Lyme disease.

The acute inflammatory disease causes joint pain, arthritis, heart and neurological disorders. About 700,000 Americans are infected with the disease. Half of the patents suffering permanent disability are under the age of 12.

School holds world games

About 400 students got the chance to try to resolve global problems when Seattle Pacific University hosted The World Game Workshops Jan. 18-19.

In the games, the world's population of 5 billion was condensed to a room full of players. During the three-hour workshops, participants were divided into populations and placed on a 35-foot-by-70-foot map of the Earth.

Different teams were charged with the responsibility of solving their area's problems. Other teams were designated as the United Nations, the World Bank, the World Health Organization and the media. Problems that various teams struggled with included hunger, illiteracy, technology, health and economics.

The workshop is promoted by the World Game Institute, a non-profit research and education organization originated by architect and inventor Buckminster Fuller.

Study says jobs out there

The hiring of new college graduates is expected to increase this year after a five-year lull, a survey by Michigan State University found.

The survey, done by the Collegiate Employment Research Institute at Michigan State, found that hiring should increase 1.1 percent.

The figure was based on the responses of more than 600 business, industry and government organizations nationwide.

"The message to new college graduates is that there are job opportunities available," survey author L. Patrick Scheetz said at Concordia College in River Forest, Ill.

Battle of the Bands '94 Rocks Clarion

by Carrie Lengauer
Lifestyles Writer

A Battle of the Bands that lasted into Infinity was conquered by a band of the same name Tuesday night. The three-and-a-half-hour long, sixth-annual, University Activities Board-sponsored event rocked to a close with the final band, ten-member Infinity, claiming victory, NightShift plugging in at second, and Roman Candle capturing third place out of the eight bands.

Launching the Battle in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium with roaring, hard-core guitar action was Roman Candle, made up of Matt Dittman, Jim Gilara, Eric Hess, Mat Dubinett, and J.J. Kifer. The missile For Whom the Bell Tolls hit its target and woke up the headbangers. Their air assault continued through until the final number, a challenge to Get a Piece of Me.

Gravewurm took command as the second band in the evening's line-up. And as the competition was a Battle, Gravewurm was the drill sargent, with Don Cepull, Tim Reiter, and Kevin Fye roaring out their version of thrash-speed metal.

With their arsenal of rocking guitars and pounding, kicking drums, Weld fired their all-original, hard-core rockets into the fray. A short-lived mosh pit erupted like a land mine near the stage at the encouragement of lead singer Jason Lahr, as bassist Robert Saunders and drummer Dave Graham pounded out their rhythms until the final song, Sunflower.

The guitar trio NightShift seized the stage next with their acoustic assault. Their Battle plan consisted of their versions of Don McLean's American Pie, Blind Melon's No Rain, the Who's Behind Blue Eyes, and Led Zeppelin's Ramble On. Lon Pristas, Derek Mikesell, and Aaron Crisman may look familiar to fraternity party-goers at Clarion, where the band plays an occasional gig.

Metallica and the Red Hot Chili Peppers inspired the next band, Mutual Casualty. They attacked the competition with ammunition of their original songs, Perfect Night and self-titled Mutual Casualty, an instrumental about suffering, with singer/guitarist Robert Saunders adding simply, "Don't suffer," as drummer Ben Auman and guitarist John Saunders began the melody.

Alan Vaughn/Clarion Call

Comedian Sky Sands kept the audience laughing with his bizarre humor as the emcee at the Battle of the Bands.

Counterpart stepped up to the front of the Battle lines with their high intensity and energy and jamming guitar riffs. Drummer Rob Heichel, guitarists John Derosa and Jeremy Segala, and Wesley Craig "Kick-Started" the hearts of their audience with songs by Motley Crue and others.

Then, the funky, folky, new alternative sounds of Spot the Undercover Stunt Dog Band resounded through the Battle zone. Larry Allen, Brian McGee, Matt Shellenhammer, Felece Aiello, Katie Fitzpatrick, Kristen Wright, and Elliot Lawrence fired up the lyrics of Tell Me, Losing Time, The Funky Song, and I'd Die for Your Love, with flute and bongos adding to the compliment of singers, keyboards, drums, and guitars.

Then the soon-to-be victorious Infinity, whose debut album is now out in Gemmell's bookstore stepped aboard. With their original songs, Dan Coyle, Scott Kaminski, Frank Maier, Alan Hooks, Brian Slavinsky, Jeff Walch, Karen Kearney, Jamie Miller, Darrin Elensky, and Scott Wagner roused the lethargic, late-night audience. Anyone who left early to watch The Late Show with David Letterman of catch some z's missed Tonight with Infinity, and the only slow ballad of the night, the moving violin-accented Losing You. Between these two songs, Infinity declared "Life is war, and War is Hell." But for them, this war wasn't hell, and as the dust of the Battle settled, they emerged victorious and won the $150 prize.

Keeping the action moving all night was emcee/comedian Sky Sands. Sands, who claims he was, " Made to wear polyester at age two and raised by a pack of savage (yet witty) Amway salesmen," has performed at colleges and nightclubs and on television across the United States, Canada, and Europe. He headlined at the Comedy Shop the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas and will appear in a National Lampoon special this summer.

With his lively, bizarre humor, Sands kept the audience laughing with jokes, skits, puns, and joking insults about everyone and everything from Italians to West Virginians, from lemons to bodily functions, from morons to women. But he urged the crowd to "Bear with" him (Grrr . . .) as he admitted that he's "not sexist," just "pretty ignorant."

When technical difficulties delayed the Battle, Sands pulled out all the stops, resorting to flipping off the stage help, harrassing the spot light operator, and the finale straight jacket trick.

It proved to be an unusual but exciting night that rocked the campus all night long.

Bus trips to mall now provided for students

by Anita Carbon
Lifestyles Writer

Need a lift to the mall? Take the bus! Interhall Council and Student Senate are now providing Clarion students access to bus transportation to and from the Clarion Mall.

The idea of providing students with bus transportation had been floating around Interhall Council for a few years until Debbie Wilcox, Interhall Council secretary, decided to move forward with the idea. Wilcox was assisted by David Scappe, who organized the bus transportation. Amy Mennen, the head of the Public Relations committee, also helped with the project's planning.

The bus will load at Campbell Hall every other Wednesday starting February 2. The bus will leave Campbell at 5:30 and 7 p.m. and depart from the Clarion Mall at 8:45 p.m.

The bus trips to the Clarion Mall are free to all students with a valid ID. It is a chance for those without any form of transportation on campus to "get out" and enjoy the mall, meet their friends, or just for a change of scenery from the campus. The bus trips are a trial basis where participation counts in order to continue.

Interhall Council is an organization designed to coordinate events for the students living in the residence halls on campus. This group is also the voice of the seven hall councils when it comes to problems, opinions or just creative ideas for the residence halls.

The Student Senate is the ultimate voice of the student body of Clarion University. This organization is to voice opinions, suggestions and problems of the students regarding the university.

Interhall Council and Student Senate will also be planning several other events this semester such as a blood drive on February 7. Interhall Council is also planning a formal dance in the spring.

FAMOUS LEADERS
Black History Month

Nat Turner was born in Southhampton County, Virginia, in 1800. He worked as a field hand in cotton and tobacco production. He was mechanically gifted and deeply religious. Nat Turner was able to read and write, but how he learned is not clear. He preached on Sundays to slaves and some white people.

Between the years of 1828-1830, Turner was sold and moved from one master to the next. In 1828, Turner had a vision telling him it was his duty to struggle against the enslavement of his people. In 1830, he was finally moved to the home of Joseph Travis. Nat Turner considered the phenomenon of "the eclipse of the sun" as a sign to him to command an uprising against slavery.

Turner gathered a handful of conspirators, and on August 22, 1831 at about 2 p.m., Turner and the other slaves moved to the attack, beginning at the home of Joseph Travis. Within 48 hours, he had built up his band to 60 armed men. As many as 65 were killed by the rebelling slaves. The victims included men, women and children.

On October 30, 1831, Turner was captured and held in prison from November 1-3. He was interviewed by court appointed Attorney Thomas Gray. These interviews were published as Turner's so-called confessions, a main source for the data on Turner and rebellion. On November 5, Turner was tried, found guilty and sentenced to death by hanging, which occurred six days later.

Nat Turner was a devout Insurrectionary leader. He was driven by the extreme tightening of slave control measures throughout the South. His uprising came as a climax of a decade of slave agitation in the U.S.

Spring Rush '94

Greeks traffic campus with "rush"-hours

It was my sophomore year and knowing Clarion isn't exactly the most exciting place to be, I decided that I needed to get involved with something that would make the long and cold days in Clarion go by a little faster.

However, there was one problem . . . what was there to get involved in? I already worked at the television station and the newspaper, but I still had too much time on my hands.

The solution to my problem didn't come in the form of a bolt of lightning or a revelation, but a sign. A sign not from above, but posted on the main bulletin board of my residence hall. The sign said "Paint the Town Greek," and it started my journey down the road of sorority formal rush.

After signing up, I went to Rush Orientation, where members of Greek organizations told all of the rushees the ins and outs of formal rush. All of the rushees had a Rho Chi (a rush counselor) who was there to help us choose the best sorority that was right for us. My Rho Chi was in a sorority, but it was to remain a secret until the end of rush, so she couldn't influence my decision.

"Meet the Greeks" was the first round of rush. Unlike informal rush in the fall, where everybody has a choice of Greeks to visit, each rushee was put in a group and spent 15 minutes at each separate sorority. After what seemed to be an endless list of sigmas, alphas and every other letter in the Greek alphabet, it was time to pick my top five combinations of Greek letters to go back to in the next round of parties.

The second round eliminated a couple of sororities from rushees' lists, but increased the amount of time we spent at our remaining choices. The third round narrowed our choices to four sororities. The next step was to meet with our counselors who explained we were getting ready for the final round . . . the preference parties.

This was it, the final round. Our choices were now down to three. After the hour-long "pref" parties, we (again) sat down with our Rho Chi's who helped us list our first, second and third choices for sisterhood.

Now came the hardest part . . . waiting to see if my first choice wanted me to be a part of their sisterhood.

Now, two years later, I have gone through formal rush as a rushee, a sister and now as a Rho Chi (which is the reason why I can't tell you the end of my story).

Joining a sorority was probably one of the best things I did during my four years at Clarion. It has taught me leadership skills, how to manage my time and most of all — how to be a friend.

Wellness Program helps to cope with teenagers

by Lisa Ewing
Lifestyles Writer

This afternoon, Dr. T. Audean Duespohl from Clarion University's Venango campus will be speaking here about a very important topic. Her program entitled "Coping with Teenagers" will take place at noon in room 252 of the Gemmell Student Complex.

Dr. Duespohl will attempt to help the audience in dealing with the "normal" behaviors of teens. Topics covered will range from low self-esteem to constant mood swings.

The Wellness Program supports the multidimensional concept of wellness as a positive approach to living. This concept enxompasses six areas: physical, emotional, spiritual, intellectual, occupational and social aspects of health. All of these dimensions are interrelated and affect one's total well-being.

Dr. Duespohl's program is sponsored by the Wellness Program and will last approximately one hour. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Upcoming Wellness Program events for the semester include the Fourth Annual Wellness Fair on April 14 in Tippin Gymnasium and the University Wellness Picnic on May 7 in Cook Forest.

The importance of being Earnest

I have this idea for a new television series. It would be a realistic action show, patterned after the true-life experiences of my dog, Earnest. The name of the show would be: "Adventure Dog."

The theme song would go:

"Adventure dog! Adventure
doooooooooooooggggg!
Kinda big, kinda strong Stupid as a log."

Each episode would be about an exciting true adventure that happened to Earnest. For example, here's the script for an episode entitled: "Adventure Dog Wakes Up and Goes Outside":

"It is 6:17 a.m. Adventure Dog is sleeping in the hall. Suddenly, she hears a sound. Her head snaps up. Somebody is up! Time to swing into action! Adventure Dog races down the hall and, skidding on all four paws, turns into the bathroom, where, to her total shock, she finds: The Master! Whom she has not seen since LAST NIGHT! YAYYYYYYYY!!

ADVENTURE DOG: Bark!

MASTER: DOWN, dammit!

Now Adventure Dog bounds to the front door, in case the Master is going to take her outside. It is a slim chance. He has only taken her outside for the past 2,637 consecutive mornings. But just in case, Adventure Dog is ready.

ADVENTURE DOG: Bark!

Can it be? Yes! This is unbelievable! The Master is coming to the door! Looks like Adventure Dog is going outside! YAAAYYY!

MASTER: DOWN dammit!

Now the Master has opened the door approximately one inch. Adventure Dog realizes that, at this rate, it may take the Master a full three-tenths of a second to open the door all the way. This is bad. He needs help. Adventure Dog alertly puts her nose in the crack and applies 600,000 pounds of force to the door.

MASTER: HEY!

DOOR: WHAM!

And now Adventure Dog is through the door, looking left, looking right, her finely honed senses absorbing every detail of the environment, every nuance and nuance and subtlety, looking to: Holy Smoke! There it is! The YARD! Right in the exact same place where it was yesterday! This is turning out to be an UNBELIEVABLE adventure!

ADVENTURE DOG: Bark!

Adventure Dog is vaguely troubled. Some primitive version of a thought is rattling around inside her tiny cranium, like a BB in a tuna-fish can. But what on Earth could it be? Before Adventure Dog can think of an answer, she detects . . . is this possible? Yes! It's a SMELL! Yikes! Full Red Alert!

ADVENTURE DOG: Sniff sniff sniff.

MASTER: Come on, Earnest

ADVENTURE DOG: Sniff sniff sniff sniff sniff.

MASTER: Will you hurry UP?

ADVENTURE DOG: Sniff sniff sniff sniff sniff sniff sniff.

No question about it. The evidence is clear. This is a smell, all right. And what's more, it's the smell of — this is so incredible — DOG WEEWEE! Right here in the yard!

MASTER: EARNEST!

ADVENTURE DOG: Sniff sniff sniff sniff sniff.

Adventure Dog is getting the germ of an idea. At first it seems far-fetched, but the more she thinks about it, the more she thinks, hey, why not? The idea is — get ready — Adventure Dog is going to MAKE WEEWEE! Right now! Outside! It's crazy but it just might work!

MASTER: Good GIRL.

What was that? It was a sound! Definitely. A sound coming from . . . over there. Yes! No question about it! This is unbelievable! It's the MASTER, out here in the yard! YAAAYYY!

MASTER: DOWN, dammit!

THEME-SONG SINGER: Adventure Dog, Adventure Doooooooooooooooooggggggg. .

ADVENTURE DOG: BARK!

MASTER: DOWN!"

Bear in mind that this is only one episode. There are many other possibilities: "Adventure Dog Gets Fed," "Adventure Dog Goes for a Ride in the Car and Sees Another Dog and Barks Real Loud for the Next 116 Miles," etc. It would be the kind of family-oriented show your kids could watch, because there would be extremely little sex, thanks to an earlier episode, "Adventure Dog Has an Operation."

"Tombstone": plot on grave or mark of success

Rated R

by Amy Beth Fort

With all the big names in "Tombstone," most people might think it must be a good movie. Well, that just proves that an all-star cast can't save a bad script.

The plot of "Tombstone" is plausible, as lawman Wyatt Earp (Kurt Russell) decides to hang up his badge and make his fortune in the boomtown of Tombstone. He and his brothers (Sam Elliot and Stephen Lang) move themselves and their wives to the mining town to make their fortune. Of course, they all eventually pick up their badges again to decimate a band of outlaws who call themselves "cowboys."

The Earp brothers quickly run into Wyatt's Dodge City cohort, Doc Holiday (Val Kilmer), who comes to Tombstone to try to cure his Tuberculosis. Holiday, of course, comes to the aid of the brothers and joins the posse.

Dana Delaney (China Beach, Housesitter) plays an actress who comes to Tombstone to bring some culture to the wild west and promptly falls in love with the married in a seemingly pointless subplot.

The historical references in "Tombstone" are correct and the portrayal of the silver-rich town is excellent. The story, however, is cliched and corny.

Russell models his character obviously after a Clint Eastwood cowboy and Delaney can't make her acting grow farther than Colleen from China Beach. The one exception to the movie is Val Kilmer's stellar performance of the poet/gambler Holiday and is not only the obvious star of the movie, but is it's only saving grace.

In essence, "Tombstone," at two and a half hours, is too long and too predictable.

I am one who does not, historically, like westerns. But as of late there have been a couple that I have liked, and Tombstone is one.

If you know anything about American history then you should know about the Gun Fight at the OK Corral. In the movie, Doc Holiday and the Earp Brothers join forces to defeat The Cowboys in a gun fight, then later in the film go on to annihilate the entire gang. I do not know how historical the movie is, but it is simple, fun cinema. Yes, the plot is simple and predictable, but realize it is a Western and not Shakespeare.

The Earp brothers, Wyatt, Morgan, and Virgil (Kurt Russell, Stephen Lang, Sam Elliot) are first seen getting off of a train with their wives to start new lives in Tombstone, Arizona. Wyatt and Virgil are both former Kansas sheriffs, and we do not know what the hell Morgan does. Maybe self-gratification? They hope to strike it rich in this booming silver town in Northern Arizona.

Val Kilmer (Doc Holiday), well-educated (versed in Latin and philosophy) was a riot, but not in a comical sense. He played a drunken gun fighter with a dry sense of humor coming to Tombstone to cure his tuberculosis. He has some of the best one liners in the movie. My favorite takes place when he has a run in with one of The Cowboys, the evil clique. It is a tense situation (of course he is drunk) and a Cowboy says, "You're drunk and I bet you are seeing two of me!" Doc (Kilmer), already holding one gun, replies, "Yes, and I have a gun for each of you." He then proceeds to produce another gun. Val was also well dressed. He wore ascots!

The Earps and Holiday meet and proceed to find out that the town has a gang problem call The Cowboys. The Cowboys ruffle the Earps and Doc which leads to the gun fight at The OK Corral. Watch this part and you will see that the gun fight was started by Doc due to the fact he winked at The Cowboys. This whole thing leads to revenge by The Cowboys, then to the extinction of the gang by the Earps. While this storyline is going on Wyatt's wife is getting high on Opium, and he is having lustful thoughts about an actress there to incult the town.

In the end Wyatt comes out unscathed and gets the girl. Morgan bites the bullet, and Virgil loses an arm. Doc (a moment of silence please) finally succumbed to T.B., but before he does he kills the chiefton of The Cowboys. He was his huckleberry.

Social point of interest: in the opening sequences it is said that Tombstone had a higher murder rate than modern New York City.

Go see the movie and enjoy it for what it is worth.

Visiting Scholar Lecture discusses contemporary African cinema

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Many people would believe that a college campus is no place to experience culture. The Clarion University Visiting Scholar Lecture series is working to change that incorrect train of thought.

On Monday, February 7 the university presents filmmaker and African historian Claire Andrade-Watkins who will give a presentation entitled, "Contemporsry Issues and Trends in African Cinema."

Although Andrade-Watkins is now assistant professor of mass communications at Boston's Emerson college, she made time to arrange the African film/video presentation at the annual film experience which includes work on PBS. She has also been a part of several discussions and lectures, including being the Harvard University African Film Series' keynote speaker in 1992.

While at Boston University, Andrade-Watkins earned her doctorate in African history by giving a dissertation titled "Francophone African Cinema: French Financial and Technical Assistance 1961 to 1977."

Andrade-Watkins has also been invited to judge films at film festivals in Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso in West Africa, and in Martinique. Whe has also organized many African film festivals in the United States.

She has also co-authored the book "Blackframes: Critical Perspectives on Black Independent Cinema," as well as a number of articles and papers considering various aspects of African Cinema.

To celebrate the appearance of Claire Andrade-Watkins, a movie and a day with the students and faculty is planned. In room 248 of the Gemmell Complex, "Wend Kuuni," a movie directed by African filmmaker Gaston Kabore, was shown yesterday.

The film is called "a fable for modern Africa." It was about a young mute boy who, after being found by a peddler, learns about himself and where he came from.

The Clarion University African-American Caucus, the Presidential commission on the Status of Women, the Clarion University Foundation as well as other campus organizations are arranging for our guest speaker to have breakfast with faculty and staff members, meet with the members of the Clarion University African American Student Union and attend at least one class with the student body.

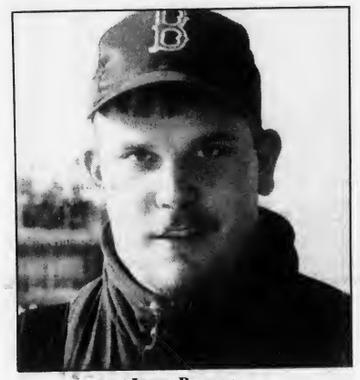

The presentation, which will be held on Monday, February 7 in the Hart Chapel at 7:30, is free to the public.

February is Black History Month

The Clarion Women's Basketball team has started the season off with an outstanding 14-3 record. The Lady Eagles, who have beaten some top ranked teams this season, owe their success to good execution, effective team play, and a strong coaching staff. Six freshmen have joined the team this year to add not only depth, but also some great playing time. It has gotten to the point that when Coach Parsons substitutes, the Eagles' quality of play does not diminish.

The Golden Eagles have been on the road for their last two games at Slippery Rock and at Pace University. Against Slippery Rock, the Eagles were facing a big rival and a guarantee of a tight game. Clarion took the lead early with Amy Migyanka's three pointer just 16 seconds into the game. Clarion led the game for most of the first half, only letting Slippery Rock get ahead by six before retaking the lead and heading into the locker room with a 43-39 advantage. To begin the second half, Clarion pounded it inside to Mona Gaffney for their first six points. Gaffney had a tremendous day, finishing with 27 points on 12 for 19 shooting, and pulled in six boards. Clarion held the lead for the last six minutes of the game, continuing to work it inside to Carlita Jones as well. Jones finished with 18 points and twelve rebounds as Clarion closed the game with an 81-77 victory. Guards Amy Coon and Amy Migyanka had ten points apiece, and senior guard Shannon Coakley left with 16 points and seven rebounds.

Next, Clarion traveled to Pace University where they suffered a very disappointing loss. Coming in with identical records at 14-2, the Eagles knew that they would be in for a tough battle. The Eagles continued to look to their inside game as Gaffney netted 18 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. Jones also had 18 points and took in 13 rebounds. They also played very well inside defensively. However in the second half, Clarion's shooting went cold as they hit only 35%. The result was a close 62-60 defeat. Coon finished with 11 points and six rebounds, and Coakley had 11 points and four rebounds.

Clarion plays 5th- ranked California at home this Wednesday (We will have already gone to press by then), and on Saturday they travel to Shippensburg to battle the Red Raiders.

Men beat Crimson Eagles

by Nathan Kahl

Monday night the Clarion University Men's Basketball team took on the Crimson Eagles of Philadelphia Bible College. Philly Bible entered the contest with an 8-9 mark, and many figured that the Eagles would have no problem dismantling the visiting ball club. This was not the case early on however, as Clarion fell behind by as many as 13 points at the midway point in the first half. Oronn Brown, who sometimes seems to be saving his offensive skills for just the right moment, tried to provide an anecdote to his teammates' cold shooting, and had nine 14 points by halftime. Spurred on by Brown's performance, Clarion climbed back into the game and then just took complete control, going on a 15-2 run before the half. At the end of the half it was like the Oronn and Kwame show as Brown used his amazing speed to chase down a loose ball, came down court, tossed it to Morton, Morton threw it back, and Brown layed it in. The defender's head was spinning. Morton then stole a ball, gave it to Brown who threw it back and got the assist as Morton went to the whole.

In the second half it was more of the same as Clarion successfully pounded the ball inside, balanced with some better outside shooting. The offense began to churn out points like a well- oiled machine. Clarion's biggest lead was 36 which came at the 31 second mark in the game after a Bob Montrose layup. The final score of the game was 95-61 as Clarion won going away.

Morton finished the game with 34 points and six rebounds. He moved into second place as the all time scorer in PSAC history. Brown had 16 points and seven boards, Steve Branch left with 14 points and 11 rebounds, Tyrone Sherrod had 11 points and five rebounds, and Ian White had 10 boards and blocked three shots. Brian Paige, who had a slow first half and sat on the bench for the first six minutes of the second period, finished with eight points and four rebounds.

Clarion's next game will come against Shippensburg as both teams travel for a double-header against the Red Raiders.

A weekly look at a Clarion University athlete

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Oronn Brown, a freshman sensation at CUP, is a sparkling addition to the mens' basketball team. His speed, defensive play, and ability to drive the lane or shoot from outside make him an incredible all around talent. His great court vision and quick hands make him an excellent passer, and his leaping ability leaves him with no problem of getting his 6"1' frame up above the rim.

Oronn was raised in New York by his mother, a professor, and an older sister. They taught him to stay away from the dangers of inner city life, praising the benefits of hard work and education. Oronn also said that he played basketball "to keep himself busy and out of trouble."

So why did the 27th ranked high school player in New York City pick Clarion? "I was recruited by a lot of Division I schools but none of them had a chance of winning. I liked Clarion because there were some other Brooklyn Kids here. I liked the facilities, I liked Coach Righter, and I heard they had a good business management program here." As one could imagine, there is a major culture shock of moving from Brooklyn to Clarion. But Oronn said that he enjoyed the slower pace of Clarion for a college setting but said he'll probably live in the city after graduation.

Clarion is graduating their other four starters this year and the leadership responsibilities will fall squarely on Brown's shoulders. "They're looking for me to fill that void. I've still got a lot of learning to do."

As far as schooling goes, Brown knows it's an important priority. The pressures on a student athlete are demanding but he says, "You just gotta try as hard as you can." He even says his biggest accomplishment this far is hitting the books hard in college.

If pro ball isn't in his future he hopes to become a business manager of some kind of sports store. "Just something that will keep me involved in sports."

In his few free moments, Brown likes to hang out in Gemmel, playing pool or playing video games. While you may want to challenge him in a game of "NBA Jams," you don't want to challenge him on the real court.

Morton breaks school scoring record

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

It was a short little fall-away jumper from slightly behind the backboard. There was a defender in his face, forcing him to shoot one handed, slightly pushing the ball towards the basket. A difficult shot for most, but just another day's work for Kwame Morton. However, this was not just another shot. As the ball swished through the net with a satisfying rip, Morton etched his name into the Clarion record books.

Morton entered the January 7 game against Davis and Elkins University needing only six points to surpass Reggie Wells' school scoring record of 2,011. The thirty points he had dropped in by the end of the game easily pushed him past that total. Breaking the record at the mid-way point of the season leaves the imagination wondering to what heights Morton could push the point total.

Several newspapers (including this publication) have been talking about the record since the beginning of this basketball season. Early in the game it apeared as if all of the hoopla had taken its toll. Morton seemed to be forcing some shots and attempted a couple of deep three pointers with people all over him. He admitted that the record was enough to affect his play. "It was certainly in the back of my mind," he said. "There was just too much talk about it today."

Morton came to Clarion with high expectations and it was early on in his career that he realized that breaking the record was an attainable goal.

"After my sophomore year, coach pointed it out to me." But like most great athletes he doesn't put too much emphasis on this one achievement.

"I just try to take things in stride. I've had it really good here and I just take things as they come to me."

With a few minutes left in the game, Kwame's 30 points in the bag and Clarion with a comfortable 30 point lead, Morton drove for a layup and had it rejected. Coming down the court the rejector loudly trash talked in Kwame's ear.

"I just told him to look at the scoreboard." Just like he has all throughout his career at Clarion, this classy athlete let his performance do all the talking. Congratulations Kwame.

Can Kwame play in the NBA?

by Adam Earnheardt
Sports Writer

Just because you don't see his face plastered all over the television networks or read about him in Sports Illustrated, doesn't mean that Kwame Morton is just another basketball player in the NCAA. Rather, Mr. Morton is doing quite well.

Kwame has the highest scoring average in the entire NCAA at 33 points per game (yes, including those Division I fellas on ESPN). He scored 56 points against Slippery Rock last Wednesday and has scored a total of 200 points in the last five games. As of the Monday night game against Philadelphia Bible college. "Automatic Morton" has moved into second place on the all-time leading scoring list in the PSAC with 2,292 points.

Marty Blake of Street & Smiths and other professional basketball scouts care. They care about Morton and his potential to take his game to the next level, the professional level. They care enough about Morton to consider him for a spot at the Portsmith Invitational in Portsmith, Virginia, one of the biggest NBA scouting venues in the country. Only two or three Division II players are invited each year.

A former Slippery Rock basketball standout, Myron Brown, got his shot at the Portsmouth Invitational. He was later picked by the Minnesota Timberwolves in the second round of the 1991 NBA draft. After spending a short time in the NBA, Brown was moved down to the Continental Basketball Association (CBA) a semi-pro league that constantly shuffles players in and out of the NBA ranks. Brown quite possibly could end up on an NBA roster in the future.

So the question arises: Do Morton's statistics compare to Brown's?

Brown presently holds the PSAC scoring title with 2,619 points. However, Brown played several more games (13) than Morton will have played by the close of this season, barring any injury or play-off games. Thus, it's simple to figure that Morton could easily pass Brown's total point figure (2,619) if Morton played as many games.

Although stats sometimes lie, Morton's don't. Morton's figures are equal, if not superior in some categories, to those of Brown's. Does this make him an NBA caliber player? How about a CBA contract? Is there the possibility of an overseas deal? The answers to all these questions is yes.

"If I get the opportunity," Morton says, "I am confident in myself and I believe I can prove myself in my game. I like being close to my family, so going overseas isn't what I'm looking for. But, if the package is right, I might decide to go over. The seasons are shorter in overseas leagues like half the amount of games played in the NBA (around 30 games a season), so that might give me more time to spend over here."

Al Modrejewski, assistant coach for the CUP men's basketball team, knows of Morton's potential. "If he goes to the Portsmith Invitational he'll be seen buy the best pro scouts. Blake (one of the top NBA scouts) has inquired about Kwame. Coach Righter (head coach for the CUP men's team) has sent Blake information about Kwame."

"He's everything you look for in a player and more," says Coach Righter. "Sure he has great athletic abilities and has been a big factor in our successes, but it's the intangibles that make him the quality person he is. Kwame is a warm, candid individual who has tremedous character."

"Automatic Morton," a 1993-94 Consensus All-American, has the tools and the skills to play at the professional level. He might not be the high-flying, slammin' jammin' artist that we see every year in the NBA slam dunk contest, he is, however, a true athlete, a natural scorer and an amazing person both on and off the court.

the competition, winning all four of his matches by pin. He pinned Shippensburg's Jamie Braumbaugh in a tourney record 21 seconds, the third fastest time in Clarion history. Both Grays and Brown also had impressive victories to reach the finals. Grays got a takedown for a 7-5 overtime decision over Chad Bailey of Bloomsburg. Bailey had beaten Grays earlier this season and last year as well. Brown pinned Andy Fitzpatrick, also of Bloomsburg, who is a three time national qualifier.

The Eagles have wrestled through a tough schedule very well this season, and have defeated several national powers. Not even in the pre-season top 20, the Eagles climbed the rankings before suffering two defeats. However, their performance last weekend shows that they are up to the challenge of facing top notch competition, and are a force to be reckoned with as the season comes down the stretch. Clarion is ranked #8 in a recent poll by the AWN/NWCA. That ranking will be challenged this Saturday when an undefeated Syracuse team comes to Tippin Gymnasium. The Orangemen are ranked 19th in the country and will prove to be another test for the Clarion team that seems to be getting stronger down the stretch.

Our campus will be hosting Division I wrestling at its best this weekend, and it would be unfortunate not to take advantage of the opportunity to see our wrestlers defend their top ten ranking. This match pits two of the nation's perennial wrestling powers against each other. Coach Davis and the team urge all to attend.

If the Bills make it back to the Super Bowl , I'm not going to watch

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Will a true representative of the AFC please step forward. I've had enough. No more, please. For the past four years, I and AFC fans like me, have put hopes of an AFC champion in the hands of the Buffalo Bills. No more. Surely amongst the fourteen teams making up the American Football Conference, someone will eventually emerge as the Super Bowl Champion. After Dallas' 30-13 smashing of Kelly's Heroes on Sunday, I'm beginning to think that the NFL is made up of just the NFC - or even just the NFC East! The last ten Super Bowls have been won by the Nationals, the last four by the NFC East. Does the word dominance mean anything in the NFL?

I approached last Sunday's game with hopes, high hopes. I thought for SURE this would be the AFC's year. Dallas overconfidence, a Buffalo team with a lot of heart, and history never producing a four-straight loser made me think of Lombardi Dreams for the AFC. No dice. Once again, an overpowering defense, a HUGE offensive line, and a running back with no mercy destroyed a smaller, less-efficient team. How? How can this same scenario keep repeating itself year after year? My answer: Get the Bills out of the Super Bowl. They are a great team; year after year they play a first place schedule and continue to make it to America's Show. Look at their yearly stats. Their offense is deadly and can score a lot of touchdowns in very little time and their defense has more stars than the big dipper. Bruce Smith, Darryl Talley, Cornelius Bennet, and Marvcus Patton are just a few. However, this talented defense was ranked near the bottom of the NFL towards the end of 1993.

Dallas, on the other hand, has as many if not more stars on offense, and a defense that still, even after two Super Bowl rings, is no-name. Washington, Lett, Everett, Woodson (no not Rod), and Jeffcoat aren't exactly household names, but they are effective. Ranked in the top ten in the league, this squad is the '90's version of the old Dallas Doomsday Defense. Remember, defense wins championships, and offense sells tickets. In Dallas they do both. A suffocating, bone- jarring, teeth rattling defense, combined with a deadly, pounding, non-stop offense is what America saw on Sunday as Dallas joined Pittsburgh and San Francisco as the only teams with four Lombardi trophies.

I'm not going to go into detail about how the Bills lost or how the 'Boys won. If you're a Dallas fan - congrats; if you're a Bills fan - give it up. A great team, yes. A Super team, never. Buffalo needs to step down, and let a team from the AFC that can play NFC-style defense and score often go to the show. How many chances do the Bills need? Next year, next year, next year....

It sure looks like Dallas will be back for a possible "Threepeat." One of youngest teams in the league, the Cowboys could be the next dynasty in professional sports. Led by a spend-happy owner, the Cowboys are a well paid, well coached team that will be at the top for quite a while. All the other 27 remaining teams in the league should model the Cowboys. Whatever Jimmy Johnson and Jerry Jones are doing, they're DEFINITELY doing it all right. At the pace they're going Dallas will be making additions to their trophy case every January.

So with the season coming to another "NFC Champion" ending, I'm offering a challenge to the AFC. Learn to play football like your sister conference. Fifteen years ago they learned from your teams (Steelers, Dolphins, Raiders), now you learn from them (49ers, Cowboys, Giants). All things go in cycles and the AFC's turn is coming. I wish it would get here!

Every year I wish for an AFC win. Ah well, I'll just pop a tape in the VCR and watch an AFC victory. Hey! Super Bowl 18 looks good - Raiders 38 Redskins 9. The last time the AFC held Mr. Lombardi's Trophy.

The San Antonio Spurs Dennis Rodman: an asset or just plain assinine?

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

Blonde, blue, red and purple. Dennis Rodman has more colors than the Good Humor man has flavors. I'm sure many of you basketball fans and sports fanatics in general have seen the "show" this year. The "show" that Rodman puts on is one of many different talents. Included in his repertoire are rebounds o' plenty, incredible defensive stops, and abundant enthusiasm. However also included in his bag of tricks are practice habits that rival that of a corpse, numerous ejections, and a personality that's as annoying as the flu. Traded from the Detroit Pistons to the San Antonio Spurs for Sean Elliot and David Wood, Rodman is both sweet and sour. This brings us to several different areas that are of concern to the Spurs.

First of all, let's talk about the positive that "The Worm" brings to the Spurs - rebounds, rebounds, and more rebounds. Since coming into the league from South Eastern Oklahoma State, Rodman has established himself as a tenacious defender and a "robo-rebounder." Asking him to give you 18 (at least) rebounds a night is like asking Shaq to give you at least one dunk a game. It's a done deal. Dennis also delivers the defense the San Antonio club has lacked. Other than Mr. Robinson, the Spurs have been short on defense, and Rodman strengthens that area. Another positive aspect of his game is that Rodman gives the Spur's home crowd something to come out and stare at. He certainly keeps the organization and their fans on on their toes.

Now for the craziness. Forget the hair color(s), it doesn't affect the way he plays the game. However, how could Rodman not bring disunity to any team? Refusing to work on shooting skills can't sit well with coach John Lucas and the rest of the team. Rodman could be much more of an asset if he had some sort of offensive move. Even putting a shot back up after a rebound would be nice.

At the time I wrote this article Rodman had been tossed from four games, the latest bringing a barrage of team apparel onto the court and plenty of fines. This might not hurt the Spurs too much during the regular season, but San Antonio needs his presence and postseason experience in the playoffs if they expect to go anywhere. His off court problems are also very extensive but I am not a psychology major and I only have so much space.

For the record, let me state that at times I love the way Dennis Rodman plays However, keep in mind that basketball is a team sport (even in the NBA) and a run for the championship nescessitates unity. Is Rodman a Kwame Morton, Clarion University's outstanding shooting guard and the leading scorer in all divisions of the NCAA, continues to roll up the records and accolades as the 1993-94 season hits the stretch drive.

A 6'4" 200-pound, senior from Brooklyn, N.Y., Morton is the leading scorer ina ll NCAA Divisions. Morton, who leads NCAA Division II with a 33 ppg average, leads Division III's Steve Diekmann of Grinnell College (Iowa) who is at 32.1 ppg, and Division I's leader, Southern University's Jervaugh Scales at 28.3 ppg and Purdue's Glenn Robinson at 28.1 ppg.

Morton was named the PSAC-West "Player of the Week" on Monday for the fourth time this season. He earned his award with his record setting 56-point performance in Clarion's 94-85 win at Slippery Rock last Wednesday. Morton connected on 14 of 24 field goals including 6 of 12 from three-point land, plus poured in 22 of 24 shots from the foul line. Kwame broke Terry Thompson's record of 51 points versus Grove City in 1964-65, plus he broke Bill Lechman's record of 18 free throws in a game in the 1962-63 season. The 56-point performance included an incredible second half stretch where Morton led the Eagles to victory. Behind 59-58 with 13:09 left, Morton scored Clarion's next 27 straight points, including two free throws with 1:16 left and a Golden Eagle 85-79 lead.

Monday night, in Clarion's 95-61 win over Philadelphia Bible, Morton tallied 34 points and moved into second place in career PSAC scoring with 2,292 points. He passed Phil Walker (Millersville), who had 2,261 from 173-77. With only 8 games remaining in the regular season, it is doubtful that Morton could catch former Slippery Rock All-American regular season, it is doubtful that Morton could catch former Slippery Rock All-American Myron Brown, who had 2,619 from 1987-91. He would need to average 40.8 ppg.

In addition, Morton wsa named USA Today's NCAA Division II "Player of the Week" last Friday for games played the week of January 16-23. In his two games that week, Morton tallied 78 points, 10 rebounds, 3 assists and 3 steals, while shooting 63% from three point range, and 67% from the foul line.

Morton's 56 points is the most in Division II since January 29, 1986 when Russel Pullin scored 59 points for Colorado Mines.

The NBA: Life after Michael

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Michael Jordan is now long gone from the courts of the NBA, and the league is doing just fine. Many people were wondering what would happen with the big vacuum that the abscence of Jordan would create. It was suggested that losing Jordan, Bird, and Johnson is such a short period would send the league into a destructive downward spiral. Some were even saying that the Bulls wouldn't even make the playoffs. Well, Jordan has moved on to other things (mainly, the White Sox) and the NBA and Bulls are thriving.

One thing that the NBA has done more effectively than the other three major sports is market towards youth. Watch an NBA commercial or Sportscenter showing NBA highlights, and you'll see an MTV-like, catch me if you can splicing of dunks, blocked shots, and more dunks. Kids love this stuff. Go to an elementary school and you'll see tons of NBA apparel and hear kids talking about Shaq's great game last night. When I was their age, I didn't know the first thing about basketball. We talked about football and baseball. The fact the NBA has marketed its stars so well, and made them so accesible, is one reason that it can survive the retirement of top stars. Sad though it may seem, 12 year olds may be saying, "Michael who?"

Jordan has gone to greener pastures (pun intended) but the NBA knows what to do.

A scar on the face of figure skating

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Skategate. The word that has defined our nation for the past month. If you don't know what I'm speaking of (if you've been living in a cave for the past month- excuse the cliche), I'm talking about the attack on Nancy Kerrigan on January 6, in which a man attempted to hit her in the kneecap as she was leaving the rink after a practice session. As I was watching the report on the 11 o'clock news, my wife Jaime turned to me and jokingly said, "I bet Tonya Harding was behind that."

Tragically enough, my wife was right. Harding, who is a wonderful skater but surrounds herself with less than wonderful people was connected with the attack shortly thereafter. As of today, both Harding's bodyguard, Shawn Eric Eckardt, and her ex-husband/boyfriend/live-in acquaintance/confidant Jeff Gillooly have confessed to the crime. Gillooly has stated that Harding was very much a part of the crime, and has urged her to confess to the crime. Now is this the open, honest, boy scout- like boyfriend who is concerned for her well being, or is this the lying, cheating, distressed ex-husband who is trying to get an innocent Harding into trouble?

Unfortunately for Harding, the public has, for the most part, rendered a guilty verdict before due process of law has taken its course. Many people argue that she should be banned from the Olympics. But whether you like the girl that has been called the Charles Barkley of figure skating or not (no offense Charles), the fact remains that she is innocent until proven guilty, and the United States Olympic Committee has no grounds on which it can ban Harding. Harding is guilty of associating with the type of people that would get her in this situation, but that is all. Most people say that Harding, if she does find her way to Lillehammer, is already eliminated from any possibility to get a gold medal. The judges will punish her and look favorably upon the victimized Kerrigan which really isn't fair but is a fact of life.

Assuming Harding is guilty, it makes one wonder what would drive her to such a thing. Removing her biggest obstacle in the chase for Olympic gold would make her an odds- on favorite in the Olympics. And, of course a gold medal brings with it prestige and millions of dollars in endorsement money (I still see Mary Lou Retton on plugging products). But was Harding so intimidated by Kerrigan's ability that she had to make such a drastic move? Did she not have enough faith in her own athletic ability? Was practically assuring the chance that she would win a gold medal worth destroying a young woman's dream, and had the attack been "successful," her leg?

If Harding is found guilty, it will leave a disfiguring scar on figure skating for a long time (it already has to an extent). Before Harding's entourage became involved, this was viewed as another deranged fan attack, a la Monica Seles. That would have been very tragic. What has resulted is much more so. Figure skating is a sport that uses beauty and grace as its main attraction. It is a pure sport that consists of attractive, young, and seemingly innocent women performing elegent routines. Such tumultuous waves rippling through the figure skating community are very out of place. This is a sport we can turn to to get away from the violence and ruggedness of football and hockey. And now it appears as if its innocence has been stolen from it forever. Regardless of the fate of Tonya Harding, I believe that we should cheer on everyone our country sends to

Women seek 19th straight PSAC title

Men lose, but both swim teams look impressive

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

On January 28th, the Clarion mens' swimming team took on Oakland University. Oakland won the meet by the score of 162-73. Senior Jim O'Connor took first in the 200 meter breaststroke with a time of 2:13.99. Junior Dan Stoner took first in the 100 meter freestyle with a time of :21.68. Stoner also took first in the 100 meter freestyle with a time of :47.05.

On January 29th, the Clarion mens' and womens' swimming teams traveled to Shippensburg. The defending PSAC champion Shippensburg men's team defeated the Golden Eagles by the score of 151-82. The Lady Golden Eagles defeated Ship by the score of 130-108.

Men's first place finishes included Dan Stoner in the 50 yard freestyle with a time of :21.72, and 100 yard freestyle with a time of :47.35. Sophomore Jeff Halbert took first in the 200 yard breaststroke with a time of 2:17.27. The womens' 400 medley relay team took first place with a time of 4:08.68. Senior Justine Gibbons took first in the 1000 meter freestyle with a time of 10:42.52, and also took first in the 500 meter freestyle with a time of 5:16.40. Freshman Regan Rickert took first in the 200 meter backstroke with a time of 2:12.05, and junior Lisa Kaylor took first in the 220 fly with a time of 2:18.29.

The next womens' meet is February 5th at Ohio State University. The men swing into action next at the PSAC's which are being held at IUP this year. The women will also compete at the PSAC's to try to capture their 19th straight PSAC championship. The next home meet, the Clarion Invitational, will be held on February 24th and will start at 6:00.

The men currently stand at 6-1 and the women are 7-0. Both teams have been practicing very hard and are determined to continue the tradition of excellence that Clarion University has had in swimming and diving over the past decades.

Joe Montana is good; not god

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Joe Montana, Joe Montana, Joe Montana. Oh great football gods, please forgive me, but I'm sick and tired of hearing about this man. Joe Montana was a great quarterback in his day. The greatest ever? Maybe. A great leader? Definitely. Overhyped? Absolutely.

No matter what Joe Montana does nowadays, it is considered spectacular. Look at Joe throw- what accuracy. Look at Joe walk off the field- what grace. Look at Joe eat his dinner- what a legend. On any given Sunday this is true. Take week 17 in the NFL, for instance. On that day, Montana's stat line read: 20-30, 239 yards, 0 TD. Sportscenter said he had a "very efficient day." They then went on to talk about everything that he did right that day, making a big deal over things that any decent starting quarterback in the league does. I guess they were just surprised that he played for more than one quarter.

While they were singing Montana's praises, not much was said about the great days had by the two rookie phenoms. Rick Mirer had a 287- yard passing day, and Drew Bledsoe tore up the NFL's best secondary, the Steelers, for 297 yards. But give Montana some credit, he's an old man, right? How about the great game that two older quarterbacks put together that same day when Miami and the Giants squared off. Phil Simms threw for 257 yards, and Steve DeBerg threw deep for 365 yards. Midway through the game, DeBerg was forced to leave with an injury. But shortly thereafter, bloodied and battered, he came back after receiving seven stitches on his chin. Stitches! If Montana gets a hangnail he goes on the DL.

Speaking of DeBerg, remember when the chiefs had a gutsy quarterback? A couple of years ago, Deberg led the Chiefs into the playoffs with a dislocated finger. When does Montana show that kind of courage? If you watched the playoffs, you heard the announcers say over and over and over again that the Chiefs got Montana "for these types of games." Yet when it came crunch time in the AFC Championship game, there was Montana on the sideline, out with an injury.

So much is made of his mediocrity that it makes me sick. Against the Steelers in the playoffs, he began the game wearing gloves to keep his hands warm. After starting the game horribly, Dan Dierdorf blamed those "terrible" gloves at least 30 times for Montana's poor performance. Is he so amazing that he is uncapable of human error? In that same game, they stressed the fact that Montana knows "where all his receivers are all the time." Isn't that a basic responsibility of any average NFL quarterback? Pleeease.

But look at how he plays in the Super Bowl- he's won three Super Bowl MVP awards, you may say. He has played well in the Big Game, but remember that two of his opponents' defenses (Miami and Denver) rolled over and played dead against him. Also, if you look at his stats for Super Bowl XVI, the first game in which he was named MVP, you will see 14-22, 157 yards, and 1 TD. He was the MVP for lack of a better choice.

Even when Montana was winning Super Bowls, much of his success can be accredited to the people around him. I realize that it takes great receivers to make great quarterbacks, and vice versa. But Montana was especially blessed with his offensive system. I could toss the ball 10 yards downfield and let Jerry Rice run 75 more yards with it. Can you honestly remember ever seeing Montana actually throw the ball farther than 40 yards downfield?

Montana was not as much a help to the offense as the offense was to him. A few years ago, for example, Montana went out with an injury. Steve Young came in and put up the same kind of numbers as Montana. I know, Young is a good quarterback. But then, Young went down and in came Steve Bono. The season's over, right? Wrong. Bono, who is not exactly destined for the Hall of Fame, had the same kind of stats as Montana and Young. If that's not proof that any person with a pulse could excel in Bill Walsh's offense, I don't know what is.

Joe Montana was a good quarterback who deserves to be in the Hall of Fame. He had a great career which has now reached its twilight. He is just an above average, one-dimensional quarterback at this point. We can look back on his impressive career and give him credit for what he's done. But we've already cannonized this man, so please stop making him out to be more than what he is.

Reinhard was not aware students did not know of campus moves

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
President Diane L. Reinhard spoke at an open forum in Gemmell Complex on Monday.

Students were not informed of the Public Safety relocations until the project was already decided because "we weren't aware that they weren't aware of the move," said President Diane L. Reinhard.

Approximately 15 students attended an open forum in Gemmell Student Complex to hear Reinhard, Interim Vice President of Finance and Administration Wayne Key, and Public Safety Director Dr. Ronald Martinazzi discuss and take questions about the relocations.

Dr. Reinhard began the forum with a brief background on why the move was needed.

"We have been trying to work on suitable housing for the Admissions Office for a long time," Reinhard said. "We are in need of a nice welcoming space for parents and the current Admissions Office is very congested. We looked for a very accessible place because the Admissions Office is becoming increasingly important."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Representative Bill Clinger (R-5) announced Monday at the Holiday Inn that he is seeking the nomination of the Republican Party in his congressional re-election bid.

Reinhard further explained the need for an improved Admissions Office to increase enrollment at CUP and ultimately keep the cost of tuition relatively the same.

"The decision to move the Admissions office was based on insufficient space and in-accessibility. The decision to move Public Safety was based on where they could serve us better. It's essentially a domino effect.

"I don't think we should interpret the move of Admissions as one that says the university is not concerned with safety," explained Reinhard. "We want to provide both with better places to do their work."

Key then generalized three additional steps that would accompany the move and contribute to overall safety on campus.

The first is the allocation of resources to add 14 additional on campus emergency phone stations.

Second is the installation of outside surveillance cameras to cover areas on campus. According to Key, it has not yet been determined where the cameras will be placed.

Finally, a new program that will take people off of Worker's Compensation and use them as dispatchers will be put into effect. These dispatchers will work at Public Safety and aid in the 24 hour, seven day a week operation of Public Safety.

"I'd like to be pro-active about the whole move. We are moving fragmented parts and putting it all together. It's a great opportunity for Public Safety because we were limited in terms of service," said Martinazzi. "We have to look at what's going to benefit the students. It's a win - win situation. It's a win for students and a win for Public Safety."

Another concern that was addressed at the open forum was the cost for the relocations.

The Real World

Holly Johnson

Have you ever watched "The Real World" on MTV? I must say I have only caught a few minutes of it here and there, but from what I've seen I like what MTV is trying to do- talk frankly about life. Most people and institutions avoid doing this. Clarion is not an exception.

I'd now like to welcome you to Clarion's first "Real World" episode. Today's focus is sexual assault. Before you tune out (because I know you're thinking "this isn't my problem") let me tell you what a problem sexual assault is.

One out of four college-age women have been sexually assaulted sometime in their lives. That's 25% of the women on this campus!

Think about it...

Women: It could be you! If it's not you, the statistics say that it's someone you know. Was it your roomate, someone next door, a sorority sister or your best friend from high school?

Men: You may think that sexual assault is a woman's problem. WRONG! Sexual assault impacts you in two respects. First, think of the four most important women in your lives. These could be your girlfriend, your sister, your closest female friend or even your mother (she was once this age). Now, you decide which one of these women will be assaulted. Tough decision, right? The other way that sexual assault affects you is that most of them are men attacking women. You may not be the perpetrator, but I bet you know someone that is (although you may not realize it).

Before anyone asks let me clear one thing up. Yes, sexual assault does happen, even here in

Naming Names

"In the future everyone will be famous for 15 minutes-" Andy Warhol

Hear ye, hear ye!

Starting with this issue of the Call, we will list the names of students cited for violations of the law committed on campus or in the borough of Clarion. Also listed will be the names of non-students cited on campus.

No exceptions, no apologies.

But just this one time, an explanation.

The decision to publish names is, in part, based on an incident from last semester when a student felt he/she was unjustifiably named in a Call article describing a court decision.

The various current editors of this paper stand behind that story and the decision to publish names of accused suspects.

Court records are public information. We use no special favors to access those records.

The fact is, we're all in the big leagues now. Responsibility for an individual's actions rest on that individual.

If you break the law your fellow students and the community of Clarion have the right to know who you are and what you are accused of doing.

The students of CUP and the community have a right to know if an accused rapist, burglar, mugger or thief is in their midst.

Students have the right to know the names of people accused of vandalizing the property their tuition dollars have purchased.

Home owners in Clarion have the right to know the name of an underage student accused of getting drunk and urinating on their lawns.

So we, like any other newspaper, are going to tell them.

Locations where alleged crimes take place are fair game too. We can't run a picture of a house on Main Street if the incident happened on E. Fudd Avenue.

Avoiding the embarassment of public disclosure is relatively easy.

Don't do anything stupid. Keep your hands to yourself. If it's not yours, don't take it. If you're not 21, don't drink it. If you don't own it, don't break it. If you're drunk, don't drive and if you don't like it, lump it. -RLS

THE RIGHT TO KNOW

Much concern has been raised recently over the move of admissions, Public Safety and various and sundry other offices.

Several students, mostly student senators, have raised justified concern that the administration was less than forthcoming in making the student body aware of the move and that students were not involved in the decision.

President Reinhard said at the open forum on Monday that she, "wasn't aware that students weren't aware" of the move.

This indicates a university leader becoming removed, if not out of touch, with her students. This is not the first time this academic year that administration policies ran afoul of the interests of the students.

The shortened library hours, considered by some to be a strike at the very heart of what a university is supposed to stand for, caused many students to wonder if the next step of the administration was not simply to ban students. After all, it would certainly uncomplicate all these tedious details like education. The administration is here to benefit the students, let's not forget that.

But the students themselves are at least as much to blame over their ignorance of the recent moves as the administration.

The students on the facilities planning committee failed to show up for meetings, depriving the students not only of knowledge, but of their representation in these matters.

Students here are too lazy to get involved with the issues, only managing to find enough strength to complain after the fact

Lest we also forget that the Clarion Call ran a large article on the issue on November 18. None of these moves should have surprised any students

Reader Responses

Toilet troubles

"To be your voice, we must hear your voice", you say?

I, and many others, are beginning to believe this approach is the only way to be heard. I live in one of the residence halls here on campus, and this past week, something very disturbing happened. It was just a matter of consequence, but I do not believe the problem was handled very professionally nor responsibly.

A lot of the other students around campus will understand our concern, since I do not think it is a problem isolated to our hall, nor is it the only problem. During the past three years that I have lived on campus, it never fails that the sinks in our bathrooms tend to clog up.

To some, this may be a simple plumbing problem , especially if it only happens once or twice. But this is not the case. This continually happens, and has been happening for the past three years. I would not complain because I know things like this happen wherever you live, but it seems like when this does happen, it is no big concern for anyone as long as they don't have to use that bathroom.

Well, I do. This past week, our sinks began clogging up on Friday, and nothing was done to fix them until the following Thursday. The resident assistant of my floor had to place three maintenance requests before an attempt was made to clear the problem. This is probably the most unsanitary place I have ever lived, and I am not afraid to say that. It seems kind of sad when you can't even brush your teeth in your own bathroom without turning your stomach. The fact of the matter is, what is clogged in them is not only water, but water that is black in color, as thick as soup, and has a horrible stench that leaves a residue around the edges of the sink. It is down right disgusting and I resent the fact that I must live under such conditions.

Now, I must ask all the faculty and staff out there one simple question. How many of you have lived in your homes with clogged sinks for a whole week, without being able to wash your face, brush your teeth, or even have use of the bathroom? I expect not many, for most of you would call a plumber or fix it yourself. I pay tuition dollars so that I may live in housing conditions that are going to meet my needs as best as possible. Conditions such as these are not meeting my needs, nor are these conditions in any way sanitary at all. It seems as if I am paying tuition to pay other people's salaries who are not doing their jobs.

Last semester, I personally went to see the director of residence life about this matter. I was not impressed with his response. He spoke to me with such disrespect, as if I didn't deserve to have sanitary living conditions. He went on making excuses for why these sinks may be clogged, as if it were a temporary problem. Who am I to say, but I think three years is far from a temporary problem. I encourage somebody out there to open their eyes to what is really going on around this campus. I will say that I hope these conditions begin to improve soon, because as far as I and many others are concerned, the school is giving itself a bad rep. I am beginning to understand why so many people are moving off campus, and honestly, I don't blame them.

I suggest to the University that if they want students to remain living in the residence halls, that they be more attentive to the living conditions that they want the students to live in.

Dear Editor:

In your last issue (February 3, 1994), there was an article written by Rodney L. Sherman, your managing editor. The write-up was on the assault that occurred at the Sigma Chi Fraternity house on December 3, 1993. What you failed to have Mr. Sherman explain was that the two that were charged in connection with the beating, Neiko Bernardo and Michael Corbi, are not in any way affiliated with the Sigma Chi fraternity. The assault began there, yes, but it was pushed out of the house in order not to have any others get involved or hurt good ole Clarion.

Last semester, 17 women from this campus sought services from the Rape Crisis Center. This may not seem like a significant number, but when one applies the FBI statistic that only one in ten people ever report being sexually assaulted or raped the number (with a little simple math) grows to 170. That's significant!

Now do you realize that sexual assault is a problem that affects us all? It is not a woman's issue, it's a people issue that is non-discriminatory.

Welcome to the real world!

In this real world, who is responsible for dealing with this problem? One could easily say the students are, because they are the victims as well as the perpetrators. Yes, the students are responsible! We are each others' keepers. We must educate men and women about the issue (since so many people are not clear on what constitutes what levels of sexual assault) and we must monitor each other. We are out there. We see what's going on. If we see someone doing something wrong it is our moral obligation to put a stop to it. If we see someone who needs help it is also our obligation to help them.

What about the faculty, staff and administration? These are the people who witness the violence year after year. Why should the students alone be responsible for what happens to them during their four years at Clarion University? We have (as have our parents) entrusted the university and its constituents with our lives over the course of the time we spend here.

It has been my experience as president of S.T.A.R. that approximately 85% of these people simply do not get involved, about 10% say they'd like to help but only sometimes follow through, and the remaining 5% are truly committed to stopping sexual assault. These few people not only make announcements in class but also offer extra credit for attendance of rape awareness activities, set an example for the students by going to activities and programs on campus and in the community. Others get even more involved and advocate students' rights, volunteer with organizations outside of the classroom that work with students and work with the administration to make tougher policies and see that they are carried through. When a member of the faculty, staff or administration joins forces with the students, they act as a source of empowerment for the students and a resource/support center that students know they can go to for guidance.

At the end of last semester, two professors from the English Department came to Deb King, the advisor of S.T.A.R. and chairperson of the Sexual Assault Network, saying they wanted to do SOMETHING to stop rape on this campus. I was amazed at what a difference two people could make to our cause. Suddenly there were multiple messages on the E-Mail system on campus. They got responses from people across campus, many of whom we had never heard from before. Some people told us they had no idea that it was such a problem, especially here. Others said they had been approached by a student or students who had been sexually assaulted and they too wanted to put an end to it. Suddenly a network of faculty, staff and administration had been formed and a forum had been developed. Through E-Mail these people could express their concerns and support as well as have a place to voice their opinions on the subject and ask questions of people across campus with whom they may never have communicated.

There is a lesson to be learned from all of this, one or two people can make a difference if they want to.

Because of their efforts, S.T.A.R. and the Sexual Assault network have decided to launch a Stop this Violence campaign for this semester. We want to make ourselves even more visible than we have ever been before. We want other people to have the courage to speak up and pledge their intolerance of sexual assault here at Clarion University. The world is too big for us to tackle, but if we all do something to better our part of it, it will be a better, safer place.

In order for this to happen we need cooperation and support from everyone at Clarion University. We need to work together, not as separate entities as I have seen all too often in the past. The students (as voiced through S.T.A.R. and other organizations), the faculty, the staff, administration and other related groups (Public Safety, the Sexual Assault Network, the Presidential Commission on the Status of Women, Student Affairs, etc.) need to quit saying that something needs to be done and actually DO IT !

Tonight, February 10, 1994, we are kicking off the Stop this Violence campaign. There will be a panel of people, including Dr. Chris Ferry (English), Dr. Joe Bodziok (English), Dr. George Curtis (Student Affairs), Dr. Wayne Key (Interim VP Finance and Administration), Ms. Kathy Spozio (Social Equity), President Diane Reinhard, Sissy Marks (Director Rape Crisis), Dr. Ron Martinazzi (Public Safety), Eric Shaffer (Clarion Borough Police), Laurie Snyder Yount (S.A.F.E.), Jennifer Koren (S.T.A.R. and Rape Crisis Peer Counselor), Brian Thomas (Peer Counselor), Kevin Miko (S.T.A.R.) and myself. This panel will be available to answer questions and to help set an agenda of things to accomplish this semester. The goal is for everyone who wants to be involved to be able to walk away with some level of involvement. We want to stop the apathy on campus and to get more people active. The meeting is set for 7 p.m. at Hart Chapel.

Holly Johnson is the President of Students Together Against Rape (S.T.A.R.)

First, the victim was NOT a brother of Sigma Chi. Second, they were not in his room because if he is not a brother, he does not live there. Finally, why did you put a picture of the Sigma Chi fraternity house in the article? Putting that picture in the article is to say that you are linking Sigma Chi with fighting. Now, to the normal student, it seems that the article leaves question to whether the two involved are our brothers. I am stating now that they are not.

We the brothers of Sigma Chi believe that the picture should not have been in there, for the picture and the article contradicts the ideals, beliefs, and the way of life that the WHITE CROSS in front of our house signifies.

Sincerely,

Brett Marraccini- Brother of Sigma Chi

No respect

Dear Editor:

I would like to start out by saying that I am not, nor have I ever been a "tree-hugger". However, I do, as most people should, have a sincere concern with our environment and the way we treat it. This is why I would like to express my lack of respect for the person(s) who stapled signs to trees on Friday, February 4. I have nothing against posting signs on campus, but I think it should be done in a way that does not deface the natural beauty of something such as a tree. I realize that one or two staples in the bark of a tree probably will not hurt the tree, but if this practice continues, the bark will begin to fall off, and the trees will eventually die. I don't know, nor do I want to know, who did this, but I would encourage them, and everyone else to refrain from doing it in the future.

Security systems to be upgraded

Emergency phone installation to be finished by March

by Kristin Lutz
News Writer

With the first phone having been in place for close to a year, Public Safety is ready to begin the second phase of installing emergency telephones around campus.

The telephones stem from an effort by project director Kathy Spozio.

The project began in the spring of 1992 when she wrote for her first grant with the support of the Task Force on Acquaintance Rape and Sexual Harassment, Students Together Against Rape and the Office of Social Equity.

Spozio received "seed money" from the Clarion University Foundation to buy a single phone, which came with a blue flashing light to be posted high above it, from Ramtech Corporation of Rhode Island.

The phone was placed outside Egbert Hall and plans were made for the strategic placement of 14 phones around campus at a cost of approximately $32,000.

According to a memo to Wayne Key from Spozio, "the costs for purchase of additional phones (approximately $14,000 with shipping) will be split between Student Affairs and Administrative Affairs.

"The costs for monthly charges for 15 telephone lines (approximately $2,300 annual) will be covered by Student Affairs.

"Costs for initial installation of 14 additional sets (approximately $18,000) will be covered by Administrative Affairs.

"Ongoing maintenance will be split between Student Affairs and Administrative Affairs (dependent on nature of maintenance)."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Emergency phones, such as this one at Egbert Hall, will be installed across campus sometime in March. The phones are part of an increased effort to improve campus security.

The weatherproof, metal phone operates as such: when a caller pushes the red button on the phone (there is no number pad), the blue light flashes and a signal is sent through the phone lines to the Office of Public Safety.

The code of the particular phone being used shows up on a display unit, now in the Public Safety building, which was also part of the package deal.

The display unit also allows the caller and Public Safety to communicate briefly to exchange important information about the situation. The call will then be terminated and help will respond. The handicapped-accessible phones also have directions in Braille.

Spozio was notified to go ahead with the project in January by Wayne Key, interim vice president for finance and administration.

Funding for the installation of phones has been supplied by the division of Student Affairs.

"I'm really happy about the funding of this project," said Spozio. "I never expected to [be able to purchase] 15 phones this soon."

Spozio, with the help of Public Safety incident reports, sketched out tentatively where it would be most appropriate to have the new phones placed.

According to Spozio, the proposed phones at parking lot "W" would be the most costly because of the need to intrench the conduit wiring.

"A telephone line is needed for these phones to operate," confirmed Spozio. Each phone runs on a separate number [phone line], allowing multiple calls to be received. Spozio also said that Public Safety should be monitoring the display unit 24 hours a day.

"If there is nobody [in the Public Safety building], the call will be transmitted to an officer's portable radio," said Spozio.

Any person who misuses an emergency phone could be charged with false alarms to an agency of Public Safety (a first degree misdemeanor) false reports to a law enforcement agency (a second degree misdemeanor), and disorderly conduct.

The additional purchased phones are currently being shipped to the university and should arrive in approximately two weeks. The university hopes to begin their installation in late March or early April.

" I believe that this project represents a pro-active measure to deter incidents of crime and assist those with special needs in emergency situations.

"This project concerns itself with a long range plan to make Clarion University a safer, more secure environment," Spozio said.

Open Forum

The total cost of the relocation of admissions is estimated at $410,000, according to a proposal given to Dr. Charles R. Duke, Chairman of the Facilities Planning Committee from Reinhard.

This figure is drawn from the following resources needed and their corresponding estimated cost: renovation and addition of 1,200 square feet to Wilshire House, $150,000; renovation of Thorn I & moving of communication equipment, $25,000; renovation of receiving area to accommodate printing and duplicating, publications, a mailroom, offices, etc., including the repair of flooring in the remaining receiving area, $235,000.

Funding for the project will be alotted from two sources.

Half will be taken from out-of-state tuition. The other half will come from the operating fund. According to Key, the operating fund is the non-payroll monies from the Education and General budget.

President Reinhard said that these costs were figured in with the considerations that each building must be adequately renovated to serve the public, as compared to the cost of renovations on a residential area.

Of the student senators who attended the meeting, few felt their questions had been answered sufficiently.

Chad Svehla, student senator, said, "Many questions asked by students weren't answered as elaborately as the students wanted. If the move is as effective as the Public Safety representatives made it sound, then I feel that the safety of the students will be as effective, if not enhanced."

"Although Public Safety is moving from being a visual part of campus, I believe that [Public Safety] is really putting forth an effort to increase personal safety for Clarion students," said Svehla.

"Furthermore, I felt that the open forum was a positive one. However, many of our questions weren't answered in their entirety."

"For example, this idea has been going on for a while and the students were just informed in November. As long as the administration keeps their promises on promoting safety for students I see no problem with Public Safety moving to Thorn I," said senator Amy Mennen.

According to the Proposal, "Assuming the job started in July, Admissions could be moved into the new facility in the latter part of October or the beginning of November, 1994. Work would need to be completed in the Receiving area prior to that time."

"I am upset about the move. I don't like the fact that it's all the way on the outskirts of campus.

"I've heard a lot of bad things go on over at Becker and I wouldn't feel safe going over there," said Freshman Elem. Education/Early Childhood major Robin Fluke.

"I don't think the move is as much a problem as the cost of the project is, says freshman Scott Anderson

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of January 31 through February 6, 1994.

A Public Safety officer discovered that someone damaged a plate of glass on the "MAC" machine in parking lot "C." The damage is believed to have happened sometime between January 27 and January 31.

Public Safety investigated an incident which involved a Tropicana Juice bottle being dropped from an upper floor in Campbell Hall on February 2. The bottle struck and smashed the rear window of a parked vehicle behind Campbell Hall.

A window on the door which leads to the student activity area in Gemmell Student Complex was damaged on February 2. It appeared that someone kicked the window causing the damage. This was observed at approximately 12:45 a.m.

A report of items stolen from the Gemmell male locker room on February 2 included an Elktron Racket, two racquetballs, goggles, one right handed weight lifting glove and a combination master lock. Total value was approximately $55.00.

At approximately 12:30 a.m. on February 4, a student was observed in a very intoxicated condition in parking lot "E." The student registered .15 on the PBT and was transported to his dorm. A charge of Public Drunkenness charge will be filed by Public Safety.

An undisclosed amount of money was reported missing from a wallet which was removed from a locker in the men's dressing room of Tippin Gym on February 4. The wallet was found on the floor of the dressing room and returned to the owner.

At approximately 10:00 a.m., the owner of a vehicle which was parked in lot "C" reported that his tire was slashed by unknown persons. The incident happened sometime between January 31 and February 4.

A fire alarm was pulled on the first floor of Wilkinson Hall at approximately 12:45 a.m. on February 6. This incident is under investigation.

A door lock and crash bar was damaged on a door leading from the first floor North hallway to the stairwell of Nair Hall on February 6. This was reported at approximately 7:55 p.m. the same day.

Student faces sexual assault charges

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Editor's Note: The following story contains frank language taken from court documents concerning a sexual assault. It is the Call's policy not to publish the name of the alleged victims of sexual attacks.

A Clarion University student has been charged in connection with a Sept. 10, 1993 sexual assault at the Alpha Sigma Tau sorority house.

Neil Patrick Manzo, 22, of Lower Burrell, has been charged with burglary, a first degree felony and aggravated sexual assault, a second degree felony.

Documents filed at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office allege Manzo "forcibly entered the victim's residence by prying the north basement screen window off, then lifting an unlocked glass window.

"Defendant entered the basement portion of the residence, then walked upstairs to the living-room where the victim was sleeping on the couch.

"Defendant laid his head on the victim's stomach and put his right hand inside the victim's underwear and penetrated her vagina with his finger(s).

"Victim woke up and the defendant put his hand up her tee-shirt and fondled her breasts."

Court documents claim that on September 20, 1993, the victim saw the alleged suspect on campus and her friend identified him as Manzo, "who lived next door at the Sigma Chi house."

Infraternity Council Advisor John Postlewait confirmed that Manzo is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Court documents also claim that on Dec.10, 1993, Manzo was interviewed by police and remembered "being in the house and leaving the house."

Manzo allegedly said he (Manzo) didn't "know what he was thinking, he just ended up there somehow." Manzo allegedly added he didn't know who the girl was, but he did remember "grabbing the victim's breasts."

Manzo faced a preliminary hearing on Febuary 9.

The outcome of that hearing will be published in the Clarion Call next week.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

CUP professor says end of Vietnam trade embargo move is positive

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Had the time arrived for the United States to lift its trade embargo on Vietnam?

President Clinton made the decision to end that embargo Feb. 3 to, in his words, encourage Vietnam to help resolve the mystery surrounding more than 2,000 American soldiers missing since the end of the Vietnam war.

Clarion University professor, and Harvard Ph.D., Ngo Dihn Tu said he believes the time had come.

"I think so," said Tu, "because it is in our national interest. The United States should be there."

Tu served as an officer in the South Vietnamese military and as a diplomat assigned to Washington, D.C.

He was serving in Washington when the leaders of the South Vietnamese government were overthrown in 1966.

His return to Vietnam would have been "useless" since he was now on the "wrong side." Tu accepted an offer from then Clarion State College to teach in the political science department.

Was Clinton's decision based on the MIA issue or were economic considerations a factor?

Tu said Clinton probably "has all kinds of motives mixed together" in making his decision, but "he has to respect the demands of the families with people missing in Vietnam.

"He should insist on all information being made available to help (resolve the issue)."

"He should keep his promise to help those families," said Tu.

Tu did not rule out the possibility that some Americans may have been held after the end of the war but said, "It would have been very difficult for them to do that."

Tu explained that many nations, including Sweden, France and Japan, have had numerous citizens working in Vietnam over the years.

He also conjectured that had anyone heard of live prisoners, they would have surely notified U.S. authorities.

Nevertheless, Tu said the U.S. should "keep the pressure on Vietnam for as full an accounting as possible," and demand as part of improved relations, "they help best they can" to find the remains of missing Americans.

Critics of Clinton's move say Vietnam lacks the financial resources to make the purchases some U.S. companies are anticipating. Tu disagrees.

Rodney L. Sherman/Clarion Call
Professor Ngo Dihn Tu of CUP political science dpt.

"Right now, one source of money is oil," explained Tu, "they export a lot of oil and rice.

"On that basis, I think they do have the money to buy U.S. products.

"So far, the standard of living has not improved under the communist leadership. In fact it is far worse than it was under the old south Vietnamese government," said Tu.

"But over the long term, the economy will develop, and with help, there will be a higher standard of living," said Tu.

Tu pointed out China is a potential military powerhouse in Asia, with a long range navy and large army.

If the United States ultimately establishes diplomatic ties with Vietnam, Tu said the U.S. would benefit from the "eyes and ears" that could be located in Vietnam.

"When a U.S. presence is established in Vietnam, we can see things more clearly in southeast Asia.

"Over the long term if we consider that southeast Asia should not be a hunting ground for any nation, it will be good for world peace," said Tu.

But are full diplomatic relations in the near future for the former war enemies?

"Why not hold that option out as a final bargaining chip," suggests Tu, "to force the things we want."

If the new relationship between Vietnam and the United States is positive, Tu doubts Clinton will suffer any political set-backs in the 1996 election.

"Right now, the recent Senate resolutions regarding Vietnam have helped (ease the issue)," said Tu.

"Secondly, it is still 1994. If things go well people might not come back to the issue and Clinton's political problems will not be as great," said Tu.

"The trustworthiness of the government of Vietnam is the issue," explained Tu, "if there is nothing to show that they have been hiding things concerning the MIAs, then I think it will work out well."

"It might be just a first step," concluded Tu, "President Clinton should keep a close eye on the issues that will help the families of the MIAs, and give a big push in the area of human rights.

I think the new policy will be a step in the right direction."

Professor Bonnie Silvertongue Norton dies

Bonnie Silvertongue Norton, 62 of Wood Street, Clarion, died Wednesday, February 2, 1994, at Northwest Medical Center in Franklin.

Born November 6, 1931, in St. Louis, Missouri, she spent her youth in St. Petersburg, Florida, with her grandfather, Chief Silvertongue, of the Hoopa tribe of California.

She received a bachelor's degree in anthropology from the University of Arizona.

She taught anthropology at several colleges including Montgomery College, the University of the District of Columbia and Miami-Dade Community College, before obtaining a master's degree in business administration at the University of Arizona.

Active for many years as a teacher and volunteer at the Sell Arizona Indian School, she subsequently worked for a marketing research firm in Tucson, Arizona, before joining the marketing faculty at Clarion University of Pennsylvania.

She loved hiking, scuba diving, collecting seashells, meeting new people, and having adventures. Her many endeavors included being a stewardess for National Airlines, an assistant museum curator, and the owner of a seashell business in the Florida Keys.

Memorial services will be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday, February 8, in the First United Methodist Church in Clarion.

Private services will be held in the spring in the Boston Commons.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be sent to: The Bonnie Silvertongue Scholarship Fund, in care of the Clarion University Foundation, Clarion University, Clarion Pa. 16214.

Arrangements were by the Goble Funeral Home, 330 Wood St., Clarion.

Resumes can grease skids for jobs

by John Tuttle
College Press Service

Volunteer work and graduate school are viable options for those who, for whatever reason, want to put off diving into the job market. However, not everyone can get into graduate school. And many volunteer organizations can be as selective in choosing candidates for positions as corporate employers.

So, many are forced to dive right into the job application pool fresh out of college. But without a graduate degree or a year of volunteer service under their belts, how can these candidates compete?

Beverly Stennett, a counselor at the career development center at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., says career development centers at most schools offer free services such as resume critiques, workshops on interviewing skills, networking and more.

Knowing where to start looking for a job is the first step. The employment section of the newspaper seems like the most logical place to start, however, Stennett said that most emphasis should be placed on networking.

"Consider everyone as a potential contact for you," she said. Friends who have graduated, relatives, professors, and your friends' parents are all potential networking opportunities. Many professional associations have college chapters. These provide excellent networking opportunities as well.

However, Stennett said, do not ignore published ads. "About 20 percent of your emphasis should be on the classifieds," she said.

According to Stennett, both the cover letter and the resume should match what the employer wants.

Education - List, in reverse chronological order, colleges attended and their location, your major or degree, and your GPA if it is above a 3.2.

Work Experience - List, again in reverse chronological order, any jobs or internships, even if they were unpaid. Explain your duties at these jobs and accentuate the positive, but don't be too creative. Employers know that "custodial engineers" are janitors.

Activities - List extracurricular, sports, and community activities, which can be great places to develop valuable leadership skills.

Be sure your prospective employer knows about them.

A cover letter should tell the reader that you wish to apply for a job, how you heard about the job, and why he or she should bother to look at your resume.

It should be short, flawlessly written, unique, to the point, bold, yet conservative.

Impossible? Nearly, but it can be done.

See your career counselor and buy a good book.

Legal Briefs

-Editor's Note: Effective with legal actions filed on or about Jan. 27, names of CUP students charged with violations on campus or in the borough of Clarion will be published along with non-student's names who commit offenses on campus.

All information is taken from court records at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office.

Criminal cases filed:

William Thomas Chuvalik, 20, Farmington Hills, Mich./Campbell Hall. Underage consumption of alcohol and misrepresentation of age to secure alcohol at 11:55 p.m. Jan. 15 at the Six Pack Shop, Sixth Avenue, Clarion. Defendant allegedly attempted to purchase four 40 ounce bottles of wine coolers by filling out a required age declaration card using false information. Filed by Officer Foust.

Timothy Leroy Potter, 22, RD2 Sligo. (Non-student) Public drunkenness and disorderly conduct at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 21 in a parking lot on Clarion University. Defendant allegedly was found walking on campus under the influence of alcohol. When police approached, the defendant allegedly attempted to resist and referred to the officer by a racial slur. Defendant was also loud and disrespectful. Police are seeking restitution for equipment broken during the apprehension. Filed by CUP Public Safety Officer Mark Williams.

Shannon W. Ellis, 22, RD2 Morrisdale and Clarion. Retail theft at 10:12 p.m. Jan. 17 at 7-Eleven Store, Clarion. Defendant allegedly took a ten cent piece of gum from the store and left without paying. Filed by Officer Foust.

Randall Lee Sheriff, 38, Clarion. Driving under the influence of alcohol, a second degree misdemeanor and public drunkenness, a summary, at 2:44 a.m. Jan 19 along South Third Avenue, Clarion.

Police were dispatched to the scene of a disturbance wherein the male subject had gotten his vehicle stuck in front of a residence. The vehicle blocked the roadway to the point where other vehicles could not pass on either side. When police arrived, the defendant was allegedly at the front door of the residence and attempting to gain entry.

When police approached the subject and inquired as to the problem, the defendant allegedly told police, "I'm drunk." The occupant of the residence told police she recognized the defendant but did not know his name, but had seen him drive the stranded vehicle and watched as he attempted to gain entry to her home.

Police observed a strong odor of alcohol about the defendant and observed beer bottles on the rear seat of the vehicle.

Field sobriety tests were not conducted because of icy and snowy conditions and the inability of the defendant to maintain his balance. A blood test established the defendants blood alcohol level as .25 percent.

In Pennsylvania, the standard for intoxication is .10 percent.

The following cases were resolved:

Stephen Lyle Mickolay, 19, Baldwin/Campbell Hall. Pled guilty to underage consumption of alcohol and public drunkenness, Jan. 18 in Clarion Borough. Fined $125 plus $74 costs.

State House proposes gun control study to develop regulation agreements

Courtesy of Associated Press

State

Panel may be studying gun control

Lawmakers, sporting groups and law enforcement authorities would study how 65 semiautomatic and automatic weapons are used in crime under a measure the state House passed Tuesday.

The proposal, which requires Senate approval, would create a new panel to conduct the study by May 30. The panel could extend the deadline to Nov. 30 if needed.

State Rep. William Adolph, a supporter of gun control, said a firearms study might be the only way of developing agreements on regulations.

The state House last week backed off its December 15 vote to ban assault weapons statewide and instead approved a measure that would overturn exisiting bans in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Bill to ease support collection

A federal law aimed at stopping harassment by debt collectors has obstructed child support collections, advocates said Tuesday in proposing to exempt agencies that target deadbeat parents.

Representatives Dave Camp, R-Mich., and Rick Santorum, R-Pa., said they would introduce legislation exempting child support collection agencies from the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act.

That law prohibits debt collectors from calling a debtor at work, calling after 9 p.m. or before 8 a.m., and contacting third parties such as relatives in an effort to track down the debtor.

Santorum, who has proposed other ways of tackling welfare dependency, said more than 5 million families on welfare have outstanding child support orders.

Nation

Navy admiral accused of cover-up

Adm. Frank B. Kelso II was accused by a military judge Tuesday of witnessing sexual misconduct in the 1991 Tailhook scandal and trying to cover it up. The judge dismissed charges against three aviators who contended their cases were tainted by the Navy chief's actions.

The judge, Navy Capt.. William T. Vest, Jr., also accused the Navy's top brass of not paying attention to instances of sexual misconduct at earlier Tailhook meetings.

Had they done so, Vest said, "a high probability exists that both the assaults and much of the Navy's embarrassment could have been avoided."

The dismissals leave only one case pending in the investigation of the scandal that damaged the Top Gun image of Navy and Marine Corps aviators.

Of 140 cases, no one was ever court-martialed and about 50 received administrative discipline.

California suffering mudslides

Fires level 1,000 homes. An earthquake kills 61 people. Now, Southern California has a new disaster: mudslides.

Cars were buried, people were plucked from upper floor windows and houses were swamped as heavy rain unleashed tons of mud and debris from fire-scarred mountains.

No injuries were reported.

On Tuesday, bulldozers and dump trucks plowed up to 3 feet of muck from Pacific Coast Highway at Big Rock Canyon, where 10 beachfront homes were damaged in Monday's cloudburst. Storm-tossed waves 8 feet high plowed into home pilings, shaking the structures much like last month's deadly earthquake.

The storm unleashed high wind that toppled trees, shattered windows and downed power lines.

Haitian refugees drown off Florida

Four Haitian refugees, including two children, drowned Tuesday as they made their way by boat from the Bahamas to the Florida shore.

Border Patrol investigators believe about 75 refugees who landed late Monday and Tuesday left together in a fleet of small boats not detectable by radar.

The bodies washed up on Hutchinson Island along the central Atlantic coast.

"A smuggler's boat apparently dropped them off as many as 100 yards offshore," Border Patrol spokesman Herbert Jefferson said. "That's too deep and too far."

An estimated 25,000 to 50,000 Haitians are living illegally in the Bahamas and smuggling has increased since mid-1993.

Authorities blame a crackdown on illegal residents by the Bahamian govt, the worsening crisis in Haiti and the President Clinton administration's softer policy toward the refugees.

The deliberations by the business groups reflect the further isolation of military leaders, who are widely perceived here to be profiteering from the crisis through contraband while the country collapses around them.

Castro kin implicated in drug ring

Files and a videotape that belonged to slain drug lord Pablo Escobar implicate the brother of Cuban leader Fidel Castro in drug-trafficking.

The videotape, portions of which were broadcast by the TV news program QAP on Monday night, showed a man identified only as David pleading with Escobar to let him live after surviving an assassination attempt.

David - whose face is electronically distorted in the hour-long tape - sent the video to Escobar to deny accusations that he was a traitor to the Medellin cartel that Escobar ran. In the video, David reminded Escobar of the work he had done for the cartel.

"You know I helped you with Raul Castro on the island with respect to the shipment," David says, referring to Fidel Castro's brother.

There was no answer at the Cuban Embassy in Bogota Tuesday when reporters called seeking comment.

Love responsibly, students urged

Ah, Valentine's Day! It's a time when thoughts turn to flowers, chocolates, champagne and an evening for two. But lovers should take heed:

"Cupid's arrow can have disastrous consequences for your health," advises Peggy Clarke, president of the American Social Health Association. "Love means behaving responsibly."

True love, Clarke says, also means carefully considering whether you are ready to enter a sexual relationship, having the courage to talk about each other's sexual history and taking precautions to prevent sexually transmitted diseases.

"While it is easy for most of us to believe that we aren't at risk for sexually transmitted diseases, the fact is that one in five adults in the U.S. already has an STD a rate of 12 million new cases each year," Clarke said. "STD infections aren't limited to homosexuals or low-income groups. They attack all ages, but two-third of new infections occur in people under 25."

Entries sought in cartoon contest

Think you're pretty funny on paper?

There's a contest in progress for cartoonists who believe they've got the "write stuff."

World's Best Editorial Humor, a twice-monthly newspaper based in the Boston area, is sponsoring a cartoon contest, with proceeds earmarked for the Greater Boston Food Bank. The cartoons will be reviewed by a panel of syndicated cartoonists, and winners' work will be submitted to syndicates as well as published in Editorial Humor.

If you would like to enter the contest, submit materials no later than March 4. There are six panels, comic strips, caricatures and creative ad design.

The entry cost is $10 per category entered, and checks should be made payable to the Greater Boston Food Bank, a clearinghouse for agencies that feed 135,000 people a month.

Students pay to keep library open

Chabot College's student government has donated $12,754 to keep the library open an additional 10 hours every week. The hours of operation were cut as part of a 1993 budget reductions.

The donation will allow the library to pay staff.

Rap's "leading activist" to deliver lecture

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

KRS-ONE, aka Kris Parker, has been named the "Conscience of Rap" and it's "leading activist" by Rolling Stone. He will share his experiences at Clarion on Tuesday, February 15 at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

It took intelligence, guts and a lot of soul searching for Kris Parker to become the great individual he is today. At age thirteen he ran away from home and spent the next six years on the streets educating himself in the public library. His living quarters ranged from subways to public shelters. At one of these shelters, Kris met a charismatic counselor named Scott Sterling (aka DJ Scott La Rock) who encouraged him to develop his growing poetic talent. Together Kris and Scott formed BDP in homage to the town they grew up in — the "Boogie Down" Bronx.

"Crack Attack," a self-financed single, brought about their legendary album, Criminal Minded. This album was stocked with bleak, hard-hitting and sometimes ironic portraits of street life.

Kris and Scott had a quick taste of success as their album exploded onto the streets. Unfortunately, at the height of such early success, tragedy struck. When Kris, Scott and three of their friends had gone to South Bronx to settle a misunderstanding, Scott was shot and killed.

Although greatly shaken, Kris insisted the group continue. In 1987 they released By All Means Necessary which became a landmark in establishing rap as a tool for enlightenment. In the fall of 1989, Kris continued that legacy when he formed the Stop The Violence Movement. It's all-star rap single "Self Destruction" raised upwards of $300,000 for black on black violence and educational programs for the ghetto youth.

With his next two LP's, Ghetto Music: The Blueprint of Hip Hop and Edutainment, Kris sharpened his vision to attack hypocrisy, materialism and the Eurocentric view of history. Both of these albums were certified gold. Other works include Live Hardcore Worldwide, rap's first legitimate live record and the all-star album released by Parker's HEAL (Human Education Against Lies) coalition, featuring the single "HEAL Yourself."

Kris' latest album, Sex and Violence, is well on its way to going platinum. He also has producing credits for such diverse talents as Ziggy Marley, The Neville Brothers and Shabba Ranks.

Kris Parker, being the controversial person he is, has still managed to command the respect of the media as well as earning himself a reputation as a credible and well-spoken activist.

KRS-ONE has appeared at many colleges, high schools and reformatories across the nation, and now he is coming to speak of "Street Knowledge" at Clarion University. The doors for this event will open at 7:30. The price for the public is $3 and students are free with a valid ID.

Come celebrate Chinese New Year

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

The Clarion University International Association will be celebrating Chinese New Year, which starts today, at East Asian International Night. The festivities begin at 7 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room.

The International Association students will explain the origin of Chinese New Year and will demonstrate a new year's eve lantern. China, Korea and Japan will be represented in the program. Most of the East Asian nations including China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Malaysia and Taiwan observe the Chinese New Year.

The evening's events will include a handwriting demonstration along with a basic handwriting display, a performance on a zither -- a traditional musical instrument of the area, and a poem to be read in seven different dialects of Chinese. Traditional Chinese games will be played and the audience is welcome to join. Students from Korea will also present a martial arts demonstration.

Bring your appetite because traditional East Asian foods will be served. New to this program will be the opportunity to participate in the making of dumplings. A Chinese tea party will also be held.

There are 85 students from 35 different countries enrolled at Clarion University. They are continuing the tradition of sharing their cultures with the Clarion community.

The International Association student officers for 1993-94 are Nazri Nizar of Sri Lanka (president), Nee Nee Goh of Malaysia (vice-president), Indu Mathur of India (secretary) and Julia Lee of Korea (treasurer).

This program is free and open to the public. For more information call (814) 226-2340.

Valentine's Day tips for the open-hearted

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

It's February and love is in the air, or maybe it's the smell of dirty snow. Whatever it may be, Valentine's Day is soon upon us, and men and women everywhere are trying to come up with creative ideas to surprise their Valentine, or trying on their best black ensemble for "V-day."

Each year marks a notch in everyone's Valentine's Day belt. One year you may have been madly in love and ready to settle down with "the one" and have sent (or received) dozens of long-stemmed red roses. This year, you may be awaiting the day by ordering a first-class ticket to no-man's land where no one knows you're alone.

Whatever the case, I have sat down and come up with a list of ideas to help make this Valentine's Day as interesting (or painless) as possible. Keep in mind that these suggestions are for both sexes and can be taken seriously or humorously.

1) Instead of sending the usual red roses, order a vase full of wild and exotic colorful flora. This will take your valentine by surprise, especially if there is a single red rose in the center. Ask for the flowers that keep long and have a pleasant aroma.

2) If your female valentine cannot or will not eat chocolate, there is another way to give her that heart-shaped box without her getting upset. (You can even do this if she does like chocolates.) Take the box, empty the chocolates any way you wish, and fill the spaces with different little goodies. Replace the chocolate caramels with her favorite candy, or even write little messages and stick them in each spot.

3) Create some "coupons" for your valentine. For example, one might say "Good for one night of delight" (having it mean whatever you wish), or "Good for one candlelight dinner." This is a chance for you to get really creative.

4) As I was walking through the Clarion Mall, I spotted a store which had Valentine's Day underwear for men. Ladies, you could really have some fun getting your male valentine a pair of these.

Have a happy Valentine's Day everyone!

University Apartments

Affordable Student Housing
Now Renting for Summer, Fall and Spring

Located Along U.S. Rt. 322

University Apartments offers an atmosphere conducive to higher education as well as an opportunity for independent living. Each unit is a self-contained efficiency apartment equipped with kitchen appliances, furniture and a bathroom. We offer a full-time resident manager to supervise the buildings.

Comparing our rental rates with campus and other off-campus housing, one will find them substantially below market rent for the area. With the exception of telephone, all utilities including basic cable are included in the rent. Installation and hook-up of utilities alone would cost and additional $75 at other places. Add this to your monthly bills,(say and average of $100/month for 4 students),and rent for the semester. Compare and save with University Apartments.

Please contact University Apartments for further information and/or an appointment to examine our facilities: 226-6880

-The Bangkok Post reported in October that several charlatan physicians had performed at least 100 bogus penis-enlargement operations recently in Thailand. The procedures involved injections containing a mixture of olive oil, chalk and various substances to provide bulk. Said a hospital official in the city of Chiang Mai, "I've even seen (victims' penises containing) bit of the Bangkok telephone directory.

-In July, research entomologist Gene Lamire of Naples, Florida set up the nation's first mosquito-trapping program that uses the tantalizing fragrance of "cow's breath" as the lure. Building on research from Africa, Lamire installed 42 traps containing the synthetic chemical Octenol, which mosquitos evidentally find irresistible. Within the first month, "millions" of mosquito carcasses were found in the traps.

-In a recent medical journal article, five Phoenix, Arizona physicians reported the case of a 34-year-old man who manually forced a ballpoint pen through his right eye in an apparent suicide attempt so that only about one inch of it was sticking out. The physicians' literature search yielded a dozen other cases of "self-inflicted, nonmissile, penetrating, intracranial injuries," involving nails, a steel spring, a hook pin and an awl.

-To thaw the frozen pipes in his house in Farmingville, New York in January, John Porter backed his car up against an open window so the exhaust could warm up the basement. Shortly afterward, Porter, his wife, and their three children had to be rushed to the hospital suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

-George Gibbs, 23, suffered second- and third-degree burns on his head in Columbus, Ohio in January. He had diagnosed his car's problem as a frozen fuel line, which he thought he could correct by running warm gasoline through it. He then tried to heat a two-gallon can of gasoline on a gas stove.

-In August, a Walnut Creek, California woman unidentified by reporters, caused a three-hour search involving police officers from two towns, a search and rescue team (using hastily printed photo posters), Explorer Scouts and several bloodhounds when she reported her three-year-old daughter missing from the family car during a round of errands. Upon returning home, the woman found the girl and realized that she had not taken her on the errands.

Fighting Crime

Americans are very upset about crime. It has become such a serious problem that even the U.S. Congress has taken precious time away from campaign fund raising to pass a tough Anti-Crime Bill, which will make the streets safer for decent, law-abiding citizens by imposing harsh mandatory minimum penalties on Senator Bob Packwood.

But government action alone is not the answer. I believe that, to fight this crime wave, we need to remember what our pioneer forefathers did when they were settling the Wild West, and there were few lawpersons around to defend civilians from the cattle rustlers and the gunslingers and the highwaypersons and the roving outlaw gangs of Amway distributors.

In those days, ordinary civilians sometimes had no choice but to form posses, saddle up their horses and bring lawbreakers to justice at the end of the barrel of a gun. I realize that what I'm about to say is highly controversial, but maybe it's time we did the same thing. That's right: If the police can't protect us, then maybe it's time we exercised our constitutional right to keep — and bear — horses. A criminal is going to think twice about entering your bedroom if he knows there's a horse in there. Especially if he (the criminal, also the horse) has new shoes.

Another option, of course, is to buy a handgun. This is a controversial issue, so let me state out front that whatever YOU think about the handgun issue, it is my firm belief that — and you may call me a courageous individual if you wish — you are 100 percent correct. But whatever opinion we jointly hold, we need to consider the implications of a handgun-related news item that was reported recently by Tom McNiff of The Ocala (Fla.) Star-Banner.

This item, which I am not making up, describes a tragic incident involving a Marion County, Florida commissioner named Norm Perry, whose wife, Betty, was getting ready for a weekend visit to Miami. Needless to say, Norm was nervous about this, because Miami has a reputation for having a bad crime problem.

AUDIENCE: How bad is it?

It's so bad that this punch line has been stolen. (Rim shot, answered by gunshots.)

Seriously, I happen to live in South Florida, and the crime situation down here is really not that bad, as long as you take certain basic precautions — locking your doors, avoiding poorly lit areas, moving to Idaho, etc. But life down here can be unnerving. For example, a while back we rented one of those warehouse storage lockers, so we could store some of our stuff in there for a couple of years before throwing it all away. The rental guy asked me to sign a piece of paper, and he said (this is a real quote):

"This just says you're not going to use it to store any, like, drugs or human bodies."

I looked at him.

"You'd be surprised," he said.

You would be surprised. Here's another true Miami story: On Thanksgiving Day, some workers were trying to fix a clogged toilet at a rental duplex, and they found A PERSON IN THE SEPTIC TANK. (This person was deceased. Fortunately for him.) Police don't know how the body got there, but it's a safe bet that it wasn't an accident, unless we're talking about one of those EXTREMELY high-suction toilets.

But getting back to Commissioner Perry and his wife: The Star-Banner reports that, at Commissioner Perry's suggestion, Mrs. Perry was planning to take a handgun with her to Miami. As she was packing, however, she discovered that the gun was jammed; so she brought it to Commissioner Perry, who was standing in front of his closet, deciding on what to wear. He was working on the gun when suddenly, unexpectedly, it went off.

You have probably already guessed what happened: The bullet — in yet another of the senseless tragedies that we read about all too often these days — went through nine of Commissioner Perry's dress shirts.

"Those shirts are $25 to $30 apiece," he told the Star-Banner.

A terrible waste, you say? Yes. But sometimes you must pay a price for vigilance. In today's crime-ridden society, there could very easily have been a criminal hiding in the back of Commissioners Perry's closet, planning to steal enough money to afford air fare to Miami. And this criminal could easily have been penetrated by Norm's bullet, which would have meant that he (the criminal, also the horse, if Commissioner Norm kept one in there) would no longer be roaming the streets and victimizing innocent people. Instead, he would be successfully suing Commissioner Perry for millions of dollars.

So let me just state, as a South Florida resident, how grateful I am to Commissioner Perry for caring enough about his wife's safety to want to send her down here with a handgun. The one thing we need more of down here is armed people, which is why, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, I am urging EVERYBODY who is thinking of visiting South Florida to feel free to bring the weapon of his or her choice, although we do remind you that, before you travel with a gun, you should take the standard precaution of test-firing it in Commissioner Perry's closet.

Also, flush with care.

Ocumicho art display exhibits Mexican traditions

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles Writer

An unusual collection of Ocumicho art will make its debut in the Sandford Art Gallery in the Marwick-Boyd Fine Arts Building now until February 25.

The collection was compiled by Joyce Jablonski, director of the gallery and instructor of art at Clarion University. The art, which Jablonski collected from garage sales, is the product of the Indian tribe Purepecha of Ocumicho, a city in Michoacan, Mexico.

In the 1970's the tribe became well-known for using "diablos," the devil, generally in modern settings, in many aspects of their works. The art links to their tradition of celebrating the dead and decorating graves.

The exhibit will feature Mexican folk crafts including small poly-chrome ceramic sculptures, water jugs and clothing such as traditional shawls. A video and slide show will also be shown to provide those interested with a better knowledge of how the art is made.

The exhibit is free and can be viewed Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Friday 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

The finer things in life are "Made in America"

"Made in America" is a quirky comedy and perhaps the most politically correct movie ever made.

The movie begins when Zora (Nia Long) discovered that she could not possibly be her late father's daughter by doing a blood typing lab in her science class. She confronts her mother (Whoopie Goldberg) who finally tells Zora that she was artificially inseminated. Zora convinces her friend Tea (Will Smith) to pose as a donor at the clinic where she was spawned so she could tap into the computer to find her biological father.

Zora's father turns out to be womanizer, car dealership owner Hal Watson (Ted Danson) who, among other details, happens to be white. When Sarah (Goldberg) discovers that Zora's father is Danson, she flips because he is everything she despises in a man.

In the end, Watson learns to love Zora and falls in love with Sarah, even though she is everything he hates about women. Opposites attract?

Now here is the politically correct countdown:

5. After losing her husband, Sarah is artificially inseminated to have a child.
4. Sarah raises Zora alone, proving that single women can be good mothers (AKA Murphy Brown).
3. Zora is a black teenage girl excelling in math and science (as far as to win a full scholarship to MIT).
2. Sarah and Hal fall in love and ignore the color boundary.
1. Both Sarah and Hal own their own businesses, proving that capitalism will work.

See what I meant by politically correct?

Fascinating facts about Valentine's Day

Courtesy of
Good Housekeeping

Although St. Valentine's Day is a well-established American holiday, little is known about the man after whom the day is named. Here are some answers to questions about St. Valentine and his day:

Who was St. Valentine?

Valentine was a priest and physician who lived in Rome during the third century. At that time, Christianity was a persecuted faith and Valentine was imprisoned. When he would not recant his faith, Valentine was put to death on February 14.

How did Valentine become the patron saint of lovers?

According to legend, when Valentine was a priest in Rome, Emperor Claudius II ordered young men not to marry, believing if they did not have wives, they would be more willing to go to war. Moved by compassion for the young lovers, Valentine married them secretly.

Why is February 14 associated with romance?

February 15 was the date set aside to honor the Roman god, Lupercus. On that day, young women would write love notes and deposit them in a large urn. The young men would take the notes out and then court the women whose messages they had drawn.

When Christianity became the official religion of Rome, the church merged the Roman holiday with the martyrdom of St. Valentine on February 14.

How did St. Valentine's Day spread to the U.S.?

Valentines came to the U.S. with the earliest English settlers. John Winthrop, governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, wrote his wife: "February 14, 1629, Thou must be my Valentine."

Who sold the first commercial American valentines?

Esther A. Howland of Worcester, Massachusetts developed the first cards in 1847. That year, she sold an amazing $5,000 worth of cards. Her fancy valentines made St. Valentine's Day very popular. Soon other manufacturers were making cards.

How many Valentine's Day cards are sold annually?

In 1993, one billion Valentine's day cards were sold.

Harvard to probe radiation experiments

Courtesy of
College Press Service

Harvard University announced in early January that it has put together a "working group" to investigate Harvard's involvement with radiation experiments conducted by Harvard scientists on human subjects in the 1940s and 1950s.

"We want to know the full extent of what happened," said Joseph Wrinn, a Harvard spokesman. "Our reaction is to find every piece of information. A sincere effort is going on here."

Wrinn discussed the published experiments performed by the late Clemens E. Brenda, a Harvard Medical School professor, on retarded students at the Fernald state school in Waltham, Massachusetts. The experiments have been cited in media reports about government-sponsored radiation tests on human subjects in the 1940s and 1950s.

Fernald residents who participated in the experiments were euphemistically called members of the "Science Club." They were fed radioactive milk and given radioactive iron supplements but were not told about the radiation, according to experts who have reviewed the studies. The students were reportedly rewarded for their participation with candy.

"Harvard will not defend what appears to have happened," Wrinn said. "Nobody is going to defend something like that."

A Medical School spokesperson said experts from the Medical School would assist in the inquiry, but the school is not conducting an internal investigation of its own.

" A working group is looking into this on a fact-finding effort," Wrinn said. "We pick up the paper every day and something new has come to light."

Wrinn said he could not discuss details of the working group. He declined to give its size, say who its members are, or say if any of its members were Medical School faculty.

He did say the group includes "somebody familiar with how to find information at the Medical School."

The fact-finding effort, Wrinn said, has been hindered because the documents detailing the experiments have been poorly maintained and are stored in various locations.

Wrinn said the university is not "trying to duck anything."

Men's Basketball team wins one, drops two

by Adam Earnhardt
Sports Writer

The chances of making the NCAA Division II playoffs have become slim to none for the Clarion Golden Eagles.

With consecutive losses against two PSAC teams, every game has become a must win situation if Ron Righter's men are looking for post-season play.

On Feb. 2nd, the men lost a grueling fight in double overtime to the California Vulcans who are ranked #3 in Division II, 118-111. Clarion grabbed a seven-point lead in what seemed to be an upset in the making in the closing seconds of regulation.

Then things fell apart. With three of the five starters on the bench with five fouls, Coach Righter looked to Kwame Morton, Steve Branch and freshman Jamie Polak to put on the finishing touches.

Candice Pickens, who ended the night with 15 points, stole the ball as it was passed inbounds and made a driving lay up.

Immediately Morton was fouled and sent to the line where he converted one of two shots giving Clarion a 98-96 lead.

As Cal inbounded the ball, Branch reached in and fouled Pickens, putting Branch over the five foul limit and sending Pickens to the line. Pickens converted both shots sending the game into overtime.

In the first overtime, the lead went back and forth as both teams exchanged buckets.

With five seconds left, Chad Scott, made a power move and scored, giving the Vulcans a two point lead and, once again, what seemed to be a victory. However, Jamie Polak had other things in store.

As the last few seconds wound off the clock, Polak took a baseball pass from Morton. Polak took one dribble and shot an off-balanced jumper off the glass and in, tying the game at 106-106 and sending the match into a second overtime.

In the second overtime it was all California as the depth of the Vulcans bench proved to be too much for the "young" Clarion line-up to handle.

With Morton and Polak joined by sophomore Tyrone Sherrod and freshmen Bob Montrose and Scott Cronk, the Golden Eagles ran out of energy and the scoring punch needed to finish the game.

Morton, the only regaining starter, pushed his game to the limit, playing the entire 50 minutes and finished by leading all scorers with 41 points and nine rebounds.

Brian Paige ended his scoring slump with a 23 point performance followed by Steve Branch's 15 points. Ian Whyte and Branch each grabbed eight caroms a piece.

As the Golden Eagles made the long trip to Shippensburg, Saturday, Feb. 5th, it was the same outcome in a slighter shorter story.

At the end of the first half, Clarion held on to a 47-33 lead and built on that score by as much as 22 points mid-way through the second half.

That's when the lead crumbled.

The Red Raiders of Shippensburg went on a 20-4 run that left Clarion in shock. Chris Thompson hit back to back three pointers with 1:50 on the clock, pulling the Red Raiders to within two at 84-86.

Scott Rehm and Thompson then hit consecutive jumpers, giving the Red Raiders the lead and the victory with five seconds left.

Clarion only made one field goal and one free throw in the last three minutes play.

Morton led all scorers for the 18th time this season with 35 points. Branch had 13 points and nine rebounds while Whyte grabbed seven boards. As of the Shippensburg game, the men have posted a 2-5 record in the PSAC-West and a 12-8 record overall.

On Monday, Clarion played host to Columbia Union University who came into town with a 3-17 record.

The Pioneers scored first, as Steve Streelman drove for a layup just 24 seconds into the game. But from then on, it was all Clarion. The Golden Eagles started scoring and didn't stop until the final horn.

Clarion scored 15 straight points after the Pioneers took the early lead, with Morton hitting two three pointers and a layup, and Branch putting in a couple of layups.

Clarion was on fire for nearly all game. In fact, the only mishap that occurred for Clarion was when Morton drove to the basket all alone, when up for the jam, and bricked it off the rim. Yes, even superman makes mistakes.

When asked after the game if he was slightly embarassed by the missed dunk Kwame replied," Nah, Steve (Branch) missed one earlier in the game and he's 6'8". I'm only 6'3"." Don't worry though, Morton atoned for it later by throwing one down on a break away.

Everybody was getting in on the jam session. Morton, Brown Branch, and Whyte all had exciting jams. In fact Whyte had a handful of them. He exploded in probably his best game since he's been here at Clarion. Columbia Union just didn't have anybody who could match up inside with him, and Whyte took advantage of it, closing the game with 25 points, 13 rebounds, and a blocked shot.

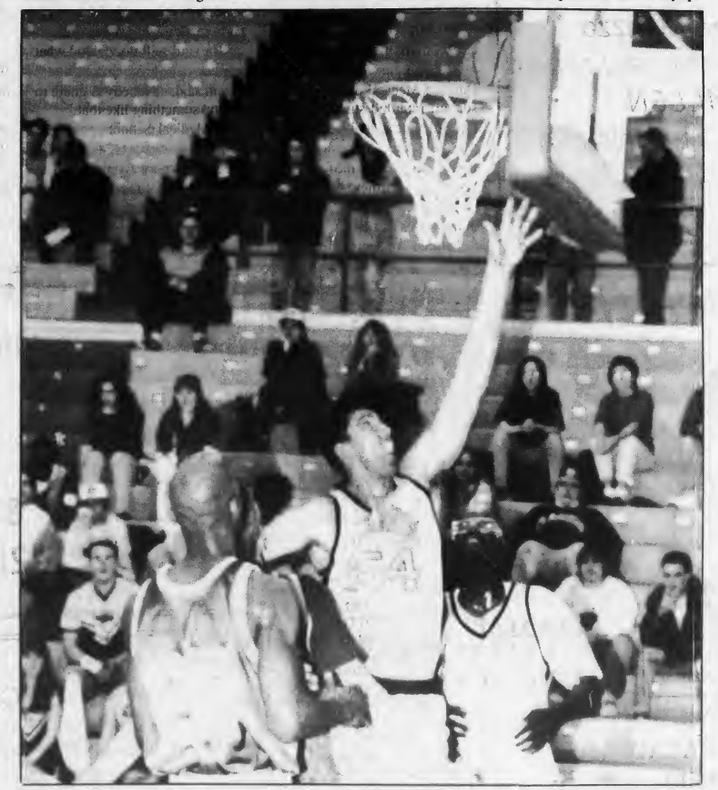

Assistant coach Michael Wurm said of Whyte's performance,"We figured he'd have a better game because he was playing against guys more his size and it's easier for him to play defensively against them. He did a good job of moving his feet and he kept out of foul trouble."

Everyone was getting in one the action Monday as the second and third stringers came off the bench. Scott Auman, the walk-on from St. Mary's, scored four points in getting two layups. and 5'7" walk-on Jim Brunelli got his first points of the season by draining a trifecta and making the crowd and team go crazy.

Clarion next takes to the court this Wednesday. Earlier this season, Edinboro blew the Golden Eagles away, but as Morton said, "We're a different team than we were then."

Whether Clarion is a different team or not, they had certainly better find a spark to ignite them to a victory.

The tipoff for that game is set for 8 p.m., directly following the girls game.

Lady Eagles on flight to playoffs

by Tondalaya Carey
Sports Writer

The Clarion University women's basketball team pulled away with two more wins this past week to add to their overall record and they now stand at 16-3 (6-1 in the PSAC West).

Last Wednesday the Golden Eagles blew by California University, 80-69.

California entered the game with a 15-4 overall mark, and a national ranking, but the Vulcans proved to be no match against Clarion's well balanced attack. Clarion only led by two at the half, but 50% field goal shooting in the second half lifted the team.

Carlita Jones led all scorers with 29 points and she also grabbed ten rebounds. Her defense was equally as impressive as she swatted away five shots.

Shannon Coakley and Mona Gaffney also had impressive games for the Golden Eagles, both finishing with 14 points. Gaffney had 10 rebounds, and Coakley 11. Amy Coon left the game with 13 points and seven rebounds. Amy Migyanka had eight points and six assists.

Next, the Golden Eagles traveled to Shippensburg to face a team that they had already beaten earlier this year.

Clarion got off to a quick start as Jones nailed a jumper off a pass from Migyanka, just seven seconds into the game.

Jones would finish with 20 points, but the real story behind this game was Coon, who finished the game with 24 points, all on three pointers. She tied school records for three pointers made and attempted by going 8-for-19 from behind the line.

With five minutes left in the first half, Shippensburg tightened the game up, but Clarion drilled four three pointers in a spurt that gave them a 50-39 lead going into the locker room.

Coakley finished the game with 17 points, Gaffney had eight points, 14 rebounds, and five assists, and Migyanka had nine points, all on three pointers, and dished out four assists.

The Eagle's offense is effective from the inside and the outside. They are very difficult to defend.

The next home game is Wednesday against Edinboro.

A weekly look at a Clarion University athlete

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Amy Migyanka is almost assured she will graduate from CUP as one of the best point guards ever to play here.

Amy, a sophomore on the women's basketball team, combines her natural basketball abilities with key leadership skills to help lead the Lady Eagles.

Amy had a good high school career out of Bishop McCort H.S., starting for 3 years and being named MVP of several different tournaments.

Amy also played volleyball, but her basketball coach talked her into focusing on one sport. She was the leader of a talented team that sent four of it's five starters on to play college basketball on scholarship.

She put an exclamation point on her high school years by setting a school record with 8 three pointers in her final game.

Basketball played a big part in where Amy went to school. She almost decided on St. Francis University, but finally answered the phone calls she kept receiving from Clarion and decided to come here.

In coming to Clarion, Amy was immediately getting lots of playing time, and this year she has moved into the role of a full time starter. When asked if she felt pressure from becoming such an integral part of one of the best Division II teams in the country she replied, "Last year I felt really frustrated. Now I feel a lot more relaxed. I feel like I know what I'm doing a lot more."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Sophomore point guard Amy Migyanka is the court leader of the Golden Eagle women's basketball team.

Next year, Clarion will be without starters Shannon Coakley and Amy Coon. Migyanka will be left solely as the court leader of this team. She knows it will be a tough challenge but, "I'm looking forward to that."

After watching her for the past two years, no one doubts her ability to be the quuarterback of this team.

Amy knows that her best basketball asset is her passing ability. She is a very unselfish player, and would rather play for the benefit of the team than look to light up the scoreboard herself.

"I shoot, but I'm not like Shannon. Maybe that will get better as the years go by. But really, I'd just as soon get the assist."

Amy racked up a lot of assists last year. In fact, one of her long term goals in to leave Clarion with the all-time assist record under her belt.

As far as the pressures of being a student athlete are concerned, Amy works hard tries to balance school with basketball.

"Sometimes I think its hard because we travel, but we basically have time to study. I get my work done."

Amy is a great leader on the court and is a very friendly person off of it. If you haven't taken a look at Clarion's quintessential point guard, it is well worth the trip to Tippin to do so.

One of her team goals is to someday make it to the Final Four. With Amy here, they certainly have a good chance.

Golden Eagle wrestlers defeat Syracuse

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports writer

On Saturday, Feb. 5, the 8th ranked Clarion University wrestling team hosted the Syracuse Orangemen, who are ranked 19th in Division I.

Clarion wasted no time in defending their top ten ranking by jumping out to a quick 12-0 lead as Sheldon Thomas, Bob Crawford, and Tom Tomeo recorded victories.

At 142 pounds, Jamie Kyriazis of Syracuse decisioned Clarion's Jody Clark by the score of 5-4, to put the Orangemen on the board with the score of 12-3.

Clarion's 150 pounder, Moss Grays, wasted no time in bringing the Eagles back with a 4-1 victory over Jeff Liberman, upping the Eagle lead 15-3.

Jamie St. John of Syracuse decisioned Clarion's Damon Brown at the 158 pound weight class in a close match at 3-2. This brought the overall match score to 15-6 in favor of Clarion.

At 167 pounds, J.J. Stanbro of Clarion decisioned Scott Sedlick by the score of 7-2 to give the Eagles a lead of 18-6.

Next up at 177 pounds was Dan Payne, who was going up against Ken Farrel of the Orange. Payne helped give Clarion a comfortable lead by major decisioning Farrel 18-2, to give the Eagles an impressive 23-6 lead over Syracuse.

Bryan Stout then wrestled at 190. Stout major decisioned Paul Lyman by the score of 13-0. It was the Eagles' last points of the night as Rob Sintobin suffered a rare loss to Jason Gleasman by a score of 7-6.

Clarion completely destroyed this respectable team and are proving that they are one of the top teams in the nation.

They showed more domination by shutting out Kent State 48-0 Tuesday.

Madden who?

The only list that counts; the All-Males team

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Who needs the All-Madden Team? Every true pro football fan knows who is good and who their favorites are, so why listen to some overpaid TV announcer give his best for '93? On the other hand, why read this article by some sports nut who thinks the NFL should last 365 days a year? OK, you win. I'm sure most people are "footballed out" for another year, and are looking forward to baseball with anxious eyes. But before you say goodbye, let's take an All-Males look at '93's best players by position. Take note, these players don't necessarily have the best stats or even most game appearances. Instead, these gridders might be leading contributors to their team in other areas (emotion, attitude, big-game perfomance). So let's cut the bull and get to the team.

Quarterback: Drew Bledsoe (N. England)- first year sensation gave his team four straight wins to end the season. Promising future in the NFL, mark my word!

Running Backs: Eric Pegram (Atlanta)- Falcons always wanted a running back, now they have him- 1,185 yards in '93. Jerome Bettis (LA Rams)- Rookie golden domer powered his way to 1,429 yards. 'Nuf said.

Wide Receivers: Sterling Sharpe (Green Bay)- Bret Favre's go to guy keeps getting better and keeps breaking his own records.

Jerry Rice (S.F.)- Big surprise? Next stop- Canton.

Tight End: Shannon Sharpe (Denver)- Brother of Sterling, that now has his own identity. He got better as the year went on.

Offensive Line: Guards- Harris Barton (S.F.)- Job is to protect Steve Young- which he does quite well!

Randall McDaniel (Minn.)- Developing into one of the best in the NFL.. Many Pro Bowls to come.

Tackles- Kevin Gogan (Dall)- Reminds me of one of the old Hogs- 6'7", 320 lbs.- This guy looks like a housing project.

Jackie Slater (LA Rams)- had his best game against former Ram Kevin Greene. Has been playing since the Beatnik era.

Center- Dermonti Dawson (Pitt)- Follows in footsteps of other Steeler great- Mike Webster.

Defensive Line: End- Neil Sith (K.C.)- I like this guy's attitude. A force around the end and key to Chief's line.

Leon Lett (Dall)- You knew it, right? Can't let the ball be, but still is key on Dallas D.

Tackle- John Randle (Minn)- Led interior linemen in sacks with 12.5.

Sean Gilbert (LA Rams)- Rookie sensation brought defense back to the City of Angels.

Linebackers: Greg Lloyd (Pitt)- Mr. Mean Disposition is a dynamo from outside. This guy does everything and has the attitude to go with it.

Marvcus Patton (Buff)- This former UCLA Bruin is truly incredible. He has a nose for the ball and likes to stick.

Tony Bennett (G.B.)- Sat out the first few games in contract dispute, made up for it big time. Anchored solid Packer defense.

Lamar Lathon (Hou)- Didn't play on every down, but was a force when in the game. Has a "fly to the ball" attitude that I love.

Cornerbacks: Rod Woodson (Pitt)- Started off HOT with interceptions in five games. Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year. Overrated? Never.

Eric Allen (Phil)- A solid corner year in and year out, Allen incredibly returned four picks for touchdowns! Yes folks, four.

Safeties: Darren Woodson (Dall)- A huge safety, this Woodson hits like a freight train and plays one awesome safety position.

LeRoy Butler (G.B.)- Helped Reggie White and Tony Bennett give the Packer defense identity. Pro Bowler now, and again next year.

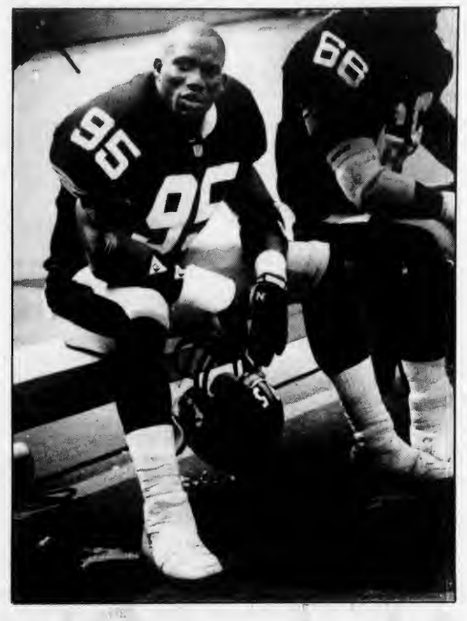

Special Teams: Punt/Kick returner- Eric Metcalf (Cle)- After he single handedly made me cry after the Steeler game (2 TD's on punt returns), I vowed never to second guess this former Longhorn.

Placekicker- Jason Elam (Den)- This newcomer really impressed me. Kicking at Mile High might be this kid's long future in the NFL.

Punter- Rich Camarillo (Phoenix)- Why not? Consistency in the NFL for 12 years.

Coach of the Year: Bill Parcells (N.E.)- The guy's a genius. Losing practically every game by only a few points a piece, Bill had his Pats in every game. Winning their last four games, I'm going to go out on a limb and say playoffs in 1994 tor New England.

Well, here it is, the All- Males team for 1994. Some of the choices may surprise you, but these are the guys that are the prototypical hard nosed, tough minded, football players that the NFL needs to have a lot more of. Of course, there are other players worthy of this list but I only had so much room. Only six more months until the NFL starts up again.

Greg Lloyd: The Pittsburgh Steelers outside linebacker has earned the title of "The meanest man in football." He wears a shirt in practice that says, "I wasn't hired for my disposition," and practices with such intensity that he often makes fellow teammates incensed with his constant high gear drive. He'll be a Pro Bowler for a long time.

Sports Trivia Question
by Nathan Kahl

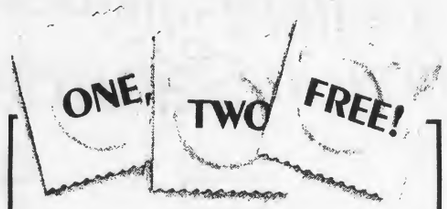

The Dallas Cowboys were impressive in giving up only 87 yards rushing in the past super Bowl. Can you name the team that gave up only 17 yards rushing while allowing a Super Bowl record low 119 yards? Who did they play and in which Super Bowl? Answer next week.

Trade rumors abound in the NBA

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

The trade winds are blowing around the NBA this February. With the trade deadline fast approaching, several teams are look to make a move, or at least should be.

Looking towards their future now can save some teams from going back to the world of mediocrity. Other franchises can look to make themselves very dangerous for the upcoming playoffs or build for the future.

Let's first take a look at the New Jersey Nets.

What a combo, Kenny Anderson of Georgia Tech fame, dishing to the former Orangeman, Derrick Coleman. A one- two punch any team should respect and fear.

However, Coleman seems to be set on leaving the team for greener pastures. 90 million dollar pastures to be exact. Who would be dumb enough to pay that much to a man that simply puts a ball through a hoop? Coleman, who is averaging 20 points, 11 rebounds and three assists per game, is looking for a contract that would be given to a man who takes (and makes) eighty shots a game. Coleman does much more than just score and grab boards, but that much more?

Without Coleman, the Nets would be outrageously bad, but can they afford to keep him? I don't think so.

What are the trade options for the Nets? One trade possibility that keeps popping up is a swap with the Miami Heat.

It would probably be a one-for-one deal involving Glenn Rice or Ron Seikaly, which would be a decent trade for both clubs.

With the tragic loss of Drazen Petrovich in the offseason. New Jersey needs a long distance bomber which Rice could provide, and Seikaly would toughen up the Nets inside.

Miami would be receiving an all-star who rebounds and has a great inside/outside game. If Miami and New Jersey can swing this trade, the Heat had better talk to Coleman's agent about a long-term contract and be willing to shell out the bucks.

Is a trade possible with the Pistons? Possibly. Coleman may want to return to his home town. However, I doubt if the Pistons have anything that the Nets would want in return for Coleman.

Besides, would Coleman want to go to a team that's only slightly better than the woeful Dallas Mavericks? It will be very ugly in Detroit for a while, whether they have Coleman or not.

The Los Angeles Clippers are also a team that needs to do something.

Two years back, the Clippers started looking like a team that might start making some noise in the west. Now they look ready to slide back into the lottery.

Kenny Norman left for Milwaukee and Stanley Roberts is out for the season. What else could go wrong for the Clips'?

Ron Harper and Danny Manning are the next two ready to leave L.A. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that the Clippers need to sign one of these two and trade the other.

The one to go is probably Manning. He has no desire whatsoever to stay with the Clippers and he has stated that.

Who would want to stay with a team that changes coaches on a yearly basis?

The latest rumor has Manning going to Orlando for Dennis Scott and a first round draft pick. This could move Orlando closer to a championship within a few years and give the Clippers a needed outside threat.

If this were to happen, L.A. could then trade Ron Harper to the Chicago Bulls, who have a vacancy left from the retirement of Michael Jordan. By no means could Harper fill Jordan's shoes, but he could make an impact on a surprising Bulls team.

These are just a few choices that front offices around the NBA face as the playoffs near. It seems like this is the time of year that clubs like to shop their players around, hoping to land that key player and make a run for the championship.

However, this can be very dangerous, as some teams make foolish choices. Teams might stick their neck out and make the big trade, or it could be a year of little player movement.

Keep your eye on the sports page, your team could be active.

Women swimmers lose to powerful Ohio State

by Jeff Levkulich
Sports Writer

Clarion University faced Ohio State in a swimming meet Saturday. The buckeyes, who are picked to finish third in the Big Ten this year proved to be a tough match for Clarion.

A victory for the Golden Eagles would have been a great upset for the team, but just staying close to the Division I power would be respectable. That's just what they did.

Lisa Kaylor won the 200 breast (2:39.03), and Justine Gibbons, Colleen Davidson, Oil City's Stephanie Kissell and Kathy Randazzo won the 400 free relay at 3:50.94.

Gibbons also looked impressive in swimming a 10:32 in the 1,000 free, which is one of the two top times in the NCAA Division II.

Kim Strawbridge took fourths in both diving events.

Both the men and women are finished with the dual meet. They will be at the PSAC's on Feb. 16-19 at Indiana.

Women basketball; let's fill the seats and cheer 'em on

by Amy Coon
Sports Writer

The smattering of applause rolled through the nearly empty gym. Surprisingly, Bentley College in Needham, MA, had more fans to watch a road game nine hours away, than the Clarion University Golden Eagles, who were playing North Dakota State in one of the biggest matchups in Division II basketball early in the 1993-94 season.

The teams, North Dakota State, perennial Final Four, power; Bentley, likewise; University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown, an East region powerhouse; and your own Clarion University Golden Eagles (holders of several NCAA Division II records and NCAA tournament qualifiers over the last three years), were meeting in the eigth annual Clarion Classic. The game: basketball. The participants: women. The attendance: low. Why?

This is not just a problem that plagues the little world of Clarion, PA. Several different successful women's programs suffer the same difficulties. Is society ready to accept women in sports yet?

If they were, there would be less empty seats in the stands at women's games.

If you've never attended a women's basketball game, you would not know how exciting we are to watch.

The Clarion women's team has been extremely successful since the arrival of Coach Parsons and staff, who virtually turned this program around overnight.

I'm a senior for the women's team. Over the last three plus years, we have been atop the PSAC West. We are working toward our fourth straight Western division title. We have also won the PSAC Conference Championships two out of the last three years. We are trying for our third. We have reached the NCAA Tournament every year since 1990-91, have gone as far as the Elite Eight and Sweet Sixteen in those three years. We are hoping to go all the way to the Final Four this year.

We are an exciting team to watch. With all the three point shooters and outstanding post players we have, it is difficult to stop us. Each game is more exciting than the next, whether we are hitting three pointer after three pointer, or seeing great moves beneath the basket.

Did you know that we hold six NCAA team records and two individual records for three point shooting? And did you know that we also hold the record for most points scored in a game with 148? Now if scoring 148 points in a single game isn't exciting, then I don't know what is.

As a player, I know how important fans are to the home team. They give us momentum in the game. The crowd noise pumps us up, and makes us play harder when we know that people are cheering for us. It's not fun to play in an empty gym, where sometimes it is so quiet that you can hear a pin drop. It is so nice to know that you have people behind you telling you that you're doing well and encouraging you to play better when you're down.

Women's basketball is becoming increasingly popular in some areas, especially at the Division I level. Just this past Sunday, the Penn State Lady Lions played the Iowa women's team in a packed house. Number 1 versus Number 8 and it was the first ever sold out women's game in Rec Hall, 7,462 screaming fans.

The interesting part is that there were 1,200 students who got tickets for the game and they stood the entire game, screaming and yelling to cheer on their #1 Lady Lions.

The Lady Lions won that game, 63-61, and I believe most of it was due to skill, the rest was due to the home crowd.

The Lady Lions of Penn State may be #1 in Divison I, but your own Golden Eagles are just as successful at the Division II level. We are lucky to get 1,000 fans to come to our games, including students. In the four years that I have played, I've seen more and more of the Clarion community come to watch us.

Please drop all your biases and come out and give us a chance. We are exciting, we are fun to watch, and we need your support. I promise that if you come out to a game, you will be on the edge of your seat the whole time. I know that if you come, you won't be disappointed and that you will definately want to come back again and again and again.

Sexual assault forum demands an end to 'our rape-fostering society'

by Rodney Sherman
Managing Editor

"We are here tonight because we are radicals," said Deb King at the start of last Thursday night's Open Forum on Sexual Assault.

"Now perhaps when you hear this word," continued King, "you think of bombs, hostage-taking or politics. But radical also means a return to the roots, to that place or thing or idea that nourishes and sustains you."

King's opening remarks were given to encourage an open discussion between panel members and the approximately 85 to 90 Clarion University students and Clarion community residents in attendance.

Sissy Marks, director of the Rape Crisis Center in Clarion, reminded the audience of the recent media attention given to the Michael Jackson allegations and the trials of John and Lorena Bobbitt.

"We wish we could focus some of that attention on the campus arena," said Marks.

Marks and following speaker Laurie Snyder Yount, of Students Together Against Rape (S.T.A.R.) cited Rape Crisis Center statistics claiming 28 percent of CUP students have been victims of sexual violence, 21 percent have been physically abused by an acquaintance and that 41 percent have been verbally harassed, embarrassed or threatened by someone they know.

One audience member raised the questions about the local legal system and suggested that Clarion county District Attorney William Kern is reluctant to pursue cases involving sexual assault. Lynn Harrelson stated it was her understanding that only one alleged campus rape has been brought to trial in the past 12 years.

Snyder Yount said that such occurrences are the "fault of our legal system" and plea bargaining sexual assaults down to lesser charges are an "everyday reality."

Clarion Borough Police Chief R. Eric Shaffer admitted there are faults in the legal system but said the problem is state-wide and not confined to the Clarion area.

"Our legal system sucks, that's the best way to put it," said Shaffer in his first remark to the audience.

Shaffer told the gathering blame for the increasingly violent society nation-wide is an inherant problem in a free society.

"Along with more individual freedom comes more individual responsibility," explained the 16 year police veteran.

"And I have to tell you, some of you (students) are pretty easy to have," said Shaffer. "Everyday you're meeting people you don't know and you have to be on guard."

The American justice tradition of presumed innocence is a big factor in prosecuting alleged criminals, according to Shaffer.

"The court system is a lot more technical than people realize," he

Clarion part of organ donation campaign

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

"It will never happen to me." This is a common misconception of youth today, whether it is a disease, an injury or even death.

Well, everyone will die of some cause, whether naturally or accidentally. But have you ever wondered what would happen to you after you have passed?

More than 33,000 people nationwide are awaiting a transplant of organs or tissues.

Eight people die each day without receiving that transplant. However, if one person donates all the organs and tissues he/she could, that sinlge person could save between 200 and 300 patients, according to Patricia Kail, director of communications for CORE.

The Center for Organ Recovery & Education (CORE), founded in 1977, is one of approximately 65 organ procurement organizations in the United States.

CORE is responsible for working with hospitals and the communities it serves to provide organs and tissues for transplantation, including coordinating the recovery efforts.

We make the world

Charu Uppal

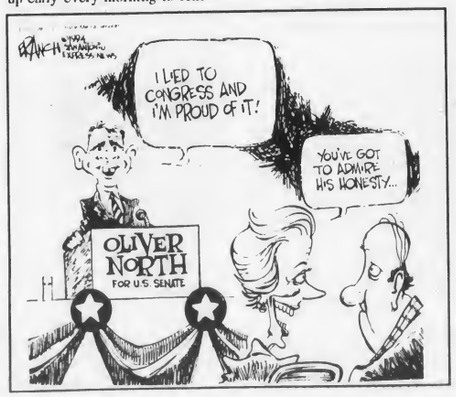

After two years of surviving Clarion, I left it for good, a couple of months ago. Strangely enough I left Clarion exactly two years after I arrived. I have bags and trunks full of memories of Clarion. The assignments done, tests taken, the notes written and passed while the class was in session, the cards from friends, loads and loads of computer paper, scraps of the Clarion Call, albums of pictures, lots of reminders from the library for returning the books, reminders from accounts office to pay my dues, a whole bunch of edited videos and even more of footage.

Like all new graduates I moved to a city, too, in the hope of finding a decent job. Of course, like any other person, I realize the list of problems after graduation increases, not to mention the responsibilities. Yet there is so much to notice in the city every day that it takes my mind off what gives me a headache.

Life here in Washington is very different from Clarion yet much remains the same. Like getting up early every morning to reach work in time is just like rushing to class. So many similarities with the college makes me think if we really make any changes in our lives or just accommodate interestingly disguised adaptations of our old lifestyles. I see people of all ages running to the metros, after the buses, towards the offices. They do not seem relaxed even when rushing towards the theatres and entertainment places.

Day after day I either find a seat for myself or give in to standing in a large crowd in whatever means of public transport. I prefer to be in the corner, i.e. out of the noticeable

A Spirited Olympics

The eyes of America have turned again, as they do every couple of years, to the fine young men and women who represent our grand nation in the Olympic Games.

This year, going into the XVII Winter Olympics, it seemed as though the spirit had died—rather than focusing on the talents of these athletes, our eyes and remote controls were pointed at the television, not to cheer on our Olympians but to decide which of them was a liar and a fraud. The whole Tonya Harding-Nancy Kerrigan ordeal coagulated into a murky cloud which overshadowed America's Olympic hopes this year.

But, finally, that is over for a while. Nancy is in Norway, and Tonya is on her way there as you read this. We can all get back to the games.

The XVII Winter Olympics are a real international landmark; a watershed for the woes of the world. More nations than ever before are in attendance, from the huge 155-member United States delegation to the one member delegation from Fiji, a lone alpine skier. But in between these two extremes is where the true Olympic Spirit lies.

The opening ceremonies, despite the festivities and grand presentations, had very urgent undertones. The theme chosen for this year's opening ceremonies was "World Peace," and it really shone through. A major focus was Sarejevo, who ten years ago played host to the Winter Olympics. Now, in 1994, they are a wreck, devastated by an ongoing and particularly bloody civil war.

The hearts of the Olympians, and the rest of the world, go out to the people of this once-fair city.

But despite the grave message presented at the opening ceremonies, a glimmer of hope shone through. The Parade of Nations, where each nation's delegation was presented to the world, was the largest ever, including over ten new nations. Among these nations were Russia, Uzbekistan, Ukraine, Belarus, Estonia, Lithuania, and even war-torn Bosnia-Herzegovina, whose athletes had to sneak out of their own country on armored personnel carriers and midnight flights over the dangerous landscape. It was reported that after the games, it will be next to impossible for the Bosnian-Hercegovinian athletes to return home, and that most of them will end up in refugee camps.

But still they came.

It is these countries, more so than established participants like the U.S. and Great Britain, which exemplify the spirit of these Olympic Games.

It was moving, seeing all these young athletes parading before the world, filled with pride at the sight of their nations' new flags. And there, in those new flags and proud faces, lies the future of our world. We must not forget that.

Charles Kuralt put it best. During a telecast following the opening ceremonies, Kuralt said, "It is wonderful, [these athletes] and their new flags...We must not forget that the citizens of the United States once enjoyed a new flag."

Peace on earth, and let the games begin. -RTH

JORDAN VS. BASEBALL

Michael Jordan wants to play Major League Baseball. Critics say he'll never hit a big league curveball. He'll be a distraction. It's all for publicity, they say.

So what?

Isn't baseball all about publicity and drawing fans who pay through the nose to see the superstars of their choice play a child's game?

Professional ball players say Jordan will never make it. He'll never hit big league pitching.

Come on guys, even the best of you only get a hit about 25 percent of the time. That figure drops even lower if you count the hits off of curveballs.

So, go for it Michael. True baseball is about nothing but dreams.

Anyone who ever played the game has dreamed of getting the big hit in the bottom of the ninth.

If anyone can, Michael can.

Petition Recognition

Dear Editor:

Due to the advanced deadline required for the full page ad demonstrating intolerance of sexual assault in our community, some names were not able to be submitted on time. The support of everyone who signed these petitions is greatly appreciated and should be recognized. Some 123 additional individuals supported the petition.

Thank you to the Clarion Call and all who support our efforts to make our community a safer one.

Faculty congratulations

Dear Editor:

Clarion University faculty have again this year compiled an extraordinary record in receiving Faculty Professional Development Council grants from the State System. I know the President has congratulated each of the recipients individually, but I wanted to add my own congratulations and to thank publicly all the faculty who submitted proposals- both award recipients and runners-up. Someone once said that a good university is a group of students, some of whom teach. The proposals I have seen show a passion for learning: a desire to ask good questions and pursue interesting ideas in both basic and applied research. I am sure many of these projects will directly impact teaching over the next year to 18 months.

In the past three years Clarion has compiled a record of grants in this program that is second to none. In some way, all of us share in our faculty's acheivement. Congratulations again to the award recipients.

Sincerely,
John Kuhn, Provost and Academic Vice President

Response to letters

To the Editor:

In response to the women of the fourth floor south of Wilkinson Hall, please figure out who your dining and residence halls concerns committee representative is and contact them.

The committee was established to represent student concerns and problems in regard to the facilities used for housing and eating. Currently, your hall council has no representation on this committee.

Perhaps one of you are interested?

The chair of this committee is Student Senator Melissa Dolmovich. I am sure that she would greatly appreciate any input you had for her. I am sure she will assist you in effectively handling your concerns.

Next, to the brothers of Sigma Chi, I can understand the need to have the facts stated correctly. However you all are acting like this incident should have been swept under the carpet, and that there should have been no mention of your fraternity at all.

Unfortunately, it did happen at your house, and it was reported as having occurred at your house. Thus, it is a matter of public record.

The statement regarding the Norman Cross is confusing. What bearing does it have on the article and the paper? If you are so upset about the article, ask for a retraction, but just remember that parts of the article cannot be retracted because they state the truth. Look, I wouldn't be worried about your reputation because the Alpha Sigma Tau incident took care of that already.

Tree hugger, don't quit your day job. Trees have survived through enough natural occurrences and man made problems like acid rain, that I really don't think that staples in trees will ever knock the Gypsy Moth down the ladder of ecological tree disasters. Next time, think before you speak and you won't look like a jackass.

And finally, the Clarion Call. Although I respect your right to freedom of expression and press, and feel that they are a building block for a knowledgable and intellectual society, discretion and decorum are advised when handling a case of sexual assault.

The rights of the victim should never be far from the mind of the reporter, and there is no way that the victim should be violated again. The use of the descriptors used as evidence that a sexual assault did occur is fine but to quote directly from the report is a violation of this woman's right to privacy.

We do not need to be given that much information regarding the events of the assault.

Sincerely,
James F. Junger

section. From where I muse at the dozing heads, that is, if I am not one of them. It is so much similar to the students dozing in the classroom, of course for different reasons but the consequences remain the same.

I start scanning the people around me. An old lady with silver hair and bright red lipstick smiles at me, a man next to her is absorbed in his newspaper, a college student frantically flips the pages of a textbook, a middle aged man resting against the iron bar tries to catch some sleep and then a squeal from a child brought me back to myself.

To make up for my lack of time to work out I rush up the working escalator, wondering if everybody else rushes for the same reason. As I climb up the steps I notice a man completely immersed in his novel, some Afro-American women with their hair bleached and other Euro-American women with their hair dyed dark or permed hair (Why do we have so many racial and ethnic problems if we are constantly trying to look like others? Are we ever satisfied with ourselves?), guys with long flowing hair, women with crew cuts, guys with nose rings, women with tattoos, and people sitting on steps with lazy smiles and droopy eyes.

While the winter blues have hit many CUP students, these four and five year-olds didn't seem to mind the continued presence of snow. The youngsters are from the Siler children's center located in Ralston Hall. Wednesday temperatures climbed into the 40's as this group of children went sled riding on the north side of Peirce Hall.

Streets are always buzzing with people. People of all races, people with expensive clothes and cheap looks and vice-versa. Crazy traffic makes you think too. It's not Clarion after all, you have got to wait for traffic! What an effort! It requires a great deal of thinking to follow the traffic lights.

Life in a city is much busier and faster for sure, but do the basics change? The fact is that we are all trying to run after something, rarely do we have moments to ourselves, we are just as careless about our responsibility towards the universe.

I say this because I often notice papers and garbage lying around and within a few feet of any given garbage can in the city. We insist on driving to the grocery store even though it is only two blocks away.

Yet there are those great moments when a stranger lends a hand or passes an understanding smile, and I begin to appreciate the harmony in the world. However I am not ready to accept my own hypocrisy which comes form the fact that I am not any different from the others who I notice and judge.

I have not had any breakfast, so I grab a blueberry muffin and coffee. As I head towards my work place I come closer to a one-man-street-band playing saxophone. It is enchanting, captivating, hypnotizing . . . . . !

Mesmerized, I stand still and stare at the richness of the music and the emptiness of all the people passing by. Barely any one gives it a thought or stops to listen. It is a Monday, I guess. Every work day in the real world seems like a Monday!!! I wonder why people wouldn't stop a few seconds or at least spare a few coins.

As I spill hot coffee on me I realize I am late for work. But out of my good will I scrounge through my new leather wallet and pick up a few copper coins. As I throw them in the broken basket in front of the musician, I ponder and condemn the people who will not stop or do something for this person whose beautiful music makes us feel like we are a part of a fairy tale, and we seem to wade through the early morning sleepiness.

Slowly as I move away from him sipping my coffee, nibbling on the muffin, dropping the crumbs on the street the benign morning sun falls from behind me and casts a shadow that is the ugliest, darkest and the biggest I have ever seen.

AASU questions commitment to diversity

By Alan Vaughn
Editor

Clarion University's commitment to cultural diversity was called into question last night at a meeting of the African American Student Union.

The meeting was called after unconfirmed reports that the contract of Dr. Patricia Elmore, an education department professor, was dismissed due, at least in part, to poor student evaluations and what some AASU students termed a "fitness test" in which a faculty member was evaluated on how he/she worked with the group he/she was in .

Elmore preferred not to comment on the issue at this time, saying that it wasn't in her best interests, but added that she didn't want to put it off and would comment next week.

Director of University Relations Ron Wilshire declined to comment on the issue, saying that it was part of the employee's personnel record. Wilshire also would not confirm whether Elmore's contract had been renewed.

It also could not be confirmed by press time whether Elmore had received poor evaluations, as some students have claimed, or whether this "fitness test" was a part of the evaluation.

Personnel records are not public record according to open records laws.

According to the agreement between the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties, non-tenured faculty members are to be evaluated by students twice each academic year.

It also states that "There shall be at least two. . .classroom evaluations each semester by the department evaluation committee and one such classroom visitation each year by the department chairperson for all non-tenured faulty."

The contract also said that there are three categories for faculty review: "Effective teaching and fulfillment of professional responsibilities, Continuing scholarly growth and service to the university and/or community."

According to the Clarion University Undergraduate Catalog, Elmore came to Clarion in 1992, and under the APSCUF contract agreement it takes five full years at a university to obtain tenure.

"The lack of regard and sensitivity to this issue has brought to mind and placed in the forefront a number of areas that deans, department chairs and directors seem to be ignoring," said Sean McDonald, of the AASU. "It is our belief that the president supports the issue, concept and idea of diversity. We can only believe that she must be receiving resistance from the respective areas that are charged with the hiring, retention, development of curriculum, financing and allocation of funds that will support her goal.."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Sean McDonald, standing, addresses the AASU (African American Student Union) at last night's meeting concerning Clarion University's commitment to diversity. The group alleges that Dr. Patricia Elmore of the education department unjustly had her contract non-renewed.

The AASU has raised the possibility of holding a "silent demonstration of support on behalf of Dr. Elmore" on Saturday.

The possibility was raised at the Wednesday night meeting, but was not formally approved. According to the proposal, the protest would call for all students to "silently and peacefully exit the main entrance of the gym" at the conclusion of the halftime activities at the basketball game.

The group also called upon students to write letters of support to the chairman of the education department, expressing their concerns and to write letters to their parents informing them "of the ongoing problems that the president seems to be continuing to face in her efforts to create a diverse workforce."

"This is not a black - white student issue," said McDonald. "But an issue of equality - fairness for all students."

According to Dr. Robert Balough, president of the Clarion University APSCUF, no grievance had been filed with the union as of yesterday morning.

Local owners face financial difficulties

Interfraternity Council taxi service closes for reorganization

by Desi Eddins
News Writer

County Taxi of Clarion is temporarily closed for reorganization.

The taxi service fell upon financial difficulties when an investor made an offer to buy the company, but didn't carry through with the offer.

High insurance rates which taxi services must pay because of higher levels of liability contributed to the service's financial situation, also.

Randy Haffly and his wife Carolyn, owners of County Taxi, then discovered cases of alleged theft and vehicle abuse committed by their drivers.

The total financial burden was too much for the company to cope with and forced the decision to end the only taxi service in Clarion.

This family owned taxi service used to provide inexpensive transprtation to the Clarion community, as well as the CUP campus.

With a fee of fifty cents a mile, Haffly said "It's a family business, that's why we were able to keep the prices low."

The Haffly's wanted to provide affordable transportation, "It's more like a community service," explains Haffly.

County Taxi also provided a shuttle service for all Clarion University students.

University organizations such as Interfraternity Council sponsored a contract that provided any student of Clarion University with transportation in the immediate Clarion Area.

"The Taxi service was making twenty to thirty trips per night," according to John Postlewait, advisor of Interfraternity Council.

Postlewait said "The taxi service charged IFC each week for a contract running Thursday through Saturday."

"It did a lot to enhance the safety of the students."

Eventually the program drained the Interfraternity Councils funds and had to be turned over to BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Consciouness Concering the Health of University Students).

BACCHUS is another student organization who helped pick up the tab for the remaining four weeks of the fall semester.

Postelwait said that "We were unable to continue with funding since the budget alloted from Student Senate was cut by 50 percent."

Haffly hopes to reopen the taxi service or at least resume the shuttle service with the university in April.

Haffly's interest in providing the shuttle service was a response to the alledged rapes that took place last semester.

"Something has to be done," Haffly said refering to the jump in alledged sexual assaults.

Clarion district will benefit from grant

POSE program enables rural students to reach for education

by Alicia McCary
News Writer

Five school districts in Clarion, Clearfield and Jefferson counties will benefit from a grant to continue the Program for Scholastic Enrichment (POSE) operated by the Center for Educational Leadership at CUP.

POSE is operated by the Educational Leadership at Clarion University.

POSE is a 12-month program enabling young rural students to strive for education beyond high school; facts show that last year, under the influence of POSE, 100 children successfully made the transition from secondary education to post-secondary schooling.

In the bottom third, among Pennsylvania counties, ranks Clarion, Clearfield and Jefferson, in sending students on to post-secondary education.

The POSE Program has received $75,487 in order to further the project, according to Dr. Richard Deluca, Director of the Center for Education Leadership.

The main source of funding comes from a Rural Initiatives Grant in the amount of $71,217 and is obtained by the State System of Higher Education (SSHE).

Rhonda McMillen, project director, said that this is a "competitive grant" which offers specific funding for this particular program, among others.

The reason for this is that the legislature does not cut the program's funds.

New Bethlehem's Redbank Valley is a new school district that will be joining POSE.

Several school districts such as Brookville, Keystone, DuBois and Union will continue with the program.

Rhonda McMillen and Ron Hoffman, a program assistant, aid DeLuca in conducting the project.

The POSE Program follows four main objectives:

First, to improve scores of 125 10th and 11th grade students on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

Along with the scores, the program wants to increase the student's level of comfort and understanding of the test material. These children take the 3-hour SAT as juniors and seniors in high school as a prerequisite for college admission.

Second, the program serves as a summer academic enrichment program to influence future achievement and post-secondary participation.

Third, the program establishes career exploration and study skills improvement to the 125 middle level students.

Fourth, it allows training and development for parents of juniors and seniors involving academic programs, post-secondary education and financial aid acceptance.

McMillen announced that the SAT portion of the POSE Program will begin once the students are chosen for the program.

This particular area of the program has existed for one year.

Plans have been altered, and it will now be taught over one semester, in each respective school district, by teachers who have taken a training course at Clarion University.

The participants of the SAT portion, will receive direct and computer instructions.

The participants will also attend cultural and enrichment activities, which include traveling to see things such as the ballet and visiting Pittsburgh.

A student in the program may require extra support in improving the areas of academic school standing and/or encouragement to continue with post-secondary education.

The middle level studies program offers career exploration and study skills workshops.

Parents of students involved in the SAT or Summer program, are welcome to attend the survey sessions listed below to gain further knowledge of post-secondary education.

A parent workshop series will also be planned once a needs assessment survey is completed.

Those involved in the planning stages at home school districts are:

Brookville-Superintendent Dr. John Grottenhaler and counselors Jim Stanley and Steve Best (junior high).

DuBois-Superintendent Michael Ferko and counselors Bill Hand and Ann Buzzell (junior high).

Keystone-Superintendent Dr. Jerry Darlington and counselors Jan Leiber and Tammy McHenry.

Redbank Valley-Superintendent Dr. David Farley and counselors Ed Janik and Deborah Boozer.

Union-Superintendent Robert McWilliams and counselor Carol Bliss.

"The program is getting positive responses from the children involved as well as supportive information from parents and counselors," McMillen said.

One of the seventh grade students in the program says that "POSE was a very helpful program for me.

"I'm sure it was useful to other people, too.

"Maybe for next year you could consider having more people in the program," she said.

"POSE was also very fun to be a part of," added Cortnee Reynolds from Brookville.

"Great program! I hope you can get the funds to keep it going," said Autumn Smith, Brookville.

"It was very interesting," said Erin Knoblock, DuBois.

McMillen reported that there are currently other programs beginning to grasp the same enrichment program, which in turn support rural children.

McMillan said that the basis for this conception is to forward this information to other areas in order to establish a similar program.

The students participating in the different portions of POSE, are to be selected by the home districts and a Clarion University review board.

"The program is getting positive responses from the children involved as well as supportive information from parents and counselors."

Sexual assault forum held

added.

Shaffer reminded the audience of a fallen Soviet society which had an extremely low crime rate.

"We can give you a safe society," said Shaffer, "but you wouldn't want to live in it."

Holly Johnson, president of S.T.A.R., called ours a "rape fostering society" through apathy and a tolerance of the status quo. Johnson suggested that dissatisfied citizens remember their frustrations with "the system" on election day.

CUP Director of Public Safety Dr. Ron Martinazzi addressed the issue of alcohol being involved in many of the sexual assault cases on college campuses across the nation.

Kevin Miko, a member of S.T.A.R., challenged fraternities to send their pledge members to awareness classes on the alcohol and sexual assault issues.

That brought a heated rebuttal from Mark Blackwell, Inter Fraternity Council Sexual Harassment Representative, who said recent articles in the campus newspaper had given his organization a "bad image" and charged that when he asked campus organizations to set up classes and seminars to help educate fraternity members on sexual assault and harassment his request went unanswered.

Blackwell's charge was not denied, but another audience member injected she had seen posters for "Rush Week" which portrayed women in a demeaning way.

Rush week is when students attend activities of different fraternities to get a feel of what the fraternity is like before pledging to join the fraternity of their choice.

Blackwell said such posters are now banned. "That was in the past," explained Blackwell in a follow-up interview, "I've seen nothing of that nature this semester. The past is the past."

Another questioner asked the panel if it was true rape victim's parents were automatically notified of a reported sexual assault.

Martinazzi explained parents were notified only if the alleged victim is under 18 years of age.

Clarion University President Diane Reinhard closed the forum by asking all in attendance to "work together to stop this plague."

Other members of the forum's panel included student peer counselors from the Rape Crisis Center and members of the CUP faculty.

"Don't bring people into your bedroom," stressed Shaffer. "Of course in the college setting, your home is your bedroom, but it's a reality that some men believe once in the bedroom they have an open invitation to pursue sexual relations.

"If you're meeting someone in a bar, and it's the first time you have met them, don't invite them home," suggested Shaffer, "It just doesn't bode well."

Shaffer went on to distinguish between acquaintance attacks and random attacks.

"You have to have survival skills," explained Shaffer regarding random attacks. "Watch you body language and watch what you say with your body. Don't knell in front of anyone, don't bend over to pick up something off the ground. In doing such you put yourself in a position that is perceived by some men as a display of submissiveness."

"Don't permit an invasion of your body space," added Shaffer, "don't allow unwelcomed touching, even if it's just someone putting their arm around you.

"I've seen situations in bars where guys put their hats on females, and they (females) shouldn't allow that. To some men, by doing that with the hat, they're in a sense claiming possession of that person."

"There are two ways to learn about sexual assault," said Shaffer, "One is to experience it, and the other is to learn about it through education.

"And it's far better to be educated about (sexual assault) than to experience it."

After 57 mutilations, convicted Russian killer Chikatilo is executed

Russian executes killer

Russia's worst killer, Andrei Chikatilo, 57, a former teacher convicted of mutilating and killing 52 women and children, was executed yesterday.

Chikatilo was convicted in Rostov-on-Don in October 1992 after giving a detailed confession of the grisly murders.

President Boris Yeltsin had rejected his plea for a pardon last week.

Bosnian war crimes

Bosnian refugees believe at least 100 Serbs and Croats seen in Germany committed war atrocities in former Yugoslavia, a human rights group said yesterday.

One of them, Dusko Tadic, was arrested Monday on suspicion that he is a Bosninan Serb who tortured and murdered inmates at detention camps in Northwestern Bosnia.

German prosecutors condemned Tadic in announcing his arrest Monday and were expected to try to put him on trial in Bonn.

Gaza prison dismantled

Occupied Gaza Strip - Soldiers putting the Israel-PLO accord on Palestinian autonomy into action yesterday began taking down a prison holding Palestinians.

Hundreds of Palestinians watched as flatbed trucks pulled seven trailer barracks out of Gaza Central Prison, which holds 850 Palestinians.

The army spokesman's office refused to comment, but a military source confirmed that the move was part of the army's redeployment plan and that it was done in daylight to boost morale among Gazans disheartened by the slow progress in Israel-PLO negotiations.

6 shot in restaurant

A disgruntled employee opened fire on a lunch-time crowd at a Wendy's fast-food restaurant in Oklahoma yesterday, shooting six people including high school students, according to police and hospital reports.

Five of the victims were either in serious, stable or fair condition, and one was sent home after being treated for a gunshot wound to the leg, hospital spokeswomen said.

Police arrested Marcus Muriel Thompson, 26, a Wendy's employee, saying that he "came in early and was expecting a pay raise and didn't get it."

Torture victims win suit

Six democratic activists tortured by the Haitian military have won a multimillion dollar federal lawsuit against a former dictator.

The lawsuit was filed in February 1991 against former Lt. Gen. prosper Avril, who led Haiti in the late 1980s.

He lived briefly in Florida after he was de-posed, but returned to Haiti following the 1991 coup that returned the military to power.

In yesterday's decision, Palermo ruled that Avril had defaulted by not participating in the case, and awarded judgment to the six activists, who include Evans Paul, the elected mayor of Port-au-Prince.

Paul was forced into hiding after the military takeover.

U.S. condemns Iran

The United States yesterday condemned Iran for repeating its threat to kill British author Salman Rushdie five years after issuing its original "death sentence." The fifth anniversary of the religious decree ordering Rushdie's death fell Nonday. Iran marked the day by stating that Rushdie must die. "The sentence has to be carried out irrespective of whether the apostate repents or not" the Iranian News Agency IRNA said of the Indian-born British author of "The Satanic Verses."

AIDS among alcoholics

Far more U.S. heterosexual alcoholics who say they never used needles to shoot drugs are infected with the AIDS virus than previous research suggested, researchers said yesterday. The sudy, based on a sample of 888 people in the San Francisco area, found that 3 percent of men and 4 percent of women who were infected.

By contrast, a 1992 random survey conducted in San Francisco found only 0.5 percent of heterosexual non-drug-using males and 0.2 percent of females were infected.

Crime bill pushed

President Clinton yesterday pressured Congress to pass a tough crime bill but warned against putting, violent offenders behind bars for life.

Bad gifts amount to $4 billion loss

A Yale University economist has discovered what you knew all along - that bug-ugly sweater Aunt Eunice gave you for Christmas was a total waste of money.

In a recent article titled "The Deadweight Loss of Christmas" in the December issue of The American Economic Review, Professor Joe Waldfogel calculated that between 10 percent and 35 percent of the value of all holiday gifts is destroyed, which amounted to about $4 billion last year.

"That's a lot of fruitcake and knick-knacks," he said. "And the figure could easily top $10 billion if we include gift-giving at Hanukkah, birthdays, bar-mitzvahs and weddings."

Waldfogel, who specializes in law and economics, got interested in the subject after he inventoried his personal stash of unusable gifts: two cribbage boards (he doesn't play); an array of fuzzy slippers (he doesn't wear them), and several "perfectly horrible" sweaters.

Waldfogel based his research on a survey of 75 Yale undergraduates in his class last year.

The students were asked to list 246 non-cash gifts they had received for Christmas, the estimated cost of the items and how much the student valued the present.

The economist said the purpose of the survey wasn't to play Scrooge with the spirit of Christmas.

"My gripe with Christmas is not the excess of gifts exchanged, but rather that the gifts are often mismatched with their recipients' preferences," he said.

Waldfogel notes that the survey doesn't accurately assess one important factor - how much pleasure the gift-giver gets out of the process even if the recipient thinks the present is a dud.

One interesting trend noted: Immediate family members and close friends tended to give each other gifts that were more highly valued than presents from extended family members and acquaintances.

Wanna stay healthy? Love someone

Everybody knows that love makes you feel good, but a Southern Connecticut State University researcher says the effects of l'amor on health are more profound than most people imagine.

Loving and being loved have measurable physiological effects, the most important of which is strengthening the immune system.

This prevents a host of diseases, including cancer, said Jerry Ainsworth, a professor of physical education who teaches a course on love and health.

After an investigation by Public Safety, a female student was cited for Harassment after she participated in making harassing telephone calls to another student.

During the blood drive which took place on February 7 in the Gemmell Complex, an unknown person gave blood and used another person's name on the sign-in form. Under investigation.

Only the GE Classic MasterCard® offers students this unequaled package of benefits.

9.9% APR The GE Classic MasterCard is the educated choice for students looking for smart ways to save. Lifestyle

Students regress to the Age of Aquarius

by Christy Williams
Lifestyles Writer

Sex, drugs, rock-n-roll, hippies, free love, outrageous and revealing clothing, protesting and all the other controversies that surrounded the era of the Vietnam War are all returning to Clarion University on February, 16, in the University production of the American Tribal Love-Rock Musical "Hair."

Twenty five years ago, "Hair" made its extraordinary debut on Broadway, and from February 16-19, at 8 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium, Clarion University will return to the late 1960's in this classical musical.

"A 25-year-old car is considered a classic," says Marilouise Michel, assistant professor of speech communication and theatre and the director of this production. "This makes 'Hair' a classic too, and we are staging it in honor of the anniversary."

"Hair", written by James Rado and Gerome Ragni, relates the story of the dawning of the "Age of Aquarius" as seen through the wild and crazy eyes of the hippie movement in New York City. Part nostalgia and part history, the play expresses the aura and the story of the summer of love, the summer of 1969.

"The spirit of 'Hair' is really joyful. The characters think they have the answers to fight the government. They learn both good and bad things from their experience," says Michel. "To me the hippie movement marks the passing of the end of innocence of the United States that began with the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

"We are looking at this production as a period piece. We are trying to represent accurately this particular culture of people. By no means does this represent that we advocate their behavior or values. Hopefully as a society we have learned from the experimentational lifestyles of the 60's, but for me to try and soften it would be a misrepresentation of the piece."

Michel explained that several students in her multi-racial cast were apprehensive about the production are now enjoying it.

"It is hard for someone born in the 1970's to realize that half of the United States was protesting against the armed forces in the Vietnam War," says Michel. "It was a real stretch for some of them to grasp this fact. They are learning a lot about the time period and the sometimes harsh lessons learned from it."

The cast has been rehearsing diligently for the past four weeks. "The rehearsals are intense," claims Brian Bazala, a junior speech communications theatre major playing the role of Claude. "Every scene is exciting and fun. It is such a communal show. I've learned so much about being part of a community. That just sums up the whole show.

"I see a lot of today's society in the show. The fashion stuff is obvious-the bell bottoms and the Native American look. But the show also relates rediscovery of spirituality and harmony and the cast relates to that well," says Bazala.

Cast-member Holly Sena, sophomore BFA/theatre major portraying Crissy, also sees similarities between today's society and the society of hippie generation.

"The attitudes are still the same, I think. Generations do repeat themselves." states Sena. "A lot of the fashions of the sixties are back in style along with the drugs and the attitudes-except for the indiscreetness of sex. Because of AIDS, sex cannot be like it was anymore."

In the original performances of "Hair" nudity was part of the script. The question buzzing around Clarion, therefore, is-will the University's performance include nudity?

When asked this question Sena commented, "Clarion needs a shock. I think we live in the dark ages, at least as far as theatre is concerned. There are some definite shocks in the show. It is a controversial show. We are supposed to keep it a surprise, though. Just, everyone come with an open mind."

Upon the subject of possible nudity, Bazala commented, "You'll have to come and find out for yourself. The performance is rated PG-13, let's just leave it at that."

"Hair features many well known songs including the title song, "Aquarius," and "Let the Sun Shine In."

Leading the cast are: Jeff Powell, Kristen Spannagel, D.J. Sylvis, LaDonna Morton, Brian Bazala, Marion Russel, Christian Pratt, Holly Sena, Dan Brady, Wes Craig, Tammy Ball, Mark Tachna, Ric Fredrick, John Moffett, Melissa Mong, Vanessa Owens, Delphine Djossou, Michelle Handa, and Michelle Timko.

Tickets are on sale at the Gemmell Service desk, and they will also be sold at the door. The price of the tickets for the production is $6 for adults and $5 for children. University students with valid identification cards are admitted free. For additional information or to obtain tickets call (814) 226-2459.

The cast of "Hair" will bring you peace, love and happiness through Saturday, February 19.

Famous leaders

A tribute to Black History Month

Isabella Baum Free, popularly known as Sohourner Truth, became famous in her lifetime as a preacher, abolitionist and lecturer.

She was born in Hurley, Vester County, New York. From a very young age she spoke to God, and she believed that He spoke to her. For years she sought her image of God in a man.

Sohourner Truth is known to have been freed from slavery by the New York Emancipation Act of 1827.

After the Civil War , she advocated equal treatment of Afro-Americans, particularly in matters relating to education. She was a true champion of women's rights.

She died on November 26, 1883, at her home in Battle Creek. Her funeral and the Congregational Church was said to have been the largest ever held in the town.

Organ donation: The gift of a lifetime

CORE manages a region that extends in western and central Pennsylvania, southern New York and West Virginia. Since 1990, the organ transplant centers in the CORE service area have performed over 3,000 transplants.

But you can only hear so many statistics, right? The only person who can make the decision to donate is yourself. However, if you proudly display the little sticker on the back of your driver's license, that is not a legal document. A donor's card must be signed and properly witnessed to be a legally-binding document.

Your family plays an extremely important role in the decision of donation. Patricia Kail, Director of Communications of CORE in Pittsburgh, cannot stress that enough.

"When the time comes, when that option has been discussed and decided on, more families rest more easily after they make that decision," said Kail. The potential donors need to make their wishes clear to their family, and they must have their consent.

These donors cards, along with other information, are available and on display at the front desk of Becht Hall. Supplied by CORE and presented by Jennifer Jenkins, resident assistant of Becht Hall, this information may or may not change your mind about organ and tissue donation.

There are, however, many myths and misconceptions that people have that stop them from deciding to donate. The top ten list is displayed in Becht Hall, but the top five are as follows:

5) MYTH — I am not the right age for donation.

ACTUAL — Organs may be donated even from a newborn. There is absolutely no age limit for donors.

4) MYTH — If I am in an accident, the doctors won't save my life if I am a donor.

ACTUAL — The medical team treating you is separate from the transplant team. CORE is not even notified until all life-saving efforts have failed, death is determined and your family has consented to donation.

3) MYTH — If I do donate, they might take everything.

ACTUAL — You may specify what organs you want donated. Your wishes will be followed.

2) MYTH — My family would be expected to pay for my donation(s).

ACTUAL — A donor's family is not charged for donation.

1) MYTH — My body will be mutilated.

ACTUAL — Donated organs are removed surgically in a routine operation. Normal funeral arrangements are possible.

Donor Week is April 17-23, when a special ceremony will be held to honor those who have donated. Pittsburgh's Market Square and Erie's Perry Square will be the two locations for the major events scheduled.

By becoming an organ/tissue donor, you will provide those who are forced to wait and hope for a chance to live healthy, normal lives, a second chance for life.

For more information, visit the Becht Hall display, or call CORE toll-free at 800-DONORS-7 (366-6777).

Local radio station to change format

by Megan Casey
Lifestyles Writer

The local radio station WCCR, better known as C-93 FM, will soon be changing to a top-40 format.

WCCR, which has been broadcasting since 1985, is changing the format of the station so it can become more beneficial to the community.

"We think people will like the newer stuff, and we want something that the local businesses can play in their stores," says disc jockey Michael Drozdo, a Clarion graduate. He describes the new format as "top 40 without the heavy metal and rap."

The man responsible for the change from classic rock to the new format is station manager/owner Bill Hearst. In addition to an appropriate format for businesses, the station wants a younger audience and wants to convey more of a drug-free message.

Community benefit has also been the motive for other changes made at the station. A 6-11 a.m. morning show, with Drozdo at the microphone, was added about a month ago. The C-93 Road Show is available for dances, weddings or any organization's activities.

There has also been a personnel change in the news department. Drozdo invites anyone to call in their organization's events.

"We are here for the community and anyone who has anything to report should call in," says Drozdo. The number of the station is 226-9600.

The actual date of the format change will be publicized prior to the change.

Campus organization to be PROUD of

by Anita Carbon
Lifestyles Writer

What do Beethoven and Tom Cruise have in common? Both are successful people who have proven their abilities despite their disabilities.

Tom Cruise has dyslexia and Beethoven was hearing impaired. How aware are you of your fellow students with disabilities? PROUD (People Reaching Out and Understanding Disabilities) is an organization on campus which promotes awareness and understanding of disabilities.

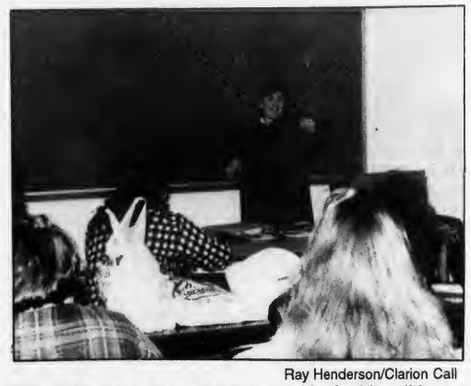

PROUD will have an awareness week March 7-11. Blue ribbons will be distributed in residence halls on Monday to kick off the week. The movie "Benny and Joon," a story of mental illness will be shown on Tuesday. The time and location for the movie will be announced.

On Wednesday, you can visit the second floor Rotunda Lounge in Gemmell from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to find out what it really feels like to have a disability. Use crutches or a wheelchair to get through an obstacle course. See how a TDD/TTY (teletypewriter device) works for people who are deaf or hearing impaired. Try on special glasses to experience visual impairment and read some books in Braille. Pamphlet information on disabilities will also be available.

Thursday at 8:15 p.m., the University choir and show choir will perform a benefit concert under the direction of Mr. Milutin Lazich. The location will be announced. Admission is free and donations will benefit interaction between people with disabilities and PROUD members.

PROUD, along with PSEA and CEC (Council for Exceptional Children), will be working in the Tippen pool with children from Riverview Intermediate Unit in April. PROUD also plans to help with the Special Olympics in the spring.

President Mary Patterson and Vice-President Lou Bennetti welcome all visitors to the next PROUD meeting on Monday, February 21 at 6:30 p.m. in 202 Davis Hall.

Cedar Point to hold job interviews at CUP

courtesy of Cedar Point

Does your dream job include sun, sand and fun? If so, Cedar Point just may have what you're hoping for.

The Sandusky, Ohio, amusement park/resort will interview Clarion University students for seasonal jobs on Wednesday, February 23 at the Gemmell Student Complex from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. No appointment is necessary and prior experience is not required for most positions. Interviews are reserved for enrolled students.

"This summer will be an especially great time to work at Cedar Point," said David Hensley, employment manager. "We are building a new roller coaster called Raptor that is the newest innovation in thrill ride technology. It is already generating so much excitement, and our employees will be a big part of that."

For employment, Cedar Point is looking for enthusiastic individuals who enjoy working with the public. They have more than 3,500 positions in 100 different classifications of jobs to fill.

Wages start at $4.25 per hour for most jobs and $4.50 per hour for food hosts and hostesses. Employees who fulfill their Employment Agreement will be eligible for a new two-tiered bonus program that will allow employees to earn additional wages for every hour worked. Most employees will work a six-day, 48-hour week with the opportunity for additional hours during the peak season.

Cedar Point is one of the largest seasonal employers in the Midwest. Some employees may receive college or university credit for a job in their major field. Cedar Point also works with the schools to help establish internships in various departments.

Employees at Cedar Point enjoy many benefits, including cost-free special events six nights a week. An entire department is devoted to organizing activities such as ride time on Raptor, the park's new world-record-breaking inverted roller coaster, movie nights, dances, bingo, picnics, intramural sports, area trips and contests. A weekly employee newsletter allows workers to gain writing experience by submitting articles.

Housing is available for employees 18 years of age or older living farther than a 25-mile geographical radius from the park. With parental consent, housing is also offered to high school graduates who are 17 years old.

Free tutoring offered to children

by Sharyl Shelhamer
Contributing Writer

Phi Eta Sigma, the National Freshman Honor Society, is offering free tutoring to children of Clarion University's faculty, staff and RACS members.

For three years, Phi Eta Sigma has been tutoring kids in subjects from trigonometry to Spanish to elementary reading. Over 30 children ranging from elementary to high school ages have been successfully tutored through this program.

Phi Eta Sigma is an organization devoted to academic excellence contingent upon freshman year performance. Members have met the eligibility requirement of having a 3.50 QPA after their first freshman semester or a cumulative 3.50 after their freshman year. The members are attempting to spread their ideal academic excellence to the community through their free tutoring program.

Students in need of tutoring are given individual attention in the subject they need most by a member of Phi Eta Sigma who has shown interest and skill in that subject. Typically, the tutoring sessions are once a week for about an hour in Carlson Library, but they can be tailored to a specific student's needs.

If you know a child that is in need of help in a subject, or if you would like further information, contact Dr. Donald Nair, advisor of Phi Eta Sigma at (814)226-2255. You may also call Phi Eta Sigma's president, Sean Boileau at (814) 226-3674.

IFC elects new executive board

by Kelly Jones
Greek Affairs Writer

On February 1, the Interfraternity Council (IFC) at Clarion installed the new executive board for the 1994 school year. This is the first time that the officers have been installed using the ceremony prescribed from the National Interfraternity Council. This was done to show that a new era is beginning with this year's executive board. This year's IFC looks to be the most promising in the last five years.

The 1994 executive board consists of the following members: President Shaun Taylor (Sigma Phi Epsilon, fall 1990) was the past IFC Treasurer. Vice-President Jamie Krugger (Kappa Delta Rho, fall 1992) was the past IFC representative and is currently a member of Student Senate.

Secretary Kelly Jones (Alpha Chi Rho, fall 1992) was the past president of the Crow chapter at Clarion. Treasurer Pete Talento (Kappa Delta Rho, spring 1993) is currently the social chair for his fraternity. Historian Jeff Hensler (Sigma Chi, spring 1993) is currently the secretary of his chapter at Clarion.

John Postlewait, the IFC advisor helped to swear in the new executive board by first swearing in the president who discharged his duty and swore the rest of the officers in. Since the start of the semester, Postlewait has been commenting on the resilience of the new executive board and their dedication to their work. This dedication has been demonstrated in the amount of time and work put forth by the executive board.

The many hours that the new officers have put in this semester have demonstrated that things need to be changed. The areas that have been concentrated on are many, but are vital to the development of a better Greek system here at Clarion.

The addition of an IFC calendar to help keep track of all the scheduled events this semester so that no one is left in the dark about anything going on with Greeks here at Clarion. Another service that runs in spirit with the IFC taxi that started last semester, is the bus trip to IUP sponsored by the IFC. For $11 you receive a round-trip to IUP from Clarion.

Another area of interest that is being focused on is the improvement of the individual chapters here at Clarion. This is started with the new Alcohol/Anti-Hazing workshop developed by IFC for use this semester, to better inform new Greek associate members of their rights and responsibilities to the Greek community at Clarion.

The other areas that new programs have been developed are scholarship, a program that will help the chapters better utilize the services of the school and how to enforce grade requirements for the holding of offices in their individual chapters.

Rush has another important area this semester. As in last semester, a rush seminar was held to try to teach chapters to rush "smarter." Along with these workshops, there are chapter president/advisor meetings starting next month to keep in better contact with each other and improve Greek relations.

At the end of the month, the executive board will attend NEIFC, the North Eastern Interfraternity Conference. This is held once a year for Greek leaders to come together and learn new things to help their campuses. This year, the Clarion IFC was nominated for six awards including the outstanding advisor award. In keeping with this, a new award was created here for the Outstanding Chapter that is a member of IFC. This is rated on various criteria including the best all-men's grade point average on campus.

This time of change is exemplified in the idea to charter the Order of Omega, an honorary Greek fraternity based on scholarship, leadership and character. These are three things that the new officers have done, exemplifying this in their actions so far this semester.

WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-While the Lorena Bobbitt trial was making news during December and January, at least five instances of assaults on men's genitals were reported. A 55-year-old man in Wooster, Ohio, and a 23-year-old man in Arcadia, Florida removed their own penises (with a knife and an electric saw, respectively) because of dissatisfaction with their gender. A Toronto woman shredded her husband's with a pair of scissors during a domestic fight. In Los Angeles, a man reconciled with his wife a month after she was charged with cutting off his testicles in a domestic fight. An in Jefferson, Georgia, a 35-year-old woman was charged with ripping the skin off her ex-boyfriend's testicles with her bare hands in a domestic brawl.

-A Philadelphia Inquirer analysis in December questioned military rulings that suicide was the cause of at least 40 recent deaths U.S. servicemen. The newspaper quoted former military investigators who said they were "stunned" or "astonished" at how shoddy some of the 40 investigations were, and how the military often calls hard-to-solve cases suicides just to close them out. In one case, a military policeman's death was ruled a suicide two days after he was found shot to death in the head with his hat stuffed in his mouth, his handcuffs attached to his wrists, his holster wrapped around his ankles, and a car radio cable tied around his neck.

-A December Associated Press dispatch from Australia reports that members of Parliament traditionally address each other much more aggressively than members of Congress do in the U.S. Among the names recently overheard on the floor of the Parliament: perfumed gigolos, brain-damaged, harlot, sleaze-bag, scumbag, mental patient and dog's vomit.

-In October, for the second time, the Air Force revealed that it had lost an $18 million F-16 fighter plane because the pilot was unable to control the aircraft while using his "piddle pack" during in-flight urination. The previous F-16 crash was in March 1991. Both pilots ejected safely.

-Diana Brook Smith, 37, who pleaded guilty in the death of a man in 1990 in Kinsey, Alabama was charged in December with tampering with the man's grave. Allegedly, she had started to dig up the casket in order to open it and prove that the man was not really dead.

-In Labouchere Bay, Alaska, in November, Cairl D. Cothren, 50, accidentally shot himself in the shoulder with the shotgun he was holding between his knees in the cab of a truck when he leaned over to spit tobacco juice into a can on the floor.

-Jacqueline Clinton, 29, was found guilty of manslaughter in Toledo, Ohio in January in the shooting of her boyfriend. According to her, the shooting occurred during an argument over differing interpretations of the Bible.

-Police in Santa Rosa, California went door-to-door in January to warn residents that a 6-foot python had escaped from a bathtub down a drain and that they should keep their bathroom doors closed and their toilet seats down.

Dave Barry (c) 1994 Miami Herald

Dave does Lillehammer

LILLEHAMMER, Norway — I have located Norway. It turns out to be right next to, but different from, Sweden. Also I'm pretty sure that Finland is around here someplace.

Getting here was not easy. My flight from New York to Oslo sat on the ground at Kennedy Airport for THREE AND A HALF HOURS while the pilot came up with a series of increasingly lame excuses for the delay: He was waiting for connecting passengers; the dog ate his flight plan; vandals had stolen the landing gear; etc. I believe that the pilot was actually stalling because he didn't know for sure where Norway was. I bet that, between announcements, he and his flight crew were frantically thumbing through volume "N" of the World Book Encyclopedia, looking for the Norway section. ("Here it is! It's an inert gas!" "No, you idiot! That's 'nitrogen'!")

But eventually they figured it out, and we took off and found Norway, which is a darned good thing because the U.S. bobsled team was on our flight. Most of the team members were large, muscular individuals. You need to be big and strong for this event, because at the beginning of the bobsled run you have to push the sled hard and get it going very fast, and then, just as the sled starts hurtling down the steep, icy, treacherous track at speeds upwards of 80 mph, you have to — in one smooth, fluid motion — let go of the sled and fall down.

At least that's what I would do. The team members, however, actually get INTO the sled, where they are jammed together in a tiny, uncomfortable space, very similar to the seat I occupied during the 247-hour flight from New York to Oslo, except without the beverage-cart service.

Speaking of which, I noted that one of the bobsled team members had several rum drinks. I pointed this out to veteran sportswriter Dave Kindred.

"It's OK," Kindred said. "He doesn't steer."

Anyway, we finally arrived in Norway. It is a Nordic country, defined, technically, as "a country where they have a funny little diagonal line going through the letter 'o.'" Not counting reindeer and fish, Norway's population is very small. I probably met most of the residents right at the airport, and they all seem very nice. They also speak excellent English, a fact that makes Norway seem quite foreign to me, inasmuch as I live in Miami.

As for the country itself, if I were to describe it in one word, that word would be "cold." There is snow all over the place. I don't wish to be critical of the Olympic Committee, but in my opinion, when you're planning a major event such as the Winter Olympics, with people coming from all over the world, it makes a lot more sense to hold it in a warmer climate, or during the summer.

But that is a water over the dam (or, as we say in Norway, "Vatter uver da vatterholder-bakker"). We are here now, and we are going to make the best of it. Besides, there are many exciting stories to cover, including:

1. Tonya Harding.
2. The U.S. speed skaters, and what they think about Tonya Harding.
3. Norway's emergence as a modern industrial nation, and whether this is fair to Tonya Harding.

I plan to cover all these stories and more in the days ahead. Unless this would require me to go outside.

Lady Eagles looking strong

Women crush two more conference foes

by Tondalaya Carey
Sports Writer

The Clarion Lady Eagles took two more steps towards yet another PSAC West crown by defeating Edinboro and Lock Haven this past week.

They currently stand at 18-3 overall with a conference record of 8-1.

On Wednesday the Eagles played host to the Lady Scots of Edinboro University. Sedessa Grushecki scored shortly after the opening tip off for Edinboro, and it was the last lead that Edinboro would see.

Amy Coon started off the scoring for Clarion, sinking a layup and then nailing a three pointer. Shannon Coakley and Carlita Jones both made lay-ins, and Mona Gaffney netted a couple of baskets.

Edinboro had been somewhat close for parts of the game, but Clarion began to pull away for good at the ten minute mark of the half. Joy Brown hit a trey to make the score 18-9. This was followed by a Jones layup and a Coon layup. Coon then hit a three pointer and the lead was 14.

April Thompson finished the half with two baskets and Clarion took the lead into halftime with a score of 45-27.

It was more of the same in the second half for Clarion as they started off with a Coakley jumper, and a Coakley three pointer and scored the first seven points of the half.

Clarion continued to spread the wealth well, scoring from both inside and out, and completely picking apart the Lady Scots.

Thompson closed out the scoring for Clarion with six points in the final two minutes and Clarion coasted to an 89-56 victory.

For the game, Coon exploded for 25 points, including 7 for 14 shooting from three point range. She also had four steals.

Coakley had 19 points, five rebounds, six assists, and five steals. Jones had 13 points, 14 boards and two blocks, and Gaffney finished with eight points, nine rebounds, and two blocks.

Saturday, Clarion traveled to Lock Haven where they were to meet the Lady Bald Eagles in a double header with the men.

Lock Haven entered the game with a 10-8 mark, 4-3 in the PSAC West.

Clarion started off quickly again, scoring the first eight points of the game. Gaffney started off the game with a basket and Amy Migyanka and Coon both hit three pointers shortly thereafter.

Lock Haven kept fighting, but Clarion kept a safe distance ahead.

However, Shannon Bowers scored six unanswered points in a two minute span and Clarion had only a four point as they entered the locker room.

In the second half, Lock Haven scored quickly and Clarion's lead was a narrow two points.

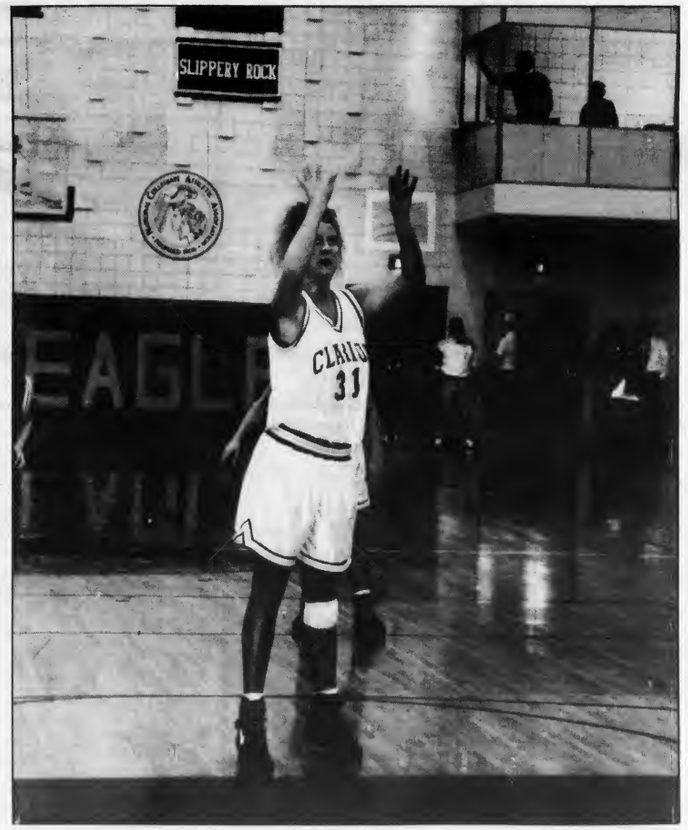

The two teams played neck and neck for the rest of the half, and it was even as close as two points with 5:27 to go.

Migyanka, however, hit a trey. Coon also hit from beyond the three point line, and Migyanka hit another shot. The lead was seven, but Lock Haven again slid to within three.

Gaffney then fouled out at the four minute mark, and frontcourt mate Jones followed a minute later.

By this time the lead was seven so the fouls were not as damaging as they could have been.

Coon proceeded to sink another three pointer to make the lead ten and April Thompson made a shot, was fouled, and followed up by making the free throw. Coakley ended the game with a foul shot. The final score read 82-68, but it was much closer than the score would indicate.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call
Shannon Coakley attempts a free throw against Lock Haven. She had 19 points, four rebounds and four assists against the Lady Bald Eagles.

For the game, Jones had 17 points and 12 rebounds, Coon had 19 points and three steals, Migyanka had 15 points and six assists, Coakley had 19 points and three steals and Gaffney had six points and six boards before fouling out.

Migyanka, Coon and Coakley teamed for 11 of 23 shooting from three point land. Going inside was tough, so the Eagles used their outside game effectively.

"There were times we could have got the ball inside but Amy(Coon) was hitting threes, and sometimes we were running on a break and just took one shot," Migyanka said. "Sometimes when we got the ball inside, the shots just didn't go in. It was a tough game."

Coon added, "The referees were bad. They weren't making very good calls. They were calling stuff on us but not on the other side."

Coon noted that it seemed as if in the past few years, the referees have gotten tougher and tougher on Clarion.

As far as Clarion's good outside shooting game, "They packed it in down low. We were setting good picks and taking our time (shooting)."

Migyanka said, "I just took my time and took my shot when I saw that I was open."

Coon currently has 333 career three pointers and needs only 11 to break the NCAA Division II record.

Coakley is not far behind with 314 treys in her career at Clarion.

Clarion next plays this Saturday at home against Indiana, and then they go on the road to close out conference play at California in a game that will match the two best teams in the PSAC West.

Clarion closes out their season February 26 with a home game against Gannon.

Clarion will then be getting geared up to start the national playoffs which begin on March 4th. The Eagles certainly have a strong chance of making it to the Final Four.

Men's basketball team splits two games

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Last Wednesday, the Clarion University Men's Basketball Team played host to Edinboro. Earlier in the season, the fighting Scots had beaten the Eagles badly, and Clarion knew that they were in for a tough test.

Edinboro entered the game with a tough all around team, and Price Williams, the fourth leading scorer in the PSAC.

Clarion started off the game well, as Steve Branch hit a layup 30 seconds into the game. In fact, Branch had eight of the team's first 10 points in what would ultimately be a 22 point performance.

Clarion fell down by as many as eight early in the game, but Coach Ron Righter took a time out and tried to get his team to regroup. After the time out Kwame Morton proceeded to nail a three pointer as did Brian Paige shortly thereafter. After another Branch lay in, a Paige layup and a Morton jumper, Clarion suddenly had a two point lead.

The remainder of the half was played tightly until about the five minute mark when Oronn Brown drove for a layup and Morton was fouled shooting a three pointer. After nailing all three free throws, Clarion's lead had grown to nine. However, Edinboro went on a 10-0 run to end the half and Clarion trailed by one going into the locker room.

The second half stayed close until the midway point when Edinboro pulled out to a nine point lead. The closest Clarion would get after that was eight, after Morton made his third three pointer of the game with 2:37 to go. Clarion then fouled to put Edinboro on the line, but the Scots made six of eight free throws to seal up the game and a 98-82 victory.

Morton finished with 29 points, 12 rebounds and eight assists. Branch had 22 points, nine boards, and two blocks. Paige had 13 points and six rebounds. Brown had nine points, six assists, and five steals.

Clarion then went on the road to take on Lock Haven University. Morton started off hot this time, netting 10 of Clarion's first 14. Clarion led for most of the first half, but went in at half time tied as Chad McKinney hit a three pointer shortly before the period expired.

In the second half, Clarion improved their game, shooting 60 percent from the field as compared to 39 percent in the first half.

However, neither team could take command of the game until Morton hit a three pointer with 3:25 remaining. That made the score 71-66.

Lock Haven then narrowed the lead to two, and put Paige on the line with 10 seconds to play. Brown sank both free throws to extend the lead to four. McKinney then hit a shot to make it a two point game, and Lock Haven called a quick time out. However, they were not able to capitalize as Clarion safely inbounded the ball and Ian Whyte put one in with one second on the clock to make the final score 81-77.

Morton led all scorers with 30, to go with four steals. Paige had 19 points and six rebounds, and Whyte had 17 points, 12 boards, and two blocks.

Clarion will play Saturday at home against IUP. The Indians are ranked #2 in the nation, and beat the Golden Eagles earlier in this season by a score of 98-78.

Notes: IUP is just three wins away from setting a school record of 21 consecutive wins set in 68-69. The Indians are 21-1 over the last two seasons in Memorial Field House. Four of their last six PSAC Games are at home.

Kwame Morton has a streak of 72 games with at least one three point field goal.

Morton has 757 points on the season. He needs only 93 points to break the conference single season record of 849 points, held by California's Kenny Toomer.

Toomer set his record in 33 games. If Kwame is to break the record, he will have done it in only 26.

Morton leads the PSAC in treys made per game, and Branch leads the conference in rebounds.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Oronn Brown drives in for a layup under the basket. Against Edinboro he dished out six assists and had five steals. He is currently fourth in the nation in steals.

Golden Eagle wrestlers beat up on Pitt

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

On Sunday, Feb. 13, the Clarion University wrestling team traveled to North Allegheny High School to take on the University of Pittsburgh.

Pitt entered the match with an impressive team, but the Golden Eagles are ranked sixth in the nation.

Clarion got on the board first with Sheldon Thomas, Clarion's 118 pounder scoring a 4-1 victory over Chris Stevens. Thomas' record is now 20-5.

At 126 pounds, Clarion's Bob Crawford scored a technical fall over Eric Knopsnyder to give the Eagles an 8-0 lead. Crawford's record is now 20-3, a spectacular record for a first year wrestler in Division I.

It took an overtime period at 134 pounds, but Pitt's John Richey scored a 3-1 victory over Tom Tomeo of Clarion, bringing the match score to 8-3 in favor of the Golden Eagles.

At 142 pounds, freshman Jody Clark decisioned Pitt senior Sean Hoover by the score of 4-1, increasing the Eagle's lead 11-3. Clark's record now stands at 12-11.

Moss Grays then major decisioned Greg Budman to stretch the Eagles lead to a huge 15-3 margin. Grays is now 20-7.

At 158, Damon Brown scored a major decision over Eric Yanek, but J.J. Stanbro lost to Rich Catalano 8-2, and Pitt slightly narrowed the lead to 19-6.

At 177 pounds, Dan Payne defeated Derek Burgert to raise his record to 26-4.

Bryan Stout wasted no time at 190 pounds, beating Sean Kennedy 12-1.

The heavyweight matchup pitted Rob Sintobin against Pat Wiltanger of Pitt. Wiltanger, a Clarion native and state heavyweight champion his senior year in high school, scored a takedown with 21 seconds left to win 7-6. It was too little too late, however, as Clarion held on for a 26-9 victory.

The final dual meet for the season is set for Friday against Lock Haven. Match time is 7:30. The game is at home and it is Senior Night.

The Golden Eagles are ranked sixth in the nation and are ready for the EWLs.

Righter chosen to coach team

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Dr. Ron Righter was named as an Assistant Coach for the East Team in the 1994 United States Olympic Festival by the USA Basketball Men's Collegiate committee in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Old Dominion University head coach Oliver Purnell was named to direct the East squad, with Righter and Scranton head coach Bob Bessior as his assistants. The North squad will be coached by Stu Jackson of Wisconsin, the South by Perry Clark of Tulane, and the West by Pepperdine's Tom Asbury.

The 1994 U.S. Olympic Festival will be held July 1-10 in St. Louis with Basketball competition from July 2-5. Players who are high school graduates and who have not completed their sophomore year of collegiate eligibility are eligible.

"This is really a great honor. To be selected by your peers to coach at that level is a very special feeling. I have the utmost respect for coach Purnell and coach Bessior and I know it will be a great learning experience," said Righter.

Righter has some Olympic experience. In the Summer of 1988 he was one of eight assistants that helped U.S. Olympic coach John Thompson narrow the U.S. Olympic team at Colorado springs. He coached for two weeks in the Summer of 1988 in Yugoslavia, plus was a player-coach in Yugoslavia in 1976.

Righter, a native of Doylestown, PA, has coached at Lafayette, Lehigh, and was an assistant under George Raveling at Washington State, Iowa, and USC. His Washington State team went to the NCAA tournament once, Iowa went to the tourney twice.

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call
Ron Righter has been selected as an assistant coach on the Olympic Festival East team.

BASKETBALL SPECIAL

At this Saturday's basketball game against Indiana, Reggie Wells, the Clarion basketball great, will be honored in a pre-game ceremony. Wells will then present a plaque to Kwame Morton, who has broken many of Wells' records.

Wells played from 1975-1979 earning several All-American honors as he scored 2,011 career points. He was inducted into the Clarion sports hall of fame in 1990.

A weekly look at a Clarion University athlete

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

J.J. Stanbro, the 11th ranked wrestler in the country at 167 pounds, is a big reason that the Clarion wrestling team is ranked in the top ten in the nation.

Stanbro, who stands at 22-3, hails from Binghamton, New York and Johnson City High. In high school, Stanbro went 136-12 for his entire career. The 136 victories is a New York state record for career victories. Stanbro went 35-3 as a junior, and won the team state championship his sophomore and junior years.

As a senior, he went 38-1, and placed 2nd at the New York state wrestling tournament.

Wrestling has taken Stanbro to Hawaii, Alaska, Canada, and even Russia. Before his senior year, his high school team made a trip to the Soviet Union to battle high school age wrestlers. Stanbro looked impressive as he went 6-1.

"It was a neat trip. It was kind of enlightning to see how they lived, and to see how far behind they were," said Stanbro.

Coming out of high school Stanbro was recruited by the University of Nebraska, Boise State, and Clarion. Luckily for the Golden Eagles, Stanbro picked CUP.

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call
J.J. Stanbro, a standout wrestler for the Golden Eagles, hopes to place in the top three at Nationals.

"I really enjoyed myself when I came out to the campus for a visit. I liked the small university environment."

In this, his last year, Stanbro says that his goal is to place in the top three in the NCAA tournament. And who knows, a national championship could also certainly be within his grasps.

Eastern Wrestling Leagues are approaching quickly (March 5-6) and Stanbro is sure to have a good outing there. He placed fifth at EWLs in 1992 and he placed seventh last summer in the U.S. Open at 163 pounds.

J.J. Stanbro has had a very impressive wrestling career from the high school to the college level. He will certainly graduate from Clarion in style. Nationals, which will be held March 17-19 in North Calorina, will provide a great stage for him to show his stuff.

A fond look back at an Olympic memory

A Hollywood script writer never would have dreamed

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

How would you feel if you missed seeing the greatest sports moment ever? Depending upon whether or not you're a sports fan, you might say "upset" or "big deal." I'm sure there are many people out there reading this article that know what sports moment I'm referring to, and probably many saw it live. Not me.

I was in second grade, and was still hyped over the Steelers' fourth Super Bowl victory over the Rams. The 1980 Winter Olympics were well under way, and with them, patriotism flowed freely throughout the 50 states. I remember that ABC was telecasting the games, and I would race home from school daily just to watch the action from Lake Placid. The big sports to watch (at least to me) were downhill skiing, the bobsled, luge, and speed skating. Oh, America had other sports to enjoy like figure skating, ski jumping and ice hockey. Ice hockey? In the U.S.? We had the NHL if we wanted to see hockey, so why get worked up over a bunch of college kids wearing the red, white, and blue? Olympic hockey in the U.S. was pretty much a joke. Yeah, we had the 1960 team that captured the gold medal, but for the most part, Olympic hockey could be summed up pretty easily: USSR.

The Russians were, and still are, the best hockey players in the world. So why get caught up with the U.S. hockey team and a bunch of college punks? Under the venerable leadership of head coach Herb Brooks and captain Mike Eruzione, the U.S. team was hoping for a bronze medal at best. Simply stated, the Americans wanted to keep from getting too embarrassed on their home turf. That would be no easy task for a team that had been compiled only a few months earlier. This team had to face professional level hockey players from Europe and Russia. These teams had played together for years, and spent their time beating up on America's pros- the NHL! In pre-Olympic exhibition play , the Soviet Union beat, or should I say destroyed, our NHL all-stars, 10-3. How could a team of college kids even take the same ice as these Russians?

The U.S. team started Olympic play against powerhouse Sweden. Playing inspired hockey, the Eruzione-led team was able to skate to a 2-2 tie. The last second, game-tying goal, gave Brook's team a glimmer of hope for a medal. The U.S. team then battled on, beating impressive teams like Czechoslavakia, Norway, Romania, and West Germany. With talent like goalie Jim Craig, and future pros Mark Johnson, Neal Broten, Michael Ramsey, and Buzz Schneider, the red, white and blue suddenly made hockey fans out of millions of Americans. With a 4-0-1 record in Olympic action, the college boys had earned themselves a Cinderella spot in the medal round. Who would have thunk it?

But the eyes of all serious hockey fans were still on the Russians, who blazed through with a clean 5-0 record and were far and away the favorites for the gold medal. The Soviet Union dominated everybody, outscoring its opponents by 50 to 11 in those five games. Combining an explosive offense and a stifling defense, this team was arguably the best team ever compiled on ice. It was only a matter of time before the gold medals hung around their necks. Their first opponent in the medal round: The United States.

Let's step aside from hockey for just a second and look at our world at this time in history. The USA and the Soviet Union weren't exactly best of friends. In fact, they didn't like each other at all. The cold war and the atomic age still existed and attitudes towards one another were somewhat bad. The thoughts of the Soviets boycotting the '80 winter games were heavily considered and the U.S. did boycott that following summer, with the games in Moscow. So what we had in a small, cozy town in upstate New York, was the battle between two countries. A poised, older, professional Soviet squad against a younger, wide-eyed American team. It was David vs. Goliath.

The game was set for Friday night on ABC. Everyone, even non-sports fans tuned in. As Al Michaels of ABC started the telecast, "Most people don't know the difference between a blue line and a clothes line....well, it's irrelevant."

The game started, as every other Soviet game had, with the Russians taking an early 1-0 lead. But the Americans, spurred on by chants of "USA, USA," tickled the twine to knot it at one apiece. Back came the Russians, 2-1, in the blink of an eye. With seconds remaining in the first period, the United State's Mark Johnson caught a break in front of the Russian net, and sent the puck home for a 2-2 tie. America was ecstatic. Through the first period, the youngsters from the U.S. were neck and neck with the Soviet juggernaut. David was giving Goliath a run for his money. But fans had to take heed. The Russians were extremely deadly. They had scored eight goals in one period only a few games earlier. The game was far from over.

Period two was a defensive struggle as goalies Jim Craig and Vladimir Tretiak fought off both offenses. Russia slipped a goal in early to make it 3-2, and thus ending the scoring for the period. Still, the chants of "USA" echoed in the homes of most Americans.

The final period began with everyone on the edge of their seat. The defensive game continued until halfway through the period, when captain Eruzione became a legend. Using the Russian defenseman as a screen, Eruzione grabbed the puck and slammed it home to tie the game at three and put a shake in announcer Al Michael's voice. Were America's eyes deceiving them? Was this college team staying with the best in the world? Before Americans had time to answer that question, Mark Johnson made history. Slipping by Soviet defenders, Johnson took a pass and slipped the puck between goalie Tretiak and the side bar. 4-3, David led Goliath. Michaels did his best to maintain control of what his eyes were seeing on the ice before him. The U.S. team had to play defense for ten minutes and they would pull the greatest upset ever. The chants wore on as the clock ran down. U.S. goalie Craig, played the game of his life, shutting out the Russians in the final period. Michaels said it best from his press box seat over the noise of the deafening crowd, "Five seconds left to play, do you believe in miracles? YES!"

The team tackled Craig, as a bewildered, wide-eyed Soviet team stood at mid-ice in disbelief. The most improbable of all dreams had come true for the USA hockey team. Said Eruzione, "When it was over, all I could think of was, 'We beat the Russians, we beat the Russians.'" As all of America went nuts, there was only one game left to play. The U.S. battled Finland for the gold medal two days later. Once again, America's team battled from behind to win 4- 2, capping an incredible dream. ABC Olympic host Jim McKay stated, "A Hollywood script writer never would have dreamed."

By comparison, it would be like a team of college football all-stars from Canada defeating the world champion Dallas Cowboys. It's that impressive.

Remember, I didn't see this wondrous event (I think I was shopping). But I do remember the hoopla and patriotism. I was fortunate enough to track down a copy on videotape, and have watched it an infinite amount of times. It is my #1 sports moment and will always be #1. Tears come to my eyes when I hear Michaels utter that legendary sentence at the end of the game.

This game epitomizes all that is great in sports. A team ot no-names was able to defeat a giant of a team by putting forth an incredible effort. The Americans gave everything they had to achieve a seemingly unattainable goal. It was a game that took one through an emotional rollercoaster, leaving them exhausted, but incredibly overwhelmed with joy. Even a person that knew nothing about sports was, for just a moment, a big fan. As sports writer Phil Taylor has said, "Sports contain an inexhaustable wealth of thrills."

With the Winter Olympics taking place right now, I found it fitting to share the most incredible Olympic story and the biggest upset ever. Although every athlete won't win a medal, and some won't even successfully finish an event, the Olympics are a time when the greatest athletes in the world come together to share their abilities. It is a time for champions as well as underdogs.

"Charles Smith grabs the rebound. He's blocked, he's blocked, and blocked again!"

If anyone out there reading this article saw last year's playoff series between the Knicks and the Bulls, you know what I'm talking about. The Knicks, ready to make their charge into the NBA Finals, lost once again to the pesky Chicago Bulls.

New York, who had been predicted all year long to mighty Chicago from the NBA throne, saw their hopes dashed once more. However this season, I'm going to step out on a limb and state that the Knicks will be enjoying an extended season- in the finals of course.

With everyone focusing on the upstart teams in the West and Shaquille O'Neal in the East, New York could sneak up and snatch the Eastern conference title. I use the words "sneak up" loosely. How could a team that is fighting for the best record in the east be overlooked by many fans? It's because the Knicks are a team with a stingy defense and low scoring, boring offense. The Knicks offense falls into the average category with many other teams in the league.

With New York's defense, the Knicks are a scary opponent for any team facing them in the playoffs. Their defensive style takes so much effort that it puts their offense on the back burner. It's rare to see a team in the NBA pride themselves on defense, butt it is defense that wins championships.

Take a look at the back-to-back Piston teams and the Chicago Bulls championship teams. The Pistons, also known as the "Bad Boys," were hated, as well as respected for the tough defense. If you took the ball inside, you knew you would have to get ready for some contact.

When the Bulls are discussed, everyone talks about M.J.'s and Scottie Pippen's offensive prowess, but don't forget that Jordan was one of the best defensive players in the game and Pippen consistently makes the league's All-Defensive team.

But back to the Knicks. Charles Oakley, Anthony Mason, and Patrick Ewing are all outstanding defensemen on the inside, and John Starks helps to make the Knicks very well-rounded.

It is not very uncommon for the Knicks to hold opponents under 80 points in a game. Oakley and Ewing have a lot to do with this. Oak averages double figures in rebounds and points night in and night out. Oakley is the man on the Knicks team when it comes to putting on the hard hat and going to work. Oakley is all over the court. He is always going into the stands after loose balls, wrestling a rebound away from an opponent, or wiping the glass clean. He does everything except sell popcorn.

Ewing is the ultimate intimidator. Defense was his main attribute coming out of Georgetown as the Knicks number one draft pick, and he hasn't let anyone down. As Patrick moves on in age, he's grasping for the elusive title. Ewing has emerged as one of the best big men in the game today.

Starks is another defensive wizard for the Knicks. Known for his explosive offense and equally as an explosive temper, Starks' defense is often overlooked. Last year Starks was the man who had the unmerciful job of guarding Jordan. He wasn't intimidated by His Airness and did as well as any mortal can be expected to do against Jordan. Luckily for him, he won't have to defend anyone as great as Jordan for the rest of his life. This means he's guarded the best, so bring on the rest. Starks can use his lessons from that experience to guard anyone effectively.

As far as the Knicks offense goes, Ewing and Starks anchor the club with a great inside/outside game. Ewing has some great baseline moves, with turnaround jumpers and spin moves a large part of his arsenal. Starks is a streaky shooter, but when he's on- look out.

Complimenting these two are Charles Smith, the aforementioned Oakley, and the point guard tandem of Derek Harper and Greg Anthony. Smith, the former Pitt Panther, has boosted the Knicks offense since his return from the injured list. With the acquisition of harper, the Knicks can rest easy with some depth at their unstable point guard position. Harper gives them leadership and some outside shooting. Anthony can't shoot that well from outside, but is a good court leader.

Finally we come to the coach. This man has been able to make the transition from showtime in L.A to rough and ruggedness in New York. Riley, who practically lived in the Finals, has the experience (and the hair) to go once again to the promised land. He has turned this team into championship caliber.

The Knicks are for real. So before you jump on the band wagon of Orlando, Charlotte, Chicago or Phoenix, check out the Knicks. Then you can jump on their band wagon with me- I've been there for years.

University professor seeks legal counsel over 'non-renewal'

by Alan Vaughn
Editor

A Clarion University professor who claims her contract has not been renewed, has retained legal counsel in an attempt "to undo a wrong that, unless it is thwarted, could be unleashed against any member of the faculty, staff, or student, if the person does not 'fit' a predetermined stereotype or is a member of a microculture."

Dr. Patricia Elmore, an African-American professor in the education department, released a statement to The Clarion Call, saying that her contract had not been renewed and that her attorney "would be in contact with the appropriate parties and or agencies very soon."

Dr. Charles Duke, dean of the education department, said that Elmore was under contract until the end of the academic year, but would not comment beyond that.

Over the past week, student demonstrations in key locations on campus have called univeristy attention to the issue.

"Elmore is the tip of the iceberg. Students are upset about a lot of things," said Ralph Godbolt, president of the university's African American Student Union. "The AASU was in full support of the protesters and their attempt to get diversity on campus."

Just after the second half of Saturday's basketball game against Indiana University of Pennsylvania about 10 to 12 protesters, mostly African-American, moved onto the court carrying signs bearing phrases such as "No justice, no peace" and "First Malcolm. . . Then Martin, now Elmore."

The students were quickly removed by Public Safety officers.

With 58 seconds left in the game, an estimated 30 students walked onto the court. After the protesters did not leave, officials conferred with coaches and called the game. At the time, IUP was leading Clarion, 108-91.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call

Students protesting an unconfirmed non-renewal of a minority professor's contract protested at Saturday's basketball game. The game was ended with 58 seconds left.

On Monday, a small group of protesters gathered on the steps of Moore Hall, the university president's residence, again waving placards in support of Elmore.

More protests are planned for this week, according to Godbolt.

No disciplinary action is planned against the protestors, said Vice President for Student Affairs Dr. George W. Curtis, Jr. "It's unfortunate that it affected the ball game the way it did, [but] students have the right to protest."

Director of University Relations Ron Wilshire declined to comment on whether Elmore's contract had been renewed, citing university policy of not discussing personnel matters.

Wilshire also said he was unaware of any university contact with legal counsel on this issue.

It still has not been confirmed whether Elmore has received poor student evaluations, as some students have claimed, or whether Elmore's contract had not been renewed due to what some of the protesters have termed a "compatibility" test.

According to the university's agreement with the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties, non-tenured instructors with less than two years of service at the university can have their contracts not renewed without any explanation. Elmore is in her second year at Clarion and is not tenured.

Professors are evaluated in three categories, according to the agreement with APSCUF: Effective teaching, continuing scholarly growth and service to the university or community.

A press conference by an unknown group had been scheduled for Tuesday, but was called off at the last minute due to "scheduling conflicts." According to Godbolt, the cancelled press conference was not affiliated with the AASU.

According to a student in Elmore's Introduction to Education class on the first day of class, Elmore announced that students had had problems with her class in the past and had gone to the dean about her class before. According to the student, Elmore said that if a student talks to the dean, that student will have problems in her class.

The student also claimed that Elmore had an "agenda," and that Elmore talked more about equal rights than about the subject of the class.

Dean Dr. Charles Duke declined to comment on whether any students had talked to him about any of Elmore's classes.

University professor seeks legal counsel over 'non-renewal'

by Alan Vaughn
Editor

A Clarion University professor who claims her contract has not been renewed, has retained legal counsel in an attempt "to undo a wrong that, unless it is thwarted, could be unleashed against any member of the faculty, staff, or student, if the person does not 'fit' a predetermined stereotype or is a member of a microculture."

Dr. Patricia Elmore, an African-American professor in the education department, released a statement to The Clarion Call, saying that her contract had not been renewed and that her attorney "would be in contact with the appropriate parties and or agencies very soon."

Dr. Charles Duke, dean of the education department, said that Elmore was under contract until the end of the academic year, but would not comment beyond that.

Over the past week, student demonstrations in key locations on campus have called univeristy attention to the issue.

"Elmore is the tip of the iceberg. Students are upset about a lot of things," said Ralph Godbolt, president of the university's African American Student Union. "The AASU was in full support of the protesters and their attempt to get diversity on campus."

Just after the second half of Saturday's basketball game against Indiana University of Pennsylvania about 10 to 12 protesters, mostly African-American, moved onto the court carrying signs bearing phrases such as "No justice, no peace" and "First Malcolm. . . Then Martin, now Elmore."

The students were quickly removed by Public Safety officers.

With 58 seconds left in the game, an estimated 30 students walked onto the court. After the protesters did not leave, officials conferred with coaches and called the game. At the time, IUP was leading Clarion, 108-91.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call

Students protesting an unconfirmed non-renewal of a minority professor's contract protested at Saturday's basketball game. The game was ended with 58 seconds left.

On Monday, a small group of protesters gathered on the steps of Moore Hall, the university president's residence, again waving placards in support of Elmore.

More protests are planned for this week, according to Godbolt.

No disciplinary action is planned against the protestors, said Vice President for Student Affairs Dr. George W. Curtis, Jr. "It's unfortunate that it affected the ball game the way it did, [but] students have the right to protest."

Director of University Relations Ron Wilshire declined to comment on whether Elmore's contract had been renewed, citing university policy of not discussing personnel matters.

Wilshire also said he was unaware of any university contact with legal counsel on this issue.

It still has not been confirmed whether Elmore has received poor student evaluations, as some students have claimed, or whether Elmore's contract had not been renewed due to what some of the protesters have termed a "compatibility" test.

According to the university's agreement with the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties, non-tenured instructors with less than two years of service at the university can have their contracts not renewed without any explanation. Elmore is in her second year at Clarion and is not tenured.

Professors are evaluated in three categories, according to the agreement with APSCUF: Effective teaching, continuing scholarly growth and service to the university or community.

A press conference by an unknown group had been scheduled for Tuesday, but was called off at the last minute due to "scheduling conflicts." According to Godbolt, the cancelled press conference was not affiliated with the AASU.

According to a student in Elmore's Introduction to Education class on the first day of class, Elmore announced that students had had problems with her class in the past and had gone to the dean about her class before. According to the student, Elmore said that if a student talks to the dean, that student will have problems in her class.

The student also claimed that Elmore had an "agenda," and that Elmore talked more about equal rights than about the subject of the class.

Dean Dr. Charles Duke declined to comment on whether any students had talked to him about any of Elmore's classes.

Plea Bargaining justice away

It is a fact that one out of every four females will be raped or assaulted in their lifetime. No one likes to think about it, but it is a reality, and it happens even in Clarion County. I know because I was assaulted in my dorm room last fall by a guy I knew. I was scared and embarassed to press charges, but my friends and Public Safety convinced me I could not let the guy get away with it. After a few anguishing days, I decided to go forward with the charges.

I knew I had a long road ahead of me. In talking to people, I discovered the DA does not like to prosecute these kind of cases. Why, I do not know. I met with the DA before the preliminary hearing, and he told me that he would do his best to make sure that the five charges of indecent trespass, disorderly conduct, and harassment would stick.

After being in the courtroom for an agonizing two hours spilling my story, the magistrate decided the defendant would be bound over for trial on all five charges. The DA told my mother and I that same day he would only consider dropping disorderly conduct. I thought finally my nightmare might be coming to an end. I was wrong; it had just begun.

At the second criminal conference between the DA and the defense attorney, the DA agreed to drop all charges except disorderly conduct in exchange for Accelerated Rehabilitation Disposition which is used for first time offenders of nonviolent crimes such as DUI.

My lawyer at home told me that was not the case in my situation because what he did to me was a personal injury crime by making me do physical things I did not want to do. Even though what the defendant did to me was a low sex crime, he does not deserve to get off so easily with disorderly conduct. This will be dropped if he does complete the ARD.

I am outraged at the whole judicial system here in Clarion County, especially the DA. He promised me one thing and turned around and did something completely different. He did not even consult with me before he offered the defendent disorderly conduct.

Under section 180-9.3 of the basic bill of rights for victims, I

Campbell Hall parking lot-full.

Hart Chapel parking lot-full.

Metered parking spaces-full.

Wilkinson Hall parking lot-full.

Becker Hall parking lot-full.

That was the case Tuesday morning at 9:30 a.m. There simply was no place to park anywhere near the heart of campus.

Wait, that's not quite true. There were 14 spots available near Haskell House. There were nine empty spots in the lot near the Public Safety building. There were seven vacant parking spaces near Still Hall. There were nine more in a lot near Carrier.

Okay, so there were places to park your vehicle.

Provided your car has a red dot on its permit.

Added to the fun was yet another conference of some sort being hosted by Clarion University. Attendees were handed a temporary parking permit at the sign-in table.

Conferences are not necessarily a bad occurrence. Groups no doubt pay a fee for the use of university facilities.

Of course faculty members are not necessarily a bad thing to have around either.

But like it or not, students are what makes this world of CUP go around and we think, and maybe we're just mistaken, students should be considered first.

Not all students arrive after 8:30 just because they like to sleep in. Many have morning jobs, children to get off to school or a long daily drive.

Yet off-campus students pay for a permit allowing them to park their very necessary vehicle on campus only to find it was $15 better spent pitched into a wishing well.

Yes, we hear you faculty, there is that sprawling parking lot down near the Clarion River. Strangely there seems to be no hurry to get a red dot on the sign for that lot.

Students are not faultless, there are cars parked on this campus that haven't moved since the snow first blew into Clarion County. Whining freshmen get their wienie upper-classmen friends to buy parking permits for them, by-passing rules established to give commuter students a break by forcing freshmen to use the ill-conceived Clarion River lot.

The time has come to disband the ineffectual parking committee, cancel their brainstorming sessions, enforce registration rules for parking permits and most of all, open all of the lots to first come, first served.

Red dot lot or not. -RLS

NEWS FOR SALE

In the fall of 1973, an unidentified person who held a high rank in the Nixon administration approached Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward with an offer: he would tell all he knew about the Watergate affair, in exchange for $50,000. Post Managing Editor Ben Bradlee responded with a flat NO. Ethical and responsible reporters and news organizations do not pay for their news. They find it.

Unfortunately, we live in unethical and irresponsible times.

"Inside Edition," a tabloid pseudo-news program, reportedly paid Tonya Harding $75,000 for an interview last week, during which U.S. Olympic Committee doctors examined her strained right ankle. Incidentally, Tonya Harding appeared at a news conference in Lillehammer this week wearing a nice new "Inside Edition" baseball cap.

CBS went eye-for-eye and paid Harding $600,000 (not a typo) for a twenty-minute interview, which Harding walked out of before it was over.

Tonya Harding's father has signed a sizable deal with a network that says he will only talk to their newspeople, no one else's.

Unethical? Yes. A disgrace to journalism? Yes.

Likely to cease? No. No way.

Just a minute, Mr. Junger

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to a letter to the editor from last week's Call. The letter was from James Junger in regards to some articles published on February 10, 1994.

To begin, I would like to say that I fully agree with Jim about the explicitness of the article concerning the Alpha Sigma Tau break-in. As a member of that affiliation, I would like to thank Jim for expressing his opinion.

However, I could not help but notice Jim's rude comment about the reputation of the Sigma Chi Fraternity.

Those brothers have every right to be upset with the poor journalism concerning the fight that occurred at their house. Sigma Chi does have a reputation to uphold and as for the Alpha Sigma Tau break-in, their reputation as a whole was not ruined.

All I can say to James Junger is that he should be more concerned with his own reputation rather than that of other people or organizations. I do not think that Student Senate is proud that one member (James Junger) got arrested for DUI.

You do not hear people talking down the entire Senate because of one member's actions. So, please Mr. Junger, take that into consideration before you want to voice your opinions about Greek organizations on campus. Speaking as a Greek, I think we all should be known as responsible for our INDIVIDUAL ACTIONS... not labeled and given a reputation for the different letters we wear.

Sincerely,
Amy Martz

Clogged sinks were nothing personal

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter as a follow-up to a letter that was printed two weeks ago regarding the sinks in Wilkinson Hall. I would like to begin by saying that the letter was not written for any one person or any one group to take offense to. It was written in order to make a point and in order to voice our opinions. It certainly was not meant as an attack toward anyone in particular.

Unfortunately, a group of men here on campus took it that way. This past week, I had the opportunity to meet with the plumbers of our campus. It seems that they took great offense to our letter, and for that, we would like to apologize. It was not directed toward you in particular. We only said what we felt needed to be said.

Sincreley,
4th Floor Wilkinson Hall

Think before you speak, Mr. Junger

Dear Editor:

In response to Mr. Junger's editorial, I would like to point something out. Mr. Junger states that the fight at the Sigma Chi house is a matter of public record, which entitles the public to hear about it. He then criticizes the Clarion Call reporter covering the sexual assault at the Alpha Sigma Tau house for being too explicit. A police report is also public record. Shouldn't the students of this university be aware of all that is happening in Clarion. To have reported this incident in vague and general terms would have trivialized it, and the pain of the victim.

Secondly, it is my understanding that Student Senators are elected by the student body. Do you really think that you will win any votes by calling one of your constituents "a jackass"? Maybe you, Mr. Junger, should think before you speak.

Sincerely,
Megan Casey

Who is the jackass?

To the Editor:

It strikes me funny that somebody like Mr. Junger can take every letter wriiten in the previous week to the Clarion Call and wreck them. Who does this guy think he really is? More importantly, how did he manage to get himslef elected to Student Senate? Is there anything wrong with the fact that a fraternity is concerned with their reputation? No, I believe not. Should there be a rstriction on the freedom of press at C.U.P.? No, of course not. The only thing I'm wondering is this...who is the real jackass here, the tree hugger or the Student Senate officer facing a D.U.I. charge?

Sincerely,
Chad Wilkinson

Thanks for the turn-out

Dear Editor:

As Director of Stop Abuse For Everyone, Clarion Couty's domestic violence agency, I was asked to participate as a panelist in a community forum addressing sexual assault on February 10, 1994. The forum was jointly sponsored by STAR (Students Together Against Rape) and the Clarion Sexual Assualt Network.

Having attended and participated in events such as this in the past, my expectations were for an audience of about twenty. What a surprise to see Hart Chapel at Clarion University filled with over one hundred people! In addition, many of the people who attended the forum were men. For too long the problems of domestic violence and sexual assault have been as "women's issues", rather than as the societal problems they in fact are.

My thanks and praise to STAR and the Sexual Assault Network for organizing an informational evening of discussion and debate. Thanks and praise also to all who attended—the community support was overwhelming.

As we begin to address the problems of violence against women as a community, we come nearer to the time that women can truly "take back the night". Forums such as these are an invaluable tool in raising community awareness and committment.

Again, thanks to STAR and the had the right to submit prior comment on the potential reduction or dropping of any charge. I was never given this opportunity, and for that I am livid.

What is Clarion County coming to if it lets all first time offenders of crimes get off with disorderly conduct?

If one looks at the Crime Statistic Report published by Clarion University, you will see that disorderly conduct has the highest number of offenses which in 1992 were 138. Rape and sex offenses have less than 2. Who are they kidding? I feel the reason why these numbers are low is because of two facts.

First, from my own experience, victims are afraid to report the attack for fear of the unknown. Second, when a report is filed the charges are usually reduced so low that they do not meet the necessary guidelines to appear in the statistic. So people think the campus is safe.

I wish I had gotten my own lawyer from the beginning because none of this would have happened. I know from talking to a judge in Pittsburgh, if the assault would have happened there, the charges would not have been dropped so low.

I do realize we are talking about Clarion here, where college students give a lot to the local economy. We even pay for the DA's salary, and this is the legal services we get.

From my own experience, I would be skeptical to tell someone to report an assault.

Everyone told me how brave I was, and that I was setting a precedent in Clarion. Now that is not the case. I feel very let down by this judicial system, and my opinion of the DA is not very high right now.

The only thing I can do now is let the judge decide the defendent's fate at the ARD hearing.

The defendent deserves to be tried on all five charges. I went through pure hell these last three months because of him. I have emotional scars that will never go away.

I can only hope that the next victim will be luckier and get more justice than I got.

Equality and quality

Editor:

Why is it that every time an issue involving an African-American comes into the limelight, the NAACP automatically comes to the defense of the accused, knowing little more of the circumstances than the color of their skin. This leads me to the issue at hand involving Dr. Patricia Elmore. Why is it that the AASU seems to be "rallying" around Dr. Elmore, knowing nothing more of the circumstances than the color of her skin? I'm sure many of the members have not even sat in on one of her classes, nonetheless had her as a professor.

I personally have had Dr. Elmore as a professsor and am fully aware of why her contract may not be renewed. In regards to the statement made by Sean McDonlad of the AASU, I agree this is not a black-white issue, but neither is it an issue of equality; it is rather an issue QUALITY. If her quality of instruction was sufficient, there would be no reason for termination. I have an excellent mathematics professor of ethnic descent who has received tenure because of his tremendous knowledge and quality of instruction.

The AASU can continue to fight Dr. Elmore's termination but aren't you doing more of an injustice to your people by fighting for diversity over quality? Do you really want her to continue teaching solely on her color and not her worth? If we've learned anything from Dr. Martin Luther King, isn't it that people should be judged by the content of their character and not by the color of thier skin?It doesn't seems as though the AASU is following Dr. King's example in this case.

If this university does sacrifice quality for diversity, it will be doing a grave injustice to all students, black and white.

Respectfully submitted,

Michele Boreman

Clarion holds eleventh annual informative conference

Annual women's conference to be presented in March

By Alicia McCray
News Writer

Clarion University plans to hold its Eleventh Annual Womens' Conference on Friday, March 25 and Saturday, March 26 in the Gemmell Student Complex. This annual conference invites women and men of any age.

Julia Bartkowiak, is heading up this year's conference. When asked what she thought the main purpose of the conference was, she states that it "does a lot of things. Part of the conference gets students and members of the university together to discuss issues and hear the speakers." Bartkowiak also added that Mary Burger, SSHE Vice Chancellor for Academic and Student Affairs, will be the keynote speaker.

Ray Hendreson/Clarion Call
Dr. Julie Bartkowiak is in charge of this year's women's conference to be held in March.

Bartkowiak said "The keynote speaker of "A Question of Color" appropriates the issue of color and how it affects people's lives."

She also states that "This is the university's 11th year for the conference and the program has been very successful in the past."

Positive feedback has been received from both students and committees surrounding the program.

The program scheduled for Friday is "primarily aimed at students, this is our target group," Bartkowiak explained.

Bartkowiak said that her own ideas were about solutions to the problems that the conference focuses on.

"We hope to get people to talk about them more. Once they talk about it, we can arrive at a solution.

We have to get people to be more tolerant and to learn to accept differences."

Friday's workshops, exhibits, and Sandford Gallery reception are free to the public. Friday evening's performance by comic-actress-writer Reno is free with a valid student ID and you must be pre-registered for Saturday's conference.

The session held on Saturday includes two workshop sessions, filmmaker Kathe Sandler's "A Question of Color."

A luncheon and speech by Burger will follow.

President Diane Reinhard hosts Burger's keynote address, discussion groups and reception.

Friday, three workshops will be given from 1 until 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday, the workshops will be scheduled from 8:45 until 10:30 a.m. in the Gemmell Student Complex.

Anyone interested in registering for the conference should contact Continuing Education at Carrier Hall.

The workshops on Friday are free and open to the public. Pre-registration fees for March 16 are $20 per person; $30 at the door. Student and senior citizens registration fees are $10 and include all activities, materials, Saturday lunch, reception, and refreshments.

For Children between ages 3-8, pre-registration for child-care will be available on Friday from 12:45 until 4:45 p.m. in the Returning Adult and Commuter Lounge.

Child-care for pre-registered children ages 3-8 will be provided in Ralston Hall's Children /Learning Center from 8:30 a.m. until 5:15 p.m. No fee is required for either day, parents must provide snacks and lunch for children.

A shuttle service will be provided to and from the luncheon and president's reception, both of which are uphill from Gemmell.

Women's conference will present diverse sessions

Workshop Session I on Friday presents:
"Enabling Attitudes: Disability Awareness, The First Step," this shows how people communicate discrimination via words gestures;
"Formation of Childhood Identity," a child development specialist talks about the role which parents play in shaping their children's identities: "Heterosexism/Homophobia," playing roles to explore similarities and differences (two sessions)
"STAR-Students Together Against Rape," the politics of rape awareness is discussed by students;
"To Health With Music," learn how to use music to enhance living (two sessions)
Session II's Workshop presents:
"Change By Voice," a workshop presented by student on empowering others to initiate change within oneself and Clarion University;
"Factors that Motivate White Perceptions of African-Americans," playing roles to identify factors and learn strategies of empowerment;
"Heterosexism/Homophobia"
"Substance Abuse and Significant Others," the ways drug abuse can be dealt with by those closest to the abuser;
"To Health With Music";
Friday's Workshop Session III presents the program: "Ageism," playing roles to deal with discrimination of age;

On February 16, a smoke detector head was activated on the first floor of Nair Hall at approximately 12:30 a.m. The alarm was activated when a known person ignited a computer disk.

Two text books were reported stolen on February 11 between the hours of 11:00 and 12:30 in the Carlson Library. The student went to the bathroom and assumes that is when the books were stolen. The books missing are: General Psychology, light tan in color, value $50.00; Way to Wisdom, paper back, value $10.00.

On February 18, unknown persons ignited a match or some other material to activate a smoke alarm head on the third floor of Nair Hall.

Several vehicle headlights were damaged with what appeared to be BB holes. This happened in parking lot J on February 18.

Phillips Scholarship applications available

Clarion University of Pennsylvania has announced that applications are now available for the 1994-95 Dr. and Mrs. Arthur William Phillips Scholarship. Applications are now available at the Financial Aid office in Egbert Hall and the Admissions Office in Carlson Classroom Building.

Applicants must have attended high school in or have been a resident of the following counties for the past five years: Butler, Forest, Mercer, Clarion, and Venango, and must be a full-time undergraduate student at Clarion University.

The Dr. and Mrs. Arthur William Phillips Scholarship Fund was made possible by a donation from the Dr. and Mrs. Arthur William Phillips Charitable Trust of Oil City.

The scholarship fund is operated through the Clarion University Foundation. The Clarion University Foundation, organized in 1969, is a non-for-profit corporation and registered as a charitable organization with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

It is described as a tax-exempt charity by section 50(c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. The Foundation was formed to "promote educational purposes in connection with or at the request of Clarion University." Contributions to Clarion University can be made through: planned gifts of wills, bequests, trusts, etc.; gifts made in memory or honor of a special individual; endowed scholarship; and gifts of property, securities, or gifts of kindness.

'Non-renewal'

Alan Vaughn/ClarionCall

Student's actively demonstrated their opposition to the unconfirmed non-renewal of Dr. Patricia Elmore's contract on Monday morning in front of Moore Hall.

Elmore's written statement to The Call said, "Like any employee who believes in the 'system,' I made attempts at the appropriate administrative levels to remedy the situation 'in-house.'

"To date, my attempts have been futile," the statement said. "The status of my contract remains nonrenewed, and my contract remains, and my reputation remains tarnished. However, my will, fortitude, and belief in the 'system' remains intact."

The statement also thanked the members of the AASU, other students, faculty and staff for their support and efforts to "make an unjust treatment known."

Nowhere in the statement, however, did Elmore specifically list the actual "unjust treatment."

The protesters, both at the basketball game and at Moore Hall called the issue a contradiction of the university's diversity goals.

"I don't think it is an issue to the president," said Kari King at last week's AASU emergency meeting." The president is giving students a message that she doesn't care."

The message of the protesters seems mixed, though, with some supporting the president's attempts at diversity, while others feel that she isn't doing enough.

"The lack of regard and sensitivity to this issue has brought to mind and placed in the forefront a number areas that deans, department chairs and directors seem to be ignoring," said AASU member Sean McDonald at the emergency meeting last Wednesday. "It is our belief that the president supports the issue, concept and idea of diversity. We can only believe that she must be receiving resistance from the respective areas that are charged with the hiring, retention, development of curriculum, financing and allocation of funds that will support her goal."

Dr. Kathleen Smith, chair of the education department declined comment as did Interim Vice President of Human Resources Tim Fogarty.

President Diane Reinhard said that so far she has received one letter concerning this issue and also declined to comment further.

According to Dr. Davie Tate Jr., in the office of Social Equity, Elmore had not filed a grievance through that office.

Elmore's statement also said that she would refrain from making further comments until the issue is resolved.

"This is not a black - white issue," said McDonald. "But an issue of equality - fairness for all students."

University sabbaticals come under fire

by Janet Singleton
College Press Service

The case of a Colorado university administrator who wanted to take an eight month sabbatical to study Shakespeare has sparked a movement to regulate paid leaves of absence that professors and university officials are granted to conduct research projects.

Merrill Lessley had intended to take an eight-month leave while still drawing $7,600 a month in pay as vice chancellor of academic affairs at the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs.

However, the arrangement received heavy criticism after newspaper reports brought it to light.

"What on earth does the University of Colorado think it is doing by granting paid vacations of six to eight months...for administrators?" questioned an editorial in Denver's Rocky Mountain News.

At a time of budget cuts in higher education, state universities can't afford to be so generous with university officials or professors, the newspaper editorial said.

A group of Colorado politicians agreed, and state Rep. Tony Grampsas, R-Golden, introduced a bill to impose guidelines on the granting of paid sabbaticals.

"Some universities are giving sabbaticals under confidential conditions.

Why should it be confidential, when the public is paying for it?" Grampsas asked.

Before legislators could take action on the bill, however, the University of Colorado Board of Regents moved late last year to freeze paid administrative leaves.

In January, the board abolished administrative sabbaticals altogether and is looking at ways restrict paid leaves to faculty at its four campuses.

Grampsas said sabbaticals have gotten away from their original use.

"Sabbaticals were designed for the purpose of expanding the experience of faculty," Grampsas says.

Students, colleges and the state should benefit from the research an instructor does on a sabbatical.

Because they have little direct contact with students, Grampsas says administrators can't pass on what they've learned during a leave.

"In the case of this Colorado Springs guy, he was going to study Shakespeare and Aristotle.

How can that be an advantage to the state or the students on that campus?" Grampsas asked.

Lesley said the situation was more complicated than the newspaper reports indicated.

Legal Briefs

All information is taken from court records at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office.

Criminal cases filed:

John Joseph Shedd, 23, Bethel Park.

Charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, a second degree misdemeanor; and speeding, a summary, at 2:16 a.m. Feb. 4 along South Eighth Avenue in Clarion Borough.

Police officer on stationary patrol observed a vehicle allegedly operated by the defendant turn left from Main Street to Eighth Avenue. The vehicle allegedly accelerated to a point beyond the normal flow of traffic. Police followed the vehicle and accelerated to 60 miles per hour to maintain visual contact.

Police executed a traffic stop and observed a strong odor of alcohol about the defendant and bloodshot eyes. Defendant allegedly stumbled getting out of his vehicle. Police contend defendant was unable to properly perform field sobriety tests.

A blood test established defendant's blood alcohol level as .208 percent. In Pennsylvania, the standard for intoxication is .10 percent.

Tina Marie Briggs, 21, Falls Creek.

Charged with DUI and a summary lighting violation at 2:14 a.m. Jan 29 along Sixth Avenue in Clarion Borough.

Police on stationary patrol observed a vehicle allegedly operated by the defendant turn from Sixth Avenue on to Main Street and travel west without using headlights at a time when headlights are required by law. Police executed a traffic stop and observed a strong odor of alcohol about the defendant. Defendant allegedly told police she had consumed five beers prior to attempting to operate her vehicle.

Defendant was not able to properly perform field sobriety tests. A blood test established her blood alcohol level as .207 percent.

The following defendants are charged with summary offenses punishable by up to a $300 fine and 90 days in jail upon conviction.

Brian Richard Frank, 20, Gibsonia.

Underage consumption of alcohol at 10:45 p.m. Feb. 5 along South Sixth Avenue. Defendant allegedly told police he had consumed two cans of beer, and possessed three other cans of beer.

Mark Gregory Popovich, 19, Pittsburgh.

Underage consumption of alcohol at 10:45 p.m. Feb. 5 along South Sixth Avenue. Defendant allegedly told police he had consumed three or four beers and possessed two unopened cans and threw an open can onto the street.

Kirk A. Fair, 19, RD7 Kittanning.

Retail theft at 3:00 a.m. Jan. 30 at 7-Eleven market, Clarion Borough. Defendant allegedly removed items valued at $3 without paying for them.

The following cases were resolved:

David R. McCarter, 18, Clarion.

Found guilty of disorderly conduct and underage consumption of alcohol Dec. 10-11 at various locations in Clarion Borough. Fined $125 plus $74 costs.

Stephen A. Williams, 19, Greenville.

Pled guilty to underage consumption of alcohol Nov. 21 in Clarion. Fined $100 plus $74 costs.

Michael Tomasetti, Bethel Park, a student at the time of alleged offense. Pled guilty to issuing a bad check Nov. 11 to Four Star Pizza. Fine, costs and restitution total $107.

Vice President post candidate is interviewed

By Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Carole Ann Peskin, candidate for the position of Vice President for Finance and Administration, spoke about changes necessary for better budgeting and management for the university during an open forum held Monday, February 21.

Peskin's professional experience began in 1974, where she was Assistant to Controller at Princeton University until 1976.

Peskin then advanced to Westminster Choir College (which is now a division of Rider College) and became the Controller and Business Manager, staying until 1982.

Next Peskin traveled to Lawrenceville, where she was named the Assistant Treasurer, serving until 1987 when she went to Trenton State College as the Director of Business Services, staying until 1989.

Since then, she has served as the Director of Financial Operations at Nova South Eastern University in Ft. Lauderale, Fla.

Peskin received her B.S. in Business Administration at the Ohio State University, then went to Rider College, where she received her M.B.A. with distinction.

Her additional graduate work was completed at Rutgers University, where she was honored with the Annual Award of Academic Merit by the National Association of Business Education and she received her Certified Public Accountant Candidacy at the State of Alabama University.

Katie Zaikoski/Clarion Call

Carole Ann Peskin is a candidate for Vice President of Finance and Administration.

Peskin described Clarion as a "lovely campus," adding, "I have been very impressed by everyone I've met."

Her management philosophy was stated as realizing the potential of the university and maximizing it."I am only one person, I only work 8-10 hours a day like everyone else. I'm being interviewed to assist others, I hope to create a cyntergenic effect.

"I'm encouraged to do the best I can, hopefully with new, inovative ideas that will generate financial aid," she said.

Since passage of the Student Loan Reform Act of 1993, the way students receive student loans might be changed.

"Under a direct lending program, the process of handling Stafford Student Loans will alter," says John Francis, University Comptroller.

"The bank will no longer be involved, but the money will come from the federal government," he said.

According to Financial Aid Director Ken Grugel, "the school becomes the bank."

In response to the question of direct lending, Peskin said "It's very unwise to be a guinea pig in government programs, they give you rules, you start the program and then they give you other rules."

Grugel also noted that direct lending has not been made a mandatory program and added Clarion University has not yet adopted this program.

Along with being named Outstanding Employee of the Year for 1989 at Trenton State College, her list of honors and memberships include:
Cost Reduction Incentive Award, Chapter President for the Institute of Management Accountants where she received Member of the Year; Speaker, Columnist, Committee Person, Member; Southern, Eastern, and National Associations of Colleges and University Business Officers.

Peskin added that she will benefit students by "ensuring that you have the cleanest dormitory rooms, best food, most secure campus and faster financial aid delivery.

"No one here controls what fees students pay, we can only determine productivity of employees and make sure the services are delivered."

The campus will be conducting additional open forums throughout the remainder of February.

Students careless about AIDS prevention

College Press Service

Even when college students know how AIDS is transmitted, many of them fail to practice safe sex regularly, according to a survey released by Southern Connecticut State University.

The survey found that although 92 percent of the respondents said they knew enough about AIDS to protect themselves, 33 percent of those who had intercourse never used a condom. In addition, 41 percent said they used condoms only some of the time, and 26 percent said they used them most of the time or always.

Angela Vicenzi, a nursing professor at the Southern Connecticut University, said many of the students tried to protect themselves by avoiding sex with people who were in high-risk groups.

Those high-risk groups include homosexuals and intravenous drug users.

But there is no way of knowing if a seemingly healthy partner is infected with the HIV virus, she warned.

The survey was followed by a two-hour safe sex workshop where 22 percent of the participants said they were not confident about how to properly use a condom.

The students saw a video on how to use a condom effectively and discussed strategies for asking a partner to use a condom.

Although the students reported a better understanding of AIDS and a increased willingness to discuss the virus, a follow up survey did not show any changes in sexual practices, Vicenzi said.

Political oppostion parties meet to discuss Mexico democracy

Rebel talks upbeat

Officials of seven opposition political parties met yesterday with masked rebel leaders and expressed support for their goals of democratizing Mexico. The meeting, in a 16th century cathedral, came just before the 18 members of The Zapatista National Liberation Army were to start a second day of closed-door talks with the government aimed at ending the uprising that began Jan. 1.

Anti-West Iranian aide

Mostafa Mirsalim, a French-trained engineer who has vowed to expunge Western influence, was installed as Iran's minister of culture and Islamic guidance yesterday. In a report monitored in Cyprus, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said parliament endorsed Mirsalim on a 178-27 vote. His appointment was part of a reshuffling of some of Iran's top positions to bolster a drive against what the government calls a Western "cultural onslaught."

Crackdown spurs riot

Soldiers destroyed a popular opposition radio station and patrolled the capital in armored cars yesterday, setting off rioting, looting and the killing of a man accused of backing Gabon's dictator.

The violence began Monday when militants tried to enforce a general strike called by the Confederation of Free Trade Unions and opposition leaders to protest against the nation's autocratic ruler.

Female priest allowed

The Church of England amended ecclesiastical law yesterday allowing the ordination of women as priests.

At least 1,200 women are expected to become priests in a few months.

U.N. promotes new Haiti plan

Dante Caputo, the U.N. special envoy on Haiti, said yesterday there had been "significant developments" toward returning the island to democracy.

He said a group of Haitian parliamentarians, from all parties, has said it it ready to pass laws to create a new police force.

It would also grant amnesty to the coup leaders who overthrew popularly elected President Jean Bertrand Aristide in September 1991.

Caputo said Aristide has endorsed a new "mini-plan" that would "break the impasse and create the necessary conditions for the full return of constitutional order in the country."

The mini-plan would establish a new prime minister, lift the U.N. economic sanctions and force the "early retirement" of Gen. Raoul Cedras, the military strongman who has led the country since the coup.

The plan would lead to the formation of a new government of "concord" with a new police force.

Panel OKs bill to 'tax' some non-profits

A panel of senate members unanimously ratified legislation that will enable counties and municipalities to collect payments instead of taxes from some charitable organizations - especially large nursing homes and hospitals.

However, the measure, which cleared the Senate Finance Committee last week, was vetoed by local government groups that possibly have been expected to support it.

Souglass Hill, executive director of the County Commissioners Association of Pennsylvania said, "They have totally emasculated the section dealing with payment in lieu of taxes so as to make the bill meaningless."

Reward offered for Rembrandt

St. Bonaventure University is offering a $2,000 reward for information leading to the recovery of a valuable Rembrandt painting that disappeared last fall from the library.

State police and the FBI have made little progress since the painting was taken and hope the reward will stimulate new information about the case, reported The Bona Venture, the campus newspaper.

"Any type of effort that might warrant additional leads is appreciated," said John Ensell, a senior investigator with the New York State Police.

"There's nothing of late to draw immediate attention.

"We're looking at all leads, but they're trickling out," he said.

The oil painting by Rembrandt was discovered missing September 2, 1993 from Friedsam Memorial Library's main reading room, where it had been displayed for more than half a century.

The university collected a $40,000 insurance settlement in November, which was the painting's 1989 appraised value.

The 17th century painting, titled "St. Bartholomew", measures 29-by-21 inches and was encased in a heavy gilt frame.

Don't dismiss nonprofit companies

Don't write off working for a company after graduation just because it's nonprofit, a career counselor advises.

College seniors often make the mistake of dismissing the nonprofit sector when they plan careers because of misconceptions about job pay and satisfaction levels, said Hoyte Wilhelm, director of career development and placement at the College of Wooster.

"Students are often misled by the term "nonprofit," Wilhelm said.

"I make certain our seniors are told that they can not only make a significant contribution to society through employment in the nonprofit sector, but depending on the type of organization, the also can expect to make as much or more money compared to to other entry-level jobs in the for-profit sector.

Nonprofit companies also have some advantages that graduating seniors ought to consider.

For instance, Wilhelm notes that the paid labor force in the nonprofit sector is expected to grow faster than total employment during the next decade.

Employment in nonprofit organizations is more recession-proof than work in for-profit organizations.

According to Wilhelm, one in six Americans is employed by the 900,000 nonprofit organizations in the United States.

32 percent of those workers are professionals. This was compared to 12 percent in the general labor force.

Nonprofit groups often give workers more opportunties for diverse tasks, assignments, flexible hours and responsibilities, as well as greater visibility, particularly in the smaller organizations.

Chinese acrobats to appear and amaze

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

The Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats will dance and balance their way into Clarion University's Marwick-Boyd Auditorium on Friday, March 11 at 8 p.m.

Approximately 14-18 acrobats, dancers and magicians will demonstrate grace and beauty through acts of building pyramids and walls of people, balancing with saw horses and chairs, and stylized dancing. The director and leader of the Chinese Acrobats, Ching-Chang, will also perform a balancing act with champagne glasses.

First appearing with Liberace at the Las Vegas Hilton, the Chinese Acrobats have also shared stardom with Joan Rivers, Merv Griffen and Dinah Shore. They have also performed their feats on segments of "That's Incredible," "PM Magazine," and "ABC's Wide World of Sports."

The meaning of "acrobat" entails more in Chinese than it does in the English language. Grace and precision, all performed with a great deal of sophistication, have been expressed by the Chinese culture since 200 B.C. The complete acrobat is not thought of as only an acrobat but is more defined as actor/athlete/artist.

Dedication should also be a part of this definition. Training to become a skilled acrobat begins very early, at the age of four or five. Usually between fourteen or fifteen, the acrobats can perform their skills with perfection.

Realistically enough, along with all that dedication can come disappointment. Recruitment for the Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats is conducted for new tours almost every two years.

A member of the Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats bravely dives through the ring of death.

With the competition high, in the female category, only 40 of the 2,000 candidates are selected to become a part of the cast.

Traveling extensively through South America, Central America, South East Asia, Israel, Germany, England, Canada, the Caribbean and the United States, the Chinese Acrobats have established a highly credible name for themselves.

They have been rated "Outstanding Performing Arts Attraction of the Year" by the National Association of Campus Activities five out of the last six years nominated. The NACA embodies 1,200 colleges and universities nationwide.

Also, the Republic of Taipei government has awarded the Chinese Acrobats the single highest honor for performers. In doing so, the government sponsored their 1989 tour of Bao Dao (Beautiful Island). This tour entailed a 20-week tour through the United States and Canada.

Come and have the Chinese Acrobats captivate you with their skilled talents. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children. Admittance for students with a valid ID is free.

The performance is sponsored by the University Activities Board. For additional information call (814) 226-2312, and for tickets call (814) 226-2459 or (814) 226-1865 for group ticket information.

Black History Month teaches more than just history

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Writer

"Our lack of understanding is what holds us back," states the Director of Minority Student Services, Rogers Laugand.

The month is February, Black History Month, the only month out of the year that famous African Americans are celebrated. This is the only month we hear of the black culture, whereas Laugand says that the minorities are forced to learn and live the majorities' culture for 365 days a year.

The Minority Student Services is on campus, not just to help the minority students but to reach out to students of all cultures. It's ultimate goal is to create multiculturalism; a society free of ignorance. This would also help bring African-American culture to the classroom instead of just Caucasian culture.

Racism may not be as blatant at Clarion as it is on other campuses, but the fact is, it still exists. Dispelling these viscious stereotypes, we would learn that accepting and understanding one another is the key to a harmonious existence.

The Minority Student Services is trying to bring the minorities some of their culture to Clarion, while also giving it to the majority in hopes they will stand up and take notice. The Minority Student Services is sponsoring many activities this fall semester to heighten the growing need for awareness of the African-American culture.

A few of these activities are: twice a month an African-American pastor will be coming to Clarion University to perform spiritual services along with Clarion's gospel "Lift Every Voice" choir, all of which is open to the community; once a month there will be community service programs in Pittsburgh, which has a religious affiliation; and the creation of a Big Brother program called "Eyes on the prize mentoring program" has the upperclassmen help out with beginning minority students' education.

Among these activities is a play entitled "Black Man/Black Woman." The play portrays black female/male relationships in America.

The audience witnessed the destruction of the Black family and the reasoning of why the black man and the black woman do not get along. The drama focused on love, trust, masculinity, femininity, domestic struggles and what causes the breakup in relationships.

The Adelphia Repertory African-American Touring Company has performed this production. "Black Man/Black Woman" was held on Tuesday at the Hart Chapel.

Laugand and the Minority Student Services urges you to take part in learning about other cultures by participating in these activities, keeping in mind that once we understand the problem that exists, we can strive to unite together to solve it. Maybe someday we can make Dr. Martin Luther King's dream come true.

For more information on multiculturalism contact Rogers Laugand at the Minority Student Services office in B25 Becht Hall or call (814) 226-2043.

Like royalty, King sets example for everyone

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

I had to fight time itself to get into her schedule. Dressed to kill (as usual) Kari King waltzed in on time and ready for her interview. When I decided to meet with Ms. King I thought that it was going to be an easy interview. I was wrong.

I have known Kari since the first day of my freshman year. Many things have changed since then, but one thing that has not is Kari's acute sense of humor. For every question that I asked, she had an intelligent answer and a hilarious joke to go along with it. I had a difficult time attempting to keep a straight face. No one thought that I was conducting an interview. Everyone that walked by simply believed that it was just two old friends talking about one thing or another- just catching up on each others lives. Maybe they were right. In any case, this is what was said.

As many of you know, Kari has been a member of Student Senate for quite some time. As the chairperson of the Social Equities Committee and a member of the Student Center Concerns Committee, she has endeavored to make some important changes on this campus and in the lives of the students who attend classes here.

When she was asked how she has been able to change campus through her positions on Student Senate, Ms. King had much to say. "I made it quite clear what I believe in. I have tried to increase the knowledge and presence of cultural diversity on the campus. I realize that it is not going to be an overnight occurence. It has to be gradual change. I do believe that things have changed, but I hope to see more change within my time remaining at Clarion."

I also asked Kari how she thinks being part of Student Senate has changed her. "It has enhanced my knowledge about the university beyond just sitting in class."

King is also involved in other activities that showcase her leadership skills. She was asked to be a presenter at the National Black College Convention at Cheney University. On March 24-27 Kari will present "60 Leadership Tactics in 60 Minutes." In her words, "I 'm really gonna have to work that one."

She also plans to orchestrate a drama production in which a highly diverse group of students deals with problems of racism as well as religion and gender issues. The group called "On the Real Tip" performs a skit and then asks for audience participation in open forum style to "break down stereotypes and build bonds." Kari feels that when it comes to sensitivity, there is much Clarion University doesn't see.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Kari King is the epitomy of confidence and much more.

"In some areas Clarion is lacking the academic and social programs that are needed to teach and celebrate diversity on campus," said King.

Another interesting fact that many people may not know is that Kari is the only member of the Theta Beta chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. She has been the "lone ranger" for over a semester, but she doesn't look at this as being a negative o in her life.

"Being the only member [on campus] is difficult, but DST has changed my life. Becoming a member was the highlight of my time at Clarion."

I then asked what she wanted to be remembered by. She thought for a moment, and then stated "Strive for excellence in whatever you do. Never think that anyone is better than you. If you don't think you're the best no one else will either." Many would misconstrue the comment as being one of conceit. Ms. King stated otherwise, "I am not conceited and I am not cocky. I am simply confident in who I am and what I do."

Ms. King, a senior education major who will graduate in December of 1994, feels that Clarion has given her a lot. "Through friendships and good times, I have learned a lot, I have grown a lot. No matter how hard it seemed, Clarion really was for me. Although coming from Philly [to Clarion] was a great shock."

The one thing Kari will always remember "is the eternal friendships. Being in college, I got the chance to meet people from all over. And I met GENUINE people. These are people that I will love for a lifetime."

Kari wants to dedicate this article to her "her girl," her mom who is undergoing surgery this morning.

Women's History Month:

Women written back into history

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Just as February honors Black History, March is set aside for the celebration of Women's History.

By honoring Women's History Month, schools, worksites and communities recognize and celebrate the lives of many women of all ages, races, cultures, ethnic traditions and ways of life.

Women who have participated in history by living out their lives, whether in grandly eloquent or steadfastly ordinary ways, are honored for their contributions to shared history.

The theme for this year's celebration is "In Every Generation, Action Frees Our Dreams." Today, many of us are inspired by stories of our grandmothers, and the ways in which their courage and determination shaped their own lives and the world we live in.

By celebrating Women's History Month, the opportunity is given to learn about the role of women in our nation's past. This would give young women self-insurance and self-esteem to take responsibility for planning their own futures. It can also give them an optimistic feeling of control over their own lives.

More Than Worthy

An experience in my life that means a lot to me?
Hmm, I'd have to think to myself. . .
There have been so many.
I guess it would be the dance I got;
to dazzle you with my proficiency, depth, and smarts.
Yes that would be one, an experience to remember.
An opportunity to prove myself --
To spite my race, religion, or gender.
I'll work, I'll study, and always try;
To be one of the best African-American Women
before your eyes.
It wasn't easy getting here
But now I'm here to stay
My people struggled too damn long
For anyone to say
You are not good enough
You are not worthy

Congressional Resolution
Designating the Month of March as
"Women's History Month"

*W*hereas American women of every race, class, and ethnic background have made historic contributions to the growth and strength of our Nation in countless recorded and unrecorded ways;

*W*hereas American women have played and continue to play a critical economic, cultural, and social role in every sphere of the life of the Nation by constituting a significant portion of the labor force working inside and outside of the home;

*W*hereas American women have played a unique role throughout the history of the Nation by providing the majority of the volunteer labor force of the Nation;

*W*hereas American women were particularly important in the establishment of early charitable, philanthropic, and cultural institutions in our Nation;

*W*hereas American women of every race, class, and ethnic background served as early leaders in the forefront of every major progressive social change movement;

*W*hereas American women have been leaders, not only in securing their own rights of suffrage and equal opportunity, but also in the abolitionist movement, the emancipation movement, the industrial movement, the civil rights movement, and other movements, especially the peace movement, which create a more fair and just society for all; and

*W*hereas despite these contributions, the role of American women in history has been consistently overlooked and undervalued, in the literature, teaching and study of American history:

*N*ow, therefore, be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that March is designated as "Women's History Month," and the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe that month with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities. -passed by Congress, 1987

University Apartments

Affordable Student Housing
Now Renting for Summer, Fall and Spring

Located Along U.S. Rt. 322

University Apartments offers an atmosphere conducive to higher education as well as an opportunity for independent living. Each unit is a self-contained efficiency apartment equipped with kitchen appliances, furniture and a bathroom. We offer a full-time resident manager to supervise the buildings.

Comparing our rental rates with campus and other off-campus housing, one will find them substantially below market rent for the area. With the exception of telephone, all utilities including basic cable are included in the rent. Installation and hook-up of utilities alone would cost and additional $75 at other places. Add this to your monthly bills,(say and average of $100/month for 4 students),and rent for the semester. Compare and save with University Apartments.

Please contact University Apartments for further information and/or an appointment to examine our facilities: 226-6880

Rates: Current dormitory rates are $805 per semester per student for two-person square room with no kitchen, living room or bathroom. University Apartments rates are as follows

Like royalty, King sets example for everyone

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

I had to fight time itself to get into her schedule. Dressed to kill (as usual) Kari King waltzed in on time and ready for her interview. When I decided to meet with Ms. King I thought that it was going to be an easy interview. I was wrong.

I have known Kari since the first day of my freshman year. Many things have changed since then, but one thing that has not is Kari's acute sense of humor. For every question that I asked, she had an intelligent answer and a hilarious joke to go along with it. I had a difficult time attempting to keep a straight face. No one thought that I was conducting an interview. Everyone that walked by simply believed that it was just two old friends talking about one thing or another- just catching up on each others lives. Maybe they were right. In any case, this is what was said.

As many of you know, Kari has been a member of Student Senate for quite some time. As the chairperson of the Social Equities Committee and a member of the Student Center Concerns Committee, she has endeavored to make some important changes on this campus and in the lives of the students who attend classes here.

When she was asked how she has been able to change campus through her positions on Student Senate, Ms. King had much to say. "I made it quite clear what I believe in. I have tried to increase the knowledge and presence of cultural diversity on the campus. I realize that it is not going to be an overnight occurence. It has to be gradual change. I do believe that things have changed, but I hope to see more change within my time remaining at Clarion."

I also asked Kari how she thinks being part of Student Senate has changed her. "It has enhanced my knowledge about the university beyond just sitting in class."

King is also involved in other activities that showcase her leadership skills. She was asked to be a presenter at the National Black College Convention at Cheney University. On March 24-27 Kari will present "60 Leadership Tactics in 60 Minutes." In her words, "I 'm really gonna have to work that one."

She also plans to orchestrate a drama production in which a highly diverse group of students deals with problems of racism as well as religion and gender issues. The group called "On the Real Tip" performs a skit and then asks for audience participation in open forum style to "break down stereotypes and build bonds." Kari feels that when it comes to sensitivity, there is much Clarion University doesn't see.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Kari King is the epitomy of confidence and much more.

"In some areas Clarion is lacking the academic and social programs that are needed to teach and celebrate diversity on campus," said King.

Another interesting fact that many people may not know is that Kari is the only member of the Theta Beta chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. She has been the "lone ranger" for over a semester, but she doesn't look at this as being a negative o in her life.

"Being the only member [on campus] is difficult, but DST has changed my life. Becoming a member was the highlight of my time at Clarion."

I then asked what she wanted to be remembered by. She thought for a moment, and then stated "Strive for excellence in whatever you do. Never think that anyone is better than you. If you don't think you're the best no one else will either." Many would misconstrue the comment as being one of conceit. Ms. King stated otherwise, "I am not conceited and I am not cocky. I am simply confident in who I am and what I do."

Ms. King, a senior education major who will graduate in December of 1994, feels that Clarion has given her a lot. "Through friendships and good times, I have learned a lot, I have grown a lot. No matter how hard it seemed, Clarion really was for me. Although coming from Philly [to Clarion] was a great shock."

The one thing Kari will always remember "is the eternal friendships. Being in college, I got the chance to meet people from all over. And I met GENUINE people. These are people that I will love for a lifetime."

Kari wants to dedicate this article to her "her girl," her mom who is undergoing surgery this morning.

Women's History Month:

Women written back into history

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Just as February honors Black History, March is set aside for the celebration of Women's History.

By honoring Women's History Month, schools, worksites and communities recognize and celebrate the lives of many women of all ages, races, cultures, ethnic traditions and ways of life.

Women who have participated in history by living out their lives, whether in grandly eloquent or steadfastly ordinary ways, are honored for their contributions to shared history.

The theme for this year's celebration is "In Every Generation, Action Frees Our Dreams." Today, many of us are inspired by stories of our grandmothers, and the ways in which their courage and determination shaped their own lives and the world we live in.

By celebrating Women's History Month, the opportunity is given to learn about the role of women in our nation's past. This would give young women self-insurance and self-esteem to take responsibility for planning their own futures. It can also give them an optimistic feeling of control over their own lives.

More Than Worthy

An experience in my life that means a lot to me?
Hmm, I'd have to think to myself. . .
There have been so many.
I guess it would be the dance I got;
to dazzle you with my proficiency, depth, and smarts.
. Yes that would be one, an experience to remember.
An opportunity to prove myself --
To spite my race, religion, or gender.
I'll work, I'll study, and always try;
To be one of the best African-American Women
before your eyes.
It wasn't easy getting here
But now I'm here to stay
My people struggled too damn long
For anyone to say
You are not good enough
You are not worthy
The Best Life has to offer
Breathes in and out of me.

Congressional Resolution
Designating the Month of March as
"Women's History Month"

*W*hereas American women of every race, class, and ethnic background have made historic contributions to the growth and strength of our Nation in countless recorded and unrecorded ways;

*W*hereas American women have played and continue to play a critical economic, cultural, and social role in every sphere of the life of the Nation by constituting a significant portion of the labor force working inside and outside of the home;

*W*hereas American women have played a unique role throughout the history of the Nation by providing the majority of the volunteer labor force of the Nation;

*W*hereas American women were particularly important in the establishment of early charitable, philanthropic, and cultural institutions in our Nation;

*W*hereas American women of every race, class, and ethnic background served as early leaders in the forefront of every major progressive social change movement;

*W*hereas American women have been leaders, not only in securing their own rights of suffrage and equal opportunity, but also in the abolitionist movement, the emancipation movement, the industrial movement, the civil rights movement, and other movements, especially the peace movement, which create a more fair and just society for all; and

*W*hereas despite these contributions, the role of American women in history has been consistently overlooked and undervalued, in the literature, teaching and study of American history:

*N*ow, therefore, be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that March is designated as "Women's History Month," and the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe that month with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities. -passed by Congress, 1987

-In October, Blue Shield of Idaho and Blue Cross of Idaho demanded the return of payments they mistakenly made to now-suspended psychologist Terry Clapp for treatments of several people with multiple personality disorders. Based on testimony at Clapp's disciplinary hearing, his preferred treatment of that disorder was exorcism, which the insurers said they do not cover.

-Donald C. Winston, fired as a tenured instuctor of English at Central Maine Technical college for sexually harassing an 18-year-old female student, fought for reinstatement by claiming he was handicapped, which is a protected status under the Maine Human Rights Act and the 1973 federal Rehabilitation Act. He said he suffered from "a handicap of sexual addiction." The Maine Supreme Court turned him down in September.

-In December, fashion designer Oribe Canales returned to work at Elizabeth Arden's studio in New York City, following a week's in-patient care at a Minnesota drug rehabilitation clinic. In the event that led to his treatment, Canales, at a fashion show, had spontaneously smeared blue paint on models just as they were to walk out on the runway. Reflecting on that moment, an unrepetent Canales said in December, "It was genius. My interpretation was Hiroshima — and that radiation can be beautiful."

-The Lillehammer Olympic Organizing committee in Norway, site of the 1994 Winter Games, told visiting dignitaries in November that its employees are training with "smile holders" in order not to look dour during the Games. A smile holder is a device that fits on the wearer's head, with clips that grasp the corners of the wearer's mouth; it can be adjusted, by pulling a strap, to go from slight grin to gleeful smile.

-Researchers at the Center of Atmospheric Sciences at the National Autonomous University of Mexico reported in May that nearly 5 million inhabitants of Mexico City and suburbs are forced to defecate outdoors and that more than 60 percent of Mexico City residents show signs of amoebic dysentery.

In Norway, spunky and clinically insane are synonymous

LILLEHAMMER, Norway — We have had our first semi-tragedy of the Winter Olympics. What happened was, a Norwegian ski jumper named "Ole Gunnar Fidjestol" (or, as his friends call him, "Ole Gunnar Fidjestol") was practicing for his part in the opening ceremonies, wherein he was going to go off of a ski jump WHILE HOLDING A FLAMING TORCH. Really. The idea was that he would land safely and then light the Olympic flame, which serves as a dramatic and inspirational reminder of what happens when oxygen combines rapidly with torch fuel.

Unfortunately, during a practice run, Ole — perhaps you have already heard about this — was wacked in the knee by Tonya Harding's bodyguard.

No, seriously, he crashed and hurt himself and had to go to the hospital. Wouldn't you like to have been there when he explained this accident to his insurance company? (You did WHAT? Carrying a WHAT??")

So anyway, Ole couldn't make the Flaming Torch Jump, and the truly amazing thing is, THEY FOUND SOMEBODY ELSE WHO WAS WILLNG TO DO IT. That is the kind of spunky, by which I mean clinically insane, people the Norwegians are.

No, really, the Norwegians are great. I do not wish to generalize, but they are all ruddy-complexioned, helpful, efficient and unfailingly polite. Also, they all appear to be 22 years old. I don't know what happens to old Norwegians. Perhaps their reflexes slow down and they get trampled by moose.

There are a lot of moose here, even in the downtown Lillehammer area. In fact, according to published reports that I am not making up, the Norwegians spread wolf urine on the railroad tracks to keep the moose away. This leads to the question: How do you gather wolf urine? It would take an extremely spunky Norwegian to do that. I bet that whenever flaming-torch-jumpers gather together, they say, "Well, we may go off ski jumps holding torches, but at least we don't collect urine from wolves. Those guys are NUTS."

Here are some other Norway Facts:

FACT: The king of Norway is named "Harald."

FACT: The Norwegian unit of currency is the "krone" (plural: "kroner") with one krone being equal to an amount of money that no two Americans can agree on or figure out even with the aid of calculators. On the 100-kroner note is a picture of a woman; according to Sissel Karlsen, a 22-year-old Norwegian who works in the press center, this woman was "the sister of a very famous Norwegian writer."

I asked Sissel how come the sister was on the currency, as opposed to the famous writer.

"I don't know," she said.

Norway: Land of Mystery.

FACT: There is a LOT of snow here. According to the Olympic news agency, there is a record 132 centimeters on the ground. (To get an idea how much snow this is, just remember this simple formula: One centimeter equals 17 kroner.) There are large snowbanks all over the place, especially in the Media Village, where many members of the press are staying and attempting to walk back to at night after drinking a local beverage called "aquavit," which is made from alcohol, enriched uranium and wolf urine. Nobody knows how many people have fallen into these snowbanks, but my guess is that come August, when the snowbanks finally melt, the landscape will be littered with frozen journalists, who, upon exposure to the sun, will thaw out and immediately file expense reports. That is the kind of professionals we are.

Professional bench-icers did their job

LILLEHAMMER, Norway -- In a moment, I will get to the various Winter Olympic sporting events and how we in the news media are not allowing them to be overshadowed by Tonya Harding. But first, I want to tell you about the official opening ceremony, which was a spectacular and dramatic event that I will remember at least until my butt thaws out, which won't happen for a long, long time. Twenty years from now, when I go in for a physical examination, the doctor will say, "Mr. Barry, you seem to be fine, except for the fact that your butt is minus 12 degrees Fahrenheit at the core."

The problem was that the ceremony was held in a stadium where the spectators sat for three hours on concrete benches covered with a thick layer of ice. My guess is that the Norwegians put the ice there on purpose. They probably had professional bench-icers working all night, because these people LOVE the cold. Even when it's really, REALLY cold, so cold that we visiting journalists are afraid to blink for fear that our eyes will freeze shut and we will be unable to fill out our expense reports, the Norwegians are walking around outdoors practically naked, happy as clams.

Maybe it's their diet. It consists almost entirely of cold food, mainly salmon, which seems to show up at every meal in virtually every form. So as you can imagine, after being here for a while, a person can develop a fearsome case of salmon breath, which is difficult to get rid of inasmuch as the Norwegians probably use salmon-flavored toothpaste. Thus, no matter how cold it is, everybody is happier outdoors.

But moving on to the Olympic games themselves: We here in the U.S. news media are all SICK AND TIRED of the whole Tonya Harding thing, and we are doing our level best not to let it overshadow the athletic events. Some of us have even taken the extreme step of actually talking to athletes other than Nancy Kerrigan (Yes! There are some!)

"So," we ask these athletes. "What do YOU think of this Tonya Harding thing?"

Also there has been a major new development on the wolf-urine front. You may recall that the Norwegians were putting wolf urine on the railroad tracks here to repel moose. Well, I have here a Dallas Morning News report stating that (1) they are NOT moose, they are elk; and (2) the Norwegians are NOT using wolf urine to repel them. They are using salmon urine.

(They aren't using urine at all.)

"Philadelphia": The city of brotherly love?

by Michael M. Cashaw
Contributing Writer

Rated R
 Well worth the money
Good, but just once
*OK if you're bored
Don't even bother

Welcome to the "City of Brotherly Love." Well not quite the city, but to a story named after it, with some beautiful opening shots of the city.

"Philadelphia" is based on a true story about a man, played by Tom Hanks, who sues for wrongful firing from his job as a lawyer with a prominent Philadelphia law firm. He contends that he was fired because he had AIDS. After his firing he attempts to acquire a lawyer.

Being very unsuccessful at this venture, due to the fact that no one wants to touch this case, he walks into the office of Denzell Washington, his last hope.

While Washington is welcoming Hanks into his office with a handshake, he asks what happened to his face; the AIDS-induced legions are quite noticable. Upon being informed Hank's character has AIDS, Washington gives a slight look of horror, wipes his hands, and offers him a seat to hear his complaint.

Denzell is the type of lawyer who could be compared to Edgar Snyder, Attorney-at-Law, only Washington is less annoying. He advertises on television, explaining why most people meeting him address him, "You're the man on TV?!" Here Hanks thinks he will find a champion of justice, but nope. Washington also refuses him, due to homophobia. But he will not go up against the big boys, so Hanks walks out dejected.

At home Washington is telling his wife about this situation, and his wife informs him that he is homophobic. He agrees, after first trying to deny it.

What brings Washington into this is an incident at the pubic library. Hanks walks in to do research for his case, while Washington is there doing research. Washington tries to hide behind a stack of books. He later comes out when Hanks is approached by a sensitive librarian. After this altercation, Washington walks over to ask if Hanks has found a counselor. No, of course, so Washington takes the case and they go over some legal jargon pertaining to the case.

You get a glimpse into the homosexual world when Washington and his wife are invited to a Halloween party thrown by Hanks. This was a well-shot sequence, besides being very tastefully done. After the party Washington get together to prep his witness.

To me, what followed was weird, out of place and just not needed. They are listening to an opera soundtrack and Hanks goes into this "zone," for lack of a better word. This scene was not bad, but I did not understand the need to light him in red. This scene is very emotion-filled. Maybe a little more than Washington can handle because he runs out.

You also get to see Hanks' family during Christmas when he and his lover tell the family that he is going to court against his former employer. He has a very loving, caring, and supportive family.

While all of this is going on, the three partners of the law firm, (former employers) discuss the case, when it is revealed that Hanks may have been fired because he has AIDS. If this is true, then he may win the case and a lot of money.

The case finally comes to trial. There is tort and retort. I guess due to budget constraints, they could not present a believable case on screen, because, to me, if the verdict was decided on what the film showed, then Hanks died in vain. The courtroom scene just did not work.

All in all the film was okay, but the courtroom scene, the red light scene and lack of emotions detracts from the reality of the film. * 1/2 Rating

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

Unknown to most historians, William Tell had an older and less fortunate son named Warren.

Crossing the village, Mowaka is overpowered by army ants. (Later, bystanders were all quoted as saying they were horrified, but "didn't want to get involved.")

The Psychology behind the Citibank Classic Visa card the emotional security of the Photocard, now with No Annual Fee.

The Monarch Notes Version: The Citibank Classic card gives students no annual fee, peace of mind, protection against Freud—or rather fraud—and a low rate. Apply today. Call 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), ext. 19.

The Citibank Classic Visa® instills in students feelings of safety, security, and general wellness not unlike those experienced in the womb. Therefore, it is the mother of all credit cards.

Some experts attribute these feelings to the Citibank Photocard, the first credit card with your photo on it. A voice inside says, "This is me, really me." (As opposed to, "Who the heck is that?" - a common response to the photo on one's Student ID.) It's an immediate form of ID, a boost to your self-image.

Subject suffering from Credit Card Theft Nervosa.

Subject after receiving Citibank Classic Visa Photocard.

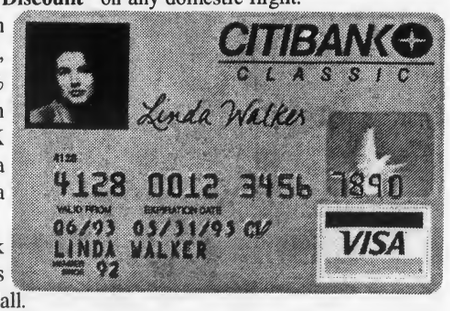

Of course if your card is ever lost or stolen and a stranger is prevented form using it, you'll feel exceptionally good (showing no signs of Credit Card Theft Nervosa).

Other experts point to other services, such as The Lost Wallet℠ Service that can replace your card usually within 24 hours. Or the 24-Hour Customer Service line, your hotline, if you will, for any card-related anxiety whatsoever.

Further analysis reveals three services that protect the purchases you make on the Citibank Classic Visa card, at no additional cost.. 1. Buyers Security℠ can cover them against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase[1] (preventing, of course, Insecurity). 2. Citibank Lifetime Warranty℠ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years.[2]

3. And Citibank Price Protection assures you of the best price. You need only see the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[1] (hence no Post Purchase Depression).

Special student savings are particularly therapeutic. $20 Airfare Discount[4] on any domestic flight. (Case studies indicate that a Fear of Flying is overcome when Spring Break in sunny Florida is a possibility.) Not to mention savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate[4] of 15.4% and No Annual Fee. Suffice it to say, you'll have a credit card you can depend on while building a credit history. So call 1-800- CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19, to apply over the phone (student's don't need a job or a cosigner) or to have your photo added to your Citibank Classic Visa card.

If we say that a sense of Identity is the first component of Citibank Classic Visa card, a sense of Security the second, and a sense of Autonomous Will from your new found financial independence the third, don't be crazy. . . Call.

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

Men win nail-biter, but lose to IUP

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Last Wednesday, the Clarion University Men's Basketball team played host to the Slippery Rock Rockets. Clarion had defeated Slippery Rock earlier this year by nine points, but this contest would not prove to be so easy.

The Rock started the game off quickly as Brent Schremp hit a driving layup just 11 seconds into the game. The lead didn't last long however, as Brian Paige hit a three pointer off a pass from Kwame Morton.

Both teams played very well for the remainder of the first half, particularly (who else) Morton. Morton lit up Slippery Rock for 22 first half points on 7 for 10 shooting from the field. Oronn Brown had 11 points as Clarion took a 48-45 lead into halftime.

Slippery Rock hung tight with Clarion and tied the game up several times. The Rockets even moved into the lead at the 8:16 mark after a Mark Metzka three pointer. However Morton answered right back with a trifecta of his own.

Morton had a tougher time in the second half. Troy Miller was playing him very tightly and refusing to let Morton get the ball. Morton had 56 points against Slippery Rock earlier this year, so they were certainly going to focus on shutting him down. Miller played him well, but also gave him several cheap shots and trash talked in his ear for nearly the whole game.

"He's a good player, but he talks a little too much. He would be better if he would keep his comments to himself," Morton noted after the game.

The teams traded baskets for the next several minutes, the exchange highlighted by a monster Ian Whyte dunk.

With 2:48 remaining Slippery Rock again tied the game when Derek Gauss got free inside for a layup. That made the score 84-84, but Paige nailed a big three pointer to give Clarion an advantage. Slippery Rock would not die, however, and Dennis Greene answered with a trey of his own to again knot the score.

Both teams missed scoring opportunities but Ian Whyte layed one in with :21 seconds to go and give the Golden Eagles a 89-87 edge. Clarion got possession of the ball back shortly thereafter.

Slippery Rock then fouled Jamie Polak and put him on the line. Polak, a freshman, has received lots of playing time this year, but felt the pressure as he missed both of the free throws.

"I wasn't really nervous. I was pretty confident. The first shot was just too strong," Polak said after the game.

Morton commented, "I was kind of nervous for him. That's a lot of pressure for a freshman."

On the ensuing possession, a Slippery Rock player dribbled the ball off his foot on the way down the court. Paige, after being fouled, sealed up the game with a free throw.

The final score was 90-87.

For the game, Morton led all scorers with 32 points. He also had seven rebounds, four assists, and three steals.

Paige shot four for nine from three point land on his way to 21 points.

Brown had 15 points and five assists, and Branch had 11 points and nine rebounds.

On Saturday, the Eagles had a tough match against #2 ranked IUP.

The biggest crowd of the year, 3,200, showed up for this Senior Night game. Before the game, Morton was honored for his several outstanding accomplishments. Reggie Wells, a Clarion basketball great, was on hand to present Morton with a plaque. Both men received a standing ovation in appreciation for their several achievements.

As the game got underway, IUP began to show why they are undefeated, playing a very well executed game. The Golden Eagles never let them get too far ahead however, and at the half were down by only ten, 51-41.

In the second half, the Eagles, spurred on by a very excited crowd, began to narrow the gap. Unfortunately for the Eagles, though, Whyte picked up his fourth foul of the game with over 17 minutes remaining.

The Golden Eagles narrowed the lead to three on three different occasions, but every time they got close, IUP would pull away again.

At one point midway through the second half, several African-American students protesting an unconfirmed, non-renewal of a professor's contract, walked onto the court, stopping play for several minutes.

Afterward, the students marched around the court, waving signs and chanting.

The whole turn of events seemed to take the crowd out of the game and gave the momentum back to IUP who then began to run away with things.

Whyte ended up fouling out of the game, along with Paige, and the Eagles could not fight back into the game.

At the four minute mark, IUP made the lead double digits, and Clarion would never get close again.

With 52 seconds remaining in the game, the protestors again took to the court, this time in a larger number. The coaches and referees conferred for a moment and the game was then ruled officially over.

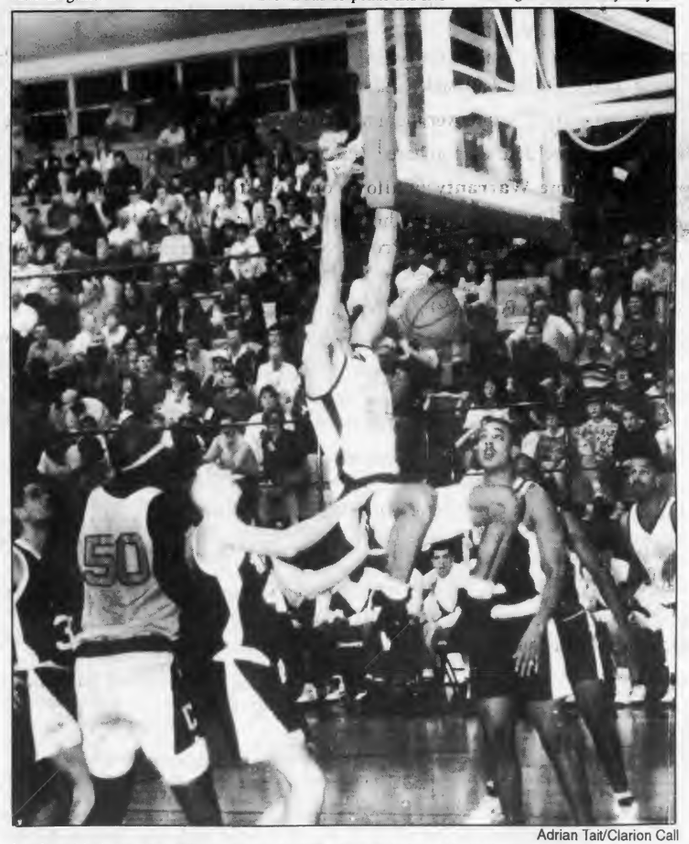

The final score was 108-91 IUP.

Morton netted 26 for the Golden Eagles to go along with eight rebounds.

Branch had 20 points, and eight boards, and Brown had 17 points and seven assists.

Whyte had 14 points, nine boards, and three blocks, and Paige finished with 11 points and two blocks.

Clarion finishes out their season next week with another tough game at California. Cal beat Clarion in an overtime game earlier this year.

Adrian Tait/Clarion Call

Look out below! Ian Whyte dunks as IUP players helplessly look on. Whyte finished the game against IUP with 14 points, nine rebounds, and three blocked shots. It was in vain, however, as the Indians rolled over Clarion.

Lady Eagles win two more conference games

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Last Wednesday, the Lady Eagle basketball team took on the Lady Rockets of Slippery Rock. Though not nearly as talented as Clarion, Slippery Rock gave the Lady Eagles a tough time earlier this year. This game would prove to be the same until The Rock self destructed in the second half.

Carlita Jones got the ball rolling for the Eagles, hitting a layup just 15 seconds into the game. The Eagles built a lead as large as eight, but Slippery Rock fought back, and by halftime, the Lady Rockets had a one point lead.

In the second half, Clarion jumped out to a 19-4 run and took a 56-42 lead.

Slippery Rock shot only 26% in the second half, as compared to 47% in the first half. That kind of poor play will bury a team if they are playing against a team as talented as Clarion.

The closest Slippery Rock could get the rest of the game was nine, as the Eagles rolled to a 72-58 victory.

Jones had 19 points, 19 rebounds, five steals, three blocks, and five assists in an incredible outing.

Mona Gaffney had 22 points, and 11 rebounds, Amy Coon shot 5 for 11 from three point land for 15 points, and Shannon Coakley had 12 points and six rebounds.

Clarion next took on IUP in a game that ended up much closer than it should have been.

Clarion lost point guard Amy Migyanka to injury against Slippery Rock, and the effects of her abscence were noticeable.

Clarion held the lead for most of the first half, but at times they showed trouble passing and handling the IUP press.

Coakley scored 11 points in the half to help Clarion take a 40-32 lead into the locker room.

As the second half began, the Lady Eagles kept IUP at arm's length, and led by as many as eight with three minutes to go.

However, the Lady Rockets went on a 6-1 run and narrowed the game to 63-60. Gaffney was then put on the line and she nailed both of her free throws to give Clarion a five point lead.

Coakley then fouled Tracey Hill who hit both ends of a one-and-one and the lead was down to three.

Coakley was then fouled, but sealed up the game for Clarion by hitting both shots from the charity stripe.

Coakley led the Lady Eagles in scoring with 18 points. She also had five rebounds, three steals, and five assists.

Gaffney had 15 points, nine rebounds, and three blocks.

Jones had another incredible rebounding performance, wiping the glass clean 14 times to go along with 14 points, four blocks, and four steals. Look for more "Player of the Week" honors for Carlita for these two incredible back to back performances.

Clarion will be headed to the PSAC's on March 4. However, they will be without Migyanka, and each player is going to have to pick their game up a level to make up for the abscence.

But if any team can recover from this, it's Clarion.

Wrestlers beat Lock Haven

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

On Friday night, Feb. 18, Lock Haven University visited Tippin Gymnasium in Clarion's final EWL match of the year.

The Eagles got on the board first as Sheldon Thomas won by a forfeit, giving the Eagles a quick 6-0 lead. Thomas's record now stands at 22-5.

Next, at 126 pounds, Bob Crawford picked up six more points for Clarion by pinning John Knapp, bringing the score to 12-0, and pushing Crawford's impressive freshman record to 22-3.

At 134, Tom Tomeo of Clarion major decisioned Joe Barbara 11-2, increasing the Golden Eagle lead to 16-0, upping his own record to 18-7.

At 142 pounds, Jody Clark of Clarion defeated Brian Leitzel 6-5, adding three more points to the Eagle lead, and improving to 14-11.

150 pound junior captain Moss Grays decisioned Lock Haven's Pete Ventresca to give the Eagles a commanding 22-0 lead. Gray's season mark now stands at 22-7.

Clarion suffered its first defeat at 158 pounds, as Scott Goodale defeated Damon Brown 6-2 to finally put Lock Haven on the board. Brown fell to 13-7.

Senior captain J.J. Stanbro put the Eagles back on track during the 167 pound match. He major decisioned Neil Barnes, 9-1. This win gave Stanbro a 23-4 season mark, and pushed the Eagles ahead 26-3.

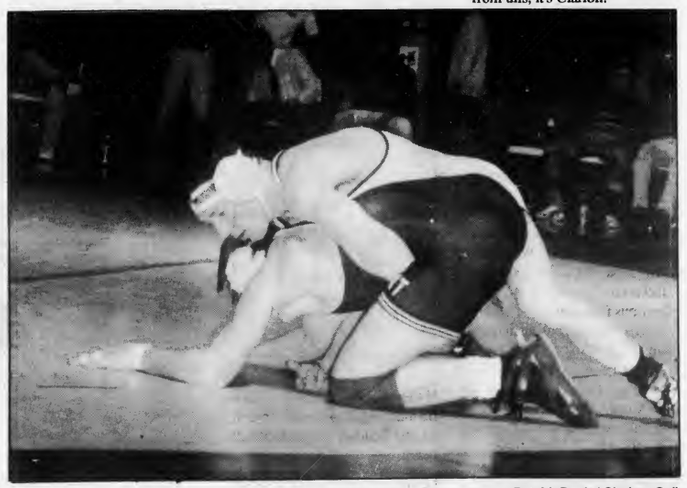

At 177 pounds, Eagle captain Dan Payne suffered only his fifth loss of the season to Mike Geurin, 5-2. Payne is now 27-5.

Bryan Stout wasted no time at 190 pounds in defeating Rennie Rodarmel 6-0, increasing Clarion's lead to 29-6. Stout stands at 23-5.

Finally, at heavyweight, Rob Sintobin of Clarion made quick work of Joe Eaton pinning him to give the Eagles an impressive victory at 35-6. Sintobin is 23-5.

Clarion is now 15-2 overall, and 5-1 in EWL competition. Clarion is also currently ranked 6th in the latest NCAA Division I wrestling.

EWL championships will be held on March 5-6 at Lock Haven University. Clarion finished fifth there last season, but are certainly a different team this year.

Pat McDevitt/ Clarion Call
J.J. Stanbro has had an excellent season, as have most of the wrestlers on Coach Jack Davis' team. His record now stands at 23-4.

Migyanka out for rest of season

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

When the Lady Eagles face off against Slippery Rock last week, they won an important game, but lost an important player.

Late in the second half Amy Migyanka drove to her right, stopped to cut to her left, and pulled her anterior cruciate ligament.

"It's not torn, but I'll never be able to make it by the playoffs," Migyanka said.

Migyanka continued, "I can walk on it a little. I can put pressure on it. Even if it feels better, my leg would not be stable."

Against IUP, it was obvious that Clarion was missing their point guard. They were having trouble handling IUP's press and made some bad passes.

With the PSAC's and national playoffs coming soon, each player will have to step up their game a notch to make for such a disappointing loss.

New coach to head Eagle football team

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Malen Luke has been named as the head coach for the Clarion University football team.

Luke, 39, attended Wellsboro high school where he lettered in track, basketball, and football. Upon graduation, Luke attended Westminster college and played football there. He earned a letter at linebacker as a sophomore and junior, but he missed his senior season due to illness.

He earned a B.S. degree in mathematics. After that he went to Canfield high school where he taught and served as the offensive coordinator and defensive backs coach.

Luke then moved on coach at Edinboro University from 1981-83, and while there the Fighting Scots earned #11 and #13 rankings in 1982 and 1983 respectively.

Luke then moved on to Youngstown State University and then to Kent State and finally ended up as defensive coordinator and baseball coach at Bethany College.

Finally, Luke landed a head coaching job at Defiance University in 1988. When Luke arrived at Defiance, the Yellow Jackets had gone 8-27-1 over the previous four years.

After a 1-8 season in 1988, Luke got his team moving forward with a 3-6 record in 1989 and then an impressive 7-3 mark in 1990.

Luke was named District 22 "Coach of the Year" following the 1990 campaign.

In 1991, Defiance became an NCAA Division III member, and the Yellow Jackets followed up by going 8-2.

In 1992, Defiance was 9-1 and earned a ranking of sixth in the NCAA Divsion III North Region.

Luke's team had another impressive season his following year, rolling up a 9-1 record, and narrowly missing the NCAA Divsion III playoffs.

His 37 wins as head coach were the most in school history.

Luke is very impressed with Clarion's program and likes some things about coming here.

"I had been in the conference before and there were several factors (that impressed him with Clarion). Number one, I was impressed with the reputation that Clarion had from an athletic standpoint. Also, the commitment they had as far as academics go," said Luke.

"They were one of the schools in our conference, when I was there in the early 80's, that from an athletic and academic standpoint was one of the more respected schools. Plus, the opportunity to come back to Pennsylvania."

Luke runs a basic offense that depends more on the abilities of individual players than gadgets and gizmos.

"I hate to put a title on an offense. We'll attack a broad front. We'll take what the defense gives us and we'll make sure we don't beat ourselves. We'll try get players to realize that they can control their own destiny. In this conference it will be hard enough to win so we can't make mistakes."

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call
Malen Luke has been named as the head coach of the Golden Eagle football team.

Some players have said that Luke is a disciplinarian and is very strict. In response Luke says, "I believe you have to have discipline in everything. Whether you're a student, a coach, a player or a banker, there are certain things that you have to do. Succes is more in the way you conduct your everyday life. Don't allow yourself to be mediocre or average. Dot the "i's" and cross the "t's" and the big things will take care of themselves."

A short term goal of Coach Luke's is to get in a good coaching staff and establish a wide recruiting base.

A long term goal is to "try to keep the program moving forward and eventually make the playoffs. But most important is to make sure that the players have a rewarding experience, both in the classroom and on the field. I think the playoffs and championships will fall into place.

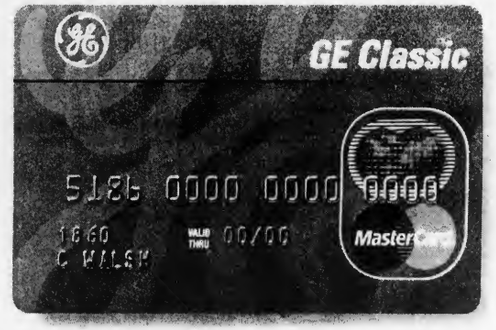

Luke has a wife, Hedy, a son Brock (11) and a daughter Quinn (5).

Coach Luke brings with him a new attitude and spirit to the Clarion University football team. He has an impressive record, a good plan for breeding success, and the know-how to maintain a consistent winner.

Clarion football certainly has a bright future.

Men finish third

Women win 19th straight PSAC crown

by Jeff Levkulich
Sports Writer

Clarion's swimming and diving teams went to IUP last week to compete in the PSAC competition.

The women placed first to win their 19th straight conference title as they rolled up 576.5 points. The closest team to them was Shippensburg, who had 360.

The Clarion men finished third with 346 points behind Shippensburg (579) and Edinboro (461.5).

Of the women's events coach Bill Miller said, "It was a total team effort. Our swimmers were fast and our divers were right on the mark. With PSAC's behind us, we're really going to focus on the NCAA Division II Nationals where we're hoping for a top three finish."

Kim Strawbridge won both boards for the second year in a row. She is the defending national champion of the 3 meter.

Justine Gibbons helped the 400 medley relay team to a winnig time of 3:59.63. She also placed second in the 200 backstroke second in the 500 free, and third int the breastroke.

Stephanie Kissel was part of the winning 400 relay team, was second in the 200 free relay, second in the 200 I.M., sixth in the breaststroke, eighth in the 100 butterfly, and ninth in the 100 free.

Dawn Jones was on the winning 400 free relay, 800 free relay, and 400 medley relay teams. She was on the second place 200 free relay team, placed fourth in the 50 free and fifth in the 100 and 200 free.

Lauri Ratica was on three first place relay teams in the 800 free, 400 free, and 400 medley, plus second in the 200 free, third in the 50 freestyle, and seventh in the 100 free.

Mara Strelecki helped the 400 and 800 free relay teams to first, was seventh in the 50 free, eighth in the 100 free, and tenth in the 200 free.

Lisa Kaylor was first in the 400 medley relay, fourth in the 200 medley relay, fifth in the 100 breast, and fifth in the 200 butterfly.

Laura Schmid was in the 800 free relay, was fifth in the 500 free and the 1650 free, seventh in the 200 fly, and tenth in the 400 I.M.

Also contributing were Kathy Randazzo, Dani More, Kera Namey, Stehpanie Wigfield, Heather Heinz, Tara King and Colleen Davidson.

Randazzo was sixth in the 50 free, and tenth in the 100 fly. She was part of the second place free relay and fourth place 200 medley relay team.

More was fifth in the 200 back and sixth in the 100 back.

Namey was fifth in the 400 I.M., eleventh in the 100 breast, and and eleventh in the 200 breast.

Divers who made a splash were Nicole Joa, Stephanie Kent, Tammy Quinn and Kendra Raymond.

Joa, only a freshman, was second on the 3 meter behind teammate Strawbridge and third on the 1 meter.

Kent placed second on the 1 meter and fifth on the 3 meter.

Quinn was third on the 3 meter and fifth on the 1 meter.

Raymond was fourth on the 1 meter and seventh on the 3 meter.

The men performed well enough for a third place finish.

"We were pleased with our team's overall performance. Our time drops were good in the pool and we won both diving events. We will now turn our attention to the NCAA Division II Nationals, where we believe we could have some quality efforts."

Dan Stoner perfromed incredibly. Stoner won the 50 free, the 100 free, the 200 free, and the 200 I.M. He was also part of the winning 200 medley relay team, the third place 400 medley and 400 free relays.

Scott Rosenbaum won the 100 breast, placed second in the 200 breast, was eighth in the 200 I.M., and tenth in the 100 fly. He was part of the winning 200 medley relay, plus the third place 400 medley relay and the fourth place 200 free relay.

John Williams was part of the 200 medley relay team, was in the third place 400 free relay team and the fourth place 200 free relay team. He was third in the 200 breast, and fourth in the 100 back.

Glenn Raymer was part of the winning 200 medley relay and the third place 400 medley relay teams, and was fifth in the 200 backstroke.

Joe Egan won both boards at the PSAC. He also won the 1 meter board last year.

Other swimmers contributing were Mark Keister, Chad Rimsky, Jeff Halbert, Mike Klunk, Kevin Sciullo, Pete Barry, Craig Whaley, Kevin Stair and Travis Raeburn.

Keister was ninth in the 500 free, ninth in the 1650 free, and tenth in the 100 backstroke.

Rimsky was seventh in the 200 back, ninth in the 100 back, and twelfth in the 500 free.

Klunk earned a third in the 200 butterfly and ninth in the 100 fly.

NCAA Division II Nationals are March 9-12 in Canton Ohio. Both teams are looking for strong performances from several individuals. National champions have become pretty common to these teams.

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Kim Strawbridge, last year's NCAA Divsion II "Diver of the Year," is the anchor on the women's swimming and diving team.

Kim is from nearby Oil City, and she started "diving" into water events at the age of 10. The fact that the local YMCA was not too far from her house probably had a lot to do with her early interests.

Her senior year in high school, Kim won districts and placed second at states in the 1 meter.

Upon graduation, Kim went to the University of Pittsburgh, but quit after one year.

"I wasn't ready to be there. It was too big," Strawbridge noted.

After that, Kim thought she would try her hand at coaching and coached at Edinboro University and at Oil City high school for one year.

That's when Clarion started to court her.

She decided that she had missed the sport and the thrill of competition so she came back and decided to use up the rest of her eligibility. Clarion can be thankful that she did.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Kim Strawbridge, last year's Division II "Diver of the Year," hopes to earn the honor again this season.

Strawbridge recently won both the 1 and 3 meter events at the PSAC's. This is the second straight year that she took both boards at the conference championships.

Last year Kim won the 3 meter national title, and placed second on the 1 meter on her way to being named NCAA Division II "Diver of the Year."

She attributes her success to good coaching. "Dave (Hrovat) is an awesome coach. He's young and he has new techniques."

Kim's goals for this year are to be national champion on both the 1 and 3 meter boards and to again be named "Diver of the Year." Lofty goals for most, but she knows that they are well within her grasp.

As far as accomplishments outside of the pool are concerned, Kim cites making the dean's list as the highlight of her academic career. She would like to go into teaching after graduation.

Considering her accomplishments in all aspects of her life, she is bound to be a success in whatever she does.

The Bird has flown

Celtics not the same as they used to be

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

There was a time, not long ago, when any team traveling towards the New England States would shutter in fear. What could bring such a fear?

Gangsters? Violence? The bitter cold weather? Michael Dukakis?

All of the above paled in comparison to the Boston Celtics. Before even traveling to the Garden, most teams just chalked up a loss before they ever took the court. The Little Leprechaun had definitely left the building.

The retirement of Larry Bird, Dennis Johnson, and Kevin McHale had a huge effect on the team from Beantown. One doesn't need to be a rocket scientist to realize that the loss of such talent could send a team into a tailspin. An immeasurable amount of talent and experience went with these three, and it was destined for the Celtics to fall into mediocrity.

Robert Parish is the only player left from one of history's greatest teams. The Chief is still running strong this year and doesn't seem to be slowing down. It's very odd to watch Parish without any of his teammates from the 80's. The yells of "Chief" from the seats of the Garden still ring true, but Parish can't do it alone for Boston, and he isn't asked to.

Boston's troubles are extensive. Of course everybody knows of the tragic loss of Reggie Lewis over the past summer. Lewis was not only a good player, but a fine person as well. He is just the type of person a team needs to have. He was a silent leader on the court and did a lot for the Celtic organization. When he died the Celtics were left without a friend and their captain.

The Celtics have yet to replace Lewis. Dee Brown isn't very consistent from outside. He has his nights, but they are few and far between. Kevin Gamble is a great shooter, but he isn't good enough to be the focal point of the outside game.

At the point position, Sherman Douglas can drive the lane, but he runs the show and he needs to be able to dish to an outside shooter or a legitimate scorer.

Beside Parish in the frontcourt are Dino Radja, Ed Pickney, and Xavier McDaniel. Dino, the European, is doing a decent job but he isn't the go-to guy that the Celtics need. Radja needs to catch up to the NBA style of play, but he could become a major contributor as he gains experience.

Pickney has always been a good compliment to Parish or McHale. He is a good backup player and does a fine job. But all he is is a backup player. There's nothing to be ashamed of by that, but he has been thrust into the starting role at times, and he is not cut out for that.

So what about the X-Man? Xavier McDaniel has been known as a tough man in the league for years. That's about all he's surviving on these days. His best days in Seattle are behind him and they're not coming back. The Celts couldn't get much in a trade for him either, because most teams aren't looking for a player that only trash talks and tries to intimidate.

Acie Earl was taken in the first round of the draft out of Notre Dame (I guess they liked his Irish stalk), but he also needs to work on his game. He has trouble getting up and down the court and he hasn't developed into pro form as quickly as the Celtics would have liked him to.

So what are the Celtic's options? There isn't much for the Celts to trade. If anything it would probably require trading three people to receive one quality player. They also may enter the lottery this year and get a franchise player.

Either way, the Celtics are a solid organization and they know how to get back on a winning track. It may take a couple years, but that Little Leprechaun may still have some magic left.

Sports dynasties are cyclical, and the Celtics are at the down point of that cycle. They experienced great success in the days of Bill Russel, and of course in the days of Larry Bird.

The Russel/Wilt Chamberlain and Bird/Magic Johnson glory matchups have long since passed. The Celtics enjoyed great years during the 80's and the memories of those years hang from the rafters in the Garden in the form of Bird's and McHale's jerseys. But like most teams, they have to put the past behind them and begin to look toward the future. There will be glory days again in Beantown and the Celtics will again be back in the championship. Unlike other Boston sports teams (Bosox, Pats) the Celtics know what it takes to win a championship.

Just be patient Boston fans, championships will return.

May raise 6.25%

Activity fee may be raised

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

The price to attend Clarion University may be going up again next year.

A motion was made by the Student Senate Appropriations Committee to increase the Student Activity fee by 6.25 percent at Monday's meeting.

That would raise the current activity fee of $75 to $80 for full time students.

Students who are currently taking 1-5 credits do not pay any of the activity fee; those with 6-8 credits pay 25 percent ($40); 12 + credits, 100 percent ($80).

This will increase the Clarion Students Association budget from $743,355 to $764,000, an increase of $20,645.

Under the proposal, students with one to eight credits would pay 25 precent of the activity fee ($40), students with 9-11 credits would pay 50 percent ($40) and those students with 12 or more credits would pay the full $80.

"We have a drop in enrollment of at least 100 students and a greater need for funds for different organizations," said Lee A. Krull, business manager of the CSA. "The increase is also necessary because of normal inflation and the demand of money for the budget next year.

"Right now the request for all organizations is over $900,000. We are short $200,000 so we obviously can't meet everyone's demands," said Krull.

Currently, the range for university activity fees average from $65-$110, with Clarion falling somewhere near the middle with $75.

Chair of Student Senate Appropriations Committee Katrina Helmick said "At the present time, 10-15 new organizations need a budget. $10,000 from the increase of $20,645 would be for supplemental requests and the Second-year head coach Jack Davis led his wrestlers to an league championship and a number 6 overall ranking.

The Clarion University wrestlers, the women's basketball team and the swimming and diving teams turned in stellar performances within the past two weeks.

The Golden Eagles wrestling team captured its seconds Eastern Wrestling League title, overcoming a 15 point deficit to defeat Edinboro Universiy by two points.

"I couldn't be prouder of our team," said coach Jack Davis. "[We] gave every ounce we had."

The women's basketball team won their third Pennsylvania Athletic Conference Title in the past four years and advanced to the round of eight in the NCAA Division II Women's Basketball Tournament.

The Golden Eagles next are set to play North Alabama on March 23 at North Dakota State University.

The women's swiming and diving team captured a third place finish at the NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving National Championships last weekend, while the men's team captured a seventh place finish.

This year, the women won their 19th conference crown, with a 6-1 dual meet record en route to their third place finish in the national championships.

I've been in Malta for about six weeks. Time seems to be flying by. In these first six weeks, I have made many new friends, seen some of the most beautiful sites in the world, and learned more than I had ever imagined that I would.

Many of my new friends are Maltese, several of whom will be coming to Clarion University in the fall. They are unbelievably excited about coming to Clarion, as I'm sure you will find out when they arrive in late August.

Living in an International stundents' building. I have also met people from all over the world: China, Greece, Libya, france, Spain, Italy, and the list goes on. Each has his or her own interesting story to tell and I am always eager to listen.

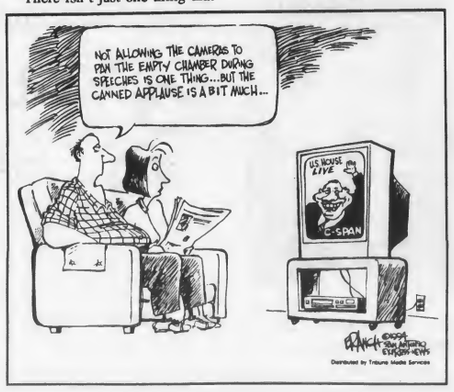

Just being in a different country in a daily learning experience in itself. And, of course, I've learned many things from the University of Malta. My classes are very interesting. The professors are very helpful and the Maltese students are always waiting to hear what my "American perspective" is.

There isn't just one thing that has made this experience such an adventure, but there have been some especially good highlights.

The weather is absolutely beautiful. It is always sunny and there is usually a gentle breeze blowing. I've not yet swam in the Mediterranean Sea, but I do swim three times a week in the university's gorgeous, heated pool. I am looking forward to swimming in the sea however, when the water warms up some.

The Mediterrranean Sea is beautiful. The water is clear. I took a boat ride through some caverns and out into the sea last

An Ad is an Ad

Advertising, as sad as it is, is how the news industry works. Newspapers rely on advertisements to obtain their operating revenue, particularly free newspapers such as The Clarion Call. You will notice that the Call has a rather large advertisement inserted in the middle of the newspaper this week, placed by the Pennsylvanina Foundation for Life. The cost to place this ad is $250, the same cost that any advertiser would pay to put an insertion in The Clarion Call. This ad should in no way, shape, form or manner be interpreted to be the opinon or endorsment of The Clarion Call, its staff members or its editors. It should no more be considered an endorsement than any other advertisement in the paper.

The Call must take in around $1,250 in advertising revenue per week in order to meet operating expenses. $250 is 1/5 of that and the $250 of one advertiser spends the same as the $250 of any other advertiser. It may sound crass and sleazy, but that's what keeps this paper going in order to report the news that matters at Clarion University. It is our job to report the news, not to make it and not to make decisions about which side is right in any given controversy, including the abortion controversy. It is not for us to say which side is "right" and which side is "wrong." If either side wishes to advertise their point of view in The Clarion Call, we will gladly accomodate them.

However, there are limits. We obviously will not run any advertisement that contains libel or that is in poor taste in the opinion of the executive board of The Clarion Call. In other words, we can refuse any advertisement for any reason. We do assert that it is not our duty to refuse any advertisement or advertiser due to personal feelings or political or controversial content.

The insert this week may offend many people. That is not our intent. But neither is it our intent to sanitize opinions and refuse to print those opinions that are controversial.

If you would like to read the paid advertising insertion, please do so. If you would like to throw it in the trash (or more preferably, recycle it), please do so.

Fees and Perks

Student senate is considering a five dollar increase in the student activity fee for next year.

The Council of Trustees approved increases in room and board fees.

Governor Bob will force state system schools to hike tuition next year.

All of which comes as no surprise if you've been attending Clarion University for any length of time.

There isn't much to be done about tuition, room and board, those increases are out of students hands. But the student activity fee is set by Student Senate.

Student Senate is supposed to be the voice of the student body, but has anyone asked you if you want to, or can afford to, pay five dollars more? No one asked us.

Let Student Senate know what you think of another increase.

While you think about paying that five dollars, consider this about student senate: Student Senators receive discounts at the Express Shop and Bookstore.

Student Senators receive up to 20 percent off on selected personal items.

No question Student Senators put in a lot of hours working for student concerns. They're striving to improve student life and education.

But the same can be said for Students Together Against Rape, the African-American Student Union, RACS, United Campus Ministry, faculty senate and a host of other student and staff organizations.

None of those groups receive a discount for personal purchases.

So come on, Student Senate, if you want to improve the finances of student activities, start by giving up the Express Shop and Bookstore perks. -RLS

Clarion slow on diversity

This is an issue that I feel relates strongly to the mission of Clarion University and demonstrates a need for multicultural education.

I am a sutudent at Clarion University of Pennsylvania. Clarion is a small rural town eighty miles north of the city of Pittsburgh, PA. Although Clarion is such a short distance from a major city, the attitudes of diversity and the belief in multicultural education is stagnant in producing a positive effect on its students, faculty, and surrounding community.

As a minority student on Clarion's campus, I am constantly made to feel as if I don't fit in, or that my beliefs and ideas aren't valid.

Clarion has a total enrollment of 6,200 students, approximately 180 of those students are African-American. Clarion offers very little support to those 180 African-American students, and the support that it does offer is mostly handled by its Office of Minority Student Services.

The university as a whole is very hestitant to realize the needs of its minoirty students. Such needs are in the form of the curriculum, social activities, and the academic support. As a result, the African-American student retention rate at Clarion University is also very low.

The need for a strong curriculum of multicultural education is at an all time high for Clarion University. As a student, I want to assist in making Clarion University a leader in multicultural education.

The existing curriculum at Clarion University is one that has no outlets for its minority population, none of the minoirties views are brought out in the classroom, or in any other capacity. Thus, creating a hostile environment for most of Clarion's minority students.

Clarion offers one course in multicultural education, a requirement for only those students majoring in education. For Clarion's majority students to recognize the minority students, let alone their needs, those students of the majority race would have to be forced to enroll in such a course.

As an African-American student student on a predominatly white campus, I can easily grasp the need for an academic program that readily assists and facilitates the needs of minority students, an academic program that offers a diversified curriculm and is encompassed by an accepting atmosphere.

One factor in creating that atmosphere would be making the outlets needed by minority students more accessible. A lot of time should be taken to plan strategies for the retention and graduation rates of minority students.

Not only should schools of higher education be mandated to institute such programs, but schools starting from kindergarten up to the twelfth grade, must be an active part in this positive and diversified trend of educating minority students and students as a whole, to strengthen and prepare a student's outlook on education.

Clarion "non-discriminating"

I just wanted to comment on information I received about a black, female professor whose contract was "non-renewed." As a student at Clarion I found the environment for both students and teachers to be very non-discriminating.

I recall having professors of oriental background in Political Science and Philosophy who were excellent, a Catholic Priest, many women, a few blacks, and of course, white males. Also as a student there was a group formed which supported gay rights, which personally is a lifestyle I don't agree with, yet tolerate (which is what America is all about). The black arts festival also started during the late 70s on campus.

I support any decision the college makes regarding professors, as Clarion has proven to me that more times than not, a professor that shouldn't be there isn't. As a graduate student, I had the opportunity to work with a number of Act 101 students of many races. Act 101 provided money for students of low caliber high schools, and a program to help them succeed in college. Of those students, there were non-white students who graduated. They worked hard.

week. The driver said that the water was about fifty meters deep but I could see the bottom with its colorful coral and fish. It was very majestic.

The food here is very heavenly. Maltese bread has to be the best in the world. The hard crusted bread is sold directly from the baker, so it is always fresh and usually warm. Due to the Italian influence, there is also a lot of pasta. And, of course there is seafood fresh from the sea.

One other thing that is nice about being right in the middle of the Mediterranean Sea is that I am very close to many other countries. For my two week Easter break, I am planning on touring Europe by rail.

Also, with my student discount and because we're within close proximity, airfare to Sicily, Italy and Tunsia are very reasonable. Some of us are looking into going to each, for a long weekend at some point during our stay.

I can't think of just one word to sum up my adventure so far. It has just been too wonderful, majestic, educational, eye-opening, beautiful, spectacular and amazing. I am very thankful to be here. This trip was the chance of a lifetime and it has certainly proved worthwhile. It is great to be in Malta!

rest will be appropriated into organizations."

The student activity fee is the money that is used to fund things such as UAB sponsored movie nights, concerts, University Theater productions, the Sequelle, free issues of the Clarion Call, entrance to all sporting events, etc.

Helmick added that the motion will be tabled for two weeks and then voted on by the Student Senate. If the motion passes, then it must be approved by Dr. Reinhard before it will go into effect next semester.

Students on campus are unsure about how to take the proposed raise.

"I think the Activity fee is high enough as it is. Between the 6,000-7,000 students that attend this university, I know that not all of them take advantage of the services," said Monica Shmader, a senior Psychology major.

Sophomore Elementary Education major Brian Hard said, "I really have no opinion. I'm not paying for it, my parents are."

Summer internships give job seekers a career edge

by John E. Tuttle
College Press Service

Summer vacation is just around the corner. If the idea of spending it waiting tables again is more than you can take, perhaps it's time for an internship.

"It's an invaluable experience in a number of respects," said Amy Schmidt, director of career planning and placement at Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga.

In a best-case scenario, an intern can get a full-time job with the same firm or office after graduation, Schmidt said.

Internships offer students more than just marketable work experience. Schmidt said it is much better to discover that a certain field is not for you after a three or four month internship than after taking a full-time job.

"The internship helps a student explore careers without a committment," said Lee Svete, director of planning at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y. "Our experience is that the student will be able to exercise and develop new skills."

Students interested in summer work can browse through a database of more than 500 internships at the St. Lawrence University career planning office. In addition to the services that college career centers have, Svete said, students who have access to Internet can find employment and internship listing here.

Agnes Scott College's proximity to Atlanta opens many doors for students who wish to complete internships in the city. "Through our office, we list hundreds of internships, some of which are paid and some of which are unpaid," said Schmidt.

Kalamazoo College in Kalamazoo, Mich., sends students overseas to get real world experience.

"Eighty-five to 90 percent of all our graduates have studied abroad," said Scotty Allen, a media relations spokesman.

Allen said students often do research projects or intern abroad after completing their foreign study programs.

Whether the jobs are overseas or in a student's hometown, it's important to remember that companies need interns as badly as interns need experience.

"Internships are a low cost way for employers to evaluate talent," Svelte said.

Many companies do not have formal internship programs or positions, but that could be because the right intern hasn't approached.

"Students can create their own internships," he said.

Other companies have well-developed internships for college students and recent graduates. The Princeton Review rates the Coors Brewing Company internships in the top 100 in the United States.

"Typically, we have about 40-50 interns from colleges around the country," said Tonia Hamilton, senior placement representative for Coors in Golden Colo.

Coors hires interns for finance and accounting, engineering, and their wellness center. Some internships, such as those in engineering are paid; others are for college credit.

"We're looking for someone who wants to get out and learn," Hamilton said.

"Our interns do a little bit of everything," said Anne Breining, a staff assistant for U.S. Senator Jim Jasser, D-Tenn. Interns in Sasser's office do research, clerical work, attend hearings --- just about everything except answer the telephone.

Reader Responses

Those that didn't graduate were simply trouble makers or lazy.

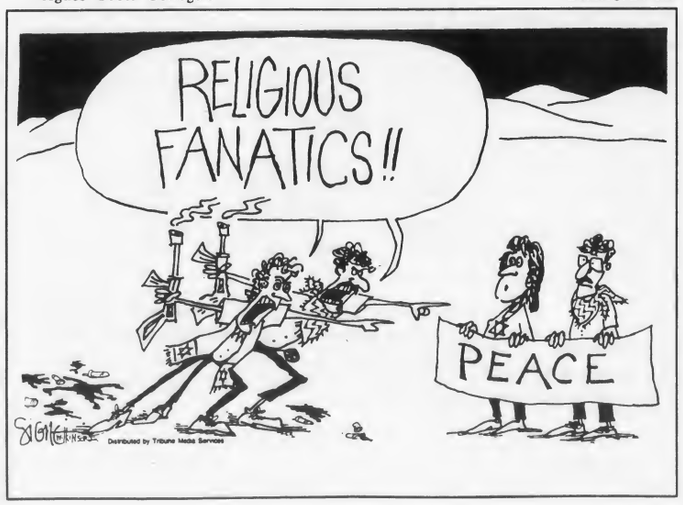

Clarion University definitely provides opportunities to all who are willing to work hard no matter what their race.

Finally, I leave you with a quote:

"I don't know that much about race and gender issues. All I will tell you is that any organization that excludes or underutilizes its human talent because of race, gender or national origin simply undermines its ability to optimize its system." --W. Edwards Deming.

Sabbatical leave grievance settled, Wright added

By Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

A possible misunderstanding of a Clarion University instructor's apparent undocumented change of employment status may have led to a union grievance being filed.

The Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF), the union representing instructors at the state-owned universities, filed the grievance over the method CUP used in determining eligibility for sabbatical leaves.

The schedule for upcoming sabbatical leaves at Clarion University has been recently changed, granting State Representative and CUP professor of speech, communication and theatre David R. Wright (D-63) sabbatical leave for the summers of 1994, 1995 and 1996 with three-quarters-time pay.

It is not known if the grievance involved Wright directly, while Wright did not appear on the list of granted sabbatical leaves released last November, he does appear on the up-dated list released March 1.

Wright apparently applied for summer sabbatical leave and was turned down at the university level when he first applied because University President Diane Reinhard was in doubt of Wright's eligibility for the paid leave.

It had been widely believed and publicized Wright was a part-time instructor at the university. Under CUP rules, part-time faculty do not qualify for sabbatical leaves.

University spokesman Ron Wilshire said in a written statement, "A part-time faculty member is any faculty member who is not full-time. Under the current bargaining agreement between APSCUF and the State System of Higher Education (SSHE), the standard full-time faculty member teaches 12 credit hours per semester. Anything less than 12 credit hours is considered part-time. A faculty member referred to as a three-quarter time faculty member teaches nine credit hours and a half-time member teaches six credit hours."

Wright is teaching nine credit hours this semester. According to the 1993 Clarion University Undergraduate Catalog, Wright, hired by the university in 1971, is a part-time instructor.

Dr. David R. Wright, professor of speech, communication and theatre, has been granted summer sabbatical.

However, it has been learned Wright is actually classified as a full-time instructor, granted leave without pay to perform legislative duties.

Scott Shewell, press secretary for SSHE, speaking by telephone on Feb. 25, said, "When Professor Wright was originally hired by the university, it was as a full-time faculty member.

After he worked for the institution and gained tenure, he ran for and was elected to legislative office. He then requested and received partial leave without pay to perform his legislative duties. This was first done under President (James) Gemmell.

"The sabbatical list was prepared using a previous payroll system which we have since updated and no longer use. That payroll system did not allow for coding of someone to be full-time but with partial leave without pay.

"Payroll had him coded as a part-time person. Upon further review, using a seniority list, which was to be the document used for determining status of tenure for sabbaticals, it was determined his status was indeed full-time but with partial leave without pay."

According to Wilshire, no other faculty member at CUP has the unique status Wright falls under. Shewell estimates it would take approximately one month to determine whether or not additional professors employed by SSHE (5,100 total) receive the same consideration as Wright.

Dr. Robert Balough, president of the CUP chapter of APSCUF told the Clarion Call last November that the grievance was a policy grievance and involved no one particular individual.

Balough said the grievance claimed CUP failed to abide by a previous agreement to meet and discuss the process for granting sabbatical leaves to qualified personnel. The grievance further alleged a change in the pattern of granting leaves in contrast with past practices of the university.

In contrast, Shewell first said the grievance was a personnel matter, involving a particular individual and the details therefore could not be released.

"The terms of the grievance are not public information," said Shewell, adding, "Because the grievance pertains to a specific faculty member, a specific person, it is considered a personnel matter."

Shewell later said SSHE recommended CUP approve Wright's request for sabbatical leave after "further digging" and "reconstruction of seniority lists" clarified Wright's status and eligibility.

"As to how part-time faculty qualify, they don't," explained Shewell, "The answer to (the) question of how Wright can qualify is professor Wright is a full-time faculty member with partial leave without pay to perform his legislative duties. Wright has historically been listed as a full-time faculty member with partial leave of absence to perform his legislative duties."

"Why wasn't (University President) Reinhard aware (of Wright's status)? That is something you will have to ask the university," said Shewell, "The university will have to explain when the designation was made and who made it."

Reinhard said in a telephone interview Feb. 29 that there was some question as to Wright's eligibility when he first applied. When asked if she was aware of Wright's unique status Reinhard declined to answer any further questions in the matter.

According to Shewell, once an employees status has been determined at the university level there is no need for SSHE review of the issue or for the status to be renewed.

When pressed for documentation under Pennsylvania's open records laws of the approval of Wright's request for leave without pay, both Wilshire and Shewell said the request had been forwarded to their respective legal councils.

Shewell then indicated he had previously misspoken.

"I was incorrect in stating that the (grievance) settlement was considered a personnel matter because it effects a specific person or will effect specific personnel in the future."

Balough however, when asked to comment of the grievance settlement, said it was not based on any precedent and "was not precedent setting."

The first mention of Wright's part-time status appears in the 1978-79 Clarion University Undergraduate catalog and continues to mention his status as such through the 1993-94 catalog.

A review of minutes from board of trustees meetings for all of 1976, 1977 and 1978 stored in the CUP library's archives revealed no mention of Wright's change of status.

Granted leaves of absence without pay are usually presented to the trustees for their information. Numerous other changes in employment status are mentioned, but not Wright's.

CUP faculty senate meeting minutes from November 15, 1976 do mention Wright's resignation from faculty senate, but no reason for that resignation is given.

A review of summer course listings offered by CUP for the years 1991, 1992 and 1993 show no listings for courses taught by Wright.

Instructors attending a Feb. 25 meeting outlining sabbatical leave procedures for the upcoming year were told summer sabbaticals are rare but not impossible.

Acting on advice from the Student Press Law Center in Washington, D.C., the Clarion Call has requested access to numerous documents relating to the case, including summer sabbatical pay scales and reasons offered by personnel requesting sabbatical leaves.

Hazing goes mental as well as physical

Michael Davis hoped that one day he might win a Pulitzer Prize for reporting, a dream that was tragically short by a beating allegedly administered by his own fraternity brothers.

Davis, 25, a junior in journalism and a staff writer at the Southeast Missouri State University's student newspaper, The Capaha Arrow, died Feb. 15 of blunt while running through a gauntlet of punches at a football field. Instead of being taken to a hospital, he was carried to an off-campus apartment in Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he died.

Family members said it was not the first time Davis had been beaten, and they had begged the young man to give up pledging for the fraternity after he returned home one day with a scratch on his nose.

"When I asked him why he wanted to pledge this fraternity, he said, "Ma, when you're pledged, you have to take it,'" his mother, Edith Davis, told reporters.

As of Feb. 23, seven fraternity members had been charged with involuntary manslaughter and hazing, three others facing hazing charges, and six alumni fraternity members were charged with hazing, said Ann Hayes, the university's news bureau director. Police are continuing their investigation.

A Feb.. 22 memorial service was held on campus. "I think the whole campus here is mourning the death," Hayes said.

Davis was a dedicated student with a bright future in newspapers. "He seemed to know where he was going and what he was doing in journalism," Hayes said.

American colleges and universities. Although physical punishment actually has been on the wane in recent years as a result of increased awareness and prosecution, more insidious, "invisible" mental abuse of fraternity and sorority pledges continues.

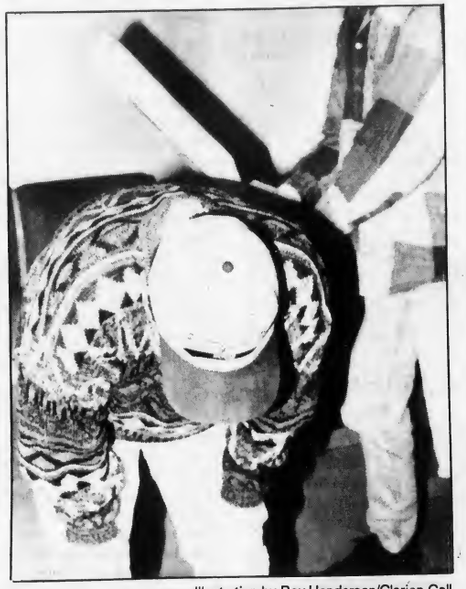

Illustration by Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Hazing in fraternities and sororities has led to several deaths throghout the country. This abuse can be physical and mental.

University President Kala Stroup ordered the Kappa Alpha Psi chapter permanently banished from campus. The group had been suspended in 1988 for a year because of hazing.

As the recent incident shows, hazing is alive and well in Stiffer, anti-hazing regulations in recent years - 38 states outlaw it - have made a difference in detering physical abuse of pledges, said Larry Lunsford, director of student affairs at Florida International University in Miami. Until the last 20 years, incidents in which pledges were publicly humiliated, paddled, forced to consume often deadly amounts of alcohol, beaten to death, or deprived of sleep and food, were not unusual, he said.

Lunsford, who has lectured nationally about hazing, said physical punishment hasn't been completely eliminated: "Undoubtedly some practices have gone underground or behind closed doors," he said, adding that most hazing now involves verbal abuse of pledges.

"Things have gone underground on many campuses because national fraternities have taken very strong, positive steps to eliminate it (hazing)," said Eileen Stevens, founder of the Committee to Halt Useless College Killings - C.H.U.C.K. - the name of her 20-year -old son who died in 1978 from alcohol poisoning and exposure in a hazing incident at Alfred University in New York.

She estimates there have been 60 hazing deaths since 1975, a figure that she admits may not be correct "because so many are characterized as accidents," just as her son's death initially was reported.

Hazing also is hard to detect because membership in many organizations includes oaths of silence, she said.

Those oaths coupled with a strong need to belong to a group often are more compelling to young people than publicly revealing the truth about the humiliation suffered at the hands of older fraternity members.

At the University of Central Florida, three young men wanted to be part of a group, having pledged to become members of a fraternity, but they didn't expect to undergo a series of tests that included being hung upside down, blindfolded, and urinated on by seven of their "brothers" as a test of worthiness.

"It's happening. You can be sure when I'm invited to a campus that there's a concern there," said Stevens who regularly lectures student groups about hazing. "Kids tell me there is still hazing. They may be minimizing it or doing something they think is less dangerous, but it is still happening. It can claim a life. It can ruin a family."

Tradition is the main reason hazing survives, Lunsford said. Members and recent alumni believe that since they had to endure certain physical or mental tests, new members should endure the same to build unity, he said, adding that "when a group's been doing it for 50 or 60 years, it's hard to shut it down."

Hazing dates back to the origins of the university in medieval Europe, a tradition that continued with early American university practices of testing incoming freshmen, as in making them wear special caps, Lunsford said. But it wasn't until the turn of the century that hazing became an accepted fraternity and sorority practice, turning ugliest with the infusion of soldiers into colleges after World War II who harassed new fraternity members as they had treated military recruits, he added.

Today, Greek membership is very popular among college students. The National Interfraternity Council estimates that its 63 member fraternities have 400,000 undergraduate members in U.S. and Canada and 200,000 women are members of the 26 sororities that make up the National Panhellenic Conference. The NIC does not keep hazing statistics.

While the incidence of physical tests of pledges may be diminishing, "mental and psychological duress is on the increase," Stevens said. "Mental" hazing may consist of pledges being forced to answer questions quickly, to take tests that have no answers, and to endure verbal humiliation that may not result in death but can take a great toll on new, impressionable college students who are eager to please their peers and fit in with a group, she said.

"These are emotional scars that will be with those young people for the rest of their lives," Stevens said.

"Their self-esteem is shattered, their confidence is shattered, they may drop out of school - there have been reports of suicide attempts."

"Generally hazing has moved away from the physical to the mental mind games - more like intimidation, ridicule, humiliation said Andrew Robison, Greek adviser at the University of New Hampshire whose students last year provided much of the impetus for the state's new anti-hazing law.

"It's nothing more than an ego trip," he added.

Board of Trustees unanimously approve rate hikes

Room and board prices to increase next year

By Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Clarion University's Council of Trustees approved a motion at their March 9th meeting to extend University President Diane L. Reinhard's contract for one year and also apppproved an increase in room and board rates for next year.

Trustees unanimously approved the contact extension and the rate increases.

Trustees moved to "recommend to the (State System of Higher Education) board of governors that the chancellor (of SSHE) be authorized to extend the contract of Dr. Diane L. Reinhard for one year."

The extension, if granted at the state level, would keep Reinhard at the university through June 30, 1997.

Reinhard is currently signed under a "three year rolling contract" originally signed June 1, 1990.

Trustees approved a $50 rate hike for double occupancy rooms and a $100 hike for single occupancy rooms.

It will be the first increase in three years.

Current room rates are $1005 for single occupancy and $805 for double occupancy.

The approved increases are lower than current rates at nearby state owned univeristies California University of Pennsylvania, Kutztown, East Stroudsburg, Millersville, West Chester, Edinboro, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and Slippery Rock for double occupancy rooms.

Rates will also go up for summer sessions, with a hike of $15 for single occupancy rooms and a $35 increases for single occupancy rooms, making the new rates $285 for the double and $370 for the single.

The standard CUP 20 meal-per-week plan will jump from $596 to $607, with the 15, 10 and five meals-per-week plans increasing $10, $7 and $5 respectively.

Larger increases are in store for the Optimum plan, which includes flex dollars and cash allowances.

Flex dollars can be used in the Gemmell snack bar if the student wishes to eat there.

Increases in the Optimum plan range from $9 for the 10 meal-per-week plan to $12 for the 15 and 20 meals-per-week.

A five meal-per-week flex plan, introduced last year, will be decreased in price from $425 to $408.

CUP's meal plans are considerably less than meal plans at California, Edinboro, Indiana and Slippery Rock, which currently range from $638 at IUP to $895 at Edinboro.

Trustees were warned however, the low rates will probably increase when the food service contract comes up for renewal in June this year.

Rates are set based on the Consumer Price Index and are adjusted based on those figures.

Also discussed at the meeting:

• CUP expects the two-year extension of the instructors union (APSCUF) contract, recently approved by the rank and file, to be ratified by the board of governors at the state level.

• Construction work on both the Clarion and Venango campuses is on schedule. Founders and Harvey Halls at Clarion and Montgomery Hall at the Venango campus are all at various stages of improvement construction.

• Renewal of the nursing program agreement with West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh was recommended to the trustees by Provost and Academic vice president Dr. John Kuhn.

The next meeting of the trustees is scheduled to be held at Venango campus on May 11.

Three students face theft and conspiracy charges from store

By Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Three Clarion students have been charged in connection with an alleged plan to steal compact discs from the department store Jamesway.

Michael John Ammann, 18, of Nair Hall/Greenville is being charged with possessing instruments of crime and retail theft, a summary offense.

Thomas William Tanner, 18, of Nair Hall/Pittsburgh and Robert John Hinkle, 19, of Nair Hall/RD2 Wellsboro are both being charged with one count each of possessing instruments of crime and criminal conspiracy, both first-degree misdemeanor offenses.

Store personnel told police three white males had been observed opening compact disc cases and one of the trio had opened a number of cases and placed the discs inside his coat, alleges State police Trooper James S. Cipalla. The stolen CD's were recovered by the store.

The three defendants allegedly conspired to manufacture tools capable of opening CD protective cases utilizing nails and electrical tape.

Police also allege Hinkle indicated all three defendants had manufactured the tool, and discussed going to Jamesway to steal CDs.

Hinkle allegedly told police he had opened four CD cases, while Tanner had opened five. While Tanner placed the contents of those he opened into his shirt, Hinkle said he sat the CDs he opened back.

Hinkle allegedly told police Amman and he attempted to get Tanner to put the items back but he declined to do so.

Autumn Leaf Festival meetings to begin

The Clarion Area Chamber of Commerce has announced its first general meeting for the 41st Annual Integra Bank Autumn Leaf Festival which will be held on Wednesday, March 23 at the Clarion Holiday Inn at 7:00 p.m.

In order to make the 1994 Integra Bank Autumn Leaf Festival as much a success as past festivals, they ask that everyone put forth the volunteer effort that has been displayed in the past.

The Integra Bank Autumn Leaf Festival will begin on Saturday, October 1 and continue until Sunday, October 9. At the meeting they will discuss all the activities for the week and set an agenda for future meetings.

Come and become a part of what has made the town of Clarion famous. If interested, contact the Clarion Area Chamber of Commerce at (814) 226-9161 by Monday, March 21, so that a place may be reserved.

Book circulation increases at Carlson Library

Book circulation is increasing at Clarion University of Pennsylvania's Carlson Library and Suhr Library at the Venango Campus, Oil City.

Gerard McCabe, director of libraries, notes in his mid-year activity report of the Clarion University Libraries a 16.4 percent increase in book circulation from mid-year 1991-92 to mid-year 1992-93. This is despite overall circulation for other items such as periodicals, reserves, and media all showing declines.

"The libraries continue to experience very good use proportional to enrollment and staff size," says McCabe. "As library users seem to transfer some of their attention to computer-based services for current information, it is interesting to observe that book circulation is increasing. Both loans and borrowing, to and from libraries, increased over last year's first half forecasting, perhaps, a very good increase for the end of this academic year."

McCabe attributes some of the increase in book circulation to library efforts to add new books through the Library of Congress Surplus Book Program. Several times each year, McCabe makes a trip to Washington, D.C., where he purchases books and mixed media, at a cost of approximately $1 per item, from the program sponsored by the Library of Congress. On January 5, McCabe brought back over 700 items purchased through this program. The books go to both Carlson and Suhr Libraries and he also picked out some that will be given to the Clarion Free Library.

"The increase in book circulation is an indication that this effort is working," says McCabe. "Our faculty and students are finding the books we have useful to them. At the same time, I am very pleased that the use of the compact disk read only memory (CD-ROM) data base is increasing.

Ambassadors attend Millersville Conference

Students gain opportunity to learn ideas and share organization skills

By Kari Larson
Contributing Writer

Eight members of Clarion University's Student Alumni Association (Student Ambassadors) spent the weekend during winter break attending a conference held at Millersville University, Pennsylvania, with over 30 schools participating.

The Student Alumni Association, which is advised by Mr. Al Kennedy, exists to strengthen relationships between alumni and students.

Participating in the conference at Millersville University were organization members Amy Bush (President), Karen Callahan, Angela Dear, Shelly Eisenman (Vice President), Mark Gerow, Will Haines, Dan Leightley and Laura Schurer (Secretary).

At the conference, the Student Ambassadors had the opportunity to meet students from all over the United States, from New York to Maryland to Delaware to Washington D.C. and as far away as Canada.

They had the opportunity to share their ideas of activities during Clarion University's Homecoming and pick up many tips on such things as how to get the organization recognized on campus, how to keep students interested, and how to create a profitable fund raiser that everyone will enjoy.

Amy Bush and Shelly Eisenman enjoyed attending the conference and found it to be quite a rewarding experience. "We can't wait to go to the next one in Canada," Bush added.

The Student Ambassadors' newest project is involvement in the Senior Luncheon which will be held May 8th at 12:30 in the cafeteria as a tribute to the graduating class.

The Ambassadors are also keeping busy planning for Alumni Day which is on May 7th.

During this day, the Student Ambassadors will give tours to alumni and friends of the University. This will be followed by a reception at the President's residence. The Ambassadors are also selling bricks for the Commemorative Wall outside Gemmell Center.

If you are interested in joining, meetings are held every other Wednesday at 8:30 in the Alumni House, with the next meeting scheduled for April 6th. More information can also be obtained from the Alumni Office (226-2637).

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of February 14 through February 20.

At approximately 1:26 a.m. on March 8, a non-student was cited for Public Drunkenness when observed staggering and falling on the sidewalk near Founders Hall.

On March 11, a student under the legal age was cited for Public Drunkenness and Minors Consumption at approximately 1:05 a.m. The student was observed staggering on the south side of Payne St.

An adult male non-student was cited for Public Drunkenness after being observed urinating near a sidewalk close to Page Street on March 11. This occurred at approximately 1:26 a.m.

At approximately 2:15 a.m. public safety officers observed a pick up truck traveling at a high rate of speed in parking lot H. The operator of the truck exited the service road then stopped his vehicle and started to fight with another person. The operator, a non-student was cited for DUI and Disorderly Conduct.

The theft of a wrist watch was reported on the 11th; however, the incident happened on the March 7. The wrist watch was taken from room 107 in the Marwick Boyd Building between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. when the complainant forgot the watch on the sink after washing his hands. The description is a gold/aluminum Gruen with a square face of ivory color and a sapphire winder. The watch has a Rolex style band. Valued at $250.00.

A student was cited for underage drinking when observed drinking beer in a vehicle parked on campus. This happened at approximately 8:20 p.m. on March 11.

A peach colored bed sheet was stolen from Nair Hall. The sheet was being used to write signatures of friends. The sheet was removed between 1:30 a.m. and 1:55 a.m. on March 12.

Search for new vice president brings in additional candidates

By Kristin Lutz
News Writer

The position of vice president for Finance and Administration, currently held by Wayne Key, is still being deliberated and not expected to be decided on until mid-summer.

Key has been asked to assist the new vice president during the next year, focusing on the administrative side of the position.

This will allow the new vice president sufficient time to concentrate on the financial operation of the university.

The future of this position will be determined by the new vice president. Numerous candidates have been interviewed for the position and, while none of the already interviewed persons have been eliminated from consideration, the search committee is still in the process of looking for others. Dr. Joseph Geiger of the University of Idaho has withdrawn his name from consideration.

"It is still the intention of the search committee to interview additional candidates and provide recommendations for President Reinhard in time for the new vice president to assume duties by July 1," said Dr. Rita Flaningam, chair of the search committee.

Candidates that have been interviewed for the position are Geiger, Larry Elkins, Darryl Bierly, Carole Ann Peskin, and William Jackameit.

CUP students charged in drug bust

By Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Two Clarion University students have been arrested and charged in connection with receiving marijuana through the mail.

Stephen John Dasta, 24, of Murraysville, and Dennis R. DiPietro, 24, of Pittsburgh are charged with possession of drugs with intent to deliver and conspiracy, both unclassified felonies.

According to documents filed at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office, charges stem from a package, addressed to "Den" DiPietro at 710B Merle Road, in Clarion, which contained four pounds of marijuana.

The return address listed D. Horowitz of Sunrise, Fla. as the sender.

Postal officials in Pittsburgh became suspicious of the package after a drug detection dog alerted them to the U.S. Express mailing.

After obtaining a warrant to search the package, a postal inspector opened the box and found the drug.

Law enforcement officials from the Clarion area were then alerted.

The package was delivered to the Clarion address and signed for by a roommate of DiPietro.

The roommate has not been charged.

Police moved in after the package was delivered and made the arrests.

At the time of their arrest, both DiPietro and Dasta had marking agent powder on their hands which had been pre-placed inside the package by U.S. postal inspectors in Pittsburgh.

The marijuana was found under a bed in Dasta's bedroom.

Also seized during the arrest was approximately $952, a 9 millimeter handgun and a loaded magazine, two pellet guns, two baggies containing a "green vegetable matter" and one baggie containing seeds.

Also seized were rolling papers, a corn cob pipe, a brass pipe, a license to carry firearms issued in Westmoreland County and a package of "bat guano."

Both men are free on $25,000 bond and face a preliminary hearing on March 22.

Details of that hearing will be published in a later issue of the Clarion Call.

Students experience culture shock

African american graduates seek academic role models

Courtesy of
College Press Services

Marwin Spiller said he experienced "major culture shock" when he moved from Chicago's South Side to rural Southern Illinois University at Carbondale to pursue a doctorate in sociology.

Particularly distressing was the lack of black professors as role models.

"There are so few black students or professors in graduate school. It's even more extreme than at the undergraduate level," said Spiller, who is president of the National Black Graduate Student Association (NBGSA).

Spiller, whose doctoral studies focus on racism in criminal justice and urban housing, is enrolled in a department that has no black faculty and only two other blacks pursuing advanced degrees.

"Studies have shown that many African-American graduate students don't complete their studies, and I'm convinced it isn't due to difficult or demanding academic programs," Spiller said. "It's because of non-supportive and alienating academic environments."

The NBGSA seeks to reverse this trend, linking 1,500 black student members from all academic disciplines to intellectual circles and communications networks nationwide, Spiller said.

"The association tires to establish a community among black graduate students, to share research ideas among each other and relax in a comfortable atmosphere where ideas are received and new ideas formulated," he says.

The NBGSA will hold its annual conference May 18-22 at Mississippi State University in Starkville, Miss.

The organization also fosters a feeling of belonging through a biannual newsletter, and members communicate through the African-American Student Network, a discussion network on BITNET, an international computer network.

Famous monster picture proved fake

Researchers Alastair Boyd and David Martin claim one of the conspirators in the hoax told them about it just before he died in November at age 90, the Sunday Telegraph newspaper reported.

Boyd and Martin said the model was one foot high and 18 inches long.

The keel of a toy submarine was fitted with lead to make the model ride steady in the water.

U.S. fights China entry into GATT

Support is rising for China's quick entry into the main trade organization, apparently isolating the United States in its concerns about Beijing's human rights policy and the scope of economic reform.

Tuesday, representatives of Japan, the European Community, Canada, Uruguay and Scandinavian nations said the world's most populous nation should join the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs as soon as possible.

Clinton extends nuclear test ban

President Clinton is extending the U.S. Moratorium on testing nuclear weapons for a year despite China's resumption of tests, the White House said Tuesday.

His decision now to extend the moratorium through September 1995 was in part a recognition of restraint shown by other nuclear powers in not responding to China's test with their own detonations, said White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers.

Kuralt pulls off to side of the road

Charles Kuralt is on the road to retirement.

The thoughtful CBS newsman with the deep mellow voice who poked around America's small towns - and found a story in every one - will retire May 1 after 37 years with the network, CBS said Tuesday.

"CBS News has been the best place on Earth to have a career as a reporter and each of my 37 years has been better than the year before," Kuralt, 59, said in a statement.

"I have done every satisfying thing under the sun in television news, and would like to explore some side roads of life."

Kuralt, now the anchor of the CBS News show "Sunday Morning," said his first post-retirement project would be a book about America.

Woman wins as faux Hemingway

"Then she smiled," Bernice Richmond wrote.

"She did not have to smile. She did not have to lick her lips with that tongue, the kind that would not quit.

What was she trying to do? Was this her way of being coy at 1 a.m., or was there a poppy seed caught in her teeth?"

Sound bad? You bet. Richmond became the first woman winner of the annual International Imitation Hemingway Competition.

Richmond, who owns a greeting card company in Westfield, N.J., said she used "divergent hiking to mimic America's paragon of masculinity and compose a pithy passage titled "Here's To You." "I can get into anybody's head," she said.

The rules for the contest are simple: Send one really good page of really bad Hemingway. Be funny. Be Earnest.

"God only knew," Richmond's entry continued. "If there was a God. And if there was a God and He knew, He was not talking.

And even if He did know and was talking, no one would have been listening. Not here. Not now.

Bill targets illegal bus passing

Fines for passing a school bus with flashing red lights would increase fivefold under a bill the state House approved Tuesday.

The House also voted to preserve existing law that calls for a 60-day license suspension for such violations.

"This strengthens the law we have on the books for those who would approach a school bus and still drive pass that bus and endanger the kids who are getting on or getting off [the bus]," said Rep. Kevin Blaum, D-Luzerne.

The bill, sponsored by Democratic Caucus Chairman Jeffrey Coy of Franklin County, was approved 187-9 and now goes to the Senate.

The proposal would raise fines to $500 from $100.

Pager helps police solve case

An electronic pager helped police crack a murder case, and the suspects were sentenced to life in prison.

James McCormick, 20, was gunned down in a Pittsburgh street in December 1992 after he was summoned from a craps game by a call to his pager.

Police solved the case after finding the phone number of another man, Stephen Knight, in the pager's memory. Knight, 22, and Ronald Fairiror, 18, both of Pittsburgh, were convicted of first-degree murder. A jury sentenced them Monday.

Darnell Williamson, 21, was found guilty of conspiracy.

Naked man gets no laughs

Twenty years ago, students and professors erupted in laughter when streakers dashed in and out of classrooms.

Times have changed.

Several faculty members from the College of Journalism and Communication expressed outrage after a naked man burst into an advertising classroom, loudly identified himself as "Batman" and beat a hasty retreat, the Independent Florida Alligator reported.

Professor Sallie Middlebrook, who was teaching the class, said she didn't appreciate the interruption.

"He spread his arms and legs and said, "Batman,"' Middlebrook said. "I was standing there in awe." Middlebrook said she locked the door after the slender male with light-brown hair left the room. "I can see the humor (in the situation)," she said, "but to me it's not funny."

Streaking is not as innocent an activity as it once was. "You don't know what motivates that," she said. "Times have changed so much." Meanwhile, Journalism Dean Ralph Lowenstein said he found the incident "absolutely disgusting."

"I believe if the person can be found he ought to be prosecuted," he said.

The Steel Bandits: truly unique, diverse talent

by Anji Brown
Assistant Lifestyles Editor

Begin with six talented musicians. Then add 20 handcrafted fifty-five gallon chrome plated steel drums, woodwinds, synthesizer and rhythm machines, plus throw in beautiful vocal and dance routines. Put this all this together, and you have six talented musicians from the same family, using the title of the Steel Bandits.

The six adopted family members are the children of Joseph and Inez George who act as the Steel Bandits band and road managers. The six wonders age from 11 to 21, their names being: Rodney, Valerie, Terry, Lamarra, Albert, and Levi George.

The band was organized in 1981 when Inez George purchased steel drum instruments, thinking they would be a positive source of recreation for her children. Obviously it was, because now they have made a career out of playing these steel drum instruments by becoming the Steel Bandits.

The Steel Bandit's music has been said to "touch the soul and immortalize the memory." All of the seven members possess talent, having mastered several instruments. Most sing and dance beautifully as well, each projecting their own individual style. The performance is sure to be an eye catcher with the colorful costumes and the dazzling bouquet of light featured. While on stage, the audience never knows what the Steel Bandits are going to do next, and they offer that same unpredictability in their music selections. Rather than limiting themselves to the traditional calypso sound that's generally associated with their instruments, they've embraced such diverse styles as Top 40, Big Band Swing, 50's oldies, Country and Western, Broadway, Rap Reggae, opera and several original songs which their audiences especially love and request. In fact, the only predictable part of their performance is the reviews, bravos, rousing applause and calls for "encore, encore" they receive after the show.

The Steel Bandits dazzles their audience with very rare and diverse performances.

After a dazzling performance at a political fundraiser, the Steel Bandits received a letter of commendation from President Reagan. The Steel Bandits have recently performed reviews at the Grammys, Los Angeles; Tropicana Hotel, Las Vegas; Marriott World Center, Orlando; plus many more.

This group has a great love for music and humanity that is always clearly evident on and off stage. This will be a powerful show, one you cannot afford to miss!

Clarion University will host the Steel Bandits on Monday, March 21 at 8:00 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi purpose room. Tickets are $9 for adults, $5 for children 12 and under, and free for Clarion University students with a valid student ID. For more information call 226-2312, for tickets call 226-2459.

Celebrate centuries of St. Patrick's Day

The falling of the white; the wearing of the "green"

by Keith M. Mient
Lifestyles Writer

There is more to St. Patrick's Day than just the "wearing of the green."

Roman Catholics and people of Irish nationality celebrate this infamous holiday every year on March 17. They celebrate in honor of St. Patrick the Apostle of Ireland and the country's patron saint. He was born in Britain around 389 A.D. to Roman parents, and though they were religious, Patrick gave no thought to religion until the age of 16.

At this age he and other young men and women were sold as slaves over in Ireland by Irish raiders and pirates. Patrick was sold as a herdsmen for six years in Slemish in County Antrium. This time of solitude and deprivation began giving him an awareness of God in his life. In his sixth year of slavery, Patrick decided it was time to escape.

One night Patrick was given the idea to escape while having a dream. He would make his way to the harbor and board a ship that would give him his freedom. For a little while Patrick found comfort in being reunited with his family but he knew he must return to Ireland to face his captors. He faced King Laoghaire and the druids who kidnapped him. Patrick would not only confront those who hurt him; but also travelled all around the country, converting Christianity, schools and monestaries.

After serving about 30 years as a dedicated missionary, Patrick retired to Saul in Downpatrick where he died on March 17, 461. The famous carved "P" signifies his grave which pilgrims visit each year. Patrick's devotion to Christianity is one of the most successful in history.

Two things that always signify St. Patrick's Day are the color green and the shamrock. A touch of green color can be found anywhere on March 17. In keeping with the spirit of the holiday a green shirt may be worn or a green button that says "Kiss Me, I'm Irish." For someone truly Irish at heart having their hair tinted green or drinking green beer is a way to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. Over 29 years ago the city of Chicago did something a little unusual. The mayor of the "Windy City" ordered that 100 pounds of emerald green dye to be poured into the Chicago River. This tradition is not carried out today. Canadians wear green on St. Patrick's Day whether or not they are Irish as in the United States.

Another touch of green you will see is the shamrock. The three leaves form the Holy Trinity and the strength and truth that it gives. To give special honor to the shamrock, most people follow a 100 year-old tradition known as drowning the shamrock. In drowning the shamrock, people either eat their fill or drink their fill to give recognition to this symbol. St. Patrick's Day is the only day during the Lenten season when people will eat and drink their fill.

As with any holiday, celebrations and parties are not uncommon on St. Patrick's Day. The one celebration that gets the most attention occurs in New York every year dating back to 1762. From the first parade held until 1838 the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick would sponsor and organize these parades, however, in 1838 the Ancient Order of Hiberians began to give their support and organize these parades. This group continues to sponsor these parades today.

The parade usually lasts all day. Festivities begin around noon and can go from 5-6 p.m. and starts at Fifth Avenue covering an overall distance of 2 1/2 miles with as many as 125,000 marchers. The spectacular event gives marchers a chance to see two significant historical places. On 50th Street they have a chance to see St. Patrick's Cathedral. Then walking on 64th Street they march past a reviewing stand where politicians and guests gather to share the importance and enthusiasm

CUP graduate writes biography about MS

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

When you graduate from college, you have this overwhelming feeling of superiority, like you could take on the world. Your life is full of decisions to make for your life, but you almost always have a choice of what is best for you.

But what happens if all choices are suddenly made for you, leaving you with nothing but a life full of limitations. Janet Lee Jones can tell you all about that feeling in her new book, One Particular Harbor, which is now out in bookstores and in the Gemmell bookstore.

Jones is a 1973 graduate of Clarion University with a bachelor's degree in communication. Just fresh from CUP, she searched for a decent job and luckily found one as a disc jockey in Pittsburgh, where she resides.

Jones believed she had it made until she was hospitalized and diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis (MS), a disease that slowly deteriorates the human body. However, her doctors told her that she had a fair chance of leading an active and productive life for years to come.

Both frustrated yet hopeful, Jones (or J.J.) decided to pack up her troubles and move to Alaska, where she had dreamed of living since she was little. During a long remission of MS, J.J. found a house (log cabin) in the woods, a decent job and a new car all in the first few days. Pretty soon, she forgot all about her disease.

Through years of wonder and exploration, J.J. takes us along with her in her story through many adventures in the "last frontier." Her summers were spent climbing glaciers, fishing for crab, sailing ancient pirate schooners and chasing men for sport. The cold winters were filled with dogsled racing, whale chasing and many other life-threatening pursuits.

After a while the remission was halted by more and more attacks of MS, and J.J. courageously resorted to the "psychic surgeons" of Southeast Asia. She endures 26 bloody, bare-handed "operations" — all performed in such a way that would cost American doctors their life savings in lawsuits.

Although the disease temporarily subsided, the MS reasserted itself by taking away the use of both her legs. By her 30th birthday, J.J. stopped running away from the disease and was admitted into a rehabilitation center. From there, she takes us inside for an intimate, exceptionally graphic (and often very funny) look at what it takes to prepare oneself for life with a serious disability.

But J.J. didn't quit at that point, and she took off to Alaska for one last adventure until her brother invited her to Honolulu for the winter. She spent most of the time scuba-diving (wheelchair and all) for an unforgettable underwater experience.

The conclusion of One Particular Harbor takes J.J. back home to Pittsburgh as she is now profoundly disabled with often unbearable pain. She is almost completely dependent on others for even her most basic, intimate needs. But her dignity and outrageous sense of humor amazingly remains intact, and she speaks to us (quite frankly) of what it takes to live the way she now must, and we come away feeling somehow refreshed and even invigorated.

Why? Maybe it's just that once in a while it helps to be reminded that life, regardless of its circumstances, truly is whatever we choose to make of it.

Management accounting seminar to be held

By Toni Ross
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University will be hosting a seminar called "Theory of Constraints: Management Accounting Perspectives." The seminar, which will take place in the Gemmell Student Complex on March 23 from 8:15 a.m. to 4:40 p.m.

The seminar is co-sponsored by the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA) Northwest Keystone Chapter, IMA Pennsylvania Northwest Chapter and Clarion University of Pennsylvania and its Center for Accounting Education and Research.

Three sessions will be held; the first is entitled, "Cycle Time Management: The Balancing Constraint Between Inventory Investments and Customer Service." The other two are " Theory of Constraints: Moving Form the Cost World to the Throughput World," and "Evaluating the Impact of the Theory of Constraints - parts I and II." The first session will by presented by Curtis Songer and William O'Shurak and John C. Heiman will present the other two.

Curtis Songer is a senior manager with the Deloitte and Touche management consulting division in Pittsburgh. John Heiman is a managing partner of Greytech Associates.

The conference will address numerous issues in the accounting world. Topics to be discussed include "Managing Stress in Organizations," "Organizational Impact of Business Re-engineering," "Competitive Constraints in a Russian Federation," and "ISO 9000: Internal Standards - Measurements and Controls." These sessions will be conducted by Clarion University professors as well as several members of the business world.

A panel called "Theory of Constraints: Viewpoints" will be moderated by Cheryl A. Walker, vice-president for professional education Northwest Keystone Chapter of IMA.

Speaking at the seminar will by Cheryl Walker, Mrs. Joan chevalier, Dr. Charles Pineno, Dennis Beggs, and Maratin Cummins.

Up to eight continuing professional education credits are available for participants in the seminar. A registration fee is required: $60 for all conference sessions; $45 for one-half day; and $25 for students. The fee includes the book "The Goal," lunch at the Gemmell Student Complex, and refreshments.

Contact the office of Continuing Education in 108 Carrier Administration Building at (814) 226-2227 for registration and more information.

Senior Spotlight

Hoover says involvement on campus is key

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

If you don't him personally you at least know who he is. In my opinion, Brian Hoover is one of the most recognizable people on Clarion University's campus and definitely deserving of this week's "Senior Spotlight."

For those of you who do not know Brian personally, he is the current (as well as one of the past) Student Senate Presidents. He enjoys his position because of the opportunities presented to work with all kinds of people.

According to Brian his love of people is what brought him to Clarion University. "Clarion was the first school that I visited and I thought the people and the campus were great. When I came up for orientation, I was just blown away because everyone was so nice." What made him stay: "I like people and I love making friends."

Those of you who do know "Hoov" realize that he is so much more than the president of the Senate. Brian is involved in more than 17 different organizations, including the President's Student Advisory Board, and the Board of Trustees (he is the Student Trustee). He enjoys becoming and staying involved with campus activities. Although, this may be what made him so popular he insists that popularity is not the reason why he keeps so busy. "I love being involved in challenging situations and I don't consider any of my positions to be just resume material. The popularity doesn't matter... the experience does."

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Brian Hoover knows how to really get involved on campus.

And Brian definitely has the experience. Along with his incredibly extensive run in Student Senate, he is also very active in residence life. Hoover has been a resident assistant, or RA, for six semesters and has also acted as an orientation leader for three consecutive summers, and has no intention of slowing down.

In fact, he believes that the most important thing a college student can do is to get involved. "Get out and meet people. And even if you only get involved with just one organization working with one set of people during a semester, your involvement will probably lead to another to another organization with another set of people. You meet people that will get you involved. I would have had no accomplishments if I had sat in my room."

Hoover contributes a lot of his successes to his friends, the students of Clarion University, and the university administration. Through Dr. Curtis, the advisor to Student Senate and Mary Walter and Scott Horch, of residence life, Brian has earned an "extracurricular" education. "They taught me as much as I was taught in the classroom."

Other people that Brian credits for assisting him include his student Senate Vice-President, Amy Donahue, his girlfriend Marcie Cattivera and his family. "My family has been really supportive of what I do. I could never thank them enough."

When asked how he has changed Clarion, Brian said, "It's not just me [that's changed Clarion], it's the groups that I have been a part of. I may have been influential in the making of the some decisions, but I couldn't have done it myself." Brian uses the 1994 Senate as an example. "They are good strong people."

Brian Hoover wants to be remembered as being an honest and good person. He wants people to say, "He was a fun guy [who] was great to be around." I don't forsee a problem with that.

University Apartments
Affordable Student Housing
Now Renting for Summer, Fall and Spring
Located Along U.S. Rt. 322

University Apartments offers an atmosphere conducive to higher education as well as an opportunity for independent living. Each unit is a self-contained efficiency apartment equipped with kitchen appliances, furniture and a bathroom. We offer a full-time resident manager to supervise the buildings.

Comparing our rental rates with campus and other off-campus housing, one will find them substantially below market rent for the area. With the exception of telephone, all utilities including basic cable are included in the rent. Installation and hook-up of utilities alone would cost and additional $75 at other places. Add this to your monthly bills,(say and average of $100/month for 4 students),and rent for the semester. Compare and save with University Apartments.

Please contact University Apartments for further information and/or an appointment to examine our facilities: 226-6880

Rates: Current dormitory rates are $805 per semester per student for two-person square room with no kitchen, living room or bathroom. University Apartments rates are as follows

WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-A 35-year-old man in Eagle Valley, Colorado, who was badly beaten in the face in a fight at the Brush Creek Saloon on New Year's Eve, called an ambulance shortly after he arrived home because, when he blew his nose, his left eyeball came loose from the socket. Doctors repaired his eye orbiter bone and repositioned the eyeball.

-In San Leandro, California in January, when neighbors reported two weeks of mail and newspapers piling up outside, police broke into the home of Frederic Green, 82. After examining his stiff, cold body, police officers assumed Green was dead and called for a coroner. As the coroner was taking photographs of the scene, the flash from his camera momentarily startled Green, who regained consciousness.

-A German court ruled in November that at the prison in Giessen, Germany guards may not enter inmates' cells without first knocking and being invited in. German law requires prisons to reflect general living conditions outside the prison as much as possible.

-According to witnesses, a middle-aged man, six-feet-four, with a gray beard robbed a convenience store in Perryopolis, Pennsylvania in August. As a disguise, he was wearing a large rabbit head, including large, floppy ears. However, the face had been cut out so that the robber's face was fully visible.

-Sarah F. Bates, 58, was arrested in Franklin, Tennessee on Christmas day after she allegedly punched her son-in-law Richard Harrington and threw a stereo at his son (her grandson), injuring him. She was upset because she disagreed with Harrington's decision to let the boy sit at the "grown-ups'" table for dinner.

-Sharon Church, 24, who lives near Atlanta, was sentenced to 15 years in prison in November for an assault against a 27-year-old male pedestrian. After luring the man into her apartment, she pulled out a butcher knife, stabbed him in the shoulder, screamed at him to have sex with her "or die," ordered him to disrobe, slashed the bed around him with the knife, and repeatedly performed oral sex on him.

-Using a van painted "1-800 AUTOPSY," Vidal Herrera acts as a free-lance coroner in Los Angeles County, where budget cuts have been reduced the size and efficiency of the county coroner's office. He offers services ranging from routine autopsy to the delivery of brains and other body parts to organ banks. Said Herrera, "The death business is . . . recession-proof."

-From the Atlanta leather-goods shop B.D. Jeffries, the store's most unusual item: a $65 crocodile-skin tampon holder.

-The Ohio Court of Claims ruled in January that Mansfield Correctional Institution was not liable for the injury that inmate Ira Tillery, 35, suffered. Tillery, serving 5-to-25 for rape and robbery, severed a finger when he fell to the ground after slam-dunking during a basketball game.

-In August, police in Carlisle Township, Ohio said they had no leads on the identity of the voyeur captured on the security-camera videotape at the Elyria Value City store. The tape shows a man stalking a women through the lingerie and shoe departments. When the woman stopped to examine some clothing on a rack, the man stealthily approached her from behind, held a small pocket mirror close to the floor, and looked up her dress.

-In November, officials at the Tokyo Sea Life Park aquarium reported that about 10 percent of its bluefin and yellowfin tuna have developed deformed faces because of the "stress" of swimming in a small tank. Large bumps have appeared on some fishes' faces; other fishes' eyes have become partially dislodged.

-In January, The Times (London, England) reported that a recent feud in the southern French town of Pia was coming to a head. Animal-rights activist Joelle Cinca happens to live next door to one of France's top pornographic film producers, Gerard Menoud, who sometimes shoots sex scenes in his yard. Menoud claims that the noise made by the geese Cinca keeps in her garden disturbs his film' sound tracks; Cinca claims that Menoud's actresses' loud orgasms have traumatized her geese.

-In January, Susan Franano, general manager of the Kansas City Symphony, suspended oboist Ken Lawrence after he made a "facetious response" to a complaint about him. Franano had relayed a complaint by a horn player that, during a rehearsal for "The Nutcracker," Lawrence had passed gas in a loud manner, "creating an overpowering smell."

DAVE

Dave Barry (c) 1994 Miami Herald

You have to be a real stud hombre cybermuffin to handle "Windows"

People often say to me: "Dave, as a professional columnist, you have a job that requires you to process large quantities of information on a timely basis. Why don't you get a real haircut?"

What these people are REALLY asking, of course, is: How am I able to produce columns with such a high degree of accuracy, day in and day out, 54 weeks per year?

The answer is: I use a computer. This enables me to be highly efficient. Suppose, for example, that I need to fill up column space by writing BOOGER BOOGER BOOGER BOOGER BOOGER. To accomplish this in the old pre-computer days, I would have had to type "BOOGER" five times manually. But now all I have to do is type it once, then simply hold the left-hand "mouse" button down while "dragging" the "mouse" so that the "cursor" moves over the text that I wish to "select"; then release the left-hand "mouse" button and position the "cursor" over the "Edit" heading on the "menu bar"; then click the left-hand "mouse" button to reveal the "edit menu"; then position the "cursor" over the "copy" command; then click the left-hand "mouse button; then move the "cursor" to the point where I wish to insert the "selected" text, then click the left-hand "mouse" button; then position the "cursor" over the "Edit" heading on the "menu bar" again; then click the left-hand "mouse" button to reveal the "edit menu"; then position the "cursor" over the "paste" command; then click the left-hand "mouse" button four times; and then, as the French say, "voila!" (Literally, "My hand hurts!")

If you need this kind of efficiency in your life, you should get a computer. I recommend the kind I have, which is a "DOS" computer ("DOS" is an acronym, meaning "ROM"). The other major kind of computer is the "Apple," which I do not recommend, because it is a wuss-o-rama New-Age computer that you basically just plug in and use. This means you don't get to participate in the most entertaining aspect of computer-owning, which is trying to get the computer to work. This is where "DOS" really shines. It is way beyond normal human comprehension.

It was invented by Bill Gates. He is now one of the wealthiest individuals on Earth — wealthier than Queen Elizabeth; do you want to know why? Because he's the only person in the world who understands "DOS."

My current computer, in addition to "DOS," has a security measure to thwart those users who are somehow able to get past "DOS." You have to be a real stud hombre cybermuffin to handle "Windows." I have spent countless hours trying to get my computer to perform even the most basic data-processing functions, such as letting me play "F-117A Stealth Fighter" on it. I have personally, with my bare hands, changed my "WIN.INI" and "CONFIG.SYS" settings. This may not mean much to you, but trust me, it is a major data-processing accomplishment. Albert Einstein died without ever doing it. ("WAIT a minute!" were his last words. "It erased my equation! It was 'E' equals something!")

While you are destroying your mind watching the worthless, brain-rotting drivel on TV, we on the Internet are exchanging, freely and openly, the most uninhibited, intimate and — yes — shocking details about our "CONFIG.SYS" settings.

You would not believe how wrought up we get about this type of thing, on the Internet. I regularly connect with a computer group that has a heated debate going on about — I am not making this issue up — the timing of Hewlett-Packard's decision to upgrade from a 386 to a 486 microprocessor in its Omnibook computer. This has aroused enormous passion. People — some of them from other continents — are sending snide, angry, sometimes furious messages to each other. I'm sure that some participants, even as we speak, are trying to figure out if there is a way to alter their CONFIG.SYS settings so that they can electronically punch their opponents in the mouth. This debate has been raging, soap-opera-like, for months now, and I have become addicted to it. You probably think this is weird, but I don't care. I am a happy nerd in cyberspace, where nobody can see my haircut.

The Anatomy of the Citibank

Classic card: a body of a services and peace of mind for students, and with No Annual Fee.

For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa[R] card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined.

Scientists theorize that the mind of the Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. A) is secure because it receives superior service, the mind of the non-Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. B) is not secure because—could it be?—it has a screw loose?

At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card. Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[1]. Along the Oop-it-Slipped Disk, Buyers Security [sm] can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase [1]; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty [sm] allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years[2]. So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support.

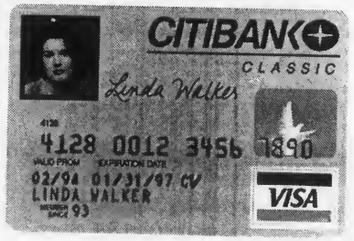

The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard had the head of the cardholder, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will also make a good form of ID, since you get to choose your own photo. But what about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn't have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it had is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, and involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anewcardeus activates the Lost Wallet[sm] Service which can replace your card unusually within 24 hours.

As suspected, there's another involuntary muscle: the heart- a beating and caring heart, big enough to hive students special discounts and savings. You'll receive You'll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights[3]; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%[4]; and, No Annual Fee. (in other words, the card itself doesn't cost a forelimb and a hindlimb.)

Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts, 24 hours a day. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. You'll find Citibank has a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc.

So call to apply. You don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226, extension 19.

If we take an overview of the whole body of service that make up the Citibank Classic Visa card, and consider that it will facilitate building a credit history, then you must shake a leg, flex your index finger and call today.

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

Monarch Notes® Version: With your purchases covered, no annual fee, and a low rate, the Citibank Classic Visa card will go easy on your Nervous System. Call 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19.

Oscar predictions: "Schindler's makes the List"

by Matt Niemla
Contributing Writer

The biggest night in the entertainment world is about to arrive.

Monday evening at 9 p.m. one billion people will be watching the television wondering who will receive the Oscar for their work in the film industry. Yes, it's time once again for the Academy Awards, a ceremony which reeks with Hollywood hype and behind-the-scenes drama.

Here are lists of the nominees in the seven major categories, along with my pick in who will win and who deserves to win.

Best Supporting Actor: Leonardo Dicaprio (What's Eating Gilbert Grape), Ralph Fiennes (Schindler's List), Tommy Lee Jones (The Fugitive), John Malkovich (In the Line of Fire) and Pete Postlewaite (In the Name of the Father). Tommy Lee Jones will take this one with a very strong role from "The Fugitive." He has been nominated before for "JFK" which is a plus. The Best Supporting Actor should have went to Sean Penn for "Carlito's Way" for his brilliant role as a pathetic and drug-using lawyer. (Imagine that.)

Best Supporting Actress: Holly Hunter (The Firm), Anna Paquin (The Piano), Rosie Perez (Fearless), Winona Ryder (The Age of Innocence) and Emma Thompson (In the Name of the Father). Winona will capture the award because it seems popular to give it to someone fresh and young.

Best Actor: Daniel Day-Lewis (In the Name of the Father), Laurence Fishburne (What's Love Got to Do With It), Tom Hanks (Philadelphia), Anthony Hopkins (The Remains of the Day), Liam Neeson (Schindler's List). Tom Hanks is the major favorite in this category for his highly dramatic portrayal of a lawyer with AIDS. Daniel Day-Lewis was my fav but he already received an Oscar for "My Left Foot" a few years ago.

Best Actress: Angela Bassett (What's Love Got to do With it), Stockard Channing (Six Degrees of Separation), Holly Hunter (The Piano), Emma Thompson (The Remains of the Day) and Debra Winger (Shadowlands). Holly Hunter is a clear favorite for "The Piano" even though she didn't have a line in the movie. Angela Bassett could be the upset.

Best Original Song: "Again" (Poetic Justice), "The Day I Fall in Love" (Beethoven's 2nd), "Philadelphia" (Philadelphia), "Streets of Philadelphia" (Philadelphia), "A Wink and a Smile" (Sleepless in Seattle). Bruce Springsteen has received a lot of airplay for "Streets. . ." Although not nominated, U2's "Stay (Faraway, So Close)" from the film "Faraway, So Close" is probably the best Original Song from this past year's soundtracks.

Best Director: Robert Altman (Short Cuts), Jane Champion (The Piano), James Ivory (The Remains of the Day), Jim Sheridan (In the Name of the Father), and Steven Speilberg (Schindler's List). Steven Speilberg. He gave us one of the most important movies of the 90's with "Schindler's List" -- and really, it's about time he was recognized for his work.

Best Picture: "The Fugitive," "In the Name of the Father," "The Piano," "The Remains of the Day," and "Schindler's List." "Schindler's List" is the most obvious "Best Picture" to come along in years. It is a necessity for everyone to experience.

Expect "Schindler's List" to get most of the remaining awards except for the ones in the technical categories -- those will go to "Jurassic Park" which means Speilberg will be carting Oscars home in a box.

The year 1993 was an excellent year for film with a wide variety of quality movies that didn't insult our intelligence.

St. Patrick's Day celebration of the event. Bands and marching units complete with baton-twirlers take part in the parade.

The earliest St. Patrick's Day parade didn't take place in New York. For the earliest St. Patrick's Day parade, we have to go back to March 17, 1737 and to Boston, Massachusetts. This historical celebration is remembered because the British evacuated Boston. General George Washington selected "Boston" as the password for this day, and "St. Patrick" was to be the response.

If you are celebrating St. Patrick's Day in Dublin, Ireland, a parade followed by an Irish Mardi Gras "toasts" the day.

These annual celebrations were made famous since 1968 and attract most North American tourists.

Marching band performs in Pittsburgh parade

Contributed by Music Department

The Clarion University Golden Eagle marching band performed at the annual St. Patrick's Day parade in downtown Pittsburgh last Saturday.

This was the first year the band has participated in the parade. The Golden Eagle marching band received the Thomas J. Donahue Award for their excellence in the parade performance.

The band is under the direction of Stephen Johnson.

Top students participate in intercollegiate band festival

Contributed by Music Department

Five Clarion University students patticipated in the 47th Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Band Festival on March 4-6.

The 130-piece band was under the baton of guest conductor Robert E. Foster, director of bands at the University of Kansas.

Participating students were: Michelle Timko, clarinet I; Jerry Winkleblech, clarinet III; Scott DiTullio, cornet I; Scott Sheehan, trumpet III; and Danial Shevock, percussion.

The musicians were chosen for their instrumental musical accomplishments.

Also Bring Home PSAC Crown

Women's hoops advance to "Elite Eight"

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Clarion University women's basketball team has been very and very succesful since the last publication of the Clarion Call. Not only did they win their third PSAC crown in the past four years, but they also advanced to the round of eight in the NCAA Division II Women's Basketball Tournament.

On March 4, Clarion traveled to California University of Pennsylvania to face Bloomsburg, the second seed in the East, in its first game. Clarion started this game out hot as Amy Coon racked up eight points in the first minute and a half. The game went right down to the wire and Clarion escaped with a 69-64 victory.

Next Clarion faced the homestanding Lady Vulcans for the championship.

Cal had its biggest lead of the game late in the first half at 35-28. Clarion cut into that when Shannon Coakley nailed a three pointer and Mona Gaffney sank two free throws. The score was 35-33 Cal going into the locker rooms.

In the second half, the lead changed hands six times, with Clarion going up for good with 3:23 remaining when Coon hit a trey.

California would not go away, however, and had posession of the ball with nine seconds left and down 70-69. But Cal mishandled the ball and fouled Coon when she took control of it. Coon then iced the game by draining one of her two free throw attempts.

Laura Thornton, who set a Division II record by making 12 three pointers in the game, tried a desperation shot at the buzzer. The only three pointer that mattered to Cal bounced off the rim.

Coach Gie Parsons said of the win, "We're very proud of winning our third PSAC title. We played a very tough, very fired up Cal team. We tried to counter every attack they made and finally pulled off the victory."

For the two games, Mona Gaffney had 35 points and 32 rebounds, Carlita Jones had 38 points, 25 rebounds, and nine blocks, Coon had 21 points and four steals, and Coakley had 30 points, ten rebounds and 11 assists.

Next it was off to New York where Clarion was to take on Mercyhurst in the East Region of the national playoffs. Mercyhurst beat Clarion earlier this year, but the Lady Eagles avenged that loss with an 87-76 victory. The victory, in which Clarion shot 49 percent from the floor, advanced Clarion into the East Region championship game against the home team and #1 seed, Pace University.

Pace also had beaten Clarion earlier this year. Clarion again had revenge on their mind.

Pace won the tip and jumped out to a four point lead. They had lead the for most of the first half until Joy Brown drilled a trey with 4:18 in the half and put Clarion on top 27-24.

Clarion then pulled away slowly and took a 36-31 lead in to the half off a Coon three pointer with three seconds remaining.

Early in the second period Clarion went on a 7-2 run and stretched the lead to as many as nine.

Pace stayed close and at 3:40 the score was 63-62 Clarion. Coakley made a basket and Gaffney layed one in to extend the lead again, but it was back down to three with 17 seconds in the game.

Coakley was fouled and she made her first free throw. That made the score 71-67, and neither team scored again.

Coach Parsons noted, "We really played well both days. We executed well on offense, but we felt the big difference was our team defense. We always said defense wins championships and this weekend proved that."

For the two games, Jones, in an MVP performance, scored 54 points, grabbed 30 rebounds, and blocked seven shots. Gaffney had 21 points and 26 rebounds, and Coakley netted 38, pulled in 11 boards, and dished out seven assists.

Clarion is now one of eight teams left in the running for the championship. They will be traveling to North Dakota State University on March 23 to play North Alabama of the South region.

North Albama, led by 12th year coach Wayne Byrd, comes into the game with a record of 20-9. They won three games to get to this round, the last being a narrow one-point victory over West Georgia, the number one seed in the South.

North Alabama starts seniors Starr Ferguson (9.7ppg, 101 assists) and Lisa Biley (5.7ppg, 46 assists) at the guards, with seniors Kindra Moore (11.9ppg, 138 assists) and Marcy McMillan (8ppg, 6.1rpg) at the forwards, and junior Cyndy Holt (18.3ppg, 7.9rpg).

North Alabama started the season at 3-6, but finished the year winning 12 of its final 13 games. Clarion has won 12 straight games.

If Clarion should beat North Alabama they will go on to meet the winner of the game between defending national champion North Dakota State of the North Central region and Missouri Western State of the South Central region.

Clarion has already beaten North Dakota State this season, 90-79, that victory coming in the championship game of the Clarion Classic.

All of the remaining games will be played at NDSU.

Pat McDevitt/Clarion Call

Shannon Coakley's superb court leadership has helped guide the Lady Eagles to the round of eight. With a victory over North Alabama next week, the Eagles will have reached the Final Four, an achievement that has eluded them the past several years.

Golden Eagle Wrestlers win EWL's

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

The Clarion University wrestling team came back from a 15 point deficit to win their second Eastern Wrestling League Championship. The only lead that the Golden Eagles held came after the last match of the tournament, but it was the one that counted. Clarion heavyweight Rob Sintobin defeated Pitt's Pat Wiltanger, to give Clarion the title. Wiltanger had beaten Sintobin earlier this year,

Hosted at Lock Haven University's Thomas Fieldhouse, Clarion topped a very talented field with 108.5 points. Edinboro was second with 106.5 points, West Virginia third at 105.75, Lock Haven fourth with 94.25, Bloomsburg fifth at 80.5, Pitt was sixth with 71.5, Pitt was sixth with 71.5, and Cleveland State was seventh with 59.75.

"We really overcame a lot of adversity to win the title," noted coach Jack Davis. "I couldn't be prouder of our team. We wrestled our hearts out today and gave every ounce we had. We predicted it would be a great EWL tournament and it lived up to that billing. Now its back to work to prepare for the NCAA Division I Nationals."

Sheldon Thomas at 118 pounds and Sintobin were Clarion's only EWL champions. Thomas and Sintobin will join runner-up Bryan Stout (190), and third place finishers Bob Crawford (126), J.J. Stanbro (167), and Dan Payne (177) at the NCAA Division I Nationals.

Thomas defeated former Clarion wrestler Chad Billy of West Virginia to gain Clarion's victory. Thomas held a narrow 1-0 lead in the third period, when Billy scored a quick takedown, but Thomas hit a reversal with two seconds left to grab the victory. The win pushed Thomas' season record to 24-5.

Sintobin broke a scoreless tie with a takedown with five seconds left in the first period. After that he was never behind again on his way to an 8-2 victory.

Moss Grays was named as the second alternate wild card. Grays, a two time national qualifier was bypassed for nationals by a vote of the coaches in favor of fifth place Keith Taylor. Grays decisioned Taylor at the EWL's.

Clarion was named the top NCAA Division I dual meet team in the East by the Eastern Mat Poll. Clarion received six first place votes and finished with 69 points. Edinboro was second with 62. Clarion also earned a ranking of sixth in the nation to end the season. Davis said, "It was a great dual meet season and all the credit goes to our wrestlers. Their hard work and dedication produced a quality season and they deserve the accolades."

It was the fifth time in Clarion history that the Golden Ealges won the Eastern Mat Poll. The other years were '74, '79, '81, and '86.

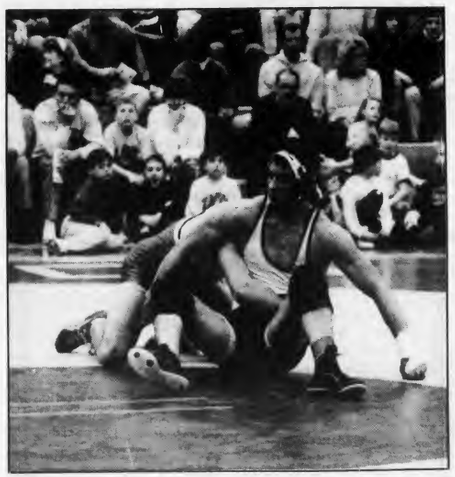

Oklahoma State won the régular season ranking with a 12-1 ranking. The rest of the teams were Minnesota, Iowa, Penn State, North Carolina, Nebraska, Iowa State, Oregon State, and Edinboro.

Now it is on to Natioanals at North Carolina, March 17-19. Clarion has had a National's record of 194-154, including seven national champions, the most recent being heavyweight champion Kurt Angle in 1992. Clarion has finished in the top 29 at nationals 19 times since 1971. Their best showings have been 4th in 1973, 6th in 1972 and 1987, and 8th in 1992.

Clarion has a glorious wrestling history, and this victory is another notch in the championship belt. Look for a good showing at nationals.

J.J. Stanbro went 2-1 at EWL's to raise his season record to 25-5. Stanbro will join teammates Rob Sintobin, Sheldon Thomas, Bran Stout, Bob Crawford, and Dan Payne at nationals this week.

Moss Grays, a two time nationals qualifier was overlooked in a coaches vote at EWL's. Keith Taylor, a wrestler Grays beat, was voted in ahead of him.

Swimmers and Divers fare well at Nationals

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Clarion University was well represented this past weekend at the NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving Naational Championships held in Canton, Ohio. The Lady Eagles' team captured a third place finish, while the men brought home the number seven spot in the country. For the Lady Eagles, senior Justine Gibbons had a strong Nationals to finish her collegiate career. Individually, Gibbons was second in the 500 freestyle and second in the 1650 freestyle. In addition, the senior tri-captain placed third in the 100 backstronke and third in the 200 backstroke. Gibbons also led the 800 free relay team to a fifth place finish with a time of 7:46.35. Gibbons finishes her career as a 22 time All-American.

Senior diver Kim Strawbridge brought home second place finishes on both the one and three meter board. She also ends her career in style. Named the 1993 "Diver of the Year," Strawbridge finishes her three years at Clarion as a six time All-American.

Other outstanding performances at Nationals by the Lady Eagles swimming team were made by Lauri Ratica (six All-American honors), Regan Rickert (five), Stephanie Kissel (six), Dawn Jones (five), Kathy Randazzo (two), Mara Strelecki (two), and Lisa Kaylor.

All-American divers for the Lady Eagles included Nicole Joa, Amy Pagaine, Kendra Raymond, Tammy Quinn, and Stephanie Kent.

Another great season comes to an end for the women's swimming and diving teams. History, for the 19th time, repeated itself as the Eagles won another conference crown. They posted a 6-1 dual meet record for the season.

The men's swimming and diving team sent only five participants to nationals and were still able to bring home a productive 7th place finish.

Coach Bill Miller said "We had a small contingent at nationals this year, but everyone went out and had strong performances. I'm really proud of their efforts.

Pacing the Golden Eagle swimmers in the pool was junior Dan Stoner. Stoner placed third in the 50 yard freestyle with a time of 20.77- just four one-hundredths of a second from the national title.

He also set a Clarion record in the 100 butterfly, placing third there as well. Stoner also placed eighth in the 100 freestyle, plus helped the 400 medley relay team to an impressive fourth place finish. Only a junior, Stoner captured four more All-American honors to give him 17 for his career.

In the diving, junior Joe Egan captured two All-American honors. Egan was fifth on the one meter and the three meter. He now has six All-American honors. Other scorers for the Golden Eagles included Scott Rosenbaum, John Williams, and Kevin Sciullo.

The men's team finished the season with a 5-2 record. They were third at PSAC's.

A weekly look at a Clarion University Athlete

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Dan Stoner, a junior computer science major, has been the leader of Clarion's men's swimming team this season.

Stoner, from Mt. Joy Pennsylvania, started his swimming career at the age of six at his local YMCA. He competed all throughout high school for both his high school and the Y.

His senior year he decided to attend a private school, Mercersburg Academy, which was known for an outstanding swimming team. He had many options coming out of high school, but decided to pick Clarion. Coach Bill Miller offered him a scholarship and brought him to the campus for a visit.

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call
Dan Stoner has had a great year for the swimming team. He recently earned five more All-American honors at nationals.

"After meeting the team and the coaches I decided I liked it a lot." Stoner noted.

He attributes his success (he recently earned his 17 All-American honors) to the fact that he has stuck with swimming and has practiced day in and day out for years. He has had stern coaches to keep him at it as well.

He says that he is most proud of the fact that ever since he came to Clarion he has improved every year. He hasn't plateaued as do some swimmers, but keeps getting better.

Of his future goals, "I want to at least make the Olympic trials. That may be unrealistic, it may be realistic. But I think it would be neat to at least make the trials and swim with the big guys."

When Dan isn't in Tippin he likes to play guitar, shoot pool, and draw.

Morton passed over

Carlita Jones named "Player of the Year"

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Several CUP players have earned honors in a recent vote by conference coaches.

Carlita Jones was named PSAC-West "Player of the Year" and earned a first team selection spot along with Shannon Coakley. Amy Coon received a second team selection.

For the men, Kwame Morton was named to the first team, but inexplicably was not chosen as "Player of the Year."

Jones was second in the PSAC with 18.9 ppg and led the conference in rebounds at 11.9 per game. She also led the conference in blocks with 83 and FG% at 59%. She also has 86 assists and 67 steals on the season.

Jones already owns 11 Clarion records and was a first team selection in 1993 and the PSAC-West "Rookie of the Year" in 1992.

Coakley, a four year starter was a second team choice in '91, '92, and '93. She holds 12 Clarion records including the all-time scoring record of 1760 points. Coakley averaged 18 ppg, collected 148 rebounds, dished out 121 assists, and had 54 steals. She is fourth in NCAA history with 329 three pointers made.

Coon, a four year starter, was named to the second team for the second year in a row. This year she averaged 13.4 ppg, handed out 43 assists, and made 46 steals. Coon holds the NCAA record in all three divisions for three pointers made and attempted in a career at 354 of 999. She is the second leading school scorer at 1431 points.

The first team also included Cal's Traci Cox and Lara Thorton, Slippery Rock's Kory Fielitz, and Lock Haven's Holly Kozlowski.

For Morton, this marks the third straight year he has been named to the PSAC-West first team. He was a second team choice and "Rookie of the Year" in 1991.

Morton owns 21 Clarion and nine PSAC records. This season he scored 845 points to average 32.5 ppg and lead all of college basketball.

Morton was a consensus pre-season All-American and has earned the PSAC-West "Player of the Week" award four times and the USA Today Division II "Offensive Player of the Week" twice.

Morton, who will undoubtedly be named as a first team All-American, was astonishingly passed over as the "Player of the Year" choice. The award went to IUP's Yancee Taylor who had a good season, but one that paled in comparison to Morton's.

Said coach Ron Righter, "In this business, nothing surprises me."

Morton noted, "I was disappointed, but I wasn't heartbroken. I think I had the best season in the conference, if not the country.

The only reason Taylor could have been picked was the success of his team.

"Taylor's team had a good year and I think that had a lot to do with it, but it's an individual honor," Morton said.

The rest of the first team consisted of IUP's Derrick Freeman, Cal's Darnell White, Shippensburg's Brian Rehm, and Edinboro's Price Williams.

No other Clarion men's players were named to either the first or second team.

Sports Trivia Question
by Nathan Kahl

Baseball is in the air, and before you know it we will be sitting in front of our TV's this October watching another World Series. Can you name what player leads all others in World Series home runs, RBI's, runs and total bases? Answer next week.

Last week's answer: Sonja Heine is the only woman figure skater to win three Olympic gold medals.

Jordan's woes

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Sports Illustrated recently ran an issue with a picture of Michael Jordan (the baseball version) on the cover. The words read, "Bag it, Michael." The caption said " Jordan and the White Sox are embarassing baseball." The title of their article was "Err Jordan," a tired pun that SI alone has used at least three times.

SI is not alone in their Michael bashing. If you haven't noticed lately, everybody is getting on Michael's case.

Now, I don't understand why Michael Jordan decided to play baseball. One of his original reasons for retiring was to have more time for his private life, but he has thrust himself back into the spotlight.

Hitting a baseball is considered the hardest thing to do in pro sports and even great hitters spend their first few years hovering around the Mendoza Line. It really isn't possible for him to make the majors.

But please, get off his back. Michael Jordan is a great athlete, and while he doesn't contain pro level baseball skills, he is trying to see how far he can push those skills.

Anybody can try out for a major league baseball team and I am sure that there are certainly worse players on other spring training rosters as I write this article. The point is, is that anybody can try it, and Jordan should not be singled out for attempting to play the sport which was his first love.

After all, Jordan is giving it his best shot. He shows up early, stays late, and practices hard. He is not being a prima dona, and is working as hard as anybody for a spot on the team.

Jordan recently got his first hit and was showered by his teammates with champagne in the locker room. After being away from the game for 15 years, it's amazing he even got one hit. At this point he realizes he has no chance, but you can't blame him for trying.

Leas receives honor

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Don Leas, a longtime professor and diving coach at Clarion University has been awarded for his several contributuions to the sport of diving.

At a national convention, Leas was awarded the Mike Malone memorial award. The award is given in honor of outstanding contribution to the sport of diving.

If anyone is worthy of such an honor, it is Don Leas.

He began coaching at Clarion in 1968, and served as diving coach until 1989. During that time he racked up 36 national championships, more than any coach in any division, and he coached 235 All-Americans. He was named "Coach of the Year" several times.

He has served on the National Rules Committee as chairman off and on for 15 years. The committee is the organization that selects divers for the Olympics and other international competitions. He also manages and runs all of the international events in the U.S., along with the National Champioships.

Leas serves as the International Chairman of Diving for the World University Games, a competition for college students which is held every two years. It is the second largest sporting event in the world after the Olympics.

He also serves as the National Chairman of safety certification for diving coaches, the National Membership Chairman of U.S. Diving, and the president of the Pennsylvania Diving Association.

Leas, a Philadelphia native, participated in diving at Michigan St. University. However gymnastics was his main sport, and he won the Big 10 gymnastics championship.

Before coming to Clarion he coached at Southern Illinois, the University of Illinois and St. Cloud State University. An offer to be the department chairman of the Health and Physical Education department brought him here in 1966.

He has served both Clarion University and of diving well over his illustrious career.

Baseball National Pastime, not National Sport

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Baseball is considered the "National Pastime." I suppose this is true if you think the national pastime should be a drawn out, excitement-lacking, grade school game for overpaid, underworked, ego-maniacs. I know I like to "pass my time" by spending $5 for parking, $15 for a ticket, $4 for a program, and my total net income of 1992 for a hot dog and a Coke, only to have the guy in front of me drunk off his chair by the middle of the third inning, and the fat guy with the cigar beside me hogging our arm rest. It is usually at this point, when I'm obviously at my most comfortable, that the six million dollar man who caused the latest ticket increase but still "doesn't owe anything to the fans," puts his .168 batting average on the line and hits into a double play with the bases loaded. This, I can only guess, will be followed by a breaking of the bat over his knee, a throwing of his helmet to the ground, and an argument with his beleaguered manager and some loudmouth in the stands. But hey, who are we to tell him how to hit? He just made $23,345 for that double play. Now who's the smart one here?

The worst part about these games is the fact that they have become sooo looong. Players stall, managers stall, even the umpires stall. The two hour game has gone the way of the double header - neither exists any more. Teams rarely schedule double headers nowadays because they would have to include a place to sleep after the game in the ticket package. In one game last year, the Cardinals and the Phillies started a double header at one in the afternoon and did not finish the second game until five a.m. I am not making this up.

The unfortunate thing about this, is that watching some games is as exciting as watching grass er, uh... astroturf grow. CBS's old baseball slogan "Catch the Fever" should be changed to "Catch a Nap." Case in point - during game two of the NLCS three years ago (which lasted 3 hours and 20 minutes by the way) cameras caught Brave's owner Ted Turner and wife Jane Fonda SLEEPING. If the owner and first lady of the Braves fall asleep while trying to watch their team Tomahawk chop its way to the World Series, how easy must it be for us in our own Lay-Z-Boys? Now I know why they call it the seventh inning stretch; stretch is the first thing you do upon waking up.

And what's with this grand old American tradition anyway? Everyone stands up and sings this ridiculous song. "Buy me some peanuts and Cracker Jacks." Peanuts AND Cracker Jacks? Who do you think I am, Ross Perot? Excuse me while I go scalp my car.

Actually I will concede that baseball is the national pastime. It's a lazy game for people who like to spend a lazy day at the ballpark to fill up lazy summer days. It is a game that we use to fill up our free time during the summer and to mildly keep our attention as we enjoy a warm summer night. Just look at how easily it is for us to get out to a game. You can get into a Pirates' game for a dollar some nights.

Baseball is the national pastime, but football... football is the national passion. Football is the game that people look forward to every week. After all, there are only 16 games a season, compared with the overkill of 162 for baseball. Every football game of the season has critical importance to it. If the Pirates lose two of three to Phillies, how many people say, "Boy, only 121 games to go. The Pirates better get it together."?

As far as accessibility is concerned, baseball and football are worlds apart. The Steelers sell out every home game, as do most NFL teams. The Pirates didn't even sell out playoff games a couple of years ago. Could you imagine if Steeler tickets went for a dollar? To even get football tickets, one needs to have a phenomenal network of connections. Tickets to football games have been regulated mainly to the wealthy or to the corporations. This isn't in the best interest for the general public, but it is another strong argument for football.

Companies pay loads of cash for luxury boxes that they give out as bonuses and perks to employees. They also use them to give would-be clients a nice day at the stadium. Baseball tickets are not used like this. After all, you or I could get in for a dollar and sneak down to field level by the third inning.

How many World Series' are among the highest rated television programs of all time? None, unlike Super Bowls. In fact, most World Series games don't start until after nine, and by the time that they're over on the east coast, the audience they should be targeting, adolescents, have long since gone to bed. Super Bowls, on the other hand, generate parties, gatherings, and social events of colossal proportions. Nationally televised football has been strong programming for decades. Baseball on TV however, has floundered for an equally long time on all three networks and ESPN.

Why is pro baseball lacking in popularity? It has no larger than life heroes. The lore of baseball that made it the popular game that it was, is imbedded in the early days of our country. For instance, if you were to name some of the greatest football players ever you would think of Joe Montana, Walter Payton, Jerry Ric , and Joe Greene. All of these players have played within the last 15 years. But the men considered to be the best in baseball history, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Joe DiMaggio, Willie Mays, and Lou Gehrig, are all names from long ago. And sadly enough, most youth today are history deficient.

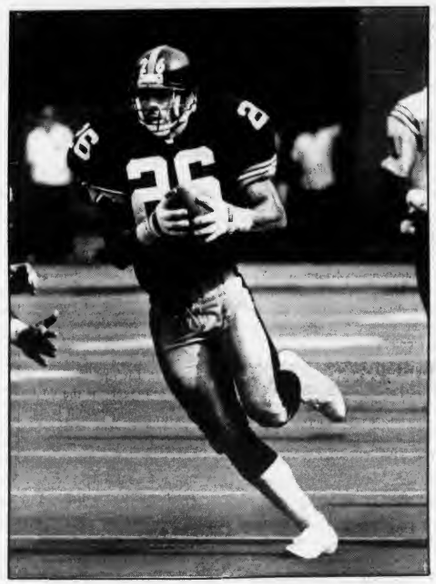

Much has been made about the short attention span of kids today thanks to television. Often, youth are fascinated by the flash, glitter, and sparkle of sports like football and basketball. Basketball highlights are clipped together into an MTV like catch-me-if-you-can barrage of dunks, behind the back passes, and blocked shots. In baseball, if a batter hits one down the line, by the time the guy from second scores the average teenager has already began to think about hooking up his Sega.

Baseball doesn't market itself near as well as does other sports either. When I was in elementary school, I didn't know anything about the NBA. Now there are four year olds with baby Jordans and Charlotte Hornet jackets. Baseball has only a few players that have national endorsement contracts, one the recently retired Nolan Ryan. Basketball, however, is selling rookies to us as the future of their league. The biggest name in sports right now is Shaquille O'Neal, a player who is only in his second year and often seems like he's more interested in movies and CD's than basketballs.

Baseball isn't even a purely American sport anymore. There are Japanese teams who have reached the level of play once solely achieved by Americans. We're not even always the Olympic favorites to take Olympic gold in our own "national pastime."

Baseball has certainly played an important role in our society. It became ingrained in our society long ago and will always be there. I have nothing against its players or its supporters. I just think it is a joke to still think baseball is the most beloved sport in our country.

It is a splendid game that I will enjoy all my life, but when it comes to excitement, instead of hearing, "Play ball," I'd much rather hear, "Pittsburgh has won the toss...." And if you know anybody with tickets, get back to me.

Courtesy Pittsburgh Steelers

Rod Woodson, All-Pro cornerback of the Pittsburgh Steelers, is the type of exciting player that makes football the national sport.

Dominique sent to no-man's land

Playoff- bound teams make big changes

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

Although it seems like old news, the recent trades in the NBA will certainly play a big role as the NBA comes down to its final regular season showdowns.

As most have heard, Dominique Wilkins of the Atlanta Hawks was traded for Danny Manning of the Los Angeles Clippers. The Clippers received a first round pick from the Hawks as well.

So far things have been working out well for the Hawks. Manning has come to the Peach State and fit in very well to Lenny Wilkins' system. The Hawks were already on top of the Central Division, and this trade will strengthen them even more. Manning is an all around player. He is not as flashy as Dominique but he is better at the little things that will strengthen the Hawks' title contention. The Hawks hope to sign Manning to a long term contract, and with as much winning as they've been doing, it may be very easy for Manning to stay in Atlanta.

The Clippers, on the other hand, were forced to make a deal to strengthen a team that is always a cellar dweller. However, it would be very surprising to see Wilkins stay with this team after his contract runs out. Dominique desperately wants a championship ring on his finger, and the Clippers are going nowhere. He may use the rest of this season to light up the scoreboard however. Trailing David Robinson and Shaquille O'Neal, Wilkins could use the offensive opportunities in L.A to become scoring champ once again. But in the future, look for Wilkins to hook up with a title contender.

The other big trade was between the Utah Jazz and the Philadelphia 76ers. Philly gave up Jeff Hornacek and Sean Green for Jeff Malone and a first round pick. Philadelphia could have managed a better trade than one that brings such a one dimensional player. Philly's pick is going to be late in the first round and they had better make good use of it.

Utah greatly improved themselves by adding a team player like Hornacek. He can shoot the lights out and knows how to win from his days in Phoenix. I have a strong feeling that Karl Malone helped to make this trade and it might push the Jazz forward for a shot at the Western Conference title.

These two trades seem to really help the title contending teams. Atlanta and Utah were looking for the final piece of the puzzle and they may have gotten it. Atlanta seems to be well rounded as a team. Utah however, might still need at least an average center to advance in the playoffs.

On the other hand, the Clippers and the Sixers aren't looking to well. The Clips looked for a quick fix in Wilkins. Someone to just wow the crowds. Philladelphia is looking to lose the crowds.

These clubs had better hope for a great lottery pick or they're going to be looking up from the division cellar for a while.

Question Student Senate discounts

Students reject activity fee hike

by Eric Wilson
News Writer

Clarion University students rejected a proposed five dollar increase in their student activity fee according to an informal Clarion Call survey conducted this week.

Students were also against discounts provided to Student Senators at the Express Shop and University Book Center.

Asked "Do you favor the Student Senate proposal to raise the student activity fee by five dollars?" 80 students said no, 18 said yes and two were undecided.

Asked "Should student senators receive a discount on selected personal items at the Express Shop and Bookstore?" 83 students said no, 15 said yes and two students were undecided.

Katrina Helmick, chair of the student senate appropriations committee, estimates the proposed activity fee increase will generate over 20,000 additional dollars.

According to the 1993-94 Clarion Student Association budget, funded by the activity fee, the top five organizations receiving money are: athletics, receiving $288,834; general administration, $120,000; University Activities Board, $120,000; the Sequelle, $41,000 and the marching/symphony bands at $22,000.

Melissa Gordon, a sophomore elementary education major, is against the five dollar increase, "We don't use all of the activities. It should be optional to the students," she said.

Wendi Platt, a junior communications major, feels she is already paying enough as an out-of-state student. Platt said, "I'm already paying double tuition."

Bob Hinkle, a freshman art major, said, "We don't get our money's worth now."

One student who favored the increase, David Scappo, a sophomore accounting major, said, "There are more organizations that need funding. Enrollment was down."

Students were also asked about the discounts Student Senators receive at the Express Shop and Bookstore. Senators receive 20 percent off on trade books, general supplies, clothing, cards, film developing, emblematic supplies and balloons, according to a paper that was posted on the Group fights campus prejudice

What do Janis Joplin, Adolph Hitler, Julius Caesar, Napeolean Bonaparte, Socrates, Hans Christian Andersen, Leonardo DaVinci, Elton John, David Bowe and approximately one out of ten people in the United States have in common?

Answer: They are gay. (Names are listed in The People's Almanac by David Wallachinski, Irving Wallace and Amy Wallace.)

The typical and usual response to this may be, as Carla Veronesi, a freshman speech pathology major states it, "Well, I don't know any gay people."

Dr. John Ernissee, Professor of Geography and Earth Science, has an insight to this normative response.

"Just because we don't walk around with homosexual written on our forehead, doesn't mean we are not here. We are here, and we deserve and want the rights all straight people have and take for granted."

Dr. Ernissee, who has been "out of the closet" for twenty years took part in a group discussion on March 16 to help people who have not had his success in dealing with their discrimination.

This open-forum discussion was organized by the campus interest group ALLIES, which is an advocacy organization for gay and lesbian rights on campus. The discussion was directed by Dr. Janice Grisby, a counselor at the Campus Counseling Services.

Don't forget the positive of Greeks

Here we go again!

Once again Greek organizations are getting flack for hazing(Call, March 17). I have been a member of a sorority for two years. I have met with my sorority's national officers, attended countless anti-hazing workshops and served as my chapter's president. With all of this experience with the Greek system, I think I am qualified to talk about the issue of hazing.

For those of you that have been living under a rock, hazing is the physical and mental abuse that can occur while pledging an organization. (Not just a Greek organization, but any organization.) Hazing has been declared illegal in most states, and banned by most nationals of fraternities and sororities. That's all fine and dandy, but the truth of the matter is that it doesn't matter how many laws are made, how many fraternities are kicked off campuses, or how many people are killed, hazing is still going to exist.

I don't know what makes me angrier...fraternities and sororities that haze, or new members who put up with it. The whole issue is pretty simple. Fraternities and sororities shouldn't haze, however when they do, pledges should have enough self-respect to stand up to it. Hazing wouldn't exist if organizations didn't have people willing to put up with it. Think about it. . . if XYZ hazed and no one joined them because of it, XYZ would die out because no one would join them. I feel that when people join on organization that hazes, and they put up with that hazing, they are condoning hazing. Maybe they don't mind being hazed. . . that's their individual choice. But if someone made you drink a keg of beer in one hour wouldn't you assume you would get alcohol

To be your voice?

What's another $5, particularly when considered against the background of all the rest of the fees, tuitions, costs, prices and charges associated with a college education?

Well, the answer is that five bucks is five bucks. The increase certainly may be justified when considered against the amount of money the Clarion Students Association lays out each year.

But whether the increase is warranted or not, Student Senate would be well advised to listen to their constiuency, the individuals who put them in their positions in the first place. Student opinion is clearly against the raise, as is indicated by the front page article.

Now the time comes for the Student Senate to truly be the "voice" of the students, for they have surely heard it. For if they have not heard the opinion of the students, then the Senate is woefully out of touch with its constiuency.

If the Senate is going to continue with its motto, "To be your voice, we must hear your voice," then they must certainly own up to the second half of their motto and vote down their proposal for the Activity Fee hike.

Senators have often complained about student apathy. In this instance, the students have spoken. Whether or not the senators believe in the raise, they must be responsible to their constituency and believe in their wisdom.

If they vote against the desires of the students, the senators must be prepared to be evicted from their posts as the representatives of the students.

If the Senate are truly to remain the representatives of the students, it is up to them to maintain contact with the students. It is not the students' responsibility to convey their every thought and desire to the senators.

So, Student Senate, do you really want to be the voice of the students, or do you only want to ram your ideas down the throat of the students, even if you think it's for their own good?

Do you have a voice?

Do you care? Judging from the letters to the editor, very few people do.

Student Senate has proposed a $5 hike in your student activity fee. To date, no one has written to express an opinion (student senators excluded).

Tuition and room and board are going up next semester, not one letter of comment has been recieved by the Call.

Primary season is here, numerous people are running for governor, promising the earth, sun and moon. What is your opinion on their policies and pledges? The Call has no idea, no one has written.

President Clinton and his wife have come under fire for the Whitewater fiasco. Do CUP students have an opinion? Do they smell cover-up? Do they think the whole mess has been blown out of portion? Who knows? No one has submitted any letters on the subject.

Last week the Call contained a pro-life insert. We were ready for letters from both sides of a sensitive issue. Not one letter crossed our desk.

CUP students have recently been arrested for drug possession, DUI, theft and public drunkenness. Do other CUP students care? We haven't heard.

Class pre-registration will soon be here. Classes will be hard to get, sections will be full or closed. Are students worried or angry? We wish we could say, but no one has mentioned it.

The Clarion Call has a letters to the editor section. While we reserve the right to edit, we print all the letters from students we receive.

So come on folks, if you have an opinion, let's hear it.

Take a stand, speak out, complain or just plain piss people off.

Your silence will change nothing. Your words could change the university, the community or the nation.

We'll be waiting. -RLS

National service

Dear Editor,

I thought the students of Clarion University of Pennsylvania would be interested in the national service opportunities created by the recent passage of the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993.

Over thirty years ago I stood with President Kennedy on the south lawn of the White House while we sent the first Peace Corps volunteers overseas. From the very beginning of that international venture, we always looked forward to the day when the idea, spirit, and logic of the Peace Corps would be brought home to serve American families and American communities. That day has now arrived with the creation of Americorps, which over the course of the next three years will challenge roughly 100,000 young people to serve. It is estimated that in the first year of the Americorps program, 20,000 men and women will receive a stipend while becoming eligible for school tuition assistance or loan forgiveness.

We are fortunate in our state to have a prototype of Americorps already up and running called the Pennsylvania Service Corps. The Pennsylvania Service Corps can be contacted at (717)233-8577, and they are currently recruiting volunteers.

For more information about participating in Americorps, please call 1-800-94A-CORP, and for more detailed information about national service, please call my office at (202)224-6324.

Sincerely,

Harris Wofford

Editor's Note: Harris Wofford (D) is the junior United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

Fee raise is helpful

Please note: This letter is a personal opinion and may not reflect the opinion of the entire Student Senate.

As the Appropriations Chair of the Student Senate, I have a very difficult job. I have to make motions that not everyone might like, even if, in the long run, they are helpful to the Student Body. Most recently I had to propose to raise the Activity Fee by 6.25% which is $5.

This was not a decision that was made in a day. Much thought and consideration was put into this by myself, the Appropriations Committee and the Executive Committee of the Student Senate. Pros and Cons were weighed extensively. Our biggest Con was, of course, an increased payment by the students. This was outweighed by what the increase will do for you, the student body. With the additional $20,000+ being generated, we can fund new organizations and possibly increase budgets of the existing organizations. This helps you.

ALL of this money will eventually be sunk back into the groups that you wish to participate in. It will go back into the very paper that you're sitting here reading, into the yearbooks that you will have 10 years from now, or back into the stamps on your I.D. cards that gain you admittance to so many events.

If I could step out of my role as a Senator for a minute and think about the fee being raised by $5 I would only have one thing to say, "If I'm going to pay five dollars more then I'm going to join another club and go to the next sporting event because that's what I'm paying for!!" I sincerely believe that this is how all students should think. You're paying into the fund- TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT!

Now if I could move to another related issue, last week The Clarion Call had an article titled "Fees and Perks" in which Student Senate was criticized for not taking the increase in activity fee to the student body. That is why the motion was tabled for two weeks. The Student Senate office is normally occupied Monday through Friday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. We encourage anyone and everyone to stop by and give us your input on the proposed increase. I'm in the office on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:30 p.m. to 2:45 p.m. and will personally answer any questions you need answered. The Student Senate also has a comment box outside the office for your suggestions.

Another thing in the article was the fact that Student Senators receive 20 percent off at the Bookstore. This does NOT include sale items, greek items, textbooks, graduation supplies...the list goes on. What else is left? Pens, notebooks, and full priced clothing items. (And we know how often we buy those things.)

So, Mr. RLS, before we are criticized further, let's clear something up. Many other state schools pay their senators for their long hours, time and dedication to their student bodies. Would you rather us be on the payroll or allow us to save a few pennies here or there?

Katrina Helmick

Editor's Note: "Fees and Perks" was an editorial run in the March 17 issue and placed on the Opinion page. According to a Student Senate bulletin, Student Senators receive 20 percent discounts on the following items: trade books (Not Text Books), general supplies, clothing, cards, film developing, emblematic supplies, balloons. Student Senators receive a 10 percent discount on: prepackaged food and drinks, and cleaners.

Letters to the Editor should be sent to The Clarion Call, 270 Gemmell Complex, Clarion University of PA, Clarion, PA 16214.

Letters must be signed and include day and evening phone numbers. Letters may be edited for length, clarity, taste and libel.

Involving stolen mascots and statues

Pranks in Texas and Nebraska lead to real trouble

courtesy of
College Press Service

A couple of college pranks in Texas and Nebraska started out to be funny, but turned sour along the way, with university officials threatening one student reporter with disciplinary action if he didn't reveal the names of those involved in an incident.

However, University of Texas-Austin administrators decided not to pursue a Daily Texan reporter who wrote a story about three so-called "Texas Rustlers" who dognapped Texas A&M University's mascot, Reveille VI.

The dog, formerly the only mascot in the Southwest Conference never to be abducted, was taken from outside Texas A&M Cadet Cpl. James Lively's house on Dec. 27. She was returned unharmed when Texas A&M officials announced her abduction, just before Texas A&M met Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

The reporter, Philip VanDerSlice, interviewed the alleged dognappers for a story that piqued the interest of university administrators.

According to a Jan. 31 story in the Daily Texan, VanDerSlice was warned by the Dean of Students Office that he could face disciplinary action if he did not reveal the identity of his sources.

However, Edwin Sharpe, vice president of administration and public affairs at University of Texas-Austin, later said VanDerSlice was not under investigation.

"I will encourage the Dean of Students Office to give proper explanation on that," Sharpe said.

Texas A&M officials said they did not intend to pursue the culprits or file charges.

The Texas Rustlers, whose members number 30-40, wrote an anonymous letter to the Daily Texan, saying they did not feel their actions were criminal. Reveille, the letter said, "was well cared-for and never in danger."

In a separate case, five University of Missouri-Columbia students still face disciplinary action after taking a three-foot-tall statue of Abraham Lincoln from a Lincoln, Neb., sculpture garden, the Daily Nebraskan reported.

Originally, felony charges were filed against the students, all members of the Missouri chapter of the Farmhouse Fraternity.

They were arrested last fall after police saw them carrying the statue through the streets of Lincoln.

In exchange for the charges being dropped, the men will have to pay $15,000 in court costs and restitution, including the costs of repairing the statue, which had to be pried from its secured spot, perform 80 hours of community service, have to maintain good grades and complete a course "to enhance their appreciation of the role of art in society," the newspaper said.

poisoning?

As the argument against Greeks go, "People don't know they are going to be haze." "They just want to belong." Yeah, whatever. But personally I know that if someone told me to kiss their feet, I would fill them in on what they could do with their feet.

I would also like to address all of the negative publicity Greeks get. I resent the fact that good Greek organizations are being sent down the river just because they have Greek letters in their name.

Believe it or not Greeks do good things! I welcome anyone to look at how many hours of community service every Greek organization puts in. One sorority on this campus put in almost 700 hours, that's a little over two weeks. . . 14 days. Not counting sleeping, eating, classes, etc. Greeks are active in adopt-a-highway clean-ups, food drives for the needy, rape crisis counseling, AIDS research money drives, the United Way, I think you get the picture.

You don't need to look any further than the White House to see Greeks in action.

President Clinton was in a fraternity, and for all of you straight-lined Republicans, former President Bush became the president of his fraternity before he became the President of the United States. Look at Clarion. . . the Vice-President of Student Senate is Greek, not to mention many RAs, organization presidents and the editor of this newspaper who are Greek.

Leaders are born out of the Greek system not killed. Look at corporate America, Greeks are there. . . Gee, for something that is described as being useless and stupid, the Greek system has some pretty impressive alumni.

Back to hazing...yes it is here on the Clarion campus but no law is going to stop it from happening. The only thing that can stop hazing is you. By telling the InterFraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council, or by pledging only those who simply say no to hazing.

$1,000 Scholarship

A $1,000 scholarship is available for a CUP student who will be a senior next year. The scholarship is sponsored by Trout Unlimited and is based upon the applicant's interest and activities in the area of cold water resource conservation and academic performance. Application forms are available from Dr. Terry Morrow in room 242 Peirce. Application deadline is April 15th.

Students reject fee hike

Student Senate bulletin board. Student Senate members receive ten percent off on cleaners and prepackaged food and drinks, said the bulletin.

Student Senators do not receive discounts on text books, computers, software, greek items, drugs, cosmetics, graduation supplies, music, collector cards, flowers, specials in the express shop, faxes, video rentals, laminating, UPS, resume preparation, any special order items, any custom clothing or printing, or magazines.

"It's wrong for them (student senators) to do it (take the discount). We're students the same as them," said freshman molecular biology major Mark Talton.

Allen Curry, a freshman/sociology major, agreed, saying, "They're no different from the rest of us."

"What makes them so special?" asked senior communication major Christin Mihon.

"They do not do anything," said Mike Hoft, an undecided freshman, "I worked there and they were always on lunch breaks."

One student who favored the discounts, Harold Kline, an undecided freshman, said, "If I worked there, I would want it."

Student Senate will conduct a final vote on the activity fee hike at next Monday's meeting.

While there has been no discussion of Student Senate giving up the discounts, Student Senate President Brian Hoover told the Call if he saw a lot of student opposition to the discounts, he would recommend to the Senate the discount be discontinued.

Faculty Senate to vote on Monday

Proposal could implement changes in General Education, check sheet

By Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

In an effort to revise the General Education Requirements that were last introduced in the 1975-76 academic year, Faculty Senate will vote on a proposal this Monday night that will redefine what the list of requirements for a general education at Clarion University should cover.

In the introduction of the proposal drawn up by Faculty Senate concerning General Education reforms it is stated that, "organizations such as the National Institute of Education, the Association of American Colleges, the National Endowment for the Humanities, have made statements regarding the purposes, content, and outcomes of General Education," states the proposal.

In the national dialogue included in the proposal, beliefs that are clearly held common include: "The need of greater emphasis on liberal studies; the recognition that certain fundamental skills — especially reading, writing, speaking, and mathematics skills — are basic to students as tools for analysis, synthesis, and creation of ideas in the content areas of General Education and beyond in their majors; the recognition that General Education should be a total baccalaureate experience for students with both an integrity of its own and a need to be integrated ultimately with the major; the understanding that reform of General Education is an on-going process."

The proposal that Faculty Senate has drawn up is intended to start to acknowledge the particular needs of students that attend Clarion University. According to the proposal they are:

"1. The need of students to understand the purposes of General Education and, indeed, the purposes of higher education itself.

2. The need of students to graduate from the university with useful intellectual skills that transcend the boundaries of a particular course or even a specific course of study or major.

3. The need of students to have and to exercise meaningful choice in the selection of courses in General Education in order to broaden their intellectual and personal knowledge outside the major.

4. The need of students to engage the resources of the university to assist in their personal development.

5. The need of students to become more cosmopolitan in experience and outlook as they enter the next century."

The present general education program "is a choice-oriented program with two overt requirements (ENG 111 and HPE 111) and a series of distribution categories that give a focus to course selections. The program requires forty-eight credit hours before graduation," according to the General Education Requirements proposal drawn up by Faculty Senate.

Responding to the need for review of General Education, in 1986 the Faculty Senate directed the Subcommittee on General Education to develop an in-depth Statement of Philosophy on General Education.

According to the proposal "the Faculty Senate's charge to the Subcommittee on General Education was affirmed by the one hundred and thirty-four participants in the Strategic Planning/Goal Setting

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of March 14 through March 20.

A report of a vehicle being damaged by a hit and run driver occurred after a parked vehicle was struck on the driver's door, causing extensive damage to the door on March 16. This happened on the service road leading to Wilkinson Hall between the hours of 1:00 and 1:30 p.m.

An unknown male person was walking on the sidewalk between Egbert and Moore Halls at approximately 10:15 p.m. on March 16, when an alleged male jumped out of the bushes and demanded money. When a third person appeared on the scene, the alleged actor departed the scene without incident. This investigation is limited due to the lack of substantial information.

At approximately 8:15 p.m. on March 18 an 18-year-old male student was cited for possesion of alcohol when observed carrying a six pack and a 40 oz. bottle of beer.

On March 19 a report of criminal mischief and theft was received by Public Safety. This incident occurred in the Hart Chapel when one microphone was reported stolen and another microphone damaged. Total value $1,000.00 The report was received at approximately 7:10 p.m.

A vending machine was opened in Campbell Hall and some of the contents were removed. After conducting an investigation, three male students will be charged with criminal mischief.

On March 20 a student reported damage to the passenger side of his vehicle. It appeared the door was kicked causing the dent. This happened in parking lot "J."

A student from Ralston Hall reported that someone tore some pictures which were on the outside of his door. Also wrote obscene words on the door with a red marking pencil. Under investigation.

A stolen sign was recovered from a students room in Ralston Hall. The sign was taken from Gemmell. Under investigation.

The library staff reported that an unknown person wrote on the toilet seat in the first floor women's rest room with a red marking pencil, the words, "DANCE FREE." Inscriptions were also written on the third floor woman's rest room.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

National service gears up for college students, and others

By Harry Straight
College Press Service

"Uncle Sam wants you. Earn credit for college tuition while serving your country."

If those words conjure up images of boot camps, baggy green fatigues and 10-mile hikes with a 50-pound pack on your back, think again.

This isn't a recruitment message for the U.S. Armed Forces; it's an invitation from President Bill Clinton to get involved in grassroots community service.

The service program that Clinton signed into law last year is becoming reality this year.

Through the newly formed AmeriCorps program, the Corporation for National and Community Service plans to offer $150 million in federal grants in 1994 to community service programs in all 50 states.

For a year's worth of service, as many as 20,000 participants can recieve a small salary, roughly $8,000 annually, basic health care coverage, child-care support if needed, and $4,725 in educational benefits.

The program also will repay student loan interest during the service and is open to any U.S. citizen 17 or older.

If everything goes as planned, AmeriCorps will ensure a domestic service program that will surpass the Peace Corps at its height of popularity, according to Clinton's advisers.

The Peace Corps currently has about 6,000 members in worldwide service now.

"The Peace Corps was never more than 16,000, yet it had such a dramatic influence on America's perception of itself.

We hope that we will do as good a job as the Peace Corps and have the same impact," said Rick Allen, the program's senior adviser and a deputy assistant to President Clinton.

During his campaign, Clinton made a strong push for AmeriCorps, which became law last September when he signed the National and Community Service Trust Act. Although AmeriCorps isn't as big as Clinton and his supporters hoped it would be at first, there are plans to double the funding to $300 million in 1995, $500 million in 1996 and $700 million in 1997, which would allow more people to take part.

"For a year's worth of service, as many as 20,000 participants can receive a small salary, roughly $8,000 annually, and $4,275 in educational benefits.

- Rick Allen, Deputy Assistant to President Clinton

However, those figures are not certain since programs and funding must be justified through the congressional appropriations process every year.

At the bill signing, Clinton said he hoped that "national service will remain throughout the life of America not as a series of promises, but a series of challenges, across all the generations and all walks of life to help push to rebuild our troubled but wonderful land."

Since then, AmeriCorps has been working on the details for putting the programs in place.

"Summer programs should be up and running by June with full-scale operations in place by the fall," Allen said.

The kind of work available to participants will be limited only by the imagination of the service agencies that win grants.

Participants could find themselves tutoring inner-city kids, building parks and recreation facilities, helping immunize children in rural areas, repairing homes for the elderly, delivering food to shut-ins - in short just about any kind of community service.

"When we ask for grant applications we're going to be looking at the quality of the idea. Is it going to make a real difference?

Getting things done in the community is the principal criteria.

We want to know how it will make things better, and how do you measure that?" Allen said.

Several successful ideas came out of a pilot program last summer called the Summer of Service, which engaged 1,500 young people in 16 different community service projects in 12 different cities.

"Boston's City Year is in many ways the closest national model to the type of experience the president has been interested in providing national services," Allen said.

Started three years ago by two Harvard Law School graduates, the project consists of teams of volunteers made up of young people from widely diverse backgrounds.

Advisory Council evaluates President Reinhard's reports

By Laura Schurer
Contributing Writer

President Reinhard has provided the goals and progress report for the period of 9-91 through 12-92.

Reinhard informed the President's Faculty Advisory Council of her reaction to the final report submitted to her by the Enrollment Management Committee (EMC).

According to Reinhard the Enrollment Management Committee "is a committee that has been recommended to be founded by the Special Planning Committee. It deals with all issues of covering admissions and retentions that relate to enrollment. However, she stated, it is a broad subject and it does not just deal with admissions."

Reinhard said that she found "the majority of the EMC's recommendation to be sound." However, Reinhard asked for several points to be re-examined.

First, in the area of total enrollment targets, Reinhard believes the EMC's proposed enrollment bands to be too low.

She is confident that "efficient scheduling" of our facilities will allow us to function comfortably at the upper-limits of the bands and perhaps beyond without the need for additional facilities."

Reinhard stressed that total enrollment will be a significant factor in the allocation of state appropriations, and "Clarion University cannot afford to be losing additional resources."

She also pointed out that Clarion University continues to have a fairly low student-faculty ratio which is approximatley 18.3 to one.

Reinhard suggested that the enrollment of each graduate program be reviewed as it compares to other programs in the same discipline.

On the subject of Program Limitations, Reinhard suggested global programmatic limitations because it is important for Clarion to remain a comprehensive university.

"Global Progmmatic limitations are a combination of programs so there is not an imbalance of small programs on campus. For example, it wouldn't be good for Clarion's professional programs if students were only enrolled in Business and not Arts and Sciences.

There has to be a combination of programs," Reinhard said.

According to Reinhard, this requires that "...we do not have an imbalance of enrollment in any one area."

A potential problem might be in the area of education. "

For example, said Reinhard, no more than 305 of the total student population at Clarion University will be engaged in education related programs.

Reinhard's fourth point concerns out-of-State Enrollment Targets.

The state system is urging universities to have no more than 10 percent of students be out of state.

This figure does not include international students.

Clarion's ratio of out of state students is 262 or 4.4 percent.

A planning team reviewing Clarion International program might "recommend using current resources to reduce tuition costs for a larger number of international students rather than waiving tuition entirely for a smaller number in order to increase international student attendance at Clarion," said Reinhard. Too much emphasis on SAT scores for admission was also cautioned against by President Reinhard.

Her recruitment priorities include increasing recruitment of students who have taken a full schedule of college preparatory courses, increasing the proportion of regular admittance students, and slightly decreasing the number of special admittance students.

Correction

In the March 17 edition of the Clarion Call a story incorrectly labeled the participation of three students in the alleged theft of compact discs from Jamesway Department Store in Clarion Township.

Michael John Ammann, 18, of Nair Hall, CUP, Clarion/Greenville allegedly opened five CD cases and placed the contents of the packages in his shirt.

Robert John Hinkle, 19, of Nair Hall/Wellsboro, also a defendant, allegedly told police Thomas William Tanner, 18, of Nair Hall/Pittsburgh and he attempted to get Ammann to put the items back, but that he declined to do so.

The Clarion Call regrets the error.

General Education

(Cont. from pg. 5)

Conference in the spring of 1991 in these terms: By fall 1992, the General Education Subcommittee shall present through the Committee on Courses and Programs of Study to the Faculty Senate an implementaion statement for the General Education Program, and, if approved, begin implementation no later than Fall 1994."

The Conference devised a six point rationale for it's statement of the General Education Program.

It is, according to the proposal, as follows: "1. Lengthy deliberation has devoted to the articulation and approval of General Education goals at Clarion: it is now time for action.

2. Students will be better enabled to develop and integrate skills in problem-solving, decision-making, writing, speaking, and viewing and listening.]

3. Students will be enabled to better understand and respect their own heritage and values and those of others in a world of increasing diversity.

4. The public will continue to expect more of college graduates in terms of analytical, mathematical, oral, and written communication and critical thinking skills.

5. The skills, knowledge and values developed by students in the General Education Program are clearly applicable to their academic, professional, and personal lives.

6. Numerous national reports have noted the erosion of the liberal education component of the university curriculum in favor of the major and professional preparation.

This is happening at Clarion as well. Furthermore, the students need an opportunity to develop basic academic skills, to be exposed to the breadth of human intellectual achievement, to be in contact with the contributions of some of the great minds of world culture, to be asked to engage in critical and integrative thinking, to have the opportunity to explore personal interests beyond the confines of a major or career choice, and have an opportunity to gain the wisdom and guidance of several millennia of human efforts to answer major existential questions, such as "who am I?" and "what kind of person do I want to be?"

Dr. Brian Dunn, Chair of Committee on Course and Program Studies, said "The General Education Proposal will attempt to readdress a general education plan that is now about 20 years old.

What it will require of both students and faculty is to investigate ways in which disciplines are related to one another.

For example, he stated, History is one of the other disciplines within the Social Sciences and related to other disciplines like Humanities and Natural Sciences.

The program will also ensure that students have more writing experience," Dunn added.

If adopted, the program will not affect students currently enrolled, only students who enroll after fall 1994.

IMF, Russia sign loan agreement

Russia and the International Monetary Fund signed an agreement late Tuesday paving the way for a $1.5 billion loan that bolsters Prime Minister Boris Yeltsin's reform efforts.

The accord was a vote of confidence in the government's planned economic reforms, and Moscow officials said it could lead to billions more in credit and loans.

The government's commitment to reform had been questioned after the departure of top reformers in January following the strong showing by nationalists and hardliners in parliamentary elections.

The loan had been hung up for months while International Monetary Fund officials scrutinized the government's 1994 plans.

French youths continue protests

Youths in cities across France kept up protests against a law that took effect Tuesday allowing employers to pay recent graduates less than the minimum wage.

In a sign that the nearly week-long protests to the law were spreading, demonstrations broke out for the first time in dozens of smaller cities and towns.

The protests Tuesday were largely peaceful, except for violent clashes with police in Lyon.

Emboldened by success in local elections Sunday, the conservative government put the law into effect despite backing down on some aspects after protests broke out nationwide last week.

The law, which is aimed at fighting high unemployment, allows employers to pay recent high school graduates who have no added training 80 percent of the minimum wage for a year if they also receive some sort of instruction.

Lawyer talks of murders by client

With self-confessed loathing, Naperville lawyer Kathleen Zellner became the keeper of the secrets of a serial killer.

They were secrets that Larry Eyler, a death row inmate convicted of murder, could have taken with him to the grave when he died March 6 of complications from acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS)in the infirmary at the Pontiac Correctional Center.

That might have been the end of the story.

Instead, it was just the beginning.

Two days after Eyler died, Zellner called an unprecedented news conference.

Under the glare of camera lights, she did what she had wanted to do all along.

Zeller told the killer's tale, a saga that involved the murders of 21 young men and boys.

After years of agonizing silence, she revealed the appalling truth that long had eluded the victims' families.

Eyler, though never convicted of those killings, had confessed full responsibility of the killings that took place.

Drug is hope for cancer patients

A new study offers the best evidence yet that a powerful anti-cancer drug may cure some people with spreading tumors of the kidney and skin who otherwise would probably die within months, researchers say.

The findings also suggest that researchers are on the right track in fighting some cancers by boosting the body's immunity rather than attacking tumors directly with surgery, radiation or chemotherapy.

Jury seated in Amish slaying trial

A jury of six men and six women was seated Tuesday for the trial of an Amish man charged with killing his wife.

Two alternate jurors also were selected.

Opening arguments in the trial are scheduled at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Crawford County Court.

Edward Gingerich was arrested March 18, 1993, walking down a country road carrying his 3-year-old daughter and leading his 4-year-old son by the hand.

Behind him, in his Crawford County farmhouse, lay the body of his wife, Katie, who had been beaten to death and gutted like a deer.

Gingerich, of Rockdale Township, has a history of mental problems and his attorney plans an insanity defense.

To back up the insanity plea, the defense is expected to argue Gingerich was affected by fumes he inhaled accidentally. The workroom where he used solvents was not ventilated, neighbors said.

Violence among the Amish is extremely rare.

Two ordered to trial in donor beating

Two men were ordered held for trial Tuesday on charges they killed William Michael Lucas, whose heart and liver were transplanted into Gov. Robert Casey.

District Justice Joseph Dalfonso ordered Michael McCain, 27, of Uniontown and Timothy Taylor, 23, of Masontown will stand trial and face a prelimanary hearing.

Using a condom during sex doesn't necessarily mean you and your partner will be protected from disease, according to recent studies.

Tests of 20,000 condoms show important differences among various brands in protection from sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, said the Mariposa Foundation, which conducts independent research on human sexuality and sexually transmitted diseases.

"Currently, consumers in the U.S. can obtain more information and data about the performance of a refigerator than they can about a condom," the foundation said in a news release.

Mariposa recently conducted a second testing of condoms to test viral leakage as a follow-up to an earlier study sponsored by the foundation, the University of California-Los Angeles and the University of Southern California.

In the first study, 31 kinds of condoms were tested to see which afforded the greatest protection against STDs and HIV-1. The brands that provided the greatest protection were Mentor (which is on longer being sold), Ramses Non-Lube, Ramses Sensitol, Gold Circle Coin, Gold Circle and Sheik Elite. The brands showing the highest leakage were Contracept Plus, which came in at 31st, Trojan Ribbed (30th), Trojan Naturalube Ribbed (29th) and LifeStyles Nuda (28th).

About 20,000 condoms were used in the first test, which measured how susceptible latex condoms were to leakage of viral fluid after simulating the stress of sex for five minutes on a coital simulator. About 1,000 condoms were used in the follow-up test.

Student Services, Inc. 6124 North Milwaukee Avenue • Chicago, Il 60646

How is STUDENT SERVICES, Inc. Different from a Financial Aid Office?

STUDENT SERVICES, Inc. specializes in private sector funding from corporations, memorials, trusts, foundations, religious groups, and many other philanthropic organizations.
As state and federal funding sources continue to face serious cutbacks, private sector funding is expected to grow even faster than in the past.

STUDENT SERVICES, Inc. has current, up-to-date information that provides an intelligent alternative to traditional state and federal funding sources at the very least, they represent a significant supplement to government funding.

1994 Clarion University Women's Conference:

Feminist comic Reno to speak at conference

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

The "feminist comic" will make her appearance at Clarion University's 11th Annual Women's Conference on Friday, March 25 at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room.

Reno is a comedienne, actress and writer who resides and works in New York City. During the winter of 1991, she made her debut film "The Hard Way" with Michael J. Fox. She also completed a North American tour of her one-woman show, "Reno Once Removed" after it premiered at the Lincoln Center at the Serious Fun! Festival and received rave reviews.

An intellectual performer, Reno traditionally speaks about female topics, intimacy, the political process and much more.

Reno is currently the voice of Edith's shrink on the animated ABC series "Edith Ann." Her latest project includes a series of short spots for HBO Downtown called "Character Defects" to be shown on Comedy Central's Short Attention Span Theater.

Reno's performance is free to conference registrants and Clarion University students with a valid student ID; tickets for others will be sold at the door. Pre-registration is available through the Continuing Education in the Carrier Administration Building. For further details call 226-2227.

This year's Women's Conference theme is "Bridges and and Barriers: The Politics of Identity." The conference will take place Friday, March 25 and Saturday, March 26 in the Gemmell Student Complex.

"A Question of Color" to be presented

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

This year's keynote speaker at the 11th Annual Clarion University Women's Conference will be filmmaker Kathe Sandler.

Sandler will present a one-hour documentary called "A Question of Color" at 10:45 a.m. following the workshops on Saturday, March 26. The film will explore attitudes about skin color, hair texture and facial features in the African-American community.

Kathe Sandler will be the Keynote Speaker for the Women's Conference, where she will present, "A Question of Color."

It also considers market differences in the social attitudes towards various shades of skin color. The film received rave reviews at New York City's Film Forum.

In order for her to tell the story, Sandler spent several years filming interviews with African-American women and men of all age groups and class backgrounds in the Northeast and South. She also used her own experiences as part of the film's theme.

"A Question of Color" is relevant to anyone who has ever felt misjudged or has judged another's looks as inappropriate. The film was aired nationally over public television during the month of February.

Sandler's first film was "Remembering Thelma," which was screened at the 1982 New York Film Festival and won the Best Biography of a Dance Artist Award at the 1982 Dance Film and Video Festival at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

Sandler directed her first dramatic work on videotape through the American Film Institute's Directing Workshop for Women. The production, titled "The Friends," is a half-hour representation of Rosa Guy's award-winning novel.

Currently, Kathe Sandler is at work with her husband, Luke Charles Harris, a professor, race-relations scholar and co-writer of "Question." The book is about "color consciousness" in Black America and the experience of making her second documentary film.

Following the film and luncheon on Saturday, Sandler will deliver a keynote address followed by discussion groups. A wrap-up by Sandler will conclude the events at Gemmell.

Concluding the Women's Conference will be a reception at President Diane Reinhard's home in Moore Hall. The African-American Quilters Guild of Pittsburgh will be featured at the reception.

Friday's events are free and open to the public. Reno's performance is free for Women's Conference registrants and students with a valid ID.

Registration for Saturday's events is available at the door: $30 for general public and $15 for students and senior citizens.

Treat yourself to the Fourth Annual Wellness Fair

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

Spring is here! After all those snow-filled months of sitting on the couch in front of the TV, it's time to get back into shape. The fourth annual "Wellness Fair" will be in Tippin Gymnasium on Thursday, April 14 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to give some tips on how to shape up.

Wellness has become one of the main focuses of public health in the United States. Defined, it entails "the state of being that can be achieved through the balance and integration of diverse aspects of one's life." These aspects break into seven different parts: the physical, social, emotional, intellectual, occupational, spiritual and environmental.

Each of these aspects contribute greatly in finding an advantageous balance for one's well-being. One's physical-being involves encouraging cardiovascular flexibility and strength and maintaining physical activity. Many vendors will be at the fair to advise healthy ways to develop this area: Clarion Hospital, the American Cancer Society, the American Lung Association, DuBois Regional Medical Center diabetic clinic, Clarion/Forest VNA and High Gear, to name a few.

The social-being includes stimulating contributions to one's human and physical environment in the interest of one's community. The Area Agency on Aging and Murphy Grange will assist in this area.

Emotional well-being means to find awareness and acceptance of one's own feelings. The Clarion County Department of Human Resources, Clarion Drug and Alcohol Authority, Clarion AIDS Network, P.R.O.U.D. and the Department of Counseling Services will be some of the organizations present to aid in this knowledge.

Clarion University Book Center employees and Clarion University nursing students will exhibit the importance of creating and stimulating mental activities for a useful intellectual-being.

TIAA-CREF retirement information and Clarion University Career Services will show how to prepare a content occupational balance, and to gain personal satisfaction and enrichment through work.

Clarion University United Campus Ministry will assist in developing one's spiritual-being and the purpose of human existence.

Lastly, the Department of Environmental Resources, Clarion Conservation District and the Allegheny Valley Trails Association will show the emphasis in preserving harmony and protecting our environment.

The fair will feature more hands-on demonstrations than it has in the past three years to show people how to spice up their health. "Music Therapist" will be presented by Syndrai Lowe from 11:00-11:45 a.m.

"Acupuncture" will be demonstrated by James Reilly, a Pennsylvania certified acupuncturist and athletic trainer, from noon-12:45 p.m. Acupuncture's theory follows "that stimulation by needle insertion enables the body to release energetic blockages, improving overall health and relieving many symptoms of stress."

From 1:00-1:45 p.m., Mary Reed, iridologist and herbalist, will demonstrate "Iridology." This entails a "study of the iris of the eye to indicate mineral and vitamin deficiencies, body weakness and toxin levels."

From 2:00-2:45 p.m., "T'ai Chi" will be demonstrated by Edward Matthews, director and founder of "Body Awareness — active relaxation" in Erie, Pennsylvania.

To wrap things up, June Rice, an M.A. in counseling at Slippery Rock University and certified massage therapist, will present "Humor as Healing." Rice will tell how to use humor to battle stressful situations and also how to "mind talk" and "let the little stuff slide."

Dr. Diane L. Reinhard will open the fair at 10 a.m., followed by the keynote address with Syndria Lowe. The fair is open and free to the public and Clarion students. Come explore how to give your body a healthy rest.

Mixed media sculpture exhibit at Sanford Gallery

by Lisa Ewing
Lifestyles Writer

At the Sanford Gallery in the Marwick-Boyd Fine Arts Building, an East Indian artist will proudly display her works. Indira Freitas Johnson will display female forms in mixed media large and small clayworks until March 25. She currently has works in public collections in Illinois, Arkansas, Georgia, Wisconsin and Bombay, India.

In 1965, Johnson came to the United States from Bombay (where she was born), at the age of 21. Her father had urged her to study advertising design at Sir J.J. Institute of Applied Art in Bombay, but she chose to study at the Art Institute of Chicago.

Johnson sculpts mostly the female form, evoking emotions in the artforms which are inspired by her personal history and feelings. Her sculptures tend to portray the universal struggle of women. They include painted torsos and wheeled female carts which convey a story about her.

She states, "Indian philosophy believes that the body is a shrine for the spirit, encompassing a balance of natural elements and forces. I draw from the traditional ancient symbol of the earth mother to create a female form that celebrates the spirit that survives its overwhelming odds. My intention is to present attributions of strength and tenderness, power and compassion."

This helps explain why the wheel persists in her art, it symbolizes the stage of transition. She claims it is also "the act of pursuing the center."

Johnson is one of six daughters and has a family history of overcoming the underlying social bias for women and their careers. She has organized the Shanti Foundation for Peace, a not-for-profit organization geared to making peace a reality.

The exhibit is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday and Wednesday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Tuesday, 11 a.m. - 8 p.m.; Thursday, 9 a.m. - 2 p.m.; and Friday 10 a.m. - noon. This exhibit is a feature of the 1994 Women's Conference.

With spring comes more friendly competition

by Carrie Lengauer
Lifestyles Writer

Spring is in the air, and so is an annual spring event. On April 8, fraternity and sorority members will come out of hibernation for the kick-off of Greek Week '94.

"The only thing that's different this year," says Tina Plankenhorn, the Greek Week Coordinator for Panhellenic Council, "is that softball has been added at the end of the week." Softball will be an exhibition event this year, and if it appeals to Greeks, next year's coordinators will add it permanently to the lineup.

Other events continue this year much as they have in the past. Greeks will ring forth their best effort at Greek Sing on Friday, April 8 at 7:00 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium.

Saturday, April 9 promises to be an action-packed day, with the long-distance run in the morning, followed by Olympics in the afternoon. At Olympics, friendly competition prevails as Greeks undertake the tasks of rope pull, relay races, barrel and chariot races. Olympics will be April 10 if rain cancels Saturday's events.

Greeks will take to the volleyball courts Monday, April 11, and banners will be judged that day, also. The Greeks will dive into the pool Tuesday, April 12.

But the week isn't all sporting events. Greek Bowl on Wednesday, April 13 will challenge the minds of competitors with general knowledge and Greek-life questions. Grade-point averages and community service hours also factor in the final results.

Men will test their strength on Thursday, April 14 in a weightlifting competition, and the events wrap up Saturday with Softball.

The first-place finisher in each event receives an award, and the top three finishers are awarded points. These points add up during the week, and the Greek community honors the overall winners at a banquet.

A committee made up of Greek Week chairpeople from each sorority and fraternity meets weekly to plan and execute the events. They coordinate the events and enforce the rules. This committee defines the purpose of Greek Week ". . . to improve interfraternal cooperation and to enhance the relationship between fraternity and sorority systems and the campus and local community."

To promote this spirit of togetherness, the committee selected "United We Stand, Divided We Fall" as this year's theme.

*As of this printing, dates and times for all events except Greek Sing are tentative. They will be finalized and posted by next week.

Hike for Humanity aids homeless victims

by Judy Bashline
Contributing Writer

Habitat for Humanity is issuing a "Challenge of Awareness" to all students, organizations, faculty and employees on campus and residents in the community. Habitat wants people to become aware of the homeless situation in the Clarion area and do something about it.

Habitat for Humanity does not have enough money to build a house, yet. Instead, the group improves inadequate housing, including facilities for the handicapped. The people that receive the help are encouraged to help physically or financially, if possible.

This organization also helps the homeless, known in Clarion County as the "hidden homeless." This means individuals and families are living with relatives or friends, with sometimes up to (or exceeding) six people in a bedroom. Many other people live in cars, crude shelters or garages in rural areas where no one knows they exist.

People become homeless for a variety of reasons, most of which are beyond their control. Together, as a group, Habitat for Humanity can make some changes in these situations.

Sponsors are requested to help a walker for "Hike for Humanity," by supporting them with a pledge for each mile he or she walks on Saturday, April 16 at noon. Anyone can sponsor, including business and individuals.

The hike will cover about five miles around Clarion, starting at the Gemmell Student Complex. All participants must pre-register by stopping at United Campus Ministry, 267 Gemmell, for a pledge form, or by calling Lynn Haraldson at 226-2711. With campus and community involvement, more projects can be completed this year to help the homeless.

Registration assistance will be provided by Alpha Phi Omega at 11:30 a.m. before the walk. At the halfway point of the hike will be a drink station, contributed by the Returning Adults and Commuting Students (RACS) organization. RACS will also sponsor a walker. Refreshments will be served at the end of the walk. A rain date is scheduled for April 23.

Scientific study reveals what worms do best

Mutant constipated worms. It's a topic we all THINK about a lot; but what do we really KNOW about it?

The answer, I am pleased to report, is: more every day, thanks to the efforts of a professor named Jim Thomas in the Genetics Department of the University of Washington in Seattle. Thomas has an entire, laboratory devoted to studying irregularity in worms. He is the world's leading authority on this topic. I say this with no small amount of pride, because he graduated from my alma mater, Haverford College (motto: "Small, But Weird").

I learned of Thomas' work through one of his alert graduate students, Creg Darby, who sent me a lengthy scientific paper that Thomas had written. In an accompanying letter, Creg wrote: "Notice that Jim was not merely content to describe how worms poop. Oh no. We geneticists are a twisted lot, because we LOVE mutants, so Jim went and zapped worms with nasty chemicals to make MUTANT WORMS THAT ARE CONSTIPATED. Really, it's all there in the paper. I know you can't understand most of it, so I have highlighted the word 'constipated.'"

Creg, who is not afraid to use capitalization for desired emphasis, added that "JIM'S RESEARCH IS FUNDED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT! HE IS SPENDING TENS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS OF TAXPAYERS' MONEY TO MAKE CONSTIPATED WORMS!!!"

Let me state that, as a taxpayer, I would much rather see my tax money spent on mutant constipated worms than on the Senate Judiciary Committee. Not that there is such a huge difference.

But as a journalist, I feel a fundamental responsibility to you, the public, to check out stories that involve the use of your tax money for scientific projects in cities that have good microbrewery beer. So I went to Seattle.

Thomas' office is located in the university's Health Sciences Building, which is very scientific. I say this because of the bulletin boards. Back in the '60s, when I was in college, our bulletin boards were covered with announcements of festive social events such as dances, concerts and the violent overthrow of the U.S. government. Whereas the first bulletin board I saw in the Health Sciences Building had the following announcement posted on it: "A KERATIN 14 MUTATIONAL HOT SPOT FOR EPIDERMOLYSIS BULLOSA SIMPLEX-DOWLING-MEARA."

I wasn't sure that it was medically safe for a layperson to even LOOK at these words, so I scurried on up to Jim Thomas' laboratory. It was cluttered with scientific items such as petri dishes, beakers, test tubes, radioactivity warnings, deadly chemicals and graduate students eating their lunch. I did not immediately see any worms; Professor Thomas explained that the ones he studies, called Caenorhabditis elegans, are only one millimeter long. (To give yourself an idea how long that is, hold your thumb and forefinger one millimeter apart.)

A LOT of scientists study these worms. They (the scientists) even have their own magazine, and the regular report begins: "Almost all worm people in Japan assembled in Sendai on 29th November . . ."

Jim Thomas loves his worms.

"We think they are the coolest organisms in the world," he told me, and his corps of graduate students nodded in proud agreement.

What makes these worms especially cool for constipation studies is (1) You can see right through them, and (2) They poop every 45 seconds. I know this because I saw them myself. First Thomas showed me a videotape of one of them in action.

"OK, watch this," he said, as the worm contracted itself. "He's getting ready . . ."

The worm made a sudden motion.

"POOP!" said Thomas, thrusting his fist forward in a football-fan-like gesture of triumph.

Next Thomas led me to a microscope, where I saw some live worm action. Basically what these worms do all the time is crawl around in dishes full of food, eating, pooping and having sex. It is guy heaven. All they need is tiny TVs with remote controls.

The male worms, by the way, are total sex fiends. They try to do it with everything they bump into, including other males. Sometimes they try to mate with their OWN HEADS (a graduate student told me this is called "wanking").

I also looked at some mutant constipated worms, who were bloated and definitely not as lively. They remended me of people in laxative commercials.

PHARMASIST WORM: You don't look so good today, Ed. Is it . . . irregularity?

CUSTOMER WORM: You said it, Mr. Feemley! I haven't pooped in over 90 seconds!

I asked Jim Thomas if there was any possibility that his research would ever, in a zillion years, have any practical benefits for humans. He couldn't think of any offhand, but he allowed that it might conceivably be possible.

That is good enough for me. I'm glad that we're funding this research. In fact, I would strongly support spending more money in this area, as well as any scientific endeavor that has the potential to benefit mankind. And here I am thinking of the microbreweries.

Recall your past life experiences with Klicker

by Anji Brown
Assistant Lifestyles Editor

Are you one of the 30 percent of Americans that believe in reincarnation? If so, come to Ralph Klicker's presentation of "Have you lived before: Recalling Past Lives" on Tuesday, April 12 at 8 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room.

Ralph Klicker has been active in the study of death since the 1970's. He has had experience working with terminally ill patients, counseling grieving survivors, and caring for deceased individuals in the Mortuary Science Area. Klicker is a certified hypnotherapist, holds a B.S. degree in Counseling, owns a M.S. in education, and has doctoral work in both areas.

Klicker's presentation of "Recalling Past Lives" will entail a lecture and discussion, an actual past-life regression, and then a sharing of these experiences with the audience.

The lecture will cover these following topics: Historical beliefs, Present day concepts, Documented proof, How do dreams and deja vu fit, Techniques for remembering can be useful, and Examples of people who have remembered past lives.

The actual past- life regression begins with recalling memories of previous lifetimes we may have lived. Ten to twenty people, acting as the focus group will be asked to come on stage. The focus group, along with the entire audience will experience Klicker's unique combination of deep relaxation, guided imagery, and focused concentration. This releases hidden memories stored in the subconscious mind, making the participants return to times in their previous lives. They are then guided by questions that will help them discover their former name, occupation, location, date, special relationships, and how these affected their present life.

The third part of the presentation starts with the focus group on stage retelling what they experienced and ends with volunteers from the audience sharing their experience.

ALLIES fight for homosexual rights

Wright, sophomore Elementary Education major, lead the discussion.

Mercurio and Wright began the meeting by telling their own experiences of being discriminated against. Other audience members joined in with stories of physical beatings, verbal harassments, family shunnings, housing discrimination, and loss of careers and friends.

"We can't change the whole world," said Wright. "But we can try to make a difference here at Clarion."

An audience member who wished to remain anonymous commented about our campus' discrimination. "This has to stop. There is a code of conduct that is being enforced in other universities that is not being enforced here in Clarion. Here, we have no rights, unless we pretend to be something that we are not. We get called names like 'faggot' and nothing is done."

Another anonymous audience member commented, "A word is a word! Who cares? I've lived in Los Angeles and in Georgia, then I came here. This is nothing compared to what I've seen."

Dr. Ernissee commented, "When you are made fun of, just don't (give) your power up to them. Be proud of who you are."

A quick scan of the audience, seated in the auditorium of Still Hall for this meeting, was as diverse as the students of this campus. "You just can't stereotype us anymore," stated Mercurio.

The interest group ALLIES does not only consist of homosexual students. Also involved in the organization are straight people who support equal rights for every student on campus- homosexual or not.

One audience member commented, "I am a Catholic, and my religion does not condone what these people are doing. Still, no one deserves to be harassed or physically abused."

If any student homosexual or heterosexual, has questions concerning ALLIES, they should contact Dr. Grigsby at the counseling services at 226-2255.

"We need everyone's support," said Dr. Ernissee. "There are no barriers an organization cannot conquer. We need to implement sensitivity training programs with the Resident Assistants and the faculty in general. Students must also get involved. We haven't found how far we can go. I know I've knocked on doors, and they've opened for me. The only hatred people have of us is fear. If we can get rid of this fear, we can accomplish anything."

FACTS: According to the Governors Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth of Massachussetts: out of 2000 homosexuals interviewed: 90% of all homosexuals have been victimized in some way, 45% by males, 25% by females, 15% by own family, and 72,000 anti-homosexuality crimes occurred with 19% of them on college campuses. Crimes against gays are "hate crimes" at CUP.

The Clarion University Wrestling team ended their 1993-94 campaign with a solid performance at the NCAA Division I National tournament held at the University of North Carolina.

Sending six wrestlers to the tourney, the Golden Eagles finished 15th behind solid performances by All-Americans Rob Sintobin and Brian Stout. Sintobin, a senior from Delta, Ohio, had a great performance, earning All-American honors at heavyweight. The Clarion grappler posted an overall record of 4-2, capturing victories against Scott Durieux (Ohio U.), Billy Pierce (Minnesota), Tony Vaughn (Purdue), and Dan Hicks (Navy).

Sintobin finished with a solid fourth place finish, and was also presented with the Gorrarian Award. The award is given annually to the wrestler with the most falls in the least aggregate time. Sintobin had two falls in 1:49.

The senior heavyweight finished his collegiate career with a record of 71-46, and is ranked seventh in Clarion history with 44 career pins. Sintobin posted and overall record of 26-9 with 16 falls this year.

At 190 pounds, Clarion's Brian Stout received All-American honors with a respectable eighth place finish. The freshman battled to a 3-3 record at the tournament, posting wins against Paul Fitzpatrik (Brown), Darrin Vincent (Boston), and Tyrone Howard (Bloomsburg). Stout finished an impressive freshman season at Clarion with a 26-9 overall record, and second place finishes at PSAC's and EWL's.

At 118 pounds, Sheldon Thomas posted a 2-2 mark with pins over Bobby Soto (Cal-Bakersfield) and Brandon Paulson (Minnesota). Thomas came within one win of being named All-American and finished this season with a 26-7 mark. He won both the PSAC's and the EWL's.

Junior Dan Payne ended another fine season at the 177 pound weight class. Payne finished at Nationals with a 1-2 record, defeating Nebraska's Ryan Tobin. Despite a late season illness that effected his performance at EWL's and nationals, Payne was 31-8 this season, winning the PSAC's and placing third at EWL's.

J.J. Stanbro, a senior at 167 pounds, finished his collegiate career at Clarion. Stanbro opened national competition against the #1 seed Shaon Fry (Missouri) but fell 7-4 in a very tough match. Posting a 1-2 record at the tournament, Stanbro finished with a 26-7 overall record, winning PSAC's and finishing third at EWL's. J.J.'s career record stands at 69-51-4.

At 126 pounds, Bob Crawford lost a wild match to Oregon's Chris Jensen, 17-11. Crawford was unable to participate in the wrestle backs, thus finishing his freshman season with a 25-5 record. He won PSAC's and placed third at EWL's.

Head Coach Jack Davis noted, "We had a great season and we want to thank our seniors...this team is still very young and we hope our best days with this group are in the future."

The Golden Eagle wrestling team had a very successful and a very accomplishing season. Clarion posted a dual meet record of 15-2, and won both the PSAC championships and the EWL's.

Not even in the pre-season top 40, the Clarion Univeristy wrestling team proved to be very worthy of every opponent it faced this season. Congratulations team.

Boys of summer set to take the field

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Clarion University's men's baseball and women's softball teams are set to open their respective seasons. Both teams recently completed a trip to Florida for spring training, and both clubs felt that the experience there was a good tune-up for the regular season.

Coach Rich Herman said, "We have a lot of veterans returning, joined by some talented first year players."

Clarion finished last year with a 16-19 overall record and a 9-11 mark in the PSAC-West. That improved on 1992 finish of 12-17 overall and 8-12 in the PSAC-West.

Last year, Clarion started the PSAC-West slate slowly with a 2-8 record. However the Eagles bounced back with a 7-3 conference mark to finish the season. The 1994 team has six seniors, eight juniors, six sophomores and 16 freshmen rounding out the team roster.

"We expect to have a solid defensive club that possesses good speed and a little more power in the lineup," commented Herman. "First, we have to learn how to relax on the field which will help us play to our full potential. Second, our pitching staff needs to be consistent and our veterans must lead. If that happens, we hope to be in the thick of what should be a very tough race in the Western Division."

Around the infield, juniors Pat Berzonski, and Ken Stupka will be at first, and junior John Quahliero starting at second, being backed up by Bill Bates. Senior pre-season All-American Dave Skovera will start at short with freshman Phil Pegher backing him up. Third base has junior Kurt Pannier starting, with freshman Tom Reighard providing depth.

Berzonski hit .348 last season with 12 RBI. Quahliero batted .260 in 1993 with 14 RBI and .288 as a freshman. Skovera, who was a first team PSAC-West choice and a first team East Region choicein 1993, was in the NCAA Division II top ten in hitting with a .440 average and nine doubles. Pannier batted .298 in 31 at bats last year and displayed potential as a power hitter.

The Clarion outfield is anchored by Marc Keller, a three year starter who hit .272 last year with a team leading 23 RBI, and Chad McCombs who started in left field last year as a freshman and batted .298 with 13 RBI.

Fighting for the starting spot in center will be freshmen Scott Weir and Chris Lombardo. Botn have excellent speed, with Weir being a right handed power hitter and Lombardo a slashing left handed hitter. Junior Tim Stimmell will see time in right and also be the teams designated hitter.

The catching will be shared by juniors Marc Grommes and Don Biertempfel. Grommes is a two year starter, and Biertempfel has impressed the coaches with good all around skills.

The pitching staff returns seniors Mark Spohn, Ryan Bauer, and Mark Johnson, junior Jason Rafalski, and sophomores Jason Knight, Rob Hooks, and Chad McCombs.

Bauer went 3-0 last year with a 1.85 ERA. Knight went 2-1 as a freshman with a 3.08 ERA. Rafalski is a two year starter, and Hooks and McCombs both pitched well last year.

Other first year performers expected to make a strong showing are Bill Cook, Scott Feldman, Ryan Saul, Steve Wagner, and Shawn Sterling.

Softball team looking for improvement

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Clarion University women's softball team is looking to improve on last year's 7-22 record.

The team is young, as it was last year, but it is talented. "We have an extremely young starting core," said Coach Jody Burns. "Our inexperience might affect the outcome of games, so we have to prepare for that."

The team will be led by junior second baseman Sarah Pitney. Last year, Pitney led the Lady Eagles in batting average (.375), hits (30) and sacrifices (12). Pitney, the team captain, was also second on the team with three stolen bases.

Adding to the infield will be Leslie Schattauer, Melodi Dess, and Tracie Mathis. Schattauer, the first baseman, hit .306, had ten walks, and stole four bases last year as a freshman. She also led the team with 14 RBI.

Dess will be playing at shortstop. This is Dess' first year on the team. She also plays on Terry Acker's tennis team.

Mathis will be playing third base for the Lady Eagles this year. The freshman was a WPIAL Honorable Mention for the New Brighton Lions last season, batting .315. Mathis played on section winning teams of '91 and '93.

Playing the outfield will be Danene Brown, Julie Catalano, and MaryBeth Kasenchak. Brown is a second year starter in left field. Last season as a freshman, she hit .353 with seven RBI. She led the team with three triples.

Freshman Catalano will be in centerfield. Catalano played on District IX champion Clearfield teams in '90 and '91. She was captain of the team last year.

In right field will be Kasenchak. She saw limited time last year, but plans to make significant contributions to the Lady Eagles this year.

Behind the plate for Clarion will be Rose Wilson, a freshman from Nanty Glo. Wilson led her team to the Appalachian Conference title with a 22-2 record. Wilson batted over .400 and was voted "Player of the Year" by the Indiana Gazette.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Sarah Pitney, a junior second baseman and the team captain, is looking to lead the team to a successful season.

Missy Brown and Sonya Hafer will be platooning on the mound for Clarion. Brown, a freshman, led her team to the WPIAL section championship. Her team finished with a 13-3 conference record.

Hafer, also a freshman is a left handed pitcher from Conemaugh Valley. Her senior year she pitched a record setting ten no-hitters in leading her team to the district VI title. Hafer was also voted a conference all-star two times.

Also helping Clarion in the infield will be Lesley Croston and Kelly Kopshever. In the outfield will be Lauren Allie, Mary Paterson, and Tina Sherrill.

Coach Burns feels that the conference race will be tight. "It is going to be very competitive this season. California has always been at the top of the pile, but this season is going to be more competitive. (We) need to be competitive in PSAC-West over the next (few) years."

A weekly look at a Clarion University Athlete

Eagle in the Spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

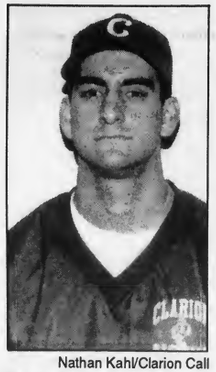

Dave Skovera is a senior baseball player for the Clarion University Golden Eagles. Last season, Skovera batted .440 to be one of the top ten hitters in the country.

Skovera hails from Geibel high school in Uniontown, where he started playing baseball when he was seven. He played Little League ball up until high school when he tried out for the high school baseball team his sophomore year.

Skovera noted that the quality of the high school pitching in the area was not good enough to effectively judge how well he was hitting. But he did think he was good enough to continue with baseball.

"In my senior year I thought I could play at the college level. I really didn't have any offers but my uncle was a grad assistant here and he told me he thought I could play here," Skovera commented.

Skovera also said he liked Clarion because of the small school atmosphere and the fact that it was relatively close to home.

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call

Dave Skovera, a pre-season All-American.

One of Skovera's biggest accomplishments is that he was able to come back from reconstructive knee surgery his sophomore year. Usually such surgery could be career threatening, but Skovera noted that he is actually faster now. He is also proud of the fact that "I'm able to balance athletics and academics."

As for future goals, Skovera hopes that he can help lead the team to a PSAC-West crown, and to play well enough to be drafted by a big league team.

New season, new look for the Major Leagues

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

As spring approaches, so does Major League Baseball. Can Toronto do it again? Will the Braves finally get the monkey off their back? During the off season a lot of free agents were signed, and many of those free agents could make good teams better.

In the American League East, the Baltimore Orioles have signed veteran pitcher Sid Fernandez, as well as All-Stars Ragael Palmiero and Chris Sabo. With a healthy Mike Mussina, the Orioles can contend.

The Boston Red Sox signed veteran catcher Dave Valle from the Mariners as well as centerfielder Otis Nixon from the Atlanta Braves, to bolster their starting nine.

The Detroit Tigers can contend but only if veterans Mickey Tettleton, Alan Trammel, Lou Whitaker, and Tony Philips perform to higher levels.

The Yankees could surprise some teams this year. Avoiding injuries is the key to the Yankees' chances this year. Wade Boggs and Don Mattingly can carry a big load, but not if they both aren't completely healthy. These guys aren't that young anymore.

The defending champion Blue Jays have a strong nucleus again, but if the pitching is not up to par, the Blue Jays could be looking at a change of fortune.

The Chicago White Sox have the team to do it again this year, and they bettered their cause by signing Julio Franco from the Rangers. But if any one White Sox pitcher gets injured, the Sox could falter quickly.

The Cleveland Indians were one of the busier teams in the off season acquiring Reuben Amaro from the Phillies, and Gold Glove shortstop Omar Vizquel from the Seattle Mariners. The tribe also signed veteran free agent first baseman Eddie Murray who will probably be the DH. But just when you thought they were done, the Indians signed Dennis Martinez to strengthen their pitching staff. If Charlie Nagy is healthy, the Indians can contend for the first time in a long time.

The Milwaukee Brewers need strong pitching from Bill Wegman, Cal Eldred, and Jamie Navarro to even think about contending. They acquired reliever Bob Scanlan from the Cubs, and picked up outfielder Turner Ward from the Blue Jays off waivers.

The Kansas City Royals have question marks all over the field. Can Vince Coleman make it through the season with no misdemeanors and regain his old form? Will Jose Lind hit over .230? Can they survive without George Brett, a long time team leader? Will Dave Cone, Kevin Appier, "Flash" Gordon, and Mark Gubicza form one of the best rotations in the league, or will they all be mediocre?

The Minnesota Twins need Kevin Tapani and Scott Erickson to regain their form to even stand a chance. Kirby Puckett showed what team loyalty is all about by signing on with the Twins, and hopefully more players will follow his lead.

The American League West could either be an exciting race, or a cakewalk for the Texas Rangers.

The California Angels are very young and could compete, but not this year.

By re-signing Rickey Henderson, the Oakland Athletics should be a lot better, but Mark McGwire as well as Ruben Sierra must stay healthy. The pitching staff is a big question mark.

By acquiring left fielder Eric Anthony from the Astros, and signing right fielder Jay Buhner, the Seattle Mariners may finally be able to contend this year. In order to do so, newly acquired starting pitcher Greg Hibbard and rookie Roger Salkeld must team up with Dave Fleming and Randy Johnson, and if Chris Bosio stays healthy the Mariners will be looking to contend for the first time ever.

The Texas Rangers are the strongest team in the division, and if Jose Canseco is healthy (and stays off the pitching mound), he and Will Clark will dominate AL pitching. Juan Gonzalez and Dean Palmer give the Rangers two more power hitters and defensively, the Rangers are solid. If pitcher Kevin Brown can regain his form, the Rangers could win this division.

The National League East should be the strongest division in the NL this year. The Braves are the most talented, but must now win without Ron Gant. Look for rookie Tony Tarasco to start in left. Even with the loss of Gant, the Braves pitching staff alone should be able to carry them to a NL East title.

The Philadelphia Phillies can go as far as their pitching can take them. A major question is if Doug Jones can take Mitch Williams' spot as the closer the Phillies desperately need.

The Montreal Expos are very talented, but must rely on some young pitching to take them to the promised land.

The New York Mets are stains. They have spent millions of dollars on high-priced free agents, and haven't gotten much in return. Bobby Bonilla was in the midst of a good 1993 season, but a shoulder injury dropped his average to .265. Although Bonilla did hit 34 home runs and drove in 87 RBI's, no one else did very much. The Mets need Ryan Thompson and Jeromy Burnitz to come of age, as well as getting some quality starts from their pitching staff.

The Florida Marlins had a successful first year and look to improve in '94. Bryan Harvey was worth every penny, but the Marlins pitching staff is weak and the Marlins will struggle this year.

The NL Central is a toss up. The Houston Astros have good pitching, and if rookie manager Terry Collins utilizes his position players well, then the Astros will contend.

The Cincinnati Reds are strong, and barring crucial injuries will contend to win the division.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have a strong infield as well as a better than average outfield. But pitching will make or break the Buccos, and the Pirates could also use a backup catcher for Don Slaught. Jerry Goff just doesn't cut it.

With the pitching staff healthy, the St. Louis Cardinals could also make a run for the division. The Cards have an excellent outfield, and the infield is equally as talented. Look for Gregg Jefferies to have another excellent season, and if Todd Zeile repeats last year's 17 homer, 103 RBI season, the red birds are in good shape.

The Chicago Cubs will turn in yet another mediocre season. They lack the pitching needed to compete with the rest of the teams in the division, and have a lot of question marks in the outfield.

In the NL West, the Colorado Rockies have strengthened themselves by adding outfielders Howard Johnson, Ellis Burks, and shortstop Walt Weiss. They also strengthened their pitching staff by signing Mike Harkey from the Cubs.

The San Diego Padres have a good outfield as well as starting pitcher Andy Benes, but that's about it. Look for the Padres to compete as one of baseball's worst teams this year.

The Los Angeles Dodgers added second baseman Delino Deshields to their lineup and if Darryl Strawberry is healthy, and Tim Wallach, Cory Snyder, and Brett Butler have good years, the Dodgers, led by Eric Karros and Mike Piazza, could give the San Francisco Giants their only challenge.

This division is the Giants to lose. Barry Bonds will have another MVP season and that, along with a good pitching staff, will help them win the division.

Look for the Orioles to top the Braves in the World Series.

March Madness lives up to its name

by Clint Hanna
Sports Writer

Thus far, the NCAA tourney has greatly paralleled the regular season. So-called experts have seen their predicitons fall by the wayside and parody has taken form.

During the regular season, at least five different teams laid claim to the top spot. North Carolina, Duke, Arkansas, Kentucky, and UCLA each climbed atop the polls only to be dethroned shortly thereafter. North Carolina had its Georgia Tech, Duke had its Wake Forest. The surprisingly competitive SEC held Arkansas and Kentucky in check, and UCLA popped up and faded as quickly as Vanilla Ice.

When the tourney pairings were announced the "experts" once again shot their mouths off about a number of things. First, everybody jumped on the UNC bandwagon and profoundly announced the Tar Heels as their favorite to win it all and bring home the champagne. All this, despite the fact that the Heels lost three out of four to Clemson and Georgia Tech- teams not even in the tourney. Favorites, perhaps. Runaways, hardly.

Then people predicted that the upset of the tourney would be Ohio over Indiana. Wrong again. Led by the successful and often voluable Bobby Knight, the Hoosiers are still alive and have reached yet another sweet sixteen birth.

UMass earned a number two seed only to be ousted by the upstart Maryland Terapins. With a 16-11 mark entering tournament time, Gary Williams' team wasn't given much of a chance, especially with a number ten seed.

The Golden Hurricanes of Tulsa have become the fifth number 12 seed in a row to reach the round of 16. Beware Tulsa, those other four teams advanced no further.

Marquette was dubbed a weak number six seed. Guess What? They too are in the round of 16.

Another upstart team, originally dubbed as a sleeper, attracted a little attention by beating North Carolina. Of course I am talking about the Boston College Eagles. This small Jesuit school has defeated the number one basketball team and number one football team (Notre Dame) all in the same year.

This has been the most exciting year of college hoops in recent memory. Any fan of this great game has had enough ooh's and ahh's to last a lifetime. If the tourney has not held you glued to your TV, the regular season play of superstar Glenn Robinson and Jason Kidd has had you singing the praises of Dr. James Naismith and his peach baskets.

Forget about the outrageous contracts of the NBA and focus on what the game is all about. Kids, most of whom stand no chance of a pro career, are playing a game they have loved for years.

The parody this year has been great, especially in the Big Dance.

If you are perusing this article for a predicition, I will only say that I am a fan of this great game. My only wish is that there is competitive basketball the whole way through.

Louisville has the best starting five in the nation, despite Cliff Rozier's lackluster play as of late. They will win the West.

Arkansas and Michingan will be a great matchup, with Michigan using tournament experience to advance.

Indiana will win the East, and in the Southeast, Purdue and Duke will fight it out in the match of the top two draft picks, Robinson and Grant Hill. Purdue will win that one in a shoot out.

So there it is. Michigan, Indiana, Purdue, and Louisville.

But I suggest that you don't pick a team as your favorite. Nor should you try to win bets. I think you should just sit back, watch the games, and enjoy the competition.

Sports Opinion : The NFL

Why all the changes?

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

The winter meetings of the National Football League have brought changes that really weren't necessary. After instant replay was hitched out, changes in America's game had been put on the back burner.

But, just as much as the world around us, football is susceptable.

I love the NFL- you know that. You're probably fed up with my stories. But these changes really upset me. The two point conversion in pro football? Kicking off from the 30 rather than the 35? Spotting the ball at the spot of the kick rather than at the line of scrimmage after a missed field goal? Get used to it. These rules are here to stay, at least for a while.

When I think of the two point conversion I think of college football. Over the years, their have been so many magical moments with the two point conversion. The 1984 Orange Bowl which pitted Nebraska versus Miami is a classic example. Tom Osborne's Cornhuskers went for two and the national championship and failed.

In 1988, Miami was on the other side of the ball. The Hurricanes went for two at South Bend. When they didn't get it, the national championship went to Notre Dame.

This play makes for very exciting college football. But keep it on the campuses. The NFL should have extra points and that's all. By adding this choice to the NFL, a whole new playing scheme comes into play. The NFL doesn't need any more schemes- out with the two.

What's the big deal of moving kickoffs back five yards? With the quality of kickers in the NFL, most kicks will be touchbacks anyway. But this will set a new standard around the NFL and very team will keep a booming kicker on the roster. For those of you weak-toed kickers, keep practicing. You may be out of a job.

Another rule change comes with missed field goals from 20 yards or more. After the kick is missed, the other team gets the ball at the spot of the kick, not the line of scrimmage. That is a difference of seven yards. The rule will make a difference depending on how deep a team is in the opponent's territory. A team won't be as willing to take a long field goal that will most likely be missed.

Now that you know these "drastic" changes in the NFL, I'm sure you'll sleep better. Leave these changes to other leagues- the World League (coming back in 1995), the Arena Football League, and the Canadian Football League. The kickoff and field goal rules are here to stay. The two point conversion's future in pro football? NFL- Not For Long.

Get ready NBA

Make way for the "Big Dog"

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

If you haven't noticed Glenn Robinson of Purdue this year, I believe you have been reading the wrong section of the Call.

The Big Dog, as he is more commonly known as, tore up the Big Ten this past year and is continuing to do the job in the NCAA tourney.

The Big Dog is the first player to lead the Big Ten in scoring and rebounding since Michael Thompson, who played years ago.

Robinson, a junior, has NBA teams headed for the lottery drooling. Robinson is a man among boys no matter who he is playing against, and it may be time for him to move on.

The Mavericks, Kings, Pistons, and several other teams are just waiting and hoping that Robinson comes out early and the lottery pick swings their way.

Robinson has the whole package. Their have been plenty of games when he has just been unstoppable. He rebounds, drives the lane, brings the ball up the court, and can even pop a three now and then. It seems that there is nothing that Robinson can't do, except win a championship and that could change this year.

If Robinson does in fact win a title this season, it might be the last thing he needs to decide to come out early. It would be pretty smart to take the money and run for the big leagues. If Robinson doesn't feel the need to prove anything, he'll be gone.

Whoever takes Robinson in the NBA is going to be very pleased with their choice. To not take him as a number one pick would be stupid. Right now he is ready to come in and become "Rookie of the Year" and make a mark on the league. Of course Big Dog can't do it all on a lottery team, but he can do a lot. He's a player to use as the foundation for a team on the rise. The only negative that comes with drafting him is going to be staying under the salary cap upon signing time. Robinson comes attached with a hefty price tag.

As we look at the sweet sixteen and place our bets on who's the best team in the land, it's a sure bet that the Big Dog will have his day. The rest of Purdue's team is brought to life by his play, and this says plenty for Robinson's leadership and his ability to lift a team to the next level.

Michael Jordan came out and did it. Shaquille O'Neal is trying to do it. It is very difficult for a rookie to come out and take a team to the promised land. Leadership by a rookie is rare and it is often years before a championship is achieved.

The choice is Robinson's-dominate college scene for another year or start the growing pains in the NBA. Either way, he'll be in the spotlight and he'll going to be a big winner wherever he goes.

Get ready NBA, the Big Dog may be on his way.

Vote passes 17-0-2

Student Senate raises activity fee $5

by Alicia McCray
News Writer

Despite student opposition, Student Senate voted March 29 to raise the student activity fee by 6.25 percent from $75 to $80.

The vote was 17-0 with 2 abstentions. The hike has received final approval from University President Dr. Reinhard.

Student Senator Kari King said, "we've surveyed all schools within the state system and Clarion stands right in the middle at $75. IUP's fee is over $100 and some of the other schools fall in the range of $60. The additional five dollars will go back into all recognized student organizations for their annual budgets. Approximately 11 new organizations, in addition to those already recognized, are requesting budgets, she explained. The Senate has to be able to provide for the new organizations, which only receive a maximum of $500."

The anticipated groups that will receive new funding include: Campus Animal Activists Effort (CARE), Terra Club, Clarion University Dance Team, Clarion University Users Group, Recreational Outdoors Club, Bios Tech Club, APICS, Symphonic Band, Cheerleaders, American Library Association, and Into the Streets.

It is estimated that without the increase in the activity fee the amount of money allotted by the Appropriations Committee would have exceeded next years budget by $20,000. The committee takes an estimate of how many students are enrolled at Clarion and multiplies that number by the activity fee. From this figure the committee draws an estimated amount of money to work with and establishes the budget for the next school year. The 1993-94 budget is $764,000.

Each organization in the beginning of the year asks for a certain amount of money. If the Appropriations Committee gave each organization the amount requested, the total would be $973,016.

According to Helmrick, "all organizations after this figure were cut another 10 percent. This across the board cut affected all organizations except the University Activities Board, Athletics (which receives 39 percent of the $764,000 budget), and The Clarion Call. These three organizations are under contract.

According to Helmrick "another problem we encountered was the rise of inflation. Over the past two years inflation has rose 3.5 percent each year, which adds up to a 7 percent increase in inflation. The inflation of the activity fee increase from $75 to $80 was 6.25 percent, which is under 7 percent. The inflation is increasing faster than the activity fee is."

However, according to the United States Bureau of Labor and Statistics, the inflation rate of 1992 was 2.9 percent and for 1993 the rate was 2.7 percent, thereby totalling 5.6 percent for the two years.

Student Senator Ralph Godbolt said, "even though the activity fee has risen only five dollars, room and board has gone up and tuition will probably rise also. There are a couple of fees based on the percentage of tuition, such as the instructional support fee and the auxiliary fee. This means every time tuition goes up, those fees that are based on the tuition percentage rise along with it."

Kevin Stephens, also a Student Senator, adds that "most students were against the increase. They also say that with tuition going up and with room and board increasing, they don't want to see anything else go up." A lot of students ask where the money is going, in conjunction with everything else it seems like a lot."

"It was needed, but I'm not sure if it was the best time to do it. With enrollment being down, the fee has been raised to compensate for the lack of enrollment," says King.

According to J. Douglas Bills, registrar, enrollment has dropped by 275 students since the 1992-1993 academic year.

Hello from abroad

Gara Smith

Dear fellow Clarionites,

Bonju! Kefinti? Tabel grazzi. Now you understand how difficult it is to comprehend another culture. What you just read was a good morning greeting Maltese style. In English, the same greeting is "Good morning. How are you? I am fine, thank you." These statements are just the beginning of what I am learning and experiencing on the island of Malta.

When I made my decision back in July of 1993 to study abroad I had three main concerns. First, the institution I was to study at needed to be English speaking.

Second, I needed to take classes that would transfer onto my checksheets at Clarion. And lastly, NO SNOW!

So far all of my requests have been met. And I must tell you that the experiences I am having are absolutely unbelievable. From the classes at the University to the crystal clear blue Mediterranean Sea to the fiestas and the carnival celebration, I have not been bored for even a moment. The lectures are much different than I have experienced at Clarion. I am taking seven classes ranging from the European Union to Tourism in Malta to Reporting and everything in between. Of the seven professors I have, four are fellow foreigners; a British, Yugoslavian, Dutch, and an American Fulbright scholar.

Trust me- if I have learned anything here it is how to keep an open mind and to only judge people for who they are not where they come from. In the apartment building I live in (which by the way is 2 blocks from the beach and 2.5 miles from the University) my neighbors are from all over the world.

FINANCIAL REALITY

"To be your voice, we must hear your voice." So goes the student senate motto. When the proposal was made to raise the student activity fee, the Call asked 100 students to make their voice known. By a margin of four to one, students rejected the fee hike. It wasn't close, it wasn't vague, 80 percent of the students said "No."

Student Senate raised the fee anyway.

Amy Schaub, a member of Student Senate, makes her view known on the reader response page this week. Ms. Schaub makes a point of telling readers that if they don't go to activities or join student organizations it is their own fault their activity fee is wasted.

A valid point if one excludes single-parent students who must return home to their children at night, working students who take a 12, 15 or 18 credit load and still cram an eight hour shift into their day, part-time students trying to earn enough money to keep coming back, commuter students (some of which drive up to 50 miles each way to get here) who can't afford to make to make two trips to Clarion in one day and any other student who is struggling to make ends meet.

The Call doesn't believe these people are "wasting" their activity fee. We believe they getting the shaft, a shaft Student Senate recently enlarged.

If Student Senate honestly believes a five dollar jump in the activity fee isn't "the end of the world," or that one can easily "join another club and go to the next sporting event," then perhaps they have no concept of the finanicial reality some of the students on this campus face.

MEN ARE PEOPLE TOO

Today, I'd like to address a very grave matter: man bashing. Men are constantly being bashed, in the media and elsewhere, and now we are being oppressed, by women.

A couple of weeks ago, right here at Clarion University, there was something called a "Women's Conference Celebration," open to anyone. Wrong. The Women's Conference Celebration is not a safe place for anyone who happens to be male. They had a "women's humorist" and "women's issues speakers" and a whole bunch of other girl (oops, I mean WOMAN) stuff. They also had this thing called "Celebrate Women in Film", where you (meaning, "you women") could learn about the issues and accomplishments of women by sitting around, eating popcorn, and watching movies like "Thelma and Louise", "Beaches", and "A League of their Own". Real highbrow, issue-intensive stuff.

Now what if we (meaning "we men") held a "Men's Conference Celebration", which featured "men's humorists" and "men's issues speakers"? Maybe we could sit around and watch "Rocky" or "Deliverance", or maybe "The Three Stooges". We could drink beer and belch and scratch ourselves and all that other "men stuff." What if we actually did this? I'll tell you what. Our male asses would be in court so fast that our heads would spin, that's what. Women's groups would sue the pants off of us (no male pun intended), screaming "sex discrimination" or, God forbid, "insensitivity to female-gender based human beings".

In his book "Iron John", author Robert Bly takes a very pro-man stance, pointing out how "maleness" has faded. Watch any popular TV show. Men are portrayed as idiotic boobs, while women are portrayed as the brainy, thoughtful ones who always have to bail the idiotic men out of some mess or another. Watch "The Cosby Show" or "Love and War", or pretty near any popular sit-com.

For thousands of years, Bly states, men were men and proud of it. It's not that they were anti-woman, it's just that they were men, dammit, and that's the way it was. And he's right. There's nothing oppressive about accepting yourself for what you are, man or woman. That's what women are doing, isn't it? -RTH

Game over

Dear Editor:

I have a problem with some of my fellow students here at CUP in regard to the computer labs. As we all know, finding an available computer when you need one is about as easy as finding a parking space on campus. That's why it infuriates me when I walk into a computer lab and see people playing games on them (i.e., solitary). Granted, if you are in a lab and there aren't people waiting to use the computers, then by all means play until your little hearts are content. But at this time in the semester, people have an increased need to use the computers to complete their school-related work.

If your need to play card games is that great, then my advice to you is simple: GO BUY A DECK OF CARDS!!!! They really aren't expensive, you can play with them whenever and wherever you wish and you won't be taking up space at a computer terminal that someone else needs.

Abortion law unjust

Editor:

Pennsylvania's new anti-abortion law already had extremely upsetting effects on women, with an additional curse on teens under 18.

Following are very truthful samples already, after just two days of the law. These are teenagers visiting Planned Parenthood of Pennsylvania, which has changed a girl's name. (This letter is omitting the adult problems).

Jeanine, under 18, had to have her mother with her listening to the new state-required lecture by the doctor, before the mother could consent to Jeanine's abortion. The mother was in a hospital, unable to come to the clinic. (Doctors won't make house calls without more money than poor people have).

A 14-year-old arrived for a scheduled abortion. Now she learned that she needed her mother's permission. But recently her pregnant sister was thrown out of the house. When the clinic staff phoned the county court to ask about a judge's permission, court personnel had no idea what to do. This Pennsylvania indifference violates the U.S. Supreme Court requirement for "judicial bypass."

Three teens, all in foster care, wanted abortions and called a hotline for information. The parents' hearing the lecture from a doctor and waiting 24 hours to consent were impossible - all three teens had been abandoned or neglected by their birth parents. One teen hadn't seen or heard from her mother in three years.

All these cases in only the first two weeks of the law!

And requiring all sexually normal and healthy unmarried people to abstain from sexual activity is equal to requiring people not to eat. Some people have been proposing and demanding abstinence for thousands of years, and it has had only miserable results.

An important purpose of the added rules in this law is to make abortion for low income people too expensive.

Adoption? Orphanages are filled with children nobody would adopt.

Activity fee a bargain

As a member of C.S.A. and a student who uses her $75 activity fee daily, I would like to take this time to point out what your activity fee pays for, and that a five dollar activity fee raise is not the end of the world.

The activity fee for C.S.A. is distributed throughout all recognized organizations on this campus. This means that every club or group you want to join receives a budget from the Student Senate, which is appropriated through the activity fee. This fee also provides for you to attend all sporting events, except for championships, to attend all activities which U.A.B sponsors, except for the spring concert, to receive a yearbook and to enjoy the privilege of reading The Clarion Call for FREE!!!!

If you were to add up all the times you go to a basketball game, football game, wrestling match, movie or lecture for FREE on this campus, the cost for all of these events would, more than likely, go way beyond 75 or 80 dollars.

Maybe, instead of paying a flat rate of $75, an individual cost should be paid each time you want to go a sporting event, get a copy of The Clarion Call or receive your yearbook. Also, maybe it should be the organizations' responsibilities to charge each member when he or she joins. Just think, if you are in more than two or three clubs, this could become very expensive. If you look at it from this perspective, 75 or 80 dollars is nothing compared to the $150-plus that it would cost each student per year if an individual rate was charged. In the long run, paying an activity fee of $80 is not going to break anyone. In fact, it is saving you money.

To fight grade inflation

Colleges seek alternatives to current SAT scores

by Harry Straight
College Press Service

On a Saturday morning in mid-March, hundreds of thousands of high school seniors throughout the country filed into classrooms and auditoriums, picked up a No. 2 lead pencil and began a rite of educational passage called the Scholastic Assessment Test.

For many, this was a do-or-die moment.

Forget all you accomplished in those four years of high school. Flunk this one test and your next classroom experience is likely to be spent learning how to ask: "Would you like fries with that?"

But the idea of pegging your college future on a single day of testing may be losing favor with some colleges and universities.

Nearly 200 four-year schools now have policies which allow many applicants to be admitted without taking either the SAT or the American College Testing (ACT) program, according to a recent survey by the National Center for Fair & Open Testing or FairTest as it is often called.

A similar FairTest survey in 1989 showed that only 112 schools had SAT optional policies, "The huge increase in test score optional colleges shows that neither the SAT or the ACT is necessary to run an efficient admissions process," says Bob Schaeffer, public education director for the Cambridge, Mass. group.

Established in 1985, FairTest is strongly critical of the SAT and lobbies for the use of better evaluation methods.

The SAT has been around since 1926 when it was developed by The College Board, a coalition of several Northeastern colleges, but it has garnered increasing criticism over the past several years.

"We feel that the test discriminates against certain students," said Cynthia Schuman, executive director of FairTest, "And it doesn't reflect the kinds of skill that we need to know about college students, such as writing, problem solving and research."

The test is also a poor indicator of a students' ability to compete in college, she said.

For instance, Schuman noted that females routinely score lower on the SAT but have higher grade point averages in both high school and college than males.

"Poorer students who can't afford the special coaching available for the test - which can cost as much as $700 - are also discriminated against," Schuman said.

"This country spends more than $100 million on a test that has all of these problems, lacks educational relevance and, many feel, isn't really needed," she added.

However, officials at The College Board say the test is a valid measure of students' college performance, despite variations in scores that they say can be attributed to a lack of educational preparation.

"When used with high school grades, it is the best indicator of how well students, both men and women, will perform in the first year of college," said Anne Buckley, assistant director of public affairs.

Buckley also said that grade inflation has made the SAT more valuable than ever in deciding which students should be admitted.

In 1980, only 58 percent of high school students had GPAs of B or better.

In 1993, however, 83 percent reported GPAs of B or higher.

"Without a national standard, grade inflation seems to be a problem," she said.

The two men who share an apartment above me are from Nigeria and China, and we watched the Olympics with Greeks, Libyans, Turks, French, Tunsians and Americans from Virginia, Minnesota, Texas, Washington, and of course, Pennsylvania. Together, we all cheered for Kerrigan when she finished her program and were somewhat dissappointed that she received the silver. I am learning a great deal about the other countries in the world while at the same time much about our own Stars and Stripes and the impression others have of the United States.

Many foreigners perceive America by what they watch in the movies and on the television. They think that we live like the "Fresh Prince of Bel Air" and that the violence is a horrible as it is in the "Terminator." Some people feel that Americans are stuck-up and have no business being in their country and that Americans should go back to the States. But I have found that if you be yourself and show respect to others, more than likely, they will grant that same respect back to you. Just the other day, I was riding a bus with a Clarion friend and a Maltese friend. An older woman was standing on the bus and I gave her my seat. She looked up at me and said, "You are American, aren't you?" I replied, "Yes, I am." And then I asked her how she knew I was American, if it was my accent. She said, "No, it was your actions." Well, I must tell you I was pleased with her reply.

This trip has been the experience of a life. In less than a month I am off to Europe and to visit and see all the sites that I have dreamt about since I was a little girl in pigtails. And the best part about it all is that there is NO SNOW!

Well, my friends, I wish you all the best and hope that the sun melts the ice for you soon. Take care and happy shoveling!
Ciao!

And for those of you who don't attend any of the activities, or join any of the organizations that are offered to you, then that is your own fault that your activity fee is being wasted.

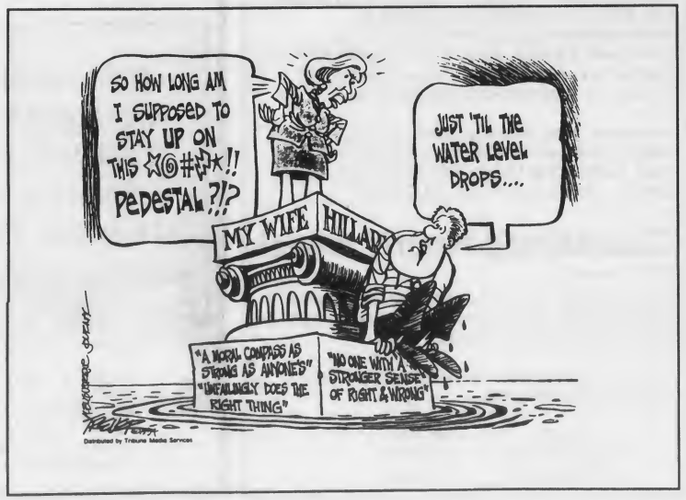

As for perks that Student Senate receives, we are not the only ones. Are most of you aware that the Executive Board of The Clarion Call, which is a student-run organization, gets paid for their work? I am not arguing the fact that they work hard. However, TV-5, the Sequelle and U.A.B. all work just as hard, and they do not receive any sort of compensation. Maybe before The Clarion Call starts criticizing other people, they should look at their own perks.

Amy Schaub

Editor's Note: Currently, The Clarion Call receives $10,000 per year from Student Senate. That money is used exclusively for printing costs. Money for any staff payments is raised through sales of advertisements.

Correction

In an article on page one in the March 24 issue, the amount appropriated to the University Activities Board by Student Senate for the 1993-94 academic year should have read $101,390. The Call regrets the error.

Judge accepts plea bargain

Sentence handed down in sexul assault case

by Rodney Sherman
Managing Editor

A former Clarion University student has been placed on Clarion County's Accelerated Rehabilitative Disposition (ARD) program in connection with a sexual assault case.

Jon Paul Defoor, 23, was entered into the program March 31 without entering a plea in the high profile case in which he was originally charged with indecent assault and indecent exposure, second degree misdemeanors; criminal trespass, a third degree misdemeanor; and harassment and disorderly conduct, both summary offenses.

The charges stem from Oct. 27, 1993, when Defoor was alleged to have accompanied Colleen McCarthy to her Ralston Hall room where he allegedly removed his clothes and attempted to engage in sexual contact with McCarthy.

A plea bargain agreement was worked out between Clarion County District Attorney William Kern and Defoor's attorney, Ralph L.S. Montana, called for Defoor to plead guilty to disorderly conduct and be enrolled in ARD.

Word of the proposed plea bargain brought letters to the editor of both the Clarion Call and the Clarion News denouncing Kern's agreement to the plea bargain.

The incident and plea bargain was also the topic of much discussion at an open forum concerning sexual assault held on campus Feb. 10.

Defoor's entrance into ARD was not an admission of guilt on the charges and will keep the charges from Defoor's record.

Defoor was warned by Clarion County Judge Charles R. Alexander however that if he (Defoor) failed to abide by the rules and conditions of ARD he could be forced to return to court and face trial on the original charges.

"If you don't behave yourself," Alexander told Defoor, "then this young lady I just talked to (McCarthy) is going to have the trial she wanted all along."

Alexander was referring to conversation he had with McCarthy explaining his decision to accept the plea bargain agreement.

McCarthy, reading from a prepared statement, asked Alexander to "Please make him (Defoor) pay, or else men will think they can assault or hurt women."

Alexander told McCarthy, "I know you're going to leave here upset."

The judge went on explain his decision, saying Defoor would probably not have received any jail time had he been convicted of the charges.

"First offense, his age, the way it happened," said Alexander, "I feel sympathetic with you, but he would not go to jail.

The judge added, "I don't think it helps society for him (Defoor) to have a record."

Defoor will serve two years probation for the indecent assault and indecent exposure charges and pay $25 per month supervision costs and prosecution costs as part of the agreement.

After the hearing, McCarthy told the Clarion Call she was glad "the whole thing was over," and understood why "the judge made his decision the way he did."

Alexander, speaking to Defoor, said, "Don't take from this 'Boy the judge agrees with what I did.'

You have to listen carefully to the word 'No', even when you're drunk, no matter how it starts out, no matter how optimistic it seems to be."

PA Health Department looks into illnesses at Women's Conference

Possible food poisoning incident being investigated

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Possible cases of food poisoning may have resulted from meals served at the university's Women's Conference on March 25 and 26.

It has not yet been determined that food poisoning is the cause of illness for an estimated18 persons. None of the cases have yet been confirmed.

University spokesman Ron Wilshire said the investigation into the incident is at a standstill, but that the university suspects the illnesses were caused by a strain of flu.

However, according to Marc Dorman , District Epidemiologist for the Pennsylvania Department of Health, "The possiblility of food poisoning has not been ruled out. We will conduct a food survey to see who ate what food, who didn't eat anything, who got sick and who didn't"

Dorman said the department will then try to statistically implicate one specific food from the menu.

"It's a little premature to say that no one was poisoned," said Dorman.

On the menu at the conference was stuffed chicken, quiche, mixed vegetables, wild rice, strawberry shortcake, carrot cake, brownies and a salad with dressing.

Dr. Audean Duespohl, interim dean of nursing at Venango campus said that the issue had been brought to her attention and that, "talk of food poisoning fizzled out and did not exist. There was allegedly 14 people who called in sick at Indiana University of Pa."

However, Duespohl said that after an investigation was conducted, only one person had called in sick.

According to Clarion Call Lifestyles Editor Amy Gerkin, who attended the conference, "I've never felt worse in my life. I've had the stomach flu, and it was nothing like it. I was throwing up every hour on the hour."

Gerkin said the symptoms began about 30 hours after eating the only cooked meal at the conference.

Dr. Julie Bartkowiak, co-chair of the confernce, said that the incident is still being investigated and that she had heard the incident was being treated as an outbreak of the flu.

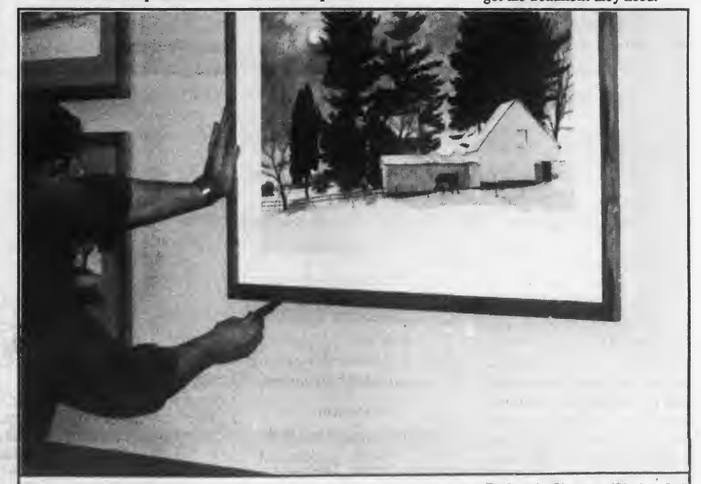

Amy Rarick, a conference participant, said that during treatment after the conference, Clarion Hospital personnel said that there was a possibilty her illness could be traced back to food.

Rarick was hospitalized for three days for severe illness and possible dehydration.

Another conference participant, Allison Mercurio, said that she also fell ill about 30 hours after the Saturday meal at the conference. She was treated at Clarion Hospital for severe abdominal pains.

Mercurio said that nausea and diarreah persisted for about one day, followed by two days of fatigue.

Mercurio was concerned the illnesses were "too coincidental" for a flu outbreak and that others, then, might not get the treatment they need.

Dean to be president of higher education conference

Shropshire elected to two positions

By Kristin Lutz
News Writer

"It's been a personal honor but I feel it's also a distinguishing honor for Clarion University," said John Shropshire, dean of enrollment and academic records, about his recent election to two prominent positions.

At the yearly conference of the Pensylvania Black Conference on Higher Education, after being nominated and giving a "campaign speech," Shropshire was elected president for the next two years. He was also newly selected as the chairperson for a ten person committee of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), the largest organization in the world that deals with admissions and enrollment.

Shropshire has been a part of the Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education since 1973, just two years after the organization was founded by K. Leroy Irvis.

"The members of this organization are all educators including Clarion University President Diane L. Reinhard. They look at issues involving blacks in higher education," Shropshire said.

Adrian Tait/Clarion Call
John Shropshire, dean of enrollment and academic records.

He continued, "We will be concentrating on things that can be done to increase the number of black students attending college, increasing their retention rate and increasing the likelihood that they will continue in higher education on a graduate level."

This organization, which includes approximately 350 people, operates on the belief that, by gathering together and sharing past experiences, the historical problem of denying African-Americans the opportunity for higher education can be solved.

They also research and try to produce new ideas that will help qualified minority students receive equal educations.

Shropshire will preside over the next two yearly late-winter conferences, which will be held first in Philadelphia and then in Pittsburgh.

There are no ideas for themes of either conferences yet which will meet regularly over the next year, will help to choose them.

Reinhard implements new program based on goals

Global Limitations will balance university programs

By Laura Schurer
News Writer

The issue of Global Programmatic Limitations was brought up in President Reinhard's goals and progress report for the period of September 1991 through December 1992.

According to John Shropshire, Dean of Enrollment Management, "Reinhard will articulate to us what she wants us to do in order to reach her goals."

Reinhard described Global Programmatic Limitations as a "combination of programs so there is not an imbalance of small programs on campus. For example, it wouldn't be good for Clarion's professional programs if students were only enrolled in Business and not Arts and Sciences.

According to Reinhard, "there has to be a combination of programs."

A potential problem might be in the area of education. Reinhard says that enrollment in education...has increased dramatically in the past years."

Education enrollment at Clarion has jumped from 18 percent to 30 percent as a percentage of total enrollment.

Reinhard explained that there are cycles of enrollment in the business and education curriculum.

The percentage of students enrolled in education is "just something we have to watch."

Reinhard said that Clarion's total enrollment is to some extent a function of demographics.

File Photo/Clarion Call
Dr. Reinhard will implement a new program to balance campus programs.

The number of students who have graduated in our service area has been declining and so has out-of-state enrollment, because of tuition hikes.

These two factors have caused a decline in enrollment at Clarion University.

Reinhard explained that one of the reasons that there are fewer graduating students in our area is because there is little population growth in the western part of the state while the eastern part of the state is growing significantly.

"What we have done is broaden our recruitment base. We have a recruiter full time in Harrisburg. It's just a growing environment."

Reinhard said that many state schools have implemented program limitations.

This helps ensure that the university will remain a comprehensive one.

As for total enrollment, Reinhard said that "ideally Clarion could have more students than we have now."

The big variable with higher enrollment is if the physical plant can service the increase. But, she said she is confident that "efficient scheduling" of our facilities will allow us to function comfortably.

Reinhard stressed that Clarion University continues to have a fairly low student-faculty ratio which is approximately 18.3 to one.

Beck receives Kalama chemical grant

Dr. Paul Beck, professor of chemistry at Clarion University of Pennsylvania, has received a grant of $12,900 from Kalama Chemical Inc., Kalama, Washington, to support research project for the department of chemistry during the summer of 1994.

The project, designed to support and expand Kalama's current product line, will involve Beck and senior chemistry major Nicole Buck. Buck is a daughter of Barry and Candace Buck, 216 Baylor Rd., Watsontown, and is a graduate of Warrior Run High School.

Beck will visit Kalama in May to discuss research plans. This is the fifth consecutive year that Kalama Chemical Inc., has supported research at Clarion, contributing approximately $55,000 in grant money, which is handled by the Clarion University Foundation.

Kalama Chemical Inc., is the largest domestic supplier of benzoic acid and sodium benzoate, a preservative for food and pharmaceuticals, and of salicylic acid, the ingredient used to make aspirin and oil of wintergreen.

APSCUF membership ratifies contract

University Relations

The tentative contract agreement between APSCUF (Association of Pennyslvania State College and University Faculties) and the State System of Higher Education moved one step closer to a formal signing when the APSCUF membership added its approval.

Members of the State APSCUF Nominations were in Harrisburg March 3 to count the ballots from the campus elections, which were conducted in late February.

The next step in the process is approval by the SSHE's Board of Governors.

That group is scheduled to hold its regular quarterly meeting on April 21 at Clarion University.

The tentative two-year extension, which would take effect July 1, 1994 and expire on June 30, 1996, calls for a four percent salary increase for State System faculty in each year of the contract.

Will become vice president at Fisher College

Dr. Arnold leaves interim dean position

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Dr. David Arnold, interim dean of the College of Arts and Sciences has announced he has accepted the position of vice president for academic affairs and dean of the college at T. John Fisher College in Rochester, NY.

Fisher is a small liberal arts college serving about 1,600 students. Arnold has served as interim dean of arts and sciences since January 1st, 1993.

He joined Clarion University in 1990 as associate dean and has served as director of faculty research development and a university grants officer.

He also served as co-director of the Intra-System Academic Advising Network, representative to the Faculty Professional Development Network of the State System of Higher Education, co-chair of the Faculty Professional Development Committee, co-chair of the Strategic Planning Action Team on Faculty Development, and chair of the President's Ad Hoc Grant Support Committee.

"I leave Clarion with great pride in what we have been able to achieve by working together," said Arnold to faculty members in the College of Arts and Sciences.

"It has simply been a pleasure to work with such an active and vital faculty, a faculty who have demonstrated a commitment to quality teaching and scholarly/creative activity."

Provost John Kuhn said Arnold has made many contributions during his time at Clarion.

"He has contributed much in terms of professional development for faculty, grantsmanships and guiding the College of Arts and Sciences as interim dean. We will miss him."

The search process is continuing for the selection of a new dean for the college. Arnold has been serving in the interim position following the departure of Dr. James Scanlon, who accepted the position of provost at Youngstown University.

Kuhn says the search process is expected to name a new dean who will begin duties July 1.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of March 21 through March 27.

At approximately 1:22 p.m. on March 21, four smoke alarms on the seventh floor of Nair Hall were struck with an object, causing the alarm to sound. There was no damage to the smoke alarms.

A smoke alarm was activated on the seventh floor of Nair Hall at aproximately 1:53 p.m. on March 21 when the alarm in the north rest room was sprayed with water.

On March 22, a vehicle was scratched in Lot "E" sometime between March 21 and 22. It appeared the scratches were made with a key or other sharp object.

A mirror was pulled off the passenger side of a vehicle parked in Lot "J" sometime in the evening of March 20, 1994.

On March 23, a vehicle was reported to have the tail light smashed while parked in Lot "J." This happened some time between March 22 and 23.

On March 24, a vehicle was reported to have damage on the passenger door while parked in Lot "J." It appeared that someone kicked the door. This happened someime between 6:30 and 10:00 p.m.

At approximately 10:00 p.m. on March 25, a student was observed staggering in the crosswalk in Lot "J." The student registered a .15 on the PBT and was cited for Public Drunkenness and Underage Drinking.

A theft of $40.00 was reported from Nair Hall on April 4. Two $20.00 bills were removed from a wine glass. The occupant did not lock the dorm room. The theft occured between 5:20 and 5:50 p.m.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY IN GOVERNMENT
THE HARRISBURG INTERNSHIP SEMESTER

During each semester of the academic year, the University Center at Harrisburg of the State System of Higher Education sponsors a student internship program for outstanding students form the 14 State System Universities. Students are placed with policymakers in both the executive and legislative branches of state government, as well as with independent boards, agencies, and commissions. A stipend is paid for these positions. All are full time and require a semesters residence in Harrisburg.

ELIGIBILITY AND ACADEMIC CREDIT:

Each intern must have maintained a 3.0 quality point average in 45 undergraduate credit hours. A student may be chosen from any academic major. Each student earns a total of 15 credit hours: nine credit hours for the internship experience, three credit hours for the completion of an individualized directed project, and three hours for participating in an academic seminar.

APPLICATIONS AND INFORMATION:

Openings for Semester 1 (September 4, 1994 - December 16, 1994) and Semester 2 (January 22,1995 - May 19, 1995) of the 1994-95 academic year still are available. Please contact Dr. William F. Stine, Campus Internship Coordinator, 314 Still Hall, (814) 226-2612

Power window brings boy's death

A 3-year-old suburban Philadelphia boy riding in the back seat of a car died Tuesday when a power window pinned his neck in a door frame while his head was out the window, state police said.

Joshua Cory Gallagher of Plymouth Meeting was playing with his twin brother Zachery early Thursday in a car driven by their father when, police said, the power window was inadvertently raised on Joshua's neck.

The father, William Gallagher, noticed his son trapped and lowered the window, but his son was unresponsive, police said.

Both boys had freed themselves from booster seats and were playing in the back seat when the accident occurred. Police did not immediately know who activated the automatic window. An investigation is continuing.

Trout destined for area imperiled

About 250,000 trout destined to stock creeks and lakes for trout season, which starts Saturday, were imperiled when somebody tampered with a dam that forms a hatchery pool.

The water level was lowered in the troughs at the Corry Fish Hatchery for several hours Sunday, police said.

Someone removed wooden boards from the dam between 10:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Instead of being piped into the hatchery, water flowed down the creek. "

It very well could have been a disaster," hatchery manager Bill Wilis said.

The Fish Commission raises trout at the hatchery and transports them to two lakes and 56 streams in Erie, Crawford, Warren, Forest, Venango, Mercer and Elk counties.

Man jailed for being late freed

A New York man who spent five days in jail because he was hours late for his acquittal on a criminal charge was freed. Gurmeet Buttar, 35, was released Monday after explining to U.S. District Judge Alan Bloch that his car broke down last Wedneday, causing Buttar to miss a jury's verdict of innocent in his case.

Study ties beta carotene, cancer

A long-awaited major study has come to the startling conclusion that high doses of the vegetable form of vitamin A may actually raise the risk of cancer rather than lower it, as scientists expected.

The finding contradicts the widely held belief that this nutrient, called beta carotene, and other so-called antioxidants are uniformly good for people's health.

It has left researchers dumbfounded.

"It's not just a surprising result. It's completely unexpected," said Dr. Charles Hennekens, who is conducting a similar study at Harvard Medical School.

The research was intended to show whether beta carotene protects smokers from lung cancer.

Instead, it found that those taking the vitamin increased their lung cancer risk by 18 percent.

"The message to the public is: Eat a good balanced diet, be pleased that scientists are working on these complex cancer prevention strategies, but be forewarned that there are no simple answers and there is no guarantee of safety when you take capsules into your body," said Dr. Gilbert Omenn, dean of public health at the University of Washington.

Serbian guns are mostly quiet

Bosnian Serb gunners held back from launching attacks on Gorazde and challenging NATO again Tuesday, but dueled with government troops in the hills outside the Muslim-held town.

Serb leaders lashed out a NATO for staging air strikes Sunday and Monday on Serb forces surrounding the eastern enclave, and the Serb's military commander ordered his troops to shoot down any NATO planes they see.

German police seek billionaire

Police were looking Tuesday for a billionaire developer whose property-development empire was reported in financial problems. City official bemoaned likely job losses and bank shares fell in Frankfurt because of fears that German banks had loaned billions.

Effort raises financial aid

The University of California-Davis campus has launched a Students First campaign to solicit $15 million in private donations to fund scholarships, fellowships, student-related academic programs and other financial aid for undergraduate and graduate students.

UC fees have more than doubled in three years, now costing students an average of $3,800 per year, with an increase of more than $600 expected in 1994-95.

While the number of students applying for state financial aid has risen sharply, the percentage of applicants who actualy get state grants has dropped to 20 percent."

Students First comes at a time when the state's economic woes mean financial instability for many families and for the university system as well," said UC-Davis Acting Chancellor Larry Vanderoef. "Through this campaign, we intend to bridge the gap between fees and available financial aid.

We must do all we can to reduce the growing indebtedness of our students and their families."

UC Davis graduates now owe and average of $10,000 by graduation.

Two to three times that amount is typical for graduate and professional students.

The campaign is sponsored by the UC Davis Foundation, a volunteer support group of alumni and business and professional leaders from the community.

Council backs off ordinance

A proposed Chicago city ordinance that would have restricted how many college students could live together in off-campus housing has been put on the back burner.

Interfraternity Council wins prestigious award

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

The Clarion University Interfraternity Council has recently received the Northeast Interfraternity Conference Lunsford Award of Excellence. The award is presented to the most outstanding Interfraternity Council (IFC) in the northeast.

This award was presented during the Northeast Interfraternity Council Conference which was held in February in Danvers, Massachusetts. The conference is composed of over 190 colleges and universities in the northeast, representing 6,500 fraternities and sororities. Over 800 representatives from Interfraternity Councils and Panhellenic Societies attended.

An IFC must be nominated for five out of six possible award categories to be eligible for the Lunsford Award. These categories include: public relations, educational programming, academic excellence, leadership development, special achievement and membership recruitment.

"This is without a doubt the most prestigious award any IFC can be given," said John Postlewait, Clarion University IFC advisor. "I am extremely proud of the work of the IFC executive board and the many hours of effort they gave in order to make the receiving of this award possible. I am particularly grateful to the many long hours and concentrated effort Shaun Taylor has given to the organization as its president."

"I am ecstatic about receiving the Lunsford Award of Excellence," said Taylor. "Our IFC was extremely productive this semester. I wish to congratulate all the other members of the executive board as well as our advisor, Mr. Postlewait, for their diligence and productivity which made this award possible. We have made many significant improvements in the fraternity system at Clarion and will continue to do so in the future."

Taylor, as well as IFC vice-president Jamie Krugger and secretary Kelly Jones attended the conference. Taylor accepted the award on behalf of the IFC.

In addition to the Lunsford Award, the Clarion IFC also received the award for publications and Postlewait was selected as a nominee for the Northeast IFC Outstanding Advisor Award.

Celebration of the Arts

by Anji Brown
Assistant Lifestyles Editor

"Take the risk to relax your mind, attending the African-American celebration of the Arts Week would be a rewarding and inciteful experience," states the faculty advisor to the African Student Union (AASU), Mr. Lovelace. Lovelace has helped with the Arts Week by putting the programs together, identifying speakers to bring in and serves as an advisor to all.

The Celebration of the Arts Week's first conception back in the early 1970's was to bring an educational awareness through achievements, because African Americans achievements were not being recognized. Over the past 20 years this has slowly changed.

Funding for Celebration of the Arts Week is still low, but it is hopeful every year that more people will become aware of the growing need for multiculturalism, and give more support to the events.

This is the 24th annual Celebration of the Arts Week, and it's main emphasis is "What have you accomplished in the last 24 years?" Following this theme are returning Clarion University African-American alumni who have gone out in the world and accomplished their career goals.

The activities scheduled for the Arts Week are as follows:

Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Hart Chapel theatre, Nancy Sweet is going to speak on the significance of black African-American's Arts.

Wednesday at 4:00 p.m. in room 250 Gemmell, Valerie McDonald is speaking about African-Americans in politics and education. There is also a dance ensemble at 7:00 p.m. in the Hart Chapel theatre.

Thursday there will be a reggae festival live from Cleveland at 11:00 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room.

Friday the Kappa Alpha Psi is having a party at 11:00 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room.

Saturday at 5:30 p.m. there is a black recognition dinner in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room. There is also the annual Cabaret (formal dance) at 11:00 p.m. in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room.

"This is for all students. It's a chance to experience multiculturalism. We want everyone to attend!" states the president of the AASU, Ralph Godbolt.

Group exhibit at art gallery

The Sanford Art Gallery in Marwick-Boyd has a new exhibit, "The Innermost Surface." The works of John Andrews, Mary Collins, Edward Hallahan, Paul Ryan and John Sargent will be on display.

John Andrews of Oxford, Iowa, has had solo exhibitions at Luther College of Iowa, the University of Minnesota at Morris and the Print Club in Philadelphia. He has exhibited throughout the country and received numerous awards and grants including a 1991 NEA fellowship. Andrews graduated from Creighton University with a bachelor's degree in fine arts and the University of Iowa with a master's degree in fine arts. Some of his work is in the collections of the Tapiei Fine Arts Museum, Taiwan, the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the Sioux City Art Center.

Mary Collins of Pittsburgh received her bachelor's degree in fine arts from Carnegie Mellon and has studied at the Vermont Studio School. She has exhibited her work throughout Pennsylvania with solo exhibitions at the Pittsburgh Center for the Arts and the University of Pittsburgh.

Edward Hallahan of Sharon has exhibited in Chicago, Madison and Louisville. He has had solo exhibitions at the Butler Institute of American Art and the Columbus Arts Center. Hallahan is currently teaching at Youngstown State University, where he also works for the McDonough Museum of Art as an exhibition designer.

Paul Ryan of Staunton, Virginia, has had numerous exhibitions throughout the East, including solo exhibitions at the DuPont Gallery at Washington, Lee University and the 1708 East Main Gallery in Richmond. He graduated from Principia College with his BA, and from Virginia Commonwealth University with his MFA. Ryan has taught at Clarion University and VCU. He is currently teaching at Mary Baldwin College and serving as the regional editor for "Art Papers."

John Sargent of Willoughby, Ohio, has exhibited throughout Ohio, including a solo exhibition at the Cleveland Center for Contemporary Art.

Jim Flahaven, assistant professor of art at Clarion University, has curated this exhibit. He comments on the difficulty of these relatively simple paintings. "This is work of tremendous conviction. These surfaces have been worked over, manipulated, altered, repainted, taped, sanded and worked over again. The efforts are sometimes spontaneous, but always done with total conviction and respect to the surface.

This exhibit is free and open to the public and will continue through April 22. Gallery hours are Monday and Wednesday, 9 am- 5 pm; Tuesday, 11 am - 8 pm; Thursday, 9 am - 2 pm; and Friday, 10 am - noon.

University Apartments

Affordable Student Housing

Now Renting for Summer, Fall and Spring

Located Along U.S. Rt. 322

University Apartments offers an atmosphere conducive to higher education as well as an opportunity for independent living. Each unit is a self-contained efficiency apartment equipped with kitchen appliances, furniture and a bathroom. We offer a full-time resident manager to supervise the buildings.

Comparing our rental rates with campus and other off-campus housing, one will find them substantially below market rent for the area. With the exception of telephone, all utilities including basic cable are included in the rent. Installation and hook-up of utilities alone would cost and additional $75 at other places. Add this to your monthly bills,(say and average of $100/month for 4 students),and rent for the semester. Compare and save with University Apartments.

Please contact University Apartments for further information and/or an appointment to examine our facilities: 226-6880

Campus Ministry travels; helps the poor

by Megan Casey
Lifestyles Writer

Many students spent this past spring break sleeping, relaxing, traveling, or searching for a summer job. But for a group of Clarion students, this time was spent quite differently.

These students of the Campus Ministry organization spent their school vacation volunteering at the St. Francis Inn, a soup kitchen in the Kensington Section of Philadelphia. The St. Francis Inn is privately run and funded. It serves meals to about 400 of the city's homeless and impoverished each day.

Chris Albrecht, a Clarion graduate student, master-minded the idea of the trip. He had heard about St. Francis at his alma mater, St. Bonaventure. Albrecht spoke to Terry Logan, Clarion's community service coordinator. She put up flyers and spread the word about the trip. Six students signed up, and they were off to Philadelphia.

While volunteering at the St. Francis Inn, the Clarion students stayed in the guest house, which is located in the same neighborhood as the soup kitchen. The students' day began at 9 a.m. and depending on the day, ended anywhere from five to twelve hours later. In addition to serving meals, the students also cleaned and talked with the people they served.

"We received a tremendous benefit," said Albrecht. "A lot of the people we served meals to want to be self-sufficient, but they can't be." He also believes that staying in the area was beneficial. "Seeing all the crime and drugs and poverty really makes you appreciate what you need and what you want. There's a big difference."

The Campus Ministry group is planning on making a return trip to St. Francis Inn in the fall 1994 semester. Anyone who is interested in this or any other community service project can look for flyers on campus or contact Terry Logan at 226-2711 in room 266 Gemmell.

Award-winning poet to read at Clarion

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Li-Young Lee will be reading poetry at Clarion University on Thursday, April 14 at 7 pm in Still Hall's Carter Auditorium.

Lee was born in 1957 in Jakarta, Indonesia, of Chinese parents. In 1969 he and his family fled Indonesia and traveled throughout Hong Kong, Macau and Japan until they arrived in America.

Lee's poems have appeared in a variety of major literary journals. His poems have also been selected for inclusion in three different editions of The Pushcart Prizes: Best of the Small Presses.

Lee's first book of poems, Rose, was published in 1986 and awarded New York University's Delmore Schwartz Memorial Poetry Award.

Known as "explosive and earthy," Lee's poems are often about family. In 1989 he was published by BOA Editions, Ltd., and was also featured by Bill Moyers in the PBS television series: "Moyers: The Power of the Word."

Many foundations have awarded Lee with grants, fellowships and awards. In 1990, "The City in Which I Love You," by Lee was published and became The Academy of American Poet's Lamont selection of 1990.

Lee has studied at the Universities of Pittsburgh, Arizona and New York-College at Brockport. He has taught at various universities and has read poetry at colleges and cultural centers across the United States.

The students' day began at 9 a.m. and depending on the day, ended anywhere from five to twelve hours later. In addition to serving meals, the students also cleaned and talked with the people they served.

"We received a tremendous benefit," said Albrecht. "A lot of the people we served meals to want to be self-sufficient, but they can't be." He also believes that staying in the area was beneficial. "Seeing all the crime and drugs and poverty really makes you appreciate what you need and what you want. There's a big difference."

Award-winning poet to read at Clarion

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Li-Young Lee will be reading poetry at Clarion University on Thursday, April 14 at 7 pm in Still Hall's Carter Auditorium.

Lee was born in 1957 in Jakarta, Indonesia, of Chinese parents. In 1969 he and his family fled Indonesia and traveled throughout Hong Kong, Macau and Japan until they arrived in America.

Lee's poems have appeared in a variety of major literary journals. His poems have also been selected for inclusion in three different editions of The Pushcart Prizes: Best of the Small Presses.

Lee's first book of poems, Rose, was published in 1986 and awarded New York University's Delmore Schwartz Memorial Poetry Award.

Known as "explosive and earthy," Lee's poems are often about family. In 1989 he was published by BOA Editions, Ltd., and was also featured by Bill Moyers in the PBS television series: "Moyers: The Power of the Word."

Many foundations have awarded Lee with grants, fellowships and awards. In 1990, "The City in Which I Love You," by Lee was published and became The Academy of American Poet's Lamont selection of 1990.

Lee has studied at the Universities of Pittsburgh, Arizona and New York-College at Brockport. He has taught at various universities and has read poetry at colleges and cultural centers across the United States.

Wild Kingdom

By Anthony Rubino, Jr.

"My boyfriend and I broke up. He wanted to get married, and I didn't want him to."—Rita Rudner

And now, another real-life fairy tale.

A Love Story

Once upon a time, there lived two praying mantises: Morris and Mimi Mantis. They met one warm day on a branch high up in an oak tree and were immediately drawn to each other. After a long and happy courtship they decided to mate. When they were done Morris gazed lovingly into Mimi's eyes. This was the happiest moment of his young life. "Oh Mimi!", he cooed, "Soon we will be blessed with beautiful and precious little children!"

She returned his gaze and smiled. "What do ya mean 'we'?!" said Mimi. Then she ate him.

The End.

-The Associated Press reported in August on the growing movement in Muslim countries to abandon the ancient tradition of permitting husbands to divorce their wives by shouting "Talaq!" three times. Pakistan, Turkey, Syria and Indonesia are among the nations that have abandoned the tradition, but it continues in India. In India, a man may either shout "Talaq" three times at once, with the divorce effective four months later, or shout "Talaq" one time during each of three consecutive menstrual periods and be divorced immediately after the third shout.

-In August near Denver, two Tarahumara Indians from northern Mexico, one aged 55, finished first and second in the U.S.'s highest-altitude 100-mile race, the Leadville 100, even though the Indians were the only runners not wearing conventional running shoes. Both wore homemade sandals made from used automobile tires.

-In Commerce City, Colorado in July, a 39-year-old man riding a motorcycle on U.S. 85 was killed when a 40-pound dog fell off an overhead railroad bridge on top of him, causing him to lose control of the cycle and collide with a truck.

-Last year, Tel Aviv University and the Warner-Lambert Co. sponsored the First International Workshop on Bad Breath. Shlomo Goren, former chief rabbi of Israel, told the conference that Jewish law makes bad breath a legitimate ground for divorce. (One study by the Kyushu Dental college in Japan used human sniffers to categorize the smells in the mouths of 2,600 subjects.)

-A bill introduced in the Georgia legislature in January by Representative Doug Teper of Alabama would require warnings in all hotel rooms that fornication, adultery and sodomy are illegal in the state. The bill also requires that the warnings be in Braille and "internationally recognized symbols," which were not specified.

-In December, India's Pioneer newspaper reported that U.S. corporations' donations of relief goods for the victims of the September earthquake in rural Maharashtra state included the seldom-used products dental floss, contact lens cleaner and lubricants for sexual intercourse. The newspaper reported that an illiterate barber mistook the lubricant for shaving cream and used it on customers.

-Darpan Patel, 20, was arrested in Glastonbury, England, in August after he had gone to the local police station to ask a question about his driver's license. According to police, when they asked, Patel freely gave his name. However, he also told officers that there might be a warrant currently outstanding for his arrest, that he didn't have time to deal with it right then, but that he would come back later to take care of it. Officers checked, found the warrant, and promptly arrested him.

-In what might set a new U.S. record for reluctance to part with deceased relatives, neighbors found the mummified body of Georgia Farrell lying on her sofa in Boise, Idaho, in March. Authorities said she probably died in 1987 at the age of 88, but that the death was never reported by her son, Robert, who lived in the house. One neighbor said she often asked Robert where his mother was, and that Robert replied, "Oh, she's in (the house)."

Faculty Spotlight

Getting to know faculty is beneficial

by Keith Mient
Lifestyles Writer

As students attending a university, we essentially lead active and busy lives. We rarely ever think of talking more with a professor unless a grade is an issue.

Mr. Bill Adams is an easy-going, fair and all-around exemplary professor. He is an educator in the communication department and teaches Writing for Media at the Venango campus. He was called to teach in February to substitute for Mr. William Lloyd's classes. Lloyd suffered a stroke and was prevented from performing his teaching duties.

Adams is private and modest, however, he does take his priorities and committments seriously. He is actively involved off-campus as well, even though he commutes a few days a week from one campus to the other.

When not lecturing on the effectiveness of communication, Adams coaches the boys' basketball team at Cranberry Junior High School. He's been the coach of the team for a number of years now and takes eminent pride in it.

In May 1986, Adams graduated from Clarion University with a bachelor's degree in communication. The following semester he began his studies towards his master's degree in communication, which he also received from Clarion University in December 1989.

"Since I've been back, one of the major changes that I've noticed is the progress the communication department has made. One of the best improvements is the computer facilities for students and the updated Reproduction Graphics lab. These small but important advances give students such an advantage in their course work," said Adams.

As for what changes in student behavior and facilities, Adams said little on the subject. "Facilities for students are much better then when I went here. They (students) have Gemmell Complex, Tippin Gym and the (Pierce) plantetarium. About the students themselves, there seems to be a steady growth in fraternities and sororities. With the issue of the environment, students are now recycling and know what they have to do in preserving the environment," he concluded.

Becoming involved in an extra-curricular activity(ies) in college is an essential element in the communication major.

"I feel students majoring in this field should join as many organizations as possible, but only if time permits them to do so. These organizations will give background and experience the student can use later," said Adams.

Adams also suggested taking the summer sessions to become more involved in the activities. "These are only a few 'hints' for every communication major at Clarion and I hope they will keep these things in mind."

Becoming more socially acquainted with your professors can be a rewarding, and educational experience. The faculty is there to help the students both inside and outside the classroom.

A season re-cap...

Lady Eagles close out successful season

by Nathan Kahl
Sorts Editor

The Clarion University women's basketball team recently finished their season with a loss to North Alabama in the national playoffs. While the team again came one victory short of reaching their goal of a Final Four appearance, this can hardly be considered an unsuccessful season.

Coach Gie Parsons and staff continued their formation of a basketball dynasty this season. Clarion finished this season with 26-4 mark, capturing their fourth PSAC-West crown in four years. They also won their third PSAC crown in four years, and again advanced to the Elite Eight of the Division II playoffs.

In her five seasons at Clarion, Parsons has an overall record of 108-39 and a PSAC-West record of 43-17. The last four seasons, the team is 41-7 in conference play.

"It's been a very exciting year for Clarion women's basketball," said Parsons. "I'm very proud to be a part of this team and their accomplishments. What was so exceptional about this team was their desire to win. It seemed no matter how far down we were, they always found a way to win."

Clarion started off the season well, but didn't realize just how good they were until they hosted the Clarion Classic. Three of the nation's best women's basketball teams, Pitt-Johnstown, Bentley, and defending champ North Dakota State, came to town.

The Golden Eagles first beat UPJ 79-72, then dismantled NDSU. Shannon Coakley was named tourney MVP, and Carlita Jones and Mona Gaffney were named to the all-tourney team.

In January Clarion stood as high as #2 on the national poll. They were 12-1, with the one loss coming to the Mercyhurst Lakers while the Eagles were on a difficult road trip to Erie.

The Eagles then won four of five conference games before traveling to play powerhouse Pace in New York. Pace narrowly beat Clarion, 62-60.

Coach Parsons said, "That was the turning point for our team. After the loss to Pace, the coaching staff sat down with the team and discussed the season at that point and what we wanted to accomplish for the rest of the season."

Clarion reeled off 12 wins in a row, beating Cal in the last regular season game to give Clarion the West crown. The Eagles then went to the PSAC championships, but they were without point guard Amy Migyanka who had injured her anterior cruciate ligament and was out for the season. The Eagles narrowly beat Bloomsburg 69-64, and then beat California in dramatic fashion 71-69.

Clarion went to the national playoffs next, and avenged the earlier loss to the Lakers with a 87-76 win. Clarion then had to travel to face Pace again, and again got revenge. The final score was 71-67, and Clarion was off to North Dakota State to play North Alabama in the round of eight.

Clarion led for nearly 39 minutes, sometimes with a lead as big as double digits before things started to slip away. North Alabama began to press Clarion hard and Clarion had difficult handling it. When they did break it, they had trouble running their offense smoothly. The Eagles eventually fell 75-69.

While the Eagles hopes of a national championship were dashed, their spirits certainly weren't. The Lady Eagles are a bona fide national power, and they will continue on this road of success for many years to come.

Dickie V says, "She's my underdog baby!"

Coon in national three point shooting contest

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

If you were channel surfing Easter afternoon and stopped on ESPN to see Amy Coon firing three pointers to the tune of Dick Vitale's voice, you weren't hallucinating.

Clarion's talented guard was invited to participate in the 6th Annual College Basketball Slam Dunk & 3 Point Shooting Competition, held in conjunction with the Final Four. Of the eight women in the event, Coon was the only non-Division I player selected for the competition. This should come as no surprise however, as Coon is the all-time NCAA (all divisions) leader in three pointers made and attempted, going 365 of 1028 on her career. She also holds the NCAA Division II record for consecutive game with a three point field goal, at 51.

The contest was held in Rock Hill, South Carolina at Winthrop Arena. The first event that the women participated in was the Buzzer Beater competition, in which a player had six seconds to take the ball from one end of the court to the other while dribbling through several obstacles. The player had to get a shot off before the buzzer sounded. Coon's first attempt bounced off the front of the rim. In the first round, only one player, Kristin Follis, made the shot, that being a banked-in shot from three point land. Coon needed to make her second attempt to even hope of tying her up and moving into a tie-breaker. On Coon's second attempt, however, she bobbled the ball as she was getting set to shoot and it slipped out of her hand.

"I had a lot of time to get my shot off that time. I was trying to shoot before I had control of the ball," noted Coon. Follis' one shot stood.

Next came the three point shooting contest in which players had 60 seconds to shoot balls from five different areas around the three point arc. Coon was the first player to compete and this certainly didn't help with the pressure.

"I was hoping that I'd be somewhere in the middle and see what everybody else was doing," said Coon. Coon really didn't have a chance to warm up any, and started off cold. However, she did score twelve points in the shoot-off, which by the time all the players had shot, was good enough for a fourth place tie.

Coon was then involved in a shoot out with Missy Croshaw to decide who would advance into the semifinals. Coon lost the 24 second tie-breaker to Croshaw 7-3. Julie Powell of Vanderbilt was the eventual winner.

Though she didn't come home victorious, the experience was great for Amy to get some national television exposure and to even be spurred on by The Mouth himself.

"I just thought that it was an honor. I just went there and had fun and did my best." A nice ending to a glorious career.

Morton, Jones named All-Americans

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Kwame Morton and Carlita Jones, both Clarion standouts, received first team All-American honors for their 1993-94 roundball achievements. Shannon Coakley received an honorable mention.

Morton, who was the NCAA's leading scorer this past year was named by the National Association of Basketball Coaches as a first teamer. This past season, Kwame averaged 32.5 points a game, while shooting 81 percent from the free throw line. Morton also hit a Clarion record 126 treys, handed out 100 assists, snagged 51 steals, and grabbed 164 rebounds.

Kwame's illustrious career at Clarion ended this year, but number 24 will leave his mark in the record books. Morton set 21 Clarion, and nine conference records during his four-year stay in Clarion. This season, Morton was named to the first team on the All-East and All-Conference teams as well. He was twice named USA Today's "Offensive Player of the Week." Morton was a first team PSAC-West choice in 1992, '93, and '94, and was "Rookie of the Year" in '91.

Carlita Jones, a junior forward, was named to the Kodak NCAA Division II All-American first team. The talented Jones had a stellar season with Lady Eagles. She led the team in scoring with 19.7 points per game, led the team with 364 total rebounds, led the team with field goal percentage at 59.5 percent, led the team in steals with 74, and led the team in blocked shots with 93.

Jones owns a total of 14 Clarion records going into her senior year. An all-around player, Jones was named to the PSAC-West first team in 1993 and was the PSAC-West "Rookie of the Year" in '92.

Senior sensation Shannon Coakley also recieved a post-season honor with an All-American honorable mention.

The four year starter had her best season this year, leading the team in assists with 131 and free throw percentage at 75.2 percent.

Coakley was also named to the PSAC-West first team this year. She was named to the second team the three previous years. She is the holder of ten Clarion records, including most career points at 1,812. She is also the fourth all time three point field goal shooter in NCAA history, and is second in attempts behind teammate Amy Coon with 1,006.

In the seven years that these two women have played, they have a combined 3,215 points, 1,504 rebounds, 435 steals, and have made 1,171 of 2,667 attempted field goals. Though Coakley is leaving, she will be leaving the team in good hands.

Wrestling team earns more honors

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Coach Jack Davis and two members of his talented wrestling squad recently received honors.

Davis was named PSAC "Coach of the Year," heavyweight Rob Sintobin was named "Wrestler of the Year," and 190-pound Bryan Stout was selectged as "Freshman of the Year."

Said Davis, "It's been a great season and we're very grateful for the honors. Rob and Bryan did a great job all seson long and they are really deserving of these honors. Rob was steady all season long and was at his best in the important tournaments, especially PSAC's, EWL's, and Nationals. His fourth place finish at Nationals was a great was to end his career. Bryan also was there all season long, but his All-American performance as a freshman was definitely the highlight."

Davis led the Eagles to a 15-2 dual meet season and a sixth place final NCAA Division I ranking. During the season, Clarion won the PSAC Championship, the Eastern Wrestling League's, and the Eastern Mat Poll.

"I'm happy to receive the Coach of the Year award, but the success of the team is due to the wrestlers themselves, my fantastic coaching staff [Ken Nellis, Rob Eiter, Erik Burnett], and all the friends and fans of Clarion University wrestling that have supported the program over the years. We all share in this award."

Sintobin finished the season with a 26-9 record including 16 falls. He earned All-American status at Nationals, placing fourth while going 4-2. He won the Gorrarian Award at Nationals for the most falls (2) in the least aggregate time (1:49). Sintobin also won the PSAC's while being named the oustanding wrestler of that tourney. Sintobin finishes his career with a 71-46 record and 44 pins.

Stout had a very impressive season as well. He finished the year 216-9, while placing sixth in the prestigous Las Vegas Open, and second at PSAC's and EWL's. He lost to All-American Tyrone Howard of Bloomsburg in the finals of both tourneys. Stout went 3-3 at Nationals and earned All-American honors by defeating Howard.

Not even in the pre-season top 40, Clarion is deserving of all the awards given them considering their incredibly successful season.

A young team, but hard working

Softball team gets first win

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Clarion University's Women's Softball team got their first win out of a very tough schedule over the weekend.

Clarion traveled to the Ashland Tournament where they faced off first against conference foe Edinboro. The Lady Eagles played a good game even though the odds were against them, and picked up their first win of the season with a 6-5 victory over the Scots.

Clarion then faced off against host Ashland, and suffered an 8-4 defeat. Next they played Southern Indiana but were handed a big loss, 12-0. S. Indiana had a very good pitcher in Karyann Osowski. In fact, coaches Burns and Pitney both agreed that Osowski was one of the best pitchers they have ever seen. According to them, she may be the best pitcher in the country. In four innings she allowed no hits and struck out seven.

However Clarion was able to defeat Edinboro, and their major team goal is to start by defeating conference opponents. Edinboro was ranked as high is 17 in last week's polls.

Leading the way for the Golden Eagles at the tourney were several players. Leslie Schattauer had four hits in seven at bats with one run scored and one RBI. She is currently fifth in the conference in batting average. Sarah Pitney had four hits in nine at bats with one run scored and two RBI. Melodi Dess went 3-for-8 with two runs and one RBI. Janene Brown went 3-for-8 with two runs scored, two RBI, and one triple. Julie Catalano stole a base for the Golden Eagles and is currently the second leading base stealer in the conference. Mary Beth Kasenchak went 2-for-7 with a run scored, a double, and two RBI.

The team, though 1-13, are dedicated and hard working. They are young team, and have some very good recruits coming in next year, according to Coach Burns. This is what we sports writers call a "rebuilding year," but the team plans to be a conference force to be reckoned with in years to come. If you can find time to come to a game, it is well worth the effort. The Eagles will next be in action Thursday on the road against Shippensburg.

Swimming team pulls in three honors

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Coach Bill Miller and two CUP swimmers recently won honors for the prestigious Clarion swimming teams.

In a coaches' vote, Miller was named PSAC Women's Swimming "Coach of the Year" and Justine Gibbons and Dan Stoner were named "Swimmer of the Year" for their respective teams.

"I am very happy about Justine and Dan winning this year's awards," said Miller. "They are extremely dedicated athletes whose hard work and drive towards excellence resulted in their outstanding achievements this year."

This is the fourth straight year that Miller was named women's swimming coach of the year. He has also won the award three times as coach of the men's team.

Miller led the Eagles to their 19th straight conference title, a third place finish at Nationals, and a 6-1 dual meet record. He has a 51-15 dual meet career record, and a 123-29 record as men's coach.

Gibbons, a senior tri-captain, finished 2nd in the 500 freestyle, 2nd in the 1650 freestyle, 3rd in the 100 backstroke, and 3rd in the 200 backstroke at Nationals. She accounted for 66 individual points, the fourth best of all competitiors. She was a five time All-American this year, and a 22 time All-American for her career. At the PSAC's, she was 2nd in the 200 back and 500 free, plus third in the 100 back.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Justine Gibbons completed a successful career being named "Swimmer of the Year."

Stoner helped the men to a seventh place finish at Nationals. At Nationals, he placed 3rd in the 50 free, missing a national title by four one-hundredths of a second. He was 3rd in the 100 fly, 8th in the 100 free, and a member of the 4th place 400 medley relay team. He earned four All-American honors, giving him 17 for his career. He was a four time individual winner at PSAC's, triumphing in the 50, 100, and 200 free, and the 200 individual medley. He was also a part of the winning 200 medley relay.

A Clarion swimmer has won the men's "Swimmer of the Year" award for four straight years. The women have won the honor three of the last four years. These honors reflect Clarion's domination in the pool.

A weekly look at a Clarion University athlete

Eagle in the Spotlight

by Nathan Kahl

Leslie Schattauer is a talented first baseman and welcome addition to the women's softball team.

Schattauer is from the Pittsburgh area and attended North Allegheny High School. While there, she played softball along with volleyball. She played the infield in high school as well, and started for three years, lettering two. She was the team captain her senior year and led her team to the section championship that year.

Coming out of high school, athletics played an important part in where Leslie decided to go to college. She deliberated over Edinboro, Ashland, and Gannon before finally settling on Clarion. Leslie "liked the campus atmosphere" and liked the small town setting of Clarion. She also liked the softball program.

"I had spoken to the softball coach that was here and she filled me in on what the program was like," noted Schattauer.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
Leslie Schattauer is currently fifth in the PSAC in batting average. The talented sophomore infielder has started each of the past two years.

She says that her goals for the future are to, "keep doing the best that I can, and to keep my batting average up." For team goals, "I hope we can win as many as we can and stick together (as a team)."

Leslie is only the second person in her family to go to college, and she feels that the chance to get a secondary education is an important accomplishment. She is also pleased that she was able to start on the team as a freshman, and to be doing as well as she has.

When Leslie isn't hitting the books at college, she plays softball at home in Pittsburgh and she coaches a summer rec team there as well.

Golfers start well

Clarion finished eighth out of fourteen teams at the West Chester Invitational on April 4.

Clarion was paced by Andy Ganoe, who shot a 79 at the event. Also helping the Eagles were Chris Brosius with an 80, Brian Fiscus, who shot 84, and Rob Pierson with an 89.

Clarion had a team score of 324. Slippery Rock won the event with a score of 291.

The next day, April 5, Clarion was at the Millersville Invitational. The Golden Eagles finished fifth out of eleven teams, with a team score of 328. The event was again won by Slippery Rock, who shot a team score of 303.

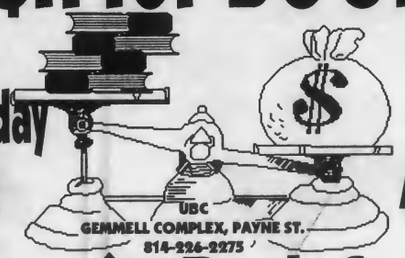

Leading the way for Clarion once again was Ganoe, who shot a six over par 78. That was good enough to tie him for ninth best score in the field.

Other scores for Clarion included Brosius with an 82, Fiscus with an 82, Corbeil with an 86, and Pierson shot an 87.

Clarion is in action again next Monday, Tuesday And Wednesday. They will be at Westminster, Slippery Rock, and Indiana respectively.

Tribe finally a possible contender

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

There's some magic in the words "Cleveland Indians" this year. It might just be the arrival of Jacobs Field, but some forecasters have picked the Indians to finish first this year. Yes, you heard me right, at the top - something they have only recently been able to achieve in the movie "Major League."

In a very busy off season, the Indians acquired Dennis Martinez to compliment Mark Clark and Charlie Nagy. They also picked up veteran Jack Morris and Chris Nabholz to give them a rotation that you could at least term pretty good. The bullpen is a big question mark, but if the starters perform, a bullpen by committee could even get the Tribe to the promised land.

In acquiring Gold Glove shortstop Omar Vizquel to compliment All-Star second baseman Carlos Baerga, the middle infield of the Indians will be very strong. If third basemen Jim Thome comes of age and Paul Sorrento has another good year at first, this infield could be one of the better ones in the AL.

As far as the catching goes, Indians fans have been waiting since the Joe Carter trade for Sandy Alomar Jr. to perform at a much higher level, and it might just happen this year. Cleveland acquired veteran catcher Tony Pena to back up Alomar, and that could take a lot of pressure off of him and bring out the full potential of this gifted athlete.

The Indians have a strong outfield as well with power hitter Albert "Don't call me Joey" Belle, and speedy Gold Glover center fielder Kenny Lofton leading the way. Rookie Manny Ramirez is starting in right this year and the Indians are looking for him to add some power to their lineup. As an added bonus, the Tribe can spell the rookie Ramirez with the more than capable Wayne Kirby, a luxury many teams do not have. Having a good fourth outfielder can greatly strengthen a team.

Taking all of these facts into consideration you may still say that these are the Cleveland Indians, a team who would draw 90,000 fans for a home opener at Municipal stadium, and the next day draw 9,000. However this year is a totally different story. The Tribe is selling a record amount of tickets this year and tickets for the first few weeks of games are sold out. It appears as if the Tribe could draw a record crowd of 3,000,000 this year. Not bad for one of those so called small market teams.

The people of Cleveland and the surrounding area should pride themselves on the commitment that they are making to the Indians by buying so many tickets. The Indians, once a financially strapped team could really improve their organization by having a successful year in a new stadium.

Teams such as the Pirates may now want to take a look at what a new stadium could mean to them. Last Friday, Merv Griffin Inc. contacted city of Pittsburgh officials and told them that they would pay for a new stadium in full, if the city would release rights to riverboat gambling exclusively to them. Don't jump to any conclusions though, because until Governor Bob Casey is out of office, riverboat gambling will not be approved. It is a very interesting proposal though. Remember last year when former Mayor Sophie Masloff proposed the building of a new ball park to stimulate fan interest, and everyone laughed at her. Well, no one is laughing any more, and with the support of council and mayor Tom Murphy, Pittsburgh may get the only thing Cleveland ever had that is better than what they have - a new, beautiful ball park.

Track teams look good

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Ron Wiser's track teams recently hosted the Clarion All-Comers Invitational. The Golden Eagles fared very well as the host team.

In the 100, Ric Giles took first place for the men with11.38. The men also won the other sprint as Thom Swenson, Giles, and Kevin Harper swept the 200.

In the 800, Chad Briggs finished second for Clarion in 2:10.14. Rick Rectenwald was right behind him for third with a time of 2:11.19. Megan Stecklair finished second for the women, clocking in at 2:39.0

In the 1500, Jen Dansburger finished third, and Lisa Benlock fourth for the women. Russ Breindel was fourth and Tiko Angelicchio sixth for the men.

In the 3,000, it was Dansburger and Benlock again with a third and fourth respectively. Scott Reffner and Briggs finished third and fourth as well. Reffner also won the 3,000 steeplechase.

The men won the 4x400 and finished second in the 4x100. The women took second in the 4x100.

In the field, Dana Harrington took third in the javelin and Mike Rosensteel was second in the shot. Joy Brown and April Thompson took first and fifth in the shot respectively. Rosensteel won the discus and Thompson and Brown finished fourth and fifth respectively. Tom Rubrecht finished fourth in the long jump and Lisa Egan took third in that event. Egan finished second in the triple jump, and Scott Shelander won the triple, while Rebrecht finished third. In the pole vault, Matt Fitch placed third.

The teams will be at the Baldwin Wallace Inv. on April 23.

Baseball team splits with Cal, swept by Mercyhurst

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

On Saturday, the Golden Eagle baseball team traveled to California to take on the Vulcans in a double header.

In the first contest, the Eagles lacked offensive spark and dropped the game 3-1. As a team, the Eagle bats were 4-for-22, and seven Clarion batters went down on strikes. Ken Stupka went 1-for-3 for the Eagles, as did Scott Weir. Weir scored the lone run for Clarion. Marc Grommes went 1-for-3 and had the solo RBI.

In the next game, Clarion came to life and rolled up nine runs while allowing only one. Chad McCombs went 4-for-4 with two doubles, two RBI and two runs scored. Matt Obenrader was 2-for-3 with one RBI, John Quahliero was 1-for-4 with an RBI and two runs scored, Weir was 2-for-3 with two RBI and one run, and Phil Pegher went 1-for-2 with two RBI and one run. Marc Keller also scored a run for the Eagles.

Jason Knight went all seven innings for the team, striking out five, and giving up only three hits.

Considering that Cal has been ranked as high as 22 in recent polls, the split was a success for Clarion.

On Monday, Clarion traveled to Mercyhurst for two more tough games.

In the first game, Clarion lost 6-5 as Mercyhurst scored the winning run in the last inning. McCombs had one RBI and scored one run for the Eagles. Keller crossed the plate once, Biertempfel was 2-for-3 at the plate with an RBI, and Kurt Pannier went 1-for-3 with an RBI.

In the nightcap, Clarion again couldn't manage to overcome Mercyhurst and dropped a 7-2 decision.

Freshman Bill Bates scored a run and drove one in, Bier went 2-for-4 at the plate with a double and an RBI, and another freshman, Chris Lombardo was 1- for-3 with one run scored.

As of April 3: Clarion's Dave Skovera, before getting injured earlier this year was third in the conference in batting average. Keller was ranked eighth. Skovera was also fourth in stolen bases. Wier is second in triples, and Knight was second in the conference in saves.

The Golden Eagle's Wednesday game against Lock Haven was cancelled due to rain. The game was rescheduled for today. After that, Clarion will be at Indiana on Saturday for a double header, then at Edinboro on Tuesday for another double header. They will not be at home again until Thursday, April 12, against Mercyhrst.

General education reform passed by Faculty Senate

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

The general education requirements for all incoming students are set to undergo major changes following Faculty Senate's adoption of new standards.

The gen-ed requirements, usually the left side of a student's checksheet, will be changed for all students who enroll after fall 1995.

According to the general education proposal, "Faculty Senate will authorize the initiation of new requirements of general education for students entering the university in the fall of 1995."

In other words, all students currently enrolled must still fulfill the current requirements of the checksheets and are not bound to the new gen-ed requirements.

However, students enrolled before the fall of 1995 have the option of taking the classes that are listed on the new checksheet.

According to the Clarion University Undergraduate Catalog for 1993-1994 "If students change majors they are responsible for the requirements of the major as published in the catalog during the year in which they changed the major.

"With the permission of the appropriate department chair and dean, students may choose to meet curricular requirements as published in a catalog subsequent to the time at which they entered the university or declared a major."

Dr. Brian Dunn, Chair of Committee on Course and Program Studies (CCPS) said, "A year from now, some courses will be designated with a general education flag. Students may begin in the fall of 1995 to choose from these flagged courses.

"This implementation will include some restructuring of courses," he explained.

"Some classes already meet all the requirements of a general education," Dunn said.

"This includes the categorization for first time college students, meaning students that attend (classes) in the summer of 1995.

According to Provost and Academic Vice President Dr. John F. Kuhn, "The proposal is not an easy document. It's hard to get some sense of unity through it all. General education is no longer considered pre-training to get out of the way, it's very important."

There are four general areas, according to Kuhn, that needed to be addressed about general education during the revision and review process.

"The importance of general education and liberal education is being underscored by a new up-to-date program.

"Many of today's jobs won't exist in 10 years, but the education of a person will always persist. A general education should make the person more employable throughout their lifetime," explained Kuhn.

"Second," continued Kuhn, "the new proposal no longer puts all of a student's general education in the first two years at Clarion."

"The proposal tries to include gen-ed throughout the entire time at the university. This is a very contemporary attitude right now, " explained Kuhn

Some studies urge, or encourage, a core or more narrowly defined program. Clarion University, however, has taken the opposite viewpoint.

Clarion has based the new gen-ed program on choice, whereby a student can be influenced by advisors, career interests and specific courses in their majors.

"Having skills and knowledge is only part of a person's education.

"Being able to apply them in one's life is the mark of a successful person," Kuhn said.

The essential skills, areas of knowledge or values should not be considered in isolation of the rest of society.

Students are expected to see how these essential skills will apply to their own living.

Kuhn explained that the general principle of gen-ed must consider the students' skills and knowledge in their application as well as a theoretical context.

Childhood of Tears

Erica Farnsworth

My gramma has always been a happy little lady full of life. She wears a bright smile and has a positive attitude about everything. We have always been close, sharing many things. As my gramma and I recently spoke, tears filled her eyes and streamed down her cheeks. She had a difficult childhood filled with hardship and sorrow. I never realized how many painful memories she kept hidden under her guise of happiness.

My gramma is the daughter of Polish immigrants who came to America seeking new economic opportunities and a better life. She is the fifth child of seven and the oldest of two girls. She grew up in a small two bedroom home with an outhouse an no running water. They were very poor and each day was a struggle just to put food on the table.

My gramma's father, Joe, was an abusive alcoholic who left her when she was in the second grade. Her mother, Anna, had to leave the children and take a job cleaning houses for only two dollars a day. As the oldest girl, Gramma was forced to take on responsibilities that robbed her of her precious youth and made her grow up too fast.

Gramma vividly remembers the day her father left. He was a fine musician and used to play the violin at wedding receptions and parties, often staying away for weeks at a time. He refused money the family desperately needed, opting for shots of whiskey and rum as his only payment.

One rainy November day, after being gone for almost a week, her father returned home in a drunken rage. Gramma's mother was nursing her youngest son, Stanley, when Joe demanded something to eat. Anna explained that there was no food. Joe became violent. He grabbed

Profit vs. Mission

Students at CUP have many educational support devices and equipment. One of which is the "school car" groups may use for traveling to conferences, seminars and meetings.

It's a nice big Ford station-wagon with most of the available options. It is available through the CSA office.

The Clarion Call recently signed up to use the "school car" to travel to Hammond, La. for a student media conference.

The Call understands the car is not free, and agrees a fee of some sort should be assessed for its use.

What we don't agree with is the current rate of 35 cents per mile.

For instance, our trip to Hammond was 2,868 miles from and to Pittsburgh. Adding another 150 miles to cover the mileage from Clarion to Pittsburgh and back, the total is approximately 3,018 miles.

Total bill for the "school car-" $1,056.30.

Total airfare had the three people who travelled to Hammond flown from Cleveland- $627.00.

But the Call chose neither of those two options. Instead, we rented a 1994 Chrysler LeBaron, with all optional equipment, total insurance package, extra-driver fees, unlimited mileage and return gas tank fill-up from Dollar Rent A Car in Pittsburgh for $390.79, including sales tax.

Something seems a little out of line when students can rent equipment from non-university sources for nearly 60 percent less than the university fee.

Of course students know they can park cheaper in town, buy most of their textbooks for less at an uptown store, live more comfortably and freely off-campus, eat more economically at downtown resturants than at the Gemmell snack bar, receive cable television in off-campus housing and, well, you get the idea.

If a good portion of the support services can be found cheaper, and yet of the same or better quality, off-campus, couldn't one fairly ask if a degree might be found and earned at a lower cost somewhere off CUP campus?

Has profit come before mission? -RLS

Press vs. Intelligence

Roseanne Vs. Tom. Billy Vs. Christy. Michael Fay vs. Singapore. Kurt Cobain vs. 12-Gauge.

These are the the headlines that have been garnering the attention of the national "news" media for the last few weeks. These are the stories that the so-called national press has selected as being the most newsworthy and important events to divulge to the ill-informed masses.

Meanwhile, the press has still to provide a comprehensive, readable and clear discourse on the many health care plans placed before the congress. The press has instead chosen to play the entire debate as a horse race: Clinton vs. Congress, congressional factions vs. each other, the insurance companies vs. the AMA. As a result of this short-sighted vision, the public now gets most of its information on health care reform from advertisements placed by the insurance lobby.

This is hardly the coverage that is needed for what proves to be one of the great congressional debates, with pressure being applied form all sides, and what may prove to be the make or break issue of the Clinton presidency.

According to Columbia Journalism Review, a magazine that assesses the performance of journalism, the press is quick to accept what any yahoo says about any new health care plan without first investigating the plan thoroughly.

A case in point: When Rep. Jim Cooper (D-Tenn.) announced a new plan that he said was right in the middle of all other health care reforms, the press took his word for it. Immediately, all media outlets dubbed the plan a new power in the health care debacle, citing as evidence most of the claims from Cooper's press releases.

The press, it seems is in some need of healing on health care.

A Student Senator's view

To the Editor:

In terms of this complaint that students are against the proposed increase in the student activity fee. Was it instigated by the students or by The Clarion Call? There are numerous quotes, and references to this survey, but are 100 students an accurate indicator of the student body? I don't think so.

We hear comments regarding the payment of double tuition by out of state students, and that we don't get our money's worth now. Great. Do you go to any sporting event, movie, or concert? Have you ever listened to the AM radio station, read The Clarion Call, picked up a yearbook, listened to the Battle of the Bands, attended the Earth Day Jam, or gone through formal rush?

Currently there are 72 funded student organizations who last year received $740,000. There are eight newly recognized and approved organizations on this campus this semester. Five of them will be asking for money next year and there are four more waiting for approval.

No matter what anyone says, this increase is an unfortunate, possibly unwanted, but necessary evil. If we wish to maintain the levels that we already have achieved, then we need to increase the amount of money for the activity fee. Not one person attended the Senate meeting to inform us of their unhappiness with the increase or to protest it...not even Rodney Sherman, or the author of the article about the increase.

Buildings are falling down, dorms are slums, facilities are lacking in every major department, yet no one complains. Student Senate gets a discount on merchandise from the bookstore and you would have thought someone backed over Grandma in the driveway. It is our one perk. If the students don't like it, I will stop using it. But I will say that I feel I deserve it. The number of hours which I put in at the Senate office far exceed the required two hours per week. And there are other very dedicated senators. On average I can put in between eight to twenty-five hours or more each week- without pay. We distribute money for organizations, ensure that students are represented on committees as diverse and important as the committee on sexual harassment, to the presidential advisory board. We see to it that organizations are properly prepared to be recognized, and meet the requirements of the university. We ensure that the Gemmell Center is efficiently run, and provide ideas for its development. In short, we attempt to do things in the best interest of the student body.

"There is no such thing as activism or radicalism on this campus"

This is an exceptionally difficult thing to do when our student body is so terribly factionalized. We have non-Greeks and Greeks, returning adults, minority students, Christian organizations, commuters, etc. But we are all members of CSA. We are all students here regardless of where our affiliations lie. We on Senate do our best to represent all of these diverse students. In my mind, too many students don't care. There is no such thing as activism or radicalism on this campus. Why don't you question the powers that be? Why do you accept things at face value? Why don't you question the authority of the people in charge of this university? Even the people who often make statements never speak to anyone in charge regarding them.

You don't like your tuition increases. Try actually participating in the letter campaigns sponsored by the Student Senate, call President Reinhard, take out a full page ad in a newspaper. Don't just sit there and complain. Actually do something.

Finally, in response to the editorial regarding "To Be Your Voice?" in the March 24 issue of the Call. In the two terms I have served on Student Senate, I have done my best to act for the student body. I have questioned members of the faculty, administration, Board of Trustees, and state legislation regarding university policy. I have spoken with groups of students and attempted to answer any and all of their questions to the best of my knowledge. I have attempted to convey their opinions and beliefs back to the Senate and the administration.

I was elected to represent the students, and that is what I attempt to do. I am not attempting to ram ideas down any student's throat. Nor am I attempting to influence any individual's beliefs. I do not, however, expect to have it implied that I am an imperialistic, self serving, egotist who doesn't care about the responsibilities of my office, and only did this because it would look good on my resume and to get a discount in the Bookstore. I am not the only person on the Senate who is attempting to do things for the betterment of the student body and the improvement of university life, but it seems to me that we still get no respect. We have taken on some tremendous responsibilities.

To oversee the student organizations and their budgeting, to appoint students to committees, to establish a Board of Directors for the University Book Center, all of these things are not what I would consider an average part of college life. I do not consider spending a semester and a summer writing a new Constitution for the CSA normal. But I do think that it shows that we do care about the student body and we will act with their best interests at heart.

We try on the Senate to act in a professional manner and in ways which will benefit everyone. Unfortunately, it must also be taken into consideration that we are students. It is not necessarily correct or fair that we are responsible for doing this, but we are.

I am here to represent the student body. I will not place any faith in a poll of students which could be purely hearsay, but I will take what is written and signed by concerned individuals under advisement.

his wife by the bun she wore neatly in her hair and threw her across the room, with the baby still in her arms. He threw her with such force that the entire bun was ripped from her head and remained clutched in his powerful fingers.

Gramma got up from the corner, where she crouched in fear, and ran to the door. She raced across the lawn with the cold rain beating against her face. She had to get her two oldest brothers, Jonny and Joe, to save her mother from the wrath of her drunken father.

The two young boys returned home to find their mother crying softly on the kitchen floor. Jonny grabbed his father by the arm and told him to get out. Without a word, their father turned and left the house. Gramma watched in tears as her father stepped off the porch, never to return.

Life without a father was difficult. Jonny, at age sixteen, had to quit school and find a job to provide for his family. Anna was forced to take a job at a glass plant, with long hours and grueling labor. For Gramma, being a kid was no longer carefree and fun. Now her free time was spent watching her younger siblings, cooking dinner, cleaning the house and doing odd jobs for spare change.

Every day after school, she had to climb the hill behind her house and pick black berries. She had to wash the berries and put them in little quart baskets. Then she loaded up a wagon and went door to door, selling them for ten cents a quart. It was hard and painful work for Gramma. Occasionally on hot days, when the picking was done, Gramma would sneak a swim in a nearby pond. She clearly remembers how the water burned her freshly scratched skin.

Most of Gramma's childhood was spent working to earn money, but there were a few occasions when she was allowed to be a kid and have fun. The family couldn't afford elaborate toys and games so they kept things simple and made do with what they had. Gramma and her sister used to cut pictures out of expired Sears catalogs and make dolls and dresses. The sisters spent hours playing paper dolls and store keeper under the apple tree in the back yard.

Another bright spot in Gramma's life was graduating from high school and having the opportunity to attend a commercial community college. She worked as a nanny for a wealthy couple to pay her own tuition. Sadly, though, a short time after she enrolled, WWII broke out and all four of her older brothers were drafted into the armed forces. Gramma was forced to leave school and help her mother at home. Gramma's mother couldn't read or write English so Gramma was responsible for paying the bills and taking care of the correspondence with the boys overseas. It was always a relief to receive a letter from one of her brothers and hear that they were all right.

On June 5, 1945, instead of a letter, a war alarm was delivered to their home. Anna hysterically handed the envelope to my gramma screaming, "Hanna, my Joey's dead!" Gramma tried to reassure her, saying, "You don't know that, he may just be wounded." But deep down she knew her mother was right. With a lump in her throat, she read these words:

Sgt. Joe Orinko was killed in action on the Luzon Islands.

He was a tailgunner on a huge aircraft and after 35 successful missions he would have been discharged and allowed to come home. Joe Orinko died on his 33rd mission.

The family fell to pieces after Joe's death. He was buried overseas because the family couldn't afford to have his body flown home. Anna was an emotional wreck and would not settle until her son was brought home to rest. She saved every spare cent, and after two years, had enough money for his passage home. He was given an official military funeral and buried in a nearby cemetery. Finally Anna could rest.

Just as the family was picking up the pieces of their shattered lives, tragedy struck again.

It was Thanksgiving, and all of the surviving boys were coming home. This was the first holiday since the war that the family would be together to celebrate. But this Thanksgiving there wasn't much to be thankful for.

Stanley, the youngest son, and his best friend were hitch-hiking home that Thursday morning. They were about a half an hour away from home when they were picked up by a drunk driver. Only a quarter of a mile down the road, their car skidded off the highway and smashed into a tree. Stanley and his friend were killed instantly. The driver of the car walked away from the scene of the accident.

Stanley's body was mutilated. Not a single bone in his body was larger than an egg. Using Stanley's military picture, it took the mortician 33 hours to reassemble his body.

The families of the two deceased boys decided that it would be best to have the funeral services held together. The entire town came together and showered the mourning families with flowers and plates of food. When the service was over, Stanley was placed in the ground to rest beside his brother Joe.

The family struggled to stay on their feet after the loss of their beloved Stan. The suffering seemed endless, and Gramma wondered how much more her mother could endure. With a deep faith in God, the family stuck together and drew strength from each other. Together they could get through anything.

With so many tragedies in her childhood, I asked Gramma if she would like to change anything about her life. With a sigh and a small smile, she said she wouldn't change a thing because those tragedies happened for a reason and she feels she is a stronger person because of them. She also believes that every event in her life, big and small, has shaped her and made her into the person she is today - the person I know and love.

Illnesses caused by food served at conference

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

A number of the people who fell ill following the March 25-26 Women's Conference held at Clarion University were the victims of a food-borne illness of unknown causes.

That, according to Marc Dorman, district epidemiologist for the state health department.

"It was a food-borne outbreak," said Dorman, "but we can't identify any one specific organism."

Dorman said such occurrences are "common" and added there is "no ongoing problem" at the university's food service center.

Dorman said he could not positively say if the problems were caused by the food spoiling after preparation of if the ingredients of the meal may have been contaminated prior to use.

The food was prepared at the university's Chandler Dining Hall by CUP's food contractor, DAKA.

The menu at the conference included stuffed chicken, quiche, mixed vegetables, wild rice, strawberry shortcake, carrot cake, brownies and a salad with dressing.

Earl Zerfoss, manager of Chandler dining hall, said he has not been contacted by anyone in regard to the issue of possible food problems.

"I only know what the newspaper (The Derrick) printed this morning (April 20)," said Zerfoss.

"No one has been in to talk to us," added Zerfoss.

No food samples have been taken at the facility either, said Zerfoss.

Dorman, citing confidentiality, said he could not give an exact number of people infected. Dorman said a full report of his investigation is being forwarded to the university.

According to university spokesman Ron Wilshire, CUP has received "nothing from the department of health yet."

"Once we receive a report we will take appropriate action," said Wilshire.

People allegedly stricken by the food suffered nausea, diarrhea and vomiting.

One conference participant was hospitalized for three days in the Clarion Hospital for severe illness and possible dehydration.

Other participants in the conference from Slippery Rock and Indiana Universities also reported being ill following the conference, however an exact number of people affected is not available.

Betty McKisson, university nurse practitioner, said some of the students who may have been affected at the conference went home for the Easter holiday and may not have reported it.

McKisson said she could not estimate how many people were affected by the food because some people may have had the flu.

Clarion athlete faces two charges

by Rodney L.Sherman
Managing Editor

A Clarion University student and member of the men's basketball team faces charges in connection with a fight at a January party, the investigation of which led to charges in the defacing of a handgun's serial number.

Christopher T. Boone, 22, of Grand Ave., is charged with altering or obliterating the marks of identification on a handgun, a first degree misdemeanor, and simple assault, a second degree misdemeanor.

According to a report filed at District Justice Tony Lapinto's office by Clarion Borough Police Officer William H. Peck IV, he and fellow officer Kenneth Means were called to 120 Greenville Ave. at approximately 1:00 a.m. on Jan. 23 to investigate a "large fight with shots fired."

Filed reports claim Means and Peck were en route to the scene through parking lot B when they observed two males running toward the police car.

One of the males told police he had been shot at. The men told police they were in Clarion visiting a friend and went to a party with a female CUP student.

One of the men claimed Boone came to the party and "observed his ex-girlfriend with another guy." The witness alleged Boone punched the male accompanying his ex-girlfriend in the face and then "pulled a gun and fired it twice in the air."

Police reports claim Boone told one of the men he "was a basketball player and he had set out the season due to an injury."

The Clarion University Golden Eagles assistant coach Mike Wurm confirmed Boone is a member of team, adding Boone did not play during the past season due to injuries.

Police went to the scene of the party and found two empty .38 caliber casings near a car where the two witnesses claimed the shots had been fired from.

While searching for the casings, a male exited the apartment where the party was being held. The police officers knew the male and asked if he knew anything about the fight or the shooting.

The male answered, "No man, nothing happened here, but (I) heard a couple of shots a couple of blocks away and saw people running down the street."

Police then contacted Boone's ex-girlfriend who said she had "broken it off" with Boone. She said she had tried to remain friends with Boone but that "it had not worked out." She also told police she had once seen a handgun in Boone's possession.

Police then went to Boone's Grand Ave. residence. Boone allegedly told police he "did push somebody, but he did not know who it was." Boone denied he had fired a gun at the party.

Upon further police questioning, Boone admitted he had a pistol in his bedroom and agreed to show police the weapon.

Police found the gun between the mattresses of the bed. The pistol had one round loaded in the chamber and held a magazine which contained five rounds. Another fully loaded magazine was laying next to the pistol.

Police reports noted the ammunition found in and with the pistol was not of the same type found at the scene of the shooting.

Lab tests performed in Erie revealed "the pistol recovered in Boone's bedroom was not the pistol that discharged the recovered casings found at the scene."

Boone told police the weapon was not his and that it belonged to a friend.

Boone was charged because the identification markings (serial numbers) had been "scratched" and partially removed.

An investigation into who actually fired the shots is continuing. Boone, free on $10,000 bond, faces a preliminary hearing May 3.

Boone could not be reached for comment.

The receiving room, formerly located in the warehouse on Wood Street just behind University Apartments, has been temporarily moved to Wilson Avenue. The warehouse is in need of repairs and should be finished late in the fall semester, according to Mrs. Trish Karg, secretary of receiving.

To reach the new receiving room, students must go through the gates at the rear of the McEntire Maintenance building on Wilson Avenue. There they will find two trailers, one containing the Mail Room and, in the other, the receiving room. These two offices together handle shipping and receiving for the whole university and inner-campus mail.

If a student wishes to send a package or if he/she receives a notice that a parcel has come in, they should go to the receiving room.

Plea bargains entered in borough burglary cases

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

Plea bargains entered by two former Clarion University students in connection with a series of burglaries in Clarion Borough last year have been accepted by the Clarion County judge.

Scott David Doyle, 19, of Harleysille, and Brian Richard Berkson, 19, of Matamoras, were charged along with Francis Blake Stoveken, 19, of Dingman's Ferry, with multiple charges related to the break-ins at High Gear Bike Shop, Dan Estadt's Sport Shop and Crooks Clothing in Sept. and Oct.

Doyle has agreed to plead guilty to one second degree felony count of burglary in exchange for the state not persuing charges of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, receiving stolen property and theft.

Berkson agreed to pled guilty to three second degree felony counts of burglary in return for the Commonwealth dropping fours counts of criminal conspiracy to commit burglary, eight counts of criminal conspiracy to commit criminal trespass, four counts of burglary, six counts of criminal conspiracy to commit theft, one count of theft, one count of receiving stolen property, and two counts of criminal mischief.

Stovenken was not present because his case is being handled by an attorney who is a partner in Judge Charles R. Alexander's law firm.

Alexander accepted the pleas of Doyle and Berkson but will not sentence the men.

Sentencing for all three defendants will probably take place in June before Senior Judge Paul Greiner.

Five to receive awards

Alumni Association honors past faculty members

Five Clarion graduates with accomplishments ranging from cable and communication firms to Pittsburgh advertising will be honored by the Clarion University Alumni Association on Alumni Day, May 7.

Dr. Glenn McElhattan is a 1956 Clarion State Teacher's College graduate and a professor of chemistry at the Venango Campus, Oil City. "I am very humbled by this honor," says McElhattan. "I never even considered such an honor. I have been with the Venango Campus my entire career and I didn't think enough people knew about me. I just think of myself as a teacher."

A Clarion County native, McElhatan has taught at the Venango Campus since 1968. He obtained his B.S. from Clarion, M.S. from Western Reserve University, and Ed.D. from the University of Pittsburgh. He taught at Rocky Grove High School and as an evening instructor for Penn State University prior to joining Venango.

"I was planning on going into industry until Dr. Donald Peirce talked to me about the benefits of teaching and directed me that way," says McElhatten. "He told me it would be rewarding and it has been rewarding."

McElhattan has worked to increase Venango Campus scholarship opportunities serving as chair of the Venango Campus Scholarship Committee for over eight years. During that time the number of scholarships offered by the campus has increased nearly 400 percent from eight to 40. In 1993, an anonymous $10,000 contribution was made to the Clarion University Foundation to establish the Dr. Glenn R. McElhattan Scholarship Endowment.

Dr. James Cole was a professor of and dean of the College of Communication and Computer Information Science at Clarion University from 1967-88. Cole linked his business world experience with his academic background in developing the communication department during the 1960s. He watched the department grow from a handful of students to a college with an enrollment of over 500 undergraduate and graduate students.

"I consider this a capstone for my 21 year career at Clarion," says Cole. "In retrospect, my 21 years at Clarion were some of the most exciting of my life. I am happy I was a part of the development of Clarion University, particularly the addition of computers. I had so much fun at Clarion and I worked with good people and made many good friends."

Cole earned his M.S. and Ed.D. from Indiana University. He served as manager of the media division of the American Book Company in New York City from 1957-60, working with authors and editors of textbooks ranging from elementary through college. Cole cited the approval of a graduate program in 1968 and the approval of a media specialist certification program as his most significant accomplishments at Clarion.

In retirement, Cole is using his motorhome for a lot of travelling. "We have been coast to coast," he says. "Things that we have seen in haste before, we now have as much time as we want to visit. We spend six months in Florida and visit our daughters in New Mexico. We are enjoying different cultures and having fun participating in them."

Mel Mitchell was a professor of mathematics at Clarion from 1965-91. "I am overwhelmed to be receiving this award," says Mitchell. "My wife and I had just returned from Myrtle Beach. The weather was terrible here when I got the call about the award and it warmed me immediately. It reminded me about what Clarion University is like."

Mitchell was one of the developers of the mathematics curriculum for the school of business in 1966, was a recognized Commonwealth Distinguished Teacher, and was one of the originators of the CORES/ITEC program for Clarion University.

A Punxsutawney native and current resident of Brookville, Mitchell attended Teachers College, before entering the Korean War. He earned his B.S. and M.Ed. degrees from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and pursued graduate studies at Ohio State University, Oberlin College, and Penn State University. Three courses developed by Mitchell are still taught at Clarion. He received the Clarion Distinguished Teaching Award in 1981. In 1988, Mitchell and T.A. Carnahan created an endowed scholarship for secondary education mathematics majors at Clarion.

"I am enjoying my retirement," he says. "It is a continuation of life, a very good life. Retirement has been wonderful for me."

Mitchell remains active with Clarion University, serving on the financial committee of the Clarion University Foundation and a committee appointed by President Diane L. Reinhard to study emeriti status.

Jack Fuellhart is a 1968 Clarion State College graduate who has had a varied life and career style as a teacher, businessman, entrepreneur, and farmer. "To say I am honored is an understatement," says Fuellhart. "As I think of the many graduates of Clarion University who have distinguished themselves so well, I am greatly honored as well as being humbled. It is an eminent honor to join the ranks of those who have been selected to this prestigious status with the university. The privilege of being singled out as a distinguished alumnus presents for me a challenge and obligation to see that Clarion continues to place emphasis on academic effort rather than academic achievement."

A native of Tionesta, and a current resident of Crown, Fuellhart earned degrees in elementary education and business from Clarion. He taught in the Warren School District until 1969, when he purchased the Tionesta Cable Company, now the Allegheny Valley Cable Company. He organized a cable construction company to build cable, for his own and other cable companies. He owned and operated systems in Oklahoma and New York, founded Cable

Elections held in faculty senate

Senate is authority on education policy

by Ron Santillo
News Writer

New voices will be heard as the Clarion University Faculty Senate held elections on April 12 at Carlson Library.

Clarion faculty members elected into the group include; Julie Bartkowiak; Peter Dalby, Kate Eggleton, Gail Greda, Ralph Leary, Lois Linnan, Patrick McGreevy and Nancy Palma, who is the assistant librarian at Clarion's Venango Campus.

"By serving on the Faculty Senate, I hope to be more involved with what's going on at the Clarion campus, said Palma, who was elected to a two-year term. I will be a representative of Venango who can bring to them all that's happening at Clarion and be an active voice on the Venango campus."

Kate Eggleton, a biology professor at Clarion, is not a newcomer to the Faculty Senate. After completing a full-term on the board, Dr. Eggleton continued to work for the group as a sabbatical replacement for one year, and will now begin another full-term on the board.

Dr. Ralph Leary, an English professor at Clarion, feels that the Faculty Senate is very important.

"It's important for me to be involved in matters of government and Clarion University because Clarion is an important part of my life and I want to help to address the problems we may face," said Leary.

He also added that to learn more about the institution and to be more involved in the institution the governing process is very important.

The Faculty Senate as a whole, serves as a representative body of administration, personnel, etc. Their primary authority includes education policy, goals of the university, admission standards, courses of study, academic and athletic calendars, requirements for education and degrees in specific fields.

Faculty Senate deals with student affairs such as conduct and adjudicating what rules or activities may or may not be followed.

It also deals with faculty affairs as well as student affairs in how the conduct, rules, and proper ethics should be followed.

The senate serves as an advisory role to the president in areas such as stimulating involvement in certain activities, and the creation and organization of activities the president needs to be briefed on and assisted with.

All new members elected to Faculty Senate that had a chance to express their opinion on their election stressed the importance of being involved in university activities and the decisions made as to the future of it's governing process.

Adrian Tate/Clarion Call

Dr. Colleen McAleer, Speech Pathology & Audiology, is the president of Faculty Senate. The senate deals with student and faculty affairs.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of April 11 through April 17.

An 18 year old student was observed in parking lot "J" carrying a duffle bag which contained two cases of beer. The student was cited for possession of alcohol on April 9.

At approximately 2:00 a.m. on April 13 two individuals from Campbell Hall were observed stealing a sign near Gemmell Complex. Both individuals were cited for criminal mischief.

A vehicle parked in lot "B" was damaged by an unknown actor on April 13. The driver side window was smashed. This incident occurred between the hours of 10:00 p.m. on April 12 and 8:30 a.m. on April 13.

At approximately 6:25 p.m. on April 13, a complaint was received by Public Safety claiming that between the hours of 3:00 and 4:00 p.m., an unknown individual stole a "Eddie Bauer" jacket, dusty rose in color with brown corduroy cuffs and collar, men's size medium. This item was taken from the main parking area of the stadium lot. Value approximately $159.00.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

A REVISIONIST CHALLENGE TO THE U.S. HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL MUSEUM
By Bradley R. Smith

This ad does not claim "the Holocaust never happened." Those who say it does want to muddy the issue. This is what the ad does claim: The U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum displays no convincing proof whatever of homicidal gassing chambers, and no proof that even one individual was "gassed" in a German program of "genocide."

The question, then, is not, "Did the Holocaust happen?" The question is: If there were no gas chambers, what was the Holocaust?

This Museum promotes the charge that the Germans murdered the Jews of Europe in homicidal gassing chambers. It therefore has a moral obligation to demonstrate that the charge is true. Those who contend it is more important to be sensitive than truthful about whether or not the gas chambers existed debase America's old civil virtures of free inquiry and open debate, and they betray the ideal of the university itself. For the benefit of whom?

What are the facts?

The Museum's "proof" for a gas chamber at Birkenau is a plastic model imagined by a Polish artiste. A plastic copy of a metal door is displayed as "proof" of a homicidal gas chamber at Maidanek. And, incredibly, the Museum has simply dropped the Auschwitz gas chamber, the basement room visited yearly by hundreds of thousands of tourists in Poland.

There is no mention of the alleged gas chambers at Buchenwald or even at Dachau, where after World War II American O.I.s and German civilians were assured that more than 200,000 victims were "gassed and burned."

The notion that eyewitness testimony, given under highly politicized and emotional circumstances, is prima facie true, was refuted by the Israeli Supreme Court when it acquitted John Demjanjuk of being "Ivan the Terrible." The Israeli Court found that eyewitnesses who testified that Demjanjuk operated "gas chambers" could not be believed!

Deborah Lipstadt argues in her much-praised Denying the Holocaust, that revisionists ["deniers"] should not be debated because there can not be another side to the gas chamber story. This is where revisionism displays its strength. Revisionist theory, resting only on facts, can be disproved. Exterminationist theory, having fallen into the hands of cultists, must be "believed."

I'm not in disagreement with Ms. Lipstadt and her clique on the gas chamber controversy because they may be Zionists or Jews. That's disingenuous. I'm in disagreement with her over the fact that she argues against "light of day," our understanding that in a free society all ideas are best illuminated in the light shed by open debate

The Museum is so confident no one will challenge its gas-chamber gimcrackery that it even claims to have found a new "death camp" gas chamber. Proof? The uncorroborated fantasies of one man pandering to the victims of Holocaust-survivor-syndrome. The Museum's historian doesn't even know where the place was! It "may have been" near Giessen. "May have been?" That's the best historical writing $200 million can buy?

When I challenge such gas-chamber vaporings I understand I'm going to be slandered as an antisemite by true believers representing the Holocaust Lobby. These quasi-religious Holocaust zealots claim that because of the purity of their own feelings about the Jewish experience during World War Two, mine must be soiled when I express doubt in what they preach as "truth."

Yet not even Winston Churchill in his six-volume history of World War Two, or Dwight D. Eisenhower in his memoirs, made reference to homicidal gassing chambers. How do the Holocaust Lobby and its Museum explain that?

Intellectuals who do not believe that intellectual freedom is worth the while on this historical issue, should ask themselves why they believe it's worth the while on any historical issue. Then they should explain their answer to the rest of us.

The Operation and Technique of the Museum

The Museum's exhibit technique is a mixture of sinister suggestion and dishonest omission. Example: the first display confronting visitors beginning the Museum tour is a wall-sized photograph of American soldiers looking at corpses smoldering on a pyre. The context in which you see the photo suggests that the dead pictured in it are murdered Jews.

Were the prisoners killed or did they die of typhus or some other disease during the last terrible weeks of the war? Autopsies made by Allied medical personnel found inmates died of disease. Not one was found to have been "gassed." All such relevant information is omitted from this exhibit. We don't even know that the dead pictured in the photograph are Jews!

Unable to judge the significance of the photograph, and not wanting to believe the Museum would mislead you, you are moved to accept the false and manipulative suggestion that it somehow represents the "genocide" of the European Jews.

Call the Museum! Find Out For Yourself!

I'm willing to be convinced I'm wrong about the gas chambers. Authentic physical remains or wartime-generated documents would do the trick. I say the Museum displays neither. CALL THE MUSEUM! FIND OUT FOR YOURSELF! The telephone number is (202) 488 0400. Ask which (specific) Museum exhibits display proof gas chambers really existed. Have this (or any) newspaper publish the result. Then we'll all see what's what.

Special pleaders imply that to investigate the gas chamber stories in the light of day will be harmful to Jews. I challenge this bigoted insinuation! Free inquiry will benefit Jews--for exactly the reasons it benefits us all. In any case, why should it not?

COMMITTEE FOR OPEN DEBATE ON THE HOLOCAUST (CODOH) is not a membership organization and is not affiliated with any political group or organization. Our goal is to promote free inquiry and open debate, without which intellectual freedom can not exist. To those who ask, "Why challenge the Holocaust Museum?" we reply--Why not challenge the Holocaust Museum?

We are the only ones pointing out the falsehoods and misrepresentations surrounding the Museum and the lack of integrity of those who represent it. Every intellectual who visits the Museum, and particularly historians, should point out these facts to you--yet none dare. Only CODOH! Only CODOH dares to challenge the taboo against challenging the Museum!

Help us monitor this growing national controversy. Clip the stories run in your campus and off-campus newspaper and send them to us. Include the name of the paper and the date the story ran. In return, we'll update you on the continuing controversy. Address information to:

University receives tree planting grant

Clarion has received a grant of $20,290 from the Small Business Administration Tree Planting Grant program via the commonwealth's Department of Environmental Resources to plant trees and shrubs on campus. This is a continuation of a project started in 1992 with a similar grant of approximately $30,000.

The grant was obtained through the efforts of Dr. Peter Dalby, professor of biology, Dr. David Howes, professor of geography/earth science, Dr. Mary Ann Fricko, associate professor of counseling services, and Carl Larson, plant services manager. Clarion will meet the requirements of the grant by providing in-kind employee time and materials to complete the project.

Five areas have been designated for the plantings from this grant: adjacent to Becker Hall, adjacent to Peirce Planetarium, adjacent to Peirce Science Center, adjacent to Davis Hall, and adjacent to Carlson Library.

Some of the trees and shrubs to be purchased with the grant money include: black willow, pussywillow, hackberry, red mulberry, scarlet oak, common papaw, sassafras, service berry, catalpa, black ash, autumn flame maple, red sunset maple, blood good Japanese maple, and glowing ember laceleaf Japanese maple.

Although this is the last year for the present Small Business Administration's Tree Planting grant program, both Dalby and Larson expect other grants to become available so the landscaping efforts on campus can continue. A master plan is being developed that would eventually lead to similar projects around the residence halls on Wood Street.

Beck receives Kalama Chemical grant

Dr. Paul Beck, professor of chemistry at Clarion University of Pennsylvania, has received a grant of $12,900 from Kalama Chemical Inc., Kalama, Washington, to support a research project for the department of Chemistry during the summer of 1994.

The project, designed to support and expand Kalama's current product line, will involve Beck and senior chemistry major Nicole Buck. Buck is the daughter of Barry and Candace Buck, Watsontown, Pa. and is a graduate of Warrior Run High School.

Beck will visit Kalama in May to discuss research plans. This is the fifth consecutive year that Kalama Chemical Inc., has supported research at Clarion, contributing approximately $55,000 in grant money, which is handled by the Clarion University Foundation.

Kalama Chemical Inc., is the largest domestic supplier of benzoic acid and sodium benzoate, a preservative for food and pharmaceuticals, and of salicylic acid, the ingredient used to make aspirin.

and New York, founded Cable Systems USA, USA Mobile Communications Inc. As a farmer, he spent three years experimenting with seed blending to achieve the "champion" crops.

Reflecting on his time at Clarion, Fuellhart recalled the employment opportunities on the maintenance crews which provided financial aid to male students, his time on the wrestling team under coach Frank Lignelli and meeting his wife, Jan, while both were involved in a summer production of "Brigadoon."

"I have been remembering with great fondness and appreciation the professors who had such an influence in molding my character and teaching me the power of reasoning, enabling me to understand the many subject matters covered," said Fuellhart. "There were too many to name, but each in his or her turn, certainly made a lasting impression on me.

"I chose Clarion back in the 1960's because I believed its philosophy and policies closely matched those of my prep school experience at Kiski. Choosing Clarion was a positive decision made during my youth and with the background and knowledge Clarion's environment gave me, I have realized many rewards, both personally and professionally."

Virginia Kaufman, a 1937 Clarion State Teacher's College graduate, is an executive in Penn Art Associates, a Pittsburgh graphic arts and communication firm.

"This award comes as a surprise," she says. "I was aware of them in general, but I never associated it with my life. This a tribute to the good basic education I received at Clarion. That education helped to launch me on my career."

It is a career in which Kaufman has excelled for 50 years. Her Clarion education in Mathematics and English, along with writing for and editing The Clarion Call, paid off for Kaufman as her career progressed.

Kaufman continued her education at a business school for a brief time and worked at the Clarion County Thrift Plan, as a market researcher for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and as an assistant to the director of advertising and merchandising for the Pittsburgh Group of Sears, Roebuck and Co. stores. She joined Penn-Art Studio, a firm that handled a variety of assignments for some of the country's major companies in 1945. After becoming a partnership in 1983, the company downsized, eliminating its formal office, but still does some work through the homes of the partners.

"This award is a tribute to the people at Clarion and my good teachers," says Kaufman. "I was fortunate to work with people who were supportive throughout my career."

Bosnians seize anti-aircraft guns in worst assault yet

Defiant Serbs seize weapons

Bosnian Serbs stepped up their challenge to the United Nations on Tuesday, seizing anti-aircraft guns from U.N. guards near Sarajevo and shelling a hospital and U.N. buildings in Gorazde.

As politicians and diplomats from Washington to Moscow debated a response, the Serbs showed no signs of honoring pledges to stop their attack on Gorazde, a Muslim enclave suffering one of the worse assaults in Bosnia's two-year war.

U.N. officials lost contact with aid workers and military observers in Gorazde late in the day when their building was hit by shells.

Israel rounds up 400 activists

Secret service agents and soldiers arrested more than 400 Arabs and seized automatic weapons in a predawn sweep Tuesday against an Islamic fundamentalist group that terrified the nation with suicide bomb attacks on commuter buses.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who ordered the crackdown, hinted there could be further moves if the attacks persisted, and officials said Hamas political leaders could be targeted next.

Senate majority leader to wed

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell announced Tuesday that he is engaged to Heather MacLachlan, the managing director of a sports marketing firm in New York.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Mitchell, 60, is divorced. MacLachlan, 35, has never been married.

Most endangered rivers listed

Decades of pollution and emphasis on navigation over nature have landed the mighty Missouri and Mississippi on an environmental group's list of the 10 most endangered rivers.

Problems in rivers today result not so much from industrial pollution as from agricultural chemical runoff, dams and other engineering structures that have altered the natural flow of many rivers, and ill-treated sewage.

Former home residents sue driver

Three former residents of a group home for the mentally and physically disabled are suing the drier of a van that crashed with them in it two years ago.

Larry Eddy, Arland Jordan and Joseph Terregino of Meadville accused Patrick W. Durkin of causing injuries they suffered in the March 1, 1992 accident. They are seeking at least $100,000 each.

Also named in the civil suit filed Monday in Crawford County Common Pleas Court are the United Community Independence Program (UCIP) - the owner of a group home in Meadville where the three lived - and United Cerebral Palsy of Crawford, Venango and Clarion counties.

The plaintiffs charged that Durkin, a UCIP employee, drove them to an Erie County tavern on March 1, 1992 and left them unattended in the van while he was inside.

A jury trial has been requested, but no hearing date has been set.

Survey: Credit abuse serious

As many as one-third of college students have the potential for serious credit card abuse, according to a study at the University of Illinois at Carbondale.

Although many students graduate with debts that they expected to pay, such as educational loans, some could risk going straight from graduation to bankruptcy because of unexpected financial burdens that result from poor use of credit cards.

Connie J. Armstrong, assistant professor in technical and resource management, and M. Joyce Craven, visiting assistant professor in health care professions-management, surveyed 243 students and found that one-third showed credit attitudes and behaviors that indicated future financial trouble.

Some of those factors include owning a large number of credit cards, having multiples of the same card, making minimum payments on balances and being unaware of the cards' interest rates.

"A credit history can become very well known," Craven said. "It could hurt graduates in their future careers because employers have access to credit ratings."

A company might not be as willing to hire a recent graduate who has reached the maximum limits on all of his or her credit cards, compared with someone who makes regular payments.

Armstrong and Craven also found that most students in the survey were in debt not because of educational expenses, but because they used plastic to pay for clothes, gas, entertainment, travel, groceries and eating out. Only 3 percent of the charges were for books or tuition.

They encouraged students to avoid running up large credit debts be limiting the number of cards they hold, shopping for low interest rates and paying off the balance every month.

"Remember that the money you're spending today is tomorrow's income," Armstrong said regarding running up bills that students find themselves short when paying off.

Law student authors book

When Brian Kamoie finishes his first year of law school at George Washington University, he will already have one published book under his belt. Kamoie is co-author of "Deathright: Culture, Medicine, Politics and the Right to Die" along with James Hoefler, professor of political science at Dickinson College. The book, due to be released in April, is considered by legal and social experts to be the first comprehensive survey of right-to-die issues.

Kamoie says he credits a unique mentor relationship with Hoefler as the spark to his interest in medical and legal issues. "Professor Hoefler was an ideal mentor," said Kamoie. "His willingness to take me on as a partner and his openness to my ideas inspired me."

Student Senate Election

Student Senate elections will be held Monday, April 25 through Wednesday, April 27 at the following

Todd Green

As a Student Senator, I will strive to represent all sectors of the university with fairness and insight. I am a member of Phi Delta Theta, Koinonia Christian Fellowship, and Intramural Volleyball. I hope to be given the opportunity to represent the students of Clarion University.

Jennifer Keibler

I am a junior Elementary/Early Childhood Education major and I am interested in being a member of Student Senate for the 94/95 school term. I am an honest and open-minded individual. I believe in social and educational equity, and meeting the needs of the student body. I will present and discuss any questions or concerns that you have throughout the year with the Student Senate officers and university staff.

Jay Dale Smith

I can contribute to Student Senate here at Clarion in many ways. As a transfer student finishing my first year I can offer a fresh new look at Clarion's important issues as well as bring ideas from another campus here. Also as an active part of several organizations here on this campus I can use the knowledge acquired through them to help Senate make Clarion a better place for students both present and future.

Eric Jason Vollmer

I will be a sophomore in the upcoming year. Thus, I have had the opportunity to view Clarion University through the eyes of a residence hall occupant. I've met a wide variety of people from athletes to Greeks to "bookworms" and practically every other type of student. I have come to realize that everyone has individual needs. Therefore, I feel that I am quite capable to address a great deal of those needs, and will.

David Scappe

I've been active in Hall Council: I'm a member of the executive board of Inter-Hall Council (running unopposed for presidency): I was a member of the Orientation Staff for Clarion's "New Student Orientation Program": and I'm a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity where I serve as Special Events Co-Chair, Alumni Chair and Risk Management Co-Chair. Student Senators should be a "tool" for the student body and I plan to be your "TOOL": your voice.

Bryan R. Harshall

I will be a sophomore at the end of this semester. The time I have spent at Clarion has shown me many disturbing events. These actions call for major change in how things work at Clarion University. Some of these events include the major cuts of funds for groups like the University Bands, and support personnel of the athletic department. As anyone knows, these departments raise the most money for the University.

James F. Junger

As a two term Student Senator, I am well prepared to continue to serve the student body. Being involved in other student organizations and serving on the conduct board and parking committee puts me in a position to better represent you as a student. I am here to work for you, and hope to have your support.

Sean Spencer

After three years at Clarion University and being a student-athlete, I feel that I can relate to and understand the needs of all students. I'm a former Orientation Leader, and recently I have been appointed to the Conduct Board. I will be committed to making a change not only through words, but through actions. I want to be the voice that can be heard all over campus!!

Rebecca Kelley

I am running for Student Senate because I'm proud of our school and I think the best way to guarantee its future is by being involved. I'm not going to list all of the "politically correct" things I plan on doing; that's obvious. However, a general theme in all my goals is to make the campus more enjoyable for the student body.

R. James Gangwish

Being elected to the Student Senate would be giving the students of Clarion a vote that counts. I have never been affiliated with any student government position and therefore have a point of view concerning our growing parking problems and raise in the activity fee that is similar to the rest of the approximate 6,000 Clarion University students. In the long run, remember a voice supported by the masses is the strongest one.

Candidates

locations: Chandler (11:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.), Gemmell (2:00- 4:00 p.m.),Carlson (4:00-6:00 p.m.)

Sean Boileau

I feel that for a Student Senator to be effective in their office, they must constantly make themselves aware of what the STUDENTS want first. My participation in various campus activities has prepared me to function well in this capacity, representing the true needs of the student body.

Amy Mennen

I am seeking re-election for Student Senate. During my term I have served as Chairperson of Public Relations and I was on the Social Equity Committee. I would like to represent Student Senate again because I believe and work hard towards the ideas, concerns and goals for the ENTIRE Clarion student body. I wish to strive towards what is in the best interests of the students.

Joe Baker

Students at Clarion University are misrepresented because of one reason: lack of communication. Student Senate is made up of and elected by students. Student Senate must have direct contact with the student body to be effective. I will do my best to represent all sectors of the university. As a member of a fraternity, hall council and university subcommittees, I feel that I have the resources to restore communication between the students and Student Senate.

Joe Rotondo

I am running for Student Senate because I feel that I can give the students of Clarion University the kind of representation that they deserve. I am a sophomore Accounting major who is a member of the Accounting Club and Scholarship Chairman for Kappa Delta Rho.I believe that the students of Clarion University need someone who will be responsible, enthusiastic, and open minded on all issues! Let's go Pens ! ! !

Kelly Thompson

If I am elected a student senator, my primary goal will be to represent the student body in all student concerns. I will work hard to see that the problems of safety and discrimination are dealt with. I will also try to ensure that the CUP students' academic and social needs are met. I do not believe that this university does enough for the students, and I will work very hard to change things.

Ed Rogers

I plan to help assist the student body in any way possible and will make sure that every voice is accounted for in any setting at the university. I will try to help the Senate and the Student Body by keeping them informed on what is taking place in Faculty Senate and Presidential Advisory Board meetings and also make sure both of these organizations hear the students' voice so that nothing is able to slip past the students.

Becki Jones

I feel that students must take an active role in their university in order to get all the benefits. I want to make a difference for you. I think that I can make a good senator because of my contacts with many groups of students here at Clarion. Whatever I do I give 100%, you can count on that. Thank-you for your consideration.

Douglas Sheldon

I have been on my Hall Council, Inter-Hall Council, and I have attended Student Senate meetings for over a year. As a senator, I will continue my commitment to the student body - - to make your voice heard.

Delphine Djossou

I am currently a student senator and am seeking re-election. I am a unique individual that will strive for the betterment of the student body. I am involved with the theatre, UAB, African American Caucus and the track team. If elected I will do my best to represent EVERYONE'S interests always. Remember, I am a student but I am also a fighter. So when issues arise, whether big or small, I will be in your corner.

David Barrett

I have been a vice president in a fraternity, and I am currently holding this position in hall council. I am also involved in Inter-Hall and understand the systems and procedures here in Clarion. Being in Student Senate requires this experience and leadership. Our school should set the standards for other schools, both financially and academically. If I am elected, I will dedicate my time and skills to your needs.

Student Senate Election Candidates Continued

Ryan P. Hitchman

I feel that this University has lost sight of what its most important asset is: you, the student. I have heard a lot of good ideas from my fellow students on how to improve conditions at Clarion. If elected, I will continue to listen to your suggestions and try my best to grant your requests. It's time to put the "student" back in Student Senate.

Marc Schrumpf

I am running for Student Senate because I feel that the university needs more student input. Communication between the Senate and the population in Clarion has deteriorated in the past few semester. I will work to restore that communication. I have worked as a cheerleader, a member of Phi Delta Theta, Debate and Forensics and Wilkinson Hall Council. I hope to be able to represent the whole university as a Student Senator.

Terri Steigelman

I am a sophomore, mathematics actuarial science major. I'm Vice-President of Service for Alpha Phi Omega, philanthropic chair and Panhel representative for Alpha Sigma Alpha. My experiences on campus as well as my experiences with student council in high school have given me the capability to be an effective representative. Please remember to cast your vote to make your voice heard.

Christian Sean Pratt

I wanted to become more involved with activities on this campus, and I thought that becoming a member of Student Senate would fulfill my needs. It is not only my own needs that I wish to satisfy; I wish to help the entire student body at CUP. I believe that the students who take the time to vote deserve to be rewarded with serious candidates who will work hard for them.

Myke Ferraro

I am a junior Geography major. I am also a respected member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity. My main focus while holding a position on the Student Senate will be to delegate a more reasonable distribution of the Student Activity Fee. I believe that many campus organizations are given too much money for unjust reasons. If I am elected I will strive to meet the needs of the student body.

LaDonna Morton

I believe I can offer a number of different aspects coming from an inner city area to Clarion, PA. I've waited a year to run because I wanted to get a real feel for Clarion University's overall atmosphere. I believe that I will be an asset to Student Senate because I'm responsible and dedicated leader who respects amd values everyone's opinion. I will be a strong voice for the minority and the majority here at Clarion University.

"Red Ryder" last of the theatre productions

by Toni Ross
Lifestyles Writer

This week will be your last chance this season to catch the Clarion University Theatre in action. "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" will be presented from April 19-23 at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre in Marwick-Boyd. This will be the final production for the semester.

According to Dr. Avi Seaver, assistant professor of speech communication and theatre and director of the production, the play was an early work of Mark Medoff. The author later went on to win a Tony for "Children of a Lesser God."

Seaver said the play was selected because of what it offers for the students performing in it. "We want to provide a range of different types of subject matter. This play is very hard hitting and gritty. It provides an opportunity for the director and actors to work in a realistic theatre mode. It provides the suspense and intensity of a psychological thriller, how people bear up under the pressure of being taunted by the prototypical bad guy."

The cast includes Dan Brady who portrays Teddy, a Vietnam veteran, and Christine Arnold who plays Teddy's girlfriend, Cheryl. Also casted for the play are Michael Moats, Amy Beth Fort, John Rickard, Scott Webster, Matt Niemla, Holly Sena and Jill Irwin.

Tickets for this performance are $5 for adults, $4 for children and free for students with a valid ID. This play is intended for adult audiences due to subject matter and language. For additional information or to order tickets call 226-2284.

Several bands to perform at fourth annual Earth Day jam

Clarion University students celebrate Earth Day. Adrian Tait/ Clarion Call

by Lisa Ewing
Lifestyles Writer

We all live on the earth and we take advantage of it everyday. Many of us probably don't even realize it. We run water frivolously or leave the lights on when we aren't home.

This behavior must come to an end if we intend to carry on with society. We have to think about the future generations. Although we see living as "just for today," there are many generations to follow and we should try to leave the world a little better than we found it.

This year, WCCB 640 AM, UAB, and Student Senate are sponsoring a campus celebration in honor of Earth Day. This campus has been doing this for four years, and this year it will take place on Saturday, April 23.

At the celebration, five local bands made up of Clarion University students will be featured along with a non-local band. The local bands scheduled to play are Hinge, Graveworm, Weld, Get Fat, and Dork. The other band scheduled is Neogumbo.

The classifications of the bands are: alternative grunge, metal, heavy alternative, classic rock and covers, light alternative, and alternative respectively.

Some songs geared towards saving the environment will be played. Speakers will be featured between the bands, who will start to play at noon at the Gemmell Arena (if weather permits) or in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room if it rains. Musician Mark Eddie will follow the bands at 8:30 p.m.

Various campus organizations will be featured throughout the day in a carnival setting. Information will be available on the various groups, environmental issues and how to get involved. The organizations are doing this strictly for a good cause and will not receive a profit.

It's nice to see that people are willing to come together for such a good cause. Although this won't stop everyone from running water frivolously, or leaving the lights on when they're not home, it will make people more aware of their bad habits. By doing so, they will hopefully change their ways and become more environmentally conscious. Thus, it will ultimately save the world for future generations.

Preschool programs provide positive development

by Anita Carbin
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University has been providing quality early childhood programs through its College of Continuing Education for the past 15 years. The First Step Program, instructed by Susan McQuade of Clarion, and the Second Step Program instructed by Verona English are operated at the Boundary Street Elementary School in Clarion.

The programs are designed to provide social interaction and emotional and social development. The children learn sharing, following directions, and how to get along.

The First Step Program is for 3-year-olds and is coordinated to promote interaction with peers. Some fun activities include arts and crafts, circle time, music and outdoor activities. First Step also invites important people in the community to visit with the children. This year the class welcomed a police officer, a firefighter and a dental hygienist.

The Second Step Program is for 4- and 5-year-olds, the year before they attend kindergarten. Some goals for the students include positive interaction with peers and adults, developing good listening skills, showing consideration for others and gaining a positive self-image. Lessons are taught through stories, crafts, role playing, songs and dramatics. There is time for coordination games, painting and creative play to enhance gross and fine motor skills. Some of the units in Second Step this year are "under the sea" and "outer space." The children also had a float in the Autumn Leaf Festival Parade.

Verona English, Laurie Kerle and Susan McQuade instruct First, Second Step programs.

The First Step and Second Step Programs give children the experience of being away from home. English says, "The programs help to eliminate the anxiety of being alone and gives them confidence. They gain skills in using items like scissors, glue, paint and clay. The confidence they gain prepares them to explore further.

The programs aid in the transition to kindergarten. Laurie Kerle, a teaching aide says, "The students in these programs have set routines and free time activities. It is really important to help them prepare for kindergarten."

For some children, it is their first time to interact with peers and adults. The children leave the programs on a positive note, prepared for kindergarten. " I hear a lot of 'I can't' when the children start these programs," adds McQuade. "By the time they finish, I don't hear it very often."

For additional information on First Step or Second Step or to inquire about registration, contact Continuing Education, Carrier Administration Building, Clarion University of PA, 16214 or phone (814) 226-2227. Enrollment is limited to twelve students for First Step and fifteen for Second Step.

Students receive Daniel Pruehs theatre award

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

Two students have been named the recipients of awards and scholarships. Vanassa Owens, a freshman arts and sciences major, has been awarded the $100 Daniel Pruehs Memorial for Talent in Theatre Award.

"I didn't know there was a Daniel Pruehs Award until I was informed I had received it," said Owens. "I was really suprised, happy and flattered. A long line of successful students at Clarion University have won this award in the past."

Owens is also a member of the Clarion University Honors Program and she originally intended to major in psychology. When she arrived at Clarion, Owens decided to audition for the theatre productions and got roles in two university-wide productions: "Much Ado About Nothing," and "Hair." She has also perfomed in a student-written production called "Iron Henry" and appeared in the senior showcase of fellow student Michael Moats.

Owens has been active in theatre since high school, and she owes her appreciation to her Pennsbury High School director, Daniel Mankowski. "He taught me a sense of professionalism in theatre and to take it seriously. He involved us all over Pennsylvania and took us on trips. I was in a one-act play that was performed in state competition. I feel I came to Clarion well-prepared to participate in plays." said Owens.

No matter what major Owens eventually selects, she does intend to stay active in the theatre. "Performing is completely different from everyday life," she said. "You get to be someone else. I enjoy being around people, becoming close with the cast, and putting work into something other people can enjoy.

Brian Bazala, a senior communication major recently received the Daniel Pruehs Theatre Award, also. This $100 award is presented for overall contributions to musical theatre. Bazala has performed in 25 shows, both university and community productions. This is including the 14 musicals he has appeared in and the four musicals he has directed.

"Theatre was an afterthought for me," said Bazala. "My mother got me interested in theatre when she took me to see 'Superman: The Musical." I was amazed by what I saw. When I was in high school I auditioned for a part in 'Dracula' and caught the theatre bug."

Bazala was a film major when he enrolled at Clarion, but he changed it to communication after he arrived. During his freshman year he auditioned for, and got a part in, the play "Scapino." Bazala said, "More than anything I had the opportunity for experience at Clarion. If I had gone somewhere else, I would not have had the opportunity to perform that I had here. I am not a theatre major, so I feel I've been fortunate. I've also worked very hard."

Bazala has had the lead roles in several of the productions, including "Hair," "Pippin," "Little Shop of Horrors," "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," and many more.

Bazala discovered his talent in high school, also, and after his graduation from Clarion in May, his talent will be pursued in an original production of "Aladdin."

Professor publishes book about Niagara

by Crystal Janis
Lifestyles Writer

The horseshoe-shaped, ferociously cascading water of Niagara Falls has captured the awes and wonders of millions of people for years. Its majestic beauty and raging energy braid together to make an exhilaration and breathtaking experience to see.

Dr. Patrick McGreevy, assistant professor of geography at Clarion University, shares in this adoration. McGreevy has recently completed his first book, "Imagining Niagara: The Meaning and Making of Niagara Falls," which was published by the University of Massachusetts Press.

McGreevy says, "My book attempts to explain some of the human uses and meanings attached to Niagara Falls." He focuses on four interlocking themes of how people after people describe the falls: Niagara as a thing imagined from afar, as a metaphor for death, as an embodiment of nature, and as a focus of future events. He also examines "the meanings people have heaped on Niagara Falls — and expressed in words, images and even music for clues that might help explain these strange accumulations."

If you've ever took a trip to Niagara Falls, you might have visited and strolled through numerous horror and wax museums or encountered many circuses, factories, religious shrines and parks. This eventful landscape surrounding the falls is perused by the book. Also the question of why so many honeymooners go to Niagara is raised. McGreevy states that the book "grew from my interest in 19th century tourism."

McGreevy was granted a $1,250 stipend by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). This allowance was awarded to him to attend the NEH Summer Institute at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, New York, a month-long institute which started on June 14, 1993. This program allowed him to pursue an individual research project. McGreevy's focus was on the importance of nature to people living in small towns along the Erie Canal. He was the only geographer invited.

-A Montreal women filed a lawsuit in February against the Alfred Dellaire funeral home and the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal for an incident last March. The woman claimed that 3 1/2 hours after the hospital's diagnosis that she had skin cancer, she received a call from the funeral home, which somehow had access to her records, offering its services.

-In January in Riverside, California, the fiance of Frank Cisco Bridges, 43, bailed him out of jail on burglary charges on the morning of their scheduled wedding, then decided to go through with the ceremony. Later that evening, Bridges, who was reported to have AIDS, was arrested and charged with raping a 7-year-old girl at the reception. Bridges' new wife is a San Bernardino County, California probation officer.

-In August while planting flowers on his mother's gravesite in Newton, Pennsylvania, Kenneth McLaughlin, 29, became stuck for over two hours when the soft ground slowly gave way and trapped him at the knees under the headstone.

-Police arrested James Mullin, 17, in Schaumburg, Illinois, in February after he tried to buy beer at Cove Liquor by using a stolen ID card — that of "Douglas Sharbaugh." The man behind the counter at Cove Liquor knew it was stolen because he is Douglas Sharbaugh, who had had his license taken in a truck break-in two months earlier. Mullin fled but left his wallet, which contained his real driver's license.

-The Lebanon (PA) Daily News reported in March that an ear-piercing establishment at the local mall had pierced the ears of an 11-month-old girl who was brought in by her 16-year-old mother, but had refused to do the mother's. The proprietor explained that the daughter had her mother's permission, but that he couldn't do the mother's ears because she was under 18 and thus needed HER mother's permission.

-The Esbjerg Art Museum in Copenhagen, Denmark, is featuring an exhibit of six decomposing, beheaded pigs and a mirror covered in pig's blood, from March 11 to May 1, in an area 25 feet from the museum's restaurant. The artist, German sculptor Christian Lemmerz, said, "This is art that makes people think. They must take a stand on their own existence and face the reality of what happens to their bodies after death." Lemmerz said he will bag whatever is left of the exhibit on May 2 and expects to sell it to some collector for around $60,000.

-A 45-year-old minister was electrocuted in February at the Christian Fellowship Church in Larose, Louisiana as he was standing in a pool about to baptize a dozen people. According to the coroner's office, the cause was either the microphone he was holding or a faulty pool heater.

The Right Stuff

Today we have a heartwarming human-interest story about some guys in Texas who are fulfilling a dream — a dream that all of us have dreamt, but, for one reason or another, have had to abandon. That's right: These guys are building a device that will be capable of hurling a Buick 200 yards.

Needless to say, the origin of this idea involved beer. A lot of great ideas originated this way. Take the electric light. One night in 1879 at a bar in a little town called Menlo Park, New Jersey, some men were drinking beer, when suddenly one of them announced that he was going to invent an electric light. The others laughed, but that man got up, put on his coat and hat, and accidentally walked into the fireplace, thereby setting his coat on fire. This gave Thomas Edison, who was at another table drinking coffee, the idea of using carbonized cotton as the filament in his light bulb.

So we see that beer, if used correctly, can be a tremendous force for good, which brings us back to the Buick-hurling device, which I found out about thanks to a Fort Worth Star-Telegram article written by Paul Bourgeois and sent in by alert reader Robert Grimm. The beer consumers in this case were Richard Clifford, an engineer and artist; and John Quincy, a dentist. One day they were snorking brewskis, and, as guys often do when they're getting in touch with their feelings, they got to talking about medieval war weapons.

As you recall from dozing off face-down on your history textbook, medieval cities were surrounded by high stone walls with massive iron gates that would not open unless you punched in the secret digital Roman-numeral passcode. Thus the only way that an invading army could get inside was to knock holes in the wall by hurling large objects at it. Originally catapults were used for this, but they were eventually replaced by a more powerful device — the atomic bomb of the medieval era — called a "trebuchet." It's basically a long arm with a big weight attached to one end; the weight is raised, then dropped, which whips up the other end of the arm, causing it to fling the projectile.

According to an article in the January issue of Mechanical Engineering magazine (alertly sent in by reader Bob Goetze), some trebuchets could throw 300-pound boulders as far as 300 yards. They also were used to throw DEAD HORSES. I am not making this up. The idea was to spread disease. Yes, the trebuchet was an awesome weapon, and the more Richard Clifford and John Quincy thought about it, while drinking beer, the more they realized that they had to build one. And so they did. They used it to try to hurl a brick. It was not a major success.

"We never knew which way the brick was gonna go," Quincy told me, in a phone interview.

At this point, most guys would have quit. But Clifford and Quincy are not "most guys"; they are an artist-engineer and a dentist. And so they did some serious trebuchet research. They read books on military history. Then they went to England to consult with the world's leading trebuchet expert, a historian named Hew Kennedy. Kennedy is generally considered to be "warm." He has built a large working trebuchet at his home in Shropshire, and he regularly invites his neighbors over to watch him hurl stuff across the fields. According to Mechanical Engineering, he has hurled small cars, dead pigs and grand pianos.

He hurled a piano for Clifford and Quincy.

"It went almost 200 years," Quincy told me, with awe in his voice.

Clifford and Quincy returned home inspired. They printed up some official stationery (It says PROJECTILE THROWING ENGINES, Texas Division: "Hurling Into the 21st Century"). They hooked up with a welder, Don Capers, and together they developed and built an improved trebuchet, for test purposes. They've been using it to hurl bowling balls.

"We're throwing bowling balls now somewhere between 400 and 500 feet," Quincy said.

"But that is small potatoes. What they plan to do is build — get ready — THE BIGGEST TREBUCHET IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD. The one that will hurl the Buick.

Here is how serious they are: When I spoke with Quincy, he had just purchased 80 acres of land adjacent to his property JUST SO THE BUICK WILL HAVE SOME PLACE TO LAND.

"Wherever it lands," said Quincy, "it's going to stay there."

Quincy said they'll use The Big One to raise money for charity by holding several major hurlings per year. And we're not talking just Buicks. Quincy sent me a ballistics chart listing detailed technical data on the hurling characteristics of — among other items — a toilet, a case of Spam, a recliner, an Airstream trailer, a cow, and a mime ("silent, night hurling," notes the chart).

I don't know about you, but, as a journalist and as an American, I am REALLY excited about this. I'm going to keep you readers informed. And, yes, I intend to be there when the Buick goes up. When it does, I know that I'm going to have a very special feeling inside me. It will go away when I burp.

Jazz Band to present "totally Jazzalicious" performance

by Anji Brown
Assistant Lifestyles Editor

Come sample some "totally tasty tunes" at the "Jazzalicious" Jazz Band's Spring concert. Dr. Lisa Johnson will be directing the Clarion University Jazz Band in its Spring Concert.

Johnson is the assistant professor of music, clarinet/ saxophone instructor, jazz band director, and music marketing advisor.

Johnson has been teaching at Clarion University for the past 3 years, but still plays professionally in western Pennsylvania and New York City, where she is active as a free-lance contemporary music performer. Dr. Johnson's performance credits include several Broadway shows such as "A Chorus Line," "Cats," and "Phantom of the Opera"

The Jazz Band will be performing many different styles of music, from Swing to Rock-n-Roll. Songs included in the performance are: "Peter Gunn" by Henry Mancini, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" by Jerome Kern, "Don't Let the Sun Go Down on Me" by Elton John, "Mack the Knife" by Kurt Weill, and many more. To end the program, the Jazz Band will play requests from the audience.

Mike Koziel, A graduating senior at Clarion University and section-leader pianist has written an arrangement for the old standard, "Avalon," which Holly Sena, a CUP drama student, will perform.

"Jazzalicious" has no admission fee, and will be held on Sunday, April 24 at 7 p.m. in the Marwick-Boyd Auditorium.

"Anyone who comes to the Jazz Band concert always ends up loving it!" So come down and enjoy the concert and "give Jazz a chance!" states Dr. Johnson.

"Give jazz a chance!"

CUP to induct six into Hall of Fame

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

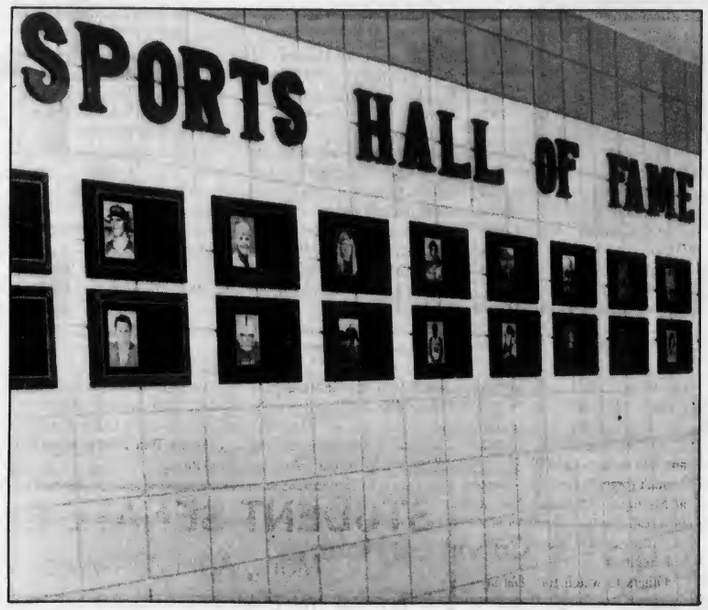

The Clarion University Sports Hall of Fame committee has announced that six new members will be inducted into the sixth class of the hall.

The sixth class of inductees includes five athletes and one honorary inductee. In alphabetical order, the inductees are Edward H. Arndt, Tracy (Cooper) Rossa, Joseph P. DeGregorio, Robert L. Kelly, John Lovre, and Donald L. Rohn.

Arndt was a four year starter at linebacker and noseguard between 1974-77. The team went 28-7-3 including the 1977 PSAC Championship, He was a NAIA second team All-American in 1977 and an honorable mention AM in 1976. He was a first team conference selection in '75, '76, and '77 and a second team choice in '74.

Cooper had an incredible career as a swimmer. In 1981 Cooper helped the Golden Eagles to their sixth straight conference title and the AIAW Division II national championship. At nationals, she swam in seven events, won seven events, and helped set national records in all seven events.

DeGregorio helped bring men's basketball to an incredible level of success. Between 1974-1982, Clarion posted a 159-67 record. His teams tied or won the PSAC-West five times, and won the NAIA District 18 title in 1977 and 1980. The '77 team went 27-3 and won 19 straight at one point. When DeGregorio retired, his players ranked 1-2-3 in scoring, with six of the top ten scorers, and three of the top four in rebounding. He coached such players as Reggie Wells and John Calipari.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call
The Clarion Sports Hall of Hame now includes six new members: Edward H. Arndt, Tracy (Cooper) Rossa, Joseph P. DeGregorio, Robert L. Kelly, John Lovre, and Donald L. Rohn.

Kelly was a three year starter for the Golden Eagles from 1950-'52. He was co-captain of the '52 team that went 17-0, won the NAIB District 30 playoffs and won a spot in the NAIB national playoffs. Kelly was voted a first team choice on the All West Penn Teachers, All Tri-State, and MVP All West Penn Teachers his junior and senior years. He also earned one baseball letter.

Lovre was a record setting receiver for Clarion from 1951-1957. In '52 he was part of the 8-0 Clarion team that won the Lion's Bowl over East Carolina. He caught 11 TD's and averaged 25.1 yards per catch that year, a record that still stands. He was named first team All-State, All-District, and All-Teachers Conference several times throughout his career.

Rohn was a national champion wrestler and three time All-American. Rohn ended his career (1973-76) with a 124-9-2 record with 38 pins. He was a four time conference champion, four time Wilkes Open champion, and won an EWL title. He helped Clarion to three conference titles and a fourth place finish at nationals.

Induction ceremonies are set for Friday, May 6 at Chandler Hall. The social event will begin at 5:30 at Moore Hall, with ceremonies beginning at 7. Cost for the event is $20 per person. Ticket orders are being handled by Nancy Lattimore, room 11 Tippin Gym.

Baseball team wins one over Edinboro

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Clarion University baseball team recently had a string of tough conference games.

On Sunday the Golden Eagles went to Indiana and faced the Indians in a double header. Clarion dropped the first game 7-0. Clarion's bats were slow in the game, and Pat Berzonski was the only stand-out going 2-for-3.

Mark Spohn started the game and went 5 2/3 innings with five strike outs. Ryan Bauer came in in relief.

Clarion dropped the second game as well. Marc Keller and John Quahliero each scored a run for the Eagles. Chad McCombs went 1-for-2 with an RBI, and Scott Weir was 2-for-3 with one run and two RBI.

Jason Rafalski went 2/3 innings giving up six runs (only two earned) one hit and one strike out. Bauer pitched in relief.

Next, Clarion faced Lock Haven in a make-up double header. In the first game Clarion fell 8-4. At the plate Quahliero was 1-for-3 with a run scored, Berzonski went 1-for-4 with two runs and an RBI, Don Biertempfel was 1-for-4 with two RBI, Marc Grommes was 2-for-4 with an RBI, and Weir went 2-for-4.

On the mound, Bill Cook went five innings, giving up six runs and two hits, while striking out three. Scott Feldman gave up two runs with three strike outs in relief.

In the second game the Eagles fell again, this time 15-9, giving up a seven run second inning. Keller went 1-for-4 with two runs and an RBI, Quahliero was 2-for-4 with a run and two RBI, Biertempfel was 1-for-2 with a run scored, and Matt Obenrader was 2-for-4 with a run scored and three RBI.

Jason Knight started for the Eagles, but gave up eight runs while striking out four. Ryan Saul, Bauer, and Mark Johnson all entered the game in relief.

Tuesday, Clarion travelled to Edinboro to take on the Fighting Scots. Clarion won the first game 7-5. Keller went 1-for-2 with a run scored, Quahliero was 2-for-3 with a double, a triple, three runs scored and an RBI, Biertempfel was 2-for-4 with two doubles and two RBI, and McCombs and Berzonski both went 1-for-3 with a run scored.

McCombs started the game for Clarion, giving up three hits in 5 1/3 inning, and striking out three. Shawn Sterling relieved and gave up two hits in 1 2/3 innings.

Clarion dropped the second game 7-2. Keller went 1-for-4 with one run scored, Weir was 2-for-4 with an RBI, and Grommes was 2-for-3.

On the mound Rob Hooks pitched 5 1/3 inning while giving up seven runs, seven hits, and striking out seven.

Clarion is at home against Mercyhurst today, and plays Slippery Rock at home in a double header Saturday.

PSAC notes: Keller is currently seventh in the conference in batting with a .432 average. Pete Peters of Mansfield is in the lead with .500.

Weir is fourth in triples with two. Steve Flanigan of Cal is first with five stolen bases.

1994 NFL draft preview

Who's "Big Daddy" and what's a Dilfer?

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Draft day 1994. The first signs that the NFL is coming around is draft day. Hockey is dying down. Basketball is in its final stages as well. Baseball is getting into its never ending schedule. But then comes the draft. Then mini-camps. Then summer camps. Exhibition games. Before you know it, kickoff '94 is at your doorstep. This Sunday is the start of the cycle.

Professional scouts and coaches have spent uncountable hours combing through game films looking for the next Reggie White or Eric Green. After thousands of opinions and a visit to the combine, scouts have narrowed their picks to a certain few. Many questions are asked (What holes need filled? Who needs replaced? Who will produce?) and hopefully answered.

This year, as any other, a few athletes have risen above the rest. The first question that most ask is, "Are there any top-notch quarterbacks available?" The answer is yes. Tennessee Volunteer Heath Shuler chose to exit the NCAA a year early in hopes of making it in the big leagues. A Heisman trophy runner-up last year, Shuler has mastered the play-action pass and is a fine screen passer. He could certainly be the #1 pick.

Another, less publicized QB is Tren Dilfer from Fresno State. Heard of him? Doubtful. Another passer "trapped" in the WAC, Dilfer also chose to leave as a junior. The 6'3" Dilfer threw 28 TD's last year to only 4 interceptions. What consistency! Just watch this shooter rise to the NFL.

Other QB's to watch: Boston College's Glen Foley, Michigan State's Jim Miller, and everyone's favorite, Charlie Ward of Florida State.

From the backfield comes a solid corps of runners who make this position one of the draft's strongest. Marshall Faulk. 'Nuff said. Leading the nation in rushing two out of the last three years, this San Diego St. Aztec ran wild in a conference known more for passing. A powerhouse in the lower body and a punishing attack are qualities that make Faulk a possible #1.

LeShon Johnson from Northern Illinois came out of the woodwork to lead the nation last year with 1,976 yards on the ground. A junior college transfer, Johnson is quick to the hole and gets to full speed quickly. He is a possible dark horse in the NFL.

Other backs to watch: Auburn's James Bostic, Florida's Errict Rhett, and Texas Tech's Byron Morris.

How about receivers? With a good bunch of QB's in the lot, the receivers aren't too bad either. Colorado Buffalo Charles Johnson won Big Eight Offensive Player of the Year award catching nine TD's and racking up 1,082 yards in 1993. Lacking blazing speed, Johnson has a tremendous work ethic and can make the big play deep.

All-American Johnnie Morton from USC is another top pick. Compared to NFL great Lynn Swann, also from USC, Morton caught 78 passes for 1,373 yards and 12 touchdowns in 1993.

Don't forget Derrick Alexander at Michigan. A huge target at 6'2", 190 pounds, Alexander is a fast receiver and is an effective punt returner.

Others to watch for: Darnay Scott of San Diego State and David Palmer and Kevin Lee, both from Alabama.

Lower down in the draft, but not that low, comes a handful of offensive linemen. Sorry, no Willie Roafs this year. Notables at this spot are Aaron Taylor of Notre Dame, Bernard Williams of Georgia, Wayne Gandy of Auburn, Todd Steussie of California, Tre Johnson of Temple, and Isaac Davis of Arkansas.

On defense comes what scouts call the next Reggie White. He's Dan "Big Daddy" Wilkinson from Ohio State. At 6'3", 313 pounds, Big Daddy can move "slightly" fast and often times is double teamed. Possibilities abound for Wilkinson, who may be the #1 pick overall.

Bryant Young of Notre Dame is another one to watch. Young truly refuses to be blocked and uses his hands well, while attacking the quarterback on every down.

How about Willie McGinest of USC? This defensive end hunts for offensive weaknesses and exploits them.

The linebacking crew is led by Trev Alberts of Nebraska. The Big Eight Defensive Player of the Year made every All-American team and won the Butkus Trophy as the top linebacker in America in 1993.

Can you say Lawrence Taylor? How about Jamir Miller from UCLA? A dominating pass rusher, Miller continually has the quarterback running for his life.

Another big one from the Big Eight is Oklahoma's Aubrey Beaves. Racking up 20.5 sacks the past two years and still solid in pass coverage, Beaves is an all-purpose defense man.

In the secondary, some real talent lies in Antonio Langham. This defensive back is a great athlete with incredible cover skills and outstanding quickness. With a knack for getting at the ball, Langham looks like the best at times - Rod Woodson.

Another hot one at the corner is A&M's Aaron Glenn. Only 5'9", Glenn has a 41 inch vertical leap and has superb one-on-one coverage. Glenn also doubles as a punt returner.

Golden Domer Jeff Burris is another first round possibility. An instinctive player who has played at every position in the secondary, his best work is at free safety.

Place kickers? In the draft? Sure! Dan Eichloff of Kansas, Doug Brien of California, and Oregon's Tom Thompson are the top three.

Punters too. Pat O'Neil of Syracuse looks to be tops with Colorado's Mitch Burger close behind.

Now there's a quick rap on Draft '94. The number one pick can only hope for the success of last year's number one - Drew Bledsoe. Who knows, maybe your favorite team will get the player you've been looking for. The draft is no longer some small potatoes event. Thanks to ESPN, it has become a major production. Fans everywhere can know who their favorite (and most hated teams) will be putting their money on for the years to come. And this year we won't be forced to watch Jimmy and Jerry discussing great strategy in their draft room. What will Barry Switzer do now that he can't illegally obtain players?

Regardless, one thing's for certain: The NFL machine is rolling again. September 4 is just around the corner. Live with it, hockey and basketball fans.

Will there be Magic in Los Angeles

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

For the first time in years, the Lakers won't be in the playoffs. Not that they've done anything since meeting the Chicago Bulls in the Finals a few years ago, but a legacy has ended. Another area in the Lakers' life that has seemed to die is the security of having Magic Johnson around.

After having a taste of the NBA coaching life, Magic has stated that it's too much work and wouldn't be worth the time to continue to coach the Lakers. By the ending of the Lakers season, you can't blame him.

The Lakers started out by beating up on the Milwaukee Bucks and perennial losers, the Minnesota Timberwolves. As the statistics would predict, the Lakers began losing to teams at the .500 level or better.

What started out as roses for Magic quickly turned into weeds as Johnson's slim hopes for the playoffs were whisped away. This brings a couple things to the surface about Magic's coaching.

First of all, we all know that Magic's return to L.A. would spark a fire under the Lakers and they would come out of the gates fast. However, we also knew that this flame would soon be doused by the talent of teams such as Seattle, Portland, Houston, etc. and Coach Johnson can only coach so much. The talent needs to be there and it isn't. The Lakers have some good young talent but it takes more than a couple players to make a team. Over an 82 game season, the charm and showtime of Magic will wear off and the ulcers will begin for the coaching staff.

Secondly, I believe Magic's presence puts plenty of pressure on a young Lakers team. If Magic were to change his mind and stay, I think the huge shadow of the Lakers in 80's would boom over the 90's team. There has been and I'm sure there would be plenty of more references to the 80's with Magic as coach. How could any team live up to those expectations. As a player I think I'd be getting pretty annoyed with the media about the second time I heard anything about the Laker's past. There's nothing wrong with pride over the decades but comparisons can grate on the nerves.

Finally, could Magic handle being so close to the NBA game without having a torn heart that desperately wants to play. In his best interest it would probably be better to continue his All-Star basketball tour around the world and rake in the praise and money.

The NBA revoloving door of coaching will give plenty of opportunities to Magic. If any team were to sweeten the pot by adding a fair share of ownership to the team, Magic could be back in coaching soon. We'll have to see what summer brings, Magic could be anywhere.

Magic had a brilliant career, possibly the most pretigious in the history of the NBA. But if he can't be a top of the line coach, or if he doesn't have the time or desire to devote himself to it 100%, then he should quietly walk away from the game and pass the torch to someone else deserving of the attention.

Track stars qualify for states

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Clarion University hosted the Clarion Open on Saturday, April 16. Several Golden Eagles fared very well in the competition.

In the heptathalon, Michelle Kaster of Slippery Rock took first with a personal best score of 3,642.

Coming in at fourth was Clarion's April Thompson. She scored a 2,466 which according to Coach Ron Wiser is a university record. Thompson and Jen Zdarko who had 2,276 points qualified for states.

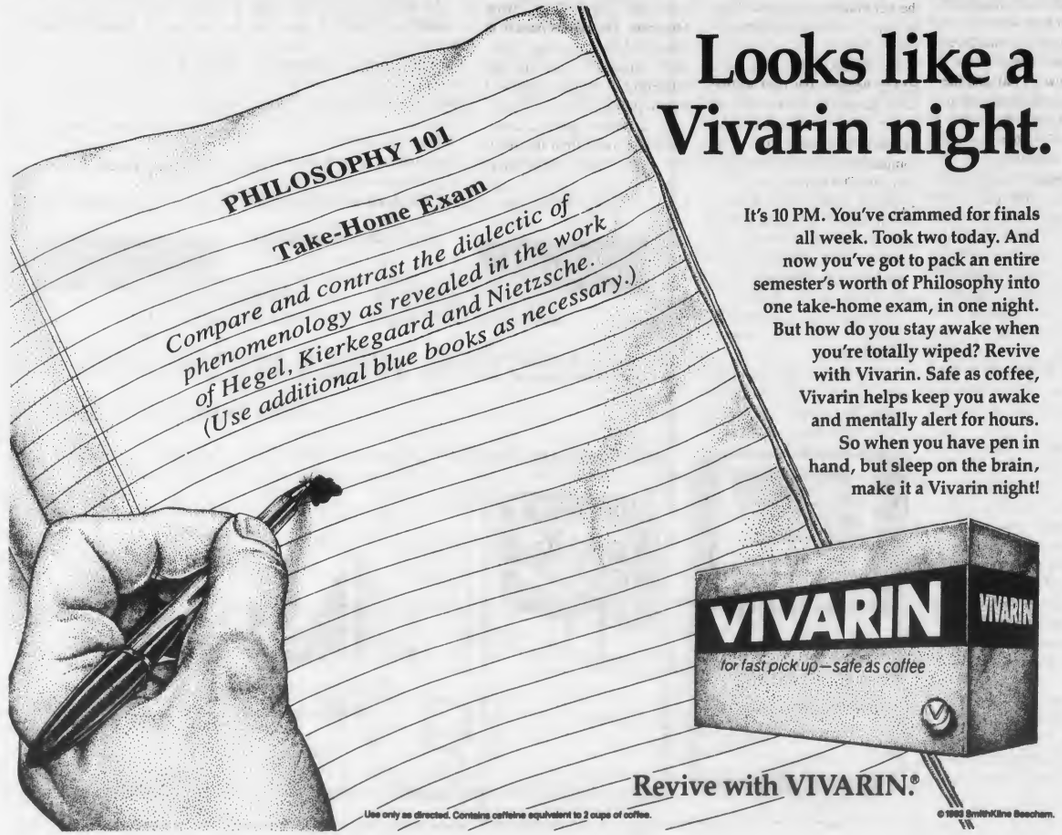

In the decathlon, John Bresnan of Thiel scored a personal record 6,384 points and earned an automatic bid to Division III Nationals.

Dana Harrington was second for Clarion. He broke Dan Payne's university record and earned qualifications for states. Jerry Varich finished sixth and also earned a trip to states.

Tom Swenson qualified for states in the 200 and Rick Rectenwald got second in the 800. Swenson also qualified in the 100 with an 11.1.

Megan Stecklair took third in the 800 with a 2:38 and Mike McKelvey was second in the 1500 with 4:46. The women's 400 relay team was second with a 56.9.

The Golden Eagles will next be in action April 30 at the Baldwin Wallace Inv. It was originally scheduled for the 23.

Hockey's second season is underway

by Eric Feigel and Kevin Zeilmanski
Sports Writers

Critics of the National Hockey League suggest that the regular season is a meaningless marathon that eliminates only a fraction of the teams. The critics are half right. The hockey season is an enduring marathon of 84 regular season games, but is then followed by two months of the most intense competition in sport, with teams playing every other night.

Every marathon has its point where the athletes hit the wall, and the end of the regular season signifies hockey's heartbreak hill. 16 of the 26 teams will embark on the quest for sport's most historic trophy. But when you break the teams down, there are really only a few contenders, a few more pretenders, and the imposters.

Only twelve teams have ever won the prestigious Stanley Cup. Six of those twelve teams have won in the past twenty years, and two teams that have won the cup don't even count. The N.Y. Rangers haven't won it since - all together now - 1940, and the Ottawa Senators won the Cup in their past life back in the 1920's.

Becoming Cup champions is like being accepted into a prestigious fraternity, but Lord Stanley only extends bids to a select few. So how do you get invited? Phenomenal goaltending and excellent defense is a must for any team to have any hope of hoisting the Cup in June. So who are the ones who have the best shot? Let's take a look:

The New York Islanders made it past the Panthers to earn the last playoff spot in the East. Mid-season the Islanders were lagging far behind a playoff spot but they showed a lot of character and bounced into the race. Look for them to possibly pull a few upsets.

The Washington Capitals are known for early playoff exits and this year should be no exception. They have no big goal scorer, weak goaltending, and a sub-par season for Kevin Hatcher should mean the Caps will be gone quickly.

The San Jose Sharks have been coming on very strong and could upset some people. A good season for a young team.

The Boston Bruins have spent some time in first place this season but having lost MVP candidate Cam Neely for the season really pours salt in the Bruins' wounds. Neely is the heart and soul of the team and without him, chances are slim.

The Vancouver Canucks started the season with high expectations but have had a very disappointing year. Pavel Bure has been the hottest player in hockey in the second half of the season, but this team needs more than one player.

The Chicago Blackhawks have had a lot of success in the playoffs the last couple of years but this is an aging team that runs only one line deep. Jeremy Roenick, Chris Chelios, and Ed Belfour may be enough to win one series but not much after that.

Those were the imposters, here are the pretenders.

The Dallas Stars' Coach Bob Gainey has brought with him the defense, discipline and intensity he played with while playing with the Stars, but the team lacks overall depth. Andy Moog being the net minder gives them hope because of his great playoff history.

The Buffalo Sabres' Dominik Hasek became the first goalie since Bernie Parent in 1974 to finish with a goals against average of under 2.00. He completed the season with a 1.95 average. The Sabres finally won a playoff series last year, their first in many years, but bowed out in four straight to the Canadiens. Their goaltending is great but they lack experience in winning. A possible sleeper.

Despite leading the league in points all season, N.Y. Rangers GM Neil Smith was the most active at the trading deadline. He acquired two more former Edmonton Oilers. But guess what? This isn't the early 80's and these aren't the same Oilers. The Rangers may win a couple of series, but history will haunt them and they will again be denied the Cup. 1940!!

The Calgary Flames have flickered since winning the cup in 1989 and don't appear to be a serious threat this year. The defense is good, the offense is adequate, but Mike Vernon is too unreliable in net. Vernon sees Mario Lemieux in his nightmares.

Of all the pretenders, the Blues have the best chance of making a legitimate run at the Cup. Curtis Joseph in goal can carry this team into the playoffs like he has the past three years. He sees more shots and makes more saves than any goalie in the league. The offense is explosive but their defense is lacking.

Now, the contenders:

The New Jersey Devils lack the playoff experience of the other contenders but they have been the most consistent team all year. Their coach, Jacques Lemaire, has brought a winning tradition with him from Montreal. The players believe in him and follow intently. Their only question mark is the reliability of rookie goaltender Martin Brodeur.

The Toronto Maple Leafs were one game away from the finals last year. That experience, especially for superstar goalie Felix Potvin, should be a tremendous boost for a push to the Cup. Their special teams are sound and any Pat Burns coached team is defensively solid.

The Montreal Canadiens have won 23 Stanley Cups. What makes them contenders this year? Simply the fact that they are the Canadiens. They have Patrick Roy and they always find a way to win.

The Detroit Redwings have everything you need to win the Cup except goaltending. The Redwings have Scotty Bowman as coach and the best collection of forwards in the league. Their reluctance to part with good prospects for a star goalie could be their downfall.

The Pittsburgh Penguins have proven they can win without Mario and Tom Barasso but haven't proven they can win without Larry Murphy. Murphy has not missed a game in three years and is the anchor of the defense. The Pens as a group are aging and they are playing for their place in history. Lemieux should be healthy enough to play 4 to 7 games in a series, but with his back injury we may not see his end to end rushes we witnessed in the past. The Penguins however, should have enough to once again win the Cup.

Golden Eagle golfers take first place at the Westminster Inv.

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Monday, the Golden Eagle golf team traveled to the Westminster Invitational.

At the end of the tourney, Clarion had a score of 331, and was tied with host Westminster. However Clarion's fifth man had an 88, compared to an 89 for Westminster's fifth man. Clarion won the tie-breaker, and was awarded first place.

Gannon was third with 335, Mercyhurst was fourth with 338, and Edinboro was fifth with a score of 339.

Individually for the Golden Eagles, Andy Ganoe shot an 80, Todd Corbeil and Corey Bierly both had 83's, Brian Fiscus had an 85, and Chris Brosius shot an 88.

Tuesday, Clarion was at the Sliipery Rock Invitational where they finished eighth out of 14 teams.

Winning the tournament was Youngstown State. Second was Allegheny, and third IUP.

Individually for Clarion, Corbeil led the way with a 78. Ganoe shot a 79, Bierly had an 80, Fiscus hit an 86, Brosius had an 87, and Greksa finished with an 89.

Clarion will next be in action on Monday and Tuesday as they travel to Treasure Lake for the PSAC's. Treasure Lake is in Dubois.

Clarion finishes out the season after that at the Allegheny Invitaional, which is held on April 29-30

PSAC notes: Slippery Rock has proved to be one of the conferences strongest and most well balanced teams. They showed this in one stretch last week by winning the West Chester Invitational, the Millersville Invitational, and the Wooster Invitational all in a row.

IUP senior Mike Wah scored a hole-in-one when he aced the 185 yard par 3, 7th hole at the Naval Academy's course.

Softball team keeps improving

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Golden Eagle women's softball team faced some tough conference foes recently.

Last week, the Eagles traveled to Shippensburg to take on the Red Raiders. The Raiders are a talented PSAC team and took both of the games from Clarion.

The first game went to Shipp by a score of 8-5. Sonya Hafer went the distance on the hill for Clarion, and pitched very well. In fact, Hafer also came in in relief in the second game, and finished with a combined 2.63 ERA.

"We were in there both games," said Coach Judy Pezek Burns. Coach Burns also noted that last season Shipp ran up ten runs in three innings in both games against Clarion. So despite dropping both ends of the double header, it was a marked improvement for the Eagles.

For the two games Leslie Schattauer went 2-for-7 with a run scored and an RBI. Sarah Pitney, Melody Dess, Mary Beth Kasenchak, and Rose Wilson all also went 2-for-7 with one run scored. Missy Brown went 3-for-7 with a double. Hafer went 2-for-5 with two RBI at the plate.

Clarion then played Mercyhurst Sunday in a make-up double header. In the first game, the Eagles had the bases loaded with the potential to drive in the winning run, but failed to get a runner across the plate. They ended up dropping the game in the ninth inning, 7-4. Hafer went the distance for Clarion and finished with a 3.10 ERA.

In the second, Clarion came back and beat Mercyhurst soundly, 4-1. Clarion knew they should have won the first contest, and played very well.

Pitney noted, "We we're so ticked off that we lost the first game. We had them by the throat and let them go."

Brown pitched all seven innings for Clarion, and gave up only one hit, and no earned runs.

"It was a great performance from two freshmen pitchers," Coach Brown said.

At the plate, Schattauer was 4-for-9 with three RBI, Pitney was 5-for-9 with two runs scored and an RBI, Janene Brown was 6-for-9 with two runs scored, a stolen base and an RBI, and Julie Catalano was 3-for9 with one run scored. Wilson was 2-for-8 with a double, an RBI and a run scored.

On Tuesday the Eagles traveled to Cal for another double header. The Lady Vulcans are currently the ninth ranked team in the country and a bona fide powerhouse. Clarion droped both games, 9-1 and 10-5.

Despite the losses, Clarion stuck with Cal and gave a good fight.

"We played really well," said Coach Burns. "I really feel that we're not that far away [from contending for the conference crown]."

Clarion may have been somewhat intimidated at the prospects of plying such a strong team, but after the games started and Clarion realized they could play with them, they were much more relaxed. They were even leading Cal 5-2 in the bottom of the third of the second game.

Leslie Croston, Catalano, and Brown each had two hits in the second game for the Lady Eagles.

Schattauer is second in the conference in batting, and Catalano is second in stolen bases.

Clarion will next be in action today at home against Ashland, and Saturday they are at home against Lock Haven.

Help keep the Pirates in Pittsburgh

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

Remember back in 1985 when the Pittsburgh Pirates almost left town? All of the city pulled around them and supported them, and with the help of Mayor Dick Caliguri and some private investors, the Pirates were saved and Pittsburgh had their team back.

Well this year, the year of the All-Star game in the Burgh, the Pirates sold out opening day. Good fan support, right? Wrong. The next day their was only 17,000 fans in attendance. That's about 25,000 less than full capacity. People wonder why the team has lost star players such as Barry Bonds, Doug Drabek, and Bobby Bonilla to free agency. It's simple. People need to open up their wallets and come out to the games to support the Pirates. General admission tickets are only five dollars. That's not bad compared to a $25 Steeler ticket or a $35 Penguin ticket. And a $35 Penguin ticket buys a seat in the "D" section.

No one wants to see the Pirates leave Pittsburgh but it seems that the people in this area are not willing to spend the money to go to the games.

For two people to go to a game, you could spend as little as $35. That includes two general admission tickets at five dollars each, five dollars for gas, four dollars for parking, and $16 for refreshments. If you decide to take along refreshments, it could save you and additional ten bucks. If you plan on drinking at the game, it will completely wipe out your pocket book, so don't even bother with it.

When the Pirates were in the playoffs a few years ago, the games were not even all sold out. Why you may ask, but I don't know. Having a major league baseball team in your city is a privilege that not all cities have, and I'm sure that Buffalo or Phoenix would welcome the Pirates with open arms. But we can't let that happen. As I said, it's relatively inexpenxive to go to a game, now the fans must take the initiative and attend a few games. Attendance is revenue, and the team is already behind last year's attendance.

The Pirates are considered a small market team. That is a generic term. The Steelers and Penguins play in the same city. Ask Dan Rooney or Howard Baldwin if they are having problems selling tickets. I'm sure they'll both give you a resounding, "no!"

Is a new stadium even an option? Yes, but not for at least a couple of years. A new stadium could bring more fans through the turnstiles as it has in several other cities, but until that happens the Pirates must be supported for what they are, not what they are not. A good year attendance-wise could make a world of difference for the club. It not only would increase the money being taken in, but would increase the players' on-field performances by having more people in the stands cheering for them night after night. A commitment to the team must be made by the fans now. If we wait any longer, it might be too late. The Pirates are under extreme financial hardships and could use the revenue boost. The question is, are the fans and supporters of the team willing to spend a few bucks and go out to see them?

Many people are frustrated about the Pirates letting go of many of their star players. But the Pirates have a young, exciting team that very much resembles the Pirates of the late 80's before they won three straight division championships. The players are young, talented, exciting, and at times show flashes of what could be future All-Star talent. Al Martin and Brian Hunter, along with mainstays Jay Bell and Andy Van Slyke are sure to please.

In the end, you will see that a night at the ballpark can be a rewarding one in many ways. From enjoyment of the game, to ticket revenue, the game of baseball in Pittsburgh is bettered when fans come out and enjoy the game. I'm not suggesting that people become season ticket holders, but if most of the people in the tri-state area attended three or four games a year, the team would not have to worry about their money running out. That is supposed to happen before the season runs out.

So go on and root on the Battling Buccos (they were just on a six game winning streak, you know). When it's all said and done, you'll be very glad you did.

Sports Trivia Question

Pete Rose holds the major league record for most career hits. It was a historic moment when he broke Ty Cobb's seemingly unbreakable record. But can you name how many more at bats than Cobb did Rose need to break the record?

Last week's answer: The Boston Celtics won 11 championships over that span.

Several actions taken

CUP hosts Board of Governors

by Rodney L. Sherman
Managing Editor

The State System of Higher Education's Board of Governors met last week at Clarion University, taking action on multiple issues.

The 20 member Board of Governors is responsible for planning and coordinating development and operation of the 14 state-owned universities.

Among actions taken by the board:

• Formal approval of a one-year-extension of CUP President Diane L. Reinhard's contract. The university's Council of Trustees approved the extension at its March meeting. Reinhard's contract will remain in effect through June 1997.

Reinhard's current salary is $96,460.

•Approved of a two-year-extension of the contract between SSHE and the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF).

The extension provides for a four percent across-the-board salary increase for State System faculty in each year of the contract.

APSCUF and SSHE also agreed to establish two committees of academic administrators and faculty to engage in discussions regarding a number of critical issues, such as the status of academic administrators, the status of library chairs and distance learning.

• Were informed of two new academic minor programs created by CUP.

Minors in gerontology and music have been approved by Reinhard and the Council of Trustees.

The gerontology minor is designed to better prepare students for the increasing employment opportunities related to the elderly and to better address the needs of Pennsylvania's growing elderly population.

The music minor was developed in response to requests from students in the various performing ensembles and theatre arts, elementary education and other fields.

• Approved a renovation project of Wilshire House at an estimated cost of $100,000.

The project would add approximately 1,200 square feet of space to the building which will house the admissions office upon completion.

Alan Vaughn/Clarion Call

Gemmell Student Complex Director David Tomeo escorts the SSHE Board of Governors on a tour of the building during their visit to campus last week prior to their meetings.

• Real Estate and facilities projects were also approved for East Stroudsburg, Edinboro, Kutztown, Lock Haven, Shippensburg, Slippery Rock and West Chester.

• Voted to appoint Dr. Jessica Sledge Kozloff as the 18th president of Bloomsburg University effective July 1, 1994.

Kozloff would become the second female university president in the State System. CUP president Reinhard was the first female university president in the State System.

• Approved a special purpose appropriation request to fund a comprehensive program to meet existing shortages of health care providers in Pennsylvania, in particular, rural and inner city communities.

• Approved a special purpose appropriation request for Library of the Future initiatives, instructional technology acquisitions, affirmative action efforts, Cheyney University of Pennsylvania enhancements. the Pennsylvania Academy for the Profession of Teaching and the Rural Participation in Post-secondary Education program.

Passing the torch

Chris Henderson

The older I get, the more fond I become of radio station WWSW, an all oldies station in Pittsburgh. In fact, it's about the only station I listen to anymore. Recently, as I was driving home from a grad class, Dion's "Abraham, Martin and John" came on the station. As many times as I've heard it, that song always puts me in a nostalgic, albeit sad, mood. It also causes me to pause and think.

Every day, without fail, the evening news is filled with stories of violence. Rape, child molestation and murder without even a motive are becoming the order of the day. Racism, homophobia, anti-feminism and even xenophobia are enjoying a resurgence. According to the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission, we live in a "state of hate." The Commission is aware of 42 different white supremacist and other hate groups openly operating within Pennsylvania. That makes us number one in the Northeast. Perhaps even more alarming, we lead the nation in the recruitment of new members by hate groups each year. Even neo-Nazis are finding a safe haven within our Commonwealth, and in many other states across the nation.

I find this situation particularly alarming because so many of today's hateful acts are committed by people under 25 years of age, the generation my generation raised. Suddenly, I was asking myself, "What the hell happened?" We were, after all, the peace and love generation. What has gone wrong? Then, a disturbing thought, which at least partly explains the problem, occurred to me. We are a society without heroes. We've killed them all, and none have emerged to take their places. The Kennedys died before they had a chance to test

Advertising Controversy

Dear Editor:

The decision by the editors of The Clarion Call to publish the "advertisement" written by the well-known Holocaust denier Bradley R. Smith has generated considerable response. There has been a vigorous exchange of views on E-mail and, evidently, much conversation across the campus. The Holocaust deniers' tactic of buying advertisement space and publishing editorial material is one which has caused much anguish around the country. In my opinion, the insidious elements of Smith's advertising campaign are manifold. First, it requires student editors to make difficult judgement calls. Free speech, open debate and the uncensored expression of ideas and opinions are cherished ideals on a university campus. But there is a border, and when it is crossed, free speech and uncensored expression can become a refuge for liars and hate-mongers. That border lies in a constitutional briar patch and even seasoned editors get badly scratched looking for it. How can student editors be expected to cope? If this "advertisement" has caused upset here, imagine the pain at Brandeis where student editors also decided, in the interests of free discourse, to publish it.

Second, the group blankets itself in the respectability of "revisionism." This is a term with an honorable place in the historian's lexicon. Deborah Lipstadt (Denying the Holocaust) is right, they are not revisionists but deniers. We must not permit this term to be co-opted by people whose approach to the past is antithetical to that for which the historical community stands. Mr. Smith refers to those people who agree with Ms. Lipstadt as "her clique." In fact, of course, he represents a lunatic clique while Ms. Lipstadt speaks for the educated world.

Third, there is a seductive veneer of rational tone to the "advertisement," but let's examine some of Mr. Smith's claims. He argues that the Holocaust museum has proven nothing because they rely on models. Is this not a medium for museums? The model of the Parthenon in Pittsburgh's Carnegie Museum is not proof that the Parthenon exists. But how does that demean the display? To see the original go to Athens. To see gas chambers go to the camps. Mr. Smith argues that eye-witness testimony is untrustworthy. In a phrase he sweeps away the accounts of survivors, perpetrators and liberators—many of which were written in the immediate wake of the war. Why? Because the Israeli Supreme Court questioned the reliability of fifty-year-old memories of camp survivors in identifying an alleged camp guard. Can it be that because there was reasonable doubt in a case tried in 1993 that all eye-witness evidence regarding the Holocaust is discounted. I think not.

Mr. Smith asserts that gas chambers are not mentioned in Churchill's six volumes on World War II or Eisenhower's memoirs. I am unfamiliar with Eisenhower's writings but I have a passing acquaintance with Sir Winston's work. In the preface to the first volume Mr. Churchill announced that his project was essentially autobiographical. Perhaps we should not be amazed that he did not include material that would reflect badly on his character. Gilbert Martin, the distinguished Oxford historian, who wrote the six volume official biography of Churchill has also written Aushwitz and the Allies. This is the work in which he detailed the arrival of evidence regarding the gas chambers and the extermination of the Jews to the western leadership. His unrestricted access to information makes his book a compelling argument.

Finally, Mr. Smith says that he is willing to be convinced about the existence of gas chambers by physical evidence or wartime documents. I believe that is a lie. The standard denier response to physical evidence is a charge of post-war construction and to documentation, forgery. I could prove by the same tactic that the American Revolution never took place. Bradley Smith and his clique are not historians. While I have some suspicions, I would not presume to explain their motives. But I believe that they are engaged in a mean game of lies and propaganda in which the newspapers of American colleges and universities have become pawns.

Respectfully,

Dr. Brian R. Dunn,
Department of History

Informed consent OK

Editor:

Recently, I read a letter to the editor from Lee Heilman that raised some questions about abortion and the Pennsylvania Abortion Control Act that went into effect March 21.

One of the provisions of the act is that all women who go to a doctor or clinic be given information about fetal development and what is involved in the abortion process. Any time a patient must undergo any kind of surgery, a doctor is required to tell him/her about the procedure that will be done and the risks that are involved. Abortion is a surgical procedure. Why is informed consent a hardship for women who want abortions?

Another provision of the act is that women wait 24 hours from the time they received their vision of a new America, and Martin Luther, Jr. took his dream to the grave. Today, their deaths have become a media circus, and even an entertainment bonanza. Conspiracy theories are getting as common as dandelions in the Spring. We have become so fascinated with the how of their deaths, that we've lost sight of the actual fact. John, Martin and Bobby are dead. Regardless of who pulled the triggers, they were killed by assassins' bullets. Those bullets were made of lead, but they were melted in the furnace of injustice, and cast in the mold of hatred. Personally, I doubt the official explanations of all three assassinations, but I have accepted the fact that we'll never know for sure what took place. The ghosts of our fallen heroes are, indeed, crying out to us from beyond the grave. I wonder, however, if those voices are demanding solutions to the puzzles of their deaths, or if they are, instead, admonishing us to deal with the social factors which brought them out.

Today, instead of heroes, we have demagogues. Oliver North, a criminal, has a good chance of being elected to the U.S. Senate. David Duke, a former Ku Klux Klan leader, is actually winning elections and amassing a following. Malcolm X's successors are preaching the same hatred that he came to renounce. Even a nitwit like Rush Limbaugh, who is little more than the talk show version of studio wrestling, is being taken seriously. Some even defend hatred and violence in the name of Christianity, although there is not one instance in the Bible where Jesus advocates hating or harming any person.

Anyone who believes that the problems of prejudice, bigotry and discrimination are not serious today is incredibly, in fact, dangerously naive. They are only better concealed. Every now and then, however, like the solid waste at a sewage treatment plant, they float up to the surface. The most current, it seems, involves gays. The so-called "queer bashing" that is sweeping our nation, fueled in part by the Religious Right, is, sadly, catching on. Of course, as always, there are some fanatics who believe that all gays should be killed. I really rather doubt that those individuals can ever be reached. Still others argue vehemently that gays should not be allowed to serve in the military, teach at our schools, etc. Once again, to attempt to argue the point on moral grounds with such people would probably be hopeless. On a more practical side, however, I would ask them this question. "If gays are banned from say, serving in the military, shouldn't they be granted an exemption from that portion of their tax dollars used to support national defense?" After all, if they can't collect a military paycheck, why should they pay the Pentagon's bills?

The double talk spilling from the mouths of today's politicians gives one little cause to hope. In fact, in many cases, it is truly impossible to tell where they really stand. For example, they call themselves pro-life, yet they advocate the death penalty. Of course, their answer is always the same. They say that an unborn fetus is innocent life, while that of a criminal is something else. It all boils down to establishing degrees of humanity, and look what that led to in Nazi Germany, and is leading to in Bosnia today. I also frequently find myself puzzled by the tirades of Pro-life males. You would almost think that they know what it's like to be pregnant. It's very easy to talk the talk, when you know that you'll never have to walk the walk.

Sadly, even those of us who believe in full human rights are often at each others' throats, and that is what delights our opponents the most. For example, I consider myself to be a Feminist. I believed in full equality for women before a lot of women did. I've stuck my neck out, and suffered the consequences, of speaking out for women's rights. Yet, there are some within the Feminist movement who would have me apologize for being male. I make no such apology. Space prohibits the inclusion of more examples, but I think you get the point.

What is the answer? Maybe John Donne captured it when, in 1623, he wrote, "No man is an island entire of itself; every man is a piece of a continent, a part of the main." Later, in that wonderful piece of prose known only as "Meditation XVII," he wrote, "Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee." Much later, Martin Luther King, Jr., would say, "We are all caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, ties in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly affects all indirectly. "One can only deduce that, though separated by centuries, these two great and devout men were simply, and correctly, saying that we're all in this together. We had better listen.

information about abortion until the abortion is performed. Except in the case of an emergency, people who undergo any kind of surgery must wait at least 24 hours before they can get access to it. Except in the case of an ectopic pregnancy, an abortion is an elective surgery. Why is it unusual for a woman to wait 24 hours?

The third provision of the act is the requirement of parental consent. When a child must have any kind of surgery in a hospital or doctor's office, a parent must give permission and sign the papers giving that consent. Shouldn't this also be the case for the surgery of abortion?

Mr. Heilman mentioned cases of women under the age of 18 who had problems gaining access to abortion since the law went into effect. I am really sad to hear of teenage girls being in such situations. I feel even sadder that they were put in such a position.

I can't understand why parents who encourage sexual activity in their children by giving them contraceptives should not support their children when those contraceptives don't work. I don't believe that young people need to have sexual activity the same as they need to eat, as Mr. Heilman suggests. People can abstain from sexual activity for years with no detriment to their health, while abstaining from food for more than a few weeks can lead to death.

The last contraceptive study we did at the pregnancy center where I work shows that contraceptives fail to prevent pregnancy 27 percent of the time for those clients who come to our center. Clients who do not use contraceptives have a positive test 52 percent of the time. Is there something our surgeon general is not telling young people?

Practicing abstinence is foolproof in preventing pregnancy. Pregnancy and abortion rates have only gone up dramatically since sex education has been widespread in schools, along with sexually transmitted diseases. In 1960, there were only two sexually transmitted diseases. Now, according to Pennsylvania Department of Health statistics, there are more than 20.

As noted by Robert Taylor, M.D., Ph.D., in "Ectopic Pregnancy and Reproductive Technology," Journal of the American Medical Association, Vol. 259, No. 12, March 25, 1988, "Liberalized sexuality of the 1960's begat the epidemic of sexually transmitted diseases of the 1970's and 1980's."

According to the Centers for Disease Control, "each year more than one million U.S. women experience an episode of pelvic inflammatory disease, with 16-20 percent of cases occuring in teenagers."

Why should an activity that is described as being as necessary as eating have such dire consequences?

When I read Mr. Heilman's closing remark about adoption, I wonder if the orphanage concept had been resurrected. I called the adoption agency which we refer clients and was told that orphanages no longer exist. Children and Youth Services say it hasn't been in existence for several decades and has been replaced by the foster care and adoption system.

Someone who wants to adopt a healthy, white baby from the adoption agency I mentioned would need to wait two years before receiving a baby.

At another agency, the wait can be ten years. There are, however, special needs and minority children who are more easily adopted.

As time goes by and young women realize that abortions are harder to obtain, I wonder if the pregnancy rate will begin to go down as it has in other states with restrictive abortion laws. Would that be a bad thing?

Renovations of Founders Hall expected to start in January

By Kristin Lutz
News Writer

The Clarion University campus is going to be a flurry of renovations within the next few years, thanks to Pennsylvania Governor Robert Casey's Jump Start Higher Education Capital Construction programs.

Two buildings on campus, Founders and Harvey halls in Clarion, and Montgomery Hall on the Venango branch campus in Oil City, have been approved for refurbishings.

Final approval and acknowledgement of the projects was given by the State System of Higher Education's Board of Governors at a recent meeting held at Clarion university.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will pay for 75 percent of the total original expenses, or about $2,683,000, but requests Clarion university pay the last quarter. Resulting costs to Clarion will be about $3 million dollars.

According to Clare Heidler, director of facility management at Clarion University, work should begin very early in 1995.

"The only money that has been released by the Commonwealth thus far has been design money. Based on a number of considerations, January 1995 is our best guess (for beginning); it is really up to the state Budget Office and their release of the construction funds."

The reason the price to the University seems high is because of inflational costs and additional expenditures on educational programs that have been added since the project was approved by the legislature in 1986 (Montgomery Hall) and 1988 (Founders and Harvey halls).

This figure will also cover costs necessary for complying with recent building code changes and the Americans with Disabilities Act.

After (the legislature) has accepted a project in principle, it generally takes 5-10 years, if not longer, for the project to receive the Governor's approval for funding.

"It's a very, long multi-step process," stated Heidler. The Clarion Foundation will be responsible for picking up the $3 million tab.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Founders Hall will begin major renovations in January, 1995. This renovation was one of three building projects in Governor Casey's Jump Start Capital Construction program.

The reconstruction of Founders Hall, built in 1894, will kick off the project with a total renovation that protects the structural integrity of the facility.

The archaic heating, plumbing and electrical systems will be updated and an elevator will be added.

The fire alarm and other safety systems will also be upgraded to adhere to current building codes.

When completed, Founders Hall will house classrooms, art studios, seminar rooms and supporting office areas.

Repair of the decrepit masonry on this building will be started immediately following spring commencement and will be finished sometime this year.

If the Budget Office happens to release the State's share of funding, bids for the restoration will be sought this summer.

The original total authorization for Founders Hall is $2,189,000 (base construction set at $1,824,000), including $1,733,000 from the Commonwealth.

According to Tom Schott of University Relations, when Founders Hall is evacuated, probably after the fall '94 semester, all programs contained in that building will have some place to temporarily reside.

Faculty offices will be located in the basement of Campbell Hall (currently study space for resident students), the office of the Dean of Arts and Sciences and the International Program office will move to the Carlson Library building area being vacated by the admissions office (which will be permanently moving to the "Public Safety" building on Wood Street) and the art studios will be relocated to Harvey Hall.

Following the finish of Founders Hall, undertakings will begin at Harvey Hall, fundamentally constructed in 1931 as a gymnasium.

This hall has been used since 1968 as a small assembly/activities/office facility and has never undergone a major renovation.

The proposed plan for Harvey includes providing major internal reconfigurations to convert the building for instructional use in several academic areas.

Roofing and masonry repairs will also occur and electrical, heating, and ventilating components will be replaced.

Zoned air conditioning will be converted to central environment control. Harvey Hall renovations are set at $840,000 (base construction set at $700,000), $665,000 of which was allotted from the Commonwealth.

Montgomery Hall on the Venango Campus needs to have the structural, electrical, heating, ventilating and air conditioning elements on its third and fourth floors redone.

When completed, the facility will hold classrooms, computer laboratories, meeting rooms and supporting office areas.

Clarion University also had approved selected utility projects which receive 100 percent of their funding from the Commonwealth.

One of these is the second phase of steam line improvements that will use about $4,462,000 of the State's money.

Student Senator's petition questioned

by Katie Zaikoski
News Editor

Students casting their vote for Student Senate positions this week had one less name to chose from after a candidate withdrew his name from consideration.

Members of the Student Senate election commitee, which establishes the rules and requirements for the Student Senate elections, challenged a petition submitted by current Senator Ralph Godbolt after they questioned the validity of some signatures on his petition for candidacy.

Senator Godbolt discussed the matter with members of the elections committee and withdrew his name from the election.

Carrie VanVerth, chair of the elections committee said that "Ralph was questioned on his petition because some signatures looked similar."

VanVerth also explained that the elections committee reviewed every single petition and consulted the directory and registrar for validity of the student's enrollment.

VanVerth had no comment as to wheather Godbolt, a two-term senator, voluntarily withdrew his name from the race or was asked to by the elections committee.

Godbolt's only comment was he withdrew from the race for "personal reasons."

Student Senate President Brian Hoover, said "the Senate has no comment."

Hoover added, "In order not to hurt anyone or seem slanderous, we tried to keep this issue low key. We don't want anyone to feel hurt."

Students wishing to run for Student Senate must submit a petition with 50 signatures in order to become a candidate.

Signatures on all candidate petitions were not checked via personal phone calls.

However, the names of the signers were verified through enrollment records in the registrar's office.

VanVerth added that "at this point there seems to be no reason to take any discplinary actions against Mr. Godbolt.

Literacy council searches for student volunteers to assist specialized programs

By Laura Shurer
News Writer

The Clarion County Literacy Council is trying to combat functional illiteracy.

Functional illiteracy is the lack of basic listening, speaking, reading, writing, or mathematical skills adults need to solve problems encountered in daily life.

According to a Clarion County Literacy Council brochure, one out of every five adults in the U.S., or over 27 million people cannot read.

Approximately 30% of all Pennsylvanians are functionally illiterate, according to the brochue. In Clarion County, about 9,000 of the 43,000 people over 18 have not completed high school. These examples all factor into the 6 billion dollars spent annually to support welfare and unemployment benefits, which are needed because of illiteracy.

The Literacy Council, run by program director Susan Hays, provides several programs to help people learn to read.

The council offers reading instruction for adults at any level, preparation for GED test, English as a second language for people from other countries and specialized reading instruction for the deaf. The council is a grant funded organization that employs two part time employees and enlists volunteers to tutor and do other tasks.

Clarion Talent Search Program to receive federal funds

by Eric Wilson
News Writer

Senator Harris Wofford announced last week that the U.S. Department of Education will be awarding funds to Clarion Universities Talent Search program. The purpose of the Program is to help disadvantaged young people with potential, for a postsecindary education.

The funds are used to raise moral of students with academic, postsecondary, and career guidance services to some 900 participants, and 11 school districts in Clarion and Venango counties.

It gives students and adults the motivation to keep moving on with their education.

Senator Wofford said "There is no better prescription for success than a good education. Clarion University's Program has been helping hundreds of disadvantaged Pennsylvania young people get into college and job-training programs. Counselors aren't just helping students prepare college applications, get financial aid, and study for the SAT's, but are giving many young people the motivation and confidence to go after an education and a better life."

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of April 18 through April 24.

On April 18 a student from Givan Hall reported $50.00 in cash was stolen from her room. The theft was discovered after her return to the campus at approximately 5:30 p.m. Under investigation.

A pull station was activated which sounded the fire alarm on the third floor of Campbell Hall on April 19. This occurred at approximately 2:14 a.m. Public Safety has several suspects and the incident is being investigated.

Sometime between April 16 and April 19, unknown students attempted to force entrance into the soft ball shed located at the stadium. Under investigation.

On April 20 a student from Nair Hall reported a CD by Pearl Jam was missing from his room.

A person reported his mountain bike stolen from the rear of his pick up truck which was parked near the writing center in Lot "A" on April 20. The theft occurred about 9:00 p.m. The bicycle is a Gray Fisher "Paragon Mountain Bike," 21 speed, two tone green in color valued a approximately $900.00.

A student reported her vehicle being scratched while parked in Lot "C" on April 21. The incident occurred sometime between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 9:00 p.m.

On April 21 a student from Campbell Hall reported $25.00 stolen from his wallet which was in his unlocked an unoccupied room sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 12:45 a.m.

The operator of a vehicle who made an illegal turn at approximately 2:15 a.m. was cited for DUI after registering .16 on the BAC on April 22.

A telephone was reported missing from Thorn I on April 22. The phone was left in the utility closet on the 19th and was discovered missing on the 21st. The item is Ivory colored, universal, push button type telephone with the CUP bar code of 18178.

At approximately 1:50 a.m. on April 23, an individual was cited for DUI on Thorn Street, near Greenville Ave. The operator was travelling in the wrong lane of traffic. The operator registered .14 on the BAC and was transported to the Clarion Hospital where a blood alcohol test was administered which registered .18.

At approximately 4:10 a.m. on April 23, a call was received from Wilkinson Hall indicating that someone plugged the sink in the 2nd floor bathroom, then turned on the water causing flooding in the second floor bathroom, TV room and hall area.

At approximately 12:50 p.m. on April 24, a call was received that unknown persons removed the elevator plate from the second floor elevator in Campbell Hall causing hazard a Pof exposed wires. Under investigation.

At approximately 4:55 p.m. on April 24 a report was received that two female students from Nair Hall were engaged in a fight. During the interview, both individuals admitted fighting in their room. Investigation continued.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

4.2 million steam line projects reach construction phase

Courtesy of University Relations

Proposed routing of steam lines and tunnels through Clarion University.

A total of $4 million in steam line replacement and construction projects have started in Clarion University.

According to Clare Heidler, director of facilities management, the total $4,462,000 utility project is being paid for by the Commonwealth.

The first project was scheduled to start during the last week of March and continue through December 1994.

This $800,000 completion of a $1.2 million project began several years ago, will involve installing direct buried steam lines on campus between Tippin Gymnasium and the front of the Marwick-Boyd Fine Arts building and from the Gemmell Student complex along Wilson Avenue to a point near Campbell Hall.

A second project entailing extending the present will originate from the utility plant, extend in front of the Carrier Administration building to Wilson Avenue, where it will end near the Keeling Health Center. A branch tunnel will be built to the Carrier Administration building. A underground tunnel on campus will follow the completion of the first project. Starting sometime between April and June, 1995, it is expected to take two year to complete.

The second venture will involve the construction of a tunnel to house steam lines. It second tunnel will connect with the buried steam line at the Marwick-Boyd Fine Arts building and extend along Thorne Street connecting with Becker Hall and the McEntire Maintenance building before intercepting the buried steam line near Campbell Hall.

"We estimate that the current steam lines in these areas are losing 20-30 percent of the steam we are producing," says Heidler.

"Because of ground water and the acidity of the soil, the directly buried lines sustain corrosive damage to the conduits causing leaks. Given the soil in this area, the best you can hope for from a buried line is 15 years."

In addition to leaks, damaged conduits result in the loss of water (condensed steam) ordinarily returned to the utility plant for reuse. This increases the amount of water the university needs to purchase.

The national average cost for producing 42-45,000 pounds of steam per hour (like Clarion University) is $4.50 per 1,000 pounds of steam or $202 per hour, or $4,860 per day. At the present efficiency of 70-80 percent over a 200 day heating year this amounts to over $290,000 in losses.

During the remaining 165 days when hot water is needed for showers and steam is used to operate some campus air conditioning units, another approximately $97,000 is being lost.

"There is never 100 percent efficiency from any heating system," says Heidler.

"But, we should be able to get 90 to 93 percent of the steam we produce to each of the buildings. If this is accomplished, the $3.8 million will be repaid in a little over 10 years."

Clarion University already has a one-quarter mile long tunnel leading from the utility plant under Wood Street to Harvey Hall. It holds a 12 inch steam line and selected electrical, telephone, computer, and television lines.

The tunnel leads to Stevens, Davis, Becht, Harvey and Founders Hall, and the Hart Chapel. Constructed in the 1930s the tunnel requires very little maintenance and the steam lines in them are still original.

"We are very anxious to get the tunnels in," says Heidler. "We know they do not present significant maintenance problems."

In addition the tunnels will provide a ready location for more communication lines for computers, telephones, television and other systems.

Where the steam lines run under sidewalks or roadways the heat generated helps to cut snow removal in the winter.

The steam line contracts contain provisions that ensure access at all times to all buildings, parking lots, and streets.

Mill Creek Coalition receives state award

Courtesy of University Relations

The Pennsylvania Wildlife Federation recently presented the Mill Creek Coalition of Clarion and Jefferson Counties with the "Conservation Organization of the Year" award as one of the top 10 contributors to the field of conservation in 1993.

Clarion University of Pennsylvania along with several members of the biology department is very active in this project.

Currently Dr. Pete Dalby is president of the Mill Creek Coalition, Dr. Terry Morrow is the vice president, and Dr. Jack Williams is the treasurer.

All are professors of biology at "Clarion University and have been involved with the project from its outset.

Assisting with the project from the biology department during the past year were Dr. Steven Harris and Dr. Thomas Martin, who monitored the insects and fish of the watershed.

The Mill Creek Coalition of Clarion and Jefferson Counties was formed in 1990 and held a conference at Clarion University to generate a common understanding between the member groups, and to establish a plan to address water quality improvement on the Mill Creek watershed.

Formally established as a non-profit organization in 1993, the coalition consists of the following organizations and agencies: Alliance for Wetlands and Wildlife, Damariscotta Environmental Consultants, Clarion Conservation District, Jefferson Conservation District, Clarion County Federation of Sportsmen, Jefferson County Federation of Sportsmen, Iron Furnace Chapter of Trout Unlimited, Magic Forests of West-Central Pennsylvania, League of Women Voters of Clarion County, Seneca Rocks Audubon Society, and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Parts of the approximately 60 square mile watershed have naturally reproducing brook trout and are also stocked by the Pennsylvania Fish and boat commission.

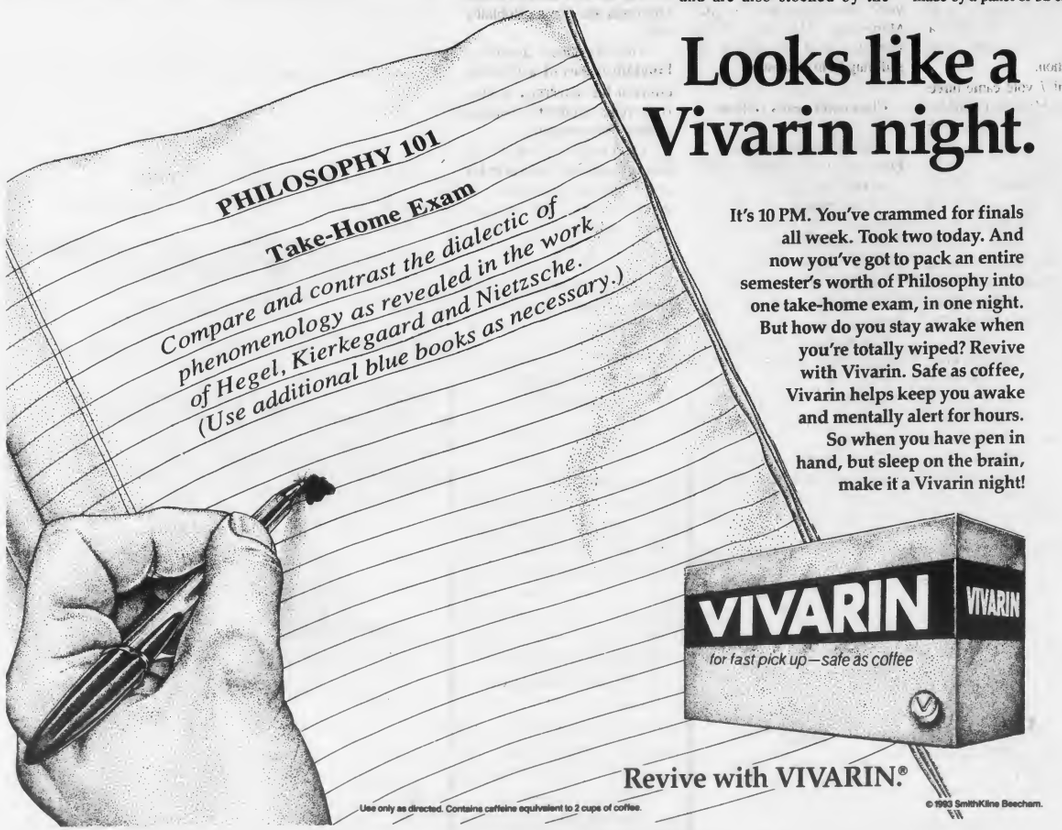

However, large portions have also been affected by acid mine drainage, leaving parts of the stream devoid of life and other parts slightly to severely degraded.

The primary purpose of the coalition is to return the watershed to a high-quality, cold-water fishery, and thereby enhance the overall wildlife and recreational values of the watershed.

The coalition began this project by reviewing previous state and federal studies which identified the location and water chemistries of the areas affected by acid mine drainage (AMD).

In 1991, the Coalition addressed two discharges, which were placing 100-125 pounds of iron and 50,000 gallons of pH 3 acidic water into Mill Creek daily. The Damariscotta Environmental Consultants and Soil Conservation Service personnel responsible for design.

The award selections were made by a panel of 32 experts.

Black South Africans exercise right of suffrage for first time

World

Black South Africans made history Tuesday, voting by the tens of thousands to take control of their country for the first time since whites arrived 342 years ago. Refusing to be cowed by a wave of deadly bombings, the elderly and infirm came in droves from squatter settlements and thatched villages to mark a simple cross on a piece of paper.

Some literally crawled and others were pushed to the polls in wheelbarrows. Many broke down in tears after making their mark.

"We need freedom," said 72-year-old Florence Ndimangele, voting with other elderly people near Cape Town.

"We are tired of being slaves."

Underscoring the epic change, a new South African flag was raised at midnight in ceremonies at nine regional capitals after the old flag that many blacks viewed as a symbol of white rule was lowered.

Germany curbs Holocaust speech

Freedom of speech in Germany does not extend to neo-Nazis who claim the Holocaust never happened, the nation's highest court ruled Tuesday.

The Constitutional Court upheld Munich's threat to ban a rally by a far-right party if the guest of honor insisted on stating that Jews weren't systematically murdered during World War II.

The decision reassured Jewish leaders upset by a separate ruling last month in which a lower court overturned the conviction of a rightist who denied Jews were systematically murdered by the Nazis.

In Tuesday's ruling, the Constitutional Court said the "Auschwitz Lie" was a "proven untruth" and a criminal insult against living Jews.

Arkansas State President Fired

The Arkansas State University Board of Trustees voted unanimously to terminate President John N. Mangieri's contract on grounds of inappropriate sexual activity, sexual harassment, engaging in conduct inappropriate for a university president and insubordination.

The April 7 vote came three weeks after Mangieri said he planned to resign when his contract expired.

Allegations of sexual impropriety were made by two female employees who claimed they saw Mangieri masturbating in his office on separate occasions. One of the women also said Mangieri had made inappropriate sexual remarks, including discussion of "the test."

"He asked, 'If you could have any person other than your husband lying next to you at night, who would it be?" said Marilyn Brewer, administrative secretary in Mangieri's office. Brewer said Mangieri told her that she "was the one he thought about when he gave himself the test."

Mangieri said he was being treated for impotence so he couldn't masturbate. "I have no ability to have an erection," he said at the board meeting.

"I have tried my best for two years to give students rights on this campus, to give faculty rights on this campus.

"You see the kind of justice your university has," said Mangieri, who was later admitted to a hospital after suffering from exhaustion.

Class notes media violence

Students in Dr. Emily Edwards' class take notes when they see reports of shootings, bombings, plane crashes and car wrecks on the evening news. They pay close attention to "gangsta" rap music, prime-time TV dramas, children's cartoons, professional sports and video games.

The activities are required viewing in Edwards' freshman seminar on "Violence in the Mass Media" offered at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

"The students are getting a chance to examine a topic that they've probably heard a lot about and have been exposed to, but haven't really studied," said Edwards, associate professor of broadcasting. "I think it's been an eye-opening experience for them."

Since the seminar began, there has been no shortage of material for class discussion. Recent news dramas included the Nancy Kerrigan-Tonya Harding story, the Menendez brothers' trial in California and Lorena Bobbitt's trial.

The Freshman Seminars Program is part of a growing effort at the university to give first-year students special academic programming.

"For a student, the freshman year is particularly critical in his or her development because of the big adjustment that has to be made academically," Edwards said.

"The freshman experience can be a little bewildering and a little impersonal for students just out of high school."

Clarion comes together to "take back the night"

by Kelly Jones
Contributing Writer

The Clarion Area Rape Crisis Center, recently sponsored "Take Back The Night" to protest violence towards women and children.

This rally is not unique to Clarion. The "Take Back The Night" event began in England in 1977 as women-only protest against the violence and fear women were experiencing at night. The movement spread to the United States in 1978, where the first rally was held in San Francisco to protest violence against women; particularly sexual assault. Since 1978, Take Back The Night events have spead across the nation to other places, including Clarion.

The rally started in the Gemmell Multi-Purpose room with a song By Nancy Jenerat called "Enough is Enough." Along with the song, brochures were passed out,which included figures about sexual assault, child abuse and domestic violence that revealed some startling statistics.

Seventy-eight women are raped every hour in the United States, a woman is physically assaulted in her home every fifteen seconds in the U.S., 5,195 children in Pennsylvania were physically abused with injuries in 1991.

A skit, written by Mike Hillier, called "Any Man's Fault" was presented before the rally. The play dealt with stereotypes of violence, and was shown so that everyone would be able to relate with the characters.

After the play, the rally proceeded to the I.C. Church to continue the rally. As the marchers proceeded to the chuch, others joined in the rally. When asked how effective the rally was, students responded:

"It was a good try, but it is not accomplishing what they set out to do. Chanting and singing is nice, but it won't solve the problem," said Renee Baum, sophomore.

Kevin Miko, sophomore, also comments, "I guess it was effective, but I am disappointed at the turn out."

The marchers then went from the church to the courthouse steps, where the guest speakers from Rape Crisis, SAFE and Crossroads spoke on the subjects at-hand such as sexual assault, date rape and domestic voilence. An open microphone also gave survivors of sexual assault and domestic violence a chance to speak out.

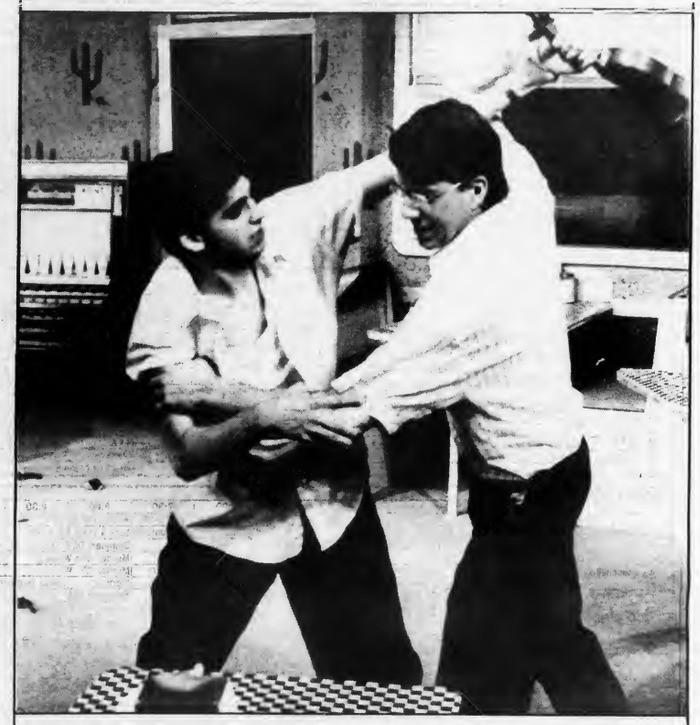

One thing that can be learned from the rally is a quote by one of the participants, Stephanie Craig. "Violence could be stopped if people would learn to respect each other." Sometimes that is all it takes.

PSEA named Oustanding Chapter

by Keith Mient
Lifestyles Writer

The Student Pennsylvania State Education Association has recognized Clarion University as an outstanding chapter at a convention earlier this month in Grantville. This is the third consecutive year this chapter has received this award.

To win the award, each chapter had to complete a series of projects in four specific categories: Community Service, Leadership Development, Achievement Recognition, and Professional Growth and Development. A booklet was also a requirement of each entry due in by the end of February to document the completion of the projects.

All the entries received were of higher quality than in previous years of the corrivalry making competition difficult among the colleges and universities who entered.

"Many students from Clarion University participated in the projects and deserve commendation for their excellent work," said Frances L. Pierce, Coordinator of the PSEA Student Programs. "You can be very proud of the students and the honor which they bring to your college," adds Pierce.

This program is open to all education majors regardless of academic standing. This year's officers were: Michelle Strayer, president; Kristen Molek, vice-president; John Lis, secretary; and Cheryl Brasious, treasurer. Nicole Eighmey also contributed by putting together the QUEST booklet.

The award won by Clarion's chapter of PSEA is known as the the QUEST award, and was developed to recognize student PSEA chapters for their many commendable achievements.

"It's not only the sharing of an award among advisors, but the sharing of an award among a team," said Dr. Barbara Grugel, advisor to the 240-member chapter. The QUEST award consists of a trophy and proper notification to the college and community.

"We are here for the benefit of the campus, providing community service, service to the campus, such as the speakers who talk about education topics and so on," said Grugel.

Clarion presents first harp concert

by Anita Carbin
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University's music department will sponsor their first-ever harp concert on Friday, April 29 at 8:15 p.m. in the Hart Chapel Theatre.

Gretchen Van Hoesen, principle harpist of the Pittsburgh Symphony will perform compositions by Handel, Grandjany, Debussy, Kirchhoff and Dierne. Collaborating harpist, Chao-ju Chen will join Van Hoesen in works for two harps by Andres and Debussy.

Van Hoesen graduated from the Eastman School of Music Prepartory Department with the highest honors in harp and piano. As a scholarship student of Marcel Grandjany, she received her bachelor and master degrees in harp from the Julliard School of Music.

As a recitalist, Van Hoesen has performed nationally in New York, Pittsburgh, Boston, Rochester, San Antonio and Washington D.C. She has also performed in Taiwan, Italy and Germany.

Van Hoesen has been the principle harpist of the Pittsburgh Symphony since 1977, presiding the Virginia Cambell endowed chair. As a concerto soloist, Van Hoesen has played throughout the U.S. with conductors Andre Previn, Sergiu Comissiona, James Conlon and Zdenek Macal. She has also played concerts with Bernard Goldberg, James Galway and Jean-Pierre Rampal.

Van Hoesen has also been the principle harpist in the National Orchestra Association in New York, the Spoleto in the Italy Festival Orchestra, the Greenwich Philharmonia, and the Jeunesses Musicales Orchestra in Germany.

Aside from traveling with orchestras, Van Hoesen teaches the harp privately and is a faculty member at Carnegie Mellon and Duquesne Universities. She has also judged several National competitions of the American Harp Society.

The harp Van Hoesen plays is a style eleven concert grand harp made in 1926 by the Lyon and Healy Harp Company of Chicago.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Have you ever wondered what can be done to reduce the student dropout rate? Noted speaker Dr. Vincent Tinto will be speaking about this subject on Friday, April 29 at 9 a.m.

Dr. Tinto is an Education and Sociology professor at Syracuse University. He is a highly respected researcher on why students decide to drop out of school. His presentation entitled "The Principles of Effective Retention and the Construction of Educational Learning Communities" will take place in Gemmell Multi-Purpose Room. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and the presentation is open to all students.

"All students, especially those in Education majors, should come," said Regina Jack of Academic Support Services, "this will be affecting them when they enter the classroom."

In addition to his presentation, two of Dr. Tinto's books, both on the subject of student retention, will be on sale. A book-signing will be held at 11:30 a.m. In the afternoon, Dr. Tinto will delve deeper into the subject of student retention at a faculty-only workshop.

"This is a way for Clarion to develop a more effective retention strategy. Our numbers are low," said Chris Hearst of Academic Support Services.

Dr. Tinto will also speak at an invitation-only reception tonight in Moore Hall.

Dean proves nice guys do not always finish last

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Anyone you know (including myself) will tell you the same thing: Howard Dean is simply a nice guy. He always has a kind word to say and the time to be a friend to those in need. It is a shame that in 16 days, Clarion University will be losing him due to graduation. I got a chance to sit down with Howard and talk to him about his four years at this university.

When I first asked Howard if he enjoyed his four years at Clarion, he hesitated, then had this to say, "Yes, I have, but I have had my ups and downs. Being an African-American male, I have had to determine what my own idea of success is, instead of letting other people determine it for me." Howard did not want this statement to be misunderstood as if he had a problem getting along with other people. This is not the case. According to Dean, "Many people tell me what I should be doing and how I should be doing it. I like to take my time and scope things out my way. I take suggestions, just maybe not too well. That's just the way I am."

Some people may think of Howard as a very serious and rigid person. He explains this by pointing out that he didn't have the time to fool around. "If I had work to get done, it had to come first, especially because I was paying my own way through school."

I asked Howard what changes he brought about due to his involvement with campus activities and by simply being a student. "I believe that I have been able to influence some of the perspectives and stereotypes that some people may have had about African-Americans without being seen as the 'exceptional one.' I don't like that phrase, because I am not the exception to the rule. I am an individual, just like everyone else is an individual."

I also asked how Clarion has changed him. "Being here has given me more insight and more of a perspective on different people and how they think."

Alan Vaughn/ClarionCall

Howard Dean: achieving his own brand of success.

I mentioned early on in this article that Howard Dean is graduating. What Clarion is losing in a good student, Price Waterhouse is gaining in a new employee. After interning with the company for two consecutive summers, Price Waterhouse asked Dean to join them as a permanent part of their company as a staff accountant.

Through Inroads, a networking service, Dean was selected along with 50 other students (out of a total of 110) to go through a number of interviewing and resume writing sessions. Afterwards, the participating students received a chance to interview with three of the companies that were present. Howard interviewed with four companies, but the accounting major chose Price Waterhouse because it was in his field.

Dean worries that there are not enough positive role models in this world, but with Howard Dean succeeding, the world is receiving one more. Good Luck, Howie.

McDonald chosen to attend Multicultural seminar

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

It's the end of the semester and many of us are beginning to feel as though no mattter how hard we work, we are still getting nowhere fast. Where many of us are content with just getting by, there is one among us who is achieving.

When you see Sean McDonald on campus, be sure to congratulate him. He, along with 100 other college students, was chosen to be a particpant in the 1994 Multicultural Education Academic Seminar.

The Secondary English major was referred to the competition by Dr Caropresso of the Education Department, who handed McDonald the application after recognizing his student's interest in the area of multicultural education.

One of the qualifications for the seminar is to return what you have learned to your campus or to your community. This task shouldn't be difficult for McDonald, who already describes himself as a student with "a strong sense of service."

McDonald would like to thank all the people who helped him achieve this honor and plans to return with a better personal sense of multicultural education.

Student selected for Humanities award

by Amy Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

This year, the annual Eileen Murphy Thornton Humanities Award has been received by Mr. John Rickard, a senior English major. The award is presented each year to a senior majoring in Humanities who, in the estimation of the committee, exemplifies the ideals of Ms. Eileen Murphy Thornton. Ms. Thornton graduated in the Humanities in the mid-1970s and was killed in an auto accident.

Rickard was unanimously selected for this award by the Humanities Awards Committee, which was composed of Dr. Edward Duffy, History; Dr. Edward Grejda, English; and Dr. Franklin Takei, Philosophy.

Rickard has been active in theatre productions and as a free-lance photographer. He will be working towards a doctorate in either American Studies or American Literature.

Dr. Edward Grejda (left) and Dr. Dave Arnold (right) present John Rickard (center) with the Thornton Humanities award.

After receiving this award, Rickard said, "I could never have achieved this prestigious award without the students and faculty around me. Everyone who knows me deserves a piece of this honor, and to all I am grateful and humble. Thank you, Clarion."

Before Rickard arrived at Clarion, he enlisted in the U.S. Army and spent four years as a paratrooper. After his military service, he worked in the area of steel erection for bridges and buildings. Rickard decided to go to college while he was working on the 40th Street bridge in Pittsburgh.

Interfraternity Council plans ahead for winter

by Kelly Jones
Contributing Writer

With the severity of the past winter's energy crisis, the Clarion Area Food Bank is in need of food to replenish the stores that depleted during the harsh winter.

The Clarion University Interfraternity Council responded with a canned food drive this past month. This community service project was supervised by John Pulver, the IFC Community Chairman.

During the service project, over 300 cans of food were collected from the members. The Kappa Delta Rho fraternity donated the most with a total of 100 cans. This is one third of the total number donated.

The canned food drive is the only IFC community service project this semester. However, the individual chapters have done other service projects this semester, including Special Olympics, Walk America and Adopt-A-Highway.

With the end of the semester rapidly approaching, there are no more community service projects planned for the IFC. But next semester they are looking forward to doing a broad number of projects that will benefit the community.

DAVE

Dave Barry (c) 1994 Miami Herald

Innocents Abroad

Recently I went to England on a selfless humanitarian mission to sell books. It was a very relaxing trip until about 35 minutes after the plane landed at Heathrow Airport, which is when a British person cheerfully informed my wife and me that terrorists had been shooting mortar bombs onto the runway. Really. They have political organizations over there that, having apparently received public-relations advice from Charles Manson, believe that the way to garner public support is to bomb and mortar the public. "Hey!" the public is apparently supposed to respond. "Homicidal loons are trying to kill me! I am feeling supportive toward them!"

Shortly after we arrived, there were two more mortar attacks on Heathrow. None of the bombs detonated, but I was starting to wonder about the quality of the airport security. I envisioned squadrons of Scotland Yard detectives wearing Sherlock Homes hats, crawling on hands and knees, scrutinizing every blade of glass through powerful magnifying glasses, not noticing trucks rumbling past them with large signs that said, "CAUTION! MORTAR BOMBS!"

Anyway, the mortars were scary, but we had a MUCH scarier experience in England: Somehow - probably because of another massive screw up at the CIA - we got invited to dine at the U.S. Ambassador's residence. We were the only people on the guest list whose titles were "Mr. and Mrs." Everybody else was something like "The Lord Earl of Gwebbing and Her Worshipfulhood the Viscountess Lady Huffington Prawn-Armature." So when we arrived at the ambassador's residence, which is approximately the size of Wales, but with more bathrooms, we were feeling socially intimdated.

Fortunately the ambassador and his wife were extremely nice, which was reassuring, as was the fact that they had three dogs (one main, two backups) with no sense of etiquette whatsoever ("I know! Let's sniff the viscountess!"). Nevertheless, when it came time to eat dinner, I developed severe Table Manners Paranoia. I estimate that there were 27 forks at my place setting alone. Plus, it turns out that at these formal dinners they have rules about whom you talk to: Before the main course, you're supposed to talk exclusively to the lady on your left as though she is the most fascinating human on the planet, but when the main course arrives, you're supposed to drop her like used chewing gum and talk to the lady on your right. It's amazing to watch the changeover. All heads in the room swivel simultaneously, like synchronized motorized elves in a Christmas display.

Of course I didn't know about this, so midway through the dinner I suddenly found myself having an animated conversation with the back of the head of the lady on my left, who, despite having been, only moments earlier, my closest personal friend, no longer seemed to realize that I existed.

Speaking of exciting social adventures: Several nights later, we were at a party, and the host came up and said, "I'd like you to meet Salman Rushdie." Really. Apparently Salman has turned into a major party animal. So there I was, chatting with him, trying to appear cool, but in fact wondering if I would have to say. "Perhaps we would be more comfortable if we were lying face-down on the floor away from the windows!"

But other than these few anxious moments, we had a wonderful time in England. They were having some highly entertaining government scandals. We Americans tend to have obscure boring complicated financial Whitewater-type scandals that nobody understands; whereas the British have scandals involving straightforward, clear-cut issues of obvious significance, such as high government officials paying for sex with fish.

Speaking of food: The British are definitely getting better at cooking, and they have discovered the ice cube. Fortunately, however, some things have not changed: They still have the Royal Dysfunctional Family, and it is still a constant source of entertainment. (The day we got there, Prince Charles made the newspapers by asking, on a tour of a cosmetics plant, if anybody wanted to - I am not making this up - lick mango butter off his body.)

Also the British still speak in British accents, so that no matter what they say, it sounds really intelligent to Americans; and they still really say things like "bloody" and "smashing." Plus they keep inventing wonderful new expressions. For example, I saw a newspaper front page that had a photograph of a man, with the headline: "MR. CHUCKLETROUSERS." I asked a number of British people about this expression; they had no idea what it meant but they all agreed that they would definitely try to use it a lot. So should we, I think. We should maintain close ties with our friends across the Atlantic. But we shou!d also remain out of mortar range.

-In December, the Illinois Appellate Court postponed indefinitely the electric shock therapy that had been prescribed for Lucille Austwick, 80. Lower courts had declared her mentally incompetent and had scheduled the therapy, but her guardian testified that, when informed of the therapy, she said, "That's ridiculous. If they want to do that, let them go shock themselves."

-Rachel Barton-Russell petitioned a court in Springfield, Oregon in February for a ruling on the meaning of the state's law against corpse abuse. Her deceased husband, Donal Eugene Russell, had declared in his will that he wanted his skin used to make book covers for a collection of his poetry, but the state Mortuary and Cemetery Board claims that carrying out that request would subject a funeral home to liability for corpse abuse.

-In Fort Lauderdale, Florida in February, accused murderer Donald Leroy Evans, 38, filed a pre-trial motion asking permission to wear a Ku Klux Klan robe in the courtroom and to be referred to in legal documents by "the honorable and respected name of Hi Hitler." According to courthouse employees interviewed by the Associated Press, Evans thought Adolf Hitler's followers were saying "Hi Hitler" rather than "Heil Hitler."

-About 15 customers had gathered their grocery items at a Safeway in Oxon Hill, Maryland shortly after 10 a.m. on Christmas morning and were lined up at the checkout lanes, but no cashiers were on duty, and no one answered calls to the back of the store. Local police were called and after investigating found that the store was supposed to be closed but that the Christmas Eve crew had accidentally left the lights on and the doors unlocked, giving shoppers the impression it was open.

-In October, in Iran, where celebrity gunfire is traditional at weddings, a guest named Rasool lost control of his automatic weapon at a wedding in Lorestan province, accidentally killing six people and wounding 14. In Champion, Ohio, in January, Reverend Thomas Gillum, presiding at the burial of a Korean War veteran, was accidentally shot in the face when the local VFW honor guard fired a four-gun salute.

-Professional soccer team manager Dan O'Riordan, defending his decision to levy fines against players for flatulence in the lockeroom: "It can get fairly oppressive when you've got 20 players in a tiny dressing room all suffering the effects of a Sunday night curry."

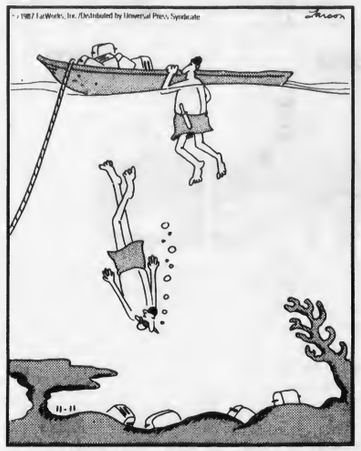

-Attorney Daryl Blue announced in December that he would appeal the conviction of his client Freddie Armstrong for stabbing an 81-year-old preacher to death and cutting off his head before stunned onlookers who included police officers, at a Bastrop, Louisiana funeral home. Blue claims that Armstrong was obviously insane at the time: "A rational man does not decapitate a man's head in the presence of a police officer."

ASK MR. COLLEGE

Got a question? Any question?! Write to Mr. College NOW!

Q. Dear Mr. College: I lost my wallet last week. Have you seen it?—Joey B., Seattle, WA
A. Dear Joey: Uh... wallet? Wallet? What wallet? I haven't seen any wallet. I don't know where it is. Why would I know where your...your stupid wallet is? Are you saying I stole it?! Heh, heh, th...that's CRAZY! You have no proof of that. O.K. Look man, first of all, I didn't STEAL it! I sorta FOUND it, O.K.! And yeah, so maybe I borrowed a coupla bucks from it. And yeah maybe I charged a few suits and a short vacation on your credit card. But I was gonna give it back! I swear, MAAAN! Look let's keep this between you and me. I mean we don't have to notify the authorities or...Wait a minute! You lost it LAST WEEK? Oh... um... ehem... never mind. No. I haven't seen it. You should really be more careful.

Q. Dear Mr. College: What ever happened to those delightfully wacky kids from the hit T.V. show "Mr. Belvedere"? I'm particularly interested to know about that spunky boy who played Wesley.—Curious, Los Angeles, CA
A. Dear Curious: Don't EVEN get me started! Little Wesley went off the deep end when those network BASTARDS canceled "Mr. Belvedere"– a show which, aside from "Charles In Charge" was probably the best damn thing on T.V. since "Punky Brewster", (a moment of silence, please...). After years of post-Belvedere substance abuse he is badly brain damaged, and still struggling with his addiction to that popular new malt beverage, ZIMA. Fortunately, his self-destructive ways have been instrumental in landing him his current role. He can now be seen as Butthead on the MTV network.

Q. Dear Mr. College: Have you ever gotten a question that was just too stupid to answer?—Jeanne H., Edina MN

Stingy with poor

Editor:

According to Lee Heilman's abortion letter, we should have unregulated abortion to avoid crowding orphanages. But babies for adoption are already so scarce here—because of abortion—that American couples try China, or a hotline in Miami, or adoption mills: and for big bucks, in case you happen to be poor and sterile. How dare we think that just because you're poor, you want few or no children.

If life in orphanages were as bad as Heilman seems to think, we would be hearing daily about orphan escapes and suicides. We don't. Or take the scenario further: most people on death row don't attempt suicide either; they love life.

Basically what Heilman recommends for those with problem pregnancies is a decision: If they carry it to term, the baby will be so badly off that he or she will eventually commit suicide. So, kill him or her unborn.

Finally, let's think again about Heilman's cases: pregnancy is only one of their problems. By helping any woman abort, we are band-aiding a situation that requires major psychological and financial help. How dare we be so cheap, so stingy with poor women.

Call for an apology

To the Editor:

On April 21 the Call printed an advertisement by Bradley R. Smith challenging the legitimacy of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington D.C.; Smith claims that the museum has "no convincing proof whatever of homicidal gassing chambers, and no proof that even one individual was 'gassed' in a German program of 'genocide.'"

I am appalled and deeply disturbed that the Call could not see through the thin veneer of "reasonableness" offered by Smith and print such an ad. Smith is a clever writer, attempting to privilege his claims through references to intellectual freedom, a favorite--and too-often unquestioned—buzz phrase in academia, and a phrase that is too - often not coupled with intellectual responsibility. It is sad, however, that the Call could not see Smith's ad for what it is: a rhetorical trick intended to cover what is, in fact, an assault on the historicity of the Holocaust, rooted in a virulent anti-Semitism.

I am well aware that there will be broad claims for freedom of speech and first amendment rights from those who would defend the printing of this ad. But the first amendment has never been intended to allow any and all forms of public discourse, and freedom of speech does not mean license of speech— witness, for examples, rulings regarding "hate speech." Furthermore, freedom of speech cuts both ways: as much as Smith has a right to his views, and to express those views, newspaper editors have the right to refuse to give forum to those views, as editors often have, if those views are perceived to be against the prevailing values of the community.

So what are we to make of the Call's printing of this ad— that it does, indeed, represent the prevailing values of the university community? The Call may claim that to print that ad is to expose it for the garbage that it is. That sounds wonderfully idealistic, but it also presumes that that is, in fact, how the readers will perceive it. When we discussed this ad in one of my classes, one of the students, when responding to the question of why this ad has been targeted for schools, suggested that the students in a sense were "fresh meat"— a blunt way of saying that for students, the historical purchase of the Holocaust is simply not there. Smith's ad would indeed make wonderful fodder for classroom ridicule, if in fact we were teaching our students about the Holocaust.

The Call might also claim that to print that ad reifies the openness of academic discourse at Clarion University. But at what point, I ask you, does responsibility— intellectual and human— have to become part of that discourse? Does academic discourse, by virtue of its being academic, mean that it is no longer linked to human and communal discourse, and thus "free" to answer only to its own needs? And at what point has "academic" ceased to mean reasonable and/or reasoned, and has come to mean "self-expressive" discourse, even if what the self is expressing is a hateful lie?

Finally, the Call might claim that accepting the ad was simply a business decision, and the ad does not in any way reflect the beliefs of the paper. That is, perhaps, the most disturbing possibility. If the Call perceives itself as a extension of the university community, or of at least the student body, then by accepting this ad is it not then suggesting that the ad, even if indirectly, somehow represents the values of the university community? If, however, the Call is simply a business, then the perception we are left with is that the paper is driven by nothing more than commerce and gain. There are businesses that have a clear vision of their places in the community at large; the Call apparently is not one of them.

I would like to believe that the Call made a bad decision, not a malicious one. I also believe that the Call owes an apology to the university community. In printing this ad I believe there has been a serious breach of trust; it is now up to the Call to find the courage and the means with which to close that breach.

Slippery Rock's numbers declared unofficial

Morton named PSAC all-time leading scorer

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Kwame Morton passed Slippery Rock's Myron Brown as the all-time scoring leader in the PSAC last week, and he didn't even have to step on the court.

Dr. Charles Eberle, Commissioner of the PSAC, made the announcement last week after the point totals of both Morton and Brown had been reviewed by the NCAA. It was discovered that during Brown's playing years, Slippery Rock played five games against Canadian universities and counted Brown's combined 118 points from those five games in his career point total. Before the investigation, it had been determined that Brown had scored 2,619 points in his collegiate career, as compared to Morton's 2,543. The games against the Canadian teams did not qualify under the NCAA rules as countable opponents and therefore his point totals from those games would not be recognized by the NCAA.

According to NCAA bylaws pertaining to the National Statistics Program, only games against a "countable contest" would be officially recognized by the NCAA. A countable contest is defined by the NCAA as, "only games against varsity intercollegiate teams of four-year, degree-granting institutions that play a majority of their games in that sport against varsity intercollegiate teams of United States, four-year, degree-granting institutions shall be tabulated for inclusion in such statistics."

When asked if he believed Slippery Rock was intentionally trying to undermine the NCAA, Steve Murray, the conference sports information director, said no, and that it was a mistake that could be easily made. Many of Slippery Rock's early season games were to come in tournament play, and if a team dropped out, they would often be replaced with an available team, sometimes a team from Canada. Because the originally scheduled games would have been "countable contests," the replacement of a Canadian team could be easily overlooked.

But according to Slippery Rock sports information director John Carpenter, Slippery Rock made a conscious decision to count the games, knowing full well that, "somewhere down the line it may be evaluated."

Carpenter also said, "We made the decision that those games were going to count. We have the right to recognize whatever games we want. The NCAA doesn't have to recognize those games. As far as we're concerned, Myron Brown's career scoring total stands at 2,619."

"We made the decision that those games were going to count. We have the right to recognize whatever games we want. The NCAA doesn't have to recognize those games. As far as we're concerned, Myron Brown's career scoring total stands at 2,619."
- John Carpenter, SID, Slippery Rock

After subtracting the 118 unofficial points, Brown's scoring total now stands at 2,501, 42 behind Morton, making Morton the official all-time PSAC men's basketball scoring leader.

He also said that the PSAC knew that the games came against Canadian teams when the statistics were submitted.

Had Morton's uncountable exhibition games been counted, he still would have been ahead of Brown. There is nothing to diminish the significance of the record because it came on a technicality. If things had been done correctly from the beginning, Morton would have passed him during the season.

"He beat him fair and square," said Clarion assistant coach Al Modrejewski.

The investigation began when Clarion sports information director Rich Herman wanted to check to see how many points Morton would need this year to catch Brown. When he called the NCAA to confirm the numbers, the conference had a different total than the NCAA. That set the ball in motion.

When several conference coaches and SID's were asked if the fact that Clarion started the investigation caused resentment and caused them to look Morton over in their voting for "Player of the Year," all said no.

Morton has been named first team All-Amercian in every post-season poll, and was named the Division II national "Player of the Year" by Basketball Times, despite not receiving the honor in his own conference.

Brosius, B. Fiscus named all conference

Golfers place fifth at conference tourney

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Clarion University golf team recently participated in the PSAC championsips at Treasure Lake golf course in DuBois. The event took place over Monday and Tuesday.

The Golden Eagles took a fifth place at the PSAC's, with a team score of 1,225.

Slippery Rock University took first at the competition with a team score of 1,158. In second was Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a 1,166. Third place went to Millersville who shot 1,200. West Chester and their 1,217 earned them a fourth place spot, and Edinboro finished last in sixth place with a 1,289.

Chris Brosius led the way for the Eagles with a three round score of 235. His rounds went 79, 80, and 76. Brian Fiscus was next with a 244 (82, 79, 83). Andy Ganoe shot 247 (83, 87, 77), as did Corey Bierly (80, 85, 82). Matt Fiscus shot a 260 (86, 89, 85). Todd Corbeil had a 261 (87, 86, 88), and Greg Greksa shot 265 (92, 82, 91).

Brosius' score was good enough to earn him a spot on the conference's first team. Brian Fiscus was named to the second team.

Taking first place in the overall competition was Greg Downer of Slippery Rock who shot a six over par 222. His three rounds were 71, 77, and 74.

Taking second place was Mike Ferry who had a 225. His rounds were 71, 75, 78. Ferry is also from Slippery Rock.

The tournament was physically straining on the golfers. It was unseasonably warm outside, and this caused for discomfort as golfers walked the long course, not to mention the fact that the golfers had to play 27 holes in one day. Many members of the team were sporting "farmers" sunburns.

The greens were also very hard for this time of the year. This caused for quick greens and putts that just kept rolling and rolling. It also made it difficult to get the ball to sit on the green. Many chips hit the hard ground and bounced as if they were hitting cement, as opposed to sitting, or rolling back toward the hole.

Considering the amount of snow on the ground only a few short months ago, it is unusual to see such hard, dry greens this early in the summer.

"We had a hard time juicin' the ball," the Fiscus brothers agreed.

Either way, the Golden Eagles made a good showing at the conference tournament, and while they may have had their sights set on a higher finish, the team played well.

The Golden Eagles were also in action last Wednesday when they were at the Indiana Invitational.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania won the event of 16 teams. Clarion finished ninth in the field. The Golden Eagles had a team score of 421.

Ganoe shot a 78 which was good enough for tenth place.

Clarion has one more tournament left before their season is done. Tommorrow and Saturday they will be at the Allegheny Invitational.

Softball team has tough string of games

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Golden Eagle softball team recently played a string of games against some very formidable opponents.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Junior second baseman Sarah Pitney attempts to steal a base against IUP.

Last Thursday, the team hosted Ashland in a double header but dropped both games, unable to score a run in either.

Clarion continued their team hitting slump against Lock Haven on Saturday. The Eagles dropped the games 1-0 and 5-1.

Captain Sarah Pitney said that Lock Haven had some good pitchers, and that fact combined with Clarion's hitting slump led to low run production.

Melodi Dess was the sole bright spot for Clarion, with a home run in the second game.

Clarion then hosted Grove City on Monday and got the bats going again. They split, winning the first game, 6-1, dropping the second 4-3. For the series, Melodi Dess had two hits and scored a run and Leslie Schattauer and Rose Wilson both homered for the Golden Eagles. Wilson also scored another run in game one.

Missy Brown took to the hill in game one for Clarion, and Sonya Hafer started the second game.

Clarion was next at home against a tough IUP. In the first game, the Golden Eagles were down 2-1 heading into the sixth inning.

Instead of letting the game go, however, the Eagles hung right in there. They were able to rally with two outs, and Danene Brown drove in the winning run for the Eagles to make for a very exciting finish.

In the second game, Clarion had a rally going in the first inning but batted out of order for the third out. In most games, Dess bats fifth, and Missy Brown hits sixth. In a communication problem, a change had been made in the batting order by one of the coaches and no one was informed that they had been switched. The two consequently batted out of order.

That may have had an effect on the outcome of the contest, as Clarion dropped the game 5-4.

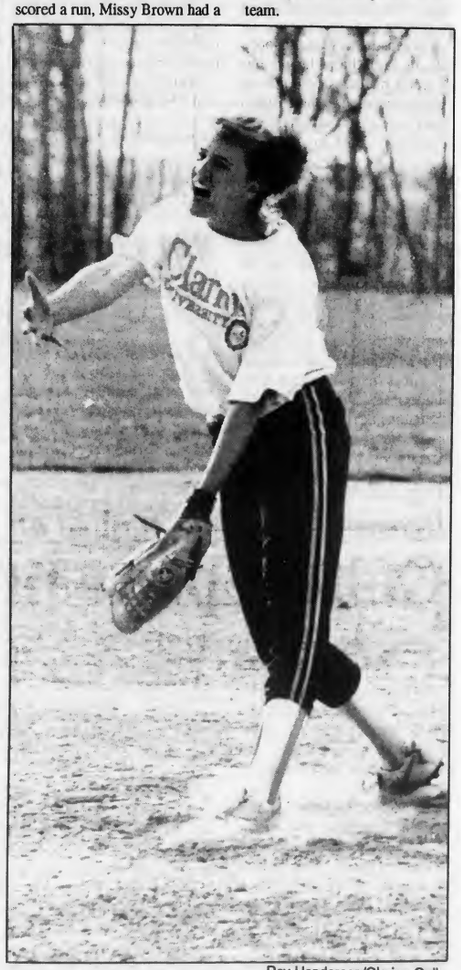

For the two games Pitney went 3-for-8 and scored two runs, Brown was 2-for-8 with a run scored, Julie Catalano scored a run, Missy Brown had a triple, and Danene Brown scored a run.

Sonya Hafer started the first game for the Golden Eagles, and Missy Brown took to the mound for game two.

The Eagles are scheduled to play Westminster in a home double header tomorrow. If weather permits the game to go on, it will make 12 games in nine days that the team has played.

After Westminster, the team goes to Edinboro on Saturday for a double header against another talented conference foe.

The Edinboro game will be the last regular season game for the team.

A weekly look at a Clarion University athlete

Eagle in the spotlight

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Brian and Matt Fiscus, identical twins, are members of the Clarion University golf team.

The Fiscus's both went to Clarion high school and were both members of a successful golf team. In fact, four members of that team are currently part of the Clarion University team.

Brian was a co-captain of the team and went to states his senior year. Matt lettered all three years.

Matt said that he chose Clarion due to the financial aspects that he is close and that Clarion is not as expensive as other schools. Brian said that Clarion has a good business program to fulfill his needs. Golf didn't play a big part in where the twins went to school, considering they were both walk-ons.

The brothers, as most twins are, are big rivals. "We're competitive in everything we do," said Matt. "Really competitive," Brian agrees.

As far as biggest accomplishments are concerned, Matt cites the fact that he is able to uphold a good GPA while participating in other activities as an accomplishment to be proud of. Brian points to the 71 he shot at Armco country club, Slippery Rock's course, and making the golf team as a walk-on.

Brian's goals for the future are to make the first team all-conference team (he was named second team this year) and to personally win a tournament. He has been runner-up before.

Matt has a more competitive goal. He hopes to move ahead of Brian on the golf team. Matt is currently the seventh man on the team, while Brian is the third man.

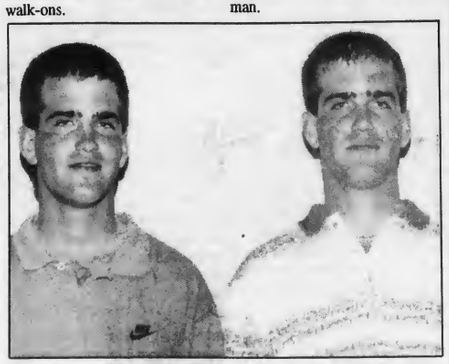

Matt also hopes to graduate from Clarion and move on to graduate school. He is not sure where he will be doing his graduate work yet, however.

They both are very athletic and enjoy playing different sports in their free time, such as basketball and racquetball.

Matt and Brian both have a lot of golf experience under the belt and will provide good golf for Clarion over the next two years.

And for all of their competitiveness and rivalry, they are good friends.

Clarion is fortunate to have this tough twin-bill as a part of their golf team.

Nathan Kahl/Clarion Call

A terrible twosome* - Brian (left) and Matt Fiscus mean trouble for opposing PSAC golf teams. Like most brothers, these identical twins are competitive in everything - particularly their golf scores. Brian was named second team all-conference at this year's conference tournament, but if Matt has a say, Brian will be caddying for him next year.

Baseball team blows away Slippery Rock

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

On Saturday, Clarion University's baseball team played host to the Slippery Rock Rockets in a PSAC double header.

In the first game, Slippery Rock put its ace, Anthony Dougherty, on the mound. Unfortunately for The Rock, Clarion did their best Michael Moorer impersonation and knocked him silly.

Clarion tallied 19 hits against Daugherty, and sent a runner across the plate 14 times, as compared to Slippery Rock's four.

At the plate, the barrage was led by John Quahliero who went 2-for-3 with two RBI, three runs scored and a home run.

Nearly the rest of the line up contributed for Clarion in the game. Marc Keller went 3-for-4 with an RBI, Chad McCombs was 2-for-3 with an RBI and two runs scored, Tim Stimmell had two hits with one run scored and one RBI, Pat Berzonski had a hit with an RBI and two walks, Scott Weir had a hit and scored a run, Marc Grommes had three hits with three RBI and scored two runs, and Kurt Pannier and Phil Pegher each had a hit and an RBI.

Coach Rich Herman said, "He throws hard, but we made him throw good pitches."

Mark Spohn pitched a complete game for the Eagles. He gave up three earned runs, eight hits and struck out four.

In the second game Jason Rafalski took the mound but Clarion failed to match its first game performance, and dropped the game 7-3. Rafalski was forced to leave after 5 and 1/3 innings, giving up five hits, five walks, five earned runs, and striking out six. Jason Knight and Ryan Bauer came in to relieve.

Clarion had a lead going into the fourth inning. Slippery Rock tied the game up in the fourth, however. Steve Olizarowicz, Slippery Rock's ninth batter was hit by a pitch, and Pat Mannarino hit a home run.

Clarion had some runners on in the fourth and fifth, but couldn't get a big hit.

Coach Herman said that he couldn't be more pleased with the team's performance considering that Dave Skovera and Stimmel were both injured early in the year. Add to that the fact that their coach has been away from the team due to a bad back for several weeks.

"With losing those two guys, other teams would have folded. We didn't fold. I think it's a credit to this team that we've found other ways to win," said Herman.

Herman noted that Clarion hasn't been blown out this year and that they have been in most games, particularly against tough competition.

Herman also wanted to extend his praise to assistant coach Barry McAuliff and student coach Mike Michizen who have filled in during his absence.

"Clarion baseball is very fortunate to have a person like Barry who has been able to run this team. Barry is a tremendous individual," Herman said.

Clarion will be in action Friday, when they host Mercyhurst in a double header.

Sports Trivia Question

Dan "Big Daddy" Wilkinson was drafted as the first overall player in this year's NFL draft, while Charlie Ward, the winner of the Heisman Trophy was not drafted. Can you name the last winner of the Heisman to be the first player drafted?

Last week's answer: Pete Rose needed 2,138 more at bats

The Tomahawk Chop will strike again

This may be the year of the Braves

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

Wouldn't it be nice to have Greg Maddux or Tom Glavine on your team? How about John Smoltz, Kent Mercker and Steve Avery as your other starters? Sound too good to be true? Well it isn't, because this is the exact rotation of the Atlanta Braves, and it is easily the best staff in baseball.

Add to that staff the run production on Fred McGriff, David Justice, Terry Pendleton, Jeff Blauser, and Deion Sanders, and you will have an incredible team on paper. Realistically when any one of these four starters takes the hill, a Braves team that scores at least four runs will most likely not be beaten. So why haven't the Braves won the world series?

That is a tough question to answer. They have been close for the past three years, going to the Series twice. This year's Braves are without Ron Gant, who was released after he suffered a motorcycle accident. The left field job now goes to Ryan Klesko. A power hitting left hander, Klesko has impressed the Braves the past few seasons, but failed to make the team. This year he is off to a good start, and has taken away from Tony Tarasco, and other Braves talent, any chances of starting in left.

With Sanders in center, Justice in right, and Klesko in left, the Braves have a very strong outfield. McGriff is at first, Mark Lemke at second, Blauser at short, and Pendleton at third. That's pretty solid, but wait, highly touted rookie catcher Javier Lopez started off this season on fire and could vie for rookie of the year honors. To spell Lopez, the Braves signed Charlie O'Brien from the Mets and he will be an excellent backup and teacher for Lopez.

To get the Braves the save in the ninth, they call upon Greg McMichael, Mike Stanton, and newly acquired Gregg Olson. Olson came over from the Orioles and can immediately strengthen the pen. The only problem is that he has been hurt all of the season so far as well as spring training and is not due back for at least another month. Wohlers is a hard throwing right hander who is being used as a set up man. Stanton is a left handed set up man, who sometimes may be used as a closer. The Braves will rely on Stanton and Wohlers to get the game to closer McMichael. McMichael is a right handed stopper who impressed many last season with a very low ERA for a rookie pitcher. But once again the Braves team is so strong in pitching that it might not even use the bullpen that often. Either way, manager Bobby Cox can rest a lot easier knowing that he does have an excellent bullpen who can get the job done.

There is no team stronger from top to bottom than the Atlanta Braves. It looks as if the season may come down to another exciting Giants-Braves match-up to decide the NL championship.

But they're good enough that if the Braves get going, it just might take a giant to stop them.

New Student Senate elected

by Alicia McCray
News Writer

The Student Senate reigns of power changed hands Monday night as a new senate was sworn in and a new president and vice-president were selected.

Jim Junger will serve as Student Senate president, Amy Mennen as vice-president and David Scappe as treasurer.

Outgoing Vice-president Amy Donahue said the "old senators accomplished in 15 weeks what most senators did in a year."

The former senate was an interim senate, serving only one semester instead of two. The term was altered so the senate year would run concurrent with the academic year.

The change was made by all of the schools in the State System of Higher Education.

Of 715 ballots cast in this senate election, Junger received 182 votes, Mennen received 273 votes and Scappe received 236 votes.

Other new senators and their total vote count are: Sean Spenser, 229; Delphine Djossou, 254; David Nelson Barret, 220; Becki Jones, 216;Ryan P. Hitchman and Ladonna Morton, 198 votes each.

Joseph Baker, Jr., 179; Jennifer Keibler, 176; Christian Pratt, 175; Edward Rogers and Marc Schnumpf, 170 votes each; Rebecca Kelley, 158; Michael Ferraro and Joseph Rotondo, 153 votes each; Terri Steigelman, 149; Jay Dale Smith, 146 and Douglas Sheldon, 132.

Junger promised in his campaign speech for Student Senate president his office door would be open to anyone and added he takes pride in making himself accessible to everyone.

"I'm not afraid to talk to people or to listen to what they have to say," said Junger.

Mennen listed her position as a resident assistant as a learning experience for gaining problem solving and motivational skills.

Mennen said her goals as a senator are to improve diversity on campus and fight student apathy.

Clarion University will present its first honorary degree, a doctor of public service degree, to Dick Thornburgh, former Pennsylvania Governor, Attorney General of the United States and Under-Secretary General of the United Nations, at commencement services on Saturday, May 14.

Thornburgh served as Governor when the State System of Higher Education was created in 1983 and has more than 25 years of public service.

Thornburgh will receive his degree during commencement ceremonies at 10:00 a.m. in Tippin Gymnasium and present a commencement address. He will also present commencement remarks at a 2:00 p.m. commencement ceremony.

Approximately 494 undergraduate, 73 associate and 72 graduate students are expected to receive degrees during the ceremonies.

Tickets which are provided to families of graduates will be required for admission to attend the events.

The Clarion University Council of Trustees selected Thornburgh for the honorary degree several years ago, but conflicting schedules have postponed the presentation of the degree.

The Tomahawk Chop will strike again

This may be the year of the Braves

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

Wouldn't it be nice to have Greg Maddux or Tom Glavine on your team? How about John Smoltz, Kent Mercker and Steve Avery as your other starters? Sound too good to be true? Well it isn't, because this is the exact rotation of the Atlanta Braves, and it is easily the best staff in baseball.

Add to that staff the run production on Fred McGriff, David Justice, Terry Pendleton, Jeff Blauser, and Deion Sanders, and you will have an incredible team on paper. Realistically when any one of these four starters takes the hill, a Braves team that scores at least four runs will most likely not be beaten. So why haven't the Braves won the world series?

That is a tough question to answer. They have been close for the past three years, going to the Series twice. This year's Braves are without Ron Gant, who was released after he suffered a motorcycle accident. The left field job now goes to Ryan Klesko. A power hitting left hander, Klesko has impressed the Braves the past few seasons, but failed to make the team. This year he is off to a good start, and has taken away from Tony Tarasco, and other Braves talent, any chances of starting in left.

With Sanders in center, Justice in right, and Klesko in left, the Braves have a very strong outfield. McGriff is at first, Mark Lemke at second, Blauser at short, and Pendleton at third. That's pretty solid, but wait, highly touted rookie catcher Javier Lopez started off this season on fire and could vie for rookie of the year honors. To spell Lopez, the Braves signed Charlie O'Brien from the Mets and he will be an excellent backup and teacher for Lopez.

To get the Braves the save in the ninth, they call upon Greg McMichael, Mike Stanton, and newly acquired Gregg Olson. Olson came over from the Orioles and can immediately strengthen the pen. The only problem is that he has been hurt all of the season so far as well as spring training and is not due back for at least another month. Wohlers is a hard throwing right hander who is being used as a set up man. Stanton is a left handed set up man, who sometimes may be used as a closer. The Braves will rely on Stanton and Wohlers to get the game to closer McMichael. McMichael is a right handed stopper who impressed many last season with a very low ERA for a rookie pitcher. But once again the Braves team is so strong in pitching that it might not even use the bullpen that often. Either way, manager Bobby Cox can rest a lot easier knowing that he does have an excellent bullpen who can get the job done.

There is no team stronger from top to bottom than the Atlanta Braves. It looks as if the season may come down to another exciting Giants-Braves match-up to decide the NL championship.

But they're good enough that if the Braves get going, it just might take a giant to stop them.

Ending semester and season

A. Barlow

Hard to believe that all the snow and ice has actually melted, but now it's lilac time, as promised.

This week is devoted to ending a season and a semester, and it is devoted to the excitement and anticipation of a coming semester.

It has been another full year for The Clarion Call. The paper continues at a level undreamt of a decade ago; average 24 pages per issue, 24 issues per year, circulation pushing 7,000, more and more off-campus distribution sites, color each issue and the special full color editions, but most of all the paper is readable. Pick it up and be prepared to spend some time - Reading. I believe my greatest sense of the paper's value to this university community is the silence that falls every Thursday as the paper gains distribution across the campus. Love it or hate it, it's a part of the campuscape (and yes, those who hate it have made themselves loudly, albeit eloquently, known).

Enough, the '93-'94 edition of The Clarion Call will be bound over the summer and editions will find their way to the library and other suitable repositories - another first, rough draft of Clarion University history. As I watch the year's editions march across the shelf in blue binding with gold letters, I am reminded of the years since my initial involvement, and I am reminded of all the students I have been privileged to have worked with and known. They are, to say the least, a lively lot.

Just an update: Michele Sporer, our editor-in-chief for a year and a half, until an early graduation, is now working at the Corry Journal; Harry Hartman, the previous editor, has been working at the Tyrone Herald,

Final Words

A few parting shots before the semester comes to a close:

•To the Student Senate: Listen to your constituency. Just because you haven't seen the results of "an accurate indicator of the student body" is no reason to ignore, much less contradict the students who elected you.

The same Student Senate who encourages and advocates a letter-writing campaign to state congressmen in order to avert a tuition hike, is the same Senate that raises the activity fee. While the five dollars, in and of itself, is not a great sum of money, it reflects the idea that the same values exist in the political bodies at the student level and at the state level.

At the state level, the congressmen posture and praise about the virtues of affordable higher education, while refusing to pay for it.

At the Clarion University Student Senate level, the Senators tout that they want "to be your voice," but they never bother to attempt to determine the students' voices.

And if they happen to discover those voices, through alternate means, and if those voices are in opposition to the plans of the Student Senate, then those voices are conveniently ignored for expediency's sake.

Student Senators know that there will never be a massive student outcry, or even half-hearted student input, to any of their decisions, so they can easily work their will upon a student body that, barring a state-wide ban on beer, will never more than whine lowly to any fate that befalls them.

Student Senators are more than elected representatives of the students, they are protectors of the students interests. It is hypocritical to hold an institutional position that the cost of attending Clarion University is too high, and then raise that fee.

•To the Students: Quit being accepting. Fees will keep on raising, tuition will keep on hiking and college will become less and less affordable until you, the consumers of these educational products finally stand up and tell those responsible that they have gone too far. Remember that Clarion University and the entire SSHE system is a business. This is also a business upon which you can have some control, if you let your opinion be known. If you choose to remain virtually silent, take your lumps and quit whining.

•To the administration: Remember that you are here for the benefit of the students and not the other way around. Remember also, that to cut classes is to eliminate the primary function of not only this university, but of education as a goal and a concept.

It should also be noted that there is a very real financial incentive to keeping the number of courses at the minimum. Not only does the university get to reduce the number of individuals on this campus who actually teach, but they get to keep students at the university longer than the traditional four years. All this adds up to less expenses and more income.

•To the would-be censors: Remember the foundations of this country. If you do not like one advertisement, or one article, or one picture, then do not look at it. However, if you wish to allow the rest of humanity the same rights to this newspaper as you have, then by all means, keep the letters coming. Controversy and open debate are what solves the problems of this country and of the world.

Keep in mind that the free press is the first casualty of tyranny, and that any control of the right to print and to say whatever is on the mind is the only effective deterrent to the establishment of such tyranny. Apologies for honoring the first amendment will not be made.

- Alan W. Vaughn

Editorial in poor taste

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regard to the editorial entitled "Men Are People Too" which was in the April 14 edition of the Call. An attendee at the recent Women's Conference, I found the writer's comments to be in very poor taste and totally lacking in any kind of real intelligence on these issues.

RTH states "The Women's Conference is not as safe place for anyone who happens to be male." This is not true, in fact men have always been encouraged to attend and share their views. Just because there was a "women's humorist" and "women's issues" and a whole bunch of other girl (oops I mean WOMAN) stuff" doesn't mean that men would not have been safe. Quite the contrary, Mr. RTH. I have attended the last three women's conferences here at the university and not once did I hear any other woman or women making any kind of negative or disparaging remarks about men. We (meaning we women), attend the conference to gain a greater awareness about ourselves and those issues that are affecting us so that we may begin to put back the BALANCE that is so obviously lacking in today's world. I wish more men would attend the conferences. I believe, as I know many others (both women and men) do that men can learn a great deal about themselves and the women they interact with on a daily basis through the issues that are presented at these conferences. If we are to restore the BALANCE to our world, both men and women have to learn how to work together without trying to "bash" the other, something that you obviously need to work on yourself, RTH.

As for you men having your own conference, I say why not? I seriously doubt that any women or women's group is going to scream discrimination or "insensitivity to female-gender based human beings." In fact, several women I know thought it was a great idea, and they would be more than willing to attend. Not exactly the kind of reaction you were hoping for or had in mind, is it?

And here's a little piece of advice for you RTH, the next time you decide to pass judgement on something such as this conference, you might want to take the time to actually ATTEND the conference to see what REALLY goes on, You might just learn something about yourself in the process.

Sincerely,

Mary E. Carter-Johnson
CUP Alumna

Conference was not man-bashing

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to the editorial that appeared in your paper on April 14, 1994. Obviously, you did not attend the same conference that I attended. I am a male and felt very comfortable sitting in on many of the programs and sessions offered at the conference. Then again, I did not attend the conference with a judgement already in my mind. Perhaps if you were to remove the stereotypes that you often in your article before you attended the conference you could have recognized the true spirit of the conference. The conference was not intended as a male-bashing hoedown for a bunch of feminist cowboys. I viewed the conference as an opportunity for both men and women to celebrate and better understand the recent advancements of women in our society. By using stereotyped language, you have displayed one of the things that this conference attempted to displace – bad attitudes. Perhaps you should not try to cover your own apparent prejudice with ignorance. Yes, differences between men women do exist. Recognizing those differences rather than running from them can only make both sexes stronger. Next year, I suggest that you attend the conference and check your attitudes at the door.

Yours truly,

Michael H. Copen

Women have been oppressed

To the Editor:

In response to RTH who wrote the commentary, "Men Are People Too" in the April 14 issue of The Clarion Call, I need to explain, once again, the misunderstandings some men, as well as some women, on this campus possess concerning WOMEN'S ISSUES.

Women have been oppressed by men for too long, contrary to what you may believe. Take a look at any magazine advertisement or on television and you will see degrading images of women and our body forms. We have been used and exploited for the sake of grabbing men's attention and these portrayals as the attitudes women have about themselves.

For example, beer and car ads use the image of a curvy woman to sell their products. They do this because they know the audience-the majority being men- will take notice of it more if there are large breasts and a shapely form obstructing their view from what is actually being sold.

How does this image represent the product? It doesn't. It is only used to grab your attention because the image is something that arouses you.

These pictures tell you that women are required to be hairless, large-breasted, and appear sexual to be considered beautiful. The problem with this is women attempt to fit into these molded stereotypes (brought about by men) and men expect "beautiful" women to be like this.

In addition, how many women have you (and the readers here today) learned about in your textbooks? From the first day of school, we are all taught about the accomplishments of WHITE MEN and it leads me and other women to wonder, "Where are all the women?" Surely they lived and were successful, but it's the textbooks that possess a male bias, excluding women because they are expected to be SEEN and not HEARD.

The Women's Conference allows us to be SEEN and HEARD. We celebrate with our sisters the accomplishments we have made. Since the media skips over these success stories, the conference allows us to discover what other women really are doing.

As for male bashing, it is not how you perceive it to be. In actuality, we are exercising our rights that you take for granted. We are not trying to over-rule you; we have been excluded

Sympathy for RTH

To the Editor:

RTH, in "Men Are People Too" (Clarion Call, 4-14-94) gives vent to sentiments that are becoming increasingly commonplace among contemporary American men. It is difficult to live at a time when inherited options of identity are being reevaluated.

To RTH, I offer my sympathy. The problem, as I see it, is that we tend to think of gender definitions as part of the natural order of things and thereby fail to notice that it is we who name and give meanings to these categories. When an American child is born, the very first question we ask is: "Is it a boy or a girl?" Once we know the gender, we know whether to say "He's an active little guy," or "She's a darling little angel." So deeply are these gender categories internalized, that even women teachers who claim to be feminists, research shows, tend to expect more from their male than their female students. The important fact that many still don't see is simply that women have been historically oppressed. Both men and women have inherited the idea—developed during many centuries of European expansion—that nature and civilization are opposite ends of a spectrum. The native peoples of places like Africa, Australia and the Americas were placed, in this European view, near nature's end of the spectrum.

It seemed natural for white European people, who purportedly represented the epitome of civilization, to run the world. And within predominantly white societies such as the United States, women also found themselves classified as near to nature, and therefore far from reason, order and civilization. But this view of gender is not based on some scientific biological bedrock: people created it. Other cultures have defined gender differently. Among the Iroquois, for instance, women elders chose the leaders and negotiated with outsiders. Our ideas of masculinity were constructed in opposition to femininity, nature and so-called primitive peoples.

Men considered women incapable of reason and judgement. They couldn't vote until the 20th century. It is no accident that of forty-two presidents, not one has been a woman. In an important sense, it was women who were not really people.

We cannot understand the current situation without considering this entire context. (I don't mean to suggest that this historical repression of women would be a sufficient justification for oppressing men now; that would be like arguing that it is just for Jews to oppress Palestinians because of what Germans did to Jews.)

In closing, I must ask RTH (and the multitudes he speaks for): Do you understand these facts? If not, which ones do you dispute? Because if you do understand the human damage caused by the belief not that women are different from men, but that women are less fully human than men, then I don't see how you can be so threatened by a women's conference. No one is claiming that men are not fully human. When members of an historically repressed group become conscious of their condition, it is not surprising that they would turn to each other to explore new, less demeaning identities.

Respect, live and let live.

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to dispel all the rumors about the ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. This letter is mainly directed to the women of the seventh floor of Campbell Hall, but it is also for those who just don't know.

ALL the Black Greeks have calls which are used to greet other members of the organization and to show respect for the organization and its members. I have heard that there have been complaints about AKA's call, from the women on the seventh floor of Campbell Hall and others.

These complaints come from campus ignorance on Black Greek life. Our call, SKEE-WEE, does not mean "kill whitey." In fact, my sisters and I think this is a very funny connotation of the word.

Now that we have taken the liberty to inform you and dispel the rumors, we expect you to respect our use of our call and that anyone who is not a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. to not say it. The calls that Black Greeks use are all different and we hold them very sacred.

So we ask that everyone respect that. As long as it is not quiet hours, we will continue to do our call. We do have respect for the rules and regulations of this institution. We have the same rights as anyone else around here. As long as we obey the rules, there is nothing anyone can say. Besides, have you ever stopped to consider how many things you do that we don't like or have a problem with?

Sincerely,

Tiffany Tatum
Secretary of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

State should guide Call

Dear Editor:

I feel I must respond to the ad carried in the Call on 4/22/94 ridiculing the Holocaust Museum. (We note that the date on which your article appeared approximates the 51st anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising). First I should note that the commitment of President Reinhard, the administration, and overwhelming numbers of faculty and students to diversity, and to the human understanding and the racial and religious tolerance necessary to achieve it is both strong and visible on this campus.

It is very reassuring to see even those who say publishing this ad was all right, condemn the ad, and use it as an example to educate our students. It is wonderful to have a colleague like Dr. Dunn who can say it all in response to the ad.

It is difficult for college newspaper editors to react to cleverly worded ads accompanied by long legal arguments urging that they be

But I look forward to reconstituting the column, and in the interim please feel free to continue submission; it's very pleasant to be able to plan more than one issue in advance.

I believe that Hide Park has not only provided a forum for some interesting and valued viewpoints but it has also demonstrated the excellent and heartfelt writing of which members of our university community are capable - I thank all of you who have volunteered your time and effort to this endeavor.

Sigma Phi Epsilon evicted from fraternity house

by Eric Wilson
News Writer

A Clarion University fraternity finds itself without a home after an eviction notice was served to the brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Landlord John Mason issued to the five fraternity brothers notices given out by Sherriff Vern Smith that they had exactly one day to vacate the premises of the building.

The five fraternity brothers who occupied the house packed their things and by nightfall the fraternity letters were taken down and a lock was placed on the entrance to the building.

According to John Postelwait, director of the Inter-Fraternity Council on campus, the reason for the eviction did not come about because of actions by active members of the fraternity.

The one day notice was issued because of an agreement made by Sigma Phi Epsilon's Alumni Association, Postelwait said.

This agreement stated that Sigma Phi Epsilon was to have a full house of 24 rentors for the complex and the fraternity felt that there would be no problem filling the building.

During the fall of 1993 there were 12 active members living at the complex, and in the spring there were five members.

Trout Run Realty, which leases out a trio of complexes on South Fifth Avenue, had filed to sue the Alumni Association concerning disatisfaction on the number of rentors in the Sigma Phi Epsilon complex.

The Alumni Association owed to the landlord back rent which was not paid.

Postelwait explained that the landlords did not have a problem with the active members, but rather the Alumni Association they made the agreement with.

The short term notice that was given by the landlord came under a clause called "Judgement by Confession" which says that a rentor who feels that damage is being done to his property has the right to retake his property back at any time.

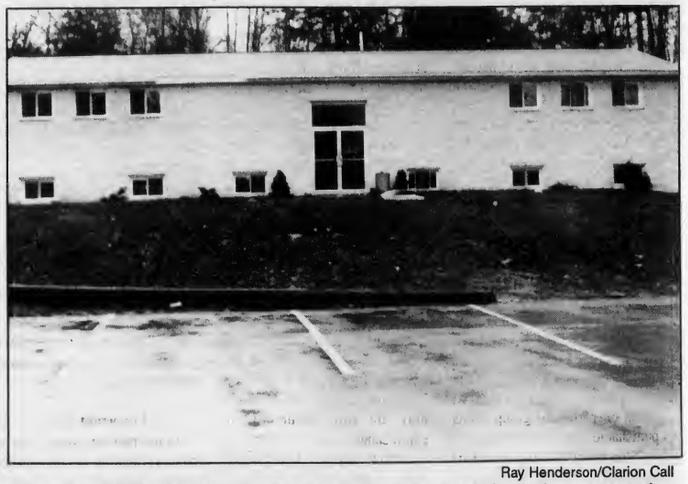

According to Steve Koles, Sigma Phi Epsilon's chapter president, there was no damage done to the complex while the rentors were there, and that the reason for the low number of rentors in the complex was due to bad living conditions of the building.

Koles said that the building only had one bathroom and three showers that twenty four people had to use, which kept the active brothers from living there again in the fall of 1993 and spring of 1994.

Koles also said he felt that Mason leaned toward this route due to damage done to one of his complexes by other rentors a few years ago that cost the landlord a lot of money.

Also, Mason was afraid that there would be damage done to the Sigma Phi Epsilon complex, Koles added.

Koles said that he felt that Mr. Mason was trying to prove a point that he was serious about following the contracts with the rentors of his complexes, and he does not want any hassles from future rentors of his buildings.

Recent study shows speech and behavior regulation among universities is common

by Alan Vaughn
Editor

A study of speech codes at 384 of the nation's colleges and universities has indicated that some of Clarion University's disciplinary codes and jurisicdictions may be unconstitutional.

According to "War of Words: Speech Codes at Public Colleges and Universities" by PhD. candidate Arati Korwar, some of the university codes contained in the "Rights and Regulations" handbook may be categorized into three areas.

The three categories are labeled as "General Catchall," "Verbal Abuse," and "Verbal Abuse at Groups."

The report says that generally these rules have no content distinction, but are probably constitutional, "if limited to the prohibition of fighting words or if harassment is punished only when it is expressed as harrasing conduct."

"Verbal Abuse directed at Groups" is described as "special codes that make harassment based on particular group status punishable."

These codes also prohibit discrimination on the basis of "race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, national origin or citizenship status, age, disability or veteran's status."

The report said that rules which fall in that category, of which Clarion has one, are likely unconsitutional in the wake of recent court decisions.

"General Catchall" rules may be "vague and general enough to cover speech," the report says.

The Clarion University rules that may fit in these categories read as follows, according to the 1993-1994 Student Rights and Regulations handbook:

•The university has a "responsibility for character development, for maintaining standards of decency and good taste, and for providing an appropriate moral climate on campus."

According to Dr. George W. Curtis, Jr. vice president for students affairs, the sentence is used only as part of the definition of when the university may use its disciplinary authority.

Curtis cited a Pa. court case, in which the commonwealth court ruled that, "A college has a vital interest in the character of its students, and may regard off-campus behavior as a reflection of a student's character and his fitness to be a member of the student body."

However, according to Mike Hiestand, a staff attorney for the Student Press Law Center in Washington, D.C., the statement may be too vague to be enforceable.

"I think they need to define the terms a little more thoroughly," said Hiestand.

According to Hiestand, these other statements in the handbook may be wholly or partially in violation of the first amendment:

"Among the acts prohibited by law and university regulations are:"

•"Acts against persons, including assault, harassment, coercion, personal abuse, and other acts causing or threatening injury or danger to persons."

•"Acts against public order and decency, including disorderly conduct, fighting, unreasonable noise, public intoxication and other acts of disruption or disturbance."

•"Ethnic intimidation; acts against persons, property, or public order committed with malicious intent toward the race, color, religion, or national origin or another individual or group."

"[The rules] do get specific, but they lose sight of why it is necessary to get specific," said Hiestand. "It's almost impossible to get schools to write down [a speech code] that doesn't conflict with the first amendment."

The report concludes that, "Hate speech is a hurtful and ugly phenomenon.

"While it is natural for administrators to want to shield students by attempting to curtail the ugliness as quickly as possible, most experts agree that simply punishing hate speech probably will not destroy racism and other biases."

Important cases

In the past few years, several court rulings on college speech codes have been decided. Among the most important are:

•UWM Post v. Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin System.

Under this case, a federal district judge ruled that a speech code "was unduly vague" and describes the content of the regulated speech, but does not state that the speech must constitute a breach of the peace.

•R.A.V. v. St. Paul, in which the Supreme Court ruled that government cannot penalize the use of some speech or symbols that arouse alarm, anger and resentment and not others.

Justice Antonin Scalia said, "displays containing abusive invective, no matter how vicious or severe, are permissible unless they are addressed to one of the specified disfavored topics.

"Those who wish to use fighting words in connection with other ideas --to express hostility, for example, on the basis of political affiliation, union membership, or homosexuality --are not covered."

Roommates from hell: A college rite of passage

Courtesy of College Press Service

She borrows your white sweater, then slips it carefully back in your closet — with a new tea stain. He comes in drunk. She flicks on the overhead light as you are drifting off to sleep. He plays music of questionable taste at top decible. She smokes; you don't Your lunch money vanishes.

There is no more bitter rite of passage than sharing space with a disastrous roommate.

Many college students have never bunked with a brother or sister, much less experienced being trapped with a stranger who does things they don't understand.

Some first-year students are so distraught ove a Roommate from Hell that they pack their bags and call it quits. "Come get me," they tell bewildered parents.

Everyone has a horror story.

Leanne Call, a reporter for the Western Star, the newspaper for Western Oregon State College in Monmouth, interviewed dozens of students about their experiences for a recent story about living situations that are less than perfect.

One student said he found a roommate rummaging through his drawers. "I'm just looking for drugs," she announced. Another student came home to find his roommate having sex with someone — on HIS bed, no less.

One unfortunate student reported that his roommate did his laundry only once the entire semester, and an ever-growing mountain of dirty clothes threatened to take over the small room.

Another student said a former roommate hosted a four-day orgy in the middle of finals, made drunken phone calls to 911 and put a vodka bottle full of dimes in the microwave oven.

One former college student recalled an unexpected guest for two weeks — her roomate's boyfriend, who camped out on the floor.

Then there was the Irish Setter and his owner, cleverly hidden from the resident advisors, who took up residence in the suite next door.

Still another nightmare roomie had a penchant for making harassing calls to the girlfriend of a policeman for whom she had developed a "Fatal Attraction" obsession. What's a student to do? Mediation involves an outsider and is used when negotiation fails and issues have reached crisis proportions.

Public Safety Blotter

The following is a brief synopsis of criminal investigations conducted by Public Safety for the week of April 25 through May 1.

At approximately 11:10 p.m. unknown persons dropped a flaming tissue weighted by pen light batteries onto the mulch in the rear of Campbell Hall. The flames ignited the mulch causing smoke to enter Campbell Hall. The smoldering mulch was extinguished.

Sometime between 6:00 p.m. on Friday and 1:00 a.m. on Monday, a theft of five compact discs and an old baseball glove was reported from a dorm room in wilkinson Hall. Value of missing items is approximately $165.00.

An aquarium tank air pump was reported missing from room 13, Peirce Science. The "9000 silent-flo" is black in color and valued at approximately $50.00.

A prank took place on the fifth floor of Nair Hall. Unknown persons placed 21 frogs in the female shower room. The frogs were removed, unharmed.

Unknown persons smashed the driver side window of a vehicle parked in lot "A". This happened sometime between April 25 and April 27.

On April 28 several water filled balloons were dropped from an upper floor of Nair Hall. No damage was reported. This occurred about 12:30 a.m.

Unknown persons removed four of the smoke detector heads from wing "A", second floor of Campbell Hall. The heads were placed on the shelf in the rest room The smoke detector heads were replaced and put back in service. This incident happened about 12:10 a.m.

Two males were observed letting air out of tire from a vehicle parked in lot "D". The males could not be identified. Under investigation.

On or about the hour of 12:35 a.m., a male student was cited for Public Drunkeness and Minors Consumption. The individual registered .28 on the BAC and was taken to Clarion Hospital for further examination.

A fire pull station was activated on the 4th floor of Wilkinson Hall at approximately 1:00 a.m. Under investigation.

If anyone has any information concerning these and other crimes, please contact Public Safety at 226-2111.

Cyclone in Bangladesh kills 106 people, flattens hundreds of villages

Courtesy of Associated Press

World

The howling wind sounded like "a thousand children crying in darkness," said Zakir Ahmed who spend the night in terror.

"At daybreak it was finally over," he said Tuesday after surviving the cyclone that pummelled Bangladesh's southeastern coast for five hours the day before, killing at least 106 people.

Relief workers said the toll would rise, but would be far less than the 130,000 dead from a 1991 cyclone in the same area.

Before weakening and moving into neighboring Burma, the cyclone flattened hundreds of villages, leaving tons of thousands of people homeless and hungry.

After the winds eased, Prime Minister Khaleda Zia flew to the area, which is hammered by the sea's fury almost every year, to inspect the damage. "My government will stand by you in your bad times," she told survivors.

Teen's lashing sentence reduced

Citing Singapore's close relations with the United States, the government today reduced the sentence of an American teen-ager found guilty of vandalizing cars from six to four lashes of the cane.

A statement from the government said that President Clinton had publicly commented on the case of Michael Fay three times.

"To reject his appeal totally would show an unhelpful disregard for the President and the domestic pressures on him on this issue," the statement said.

Thus, the Singapore Cabinet has advised President Ong Teng Cheong to reduce his original sentence from six to four strokes.

The statement did not say when the lashing would be carried out. Fay, 18, of Kettering, Ohio, is serving a four-month jail term.

Allen may head back to court

An attorney disciplinary committee found grounds to hold a hearing on Woody Allen's complain against the prosecutor who investigated a sex abuse charge against him.

The Statewide Grievance Committee ruled April 21 that it had probable cause to believe State's Attorney Frank Maco engaged in attorney misconduct, said Daniel Horwitch, a committee attorney.

A hearing will be conducted but one was not immediately scheduled, Horwitch said Tuesday.

Maco announced in September that the state would not prosecute Allen on charges the actor-director sexually abused his 7-year-old adopted daughter, Dylan, at the Bridgewater home of Mia Farrow, Allen's former lover and leading lady.

Panel votes down health proposal

A House panel considering a modified version of the Clinton health plan voted down a narrower Republican approach Tuesday that would not require or provide health insurance for all.

The House Education and Labor Committee's labor-management relations subcommittee is considered one of the more liberal House panels. The health bill drafted by its chairman, Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., drops the Clinton plan's mandatory alliances but expands the basic benefits package.

On Tuesday, Rep. Marge Roukema of New Jersey, the subcommittee's ranking Republican, offered a substitute bill along the lines of House Minority Leader Bob Michel's proposal.

The bill, which she nicknamed "Michel Plus," was voted down by Democrats, 16-10.

The substitute would require employers to offer their workers health insurance.

It would not make them pay for it.

It would also create voluntary polled employer health programs.

Trial starts in case of baby's death

A 17-year-old girl told her friends she was pregnant, discussed the baby's name and let the father feel her swollen belly, according to testimony Tuesday at her murder trial.

Melissa Ann McManus of Holtwood is accused of smothering her newborn son and dumping his body in the Susquehanna River. She contends she was never pregnant.

More than a dozen witnesses, including her former boyfriend, said otherwise in testimony at Lancaster County Common Pleas Court.

McManus is being tried as an adult on criminal homicide and conspiracy charges.

A newborn boy was found May 6, 1993, in a garbage bag on the York County side of the river by investigators searching for two missing fishermen.

McManus initially told police she gave birth in a Holtwood home and let others toss him in the river, but denied she had ever been pregnant after she was charged.

Casey presents excellence awards

Gov. Robert P. Casey's life was saved in part by a man he honored Tuesday.

Dr. Thomas E. Starzl, the surgeon whose book helped Casey decide to have a lifesaving heart-liver transplant this past year was awarded the 1994 Governor's Award for Excellence in the Sciences.

Casey presented the Award for Excellence in the Arts to Lorin Maazel, music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Students explore physical barriers

A program at North Carolina State University teaches architecture students to become more sensitive to the needs of handicapped persons by switching places with people who are blind, deaf or confined to wheelchairs.

The "Sight, Sound and Motion Workshop," which was attended in February by 62 students from the Department of Design, allowed aspiring designers on the Raleigh, N.C., campus to experience life with vision, hearing or movement impairments.

Students wear blindfolds and earplugs for hours or ride in wheelchairs to simulate the handicapped experience. Later in the day, students meet with volunteers from handicapped services organizations to discuss the events.

"Many come out of the workshop passionate advocates of universal design," said John Tector, the architectural professor who founded the program.

Tector said students also discuss design ideas and styles that would make buildings more accessibile to the handicapped.

"It is a profound experience," Tector said. "A lot of the students are not able to express it immediately. They just didn't realize the impact a designer's life has on the lives of these people."

Schools engage in blood feud

Rivalry between Temple University and Penn State was noktched up a bit in February when the Temple Owls beat the Nittany Lions of Penn State in a month-long blood donor competition.

This is the second year the two universities have squared off in the Lifesaver Cup. The trophy will be moved from Penn State in Unviersity Park, Pa., to Temple in Philadelphia. The Nittany Lions won the first round in 1992.

"I thought it would be fun for students to set up a competition for blood collection," said Andrea Dunn, college recruitment specialist with the Red Cross for the Penn-Jersey region.

"Blood collection is a serious thing, but it's good to have fun at the same time.

Penn State's goal was to get 1,000 pints of blood, and 685 students, or 87 percent of the goal, donated.

Blood banks in the Philadelphia area had 67 units of O positive blood on hand in February, when the normal goal is to have 1,600 units.

Similar groups did the same.

CUP women compete for Miss PA crown

by Ron Santillo
Lifestyles Writer

Clarion University students Melissa Mong and Valerie Schill have both scheduled trips to Allentown on May 21, to compete for the title of Miss Pennsylvania.

The Miss Pennsylvania Scholarship Pageant is a preliminary to the Miss America Scholarship Pageant.

Mong is studying speech communication/theatre. She now has two pageants under her belt, along with Miss Clarion County 1993.

Diagnosed with dyslexia in third grade, Mong's platform will educate parents and teachers on what signs to look for in children with dyslexia. She supports the battle on dyslexia because she knows how tough it is for a child to overcome this problem.

Melissa Mong and Valerie Schill will soon travel to Allentown, PA to compete for the Miss Pennsylvania crown.

Mong said that the main reason she started competing in pageants is for the scholarship money. She likes competing on stage, but admits that the toughest part about being on stage is the performance itself.

Valerie Schill is a graduate student at Clarion University, and is going for her Masters degree in Business Administration.

Schill's pageant resume goes very deep as she has placed high in many pageants in the past. Schill's platform, "Educate to Integrate," is a fight for community and workforce integration for people with disabilities.

Schill's first pageant was the Miss Pennsylvania American Co-ed Pageant in 1987. Her first scholarship pageant was the Miss Northwestern, Pennsylvania Pageant in 1990. Schill said she is entering the pageants mainly for the scholarships awarded along with gaining a stronger position to promote her platform.

Schill mostly enjoys the experience she gets out of the pageants, along with all the friends she has met along the way. Also, she likes the experience she gains which in turn, helps her to prepare for life; interviews, internships and future jobs.

In order to prepare for the May competition, Schill is working on each stage of the competition, especially her platform, which she not only promotes on stage during competitions, but also in her work throughout the community.

PROUD (People Reaching Out and Understanding Disabilities) is a Clarion-based group aimed at increasing awareness of special needs of people with disabilities. In Clarion, the group hopes to try to gain a wider influence to help make the campus more accessible for the physically challenged. Schill's future hopes for PROUD include expansion to nearby communities and perhaps even further.

Another project that Schill is involved in is "Project Helping Hand," which involves 26 students at Clarion Area High School who are physically challenged yet mainstreamed into classrooms with students who are not challenged. Out of the 26 children, 22 go out into the community and help out with soup kitchens, crafts, and other activities to gain a chance to interact socially and professionally.

The Miss America judging system is unique in the way it selects individuals who represent the best of America's women; women who have the ability to become role models, and who care about their role and other women's roles in the world today. In the past, each Miss America has spoken in her own style and way, to special issues, problems, personal values and interests, and is noted for significant individual contributions and career successes. Still, each Miss America is a vibrant, concerned woman, accepting the challenges for today and possessing even more exciting dreams for tomorrow.

The competition itself contains four phases; talent, interview, physical fitness and evening wear.

There will only be one first place in the upcoming pageant, but there will be a whole stage full of winners, including Melissa Mong and Valerie Schill.

New coffee cafe opens doors downtown next month

by Anji Brown
Lifestyles Editor-elect

Mitchell's Coffee Cafe is opening June 1st with an array of unusual food to tempt even the pickiest eater!

Mary Ann Moulon is the owner, Kim Cornett is the manager and Kurt Wallace is the cook. They have all come from Seattle, Washington to create Mitchell's Coffee Cafe.

"We all have strengths that work together that made it happen," said Cornett.

Food that is prepared at Mitchell's is mostly Thai-based and made fresh daily. Whatever you chose from the menu promises to be a unique combination of foods. Breakfast will begin at 6 a.m. with hot scones, soft pastries, and fluffy muffins. The day continues on with fresh homemade bread, an interesting array of sandwiches, and a couple different kinds of pasta. A cold Saba Noodle with spicy peanut sauce which originated in Seattle, is just one example of the unique combinations Mitchell's Coffee Cafe will have.

When it comes to desserts, "Mitchell's has amazingly good stuff," said Cornett. You can find fresh berry pies, lemon mousse, and many more tasty desserts at Mitchell's.

The focus of Mitchell's Coffee Cafe is, of course, their specialty coffee. There will be espresso drinks served, and other flavors such as: Columbian Supremo, Espresso Roast, Nantucket Blend, Hazel Nut, French Vanilla, Swiss Chocolate Almond, and an interesting new flavor called Rain Forest Nut Coffee. For those watching their caffeine intake, Decaffeinated coffee is also available in the same flavors as caffeinated, with no difference in taste.

"Mitchell's will have really exceptional coffee and food," said Cornett.

The atmosphere of Mitchell's Coffee Cafe is designed to be original. There is a tin ceiling, hardwood floor, antique furniture, and also a gas fireplace. Adding to the relaxed atmosphere will be a great variety of background music ranging from Grunge to Opera.

"People will feel like they're in their own living room." said Cornett.

Not only will this place serve great food, it will also offers entertainment! There will be poetry readings, live bands, and small plays.

Senior Spotlight

Feigel: Humor has its true healing power

by Melissa J. Caraway
Lifestyles Writer

Have you ever known someone who just makes you laugh? That's the effect Eric Feigel has on me. It's not just the way he looks either. Just kidding, Feigel. Eric is a senior communication major with a great (and honest)personality. After asking him about 50 times for an interview, he finally agreed to be this week's Senior Spotlight.

I know Eric because not only are we both communication majors, but we are also interns in Clarion University's admissions office. He claims that he has known me since our freshman year. I find this statement kind of strange considering that at that time I had no clue who he was. According to Eric, that is because he was very shy. Okay everybody stop laughing, it's true. Helping Eric outgrow his shyness was just one of the important ways that attending Clarion University has helped him.

According to Eric, he is very happy here. "I have met a lot of people-friends that I'll have forever. I have also earned an extensive education in an environment that I like. I feel that I have received my money's worth.

Ray Henderson/Clarion Call

Eric Feigel believes that teamwork is the key to "get the job done well."

I asked Feigel if he regrets coming to Clarion. Without any hesitation, he had this to say, "I look back at my friends who either went to Pitt or Duquesne or didn't even to go to school at all and find that they didn't change. They still have the exact same friends and live in the exact same world. I am glad that I went away, because I grew, not physically, but mentally . . . obviously. (You might say that Feigel is vertically challenged.) Feigel believes his time at Clarion has changed him in other ways as well. "I've learned more socially and have l learned more about people. I am better at communicating with other people. I was able to open up more and be more social. I also believe that I am also more adaptive to other cultures. I believe that is another way I may have grown.

I also asked him what changes he would have made during his time at Clarion University. "I would have gotten more involved with the campus television station and I wouldn't have waited until my junior year to act upon interest." Feigel has been interested in the communications field since he had taken an electronics media class in high school. He also states that he has always been fascinated by advertising. Just call him "commercial man".

Everyone will be remembered for something that they said or did. Feigel believes that he will be remembered for his penchant for bringing adventure into a situation. "No matter what I do something dramatic happens. I either get into fight or get caught in the century's worst wind storm." He also would like to be remembered as the one who always tried to do whatever he did to the best of his abilities. "If I was capable of making it better, I did.

Eric displays this character, by giving his time and energy to helping incoming freshmen through his work as an intern in the admissions office. When I asked him how he liked it, he answered in true Feigel-fashion, "I like it swell."

In a more serious tone, he stated, "I find it very enlightening when it comes to shedding light on what the professional world is like. I worked in the atmosphere of a real job setting. I have learned that the work done in the admissions office is based upon teamwork. You have to work together to get the job done well.

The only changes Eric Feigel would like to bring to Clarion University is a Taco Bell and to have the maintenance workers stop cutting the grass during class. I told you he made me laugh.

Professional fraternity announces winners

by Melissa Mayes
Contributing Writer

Zeta Phi Eta is a National Professional fraternity in the Communication Arts and Sciences. To become a member a student must be pursuing a degree in the Communication Arts and Sciences, receive a 3.0 GPA in his or her major, and have at least a 2.5 GPA overall.

Zeta Phi Eta held a Public Speaking Invitational on April 27th in which all students were eligible to enter. The winners on the persuasive and informative levels are as follows: On persuasive level one, Betsy Corbett took first place and Terry stoops received second place. On persuasive level iwo, Susan Lewis got first place, and Cathy Simpson took second. Doug Demosi and Jason Karolak tied for first place on the Informative level.

Judging the event were Speech Communications professors, Mr. Anderson, Dr. Marshall, Dr. Yang, Dr. Young, and also a Communications graduate student, Eileen Withey.

Zeta Phi Eta would like to thank Booksmith trading, Burger King, McDonalds, P.C. Crackers, Perkins, Wendys, and Uzi's for their generous contributions, and the judges for their cooperation in the event.

Anyone who may be interested in joining Zeta Phi Eta can contact Dr. Marshall, the Chapter Advisor, at 226-2478 for information.

A Final Farewell:

Looking back on achievements

by Amy K. Gerkin
Lifestyles Editor

It's that time of year again. Freshmen breathe a sigh of relief as they have made it through their first full year of college. Sophomores and juniors also sigh, but they know better because fall is right around the corner (again). Time definitely flies when you are having fun (or working or whatever).

But seniors are a different story altogether. I have found that there are three general categories of seniors on this campus — the excited, the depressed and the anxious. Now, I know it is wrong to categorize or stereotype people, but as an editor I can assure you if you look around, you will know what I am talking about.

The excited seniors cannot WAIT to graduate next week. They have been counting the days since their freshman year, and counting the hours since last semester. They are not afraid to go out into the "real world" and show potential employers what they are made of.

The depressed seniors are those who will be sobbing come commencement day. They are those who will miss every little aspect of Clarion University, from Becker to Still Halls and everything in between. They are looking forward to graduation, but when the clock begins to wind down, they begin to dread saying "goodbye."

Finally, the anxious seniors have usually been around for the past umpteen years. They are either scared to death to leave, or they just don't want to. The "real world" is not their top priority. These seniors are afraid to say the "j" word (job — AHHHH!!). They are basically having too much fun in school, and would rather not leave.

Now, before I get in trouble by stereotyping these seniors, let me say that it is possible to have a combination of these characteristics. Look at me, for example. I, for one, cannot wait to walk across that stage next Saturday. But, there are so many things I will miss about Clarion. I am a little nervous about the "real world," but it's not to the point where I would hide from it (yet).

There are two aspects here at CUP which I could probably not get along without. 1) Friendship and 2) Organizations. It's funny. People are always depressing themselves by telling each other how much they will miss each other after college life. I like to think of it this way. If you are truly friends with someone, you will not lose touch with that person. I have been friends with some people since ORIENTATION nearly four years ago. I know I will never, ever lose touch with them. But if you never hear from someone after graduation, ask yourself about the quality of that friendship.

As a senior, I feel I have had enough experience to tell those of you who still have time left here on campus — get yourself involved!!!!! You would not believe how much you can affect this campus if you do, whether it is in the Greek system, an organization in your major, or even a group you start on your own.

I'm not trying to tell you what to do (I'm anything but your mother), but being Lifestyles Editor for a year, I've seen so many students, faculty and community members being recognized for their achievements. From play productions to personal awards, these students have contributed a little something to this university as well as to themselves.

This year, I have tried to continue the Senior Spotlight stories of the Lifestyles section of this paper. I have received less than a handful of applications. I don't know about you, the audience, but I feel that these stories summarize the achievements of selected students who have made their mark on campus. Kari King, Brian Hoover and Howard Dean are just three of hundreds of seniors whom this campus will remember. In order to be recognized, you must be involved.

OK, now that I have lectured for a little while, it's your turn. It's up to you what this campus will be like for the duration you will be here. Students before us have left us the university to be passed on to you. Good luck!

Students win national ethics essay contest

by Carrie Lengauer
Lifestyles Writer

Unfairness is an injustice in the world today that angers many, but few do anything about it. Ethical problems about the way people are treated sparked CUP students Doris Goodman and Joyce Parker to put their frustrations into words. These words took the shape of essays, which won Clarion University's Ethics Essay Contest.

The contest, held in January, was co-sponsored by the Philosophy Department and the Office of the Dean of Arts and Sciences. The winners each received a $100 prize, and their essays went on to the Elie Wiesel Foundations for Humanity.

Doris Goodman's essay, "The Image in the Glass: Who Am I?" examines how society treats the mind and the body as separate entities. Goodman discusses issues, such as plastic surgery, organ donations, and surrogacy, which she feels "commercialize" the body. She sees ethical problems in "separating what we feel from what we think," and asks, " How far should we go for money?"

Goodman thanks Dr. Jean Rumsey for supporting her effort to write the essay and encouraging her to enter the contest.

Joyce Parker's frustration with community agencies led her to write the winning essay, "The Rape of Free Will." She expresses the feelings of helplessness that she experienced going to social service agencies when her family needed their help. They found that the agencies were difficult to work with. Her essay also depicts experiences with doctors who have an "I know more than you do" attitude and won't listen to their patients. She says the doctors act like "the people they're treating have no knowledge of their own bodies."

Goodman is a senior Psychology major. Parker is also a senior, majoring in Psychology and Philosophy, with a minor in English. They are both involved in Psychology Club, Psi Chi, and RACS. Along with Darlene Hartman, they will co-chair the Adult Learners On Campus (ALOC) conference in October 1994.

Seniors: let's do lunch

by Anita Carbin
Lifestyles Writer

Seniors! Come celebrate your graduation at the Senior Luncheon which is sponsored by the Student Alumni Ambassadors (SAA). A buffet will be held in Chandler Dining Hall on May 8, at 12:30 p.m.

The keynote speaker will be Dennis C. Darling. He is director of the Bureau of Human Resources in the Pennsylvania Department of Human Affairs. The Clarion graduate currently serves on various committees.

Other guest speakers include President Reinhardt and Student Senate President Brian Hoover. The "Outstanding Senior Award" will be presented with a $100 gift certificate. This award will be granted to a student who has shown service and dedication to enhance the goals of Clarion University.

New bricks will be added to the commemorative wall. The unveiling will immediately follow the Senior Luncheon outside Gemmell Complex.

The Senior luncheon has been funded mainly through SAA's Birthday Cake Program. SAA is an organization which exists to strengthen relationships between students and alumni. The Student Alumni Ambassadors look forward to seeing the graduating students at the Senior Luncheon.

Students with meal tickets may credit this lunch as part of their meal plan.

news of the WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

-In February, New Mexico state patrolman Norman Martinez filed a lawsuit against a Santa Fe bar and its bouncer for injuries he suffered during an off-duty fight. Martinez is asking additional compensation for his broken nose because he can no longer properly sniff for alcohol on the breaths of drivers.

-Frances Bobnar of Adamsburg, Pennsylvania, filed a lawsuit against the Pennsylvania Lottery Commission in March, claiming that she and family members have spent more than $150,000 on lottery tickets during the last 10 years but have never won.

-In November Tom Stafford of Mission Viejo, California, won $8,500 in a lawsuit against a local golf course. He hit an errant shot that ricocheted off a steel pole and smacked him in the forehead.

-In February, Bernadette French, 36, won $1.1 million in a lawsuit against the Wilmington (Delaware) Hospital. French, who suffers from manic depression, gouged her eyes out and then claimed the hospital staff was negligent in allowing that to happen.

-In a July story on odd names in England, the Wall Street Journal reported on the plight of a woman's scholarly organization in the town of Ugley. Said spokes person Irene Camp, "We try to call ourselves the Women's Institute of Ugley, but it never sticks."

-In January, British actress Gillian Taylforth testified in court that, contrary to a police officer's assertation, she was not performing oral sex on her fiance, Geoffrey Knights, in the front seat of a car on a public road, but rather that he had just suffered a gastrointestinal attack and that she was merely comforting him by massaging his abdomen with her hands. Taylforth had filed a libel lawsuit against England's Sun newspaper for reporting the incident as oral sex, and the judge allowed the jurors out to the courthouse parking lot where Taylforth and Knights took their seats in the vehicle, with seatbelts fastened, and Taylforth demonstrated what she said she did. (The jury ruled against her.)

-In March, the Medical Board of California charged orthopedic surgeon Fereydoune Shirazi with improper behavior during a 1990 operation. Allegedly, when Shirazi took an eleven minute restroom break while an operation was in progress, he forgot to turn off a machine called the nucleotome, which has tiny blades to cut the insides of the patient's spinal column.

-In March a newspaper in the Western Netherlands city of Alphen Aan de Rijn reported that ten people had recently fallen victim to a denture thief. A telephone caller would persuade a denture user to leave his dentures in a bag outside his door at night to be picked up, adjusted for comfort, and returned to him the next morning. None have been returned so far.

-Hong Kong's leading newspaper reported in February that a Chinese TV crew, which had just completed shooting a documentary on the first open-heart surgery ever performed at the Weifang Medical Institute in Shangdong, would have to reshoot. Officials had belatedly realized that the open heart patient was actually a boy who had been admitted for a tonsillectomy.

-In February, minutes before a jury would have ruled against her claim, Joyce Caudle reached a settlement of a lawsuit with the company that sold the stationary exercise bicycle on which she suffered a $200,000 injury in 1991. According to Caudle, who weighed 264 pounds at the time, the post on which the seat was mounted burst through the seat and ruptured her rectum and intestines.

-In Warren, Ohio, in January, Trumbull County Jail inmate Lisa Layne, 33, serving time for destruction of property, was separated from other inmates because of her penchant, for what she said were religious reasons, for removing her clothes and spreading feces over her body.

-Michael L. Kagan, 47, was convicted in San Francisco in February of manslaughter in the 1992 shooting death of local rock musician Philip Bury, who was the leader of Buck Naked and the Bare Bottom Boys. According to testimony, Kagan killed Bury for abusing pigeons in Golden Gate Park early one morning. Kagan had been spending over $1,000 a month feeding pigeons and had threatened several times to shoot people and dogs who bother the pigeons.

-In March, James J. Hogan, formerly the bishop of the Altoona-Johnstown, Pennsylvania Roman Catholic Diocese, told a courtroom in Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania, that he did not believe it was necessary to discipline one of his priests, who had been accused of rubbing his penis on the bottoms of young boys' feet. Said Hogan, "I did not recognize it as child molestation."

-In March, George William Corrao, 41, was charged in the shotgun death of his mother in Milwaukee. According to police, while the two were watching television, Corrao became agitated because she was talking incessantly about Olympic skater Dan Jansen.

Q. Dear Mr. College: I'm Hooked on Phonics!! HELP!—K.C., Providence, RI
A. Dear K.C.: Admitting you have a problem and asking for help is a good sign. The thing to do now is to get yourself into a competent twelve-step program...oh sorry. How insensitive of me. I mean: Get / your-self / in-to / a / comp-e-tent / twelve / step / pro-gram. And be thankful, it could be a lot worse! At least you're not cuckoo for Coco-Puffs®.

Q. Dear Mr. College: I'm dating someone who acts like Greg Brady. Should I be concerned?—Frightened in Washington, Washington, DC
A. Dear Frightened: There are a lot of people frightened in Washington these days. But that's another issue entirely. If you mean he acts like Greg Brady by being a fine, upstanding, drug-free, healthy young man—then no, you shouldn't worry. If you mean he acts like Greg Brady by wearing loud paisley shirts with gigantic collars, skin tight bell-bottoms and platform shoes then you may want to...split that scene. If you know what I'm sayin'.

Q. Dear Mr. College: Why?—Inquisitive, Madison, WI
A. Dear Inquisitive: Because if it's not one thing, it's another. It's always something. If it's not this, it's that. Six of one, a half dozen of the other. Ya gotta roll with the punches. A tit for a tat. What goes around comes around. When the going gets tough, the tough get going, and if ya can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. But you know, it's not so much the heat, it's the humidity.

Can it be? '80s nostalgia here already?

by Greg D'Avis
Arizona Daily Wildcat
College Press Service

Remember "Solid Gold" with Rex Smith and Marilyn McCoo? The Buggles and "Video Killed the Radio Star"? When vinyl ruled the Earth, having conquered the upstart 8-tracks (compact discs weren't even a digital blip on the horizon)?

As the adolescents of the early 1980's approach the real world, the music we listened to during our misspent childhoods is attaining the status of - heaven help us - nostalgia.

Take any group of people in their early 20's, and chances are none of them will admit to remembering, say, America and Lover-boy.

But start singing "You Can Do Magic" or "Working For the Weekend," and you'll work up a good-sized chorus pretty damn quickly.

And the music is working its way into our lives in subtler, more insidious ways. Joan Jett resurrects "I Love Rock and Roll" for "Wayne's World 2." New greatest hits or outtakes collections from Blondie and the Go-Go's come out of nowhere. Some mysterious force reissues the soundtrack to "Valley Girl" on compact disc.

The early part of the 80's had a curious mix of performers: washouts from the previous decade making one last stab at a hit (Randy Newman, anybody?), a large cross-section of musicians emerging from the remnants of 70's punk and disco to make a few albums before fading away (The Talking Heads, Billy Idol), and perhaps the largest sampling of one-hit wonders than any other era in history.

Sure, some stars from the era are still producing - but how much? No one but his agent can name Billy Idol's last three albums, Boy George has joined the Krishnas, and Michael Jackson is busy with other problems.

"It seems like nostalgia is just accelerating," said Sean Murphy, a manager at Zia Record Exchange in Tucson, Ariz.

Murphy said that although many old bands attempt and fail at comebacks, "early '80s bands seem to be more successful at that.

"It's pretty interesting that bands like Duran Duran can make a huge comeback," he said.

Maybe it's all just beginning. Soon, contemporary bands could start ripping off riffs from Asia or Wall of Voodoo. Martha Quinn could return to MTV and wipe out that Dan Cortese moron.

But is it too soon to get excited about 10-year-old music?

"All of a sudden we're nostalgic for a decade we're barely out of," Murphy said.

published. It becomes the responsibility of the System of Higher Education's Chancellor's office, the state Human Relations office and even the office of the governor to provide guidelines, legal opinions and perhaps even sensitivity training that will empower newspaper staffs, and schedulers of campus activities to make these decisions.

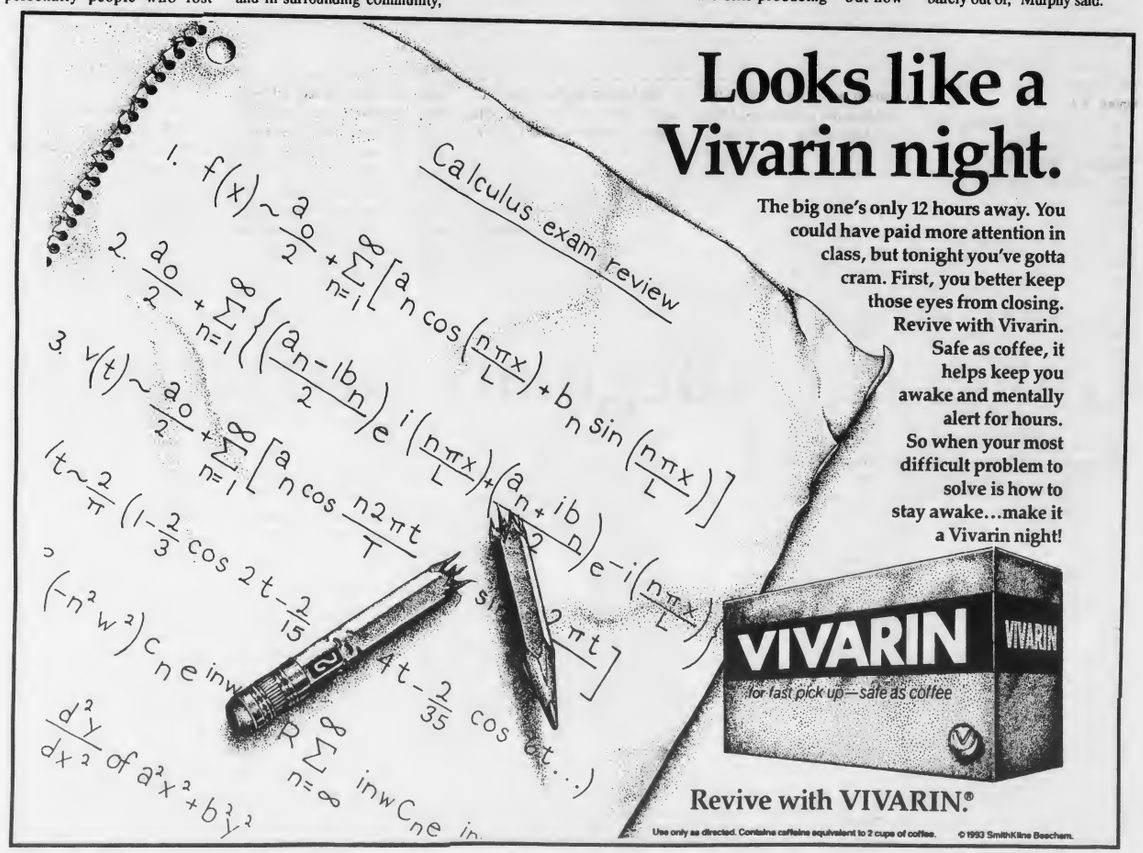

I do not want this to serve as a precedent for every bigot and racist around to use our campus newspaper or facilities as a dump for their brand of toxic waste.

As a person who knows personally people who lost everyone, parents, brothers and sisters, aunts and uncles, yes everyone, in the Holocaust (my family only lost "distant" relatives) it makes my flesh creep to see the memory of these victims trivialized.

Even though the editors tried to disassociate themselves from this ad, it is now time for them to stand up and apologize in print for the unnecessary pain that they inflicted upon the many descendants of Holocaust survivors, and the relatives of those who perished, both Jewish and non-Jewish, on the campus and in surrounding community, and for their insensitivity in this matter.

A big improvement from last year

Softball team finishes season

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

The Clarion University softball team recently finished out their season with two tough double headers.

Last Thurdsay, the Eagles hosted Westminster University. In the first game, Sonya Hafer took to the mound and pitched a complete game to get the win for Clarion, 4-3. Brown gave up six hits and three runs, only one of which was earned. She also struck out two.

Missy Brown pitched the second game for Clarion and had similar numbers to Hafer's. She gave up six hits, three runs, only one of which was earned, and struck out two.

But the Eagles didn't produce at the plate as well for Brown and Clarion lost in the eighth inning, 3-1.

At the plate for Clarion for both games combined, Leslie Schattauer was 1-for-6 with an RBI. Melodi Dess and Rose Wilson each had a hit, and Wilson scored a run, and knocked in a run. Dess stole a base. Danene Brown collected two hits in six at bats. Julie Catalano was 2-for-3 with a run scoredand one stolen base. Mary Beth Kasenchak went 1-for-5. And Lesley Croston was 2-for-6 with three RBI and a home run.

Clarion then traveled to Edinboro for a difficult road game. The Eagles beat Edinboro earlier this year, but that wouldn't be the case on Saturday.

The Golden Eagles couldn't do much right and dropped both games to Edinboro, 10-1 and 8-1.

Pitney noted that at the beginning of the first game, it seemed as if Clarion had trouble getting motivated. This could be due to the tough schedule that the Eagles have played over the past few weeks. In the second game, the team started out well but it started to rain and got very cold, and Piney feels that this had an effect on the players.

Brown and Hafer gave up eleven earned runs between them in the two games, and Clarion had trouble both offensively and defensively.

At the plate, Schattauer was 2-for-4. Pitney went 2-for-6. Dess and Wilson both had one hit in four at bats. Kasenchak was one of the few bright spots for Clarion, collecting three hits in four trips to the plate.

These two games marked the end of the season for Clarion. The Lady Eagles finished their season with a 7-26 mark, which some may not see as a marked improvement on last year's 7-22 team, but it is.

As Clarion tries to rebuild through new recruits, one of their goals to climb into the PSAC-West race is to obviously beat PSAC-West opponents. Last year the team was 0-10 in conference play, but this year they improved to 3-7. One of thoses wins came over Edinboro earlier in the season, and Edinboro has a good team.

Clarion also stayed with several opponents that had beaten the Lady Eagles badly in past seasons.

Pitney said, "For as many young people we had, I think we did an excellent job. Everybody really improved.

"We're going to have a really good season next year."

Golfers at Allegheny Invitational

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Over the weekend, Clarion golfers traveled to Meadville to take part in the Allegheny Invitational at The Country Club.

Clarion finished fifth out seven teams with a team score of 799. Rochester shot 758 to take first, Slippery Rock was second with 771, host Allegheny was close behind with a 772, Gannon shot a 777, Westminster had 839, and Edinboro was last with a 839.

Chris Brosius finished fifth at the tourney which was good enough to earn him a spot on the all-tournament team. Brosius shot a 152, with a 74 on the first day and a 78 on the second.

Andy Ganoe was second for the Golden Eagles with a 157 (83, 74). Corey Bierly had a 162 (87, 75), Brian Fiscus shot 163 (82, 81), Todd Corbeil finished with a 168 (85, 83), and Matt Fiscus had a 170 (84, 86).

Slippery Rock's Mike Ferry, who finished second at last week's PSAC's, won the event.

The CUP golf team is now down for the season. The conference has announced some post-season honors. Greg Downer of Sippery Rock who won the PSAC's was "Player of the Year." Slippery Rock's Bill Kirk was "Coach of the Year."

NOTES FROM THE PSAC: Linebacker and All-Conference selection, Lee Woodall of West Chester was the only PSAC player picked in Sunday's NFL draft. He was chosen by the San Francisco 49ers in the sixth round. The 49ers were said to have had a good draft, particularly from a defensive perspective.

California University of Pennsylvania has won its sixth straight PSAC-West title.

Shippensburg's softball team turned a triple play against NY Techon April 23. With runners on first and second, an outfield fly to right was the first out. A relayed throw to third led to the second out as the runner tried to advance after a tag. The third out came at second as the runner from first tried to advance during the play at third.

Kutztown's Lorie Erie has 39 stolen bases and 39 runs in 25 games. Erie set a PSAC single season and career mark for stolen bases. The career mark is 87.

Edinboro's softball team recently beat Ashland University twice. Ashland had been ranked as high as 16 in the country. Edinboro pitcher Terri Spaulding pitched in all ten of Edinboro's games over one stretch, going 5-4. She also batted .344 (11-32) with seven RBI, a double and a triple.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania recently had a string of bad luck. First they had to play Laurie Machuga of Allegheny who was in the process of setting an NCAA Division III record for scoreless innings given up. Then they had to play Mercyhurst. They scored three runs in the top of the twelfth inning to take a lead of 11-8. Mercyhurst then hit a grand slam to steal the victory from the Scots.

Kim Maguire of Bloomsburg leads the conference in pitching wins (25), ERA (0.77), pitching saves (2), and strike outs per seven innings (9.15).

Clarion's Sonya Hafer has one save whcih puts her at third on the conference, and Julie Catalano is fourth in the conference in stolen bases with ten.

Baseball team splits with Lock Haven

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

Clarion University's baseball team recently had to play California at home and Lock Haven on the road for two tough double headers.

Last Wednesday Cal came into town and gave the Eagles some problems. In the first game, Cal whipped the Eagles 16-0

Cal is the second best hitting team in the conference, batting .325 as a team. Cal is also the third best pitching team in the conference.

Clarion could only manage five hits in game one, those coming from Don Biertempfel, Pat Berzonski, Marc Grommes, Kurt Pannier, and John Qauhliero.

Ryan Saul was one of the few bright spots for the Eagles. Pitching in relief he went 4 1/3 innings, giving up only one run. Clarion's big problem was control, and Eagle pitchers walked twelve in the first game.

Game two finished 5-2 in a loss for Clarion , but it was much closer than that.

Jason Knight started that game on the mound for Clarion. Knight had shut out Cal earlier this season.

Cal got two runs in the first but Clarion was able to tie things up in the third, with Marc Keller scoring both runs off of Quahliero RBI's.

Clarion tried to rally in the sixth but couldn't get the runs in. Cal got two more runs in the seventh.

Saturday, Clarion was at Lock Haven. In game one, Chad McCombs took the mound and went the distance, picking up a 4-1 victory. McCombs gave up three hits and struck out seven against a team tied for second in the conference. Earlier in the year he also beat Edinboro, a team that recently won the conference.

Tim Stimmel scored in the second inning and Clarion took a 1-1 tie into the sixth. In the sixth Scott Weir got on base and stole second, then was able to score off of a Pannier single.

In the seventh, the Eagles added two more runs.

In game two, Clarion scored four runs in the first inning. Three of those runs came off of a Stimmel three-run dinger. Beraonski also scored on a Ken Stupka hit.

Lock Haven was able to get back into the game by getting three runs themselves in the bottom of the first, and then they tied the game in the third inning.

Lock haven got two more in the fifth inning, but Clarion came back in the seventh. McCombs tripled and scored, and Stimmel scored as well. Biertempfel hit a one out triple, but Clarion was unable to bring him home to take the lead.

Lock Haven scored the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the seventh.

Clarion will next be in action Thursday against Westminster University.

Clarion is currently 9-21 overall with a mark of 4-14 in the PSAC-West conference play.

PSAC Baseball notes: Edinboro clinched the PSAC-West for the first time since 1973. Mansfield has also clinched at least a tie for an Easterd Division pennat not to mention a playoff berth. In the West, California and Lock Haven are tied at 10-8. The two teams meet in the regular season finale Saturday at Lock Haven. A sweep by either team will put that team in the tournament. A split may force a playoff. Cal pitcher Rick Hurst set a Cal record for wins in a season by going 9-0. Edinboro's Scott Rupert also set a school mark by tying the fighting Scot school record for RBI with 50. Rupert is also in the top five in the PSAC in four different offensive categories. He is the leader in RBI and doubles, and has eight home runs. Should the California University Vulcans win one more game, they will set a school record for wins in a season with 30. Mansfield has the top two batters in the conference and the top four run scorers.

IN THE BLEACHERS

"Let's give him another five minutes. If he doesn't come to and charge the mound, then I say we go ahead with the bench-clearing brawl without him."

Sports Trivia Question

Everyone knows that Hank Aaron and Babe Ruth are the two all-time leading home run hitters. Can you name the next five names down the list? Answer next semester. Have a nice summer.

Major League Baseball

Where has all the pitching gone

by Kraig Koelsch
Sports Writer

The American League West Division consists of the Seattle Mariners, the Texas Rangers, the California Angels, and the Oakland Athletics. Each of these teams is off to an extremely poor start, and possibly could all finish under the .500 mark for the year.

On paper the two strongest teams out of this division are Seattle and Texas, but pitching is taking its toll on all four teams. For Texas, Kevin Brown is off to a 1-4 start, and he hasn't given up less than ten hits in any of his victories. Kenny Rogers is also struggling, and has opened the season at 2-2, with an earned run average of 4.64. For Seattle, Randy Johnson, Chris Bosio, Dave Fleming, and Greg Hibbard, who were all supposed to frustrate batters, have been frustrated themselves going a combined 5-8 with a combined ERA well over 4.40.

Oakland has the problem of not having a dominant starter, and to make matters worse, the Athletics don't have a closer either. The A's staff is aging quickly with the likes of Ron Darling, Dave Righetti, Bobby Witt, and Bob Welch. Even promising youngster Todd Van Poppel has been rocked in every outing this year. The only ray of hope has been Steve Karsay and he is 1-1 with a 2.57 ERA.

For the Angels, Brian Anderson is 3-0, but Chuck Finley is 0-2 and Mark Langston is on the disabled list again. Joe Grahe has four saves out of the pen, but he has an ERA of 5.79, and has given up six earned runs in only nine innings pitched.

Is American League West the only division in baseball that has no good pitching? The answer is no. This could be attributed to the fact that many people say that the ball is juiced and that the seems are tighter than normal. This allows the ball to sail much farther.

The previous record for RBI in the month of April stood at 30. Joe Carter broke that record with 31, and Andres Galarragga drove in 30, but playing in Colorado could allow even the weakest of hitters to approach those kinds of numbers.

Maybe the hitting is just too good, and the pitching is just getting worse and worse. Eight hitters are on pace to hit fifty or more homers by years end but many will fall off of that pace. This year could be a record setting year in many aspects because team averages are up higher as well. It is only early in the season, but it is interesting to look at some of these statistics. All of this talk of bad pitching does not mean every pitcher in baseball is having a bad year. That is simply not true.

In the National League, Bob Tewksbury is off to a 6-0 start, and Greg Swindell, Ken Hill, and Tom Browning are having solid years. Greg Maddux also has been sharp, but was roughed up by the Pirates, a team many consider to be low on hitting talent.

In the American League, Wilson Alvarez and Ben McDonald have both started off at 5-0, and Aaron Sele, Jose Mesa, Todd Stottlemyre, and Eric Plunk have all gotten off to good starts.

So where are Roger Clemens, Doug Drabek, Curt Schilling, Kevin Appier and Terry Mulholland? Again you have to realize that the baseball season is very young, but is extremely interesting when players talked about the ball being juiced. It may only be heresay, but if it's true, there will be a lot of pitchers who won't be to happy about it.

Finally, keep an eye on the papers as well as television over the summer months, because a baseball strike is in the works, and revenue sharing, which was approved by the owners will probably not be approved by the players union because a salary cap must also be instituted. Not to say that if I was a player I would support a salary cap, but the time has come to change baseball. When one has to pay Jose Lind 2.35 million per year, you know that a salary cap is of extreme importance. Also, a new commisioner has to be hired soon. Baseball has a lot of important decisions to make this summer, and the fans can just sit back and enjoy the ride- it's bound to be a crazy one.

The NFL in 1994: A fictitious look ahead

by Jody Males
Sports Writer

Well, this is my last story for the Call and I'm sure you can guess it's about the NFL by looking at the by-line. I'll leave you with my predictions for the next NFL season. Who knows, if I'm close enough, maybe ESPN will hire me and fire Mel "No Credibility" Kiper.

Opening day will be a truly sad day for the FOX network. The game they're hyping as the "big one" will be a big joke. Dallas at Pittsburgh will lose the ratings in a hurry. Steelers 37-Dallas 6.

Trent Dilfer will be the Buc's starting quarterback all year, fulfilling his promise of beating out Craig Erickson.

The number one defense in the league after five games will belong to the Arizona "not Phoenix" Cardinals. Buddy Ryan will have his former Eagles Clyde Simmons and Seth Joyner leading a squadron known as the "Cactus Curtain."

The surprise of the season will be the Denver Broncos. John Elway will have 11 touchdown passes in the first four games, hitting targets Anthony Miller, Mike Pritchard and Shannon Sharpe. This trio will be the new "Three Amigos."

New England will be a pleasant surprise. Behind the wizardry coaching of Bill Parcells and the arm of Drew Bledsoe, the Pats will no longer be patsies.

At mid-season, the leaders will be the 49ers, the Packers, the Cardinals, the Seahawks, the Steelers, and the Patriots. The trend of the season will be high scoring. Scores like 37-31, 45-35, and 42-40 will be popping up everywhere. Regardless of how good defenses are getting, a ton of points will be scored as offenses begin to pick up on defensive substitutions.

San Francisco will again have the #1 offense. That's right- Young to Rice, Young to Taylor, and Young to Jones. No big changes there.

Dan Marino will be back and doing better than ever (except for his record-setting '84 season). Dan the man will have his Miami Dolphins on a winning streak of six games and will again defeat their archrival the Bills.

The picks of the '94 draft are a mixed bag. Dan Wilkinson of Cincinatti will be having a stellar year with 10 sacks. Marshall Faulk will be having an average first year for the Colts, and Heath Shuler will be sputtering with the hapless Redskins, who will still be in NFC East basement.

As the stretch winds down, and the playoffs arrive, the powerhouse in the NFC will be the Packers. Quarterback Brett Favre will cut his interception total from last year in half while he passes for 28 touchdowns (many to Sterling Sharpe).

The Pack will also have a solid defense behind Reggie White. They will rank third in the league behind Pittsburgh and Minnesota.

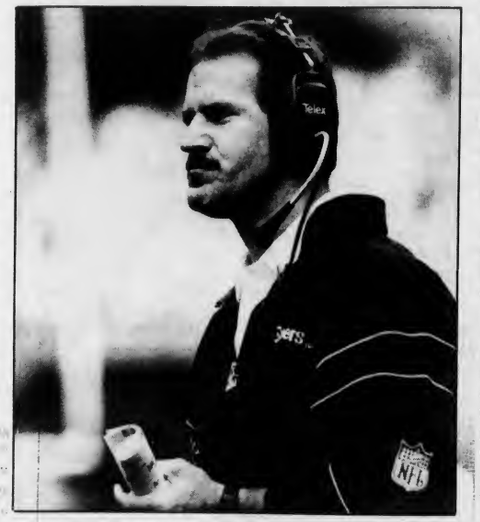

In the AFC, the Seattle Seahawks will make a late season run to win the AFC West, just ahead of the Raiders.

The Steelers will win the central by two over the Brownies. Sorry Oiler fans, Commander Cody Carlson won't make it in Houston.

The Bills will again make the playoffs, but this time as a wild card.

The Patriots will win the East, but will lose in the first round of the playoffs.

Super Bowl XXIX will feature the San Francisco 49ers against the Pittsburgh Steelers. This is the "one for the thumb bowl." I won't tell you who wins, but the game will be decided by a two point conversion in front of the largest television audience ever. The Steelers will be heavily favored as well.

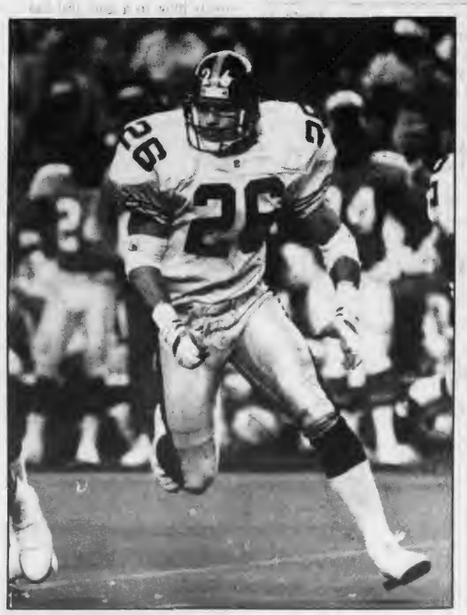

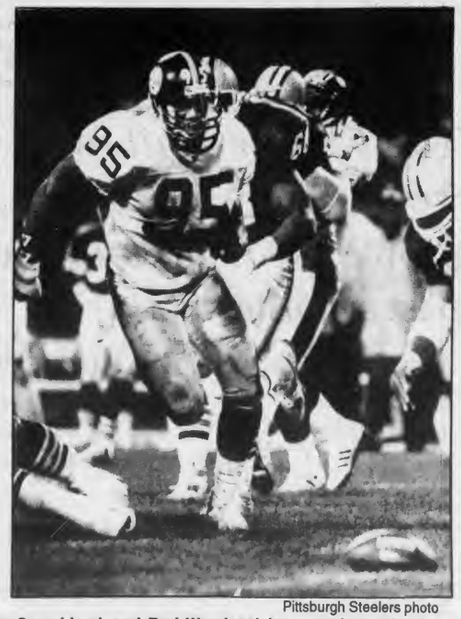

In a sly move, the Steelers may try to sneak Jack Lambert and Lynn Swann on to the field, but their services won't be needed as Charles Johnson will catch 12 passes for 315 yards. Oh yeah, and Barry Foster will rush for 164 yards. Greg Lloyd will knock Jerry Rice out of the game in the first quarter with a vicious blow that will leave Rice unconscious. It's also discovered the George Seifert is Bill Walsh in disguise!

The national anthem will be sung by Ace of Base and the coin will be tossed by Jody Males. Alright, enough is enough.

Finally, I would like to say that I have truly enjoyed writing football for the Call. It has been fun. I can't write any more articles, but a new season is near with a new schedule, new players, and new coaches. But one thing stays the same - mission Miami and Super Bowl XXIX.

I can't wait for September 4!

Will these three men (clockwise from top - Coach Bill Cower, Greg Lloyd, and Rod Woodson) be enough to take the Pittsburgh Steelers to Miami and their fifth Super Bowl championship? Those four Vince Lombardi's look awfully lonely in Three Rivers Stadium.

The Knicks and the Sonics: Teams to beat

The NBA playoffs are underway

by Jason Furnish
Sports Writer

Well it's finally here. The NBA playoffs, also known as "the real season," are finally upon us. But before we look at the playoffs, let's look back at an incredible regular season.

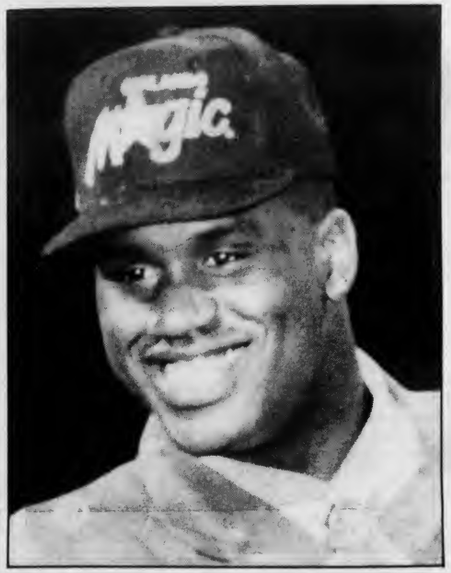

As we all know, the season began with the absence of the best player in the world, Michael Jordan. Of course, the multitude of questions about how the NBA would survive without Mike surfaced. Not to worry though, the popularity of the NBA has soared along with the TV ratings, which have remained steady, if not actually increased. The NBA is surviving very well without the likes of Mike, but it would be nice to see his dominating presence on the court one last time. But it might be hard to pull a man away from the baseball world where he's hitting around .300 (in AA ball that is).

The rumors of Charles Barkley's retirement have surfaced all year and we have to wonder if Chuck will hang it up at the end of this season. It's doubtful, unless he wins that long awaited championship.

The downfall of two of the greatest franchises ever seemed to damper the remains of the "old school" of basketball. The Lakers and Celtics will both be in this year's lottery draft to see what they can do with the hand they're dealt.

The last of the major occurences that have turned heads this year was the trade of long-time Hawk, Dominique Wilkins to the 'Clips for Danny Manning. It looks like Wilkins may never get that elusive title he's been looking for if he resigns with the Clippers.

Now for the post season.

File Photo

Shaquille O'Neal and his Orlando Magic weren't tough enough to stand up to a playoff attack from the Reggie Miller-led Indiana Pacers. The Pacers swept the Magic in three games in the first round of the playoffs

This is the time of year when you can throw the regular season records out the window, buckle up, and enjoy the exciting ride. As most fans and experts say, this is the real season, and teams need to tighten up and play to their fullest potential. No matter what happens the rest of the way, we can already applaud the effort put forth by some teams. For example, check out the Indiana Pacers. This is a team that nobody gives much respect to, or really knows about. But after watching Larry Brown's team work smoothly with the contributions of Derrick McKey, Haywood Workman, and Dale Davis, this team deserves some respect. They took on a very talented, young team in the Orlando Magic, but they played tough defense to shut down Shaq, Inc. Although the Pacers don't get as much TV time or publicity as the Magic, they sure did shine once they hit the national stage.

Another team that deserves a great deal of respect going into the playoffs are the Golden State Warriors. Losing Tim Hardaway and Saronus Marcilonus to knee injuries in the pre-season was a mighty blow to a team that had just selected Chris Webber. The Warriors surprised everyone by putting together a very respectable season and earning the chance to meet Phoenix on the playoffs.

The Warriors are a team that is going to be very strong in the very near future. Can you just imagine the line-up they could put on the court? No matter what happens to them in the playoffs, they deserve respect just for getting through the trials and tribulations of this season and make it this far.

The Cleveland Cavaliers have fallen on hard times in the playoffs once again. If it's not Air Jordan getting in their way, it's injuries.

The Cavs front line has been torn apart by injuries and there isn't much of a chance for a team with a weak front line in the post season. It seems as though the long regular season has started to take its toll on the Cavs.

Now, who will be in this year's finals? My predicition is probably a typical one- the Seattle SuperSonics versus the New York Knicks. It seems that many people are picking these two to face off this June.

Being a Knick fan, this is somewhat biased, but these two teams appear to be the best teams in the league. The Knicks may have had some ups and downs during the regular season, but playoff ball is New York ball. The Knicks proved this last year by taking on the Bulls with aggressive, physical play, showing that they can control the tempo, and outcome of games. Give me John Starks, Patrick Ewing, and Charles Oakley and I'll give you a winner.

The Sonics, on the other hand, are a different type of defensive team with a very explosive offense. They are a very volatile team with young, exciting, emotional players such as Gary Payton and Shawn Kemp. Their defense creates plenty of steals and this feeds the fire of the Sonics, quite often leading to points off of fast breaks and Kemp dunks.

When it comes down to the final game for the championship and I have to pick my winner, it'll be a tough decision but in the end I'll have to go with my heart and say....I love this game!

America's team? Not for long

by Nathan Kahl
Sports Editor

America's team. Yeah, yeah, yeah, we've heard it all before. Why is it that when a "normal" team wins the Super Bowl they receive the "normal" amount of fanfare and celebration, but when the venerable Dallas Cowboys win the Super Bowl, we are supposed to bow down at their feet in humble worshipfulness?

All we heard about was Jerry and Jimmy, Jimmy and Jerry, Jimmy and Rosalyn, Ben and Jerry. For months it was a bombardment of J's. We see their players all over talk shows and billboards, Sports Illustrated offers a Cowboys season highlight tape for incentive to subscribe, SI ran Emmitt Smith on its cover two weeks in a row for the NFC championship and Super Bowl, and now we are hearing "America's team." Fine, go ahead and curse them.

Back in the late 60's and early 70's the Cowboys were referred to as America's team. It was understandable. They had the all-American Navy boy in quarterback Roger Staubach, they had flashy wide receivers, they had a tough, punishing defense, they had a legendary, classy coach, and of course they carried the stigma of being the "Cowboys," a tough, rugged image forever representing our country in the minds of everybody.

That is much the same reason for today's Cowboys being called America's team. Troy Aikman is a good looking, team leading quarterback. Smith is arguably the best running back in the NFL (witness his performance against the Giants with his dislocated shoulder in the last week of the season). They have a great wide receiver in Michael Irvin, and like their 70's predecessors, they have a good defense.

However, if you ask any of those 70's players what the toughest thing they had to deal with was, they'll tell you it was being considered America's team.

Said wide receiver Drew Hill, "We hated being called America's team. It just motivated everybody to play harder against us. Everybody made it their goal of the season to beat us."

Indeed it did. Perhaps the people it angered most of all were the Pittsburgh Steelers. The Steelers loved being the bad guys, the guys with black hats, but they didn't always like the Cowboys being called America's team. After all, the Steelers won four Super Bowls during that time span, compared to two for the Cowboys. Maybe that's part of the reason why the Steelers beat up on the Cowboys to win the two Super Bowls in which the teams were paired. "We didn't listen to all the stuff they said," said Steeler Jack Lambert, "We just liked beating them- which we always did."

After Super Bowl X the Cowboys egos were so bruised that they canceled their flight to the Pro-Bowl, a flight that they were sharing with the Steelers, in option for a different plane.

So Troy Aikman, talk to Roger Staubach. Do you really want to be called America's team? Hey Emmitt Smith, call Robert Newhouse or Tony Dorsett. Michael Irvin should talk to Drew Hill or Preston Pearson. Thomas Everett needs to watch Lynn Swann burn loudmouth Cliff Harris for touchdown after touchdown.

But fear not Cowboy fans, this America's team thing is fading faster than Mark Rypien's career. Not only was the famous Jerry and Jimmy comedy team split up, but players are leaving Dallas at breakneck speed.

Many of the players that made up the nucleus of the team are still around, but the Cowboys have lost several role players and part time people that may not make Plays of the Week all the time, but are the pieces that help keep the team rolling along. Of course the salary cap hurts, but it seems as if Jerry Jones thinks players will play for him even if it is for less money. One Cowboy said, "They think players are going to stay just because they're the Cowboys." That's the arrogance of Jones.

To add to that, Jimmy Johnson, whose ego could not live in Texas stadium beside Jones' was sent down the road and in came Barry Switzer. Johnson was one of the few coaches who could keep this team together and functioning as well as he did, and was also very like by the players, if not the owner.

So Jones brings in Switzer, and this is sure to alienate some fans. The good ol' boys will like him, seeing as he is from Arkansas and also spent time coaching the Oklahoma Sooners, but he left Oklahoma amid a flurry of controversy with players being arrested for everything from rape to drugs. He ran a successful program, but as it was called by more than one observer, it was "the best team money could buy." Unfortunately for Jones, he won't be able to lure players to Dallas with the promise of new cars, nice apartments and free room and board.

The Cowboys have had two very good seasons, but must we be overexposed to all this Cowboy hype? Southerners love to rally around successful southern teams (note the Braves) but I think it's being overdone just a little bit. If people want to call them America's team, fine, be my guest, but if it catches on I guarantee the Cowboys will resent it. They are a good team, but enough is enough. And considering the recent turn of events in Dallas, the Cowboys may not be on top of the NFL heap much longer.

How 'bout them Cowboys? Let's just wait and see.
